rink (rɪŋk) n. Sports. 1. An area surfaced with smooth ice for skating, hockey, or curling. 2. A smooth floor suited for roller-skating. 3. A building that houses a surface prepared for skating. 4. A section of a bowling green large enough for holding a match. 5. A team of players in quoits, bowling, or curling. [Middle English renk, racecourse, from Old French renc, line, of Germanic origin. See sker² in Appendix.]

rin-ky-dink (rɪŋg'kē-dɪŋk') Slang. adj. 1. Old-fashioned; worn-out. 2. Insignificant; unimportant. 3. Of cheap or poor quality; makeshift. — n. One that is regarded as old-fashioned, worn-out, insignificant, or cheap in quality. [Origin unknown.]

rinse (rɪns) v. tr. rinsed, rins-ing, rins-es. 1. To wash lightly with water. 2. To remove (soap, for example) by washing lightly in water. — n. 1. The act of washing lightly. 2. A solution, such as water, used in rinsing. 3. A solution used in coloring or conditioning the hair. [Middle English rincen, from Old French rincier, from Vulgar Latin recentiāre*, from Latin recēns, recent-, fresh. See RECENT.] — rins/a-ble, rins/i-ble adj. — rins'er n.

Rí-o or Ri-o (rē'ō) For names of South American rivers, see the specific element; for example, Plata, Río de la, or Roosevelt, Rio.

Ri-o-bam-ba (rē'ō-bām'bə, -vām'bä) A city of central Ecuador in the Andes south of Quito. Ecuador's independence was proclaimed here in 1830. Population, 75,455.

Rí-o Bra-vo (rē'ō brä'vō) See Rio Grande¹.

Ri-o Cla-ro (rē'ō klär'ō, rē'ōō) A city of southeast Brazil northwest of São Paulo. It is a trade and industrial center. Population, 103,119.

Rí-o Cuar-to (rē'ō kwär'tō, rē'ō) A city of north-central Argentina south of Córdoba. It is a trade, processing, and industrial center. Population, 110,254.

Ri-o de Ja-nei-ro (rē'ō dā zhə-nār'ō, dē-, rē'ōō dī zhī-nā'rōō) Familiarly known as "Rio." A city of southeast Brazil on Guanabara Bay, an arm of the Atlantic Ocean. According to tradition, it was first visited in January 1502 by Portuguese explorers who believed Guanabara Bay to be the mouth of a river and therefore named the city Rio de Janeiro ("River of January"). It became capital of the colony of Brazil in 1763, of the Brazilian empire in 1822, and of the independent country in 1889. In 1960 the capital was transferred to Brasília. Population, 5,090,700.

Rí-o de O-ro (rē'ō dē ôr'ō, thē) The southern part of Western Sahara in northwest Africa.

Ri-o Grande¹ (rē'ō gränd', grän'dē) Or in Mexico Rí-o Bra-vo (rē'ō brä'vō). A river, about 3,033 km (1,885 mi) long, rising in southwest Colorado and flowing generally south through central New Mexico to southwest Texas, where it turns southeast and forms the U.S.-Mexican border for the rest of its course. It empties into the Gulf of Mexico near Brownsville, Texas, and Matamoros, Mexico.

Ri-o Gran-de² (rē'ō grän'də, rē'ōō grän'dī) A city of extreme southeast Brazil at the southern entrance of the Lagoa dos Patos. Founded in 1737, it is a major processing and shipping center. Population, 130,149.

Rí-o Mu-ni (rē'ō mōō'nē) The mainland part of Equatorial Guinea, on the Bight of Biafra in western Africa.

ri-ot (rī'ət) n. 1. A wild or turbulent disturbance created by a large number of people. 2. Law. A violent disturbance of the public peace by three or more persons assembled for a common purpose. 3. An unrestrained outbreak, as of laughter or passions. 4. A profusion: The garden was a riot of colors in August. 5. a. Unrestrained merrymaking; revelry. b. Debauchery. 6. Slang. An irresistibly funny person or thing: Isn't she a riot? — v. ri-ot-ed, ri-ot-ing, ri-ots. — v. intr. 1. To take part in a riot. 2. To live wildly or engage in uncontrolled revelry. 3. To exhibit profusion: a huge garden in which different flowers rioted during spring and summer. — v. tr. To waste (money or time) in wild or wanton living: "rioted his life out, and made an end" (Tennyson). [Middle English, from Old French, dispute, from rioter, to quarrel, perhaps from ruire, to roar, from Latin rūgīre.] — ri'ot-er n.

Ri-ot Act (rī'ət äkt) n. An English law, enacted in 1715, providing that if 12 or more people unlawfully assemble and disturb the public peace, they must disperse upon proclamation or be considered guilty of felony. — idiom. read the riot act. To warn or reprimand energetically or forcefully: The teacher read the riot act to the rowdy class.

WORD HISTORY: The riot act has been read to far more people than it once covered, thanks to a figurative development in meaning of the original sense of the term. The official Riot Act was enacted by Parliament in 1715 to discourage unlawful assembly and disturbances of the peace. The act provided that if 12 or more people gathered unlawfully or for purposes of disturbing the peace, a portion of the Riot Act would be read to them, and if the assembled did not disperse by one hour after this reading, they would then be guilty of felony. The Riot Act, which was not repealed until 1973, became a part of the public consciousness literally (the term is first recorded in 1731) and then figuratively in the phrase to read the riot act, meaning “to warn forcefully.” The first use of riot act in this way is found in a work published in 1819: “She has just run out to read the riot act in the Nursery.”

ri·ot·ous (rī'ət-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a riot. 2. Participating in or inciting to riot or uproar. 3. Uproarious; boisterous: a riotous party.

4. Dissolute; wanton: riotous living. 5. Abundant or luxuriant: a riotous growth.

See Synonyms at profuse. —ri'ot-ous-ly adv. —ri'ot-ous-ness n.

rip¹ (rĭp) v. ripped, rip-ping, rips. — v. tr. 1. To cut, tear apart, or tear away roughly or energetically. See Synonyms at tear¹. 2. To split or saw (wood) along the grain. 3. Informal. To produce, display, or utter suddenly: ripped out a vicious oath. — v. intr. 1. To become torn or split apart. 2. Informal. To move quickly or violently. — n. 1. The act of ripping. 2. A torn or split place, especially along a seam. 3. A rip saw. —phrasal verbs. rip into. To attack or criticize vehemently: ripped into her opponent's political record. rip off. Slang. 2. To steal from: “I've ripped him off as much as I could possibly rip him off” (Gary Fisketjon). 3. To steal: She ripped off a leather jacket while ostensibly trying on clothes. 4. To exploit, swindle, cheat, or defraud: a false advertising campaign that ripped off a great many consumers. [Middle English rippen, from Flemish rippen. See reup- in Appendix.] —rip/per n.

rip² (rĭp) n. 1. A stretch of water in a river, an estuary, or a tidal channel made rough by waves meeting an opposing current. 2. A rip current. [Probably from RIP¹.]

rip³ (rĭp) n. 1. A dissolute person. 2. An old or worthless horse. [Possibly shortening and alteration of REPROBATE.]

R.I.P. abbr. Latin. Requiescat in pace (may he, or she, rest in peace).

ri·par·i·an (rĭ-pâr'ē-ən) adj. Of, on, or relating to the banks of a natural course of water. [From Latin rĭpārius, from rĭpa, bank.] riparian right (rĭ-pâr'ē-ən rīt) n. Law. The right, as to fishing or to the use of a riverbed, of one who owns riparian land.

rip-cord (rĭp'kôrd') n. 1. A cord pulled to release the pack of a parachute. 2. A cord pulled to release gas from a balloon.

rip current (rĭp kûr'ənt) n. A strong, narrow surface current that flows rapidly away from the shore, returning the water carried landward by waves. Also called rip tide, tiderip.

ripe (rĭp) adj. rip-er, rip-est. 1. Fully developed; mature: ripe peaches.

2. Resembling matured fruit, as in fullness. 3. Sufficiently advanced in preparation or aging to be used or eaten: ripe cheese. 4. Thoroughly matured, as by study or experience; seasoned: ripe judgment. 5. Advanced in years: the ripe age of 90.

6. Fully prepared to do or undergo something; ready: "By 1965 the republic was ripe for a coup" (Alex Shoumatoff). 7. Sufficiently advanced; opportune: The time is ripe for great societal changes. 8. Exhibiting overtones of or references to sex; scatological: "The language on the stage was riper than anything I have heard in a lifetime of newspaper work" (John Hughes). 9. Emitting a foul odor, especially body odor. [Middle English, from Old English rĭpe.] —ripe/ly adv. —ripe/-ness n.

rip-en (rĭp'pən) v. tr. intr. rip-ened, rip-en-ing, rip-ens. To make or become ripe or riper; mature. See Synonyms at mature. —rip/en-er n.

Rip-ley (rĭp'lē), George. 1802-1880. American minister, scholar, and literary critic. An important figure in the New England Transcendentalist movement, he directed the utopian community at Brook Farm, near Boston (1841-1847), and was the literary critic of the New York Tribune (1849-1880).

rip-off (rĭp'ɔf', -ɔf') n. Slang. 1. A theft. 2. A thief. 3. An act of exploitation. 4. Something, such as a film or story, that is clearly imitative of or based on something else.

ri-poste (rĭ-pōst') n. 1. Sports. A quick thrust given after parrying an opponent's lunge in fencing. 2. A retaliatory action, maneuver, or retort. — v. intr. ri-post-ed, ri-post-ing, ri-postes. 1. To make a return thrust. 2. To retort quickly. [French, alteration of obsolete risposte, from Italian risposta, answer, from feminine past participle of rispondere, to answer, from Latin respondere. See RESPOND.]

rip-ping (rĭp'ŭng) adj. Informal. Excellent; marvelous: had a ripping time at the party. [Probably from RIP¹.]

rip-ple¹ (rĭp'əl) v. rip-pled, rip-pling, rip-ples. — v. intr. 1. a. To form or display little undulations or waves on the surface, as disturbed water does. b. To flow with such undulations or waves on the surface. 2. To rise and fall gently in tone or volume. — v. tr. To cause to form small waves or undulations. — n. 1. A small wave. 2. A wavelike motion; an undulation: the ripple of a flag. 3. A sound like that made by rippling water: a ripple of laughter. [Middle English rip-plen, to wrinkle, crease, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] —rip/pler n. —rip/-pling-ly adv.

rip-ple² (rĭp'əl) n. A comblike, toothed instrument for removing seeds from flax and other fibers. — v. tr. rip-pled, rip-pling, rip-ples. To remove seeds from with a comblike, toothed instrument. [Middle English, from *ripelen, to remove seeds; akin to Middle Low German repelen.] ripple effect (rĭp'əl ĭ-fĕkt') n. A gradually spreading effect or influence: "Those deviations tend to have a ripple effect throughout the economy as a whole" (Tom Clancy).

rip-ple-grass (rĭp'əl-gräs') n. See ribgrass.

rip-plet (rĭp'lĭt) n. A little wave or ripple.

rip-ply (rĭp'lē) adj. rip-pli-er, rip-pli-est. Characterized by or sounding in ripples.

rip-rap (rĭp'răp') n. 1. A loose assemblage of broken stones erected in water or on soft ground as a foundation. 2. The broken stones used for such a foundation. — v. tr. rip-rapped, rip-rap-ping, rip-raps. 1. To construct a riprap in or on. 2. To strengthen with a riprap. [Reduplication of RAP¹.]

rip-roar-ing (rĭp'rôr'ĭng, -rôr'-) also rip-roar-i-ous (rĭp'rôr'rĕ-əs, -rôr'-) adj. Informal. Noisy, lively, and exciting. [From RIP¹ + (UP)ROAR(IOUS).] — rip-roar'ing-ly adv.

rip-saw (rĭp'sô') n. A coarse-toothed saw used for cutting wood along the grain.

rip-snort-er (rĭp'snôr'tər) n. Slang. One that is remarkable for strength, intensity, or excellence. — rip'snort'ing adj.

rip tide (rĭp tĭd) n. See rip current.

Rip-u-ar-i-an (rĭp'yō-âr'ĕ-ən) adj. Of, relating to, or being a group of Franks who settled along the Rhine, near Cologne, in the fourth century A.D. — n. A Ripuarian Frank. [From Medieval Latin Ripuārius.]

rise (rĭz) v. rose (rōz), ris-en (rĭz'ən), ris-ing, ris-es. — v. intr. 1. To assume a standing position after lying, sitting, or kneeling. 2. To get out of bed: rose at dawn. 3. To move from a lower to a higher position; ascend: Hot air rises. 4. To increase in size, volume, or level: The river rises every spring. 5. To increase in number, amount, or value: Prices are rising. 6. To increase in intensity, force, or speed: The wind has risen. 7. To increase in pitch or volume: The sound of their voices rose and fell. 8. To appear above the horizon: The sun rises later in the fall. 9. To extend upward; be prominent: The tower rose above the hill. 10. To slant or slope upward: Mount McKinley rises to 6,197.6 meters (20,320 feet). 11. To come into existence; originate. 12. To be erected: New buildings are rising in the city. 13. To appear at the surface of the water or the earth; emerge. 14. To puff up or become larger; swell up: The bread dough should rise to double its original size. 15. To become stiff and erect. 16. To attain a higher status: an officer who rose through the ranks. 17. To become apparent to the mind or senses: Old fears rose to haunt me. 18. To uplift oneself to meet a demand or challenge: She rose to the occasion and won the election. 19. To return to life. 20. To rebel: “the right to rise up, and shake off the existing government” (Abraham Lincoln). 21. To close a session of an official assembly; adjourn. — v. tr. 1. To cause to rise. 2. To cause (a distant object at sea) to become visible above the horizon by advancing closer. — n. 1. The act of rising; ascent. 2. The degree of elevation or ascent. 3. The appearance of the sun or other celestial body above the horizon. 4. An increase in height, as of the level of water. 5. A gently sloped hill. 6. A long, broad elevation that slopes gently from the earth’s surface or the ocean floor. 7. An origin, a beginning, or a source: the rise of a river. 8. Occasion or opportunity: facts that give rise to doubts about her motives. 9. The emergence of a fish seeking food or bait at the water’s surface. 10. An increase in price, worth, quantity, or degree. 11. An increase in intensity, volume, or pitch. 12. Elevation in status, prosperity, or importance: the family’s rise in New York society. 13. The height of a flight of stairs or of a single riser. 14. Chiefly British. An increase in salary or wages; a raise. 15. Informal. An angry or irritated reaction: finally got a rise out of her. [Middle English risen, from Old English rīsan.]

SYNONYMS: rise, ascend, climb, soar, tower, mount, surge. These verbs are compared as they mean to move upward from a lower to a higher position. Rise has the widest range of application: We rose at dawn. The sun rises early in the summer. Fog was rising from the pond. Prices rise and fall. Ascend frequently suggests a gradual step-by-step rise: The plane took off and ascended steadily until it was out of sight. “Ascend above the restrictions and conventions of the world, but not so high as to lose sight of them” (Richard Garnett). Climb connotes steady, often effortful progress, as against gravity: “still climbing after knowledge infinite” (Christopher Marlowe). “You climb up through the little grades and then get to the top” (John Updike). Soar implies effortless ascent to a great height: A lone condor soared above the Andean peaks. “Well is it known that ambition can creep as well as soar” (Edmund Burke). To tower is to attain a height or prominence exceeding that of anything in the surroundings: “the tall Lombardy poplar... towering high above all other trees” (W.H. Hudson). Bach’s gifts towered over those of his contemporaries. Mount in this comparison connotes progressive climb to a higher level: Water mounted in the ship’s hold. The blood mounted to her cheeks. Our expenses mounted fearfully. Surge implies a tumultuous swelling or heaving force like that of waves: The crowd of pedestrians surged ahead when the light turned green. I could feel indignation surging up in me. See also Synonyms at beginning stem¹

ris·er (rī/zər) n. 1. One who rises, especially from sleep: She is a late riser.
2. The vertical part of a stair step.

ris-i-bil-i-ty (rĭz'ə-bĭl'ĭ-tē) n. pl. ris-i-bil-i-ties. 1. The ability or tendency to laugh. 2. Often risibilities. A sense of the ludicrous or amusing. 3. Laughter; hilarity.

ris-i-ble (rĭz'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Relating to laughter or used in eliciting laughter. 2. Eliciting laughter; ludicrous. 3. Capable of laughing or inclined to laugh. [Late Latin rīsibilis, from Latin rĭsus, past participle of rĭdĕre, to laugh.]

—ris'i-bly adv.

ris-ing (rĭz'zĭng) adj. 1. Ascending, sloping upward, or advancing: a rising tide. 2. Coming to maturity; emerging: the rising generation. — n. 1. The action of one that rises. 2. An uprising; an insurrection. 3. A prominence or projection. 4. The leaven or yeast used to make dough rise in baking.

rising action (rĭz'zĭng ăk'shən) n. The events of a dramatic or narrative plot preceding the climax.

rising rhythm (rĭz'zĭng rĭth'əm) n. A rhythmic pattern in which the stress falls on the last syllable of each foot, as in “They danced by the light of the moon” (Edward Lear). Also called ascending rhythm risk (rĭsk) n. 1. The possibility of suffering harm or loss; danger. 2. A factor, thing, element, or course involving uncertain danger; a hazard: “the usual risks of the desert: rattlesnakes, the heat, and lack of water” (Frank Clancy). 3. a. The danger or probability of loss to an insurer. b. The amount that an insurance company stands to lose. 4. a. The variability of returns from an investment. b. The chance of nonpayment of a debt. 5. One considered with respect to the possibility of loss: a poor risk. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: risk factors; risk management. — v. tr. risked, risk-ing, risks. 1. To expose to a chance of loss or damage; hazard. 2. To incur the risk of: His action risked a sharp reprisal. See Synonyms at endanger. —idiom. at risk (or at-risk (ăt'rĭsk')). Being endangered, as from exposure to disease or from a lack of parental or familial guidance and proper health care: at risk youth in the inner cities; at-risk groups of children not having received the vaccine. [French risque, from Italian risco, rischio.] —risk'er n.

risk arbitrage (rĭsk ăr'bĭ-trăzh') n. The simultaneous purchase and sale of assets that are potentially but not necessarily equivalent. —risk arbitrageur n.

risk capital (rĭsk kăp'ĭ-tl) n. See venture capital.

risk factor (rĭsk făk'tər) n. A factor that increases one's chances of contracting a particular disease: “The report emphasizes that interaction of many risk factors is responsible for coronary heart disease in an individual” (Science News).

risk-y (rĭs'kē) adj. risk-i-er, risk-i-est. Accompanied by or involving risk or danger; hazardous: “Anything that promises to pay too much can't help being risky” (Dorothy Canfield Fisher). —risk'i-ness n.

Ri-sor-gi-men-to (rĭ-sôr'jə-mĕn'tō, rĕ-zôr'jĕ-) n. The period of or the movement for the liberation and political unification of Italy, beginning about 1750 and lasting until 1870. [Italian, from risorgere, to rise again, from Latin resurgere. See RESURGE.]

ri-sot-to (rĭ-sô'tō, -sôt'ō, rē-zôt'tô) n. pl. ri-sot-tos. A dish of rice cooked in broth, usually with saffron, and served with grated cheese. [Italian, from riso, from Old Italian. See RICE.]

ris-qué (rĭs-kā') adj. Suggestive of or bordering on indelicacy or impropriety. [French, from past participle of risquer, to risk, from risque, risk. See RISK.]

ris-sole (rĭ-sôl', rĭs'ôl, rē-sôl') n. A small, pastry-enclosed croquette of a minced meat or fish, usually fried in deep fat. [French, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin russeola*, reddish paste, from Late Latin, feminine of russeolus, reddish, from Latin russus, red. See reudh- in Appendix.]

ris-so-lé (rē-sô-lā') adj. Browned by frying. [French, from past participle of rissoles, to brown, from rissole, rissole. See RISSOLE.]

rit. abbr. Music. Ritardando.

Rit-a-lin (rĭt'l-ĭn) A trademark used for methylphenidate.

ri-tar-dan-do (rē'tär-dän'dō) adv. & adj. Abbr. rit. Music. Gradually slowing in tempo; retarding. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, present participle of ritardare, to slow down, from Latin retardāre. See RETARD.]

rite (rĭt) n. 1. The prescribed or customary form for conducting a religious or other solemn ceremony: the rite of baptism. 2. A ceremonial act or series of acts: fertility rites. 3. Rite. The liturgy or practice of a branch of the Christian church. [Middle English, from Latin rītus. See ar- in Appendix.]

rite of passage (rĭt ūv pās'ij) n. pl. rites of passage. A ritual or ceremony signifying an event in a person's life indicative of a transition from one stage to another, as from adolescence to adulthood.

ri-tor-nel-lo (rē'tôr-něl'lō) n. pl. ri-tor-nel-li (-lē) or ri-tor-nel-los. Music.

1. An instrumental interlude recurring after each stanza in a vocal work. 2. A passage for full orchestra in a baroque concerto grosso. 3. An instrumental interlude in early 17th-century opera. 4. The refrain of a rondo. [Italian, diminutive of ritorno, return, from ritornare, to return, from Vulgar Latin retornāre*. See RETURN.]

Rit-ten-house (rĭt'n-hous'), David. 1732-1796. American astronomer, mathematician, and public official who is reputed to have built the first American-made telescope and was the first director of the U.S. Mint (1792-1795).

rit-ter (rĭt'ər) n. pl. ritter. A knight. [German, from Middle High German riter, from Middle Dutch ridder, from rīden, to ride. See reidh- in Appendix.]

Rit-ter (rĭt'ər), Woodward Maurice. Known as "Tex." 1907-1974. American singer and actor who played a singing cowboy in radio shows and motion-picture Westerns.

rit-u-al (rĭch'ōō-əl) n. 1. a. The prescribed order of a religious ceremony.

b. The body of ceremonies or rites used in a place of worship. 2. a. The prescribed form of conducting a formal secular ceremony: the ritual of an inauguration. b. The body of ceremonies used by a fraternal organization. 3. A book of rites or ceremonial forms. 4. rituals. a. A ceremonial act or a series of such acts. b. The performance of such acts. 5. a. A detailed method of procedure faithfully or regularly followed: My household chores have become a morning ritual. b. A state or condition characterized by the presence of established procedure or routine: “Prison was a ritual—reenacted daily, year in, year out. Prisoners came and went; generations came and went; and yet the ritual endured” (William H. Hallahan). [From Latin rītuālis, of rites, from rītus, rite. See RITE.] —rit’u-al-ly adv.

rit·u·al·ism (rĭch’ōō-ə-lĭz’əm) n. 1. The practice or observance of religious ritual. 2. Insistence on or adherence to ritual.

rit·u·al·ist (rĭch’ōō-ə-lĭst) n. 1. An authority on or a student of ritual. 2. One who practices or advocates the observance of ritual.

rit·u·al·is·tic (rĭch’ōō-ə-lĭs’tĭk) adj. 1. Relating to ritual or ritualism.

2. Advocating or practicing ritual. —rit’u-al-is’ti-cal-ly adv.

rit·u·al·ize (rĭch’ōō-ə-lĭz’) v. rit·u·al·ized, rit·u·al·iz·ing, rit·u·al·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To make a ritual of. 2. To force a ritual on. — v. intr. To engage in ritualism. —rit’u-al-i-za’tion (-ə-lĭ-zā’shən) n.

ritual murder (rĭch’ōō-əl mûr’dər) n. 1. The murder of a person as a human sacrifice to a deity. 2. A murder committed in such a way as to resemble a sacrifice to a deity.

ritz (rĭts) n. Informal. Elegant, often ostentatious display. —idiom. put on the ritz. Informal. To behave or live in an elegant, ostentatious manner. [Back-formation from RITZY.]

ritz·y (rĭt’sē) adj. ritz·i·er, ritz·i·est. Informal. Elegant; fancy. [After the Ritz hotels, established by César Ritz (1850-1918), Swiss hotelier.]

riv. abbr. River.

riv·age (rĭv’ij) n. Archaic. A coast, shore, or bank. [Middle English, from Old French, from rive, bank, from Latin rĭpa.]

ri·val (rĭ’vəl) n. 1. One who attempts to equal or surpass another, or who pursues the same object as another; a competitor. 2. One that equals or almost equals another in a particular respect. 3. Obsolete. A companion or an associate in a particular duty. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: rival companies; rival products; rival teams; rival schools. — v. ri·valed or ri·valled, ri·val·ing or ri·val·ling, ri·vals or ri·vals. — v. tr. 1. To attempt to equal or surpass. 2. To be the equal of; match: “They achieved more than they had ever dreamed, lending a magic to their family story that no tale or ordinary life could possibly rival” (Doris Kearns Goodwin). — v. intr. To be a competitor or rival; compete. [Latin rĭvālis, a rival, one using the same stream as another, from rĭvus, stream. See rei- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: rival, compete, vie, emulate. These verbs mean to seek to equal or surpass another. Rival is the most general: “His ambition led him to rival the career of Edmund Burke” (Henry Adams). To compete is to contend with another or others to attain a goal, as gaining an advantage, victory in a contest, or a prize: Local hardware stores can’t compete with discount outlets. “She must learn to compete... not as a woman, but as a human being” (Betty Friedan). Vie, often interchangeable with compete, sometimes stresses the challenge implicit in rivalry: “No mortal could vie with Zeus” (Homer). Emulate connotes imitation in an effort to match or outdo another: “The whole world emulates Athens and Rome” (David Hume).

ri-val·rous (rī'vəl-rəs) adj. Characterized by or given to rivalry or competition.

ri-val·ry (rī'vəl-rē) n. pl. ri-val-ries. 1. The act of competing or emulating.

2. The state or condition of being a rival.

rive (rīv) v. rived, riv-en (rīv'ən) also rived, riv-ing, rives. — v. tr. 1. To rend or tear apart. 2. To break into pieces, as by a blow; cleave or split asunder.

3. To break or distress (the spirit, for example). — v. intr. To be or become split. [Middle English riven, from Old Norse rīfa.]

riv·er (rīv'ər) n. Abbr. r., R., riv. 1. A large natural stream of water emptying into an ocean, a lake, or another body of water and usually fed along its course by converging tributaries. 2. A stream or an abundant flow: a river of tears. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a river cruise; river ice.

—idiom. up the river. Slang. In or into prison. [Middle English rivere, from Anglo-Norman, from Vulgar Latin rīpāria*, from Latin, feminine of rīpārius, of a bank, from rīpa, bank.]

Ri-ve-ra (rī-vēr'ə, rē-vēr'ə), Diego. 1886-1957. Mexican painter noted for his murals that exalt workers in a style derived from Mexican folk art.

Rivera y Or-ba-ne-ja (rī-vēr'ə ē ôr'bā-nē'hä), Miguel Primo de. See Miguel Primo de Rivera y Orbaneja.

riv·er·bank (rīv'ər-bāŋk') n. The bank of a river. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: riverbank weeds; a riverbank cottage.

river basin (rīv'ər bā'sīn) n. The land area drained by a river and its tributaries.

riv·er·bed (rīv'ər-bēd') n. The area between the banks of a river ordinarily covered by water.

river birch (rīv'ər būrch) n. A deciduous eastern North American tree (Betula nigra) having reddish-brown to silver-gray bark that peels off in papery flakes.

Also called black birch river blindness (rīv'ər blīnd'nīs) n. See onchocerciasis.

riv·er·boat (rīv'ər-bōt') n. Nautical. A boat suitable for use on a river.

river-front (rĭv'ər-frŭnt') n. The land or property along a river. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: riverfront property; riverfront houses.

river-head (rĭv'ər-hĕd') n. The source of a river.

river horse (rĭv'ər hōrs) n. See hippopotamus (n., sense 1). [Translation of Greek hippopotamos. See HIPPOPOTAMUS.]

river-ine (rĭv'ə-rĭn', -rĕn') adj. 1. Relating to or resembling a river. 2. Located on or inhabiting the banks of a river; riparian: "Members of a riverine tribe... were wading in the swamp, whose water they had impounded in a series of dams" (Alex Shoumatoff). 3. Operating on or equipped to operate on rivers: riverine units of the Marine Corps. — n. An inland or coastal area constituting both land and water, characterized by limited landlines for communications, and extensive coastal waters and inland waterways providing natural routes for transport.

Riv-er Ridge (rĭv'ər rĭj) A community of southeast Louisiana, a suburb of New Orleans. Population, 17,146.

Riv-ers (rĭv'ərz), Larry. Born 1923. American artist whose complex paintings combine the bold brushwork of abstract expressionism with realistic images.

river-side (rĭv'ər-sĭd') n. The bank or area alongside a river. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: riverside plant life; riverside cottages.

Riv-er-side (rĭv'ər-sĭd') A city of southern California northeast of Santa Ana. The navel orange was introduced here in 1873, and the city still has an important citrus industry. Population, 226,505.

Riv-er-ton Heights (rĭv'ər-tən hĭts) A community of west-central Washington, a suburb of Seattle. Population, 33,500.

river-ward (rĭv'ər-wərd) also river-wards (-wərdz) adv. Toward a river.

river-weed (rĭv'ər-wĕd') n. An eastern North American plant (Podostemum ceratophyllum) having olive-green foliage resembling seaweed and growing on rocks in rapidly flowing streams.

riv-et (rĭv'ĭt) n. A metal bolt or pin having a head on one end, inserted through aligned holes in the pieces to be joined and then hammered on the plain end so as to form a second head. — v. tr. riv-et-ed, riv-et-ing, riv-ets. 1. To fasten or secure with or as if with a rivet. 2. To hammer the headless end of so as to form a head and fasten something. 3. To fasten or secure firmly; fix. 4. To engross or hold (the attention, for example). [Middle English, from Old French river, to attach.] —riv'et-er n.

riv-et-ing (rĭv'ĭ-tĭng) adj. Wholly absorbing or engrossing one's attention; fascinating: The last chapter was so riveting that I was reading past midnight.

—riv'et-ing-ly adv.

Riv-i-er-a (rĭv'ĕ-ĕr'ə, rĕ-vyĕ'ră) A narrow coastal region between the Alps and the Mediterranean Sea extending from southeast France to northwest Italy. The Riviera, also known as the Côte d'Azur in France, is a popular resort area that is noted for its flowers grown for export and for use in perfumery.

Riviera Beach (rĭv'ē-ēr'ə bēch) A city of southeast Florida on the Atlantic Ocean north of West Palm Beach. It is a resort with varied industries. Population, 27,639.

ri-vière (rē-vyâr') n. A necklace of precious stones, generally set in one strand. [French rivière (de diamants), river (of diamonds), from Old French rivere, from Vulgar Latin rĭpāria*. See RIVER.]

riv-u-let (rĭv'yə-lĭt) n. A small brook or stream; a streamlet. [Possibly from Italian rivoletto, diminutive of rivolo, small stream, from Latin rĭvulus, diminutive of rĭvus, stream. See rei- in Appendix.]

Ri-yadh (rē-yäd') The capital and largest city of Saudi Arabia, in the east-central part of the country east-northeast of Mecca. Situated in a desert oasis, it was formerly a walled city until the oil boom of the 1950's led to the demolition of older structures to make way for commercial expansion. Population, 1,250,000.

ri-yal also ri-al (rē-ôl', -äl') n. A basic unit of currency in Qatar and Saudi Arabia. See Table at currency. [Arabic riyāl, from Spanish real, real. See REAL².]

ri-yal-o-man-i (rē-ôl'ō-mä'nē, rē-äl'-) n. pl. ri-yals-o-man-i (rē-ôlz'-, rē-älz'-). A basic unit of currency in Oman. See Table at currency. [Arabic riyāl 'umānī : riyāl, riyal + 'umānī, of Oman.]

Ri-zal (rĭ-zäl', rē-säl'), José. 1861-1896. Philippine national leader and writer. Having been exiled (1892-1896) for his political novels, he was arrested on his return, charged with sedition, and executed, an act that precipitated an insurrection against Spanish rule (1896-1898).

Riz-zio (rĭt'sē-ō', rēt'tsē-ô'), David. 1533?-1566. Italian musician and secretary to Mary Queen of Scots. His closeness to the queen prompted the jealous Lord Darnley and other Scottish noblemen to murder him.

RJ abbr. Road junction.

Rm abbr. Bible. Romans.

RM also Rm. abbr. Reichsmark.

rm. abbr. 1. Ream. 2. Room.

rms abbr. Mathematics. Root mean square.

RMS abbr. 1. Railway Mail Service. 2. Also R.M.S.. Royal Mail Service. 3. Also R.M.S.. Royal Mail Steamship.

Rn The symbol for the element radon.

RN or R.N. abbr. 1. Registered nurse. 2. Royal Navy.

RNA (är'ĕn-ä') n. A polymeric constituent of all living cells and many viruses, consisting of a long, usually single-stranded chain of alternating phosphate and ribose units with the bases adenine, guanine, cytosine, and uracil bonded to the ribose. The structure and base sequence of RNA are determinants of protein synthesis and the transmission of genetic information. Also called ribonucleic acid [R(ĪBO)N(UCLĒIC) A(CĪD).]

RNA·ase (är'ĕn-ä'ās', -āz') n. Variant of RNase.

RNA polymerase (är'ĕn-ā' pŏl'ə-mə-rās') n. A polymerase that catalyzes the synthesis of RNA from a DNA or RNA template.

RN·ase (är'ĕn-ās', -āz') also RNA·ase (är'ĕn-ā'ās', -āz') n. See ribonuclease.

RNA virus (är'ĕn-ā' vī'rəs) n. An RNA-containing virus; retrovirus.

rnd. abbr. Round.

RNP abbr. Ribonucleoprotein.

ro. abbr. Rood.

roach¹ (rōch) n. pl. roach or roach-es. 1. A freshwater fish (Rutilus rutilus) of northern Europe. 2. Any of various similar or related fishes, such as some North American sunfishes. [Middle English roche, from Old French roce, roche.]

roach² (rōch) n. pl. roach-es. 1. The cockroach. 2. Slang. The butt of a marijuana cigarette.

roach³ (rōch) n. pl. roach-es. 1. A roll of hair brushed up from the forehead or temple. 2. A hairstyle especially among certain Native American peoples in which the head is shaved except for a strip from front to back across the top.

3. Nautical. An outward curve in the leech of a fore-and-aft sail. — v. tr.

roached, roach-ing, roach-es. 1. To brush (hair) in a roach. 2. To shave (the mane of a horse) to a short bristle. [Origin unknown.]

roach clip (rōch klĭp) n. A device used to hold the butt of a marijuana cigarette.

road (rōd) n. Abbr. rd., Rd., r., R. 1. a. An open, generally public way for the passage of vehicles, people, and animals. b. The surface of a road; a roadbed.

2. A course or path. 3. A railroad. 4. Often roads. Nautical. A roadstead.

—idiom. on the road. 1. On tour, as a theatrical company. 2. Traveling, especially as a salesperson. 3. Wandering, as a vagabond. [Middle English rode, rade, a riding, road, from Old English rād. See reidh- in Appendix.]

road agent (rōd ā'jənt) n. A stagecoach robber; a bandit.

road·bed (rōd'bĕd') n. 1. a. The foundation upon which the ties, rails, and ballast of a railroad are laid. b. A layer of ballast directly under the ties. 2. The foundation and surface of a road.

road·block (rōd'blŏk') n. 1. A barricade or an obstruction across a road set up to prevent the escape or passage, as of a fugitive or enemy troops. 2. An obstruction in a road, as fallen rocks or trees. 3. Something, such as a situation or condition, that prevents further progress toward an accomplishment.

road hog (rōd hŏg) n. Informal. A motorist whose vehicle overlaps the traffic lane used by another motorist.

road·house (rōd'hous') n. An inn, a restaurant, or a nightclub located on a road outside a town or city.

road·ie also road·y (rō'dē) n. pl. road-ies. A person engaged to load, unload, and set up equipment and to perform errands for rock musicians on tour.

road·less (rōd'lĭs) adj. 1. Not containing or crossed by any roads: roadless wilderness. 2. Forbidden by law to contain or be crossed by any roads or to be entered by any vehicles: tracts of land designated by the government as roadless areas.

road map or road-map (rōd'măp') n. 1. A map, especially one for motorists, showing and designating the roads of a region. 2. A set of guidelines, instructions, or explanations: wrote an ethics code as a road map for the behavior of elected officials.

road metal (rōd mēt'l) n. Crushed or broken stone, cinders, or similar material used in the construction and repair of roads and roadbeds.

road-run-ner (rōd'rŭn'ər) n. A swift-running, crested bird (Geococcyx californianus) of southwest North America, having streaked brownish plumage and a long tail. Also called chaparral bird, chaparral cock.

road show (rōd shō) n. 1. A show presented by a troupe of theatrical performers on tour. 2. A new movie shown at selected theaters usually for higher ticket prices. 3. The repeated speeches and accompanying performances or events engaged in by politicians or members of a political organization on tour.

road-side (rōd'sīd') n. The area bordering on the side of a road. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: roadside diners; roadside stops.

road-stead (rōd'stĕd') n. Nautical. A sheltered offshore anchorage area for ships. [Variant of rodestead: RODE² + sted, place (variant of STEAD).]

road-ster (rōd'stər) n. 1. An open automobile having a single seat in the front for two or three people and a rumble seat or luggage compartment in the back. 2. A horse for riding on a road.

road test (rōd tĕst) n. 1. A test of a motor vehicle's operating capability under actual road conditions. 2. A test of driving ability on the road required of a candidate for a driver's license. — road'-test' (rōd'tĕst') v.

Road Town (rōd toun) The capital of the British Virgin Islands, on Tortola Island in the West Indies east of Puerto Rico. It is a port of entry. Population, 2,479.

road-way (rōd'wā') n. A road, especially the part over which vehicles travel.

road-work (rōd'wŭrk') n. 1. Sports. Outdoor long-distance running as a form of physical exercise or conditioning. 2. The activity of taking a band, typically a rock band, on extended tours. 3. Highway construction.

road-wor-thy (rōd'wŭr'thē) adj. road-wor-thi-er, road-wor-thi-est. Fit to be driven on the open road: a roadworthy truck.

roam (rōm) v. roamed, roam-ing, roams. — v. intr. To move about without purpose or plan; wander. See Synonyms at wander. — v. tr. To wander over or through: roamed the streets. — n. The act or an instance of roaming. [Middle English romen.] — roam'er n.

roan (rōn) adj. Having a chestnut, bay, or sorrel coat thickly sprinkled with white or gray: a roan horse. — n. 1. a. The characteristic coloring of a roan horse. b. A roan horse or other animal. 2. A soft, flexible sheepskin leather, often treated to resemble morocco and used in bookbinding. [Obsolete French, from Old French, from Old Spanish roano, probably of Germanic origin.]

Ro-a-noke (rō'ə-nōk') An independent city of southwest Virginia west-southwest of Richmond. It grew with the coming of the railroad in 1882 and is today a tourist and industrial center. Population, 96,397.

Roanoke Island (rō'ə-nōk' ī'lənd) An island of northeast North Carolina off the Atlantic coast between Albemarle and Pamlico sounds. Colonists dispatched by Sir Walter Raleigh founded the first English settlement in North America in August 1585 but returned to England the following year. A second group of colonists organized by Raleigh landed on the island in July 1587 but vanished without a trace sometime before 1591. The mystery of the Lost Colony has never been solved.

Roanoke River (rō'ə-nōk' rīv'ər) A river rising in southwest Virginia and flowing about 660 km (410 mi) generally east and southeast to Albemarle Sound in northeast North Carolina.

roar (rôr, rōr) v. roared, roar-ing, roars. — v. intr. 1. To utter a loud, deep, prolonged sound, especially in distress, rage, or excitement. 2. To laugh loudly or excitedly. 3. To make or produce a loud noise or din: The engines roared. 4. To be disorderly or rowdy. 5. To breathe with a rasping sound. Used of a horse. — v. tr. 1. To utter or express with a loud, deep, and prolonged sound. 2. To put, bring, or force into a specified state by roaring: The crowd roared itself hoarse.

See Synonyms at shout. — n. 1. A loud, deep, prolonged sound or cry, as of a person in distress or rage. 2. The loud, deep cry of a wild animal. 3. A loud, prolonged noise, such as that produced by waves. 4. A loud burst of laughter. [Middle English roren, from Old English rārian.] —roar'er n.

roar-ing (rôr'ing, rōr'-) adj. 1. Very lively or successful; thriving: a roaring trade. 2. Used as an intensive: roaring drunk. —roar'ing-ly adv.

roast (rōst) v. roast-ed, roast-ing, roasts. — v. tr. 1. To cook with dry heat, as in an oven or near hot coals. 2. To dry, brown, or parch by exposing to heat. 3. To expose to great or excessive heat. 4. Metallurgy. To heat (ores) in a furnace in order to dehydrate, purify, or oxidize before smelting. 5. Informal. To ridicule or criticize harshly. — v. intr. 1. To cook food in an oven. 2. To undergo roasting. — n. 1. a. Something roasted. b. A cut of meat suitable or prepared for roasting. 2. a. The act or process of roasting. b. The state of being roasted. 3. a. Harsh ridicule or criticism. b. A facetious tribute, usually in the form of a banquet, in which the honoree's friends and acquaintances alternate short speeches of praise and insult. — adj. Roasted: roast duck. [Middle English rosten, from Old French rostir, of Germanic origin.]

roast-er (rō'stər) n. 1. One that roasts. 2. A special pan or apparatus for roasting. 3. Something, especially a young chicken, that is fit for roasting.

rob (rɒb) v. robbed, rob-bing, robs. — v. tr. 1. Law. To take property from (a person or persons) illegally by using or threatening to use violence or force; commit robbery upon. 2. To take valuable or desired articles unlawfully from: rob a bank. 3. a. To deprive unjustly of something belonging to, desired by, or legally due (someone): robbed her of her professional standing. b. To deprive of something injuriously: a parasite that robs a tree of its sap. 4. To take as booty; steal. — v. intr. To engage in or commit robbery. — idioms. rob (someone or something) blind. To rob in an unusually deceitful or thorough way:

robbed the old couple blind while employed as a companion. rob the cradle.

Informal. To have a romantic or sexual relationship with someone significantly younger than oneself. [Middle English robben, from Old French rober, of Germanic origin. See reup- in Appendix.] — rob'ber n.

ro·ba·lo (rō-bä'lō) n. pl. ro·ba·los or robalo. Any of various chiefly tropical marine food fishes of the family Centropomidae, such as the snook. [Spanish róbalo, haddock, probably alteration of Catalan llobarro, from lobo, wolf, from Latin lupus. See LOBO.]

Robbe-Grillet (rɒb-grē-yā'), Alain. Born 1922. French writer and exponent of the New Wave in French literature. His screenplays and novels, such as The Erasers (1953), subordinate plot to the treatment of space and time.

robber baron (rɒb'ər bār'ən) n. 1. One of the American industrial or financial magnates of the latter 19th century who became wealthy by unethical means, such as questionable stock-market operations and exploitation of labor. 2. A feudal lord who robbed travelers passing through his domain.

robber fly (rɒb'ər flī) n. Any of various predatory flies of the family Asilidae, characteristically having long, bristly legs.

rob·ber·y (rɒb'ər-rē) n. pl. rob·ber·ies. Law. The act or an instance of unlawfully taking the property of another by the use of violence or intimidation.

Rob·bins (rɒb'inz), Frederick Chapman. Born 1916. American microbiologist. He shared a 1954 Nobel Prize for work on the cultivation of the polio virus.

Rob·bins (rɒb'inz), Jerome. Born 1918. American dancer and choreographer of ballets and musicals, including West Side Story (1957).

robe (rōb) n. 1. A long, loose, flowing outer garment, especially: a. An official garment worn on formal occasions to show office or rank, as by a judge or high church official. b. An academic gown. c. A dressing gown or bathrobe.

2. robes. Clothes; apparel. 3. A blanket or covering made of material, such as fur or cloth: a lap robe. — v. robed, rob-ing, robes. — v. tr. To cover or dress in or as if in a robe. See Synonyms at clothe. — v. intr. To put on robes or a robe. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin. See reup- in Appendix.]

Rob·ert I¹ (rɒb'ərt), Known as “Robert the Devil.” Died 1035. Duke of Normandy (1027-1035) who named as his heir his illegitimate son William, the future William I of England.

Rob·ert I² (rɒb'ərt), Known as “Robert the Bruce.” 1274-1329. King of Scotland (1306-1329) who defied Edward I of England by having himself crowned and won Scottish independence from England in a battle at Bannockburn (1314).

Rob·ert (rɒb'ərt), Henry Martyn. 1837-1923. American army engineer and parliamentary authority. He designed the defenses for Washington, D.C., during the Civil War and later wrote Robert's Rules of Order (1876).

Ro·bert Guis·card (rô-bēr' gē-skär'), 1015?-1085. Norman military leader who conquered much of southern Italy and protected Pope Gregory VII from the invading armies of the Holy Roman Empire (1084).

Rob·erts (rɒb'ərts), Sir Charles George Douglas. 1860-1943. Canadian writer whose poetry and other works established a literature based on Canadian themes and sources.

Rob·erts (rɒb'ərts), Elizabeth Madox. 1886-1941. American writer whose works, including the novel The Great Meadow (1930), concern the pioneers and impoverished people of Kentucky and Virginia.

Rob·erts (rɒb'ərts), Kenneth. 1885-1957. American writer noted for his historical novels about the Colonial period, including Northwest Passage (1937).

Rob·erts (rɒb'ərts), Oral. Born 1918. American evangelist who has preached widely on tours and radio and television broadcasts.

Rob·erts (rɒb'ərts), Owen Josephus. 1875-1955. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1930-1945).

Rob·ert·son (rɒb'ərt-sən), William. 1721-1793. British historian whose works include History of Scotland 1542-1603 (1759).

Robe·son (rɒb'sən), Paul Bustill. 1898-1976. American singer and actor who played the lead roles in Othello and in Eugene O'Neill's The Emperor Jones and sang “Ol' Man River” in Showboat. He was an outspoken critic of racism and a supporter of socialism.

Robes·pierre (rɒbz'pîr, -pē-âr', rô-bēs-pyēr'), Maximilien François Marie Isidore de. 1758-1794. French revolutionary. Leader of the Jacobins and architect of the Reign of Terror, he was known as an austere and incorruptible man. His laws permitting the confiscation of property and arrest of suspected traitors, many of whom were guillotined, led to his own arrest and execution without trial.

rob·in (rɒb'in) n. 1. A North American songbird (Turdus migratorius) having a rust-red breast and gray and black upper plumage. Also called robin redbreast 2. A small Old World bird (Erithacus rubecula) having an orange breast and a brown back. Also called robin redbreast 3. Any of various birds resembling a robin. [Short for Robin Redbreast, from Middle English Robin, personal name, from Old French, diminutive of Robert.]

Rob-in Good-fel-low (rɒb'ɪn gʊd'fɛl'ə) n. Puck.

Robin Hood (rɒb'ɪn hʊd) n. A legendary English outlaw of the 12th century, famous for his courage, chivalry, and practice of robbing the rich to aid the poor.

robin redbreast (rɒb'ɪn rɛd'brɛst') n. See robin.

rob-in's-egg blue (rɒb'ɪnz-ɛg' bləʊ) n. Color. A pale bluish green to greenish or grayish blue.

Rob-in-son (rɒb'ɪn-sən), Edward G. 1893-1973. American actor known for his portrayal of gangsters in motion pictures, including Little Caesar (1930).

Rob-in-son (rɒb'ɪn-sən), Edwin Arlington. 1869-1935. American poet whose works include long narratives and character studies of New Englanders, including "Miniver Cheevy" (1910).

Rob-in-son (rɒb'ɪn-sən), (Esmé Stuart) Lennox. 1886-1958. Irish playwright and manager of the Abbey Theater in Dublin (1910-1914 and 1919-1923). His own plays include The Whiteheaded Boy (1920).

Rob-in-son (rɒb'ɪn-sən), Jack Roosevelt. Known as "Jackie." 1919-1972. American baseball player. The first Black player in the major leagues, he was a second baseman for the Brooklyn Dodgers (1947-1956), had a lifetime batting average of .311, and was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1962.

Rob-in-son (rɒb'ɪn-sən), James Harvey. 1863-1936. American historian who stressed the importance of social and intellectual events on the course of history. He was a founder of the New School for Social Research in New York City (1919).

Rob-in-son (rɒb'ɪn-sən), Ray. Known as "Sugar Ray." 1921-1989. American prizefighter who was world champion six times, once as a welterweight (1946-1951) and five times as a middleweight (1951-1960).

Rob-in-son (rɒb'ɪn-sən), Sir Robert. 1886-1975. British chemist. He won a 1947 Nobel Prize for his study of molecular structures in plants.

Robinson Cru-soe (rɒb'ɪn-sən krʊ'səʊ) n. The hero of Daniel Defoe's novel Robinson Crusoe of 1719, a shipwrecked English sailor who, by virtue of his own ingenuity, survives for years on a small tropical island.

Rob-in's plantain (rɒb'ɪnz plʌn'tæn) n. An eastern North American plant (Erigeron pulchellus) having many-rayed purplish flower heads grouped in a corymb.

ro-ble (rə'blə) n. 1. A Californian oak (Quercus lobata) having leathery leaves and slender, pointed acorns. Also called white oak 2. Any of various similar or related trees. [Spanish, and Portuguese, oak both from Latin rōbur. See reudh- in Appendix.]

rob-o-rant (rɒb'ər-ənt) adj. Restoring vigor or strength. — n. A roborant drug; a restorative or tonic. [Latin rōborāns, rōborant- present participle of rōborāre, to strengthen, from rōbur, rōbor-, oak, strength. See reudh- in Appendix.]

ro·bot (rō'bət, -böt') n. 1. A mechanical device that sometimes resembles a human being and is capable of performing a variety of often complex human tasks on command or by being programmed in advance. 2. A machine or device that operates automatically or by remote control. 3. A person who works mechanically without original thought, especially one who responds automatically to the commands of others. [Czech, from robota, drudgery. See orbh- in Appendix.] —ro·bot'ic, ro·bot-is'tic (-bə-tis'tik) adj.

robot bomb (rō'bət bōm) n. A small winged missile that is loaded with explosives, jet-propelled, and guided only by a gyroscopic device. Also called buzz bomb, flying bomb.

ro·bot-ics (rō-böt'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The science or study of the technology associated with the design, fabrication, theory, and application of robots.

ro·bot-ize (rō'bə-tīz') v. tr. ro·bot-ized, ro·bot-iz-ing, ro·bot-iz-es. 1. To convert (a system, for example) to automation by the application of advanced scientific technology. 2. To make (a person) machinelike, as in giving responses or performing work. —ro'bot-i-za'tion (-bə-tī-zā'shən) n.

robot pilot (rō'bət pī'lət) n. See automatic pilot.

rob roy (rōb roi') n. A cocktail made with Scotch whisky, sweet vermouth, and bitters. [After ROB ROY.]

Rob Roy (rōb roi'), Originally Robert MacGregor. 1671-1734. Scottish clan leader and outlaw whose banditry is the subject of Sir Walter Scott's novel Rob Roy (1817).

Rob-son (rōb'sən), Mount. A mountain, 3,956.5 m (12,972 ft) high, of eastern British Columbia, Canada, on the border with Alberta. It is the highest elevation in the Canadian Rocky Mountains.

ro·bust (rō-büst', rō'büst') adj. 1. Full of health and strength; vigorous. 2. Powerfully built; sturdy. See Synonyms at healthy. 3. Requiring or suited to physical strength or endurance: robust labor. 4. Rough or crude; boisterous: a robust tale. 5. Marked by richness and fullness; full-bodied: a robust wine. [Latin rōbustus, from rōbus, rōbur, oak, strength. See reudh- in Appendix.] —ro·bust'ly adv. —ro·bust'ness n.

ro·bus-ta coffee (rō-büs'tə kō'fē) n. 1. a. A west African tropical shrub or small tree (Coffea canephora) having fragrant white flowers and red fruit. b. The seed of this plant. 2. The coffee brewed from the seeds of this plant. [Latin rōbusta, feminine of rōbustus, strong. See ROBUST.]

ro·bus-tious (rō-büs'chəs) adj. 1. Boisterous; vigorous: a robustious group of teenagers. 2. Rough, coarse, or crude: a robustious comedy. —ro·bus'tiously adv.

roc (rök) n. A mythical bird of prey having enormous size and strength. [Arabic ruhḥ, probably from Persian rukḥ.]

Ro·ca (rō'kə, rô'-), Cape. A cape of western Portugal on the Atlantic Ocean west-northwest of Lisbon. It is the westernmost extremity of continental Europe.

roc·am·bole (rök'əm-bōl') n. 1. A European plant (Allium sativum var. ophioscordon) having a garliclike bulb. 2. The bulb of this plant used as a seasoning. [French, from German Rockenbolle : Rocken, distaff (from Middle High German rocke, from Old High German rocko) + Bolle, bulb (from Middle High German bolle, from Old High German bolla, ball); see bhel-² in Appendix.]

Ro·cham·beau (rō'shām-bō', -shāN-), Comte de. Title of Jean Baptiste Donatien de Vimeur. 1725-1807. French army officer who commanded French forces in the American Revolution, most notably in the defeat of the British at Yorktown (1781).

Roch·dale (röch'dāl') A borough of northwest England north-northeast of Manchester. It is a manufacturing center with an important textile industry. Population, 288,400.

Roche limit (rōsh līm'īt) n. The smallest distance at which a natural satellite can orbit a celestial body without being torn apart by the larger body's gravitational force. The distance depends on the densities of the two bodies and the orbit of the satellite. [After Edouard Albert Roche (1820-1883), French mathematician.]

Ro·chelle salt or Ro·chelle salts (rə-shĕl' sôlt, rō-) n. See potassium sodium tartrate. [After (La) Rochelle.]

roche mou·ton·née (rôsh' mōōt'n-ā', mōō'tô-nā') n. pl. roches mou·ton·nées (rôsh' mōōt'n-ā', -āz', mōō'tô-nā'). An elongate mound of bedrock worn smooth and rounded by glacial abrasion. [French : roche, rock + moutonné, fleecy.]

Roch·es·ter (röch'ī-stər, -ĕs'tər) 1. A municipal borough of southeast England east-southeast of London. It was an important Roman and Saxon settlement. Population, 56,030. 2. A city of southeast Minnesota southeast of St. Paul. The Mayo Clinic (founded in 1889) is located here. Population, 70,745. 3. A city of southeast New Hampshire north-northwest of Dover. Settled in 1728, it has diverse industries. Population, 25,630. 4. A city of western New York east-northeast of Buffalo on the New York State Barge Canal near Lake Ontario. It was first settled c. 1812 and grew rapidly after the opening of the Erie Canal (1825). Population, 231,636.

roch·et (röch'īt) n. A white ceremonial vestment made of linen or lawn, worn by bishops and other church dignitaries. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

rock¹ (rök) n. 1. Relatively hard, naturally formed mineral or petrified matter; stone. 2. a. A relatively small piece or fragment of such material. b. A relatively large body of such material, as a cliff or peak. 3. A naturally formed aggregate of mineral matter constituting a significant part of the earth's crust. 4. One that is similar to or suggestive of a mass of stone in stability, firmness, or dependability: The family has been his rock during this difficult time. 5. rocks. Slang. Money.

6. Slang. A large gem, especially a diamond. 7. Slang. Crack cocaine. 8. a. A varicolored stick candy. b. Rock candy. —idioms. between a rock and a hard place. Confronted with equally unpleasant alternatives and few or no opportunities to evade or circumvent them. on the rocks. 2. In a state of difficulty, destruction, or ruin: Their marriage is on the rocks. 3. Without money; bankrupt: Our accountant says the business is on the rocks. 4. Served over ice cubes: Scotch on the rocks. [Middle English, from Old North French roque, from Vulgar Latin rocca*.]

rock² (rɒk) v. rocked, rock-ing, rocks. — v. intr. 1. To move back and forth or from side to side, especially gently or rhythmically. 2. To sway violently, as from a blow or shock. See Synonyms at swing. 3. To be washed and panned in a cradle or in a rocker. Used of ores. 4. Music. To play or dance to rock 'n' roll. — v. tr. 1. To move back and forth or from side to side, especially in order to soothe or lull to sleep. 2. To cause to shake or sway violently. See Synonyms at agitate. 3. To disturb the mental or emotional equilibrium of; upset: News of the scandal rocked the town. 4. To wash or pan (ore) in a cradle or rocker. 5. In mezzotint engraving, to roughen (a metal plate) with a rocker or roulette. — n. 1. a. A rocking motion. b. The act of rocking. 2. Music. Rock 'n' roll.

—idiom. rock the boat. Slang. To disturb the balance or routine of a situation: He has an easygoing managerial style and won't rock the boat unless absolutely necessary. [Middle English rokken, from Old English roccian.] —rock'ing-ly adv.

rock-a-bil-ly (rɒk'ə-bɪl'ē) n. Music. A form of popular music combining features of rock 'n' roll and country music. [ROCK ('N' ROLL) + (HILL)BILLY.]

rock-a-bye also rock-a-bye or rock-a-by (rɒk'ə-bī') interj. Used to lull an infant or a child to sleep. [ROCK² + (LULL)ABY.]

rock-and-roll (rɒk'ən-rɒl') n. Music. Variant of rock 'n' roll.

rock and rye (rɒk ənd ri) n. A liqueur made of whiskey blended with powdered rock candy and sometimes fruit. In the 19th century it was reputed to aid in digestion.

rock-a-way (rɒk'ə-wā') n. A four-wheeled carriage with two seats and a standing top. [Probably after Rockaway, a town of northern New Jersey.]

rock bass (rɒk bäs) n. 1. A freshwater food and game fish (Ambloplites rupestris) of eastern and central North America. 2. Any of various similar or related fishes.

rock bottom (rɒk bɒt'əm) n. The lowest possible level or absolute bottom: Prices have hit rock bottom. —rock'-bot'tom (rɒk'bɒt'əm) adj.

rock-bound also rock-bound (rɒk'bound') adj. Hemmed in by or bordered with rocks: a rockbound lake.

rock brake (rök brāk) n. Any of several ferns of the genus Crytogramma that usually grow in rocky ground and have compound fronds and podlike fertile leaflets.

rock candy (rök kǎn'dē) n. A hard confection that is made by cooling a concentrated sugar syrup into large, clear crystals around a piece of string or a stick.

Rock Cornish (rök kôr'nîsh) n. A small fowl of a breed developed by crossing white Plymouth Rock and Cornish strains, used especially as a roasting chicken. [(PLYMOUTH) ROCK + CORNISH.]

rock crab (rök krăb) n. A crab found along rocky coasts, especially one of the genus Cancer, whose hindmost pair of legs is adapted for running.

Rock Creek Butte (rök krēk byōōt) A mountain, 2,777 m (9,106 ft) high, in the Blue Mountains of northeast Oregon. It is the highest elevation in the range.

rock crystal (rök krîs'təl) n. Colorless, transparent quartz, used in optical instruments and as a semiprecious gemstone.

rock dove (rök düv) n. A bird (Columba livia) native to Europe but widely distributed elsewhere, having variously colored plumage with iridescent markings on the neck. It is the common pigeon seen in cities and frequently domesticated. Also called rock pigeon

Rock-e-fel-ler (rök'ə-fēl'ər) American family, including John Davison (1839-1937), an oil magnate who amassed great wealth through the Standard Oil Company and spent about half of his fortune on philanthropic works. His son John Davison, Jr. (1874-1960), continued his father's work and had five sons, including Nelson Aldrich (1908-1979), who was governor of New York (1959-1973) and Vice President of the United States (1974-1977) under Gerald Ford.

rock elm (rök ělm) n. 1. A deciduous eastern North American tree (Ulmus thomasii) having corky branches and coarsely toothed leaves. 2. The wood of this tree.

rock-er (rök'ər) n. 1. One that rocks, as: a. A rocking chair. b. A rocking horse. 2. One of the two curved pieces upon which a cradle, rocking chair, or similar device rocks. 3. A cradle used for washing or panning ores. 4. A small curved blade with a toothed edge used in mezzotint engraving to roughen the surface of the metal plate. 5. An ice skate with a curved blade. 6. A curved stripe at the bottom part of a chevron worn by noncommissioned officers above the rank of sergeant. 7. Music. a. A rock 'n' roll song, singer, or musician. b. A fan of rock 'n' roll. —idiom. off (one's) rocker. Slang. Out of one's mind; crazy.

rocker arm (rök'ər ärm) n. A pivoted lever used in an internal combustion engine to transfer cam or pushrod motion to a valve stem.

rocker cam (rök'ər kăm) n. A cam on a rockshaft.

rocker panel (rök'ər păn'əl) n. One of the sections of body paneling in a vehicle, such as an automobile, lying beneath the passenger compartment.

rock-er-y (rök'ə-rē) n. pl. rock-er-ies. See rock garden (n., sense 2).

rock-et¹ (rɒk'ɪt) n. 1. a. A rocket engine. b. A vehicle or device propelled by one or more rocket engines, especially such a vehicle designed to travel through space. 2. A projectile weapon carrying a warhead that is powered and propelled by rockets. 3. A projectile firework having a cylindrical shape and a fuse that is lit from the rear. — v. rock-et-ed, rock-et-ing, rock-ets. — v. intr. 1. To move swiftly and powerfully, as a rocket. 2. To fly swiftly straight up, as a game bird frightened from cover. 3. To soar or rise rapidly: The book rocketed to the top of the bestseller list. — v. tr. 1. To carry by means of a rocket. 2. To assault with rockets. [Italian rocchetta, diminutive of rocca, spindle, distaff, of Germanic origin.]

rock-et² (rɒk'ɪt) n. 1. A Mediterranean plant (Eruca vesicaria subsp. sativa) having flowers with purple-veined, yellowish-white petals and leaves that are sometimes used in salads. Also called arugula, rocket salad, roquette. 2. Any of several plants of the mustard family, especially the dame's rocket and the sea rocket. [Middle English rokette, from Old French roquette, from Italian rochetta, variant of ruchetta, diminutive of ruca, a kind of cabbage, from Latin ērūca.]

rock-et-er (rɒk'ɪ-tɪr) n. 1. One who launches, rides in, or pilots rockets. 2. One, such as a scientist, who is an expert in rocketry.

rocket engine (rɒk'ɪt ɛn'ʃɪn) n. A reaction engine that contains all the substances necessary for its operation and is not dependent on substances such as atmospheric oxygen, drawn from the surrounding medium, and thus is capable of operating in outer space. Also called rocket motor rocket plane (rɒk'ɪt plān) n. 1. An aircraft powered by one or more rocket engines. 2. An aircraft designed to carry and launch rockets.

rock-et-ry (rɒk'ɪ-trē) n. The science and technology of rocket design, construction, and flight.

rocket salad (rɒk'ɪt səl'əd) n. See rocket² (n., sense 1).

rocket ship (rɒk'ɪt ʃɪp) n. A spacecraft powered and propelled by rockets.

rocket sled (rɒk'ɪt slɛd) n. A rocket-propelled sled that travels along rails and is used to study acceleration, deceleration, and crash survival techniques.

rock-et-sonde (rɒk'ɪt-sɒnd') n. An instrument transported to the upper atmosphere by rocket, used to study meteorological conditions. [ROCKET¹ + (RADIO)SONDE.]

Rock fever (rɒk fē'vər) n. See brucellosis (n., sense 1). [After the Rock of Gibraltar, where it is endemic.]

rock-fish (rɒk'fɪʃ') n. pl. rockfish or rock-fish-es. 1. Any of various fishes living among rocks. 2. Any of various fishes, chiefly of the genus Sebastes, of Pacific waters. 3. See striped bass.

rock flour (rɒk flour) n. Finely ground rock particles produced by glacial abrasion. Also called glacier meal

Rock-ford (rɒk'fərd) A city of northern Illinois west-northwest of Chicago. Founded in 1834, it is a trade, processing, and shipping center. Population, 139,426.

rock garden (rɒk gɑː'dn) n. 1. A rocky area in which plants particularly adapted to such terrain are cultivated. 2. A garden in which rocks are arranged and plants cultivated in a carefully designed, decorative scheme. In this sense, also called rockery rock hound (rɒk haʊnd) n. Informal. 1. One who specializes in geology.

Rock Hill (rɒk hɪl) A city of northern South Carolina north of Columbia. It is a manufacturing and processing center with a textile industry. Population, 41,643.

2. One who collects rocks and minerals, especially gemstones, as a hobby.

—rock' hound'ing, rock'hound'ing (rɒk'houn'dɪŋ) n.

rock house (rɒk haʊs) n. Slang. A crack house.

rock hyrax (rɒk hɪ'ræks') n. See rock rabbit (n., sense 1).

Rock-ies (rɒk'ēz) See Rocky Mountains.

rock-ing chair (rɒk'ɪŋ ʃâːr) n. A chair mounted on rockers or springs.

Rock-ing-ham (rɒk'ɪŋ-əm, -həm), Second Marquis of Title of Charles Watson-Wentworth. 1730-1782. British politician who served as prime minister (1765-1766 and 1782), repealed the Stamp Act (1766), and favored American independence.

rocking horse (rɒk'ɪŋ hɔːs) n. A toy horse that is mounted on rockers or springs and is large enough for a child to ride. Also called hobbyhorse Rock Island (rɒk ɪ'lænd) A city of northwest Illinois on the Mississippi River adjacent to Moline. It was the site of a Union prison during the Civil War. Population, 40,552.

Rock-land (rɒk'lænd) A town of eastern Massachusetts south-southeast of Boston. It is an industrial center. Population, 16,123.

rock-ling (rɒk'lɪŋ) n. pl. rockling or rock-lings. Any of various small marine fishes of the family Gadidae, of North Atlantic coastal waters.

rock lobster (rɒk lɒb'stər) n. See spiny lobster.

rock maple (rɒk mɑː'pəl) n. 1. See sugar maple. 2. The tough, close-grained wood of the sugar maple.

Rock-ne (rɒk'nē), Knute Kenneth. 1888-1931. Norwegian-born American football coach at the University of Notre Dame (1918-1931). He revolutionized the sport with the use of the forward pass and other offensive strategies requiring speed and agility.

rock 'n' roll or rock-and-roll (rɒk'ən-rɒl') n. Music. A form of popular music arising from and incorporating a variety of musical styles, especially rhythm and blues, country music, and gospel. Originating in the United States in the 1950's, it is characterized by electronically amplified instrumentation, a heavily accented beat, and relatively simple phrase structure. — n. attributive.

Often used to modify another noun: rock 'n' roll music; rock 'n' roll records.

—rock 'n' roller, rock'-and-roll'er n.

rock oil (rɒk oil) n. Chiefly British. Petroleum.

rock-oon (rɒ-kōn) n. A device used for high-altitude sounding, composed of a small, solid-propellant rocket that is launched from a balloon. [ROCK(ET)¹ + (BALL)OON.]

rock pigeon (rɒk pɪjən) n. See rock dove.

rock rabbit (rɒk rəb'ɪt) n. 1. A hyrax of the genus Procavia or Dendrohyrax, especially the African species P. capensis. Also called rock hyrax 2. See pika.

rock-ribbed (rɒk'ribd') adj. 1. Having rocks or rock outcroppings; rocky. 2. Firm and unyielding, especially with regard to one's principles, loyalties, or beliefs: a rock-ribbed conservative.

Rock River (rɒk rɪv'ər) A river rising in southeast Wisconsin and flowing about 459 km (285 mi) generally south and southwest to the Mississippi River in northwest Illinois.

rock-rose (rɒk'rōz') n. Any of various plants of the genera Cistus or Helianthemum having small roselike yellow, white, or reddish flowers.

rock salt (rɒk sɔlt) n. Sodium chloride occurring as extensive masses or rock.

rock-shaft (rɒk'shəft') n. A shaft that oscillates or rocks upon its bearings but does not revolve.

rock-slide (rɒk'slɪd') n. 1. The usually rapid downward movement of newly detached segments of bedrock. 2. The rock mass that has reached its current position through such a movement.

Rock Springs (rɒk sprɪŋz) A city of southwest Wyoming north of the Utah border. It was a trading post and stagecoach station on the Oregon Trail in the 1860's. Population, 19,050.

rock squirrel (rɒk skwɪr'əl) n. A large ground squirrel (Spermophilus variegatus) with variegated black and white upper parts, found in rocky places in Mexico and the southwest United States.

Rock-ville (rɒk'vɪl', -vəl) A city of central Maryland north-northwest of Washington, D.C. It is the site of several research laboratories. Population, 44,835.

Rockville Cen-tre (rɒk'vɪl' sɛn'tər) A village of southeast New York on southwest Long Island south-southwest of Hempstead. It is primarily residential. Population, 24,727.

rock wallaby (rɒk wɔl'ə-bē) n. Any of several small agile wallabies, chiefly of the genus Petrogale, that live in rocky areas and have thick-soled feet and a slender tail.

rock-weed (rɒk'wēd') n. Any of several coarse, brownish seaweeds of the genera Fucus and Ascophyllum that grow on rocks in coastal areas.

Rock-well (rɒk'wɛl'), Norman. 1894-1978. American illustrator whose works, many of which appeared on the cover of the Saturday Evening Post, offer a nostalgic, idealized view of everyday American life.

rock wool (rɒk wʊl) n. See mineral wool.

rock-work (rɒk'wɜrk') n. 1. A natural mass or pile of rocks. 2. Stonework imitating the irregular surface of natural rock.

rock wren (rɒk rɛn) n. 1. Any of several wrens of the genus Salpinctes, especially S. obsoletus, found in rocky regions of the western United States and Mexico. 2. A small wren (Xenicus gilviventris) that inhabits New Zealand and feeds mostly on the ground among stones.

rock-y¹ (rɒk'ē) adj. rock-i-er, rock-i-est. 1. Consisting of, containing, or abounding in rock or rocks. 2. a. Resembling or suggesting rock; firm or hard. b. Steadfast or stubborn; unyielding: her rocky heart. 3. Marked by obstructions or difficulties: the rocky road to success. —rock'i-ness' n.

rock-y² (rɒk'ē) adj. rock-i-er, rock-i-est. 1. a. Inclined or prone to sway or totter; unsteady or shaky: a rocky shelf. b. Appearing inclined to fail; discouraging or disappointing: After a somewhat rocky start, the team went on to win the state championships. 2. Weak, dizzy, or nauseated, especially as a result of the excessive intake of alcohol or drugs. —rock'i-ness' n.

Rock-y Mount (rɒk'ē maʊnt) A city of northeast North Carolina east-northeast of Raleigh. It is a manufacturing, processing, and shipping center in a rich agricultural region. Population, 48,997.

Rocky Mountain goat (rɒk'ē maʊn'tən gōt) n. See mountain goat.

Rocky Mountains (rɒk'ē maʊn'tənz) also Rock-ies (rɒk'ēz) A major mountain system of western North America extending more than 4,827 km (3,000 mi) from northwest Alaska to the Mexican border. The system includes numerous ranges and forms the Continental Divide. Its highest elevation is Mount Elbert, 4,402.1 m (14,433 ft), in central Colorado. In Canada the Rockies rise to 3,956.5 m (12,972 ft) at Mount Robson in eastern British Columbia. Sections of the mountains were explored in early times by Coronado, Lewis and Clark, Zebulon Pike, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and Simon Fraser.

Rocky Mountain sheep (rɒk'ē maʊn'tən shēp) n. See bighorn.

Rocky Mountain spotted fever (rɒk'ē maʊn'tən spɒt'id fē'vər) n. An acute infectious disease that is caused by a microorganism (Rickettsia rickettsii) transmitted by ticks, is characterized by muscular pains, high fever, and skin eruptions, and is endemic throughout North America.

Rocky Mountain States (rɒk'ē maʊn'tən stāts) A region of the western United States including Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Utah, and Wyoming.

Rocky River (rɒk'ē rɪv'ər) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 20,410.

ro-co-co (rə-kō'kō, rō'kə-kō') n. 1. a. Also Rococo. A style of art, especially architecture and decorative art, that originated in France in the early 18th century and is marked by elaborate ornamentation, as with a profusion of scrolls, foliage, and animal forms. b. A very ornate style of speech or writing. 2. Also Rococo. Music. A style of composition arising in 18th-century Europe immediately following the baroque that is characterized by a certain lightness or daintiness of form, largely the result of a high degree of ornamentation. — adj. 1. Also Rococo. Of or relating to the rococo. 2. Immoderately elaborate or complicated. See Synonyms at ornate. [French, probably alteration of rocaille, rockwork, from roc, rock, variant of roche, from Vulgar Latin rocca*.]

rod (rōd) n. 1. A thin straight piece or bar of material, such as metal or wood, often having a particular function or use, as: a. A fishing rod. b. A piston rod. c. An often expandable horizontal bar, especially of metal, used to suspend household items such as curtains or towels. d. A leveling rod. e. A lightning rod. f. A divining rod. g. A measuring stick. 2. A shoot or stem cut from or growing as part of a woody plant. 3. a. A stick or bundle of sticks or switches used to give punishment by whipping. b. Punishment; correction. 4. A scepter, staff, or wand symbolizing power or authority. 5. Power or dominion, especially of a tyrannical nature: “under the rod of a cruel slavery” (John Henry Newman). 6. Abbr. r., rd a. A linear measure equal to 5.5 yards or 16.5 feet (5.03 meters). Also called *pole*² b. The square of this measure, equal to 30.25 square yards or 272.25 square feet (25.30 square meters). See Table at measurement. 7. Bible. A line of family descent; a branch of a tribe. 8. Anatomy. Any of various rod-shaped cells in the retina that respond to dim light. 9. Microbiology. An elongated bacterium; a bacillus. 10. Slang. A pistol or revolver. 11. Often rods. A portion of the undercarriage of a train, especially the drawbar under a freight car: ride the rods. [Middle English rodd, from Old English.]

rode¹ (rōd) v. Past tense of ride.

rode² (rōd) n. Nautical. A rope, especially one attached to the anchor of a small boat. [From Middle English at rode, at an anchorage, from rode, a riding. See ROAD.]

ro-dent (rōd'nt) n. Any of various mammals of the order Rodentia, such as a mouse, rat, squirrel, or beaver, characterized by large incisors adapted for gnawing or nibbling. — adj. 1. Gnawing. 2. Of or relating to rodents. [From New Latin Rodentia, order name, from Latin rōdēns, rōdent- present participle of rōdere, to gnaw. See rēd- in Appendix.]

ro-den-ti-cide (rō-dēn'tī-sīd') n. A chemical substance used to kill rodents.

rodent ulcer (rōd'nt ũl'sər) n. A cancerous skin ulcer that derives from basal cells and usually occurs on the face. [Latin rōdēns, rodent-, gnawing. See RODENT.]

ro-de-o (rō'dē-ō', rō-dā'ō) n. pl. ro-de-os. 1. A public competition or exhibition in which skills such as riding broncos or roping calves are displayed. 2. A cattle roundup. 3. An enclosure for keeping cattle that have been rounded up. [Spanish, corral, rodeo, from rodear, to surround, from rueda, wheel, from Latin rota. See ret- in Appendix.]

Rod-gers (rɒdʒ'ərz), Richard. 1902-1979. American composer known for his musical comedies, especially his collaborations with Oscar Hammerstein II, including Oklahoma! (1943), South Pacific (1949), and The Sound of Music (1959).

Ro-din (rō-dän', -dän'), François Auguste René. 1840-1917. French sculptor whose innovative, sometimes controversial works include the lifelike Bronze Age (1877) and the uncompleted series Gates of Hell, comprising some of his best-known works, such as The Thinker.

rod-man (rɒd'mən) n. One who carries and employs a leveling rod under the supervision of a surveyor.

Rod-ney (rɒd'nē), George Brydges First Baron Rodney. 1718-1792. British naval officer who won important victories over the European powers that supported the colonists during the American Revolution.

rod-o-mon-tade also rho-do-mon-tade (rɒd'ə-mɒn-tād', -tād', rō'də-) n. Pretentious boasting or bragging; bluster. See Synonyms at bombast. — adj. Pretentiously boastful or bragging. — v. intr. ro-do-mon-tad-ed, ro-do-mon-tad-ing, ro-do-mon-tades. To boast or brag; bluster. [French, from Italian rodomontada, from Rodomonte, arrogant Saracen leader in Orlando Innamorato by Matteo Boiardo and Orlando Furioso by Ludovico Ariosto.]

roe¹ (rō) n. 1. The eggs or the egg-laden ovary of a fish. 2. The egg mass or spawn of certain crustaceans, such as the lobster. [Middle English row, from Middle Low German or Middle Dutch roge.]

roe² (rō) n. pl. roe or roes. The roe deer. [Middle English ro, from Old English rā, rāha.]

Roeb-ling (rō'blɪŋ), John Augustus. 1806-1869. German-born American engineer who designed and began the construction of the Brooklyn Bridge, a project completed (1883) by his son Washington Augustus Roebling (1837-1926).

roe-buck (rō'bŭk') n. A male roe deer.

roe deer (rō dîr) n. A rather small, delicately formed Eurasian deer (Capreolus capreolus) having short, branched antlers in the male and a brownish coat.

roent-gen also rönt-gen (rɛnt'gən, -jən, rünt'-) n. Abbr. R, r A unit of radiation exposure equal to the quantity of ionizing radiation that will produce one electrostatic unit of electricity in one cubic centimeter of dry air at 0°C and standard atmospheric pressure. [After Wilhelm Konrad ROENTGEN.] —roent'gen adj.

Roent·gen (rěnt'gən, -jən, rünt' -) or Rönt·gen (rœnt'gən), Wilhelm Konrad. 1845-1923. German physicist who discovered x-rays and developed x-ray photography, revolutionizing medical diagnosis. He won a 1901 Nobel Prize.

roent·gen·ize (rěnt'gə-nīz', -jə-, rünt' -) v. tr. roent·gen·ized, roent·gen·iz·ing, roent·gen·iz·es. To subject to the action of x-rays.

roentgeno- pref. X-ray: roentgenography. [From ROENTGEN.]

roent·gen·o·gram (rěnt'gə-nə-grām', -jə-, rünt' -) n. A photograph made with x-rays. Also called roentgenograph roent·gen·o·graph (rěnt'gə-nə-grāf', -jə-, rünt' -) n. See roentgenogram.

roent·gen·og·ra·phy (rěnt'gə-nōg'rə-fē, -jə-, rünt' -) n. Photography with the use of x-rays. —roent'gen·o·graph'ic (-gə-nə-grāf'ik, -jə-) adj.
—roent'gen·o·graph'ic·al·ly adv.

roent·gen·ol·o·gy (rěnt'gə-nōl'ə-jē, -jə-, rünt' -) n. Radiology employing x-rays. —roent'gen·o·log'ic (-ə-lōj'ik), roent'gen·o·log'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj.
—roent'gen·o·log'i·cal·ly adv. —roent'gen·ol·o·gist n.

roent·gen·o·scope (rěnt'gə-nə-skōp', -jə-, rünt' -) n. See fluoroscope.
—roent'gen·o·scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj. —roent'gen·os'co·py (-gə-nōs'kə-pē, -jə-) n.

roent·gen·o·ther·a·py (rěnt'gə-nə-thēr'ə-pē, -jə-, rünt' -) n. pl.
roent·gen·o·ther·a·pies. The therapeutic use of x-rays in treating disease.

roentgen ray (rěnt'gən rā) n. See x-ray (n., sense 1).

Roe·rich (rûr'ik, ryô'rĭKH), Nicholas Konstantin. 1874-1947. Russian-born artist and archaeologist known especially for the sets he designed for Diaghilev's ballets.

Roe·se·la·re (rōō'sə-lār'ə) A city of western Belgium west-northwest of Brussels. It is an industrial center. Population, 51,649.

Roeth·ke (rět'kē, -kə, rēth' -), Theodore. 1908-1963. American poet whose short, lyrical works, often imbued with floral images, were published in The Waking (1953) and other collections.

ro·ga·tion (rō-gā'shən) n. 1. Often rogations. Ecclesiastical. Solemn prayer or supplication, especially as chanted during the rites of a Rogation Day.
2. a. The formal proposal of a law in ancient Rome by a tribune or consul to the people for acceptance or rejection. b. A law proposed in this manner. [Middle English rogacioun, from Latin rogātiō, rogātiōn-, from rogātus, past participle of rogāre, to ask. See reg- in Appendix.]

Ro·ga·tion Day (rō-gā'shən dā) n. Ecclesiastical. One of the three days of prayer preceding Ascension Day.

ro·ga·to·ry (rō'gə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. Law. Requesting information. Used especially of a request by one court of another, often foreign court for aid in obtaining desired information: a rogatory letter. [French rogatoire, from Medieval Latin rogātōrius, from Latin rogātus, past participle of rogāre, to ask. See reg- in Appendix.]

rog-er (rōj'ər) interj. Used especially in radio communications to indicate receipt of a message. [From Roger, spoken representation of the letter r, short for RECEIVED.]

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz) A city of northwest Arkansas north of Fayetteville. It is a processing center in a farming and tourist area. Population, 24,692.

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz), Bruce. 1870-1957. American book designer and typographer noted for his use of design to reflect a volume's subject matter.

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz), Carl. 1902-1987. American psychologist. A founder of humanistic psychology, he developed client-centered therapy, in which the client directs the focus and pace of each session.

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz), Ginger. 1911-1995. American dancer and actress particularly noted for her partnership with Fred Astaire in several motion pictures, including Swing Time (1936).

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz), John. 1829-1904. American sculptor noted for his groups of small sculptures, such as "Checkers up at the Farm" and "The Slave Auction" (both 1859).

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz), Robert. 1731-1795. American soldier and frontiersman who led (1758-1763) the Rogers's Rangers on a series of daring missions during the French and Indian War.

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz), Roy. Born 1912. American singer and actor who played a singing cowboy in motion-picture Westerns.

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz), Samuel. 1763-1855. British poet whose works include The Pleasures of Memory (1792).

Rog-ers (rōj'ərz), William Penn Adair. Known as "Will." 1879-1935. American humorist noted for his wry, homespun commentary on American society and politics.

Ro-get (rō-zhā', rō'zhā), Peter Mark. 1779-1869. British physician and scholar who compiled the Thesaurus of English Words and Phrases (1852).

rogue (rōg) n. 1. An unprincipled, deceitful, and unreliable person; a scoundrel or rascal. 2. One who is playfully mischievous; a scamp: My little brother is such a rogue! 3. A wandering beggar; a vagrant. 4. A vicious and solitary animal, especially an elephant that has separated itself from its herd. 5. An organism, especially a plant, that shows an undesirable variation from a standard. — v.

rogued, rogu-ing, rogues. — v. tr. 1. To defraud. 2. To remove (diseased or abnormal specimens) from a group of plants of the same variety. — v. intr. To remove deviant plants. [Origin unknown.]

Rogue River (rōg rīv'ər) A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, rising in the Cascade Range of southwest Oregon and flowing generally south and southwest to the Pacific Ocean.

rogu·er·y (rō'gə-rē) n. pl. rogu·er·ies. 1. Behavior characteristic of a rogue.

2. A mischievous act.

rogues' gallery (rōgz gäl'ə-rē) n. A collection of pictures of known and suspected criminals maintained in police files and used for making identifications.

rogu·ish (rō'gīsh) adj. 1. Deceitful; unprincipled: Set adrift by his roguish crew, the captain of the ship spent a week alone at sea. 2. Playfully mischievous: a roguish grin. —rogu'ish-ly adv. —rogu'ish-ness n.

Rohn·ert Park (rō'nərt pārk) A city of western California, a suburb of Santa Rosa. Population, 36,326.

Roh·rer (rō'rər), Heinrich. Born 1933. Swiss physicist. He shared a 1986 Nobel Prize for designing an electron microscope able to scan individual atoms.

roil (roil) v. roiled, roil·ing, roils. — v. tr. 1. To make (a liquid) muddy or cloudy by stirring up sediment. 2. To displease or disturb; vex: Some of her habits are off-putting but don't let them roil you. — v. intr. To be in a state of turbulence or agitation. [Origin unknown.]

roil·y (roi'lē) adj. roil·i·er, roil·i·est. 1. Full of sediment; muddy or cloudy. 2. Turbulent; agitated.

rois·ter (roi'stər) v. intr. rois·tered, rois·ter·ing, rois·ters. 1. To engage in boisterous merrymaking; revel noisily. 2. To behave in a blustering manner; swagger. [From obsolete roister, roisterer, probably from Old French rustre, ruffian, alteration of ruste, from Latin rūsticus, rustic. See RUSTIC.] —rois'ter·er n. —rois'ter·ous adj. —rois'ter·ous-ly adv.

ro·la·mite (rō'lə-mīt') n. A mechanism consisting of two or more hard, cylindrical rollers with a flexible nonstretching band looped around them, so that the rollers move against each other with very little friction. [ROL(L) + -amite, of unknown origin.]

Ro·land (rō'lənd, rô-län') n. A French hero celebrated in medieval chansons de geste as the nephew of Charlemagne and defender of Christianity who was killed in battle against the Saracens at Roncesvalles in A.D. 778.

role also rôle (rōl) n. 1. A character or part played by a performer. 2. The characteristic and expected social behavior of an individual. 3. A function or position. See Synonyms at function. [French rôle, from Old French rolle, roll of parchment (on which an actor's part was written), from Latin rotula, diminutive of rota, wheel. See ROLL.]

WORD HISTORY: Considering the various great roles in the theater, such as Hamlet or Lear, or the various roles we play, such as parent or teacher, employer or employee, it is difficult to think back to a time in the history of the word role when none of these important associations was present. Role, which is first recorded in English in 1606, came to us from French with the sense “a part one has to play.” Obviously the development of the sense familiar to us had already occurred in French, where the word rôle in its earlier history (Old French rolle) had meant “a roll, as of parchment,” particularly with reference to a manuscript roll. The word could also mean “a legal document” or “a list or register.” From such use it also came to refer to the text from which an actor learned a part. This use brought the word into the world of the theater where it has played an important role ever since.

role indicator (rōl ĭn'dī-kā'tər) n. Computer Science. In information retrieval, a code that is assigned to a key word to indicate the part of speech or function of the word in the text where it occurs.

role model (rōl mōd'l) n. A person who serves as a model in a particular behavioral or social role for another person to emulate.

role-play (rōl'plā') v. role--played, role--play-ing, role--plays. — v. tr. To assume deliberately the part or role of; act out: “Participants are encouraged to pass on leads about jobs... and to role-play interview situations with each other” (Hatfield MA Valley Advocate). — v. intr. To assume or act out a particular role: “When I hire people I role-play with them... to see how they take pressure” (Peter Schrag). — n. Role-playing.

role-playing (rōl'plā'ĭng) n. 1. Psychology. A therapeutic technique, designed to reduce the conflict inherent in various social situations, in which participants act out particular behavioral roles in order to expand their awareness of differing points of view. 2. An instance or a situation in which one deliberately acts out or assumes a particular character or role.

Rolf (rōlf) See Rollo.

Rolfe (rōlf), John. 1585-1622. English colonist in America and husband of Pocahontas.

Rolf-ing (rōl'fĭng, rōl'-) A service mark used for a technique of deep muscular manipulation and massage for the relief of bodily and emotional tension.

roll (rōl) v. rolled, roll-ing, rolls. — v. intr. 1. To move forward along a surface by revolving on an axis or by repeatedly turning over. 2. To travel or be moved on wheels or rollers: rolled down the sidewalk on their scooters. 3. To travel around; wander: roll from town to town. 4. a. To travel or be carried in a vehicle. b. To be carried on a stream: The logs rolled down the cascading river. 5. a. To start to move or operate: The press wouldn't roll. b. To work or succeed in a sustained way; gain momentum: The political campaign finally began to roll. 6. To go by; elapse: The days rolled along. 7. To recur: Summer has rolled around again. 8. To move in a periodic revolution, as a planet in its orbit. 9. To turn over and over: The puppy rolled in the mud. 10. To shift the gaze usually quickly and continually: Her eyes rolled with fright. 11. To turn around or revolve on or as if on an axis. 12. To move or advance with a rising and falling motion; undulate: The waves rolled toward shore. 13. To extend or appear to extend in gentle rises and falls: The dunes roll to the sea. 14. To move or rock from side to side: The ship pitched and rolled in heavy seas. 15. To walk with a swaying, unsteady motion. 16. To take the shape of a ball or cylinder: Yarn rolls easily. 17. To become flattened by or as if by pressure applied by a roller. 18. To make a deep, prolonged, surging sound: Thunder rolled in the distance. 19. To make a sustained, trilling sound, as certain birds do. 20. To beat a drum in a continuous series of short blows. 21. To pour or flow in or as if in a continual stream: tourists rolling into the city. 22. To enjoy ample amounts: rolled in the money. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move forward along a surface by revolving on an axis or by repeatedly turning over. 2. To move or push along on wheels or rollers: rolled the plane out of the hangar. 3. To impel or send onward in a steady, swelling motion: The sea rolls its waves onto the sand. 4. To impart a swaying, rocking motion to: Heavy seas rolled the ship. 5. To turn around or partly turn around; rotate: rolled his head toward the door. 6. To cause to begin moving or operating: roll the cameras; roll the presses. 7. To extend or lay out: rolled out a long rope. 8. To pronounce or utter with a trill: You must roll your r's in Spanish. 9. To utter or emit in full, swelling tones. 10. To beat (a drum) with a continuous series of short blows. 11. To wrap (something) round and round upon itself or around something else: roll up a poster. 12. a. To envelop or enfold in a covering: roll dirty laundry in a sheet. b. To make by shaping into a ball or cylinder: roll a cigarette. 13. To spread, compress, or flatten by applying pressure with a roller: roll pastry dough. 14. Printing. To apply ink to (type) with a roller or rollers. 15. Games. To throw (dice), as in craps. 16. Slang. To rob (a drunken, sleeping, or otherwise helpless person). — n. 1. The act or an instance of rolling. 2. Something rolled up: a roll of tape. 3. A quantity, as of cloth or wallpaper, rolled into a cylinder and often considered as a unit of measure. 4. A piece of parchment or paper that may be or is rolled up; a scroll. 5. A register or a catalogue. 6. A list of names of persons belonging to a group. 7. A mass in cylindrical or rounded form: a roll of tobacco. 8. a. A small rounded portion of bread. b. A portion of food shaped like a tube with a filling. 9. A rolling, swaying, or rocking motion. 10. A gentle swell or undulation of a surface: the roll of the plains. 11. A deep reverberation or rumble: the roll of thunder. 12. A rapid succession of short sounds: the roll of a drum. 13. A trill: the roll of his r's. 14. A resonant, rhythmical flow of words. 15. A roller, especially a cylinder on which to roll something up or with which to flatten something. 16. A maneuver in which an airplane makes a single complete rotation about its longitudinal axis without changing direction or losing altitude. 17. Slang. Money, especially a wad of paper money. — phrasal verbs. roll back. 1. To reduce (prices or wages, for example) to a previous lower level. 2. To cause to turn back or retreat. roll out. 3. To get out of bed. 4. Football. To execute a rollout. roll over. 5. To defer or postpone payment of (an obligation). 6. To renegotiate the terms of (a financial deal). 7. To reinvest (funds from a maturing security) into a similar security. roll up. 8. To arrive in a vehicle. 9. To accumulate; amass: rolled up quite a fortune. —idioms. on a roll. Informal. Undergoing or experiencing sustained, even increasing good fortune, or success: “The stock market’s on a roll” (Karen Pennar). roll in the hay. Slang. Sexual intercourse. roll the bones. Games. To cast dice, especially in craps. roll with the punches. Slang. To cope with and withstand adversity, especially by being flexible. [Middle English rollen, from Old French roler, from Vulgar Latin rotulāre*, from Latin rotula, diminutive of rota, wheel. See ret- in Appendix.]

Rol-land (rô-län'), Romain. 1866-1944. French writer whose varied works include Jean Christophe (1904-1912), a series of satirical novels. He won the 1915 Nobel Prize for literature.

roll-a-way (rôl'ə-wā') adj. Set on rollers or casters for easy moving and storing: a rollaway bed.

roll-back (rôl'băk') n. 1. A reduction, especially in prices or wages, to a previous lower level by governmental action or direction: a price rollback; a rollback of military supplies. 2. A turning back or retreat, as from a previously held position or policy: Conservatives hoped for a rollback of left-wing support for the controversial new legislation.

roll bar (rôl bär) n. A sturdy metal bar built into the inside roof of a motor vehicle to prevent or reduce injury in case of a rollover.

roll call (rôl kôl) n. 1. The reading aloud of a list of names of people, as in a classroom or military post, to determine who is present or absent. 2. The time fixed for such a reading.

roll-er¹ (rô'lər) n. 1. One that rolls or performs a rolling operation or activity. 2. Any of various cylindrical or spherical devices that roll or rotate, especially: a. A small, spokeless wheel, such as that of a roller skate or caster. b. An elongated cylinder on which something, such as a window shade or towel, is wound. c. A heavy, revolving cylinder that is used to level, crush, or smooth. d. Printing. A cylinder, usually of hard rubber, used to ink the type before the paper is impressed. e. A cylinder of wire mesh, foam rubber, or other material around which a strand of hair is wound to produce a soft curl or wave. 3. A long, rolled bandage. 4. A heavy, swelling wave that breaks on a coast. 5. A tumbler pigeon.

rol-ler² (rô'lər) n. 1. Any of various Old World birds of the family Coraciidae, having bright blue wings, stocky bodies, and hooked bills. They are noted for their aggressiveness and their habit of rolling and twisting in flight, especially during the breeding season. 2. A canary that trills. [German, from rollen, to roll, burble. See ROLLMOPS.]

roller bearing (rô'lər bâr'ŷng) n. A bearing using rollers to reduce friction between machine parts.

roller coaster (rô'lər kô'stər) n. 1. A steep, sharply curving elevated railway with small open passenger cars that is operated at high speeds as a ride, especially in an amusement park. 2. Something, such as an action, event, or experience, that is marked by abrupt, extreme changes in circumstance, quality, or behavior: “the demographic roller coaster caused by the baby boom” (American Demographics).

roller hockey (rō'lər hōk'ē) n. Sports. Hockey played on a hard surface in which two opposing teams of roller skaters, using curved sticks, try to drive a ball into the opponents' goal.

roller skate (rō'lər skāt) n. A shoe or boot with two or four wheels or casters attached to its sole for skating on hard surfaces.

roll-er-skate (rō'lər-skāt') v. intr. roll-er-skate-d, roll-er-skate-ing, roll-er-skates. To engage in roller skating. —roller skater n.

Rolle's theorem (rōlz thē'ər-əm, rōlz) n. Mathematics. A theorem stating that if a curve is continuous, has two x-intercepts, and has a tangent at every point between the intercepts, at least one of these tangents is parallel to the x-axis. [After Michel Rolle (1652-1719), French mathematician.]

roll film (rōl fīlm) n. Photographic film rolled on a spool and encased before being loaded into a camera.

rol-lick (rōl'ik) v. intr. rol-licked, rol-lick-ing, rol-licks. To behave or move in a carefree, frolicsome manner; romp. [Origin unknown.] —rol'lick n.

—rol'lick-some, rol'lick-y adj.

rol-lick-ing (rōl'ī-kīng) adj. Carefree and high-spirited; boisterous: a rollicking celebration. —rol'lick-ing-ly adv.

Rolling Meadows (rō'līng mēd'ōz) A city of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 22,591.

roll-ing mill (rō'līng mīl) n. 1. A factory in which metal is rolled into sheets, bars, or other forms. 2. A machine used for rolling metal.

rolling pin (rō'līng pīn) n. A smooth cylinder, usually of wood, with a handle at each end, used for rolling out dough.

rolling stock (rō'līng stōk) n. The equipment available for use as transportation, as automotive vehicles, locomotives, or railroad cars, owned by a particular company or carrier.

roll-mops (rōl'mōps') n. pl. rollmops. A marinated fillet of herring wrapped around a pickle or an onion and served as an hors d'oeuvre. [German : rollen, to roll (from Middle High German, from Old French roler); see ROLL + Mops, block-head, pug dog.]

Rol-lo (rōl'ō), Also called Hrolf (hrōlf, rōlf) or Rolf (rōlf) 860?-931?. Norse chieftain and the first duke of Normandy.

roll-on (rōl'ōn', -ōn') adj. Of or being a substance, such as a deodorant, that is dispensed from a container having a rolling ball at one end serving as an applicator. —roll'-on' n.

roll-out (rōl'out') n. 1. The inauguration or initial public exhibition of a new product, service, or policy: The manufacturer's rollout of the new jet is scheduled for next month. 2. Football. A play in which the quarterback runs toward a sideline after receiving the snap with the intention of passing the ball.

roll-over (rōl'ō'vər) n. 1. The act or process of rolling over. 2. An accident in which a motor vehicle overturns. 3. Economics. Reinvestment of profits received from one often short-term security into another, similar security: an IRA roll-over.

roll-top desk or roll-top desk (rōl'tōp' dĕsk) n. A desk fitted with a flexible sliding top made of parallel slats.

roll-way (rōl'wā') n. A surface along which cylindrical objects or objects on rollers may be moved, especially a naturally or artificially inclined surface used by lumberjacks to slide logs into a waterway for transport.

Ro-lo-dex (rō'lə-dĕks') A trademark used for a desktop rotary file of removable cards, usually used for names, addresses, and telephone numbers. This trademark often occurs in attributive contexts in print: "He recently sent 1,000 journalists a set of four Rolodex cards, each featuring his picture and a list of his four committee assignments" (National Journal). It also occurs in the plural: "Their names can be found in Rolodexes all over town" (New York Times).

Röl-vaag (rōl'væg'), Ole Edvart. 1876-1931. Norwegian-born American writer whose novels, especially the trilogy beginning with Giants in the Earth (1927), concern the Norwegian settlers of the American West.

ro-ly-po-ly (rō'lē-pō'lē) adj. Short and plump; pudgy. — n. pl. ro-ly-po-lies. 1. A short, plump person or thing. 2. Chiefly British. A pudding made of jam or fruit rolled up in pastry dough and baked or steamed until soft. [Alteration and reduplication of ROLL.]

rom also rom. abbr. Printing. Roman.

ROM abbr. Computer Science. Read-only memory.

Rom. abbr. 1. Roman. 2. Romance (languages). 3. Romania. 4. Romanian. 5. Bible. Romans.

Ro-ma-gna (rō-män'yə, rô-mă'nyä) A historical region of north-central Italy. It was the center of Byzantine influence in Italy and later came under papal rule. The region now forms part of Emilia-Romagna.

Ro-ma-ic (rō-mā'ik) n. Modern Greek. [Modern Greek Rhōmaikos, from Greek, Roman, from Rhōmē, Rome, from Latin Rōma.] — Ro-ma'ic adj.

ro-maine (rō-mān') n. A cultivar of lettuce (Lactuca sativa) having a slender head of oblong or obovate leaves with broad midribs. Also called *cos*¹, cos lettuce. [French, from feminine of Romain, Roman, from Old French, from Latin Rōmānus, from Rōma, Rome.]

Ro-mains (rō-mān'), Jules. Pen name of Louis Farigoule. 1885-1972. French writer whose poetry, drama, and fiction, including the novel cycle Men of Good

Will (1932-1946), express the belief that an individual is unimportant unless associated with some group.

ro·man (rō-män') n. 1. A narrative poem or a prose tale in medieval French literature. 2. A novel. [French, from Old French romans, romance. See ROMANCE.]

Ro·man (rō'mən) adj. 1. Abbr. Rom. a. Of or relating to ancient or modern Rome or its people or culture. b. Of or relating to the Roman Empire. 2. Abbr. Rom. a. Of, relating to, or composed in the Latin language. b. Of or using the Latin alphabet. 3. Abbr. Rom. Of or relating to the Roman Catholic Church. 4. Abbr. Rom. Of or being an architectural style developed by the ancient Romans and characterized by the round arch as chief structural element, the vault, concrete masonry construction, and classical ornamentation. 5. roman. Abbr. rom, rom. Of or being a typestyle characterized by upright letters having serifs and vertical lines thicker than horizontal lines. — n. 1. Abbr. Rom. A native, inhabitant, or citizen of ancient or modern Rome. 2. Abbr. Rom. The Italian language as spoken in Rome. 3. Abbr. Rom. One belonging to the Roman Catholic Church. 4. roman. Abbr. rom, rom. Roman print or typestyle. 5. Romans. (used with a sing. verb.) Abbr. Rom., Rm. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Middle English, from Old English Rōmān, or from Old French romain both from Latin Rōmānus, from Rōma, Rome.]

ro·man à clef (rō-män' ä klā') n. pl. ro·mans à clef (rōmän' zä klā'). A novel in which actual persons, places, or events are depicted in fictional guise. [French : roman, novel + à, with + clef, key.]

Roman alphabet (rō-män' älfə-bět') n. See Latin alphabet.

Roman calendar (rō-män' käl'an-dər) n. The lunar calendar used by the ancient Romans until the introduction of the Julian calendar in 46 B.C.

Roman candle (rō-män' kăn'dl) n. A cylindrical firework that emits balls of fire and a shower of sparks.

Roman Catholic (rō-män' kăth'ə-lĭk) adj. Abbr. RC Of, relating to, or being the Roman Catholic Church. — n. A member of the Roman Catholic Church.

Roman Catholic Church (rō-män' kăth'ə-lĭk chûrch) n. Abbr. R.C.Ch. The Christian church characterized by an episcopal hierarchy with the pope as its head and belief in seven sacraments and the authority of tradition.

Roman Catholicism (rō-män' kə-thöl'ĭ-sĭz'əm) n. The doctrines, practices, and organization of the Roman Catholic Church.

ro·mance (rō-măns', rō'măns') n. 1. a. A love affair. b. Ardent emotional attachment or involvement between people, especially that characterized by a high level of purity and devotion; love: They kept the romance alive in their marriage for 35 years. c. A strong, sometimes short-lived attachment, fascination, or enthusiasm for something: a childhood romance with the sea. 2. A mysterious or fascinating quality or appeal, as of something adventurous, heroic, or strangely beautiful: "These fine old guns often have a romance clinging to them" (Richard Jeffries). 3. a. A long medieval narrative in prose or verse that tells of the adventures and heroic exploits of chivalric heroes: an Arthurian romance. b. A long, fictitious tale of heroes and extraordinary or mysterious events. c. The class of literature constituted by such tales. 4. a. An artistic work, such as a novel, story, or film, that deals with sexual love, especially in an idealized form. b. The class or style of such works. 5. A fictitiously embellished account or explanation: We have been given speculation and romance instead of the facts. 6. Music. A lyrical, tender, usually sentimental song or short instrumental piece. 7. Romance. The Romance languages. — adj. also Romance Abbr. Rom. Of, relating to, or being any of the languages that developed from Latin, the principal ones being Italian, French, Portuguese, Romanian, and Spanish. Other such languages are Catalan, Provençal, Rhaeto-Romanic, Sardinian, and Ladino. — v.

ro-manced, ro-manc-ing, ro-manc-es (rō-māns'). — v. intr. 1. To invent, write, or tell romances. 2. To think or behave in a romantic manner. — v. tr. Informal. 1. To make love to; court or woo. 2. To have a love affair with. [Middle English, from Old French romans, romance, work written in French, from Vulgar Latin rōmānicē* (scrībere), (to write) in the vernacular, from Latin Rōmānicus, Roman, from Rōmānus. See ROMAN.] — ro-manc'er n.

Roman congregation (rō-māN' kōng'grī-gā'shən) n. Roman Catholic Church. Any department of the Curia dealing with rites, legal and administrative problems, questions of faith and morals, and other ecclesiastical matters.

Roman Empire (rō-māN' ěm'pīr') Also called Rome (rōm). An empire that succeeded the Roman Republic during the time of Augustus, who ruled from 27 B.C. to A.D. 14. At its greatest extent it encompassed territories stretching from Britain and Germany to North Africa and the Persian Gulf. After 395 it was split into the Byzantine Empire and the Western Roman Empire, which rapidly sank into anarchy under the onslaught of barbarian invaders from the north and east. The last emperor of the West, Romulus Augustulus (born c. 461), was deposed by Goths in 476, the traditional date for the end of the empire.

Ro-man-esque (rō'mə-nĕsk') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a style of European architecture containing both Roman and Byzantine elements, prevalent especially in the 11th and 12th centuries and characterized by thick walls, barrel vaults, and relatively unrefined ornamentation. 2. Of, relating to, or being corresponding styles in painting and sculpture. — n. A Romanesque style of architecture, painting, or sculpture.

ro-man-fleuve (rō-māN'flœv') n. pl. ro-mans-fleuves (rō-māN'flœv'). A long novel, often in many volumes, chronicling the history of several generations of a family, community, or other group and often presenting an overall view of society during a particular epoch. Also called saga novel [French : roman, novel + fleuve, river.]

Roman holiday (rō-māN' hōl'ī-dā') n. 1. Enjoyment or satisfaction derived from observing the suffering of others. 2. A violent public spectacle or disturbance in which shame, degradation, or physical harm is intentionally inflicted on one person or group by another. [From the bloody gladiatorial contests staged as entertainment for the ancient Romans.]

Ro·ma·ni·a (rō-mā'nē-ə, -mān'yə) or Ru·ma·ni·a (rō-) Abbr. Rom. A country of southeast Europe with a short coastline on the Black Sea. Originally a Roman province, the area was united in 1861 and became independent in 1878. Bucharest is the capital and the largest city. Population, 22,533,074.

Ro·ma·ni·an (rō-mā'nē-ən, -mān'yən) also Ru·ma·ni·an (rō-) adj. Abbr. Rom. Of or relating to Romania or its people, language, or culture. — n. Abbr. Rom. 1. A native or inhabitant of Romania. 2. The Romance language of the Romanians.

Ro·man·ic (rō-mān'ik) adj. 1. Of or derived from the ancient Romans. 2. Of or relating to the Romance languages. — Ro·man·ic n.

Ro·man·ism (rō'mə-nīz'əm) n. Offensive. Roman Catholicism.

Ro·man·ist (rō'mə-nīst) n. 1. Offensive. One who professes Roman Catholicism. 2. A student of or authority on ancient Roman law, culture, and institutions.

Ro·man·ize (rō'mə-nīz') v. tr. Ro·man·ized, Ro·man·iz·ing, Ro·man·iz·es. 1. To convert (a person) to Roman Catholicism. 2. To make Roman in character, allegiance, or style. 3. Often romanize. To write or transliterate in the Latin alphabet. — Ro'man·i·za'tion (-mə-nī-zā'shən) n.

Roman law (rō-mān' lô) n. The legal system of ancient Rome which serves as the basis for modern civil law.

Roman nose (rō-mān' nōz) n. A nose with a high, prominent bridge.

Roman numeral (rō-mān' nō' mər-əl) n. Any of the numerals formed with the characters I, V, X, L, C, D, and M in the ancient system of numeration.

Ro·ma·no (rə-mā'nō, rō-) n. A hard, sharp, dry cheese of Italian origin that is made from cow's milk and usually served grated as a garnish. [Italian, short for (pecorino) romano, Roman (sheep's milk cheese), from Latin Rōmānus.]

Ro·ma·no (rō-mā'nō), Giulio. See Giulio Romano.

Ro·ma·nov also Ro·ma·noff (rō'mə-nōf', rō-mā'nəf, rə-) Russian ruling dynasty (1613-1917) that began with the accession of Czar Michael (1596-1645; ruled 1613-1645) and ended with the abdication of Nicholas II during the Russian Revolution.

Ro·mansh also Ro·mansh (rō-mānsh', -mānsh') n. The Rhaeto-Romance dialect that is an official language of Switzerland. Also called Ladin [Romansch Romonsch, from Latin Rōmānicus, Roman. See ROMANCE.]

ro·man·tic (rō-mān'tik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of romance. 2. Given to thoughts or feelings of romance. See Synonyms at sentimental.

3. Displaying, expressive of, or conducive to love: a romantic atmosphere.

4. Imaginative but impractical; visionary: romantic notions. 5. Not based on fact; imaginary or fictitious: His memoirs were criticized as offering a fascinating but thoroughly romantic view of the past. 6. Often Romantic. Of or characteristic of romanticism in the arts. — n. 1. A romantic person. 2. Often Romantic. A follower or adherent of romanticism. [French romantique, from obsolete romant, romance, from Old French romans, romant-, romance. See ROMANCE.]

—ro·man'ti-cal-ly adv.

ro·man·ti·cism (rō-măn'tī-sīz'əm) n. 1. Often Romanticism. An artistic and intellectual movement originating in Europe in the late 18th century and characterized by a heightened interest in nature, emphasis on the individual's expression of emotion and imagination, departure from the attitudes and forms of classicism, and rebellion against established social rules and conventions.

2. Romantic quality or spirit in thought, expression, or action.

—ro·man'ti-cist n.

ro·man·ti·cize (rō-măn'tī-sīz') v. ro·man·ti·cized, ro·man·ti·ciz-ing, ro·man·ti·ciz-es. — v. tr. To view or interpret romantically; make romantic.

— v. intr. To think in a romantic way. —ro·man'ti-ci-za'tion (-sī-zā'shən) n.

Rom·a·ny (rōm'ə-nē, rō'mə-) n. pl. Ro·ma·nies. 1. A Gypsy. 2. The Indic language of the Gypsies. Also called Gypsy — adj. Of or relating to the Gypsies or their language or culture. [Romany romani, feminine of romano, gypsy, from rom, man, from Prakrit ḍoma, man of a low caste, of Dravidian origin.]

ro·maunt (rō-mōnt' -mōnt') n. Archaic. A verse romance. [Middle English, from Old French romans, romant-, romance. See ROMANCE.]

Rom·bau·er (rōm'bou'ər), Irma von Starkloff. 1877-1962. American cookery expert who wrote The Joy of Cooking (1931) and several of its revisions.

Rom·berg (rōm'bərg), Sigmund. 1887-1951. Hungarian-born American composer of operettas, including Blossom Time (1921) and The Student Prince (1924).

Rom·blon Islands (rōm-blōn' ī'ləndz) An island group of the central Philippines in the Sibuyan Sea. Part of the Visayan Islands, the group comprises 3 large islands, including Romblon Island, and about 30 smaller islands. They were visited by the Spanish at least as early as 1582.

Rome (rōm) 1. The capital and largest city of Italy, in the west-central part of the country on the Tiber River. Traditionally founded by Romulus and Remus, it was ruled first by Etruscans, who were overthrown c. 500 B.C. The Roman Republic gradually extended its territory and expanded its influence, giving way to the Roman Empire during the reign of Augustus (27 B.C.-A.D. 14). As capital of the empire, Rome was considered the center of the known world, but the city declined when Constantine transferred his capital to Byzantium (323). Alaric I conquered the city in 410, leading to a lengthy period of devastation by barbarian tribes. In the Middle Ages the city revived as the spiritual and temporal power of the papacy increased. During the 1800's Rome was held at various times by the French until it became the capital of Italy in 1871. Vatican City remains an independent enclave within the confines of Rome. Population, 2,830,569. 2. A city of northwest Georgia northwest of Atlanta. It was established in 1834 on the site of a Cherokee settlement. Population, 30,326. 3. A city of central New York on the Mohawk River west-northwest of Utica. Because of its location as a portage point, the city was strategically important during the French and Indian Wars and the American Revolution. Population, 44,350. 4. See Roman Empire.

Ro·me·o (rō'mē-ō') n. pl. Ro·me·os. A man who is devoted to lovemaking or the pursuit of love. [After Romeo, the hero of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.]

Ro·me·o·ville (rō'mē-ō-vīl') A village of northeast Illinois north of Joliet. It is a processing center. Population, 15,519.

Rom·ish (rō'mīsh) adj. Offensive. Of or relating to the Roman Catholic Church. —Rom'ish·ly adv. —Rom'ish·ness n.

Rom·mel (rōm'əl), Erwin. Known as "the Desert Fox." 1891-1944. German general active in France, Italy, and northern Africa during World War II. After his implication in the July Plot (1944) to assassinate Hitler, he committed suicide.

Rom·ney (rōm'nē), George. 1734-1802. British painter of portraits and historical scenes, such as Death of General Wolfe (1763).

romp (rōmp) v. intr. romped, romp·ing, romps. 1. To play or frolic boisterously. 2. To run or advance in a rapid or easy manner. 3. Slang. To win a race or game easily. — n. 1. a. Lively, merry play; frolic. b. Lively or frolicsome play that encompasses lovemaking. 2. One, especially a girl, that sports and frolics. 3. A rapid or easy pace. 4. Slang. An easy win. [Alteration of RAMP².]

romp·er (rōm'pər) n. 1. One that romps. 2. rompers. A loosely fitted, one-piece garment having short bloomers that is worn especially by small children for play.

Ro·mu·lo (rōm'yōō-lō', rō'mōō-lō'), Carlos Pena. 1899-1985. Philippine journalist and diplomat who supported the Allies during the Japanese invasion and occupation of the Philippines (1941-1945) and was later president of the United Nations General Assembly (1949-1950).

Rom·u·lus¹ (rōm'yə-ləs) n. Roman Mythology. The son of Mars and eponymous founder of Rome who, with his twin brother, Remus, was reared and suckled by a wolf.

Rom·u·lus² (rōm'yə-ləs) A city of southeast Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. Population, 22,897.

Ron·ces·valles (rōn'sə-välz', rōn'thēs-väl'yēs) A mountain pass, 1,057.7 m (3,468 ft) high, through the western Pyrenees in northern Spain. It is the traditional site of the death of the hero Roland during the defeat of Charlemagne's army by the Saracens (778).

ron-deau (rɔ̃n'dō, rɔ̃n-dō') n. pl. ron-deaux (-dōz, -dōz'). 1. A lyrical poem of French origin having 13 or sometimes 10 lines with two rhymes throughout and with the opening phrase repeated twice as a refrain. 2. Music. A medieval French song, either monophonic, as in the songs of the trouvères, or polyphonic in construction. [French, alteration of Old French rondel. See RONDEL.]

ron-del (rɔ̃n'dəl, rɔ̃n-dəl') n. 1. A poem similar to a rondeau, having 13 or 14 lines with two rhymes throughout. The first and second lines reappear in the middle and at the end, although sometimes only the first line appears at the end. 2. Often ron-delle (rɔ̃n-dəl'). A rounded or circular object. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of ronde, circle, round. See ROUND¹.]

ron-de-let (rɔ̃n'dl-ët', -dl-ā') n. A poem similar to a rondeau, usually having seven lines and always two rhymes, with the first line containing four syllables repeated as lines three and seven and the other lines containing eight syllables. [French, from Old French, diminutive of rondel, rondel. See RONDEL.]

ron-delle (rɔ̃n-dəl') n. Variant of rondel (n., sense 2).

ron-do (rɔ̃n'dō, rɔ̃n-dō') n. pl. ron-dos. Music. A composition having a principal theme that occurs at least three times in its original key between contrasting subordinate themes. [Italian rondò, from French rondeau, rondeau. See RON-DEAU.]

ron-dure (rɔ̃n'jər, -dyōōr') n. A circular or gracefully rounded object. [French rondeur, roundness, from Old French, from ronde, round. See ROUND¹.]

Ron-kon-ko-ma (rɔ̃ŋ-kɔ̃ŋ'kə-mə, rɔ̃n-kɔ̃n'-) A town of southeast New York on central Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 20,391.

Ron-ne Ice Shelf (rɔ̃'nə īs shelf, rɔ̃n'ə) An area of shelf ice in western Antarctica south of the Weddell Sea.

ron-nel (rɔ̃n'əl) n. A solid, light brown compound, C₈H₈Cl₃O₃PS, used as an insecticide, especially against flies and cockroaches. [From Rommel, a non-U.S. trademark.]

Ron-sard (rɔ̃n-sär'), Pierre de. 1524-1585. French poet whose lyrical love poems, including Sonnets pour Hélène (1578), are considered his best works.

rönt-gen (rɛnt'gən, -jən, rünt'-) n. Variant of roentgen.

Rönt-gen (rɔ̃ent'gən), Wilhelm Konrad. See Wilhelm Konrad Roentgen.

rood (rōd) n. 1. a. A crucifix symbolizing the cross on which Jesus was crucified. b. A large crucifix or the representation of one over the altar screen of a medieval church. 2. Abbr. ro. Chiefly British. A measure of length that varies from 52 to 8 yards (5.0 to 7.3 meters). 3. Abbr. ro. A measure of land equal to 4 acre, or 40 square rods (0.10 hectare). [Middle English, from Old English rōd.]

rood screen (rōd skrēn) n. An ornamented altar screen surmounted by a crucifix that separates the choir of a church from the nave.

roof (rōf, rōf) n. 1. a. The exterior surface and its supporting structures on the top of a building. b. The upper exterior surface of a dwelling as a symbol of the home itself: three generations living under one roof. 2. The top covering of something: the roof of a car. 3. The upper surface of an anatomical structure, especially one having a vaulted inner structure: the roof of the mouth. 4. The highest point or limit; the summit or ceiling: A roof on prices is needed to keep our customers happy. — v. tr. roofed, roof-ing, roofs. To furnish or cover with or as if with a roof. — idioms. go through the roof. Slang. 1. To grow, intensify, or rise to an enormous, often unexpected degree: Operating costs went through the roof last year. 2. To become extremely angry: When I told her about breaking the window, she went through the roof. raise the roof. Slang. 3. To be extremely noisy and boisterous: The participants plan to dance, drink, and generally raise the roof at tonight's party. 4. To complain loudly and bitterly: Angry tenants finally raised the roof about their noisy neighbors. [Middle English, from Old English hrōf.]

roof-er (rōō'fær, rōōf'ær) n. One who lays or repairs roofs.

roof garden (rōōf gār'dn) n. 1. A garden on the roof of a building, especially one found in an urban setting. 2. The roof or top floor of a building designed for use by the public that often contains outdoor seating or dining facilities.

roof-ing (rōō'fing, rōōf'ing) n. 1. Materials used in building a roof. 2. A roof.

roof-less (rōōf'līs, rōōf'-) adj. 1. Lacking a roof. 2. Having no home or shelter; homeless or destitute.

roof-line (rōōf'līn', rōōf'-) n. The profile of or silhouette made by a roof or series of roofs.

roof-top (rōōf'tōp', rōōf'-) n. The outer surface of a roof. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: rooftop gardens; rooftop tiles.

roof-tree (rōōf'trē', rōōf'-) n. 1. The ridgepole of a roof. 2. A roof.

rook¹ (rōōk) n. 1. An Old World bird (Corvus frugilegus) that resembles the North American crow and nests in colonies near the tops of trees. 2. A swindler or cheat, especially at games. — v. tr. rooked, rook-ing, rooks. To swindle; cheat: Customers are afraid of being rooked by unscrupulous vendors. [Middle English rok, from Old English hrōc.]

rook² (rōōk) n. Abbr. R Games. A chess piece that may move in a straight line over any number of empty squares in a rank or file. Also called castle [Middle English rok, from Old French roc, from Arabic ruhḥ, from Persian.]

rook-er-y (rōōk'ə-rē) n. pl. rook-er-ies. 1. a. A place where rooks nest or breed. b. A colony of rooks. 2. The breeding ground of certain other birds or animals, such as penguins and seals. 3. A crowded and dilapidated tenement.

rook-ie (rōōk'ē) n. 1. Slang. a. An untrained or inexperienced recruit, as in the army or police. b. An inexperienced person; a novice. 2. Sports. A first-year player, especially in a professional sport. [Perhaps alteration of RECRUIT.]

rook-y (rōōk'ē) adj. Of, characteristic of, or abounding in rooks.

room (rōom, rōom) n. Abbr. rm. 1. A space that is or may be occupied: That easy chair takes up too much room. 2. a. An area separated by walls or partitions from other similar parts of the structure or building in which it is located: the first room on the left; an unpainted room. b. The people present in such an area: The whole room laughed. 3. rooms. Living quarters; lodgings. 4. Suitable opportunity; occasion. — v. intr. roomed, room-ing, rooms. To occupy a room; lodge. [Middle English roum, from Old English rūm. See reuə- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: room, elbowroom, latitude, leeway, margin, play, scope. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “adequate space or opportunity for freedom of movement or action”: room for improvement; needed elbowroom to negotiate effectively; no latitude allowed in conduct or speech; allowed the chef leeway in choosing the menu; no margin for error; imagination given full play; permitting their talents free scope.

room and board (rōom ənd bōrd) n. Lodging and meals earned, purchased for a set fee, or otherwise provided.

room-er (rōō'mər, rōom'ər) n. One who rents a room or rooms in which to live; a lodger.

room-ette (rōō-mět', rōom-ět') n. A small private compartment in a railroad sleeping car.

room-ful (rōom'fōol', rōom'-) n. pl. room-fuls. 1. a. The amount that a room can hold: a roomful of furniture. b. The number of people that a room can hold: a roomful of guests. 2. The number of people in a room, considered as a group: The whole roomful gasped when he entered, wearing a bizarre costume.

room-ing house (rōō'ming hous, rōom'ing) n. A house where lodgers may rent rooms.

room-mate (rōom'māt', rōom'-) n. A person with whom one shares a room or rooms.

room temperature (rōom tēm'pər-ə-chōōr') n. Abbr. R.T. An indoor temperature of from 20 to 25°C (68 to 77°F).

room-y (rōō'mē, rōom'ē) adj. room-i-er, room-i-est. Having plenty of room; spacious. See Synonyms at spacious. —room'i-ly adv. —room'i-ness n.

roor-back (rōōr'bāk') n. A false or slanderous story used for political advantage. [After Baron von Roorback, imaginary author of Roorback's Tour Through the Western and Southern States, from which a passage was purportedly quoted in an attempt to disparage presidential candidate James K. Polk in 1844.]

Roo-sen-daal (rō'sən-dāl') A city of southwest Netherlands near the Belgian border south of Rotterdam. Founded in 1268, it is a transportation and industrial center. Population, 56,519.

Roo-se·velt (rō'zə-vĕlt', rōz'vēlt', -vəlt, rōō'-) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on western Long Island southeast of Hempstead. It is primarily residential. Population, 15,000.

Roo-se·velt (rō'zə-vĕlt', rōz'vēlt', -vəlt, rōō'-), (Anna) Eleanor. 1884-1962. American diplomat, writer, and First Lady of the United States (1933-1945) as the wife of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. A delegate to the United Nations (1945-1952 and 1961-1962), she was an outspoken advocate of human rights. Her written works include This I Remember (1949).

Roo-se·velt (rō'zə-vĕlt', rōz'vēlt', -vəlt, rōō'-), Edith Carow. 1861-1948. First Lady of the United States (1901-1909) as the wife of President Theodore Roosevelt. Known as a shrewd manager of the White House, she oversaw a major renovation (1902) and delegated many of the responsibilities traditionally belonging to the First Lady.

Roo-se·velt (rō'zə-vĕlt', rōz'vēlt', -vəlt, rōō'-), Franklin Delano. 1882-1945. The 32nd President of the United States (1933-1945). Governor of New York (1929-1932), he ran for President with the promise of a New Deal for the American people. His administration was marked by relief programs, measures to increase employment and assist industrial and agricultural recovery from the Depression, and World War II. He was the only U.S. President to be reelected three times (1936, 1940, and 1944). He died in office.

Roosevelt, Rio. A river, about 644 km (400 mi) long, of northwestern Brazil. Originally known as the River of Doubt, it was renamed in honor of Theodore Roosevelt, who explored it in 1913.

Roo-se·velt (rō'zə-vĕlt', rōz'vēlt', -vəlt, rōō'-), Theodore. 1858-1919. The 26th President of the United States (1901-1909). A hero of the Spanish-American War, he served as governor of New York (1899-1900) and U.S. Vice President (1901) under William McKinley. On McKinley's assassination (September 1901), he assumed the presidency. Roosevelt's administration was marked by the regulation of trusts, the building of the Panama Canal, and a foreign policy based on the motto "Speak softly and carry a big stick." He won the 1906 Nobel Peace Prize for his mediation in the Russo-Japanese War.

Roosevelt Island (rō'zə-vĕlt' ī'lənd) 1. or Formerly Wel·fare Island (wĕl'fâr') An island in the East River off the coast of central Manhattan Island. It has long been the site of a municipal hospital and penal institution but is also being developed as a residential area. 2. An island of Antarctica in the eastern part of the Ross Ice Shelf. Robert E. Byrd discovered the ice-covered island in 1934.

roost (rōōst) n. 1. A perch on which domestic fowl or other birds rest or sleep. 2. A place with perches for fowl or other birds. 3. A place for temporary rest or sleep. — v. intr. roost-ed, roost-ing, roosts. To rest or sleep on or as if on a perch or roost. — idioms. come home to roost. To have repercussions or aftereffects, especially unfavorable ones: The consequences of her misdeeds eventu- ally came home to roost. rule the roost. Informal. To be in charge; dominate: In this house grandfather rules the roost. [Middle English rooste, from Old English hrōst.]

roost-er (rōō'stər) n. 1. a. An adult male chicken. b. An adult male of other birds. 2. A person regarded as cocky or pugnacious.

roost-er-fish (rōō'stər-fīsh') n. pl. roosterfish or roost-er-fish-es. A brightly colored food and game fish (Nematistius pectoralis) found from the Gulf of California to Panama.

root¹ (rōōt, rōōt) n. 1. The usually underground portion of a plant that lacks buds, leaves, or nodes and serves as support, draws minerals and water from the surrounding soil, and sometimes stores food. 2. Any of various other underground plant parts, especially an underground stem such as a rhizome, corm, or tuber. 3. a. The embedded part of an organ or structure such as a hair, tooth, or nerve, that serves as a base or support. b. A base or support: We snipped the wires at the roots. 4. An essential part or element; the basic core: I finally got to the root of the problem. 5. A primary source; an origin. See Synonyms at origin. 6. A progenitor or an ancestor from which a person or family is descended. 7. a. Often roots. The condition of being settled and of belonging to a particular place or society: Our roots in this town go back a long way. b. roots. The state of having or establishing an indigenous relationship with or a personal affinity for a particular culture, society, or environment: music with unmistakable African roots. 8. Linguistics. a. The element that carries the main component of meaning in a word and provides the basis from which a word is derived by adding affixes or inflectional endings or by phonetic change. b. Such an element reconstructed for a protolanguage. Also called radical 9. Mathematics. a. A number that when multiplied by itself an indicated number of times forms a product equal to a specified number. For example, a fourth root of 4 is 2. Also called nth root b. A number that reduces a polynomial equation in one variable to an identity when it is substituted for the variable. 10. Music. a. The note from which a chord is built. b. A triad or other chord that has such a note lowermost. — v. root-ed, root-ing, roots. — v. intr. 1. To grow roots or a root. 2. To become firmly established, settled, or entrenched. 3. To come into existence; originate. — v. tr. 1. To cause to put out roots and grow. 2. To implant by or as if by the roots. 3. To furnish a primary source or origin to. 4. To remove by or as if by the roots. Often used with up or out: “declared that waste and fraud will be vigorously rooted out of Government” (New York Times). — idiom. root and branch. Utterly; completely: The organization has been transformed root and branch by its new leaders. [Middle English rot, from Old English rōt, from Old Norse. See wrād- in Appendix.] — root'er n.

root² (rōōt, rōōt) v. root-ed, root-ing, roots. — v. tr. To dig with or as if with the snout or nose. — v. intr. 1. To dig in the earth with or as if with the snout or nose. 2. To rummage for something. [Middle English wroten, from Old English wrōtan.] —root'er n.

root³ (rōōt, rōōt) v. intr. root-ed, root-ing, roots. 1. To give audible encouragement or applause to a contestant or team; cheer. See Synonyms at applaud. 2. To lend support to someone or something. [Possibly alteration of ROUT³.] —root'er n.

Root (rōōt), Elihu. 1845-1937. American lawyer and public official who served as U.S. secretary of war (1899-1904), secretary of state (1905-1909), and senator from New York (1909-1915). He won the 1912 Nobel Peace Prize.

Root (rōōt), John Wellborn. 1850-1891. American architect whose designs include the Monadnock Building (1889-1891) in Chicago, which employed steel framing instead of traditional solid-wall construction.

root-age (rōō'tij, rōōt'ij) n. 1. A system or growth of roots. 2. Establishment by or as if by roots.

root beer (rōōt bîr) n. A carbonated soft drink made from extracts of certain plant roots and herbs.

root canal (rōōt kə-nāl') n. 1. A pulp-filled channel in a root of a tooth. 2. A treatment in which diseased tissue from this part of the tooth is removed and the resulting cavity is filled with an inert material.

root cap (rōōt kăp) n. Botany. A thimble-shaped mass of cells that covers and protects the root tip.

root cellar (rōōt sĕl'ər) n. An underground pit or cellar, usually covered with earth, used for the storage of root crops and other vegetables.

root climber (rōōt klî'mər) n. A vine, such as the ivy, that clings to its support by means of adventitious roots.

root crop (rōōt kröp) n. A crop, as of turnips or yams, grown for its edible roots.

root-ed-ness (rōō'tid-nĭs, rōōt'id-) n. The quality or state of having roots, especially of being firmly established, settled, or entrenched: "stories that give... a sense of rootedness and place" (Pat Conroy).

root hair (rōōt hâr) n. Botany. A thin, hairlike outgrowth of an epidermal cell of a plant root that absorbs water and minerals from the soil.

root-hold (rōōt'höld', rōōt'-) n. Support or stabilization of a plant in the soil through the spreading of its roots.

root knot (rōōt nŏt) n. A disease of plants characterized by protuberant enlargements on the roots caused by a nematode.

root-less (rōōt'lĭs, rōōt'-) adj. 1. Having no roots. 2. Not belonging to a particular place or society: rootless refugees in a strange country. —root'less-ness n.

root-let (rōōt'lĭt, rōōt'-) n. A small root or division of a root.

root mean square (rōōt mēn skwâr) n. Abbr. rms Statistics. The square root of the average of the squares of a set of numbers.

root pressure (rōōt prēsh'ər) n. Pressure exerted in the roots of plants as the result of osmosis, causing exudation from cut stems and guttation of water from leaves.

root-stalk (rōōt'stôk', rōōt'-) n. See rhizome.

root-stock (rōōt'stök', rōōt'-) n. 1. See rhizome. 2. A root or part of a root used as a stock for plant propagation. 3. A source or origin.

root system (rōōt sīs'təm) n. All the roots of a plant.

root-worm (rōōt'wûrm', rōōt'-) n. Any of several beetles of the genus Diabrotica, the larvae of which feed on the roots of various crop plants, especially corn.

root-y (rōō'tē, rōōt'ē) adj. root-i-er, root-i-est. 1. Full or consisting of roots: a rooty patch of soil. 2. Suggestive of or resembling roots. —root/i-ness n.

rope (rōp) n. 1. A flexible, heavy cord of tightly intertwined hemp or other fiber. 2. A string of items attached in one line by or as if by twisting or braiding: a rope of onions. 3. A sticky glutinous formation of stringy matter in a liquid. 4. a. A cord with a noose at one end for hanging a person. b. Execution or death by hanging: to die by the rope. 5. A lasso or lariat. 6. ropes. Sports. Several cords strung between poles to enclose a boxing or wrestling ring. 7. ropes. Informal. Specialized procedures or details: learn the ropes; know the ropes. — v.

roped, rop-ing, ropes. — v. tr. 1. To tie or fasten with or as if with rope. 2. To enclose, separate, or partition with or as if with a rope: rope off the scene of the crime. 3. To catch with a rope or lasso. 4. Informal. To trick or deceive: An unscrupulous salesperson roped us into buying worthless property. — v. intr. To become like a cord or rope. —idioms. on the ropes. 1. Sports. Knocked against the ropes that enclose a boxing ring. 2. On the verge of defeat or collapse; hopeless or powerless. the end of (one's) rope. The limit of one's patience, endurance, or resources: After six months on strike, the workers were at the end of their rope. [Middle English, from Old English rāp.] —rop'er n.

rope tow (rōp tō) n. A continuous rope conveyor used to pull skiers up a slope; a ski tow.

rope-walk (rōp'wōk') n. 1. A long alley or covered pathway where strands of material, such as hemp fiber, are laid and twisted into rope. 2. A long narrow building containing such a pathway.

rop-y also rop-ey (rō'pē) adj. rop-i-er, rop-i-est. 1. Resembling a rope or ropes. 2. Forming sticky glutinous strings or threads, as some liquids.

—rop/i-ly adv. —rop/i-ness n.

roque (rōk) n. Sports. A variation of croquet played with short-handled mallets on a hard court that is bounded by a concrete wall against which a ball may rebound and be retrieved. [Alteration of ROQUET.]

Roque-fort (rōk'fərt) A trademark used for a cheese that is made from ewes' milk and ripened in caves.

ro-que-laure (rō'kə-lōr', -lōr', rōk'ə-) n. A knee-length cloak lined with brightly colored silk and often trimmed with fur that was worn by European men in the 18th century. [After Antoine Gaston Jean Baptiste, Duc de Roquelaure (1656-1738), French marshal.]

ro-quet (rō-kā') v. tr. ro-queted (-kād'), ro-quet-ing (-kā'ing), ro-quets (-kāz'). Sports. To hit (another player's ball) in croquet. [Alteration of CROQUET.]

roquette (rō-kēt') n. Botany. See rocket² (n., sense 1).

Ro-rem (rōr'əm, rōr'-), Ned. Born 1923. American composer whose works include art songs, such as the cycle War Scenes (1969), and symphonies, including Air Music (1976).

ror-qual (rōr'kwəl) n. Any of several baleen whales of the family Balaenopteridae having longitudinal grooves on the throat and a small, pointed dorsal fin. Also called razorback [French, from Norwegian rørhval, from Old Norse reydharhvalr : reydhr, rorqual (from raudhr, red); see reudh- in Appendix + hvalr, whale.]

Ror-schach test (rōr'shāk' tĕst, -shākH') n. Psychology. A projective test in which a subject's interpretations of ten standard inkblots are analyzed as a measure of emotional and intellectual functioning and integration. [After Hermann Rorschach (1884-1922), Swiss psychiatrist.]

Ro-sa (rō'zə, rō'zä), Monte. A mountain, 4,636.9 m (15,203 ft) high, in the Pennine Alps on the Swiss-Italian border. It is the highest elevation in the range.

Ro-sa (rō'zə, rō'zä), Salvator. 1615-1673. Italian painter noted for his romantic depictions of wild landscapes.

ro-sa-ce-a (rō-zā'shē-ə) n. A chronic dermatitis of the face, especially of the nose and cheeks, characterized by a red or rosy coloration, caused by dilation of capillaries, and the appearance of acnelike pimples. Also called acne rosacea [New Latin (acne) rosācea, rose-colored (acne), from Latin, feminine of rosāceus, made of roses. See ROSACEOUS.]

ro-sa-ceous (rō-zā'shəs) adj. 1. Botany. Of or belonging to the rose family. 2. Resembling the flower of a rose. [From Latin rosāceus, made of roses, from rosa, rose.]

ros-an-i-line also ros-an-i-lin (rō-zăn'ə-līn) n. A brownish-red crystalline organic compound, C₂₀H₂₁N₃O, derived from aniline and used in the manufacture of dyes and in Schiff's reagent. [ROS(E)¹ + ANILINE.]

ro-sar-i-an (rō-zâr'ē-ən) n. A person with expertise or a special interest in the cultivation of roses.

Ro-sa-ri-o (rō-zâr'ē-ō', -sâr'-) A city of east-central Argentina on the Paraná River northwest of Buenos Aires. It grew rapidly as a port after 1870 with the development of the surrounding region. Population, 938,120.

Ro-sar-i-o Strait (rō-zâr'ē-ō strāt) A strait in the San Juan Islands of north-west Washington connecting Admiralty Inlet with the Strait of Georgia.

ro-sa-ry (rō'zə-rē) n. pl. ro-sa-ries. 1. Roman Catholic Church. a. A form of devotion to the Virgin Mary, chiefly consisting of three sets of five decades each of the Hail Mary, each decade preceded by the Lord's Prayer and ending with a doxology. b. One of these sets of decades. c. A string of beads of 5 or 15 decades on which these prayers are counted. 2. Similar beads used by other religious groups. [Middle English, rose garden, from Medieval Latin rosarium, rose garden, rosary, from Latin, rose garden, from neuter of rosarius, of roses, from rosa, rose.]

rosary pea (rō'zə-rē pē) n. A tropical woody vine (Abrus precatorius) widely naturalized in Florida, having scarlet and black poisonous seeds used as beads. Also called crab's eye, Indian licorice.

Ro-sas (rō'säs), Juan Manuel de Duke of Caxias. 1793-1877. Argentine political leader who as governor of Buenos Aires (1829-1831 and 1835-1852) united the provinces of Argentina under a virtual dictatorship.

rose¹ (rōz) n. 1. A member of the rose family. 2. a. Any of numerous shrubs or vines of the genus Rosa, having prickly stems, pinnately compound leaves, and variously colored, often fragrant flowers. b. The flower of any of these plants. c. Any of various similar or related plants. 3. Color. A dark pink to moderate red. 4. An ornament, such as a decorative knot, resembling a rose in form; a rosette. 5. A perforated nozzle for spraying water from a hose or sprinkling can. 6. a. A form of gem cut marked by a flat base and a faceted, hemispheric upper surface. b. A gem, especially a diamond, cut in this manner. 7. A rose window. 8. A compass card or its representation, as on a map. 9. roses. That which is marked by favor, success, or ease of execution: Directing this play has been all roses since the new producer took over. — adj. 1. Color. Of the color rose. 2. Relating to, containing, or used for roses. 3. Scented or flavored with or as if with roses. — idioms. come up roses. To result favorably or successfully: Those were difficult times but now everything's coming up roses. under the rose. Sub rosa. [Middle English, from Old English, from Latin rosa.]

rose² (rōz) v. Past tense of rise.

Rose (rōz), Billy. 1899-1966. American impresario and songwriter who produced Crazy Quilt (1931) and other musical comedies and wrote several popular songs, including "Me and My Shadow."

Rose, Mount. A mountain, 3,287.3 m (10,778 ft) high, of western Nevada. It is in a winter sports area near Reno and Lake Tahoe.

ro-sé (rō-zā') n. A light pink wine made from red grapes from which the skins are removed during fermentation as soon as the desired color has been attained. [French (vin) rosé, pink (wine), from Old French, from rose, rose. See ROSE¹.]

rose acacia (rōz ə-kā'shə) n. A shrub (Robinia hispida) of the southeast United States, having bristly brittle branches and clusters of pale purple or rose flowers.

rose apple (rōz äp'əl) n. 1. A southeast Asian evergreen tree (Syzygium jambos) widely cultivated for its showy flowers and fragrant, cream-yellow, ovoid fruits that are used for jellies and confections. 2. The fruit of this plant.

ro·se·ate (rō'zē-īt, -āt') adj. 1. Rose-colored: the roseate glow of dawn.

2. Cheerful or bright; optimistic: a roseate outlook. [From Latin roseus, rosy, from rosa, rose.] —ro'se-ate·ly adv.

roseate spoonbill (rō'zē-īt spōn'bīl') n. A New World species of spoonbill (Ajaia ajaja) having rosy or pinkish plumage and, in the adult, a bare head.

Ro·seau (rō-zō') The capital of Dominica, in the Windward Islands of the West Indies. It is a port on the southwest coast of the island. Population, 9,348.

rose-bay (rōz'bā') n. 1. Any of several shrubs of the genus Rhododendron, especially R. maximum of the southeast United States, having large glossy leaves and flowers with a rose-pink, bell-shaped corolla with green spots. Also called great laurel. 2. See oleander. 3. Chiefly British. The willow herb.

rose beetle (rōz bēt'l) n. See rose chafer.

Rose·ber·y (rōz'bēr'ē, -bə-rē), Fifth Earl of Title of Archibald Philip Primrose. 1847-1929. British politician who served as prime minister (1894-1895) and supported imperialist policies.

rose-breast-ed grosbeak (rōz'brēs'tīd grōs'bēk') n. A North American bird (Pheucticus ludovicianus), the male of which is black and white with a rose-red patch on the breast.

rose-bud (rōz'būd') n. The bud of a rose.

rose bug (rōz bŭg) n. See rose chafer.

Rose·burg (rōz'bŭrg') A city of southwest Oregon south-southwest of Eugene. Lumbering is its chief industry. Population, 17,032.

rose-bush (rōz'bōōsh') n. A flowering rose shrub.

rose campion (rōz kām'pē-ən) n. A Eurasian plant (Lychnis coronaria) naturalized in northeast North America, having a dense cover of white, woolly down and rose-red flowers. Also called mullein pink.

rose chafer (rōz chā'fər) n. A long-legged gray North American beetle (Macrodactylus subspinosus) that causes damage to the roots, leaves, and blossoms of garden plants, especially roses. Also called rose beetle, rose bug.

rose cold (rōz kōld) n. See rose fever.

rose-col-ored (rōz'kŭl'ərd) adj. 1. Color. Having the color rose. 2. Cheerful or optimistic, especially to an excessive degree: took a rose-colored view of the situation. —idiom. through rose-colored glasses. With an unduly cheerful, optimistic, or favorable view of things: see the world through rose-colored glasses.

Rose·crans (rōz'kränz'), William Starke. 1819-1898. American Union general. After successful campaigns in West Virginia and Mississippi, he was defeated at Chickamauga, Georgia (1863), and relieved of his duties.

Rose·dale (rōz'dāl') A community of north-central Maryland, a suburb of Baltimore. Population, 18,703.

rose family (rōz fām'ə-lē) n. A large family of plants, the Rosaceae, characterized by showy flowers with five separated petals and numerous stamens borne on the margin of a cuplike structure, including important fruit plants such as the apple, cherry, peach, pear, plum, raspberry, and strawberry, as well as ornamentals such as the rose and spirea.

rose fever (rōz fē'vər) n. A spring or early summer hay fever. Also called rose cold rose·fish (rōz'fish') n. pl. rosefish or rose·fish-es. A bright red marine food fish (Sebastes marinus) of North Atlantic waters. Also called ocean perch rose geranium (rōz jə-rā'nē-əm) n. A woody plant (Pelargonium graveolens) having rose-pink flowers and fragrant, deeply palmately lobed leaves used for flavoring and in perfumery.

rose hip or rose·hip (rōz'hīp') n. The aggregate fruit of the rose plant, consisting of several dry fruitlets enclosed by the enlarged, fleshy, usually red, flavorful floral cup that is used for jelly or tea.

ro·selle (rō-zěl') n. A tropical African plant (Hibiscus sabdariffa) having flowers with yellow petals and a persistent, bright red calyx that has a pleasantly acid flavor and is used to make jelly and beverages. [Origin unknown.]

Ro·selle (rō-zěl') 1. A city of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 20,819. 2. A borough of northeast New Jersey, a residential suburb in the Newark-Elizabeth area. Thomas A. Edison had a laboratory here. Population, 20,314.

rose mallow (rōz māl'ō) n. A tall marsh plant (Hibiscus moscheutos) of eastern North America, having leaves covered with whitish down and flowers with white, pink, or rose petals with crimson bases.

rose·mar·y (rōz'mâr'ē) n. pl. rose·mar·ies. An aromatic evergreen Mediterranean shrub (Rosmarinus officinalis) having light blue or pink flowers and grayish-green leaves that are used in cooking and perfumery. [Alteration of Middle English rosmarine, from Latin rōs marīnus, sea dew : rōs, dew + marīnus, of the sea; see MARINE.]

Rose·mead (rōz'mēd') A city of southern California, a commercial and residential suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 51,638.

rose moss (rōz mōs) n. 1. Any of the various mosses of the genus Rhodobryum, especially R. roseum, characterized by conspicuous terminal leaf rosettes. 2. See portulaca.

Ro·sen·berg (rō'zən-bûrg') A city of southeast Texas on the Brazos River west-southwest of Houston. It was founded in 1883 with the coming of the railroad. Population, 20,183.

Ro·sen·berg (rō'zīn-bûrg', -bërg', -bërk') Alfred. 1893-1946. German political leader who expounded Nazi doctrine in The Myth of the 20th Century (1930). He was executed as a war criminal.

Ro·sen·berg (rō'zīn-bûrg'), Julius. 1918-1953. American spy who with his wife, Ethel (1915-1953), was convicted of helping pass information concerning nuclear weaponry to the Soviets. Despite questions concerning the fairness of their trial and international pleas for clemency, the couple was executed.

Ro·sen·heim (rō'zən-hīm') A city of southeast Germany on the Inn River at the foot of the Alps southeast of Munich. It is an industrial and processing center. Population, 52,112.

rose of heaven (rōz ÷v hëv'ən) n. A glabrous Mediterranean annual plant (Lychnis coeli-rosa) having opposite, linear, or lance-shaped leaves and large, rose-pink flowers.

rose of Jer-i-cho (rōz ÷v jër'ī-kō') n. Either of two desert plants, Anastatica hierochuntica of the mustard family, native to northern Africa and southwest Asia, or Selaginella lepidophylla, a fern ally distributed from Texas and Arizona south to El Salvador. Each plant forms a tight ball when dry and unfolds and grows under moist conditions. Also called resurrection plant rose of Shar·on (rōz ÷v shär'ən, shâr'-) n. 1. A small eastern Asian tree or tall shrub (Hibiscus syriacus) having large reddish, purple, or white flowers and coarsely toothed leaves. Also called althea 2. A shrubby Eurasian evergreen plant (Hypericum calycinum) having oblong leaves and yellow flowers and usually grown as a ground cover. Also called Aaron's beard [After the, Plain of ro·se·o·la (rō-zē'ə-lə, rō'zē-ō'lə) n. A rose-colored skin rash, sometimes occurring with diseases such as measles, syphilis, or scarlet fever. [New Latin, from diminutive of Latin roseus, rosy, from rosa, rose.] —ro·se'·o·lar adj.

Sharon.]

rose periwinkle (rōz pë'r'ī-wīng'kəl) n. See Madagascar periwinkle.

rose pink (rōz pīngk) n. Color. A moderate to dark pink. —rose'·pink' (rōz'pīngk') adj.

rose quartz (rōz kwôrts) n. A pinkish variety of the mineral quartz, used as a gemstone or as an ornamental stone.

rose-root (rōz'rōōt', -rōōt') n. A perennial plant (Sedum rosea) of the Northern Hemisphere, having fleshy leaves and greenish-yellow or purple flowers.

rose slug (rōz slŭg) n. The larva of either of two sawflies (Cladius isomerus or Endelomyia aethiops) that feeds destructively on the leaves of roses.

Ro·set·ta stone (rō-zët'ə stōn) n. A basalt tablet bearing inscriptions in Greek and in Egyptian hieroglyphic and demotic scripts that was discovered in 1799 near Rosetta, a town of northern Egypt in the Nile River delta, and provided the key to the decipherment of Egyptian hieroglyphics.

ro-sette (rō-zět') n. 1. An ornament or a badge made of ribbon or silk that is pleated or gathered to resemble a rose and is used to decorate clothing or is worn in the buttonhole of civilian dress to indicate the possession of certain medals or honors. 2. A roselike marking or formation, such as one of the clusters of spots on a leopard's fur. 3. Architecture. A painted, carved, or sculptured ornament having a circular arrangement of parts radiating out from the center and suggesting the petals of a rose. 4. Botany. A circular cluster of leaves that radiate from a center at or close to the ground, as in the dandelion. 5. An ornamental, circular band surrounding the central hole of an acoustic guitar. [French, from Old French, diminutive of rose, rose. See ROSE¹.]

Rose-ville (rōz'vīl') 1. A city of north-central California northeast of Sacramento in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada. It is a processing center in an agricultural region. Population, 44,685. 2. A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 51,412. 3. A city of southeast Minnesota, an industrial suburb of St. Paul. Population, 33,485.

rose water (rōz wô'tər) n. A fragrant preparation made by steeping or distilling rose petals in water, used in cosmetics, as toilet water, and in cookery.

rose window (rōz wīn'dō) n. A circular window usually of stained glass with radiating tracery suggesting the form of a rose.

rose-wood (rōz'wōd') n. 1. Any of various tropical or semitropical leguminous trees of the genera Tipuana, Pterocarpus, or Dalbergia, having hard reddish or dark wood with a strongly marked grain. 2. The wood of any of these trees, used in cabinetwork.

Rosh Ha-sha-nah also Rosh Ha-sha-na or Rosh Ha-sho-na or Rosh Ha-sho-nah (rōsh' hă-shô'nə, -shă'-, hă-, hă-shă-nă') n. The Jewish New Year, observed on the first day or the first and second days of Tishri and marked by solemnity as well as festivity. [Hebrew rō'sh haššānâ: rō'sh, head, beginning + ha, the + šānâ, year.]

Ro-si-cru-cian (rō'zī-krōō'shən, rōz'ī-) n. 1. A member of an international organization, especially the Ancient Mystic Order Rosae Crucis and the Rosicrucian Order, devoted to the study of ancient mystical, philosophical, and religious doctrines and concerned with the application of these doctrines to modern life. 2. A member of any of several secret organizations or orders of the 17th and 18th centuries concerned with the study of religious mysticism and professing esoteric religious beliefs. — adj. Of or relating to Rosicrucians or their philosophy.

[From New Latin (Frater) Rosae Crucis, (Brother) of the Cross of the Rose, translation of German Rosenkreutz, surname of the traditional founder of the society.]

—Ro'si-cru'cian-ism n.

ros-in (röz'ĭn) n. A translucent yellowish to dark brown resin derived from the stumps or sap of various pine trees and used to increase sliding friction, as on the bows of certain stringed instruments, and to manufacture a wide variety of products including varnishes, inks, linoleum, adhesives, and soldering compounds.

— v. tr. ros-ined, ros-in-ing, ros-ins. To coat or rub with rosin. [Middle English, variant of resin. See RESIN.] — ros'in-y adj.

rosin oil (röz'ĭn oil) n. A white to brown viscous liquid obtained by fractional distillation of rosin and used in lubricants, adhesives, electrical insulation, and printing inks.

ros-in-weed (röz'ĭn-wēd') n. Any of several North American plants of the genera Grindelia or Silphium, especially the compass plant, the cup plant, and the gum plant, having a resinous juice.

Ros-kil-de (rū'skē'lə) A city of eastern Denmark on Sjaelland Island west of Copenhagen. It was the capital of Denmark from the tenth century until 1443. Population, 49,110.

Ross (rôs, rös), Betsy Griscom. 1752-1836. American seamstress who, according to tradition, made the first American flag (June 1776) at the request of George Washington.

Ross (rôs, rös), Harold Wallace. 1892-1951. American publisher who founded and edited (1925-1951) the New Yorker magazine.

Ross (rôs, rös), Sir James Clark. 1800-1862. British polar explorer who located the north magnetic pole (1831). On an Antarctic expedition (1839-1843) he discovered Victoria Land and the Ross Sea.

Ross (rôs, rös), John. Originally Coowescoowe or Kooweskoowe. 1790-1866. Cherokee leader who reluctantly directed the forced removal of the Cherokee from Georgia to the Oklahoma Territory (1838-1839) along a route called the Trail of Tears.

Ross (rôs, rös), Sir John. 1777-1856. British naval officer and Arctic explorer whose expeditions (1818 and 1829-1833) in search of the Northwest Passage yielded several geographic discoveries.

Ross (rôs, rös), Nellie Tayloe. 1876-1977. American politician who was elected (1924) to complete her deceased husband's term as governor of Wyoming (1925-1927), thereby becoming the first woman governor in the United States.

Ross (rôs, rös), Sir Ronald. 1857-1932. British physician. He won a 1902 Nobel Prize for discovering that mosquitoes transmit malaria.

Ros-sel-li-ni (rô'sə-lē'nē, rös'ə-), Roberto. 1906-1977. Italian filmmaker whose works, such as Rome, Open City (1945), employ fictional characters to depict historical events.

Ros-set-ti (rō-zēt'ē), Dante Gabriel. 1828-1882. British poet and painter. A founder (1848) of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, he is known for his portraits and his vividly detailed, mystic poems, including "The Blessed Damozel" (1850).

His sister Christina Georgina Rossetti (1830-1894) wrote lyrical religious works and ballads, such as “Up-Hill” (1861).

Ross Ice Shelf (rôʒ īs shĕlf) A vast area in Antarctica bordering on Ross Sea, an arm of the southern Pacific Ocean. In the western part of the sea is Ross Island, site of the active volcano Mount Erebus.

Ros-si-ni (rō-sĕʹnĕ, rô-), Gioacchino Antonio. 1792-1868. Italian composer whose numerous operas include The Barber of Seville (1816) and William Tell (1829).

Ros-tand (rôʒ-tănʹ), Edmond. 1868-1918. French playwright known for his light, entertaining works, particularly Cyrano de Bergerac (1897).

ros-tel-la (rō-stĕlʹə) n. Biology. Plural of rostellum.

ros-tel-late (rōʒʹtə-lătʹ, rō-stĕlʹĭt) adj. Having a rostellum.

ros-tel-lum (rō-stĕlʹəm) n. pl. ros-tel-la (rō-stĕlʹə). Biology. A small beaklike part, such as a projection on the stigma of an orchid, a tubular mouthpart on some insects, or the hooked projection on the head of a tapeworm. [Latin, diminutive of rōstrum, beak. See ROSTRUM.] —ros-tel-lar adj.

ros-ter (rōʒʹtər, rôʹstər) n. 1. A list, especially of names. 2. A list of the names of military officers and enlisted personnel enrolled for active duty. [Dutch rooster, gridiron, roster (from the ruled paper used for a roster), from roosten, to roast.]

WORD HISTORY: To be told that the word roster is related to a gridiron upon which one roasts meat might not come as a surprise, depending on what sort of rosters one’s name has graced. The connection between the roster as we know it and a gridiron was made in Dutch, where the word rooster, meaning “gridiron” (from the verb roosten, “to roast”), was extended in sense to mean “a table, list.” This extension was made because of the resemblance of a gridiron to a piece of paper divided by parallel lines that contains a list or table. The earliest use in English (first recorded in 1727) for the word roster borrowed from Dutch was military, referring to a list or plan that outlined when officers, men, and bodies of troops should perform their turn of duty. Roster is no longer exclusively military in usage, nor does it mean simply a list of rotating turns of duty; one could perhaps even have a roster of meats to be roasted at a barbecue.

Ros-tock (rōʒʹtŏkʹ, rôʒʹtŏkʹ) A city of northeast Germany near the Baltic Sea north-northwest of Berlin. Originally a Slavic fortress, it was chartered in 1218 and was an important member of the Hanseatic League in the 14th century. Population, 241,146.

Ros-tov (rə-stŏfʹ) also Ros-tov-on-Don (-ŏn-dŏnʹ, -dŏn-, -ŏn-) A city of southwest Russia on the Don River near its outlet on an arm of the Sea of Azov.

The city grew around a fortress built in 1761 and was chartered in 1797. Population, 986,000.

ros-tra (rɒs'trə, rɒ'strə) n. A plural of rostrum.

ros-trate (rɒs'trāt', -trīt, rɒ'strāt', -strīt) adj. Having a beaklike part. [Latin rōstrātus, from rōstrum, beak. See ROSTRUM.]

Ros-tro-po-vich (rɒs'trə-pō'vīch, rə-strə-), Mstislav. Born 1927. Russian cellist and conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D.C. (since 1977).

ros-trum (rɒs'trəm, rɒ'strəm) n. pl. ros-trums or ros-tra (rɒs'trə, rɒ'strə).

1. A dais, pulpit, or other elevated platform for public speaking. 2. a. The curved, beaklike prow of an ancient Roman ship, especially a war galley. b. The speaker's platform in an ancient Roman forum, which was decorated with the prows of captured enemy ships. 3. Biology. A beaklike or snoutlike projection. [Latin rōstrum, beak. See rēd- in Appendix.] —ros'tral (-trəl) adj.

Ros-well (rɒz'wəl', -wəl) 1. A city of northwest Georgia, a residential suburb of Atlanta. Population, 47,923. 2. A city of southeast New Mexico southeast of Albuquerque. It is a trade and processing center in an irrigated farming region. Population, 44,654.

ros-y (rɒ'zē) adj. ros-i-er, ros-i-est. 1. a. Having the characteristic pink or red color of a rose. b. Flushed with a healthy glow: rosy cheeks. 2. Consisting of, decorated with, or suggestive of a rose or roses. 3. Bright or cheerful; optimistic: rosy predictions. —ros'i-ly adv. —ros'i-ness n.

rot (rɒt) v. rot-ted, rot-ting, rots. — v. intr. 1. To undergo decomposition, especially organic decomposition; decay. 2. a. To become damaged, weakened, or useless because of decay: The beams had rotted away. b. To disappear or fall by decaying: One could see the blackened areas where the branches had rotted off. 3. To languish; decline: "He was thrown into one of Napoleon's dungeons and left to rot" (Michael Massing). 4. To decay morally; become degenerate. — v. tr. To cause to decompose or decay. See Synonyms at decay. — n. 1. The process of rotting or the condition of being rotten: The rot spread quickly, rendering the bridge unsafe even for pedestrians. 2. Foot rot. 3. See liver fluke (n., sense 2). 4. Any of several plant diseases characterized by the breakdown of tissue and caused by various bacteria or fungi. 5. Pointless talk; nonsense: She always talks such rot. 6. Archaic. Any disease causing the decay of flesh. — interj. Used to express annoyance, contempt, or impatience. [Middle English roten, from Old English rotian.]

rot. abbr. 1. Rotating. 2. Rotation.

ro-ta (rɒ'tə) n. 1. Chiefly British. A roll call or roster of names. 2. Chiefly British. A round or rotation of duties. 3. Rota. Roman Catholic Church. A tribunal of prelates that serves as an ecclesiastical court. [Latin, wheel. See ret- in Appendix.]

- Ro·ta (rō'tə, -tā) An island of the western Pacific Ocean in the southern Mariana Islands north of Guam. The Japanese used it as a base for their attack on Guam on December 11, 1941. Rota remained in Japanese hands until the end of the war.
- Ro·tar·i·an (rō-târ'ē-ən) n. A member of a Rotary Club, a major national and international service club.
- ro·ta·ry (rō'tə-rē) adj. Of, relating to, causing, or characterized by rotation, especially axial rotation. — n. pl. ro·ta·ries. 1. A part or device that rotates around an axis. 2. A traffic circle. [Medieval Latin rotārius, from Latin rota, wheel. See ret- in Appendix.]
- rotary engine (rō'tə-rē ěn'jĭn) n. An engine, such as a turbine, in which power is supplied directly to vanes or other rotary parts.
- rotary harrow (rō'tə-rē hăř'ō) n. A harrow consisting of a series of freely turning wheels rimmed with spikes.
- rotary plow (rō'tə-rē plou) n. A plow having a series of hoes arranged on a revolving power-driven shaft. Also called rotary tiller
- rotary press (rō'tə-rē prĕs) n. A printing press consisting of curved plates attached to a revolving cylinder that prints onto a continuous roll of paper.
- rotary tiller (rō'tə-rē tĭl'ər) n. See rotary plow.
- ro·ta·ry·wing aircraft (rō'tə-rē-wĭng' âř'krăft') n. A rotorcraft.
- ro·tate (rō'tāt) v. ro·tat·ed, ro·tat·ing, ro·tates. — v. intr. 1. To turn around on an axis or center. 2. To proceed in sequence; take turns or alternate: Interns will rotate through the various departments. — v. tr. 1. To cause to turn on an axis or center. See Synonyms at turn. 2. a. To plant or grow (crops) in a fixed order of succession. b. To cause to alternate or proceed in sequence: The coach rotates her players frequently near the end of the game. — adj. Having radiating parts; wheel-shaped. [Latin rotāre, rotāt-, from rota, wheel. See ret- in Appendix.] — ro'tat'a·ble adj.
- ro·ta·tion (rō-tā'shən) n. Abbr. rot. 1. a. The act or process of turning around a center or an axis: the axial rotation of the earth. b. A single complete cycle of such motion. 2. Mathematics. A transformation of a coordinate system in which the new axes have a specified angular displacement from their original position while the origin remains fixed. 3. Regular and uniform variation in a sequence or series: a rotation of personnel; crop rotation. 4. Games. An order of shooting balls in billiards in which the ball with the lowest number on the table is always pocketed first. — ro'ta'tion·al adj.
- ro·ta·tive (rō'tā'tĭv) adj. 1. Of, relating to, causing, or characterized by rotation. 2. Characterized by or occurring in alternation or succession. — ro'ta'tive·ly adv.
- ro·ta·tor (rō'tā'tər) n. 1. One that rotates. 2. pl. ro·ta·tor·es (rō'tə-tôr'ĕz, -tôr-). Anatomy. A muscle that serves to rotate a part of the body.

rotator cuff (rō'tā'tər küf) n. A set of muscles and tendons that secures the arm to the shoulder joint and permits rotation of the arm.

ro-ta-to-ry (rō'tə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, causing, or characterized by rotation: a rotary muscle. 2. Occurring or proceeding in alternation or succession.

ro-ta-vi-rus (rō'tə-vī'rəs) n. pl. ro-ta-vi-rus-es. Any of a group of wheel-shaped, RNA-contained viruses that cause gastroenteritis, especially in infants and newborn animals.

ROTC abbr. Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

rote¹ (rōt) n. 1. A memorizing process using routine or repetition, often without full attention or comprehension: learn by rote. 2. Mechanical routine. [Middle English.] —rote adj.

rote² (rōt) n. The sound of surf breaking on the shore. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse rauta, to roar.]

rote³ (rōt) n. Music. A medieval stringed instrument variably identified with a lyre, lute, or harp. [Middle English, from Old French, probably of Germanic origin.]

ro-te-none (rōt'n-ōn') n. A white crystalline compound, C₂₃H₂₂O₆, extracted from the roots of derris and cubé and used as an insecticide. [Japanese rōten, derris + -ONE.]

rot-gut (rōt'güt') n. Slang. Raw, inferior liquor.

Roth (rōth), Philip Milton. Born 1933. American writer whose witty and ironic fiction, including the comic novel Portnoy's Complaint (1969), concerns middle-class Jewish life.

Roth·er·ham (rōth'ər-əm) A borough of northern England northeast of Sheffield. It is an industrial center. Population, 251,900.

Roth·ko (rōth'kō), Mark. 1903-1970. Russian-born American abstract expressionist painter whose works are characterized by horizontal bands of subtle color with blurred edges.

Roth·schild (rōth'chīld, rōths'-, rōth'-, rōths'-, rōt'shīlt') German family of bankers, including Mayer Amschal (1743-1812), who founded a bank at Frankfurt am Main. His sons, most notably Salomon (1774-1855) and Nathan Mayer (1774-1836), established branches of the bank throughout Europe.

ro-ti-fer (rō'tə-fər) n. Any of various minute multicellular aquatic organisms of the phylum Rotifera, having at the anterior end a wheel-like ring of cilia. [From New Latin Rotifera, phylum name : Latin rota, wheel; see ROTA + Latin -fer, -fer.] —ro-tif'er-al (-tīf'ər-əl), ro-tif'er-ous (-ər-əs) adj.

ro-ti-form (rō'tə-fōrm') adj. Shaped like a wheel. [Latin rota, wheel; see ret- in Appendix + -FORM.]

ro-tis-se-rie (rō-tīs'ə-rē) n. 1. A cooking device equipped with a rotating spit on which meat or other food is roasted. 2. A shop or restaurant where meats are roasted to order. [French rôtisserie, from Old French rostisserie, from rostir, to roast, of Germanic origin.]

rot·l (röt'l) n. A unit of weight used in countries bordering on the Mediterranean and in nearby areas, varying in different regions from about 1 to 5 pounds (0.45 to 2.25 kilograms). [Arabic raṭl, riṭl, possibly from Greek litra.]

ro-to-gra-vure (rō'tə-grə-vyoor') n. 1. An intaglio printing process in which letters and pictures are transferred from an etched copper cylinder to a web of paper, plastic, or similar material in a rotary press. 2. Printed material, such as a newspaper section, produced by this process. [Latin rota, wheel; see ret- in Appendix + GRAVURE.]

ro-tor (rō'tər) n. 1. A rotating part of an electrical or mechanical device. 2. An assembly of rotating horizontal airfoils, as that of a helicopter. [Contraction of ROTATOR.]

ro-tor-craft (rō'tər-kräft') n. An aircraft, especially a helicopter, that is kept partially or completely airborne by airfoils rotating around a vertical axis.

rotor ship (rō'tər shīp) n. Nautical. A ship propelled by one or more tall cylindrical rotors operated by wind power.

ro-to-till (rō'tə-tīl') v. tr. ro-to-tilled, ro-to-till-ing, ro-to-tills. To cultivate or dig with a rototiller: rototilled the garden before planting.

ro-to-till-er (rō'tə-tīl'ər) n. A motorized rotary cultivator. [ROT(ARY) + TILLER¹.]

rot·ten (röt'n) adj. rot-ten-er, rot-ten-est. 1. Being in a state of putrefaction or decay; decomposed. 2. Having a foul odor resulting from or suggestive of decay; putrid. 3. Made weak or unsound by rot: rotten floorboards. 4. Morally corrupt or despicable: She's rotten to the core. 5. Very bad; wretched: rotten weather. — adv. To a very great degree: The child is spoiled rotten. [Middle English rotten, from Old Norse rotinn.] —rot'ten-ly adv. —rot'ten-ness n.

rotten borough (röt'n bûr'ō) n. An election district having only a few voters but the same voting power as other more populous districts.

rot-ten-stone (röt'n-stōn') n. A soft, decomposed limestone, used in powder form as a polishing material.

rot-ter (röt'ər) n. Chiefly British. A scoundrel.

Rot-ter-dam (rôt'ər-dām') 1. A city of southwest Netherlands on the Rhine-Meuse delta south-southeast of The Hague. Chartered in 1328, it was a major commercial power during the 16th and 17th centuries and is today a thriving port accessible via canal to oceangoing vessels. The city was heavily bombed during World War II. Population, 555,341. 2. (röt'ər-dām') An unincorporated community of east-central New York northwest of Schenectady. It is primarily residential. Population, 24,800.

rott·wei·ler (röt'wī'lər, rô't'vī'-) n. Any of a German breed of dog having a stocky body, short black fur, and tan face markings. [German, after Rottweil, a city of southern Germany.]

ro·tund (rō-tünd') adj. 1. Rounded in figure; plump. See Synonyms at fat. 2. Having a full, rich sound; sonorous. [Latin rotundus. See ret- in Appendix.]
—ro·tun'di·ty n. —ro·tund'ly adv. —ro·tund'ness n.

ro·tun·da (rō-tŭn'də) n. 1. A circular building, especially one with a dome. 2. a. A large area with a high ceiling, as in a hotel lobby. b. A large round room. [Italian rotonda, from feminine of rotondo, round, from Latin rotundus. See ROTUND.]

ro·tu·rier (rō-tōör'ē-ā', -tyōör'-) n. A commoner. [French, from Old French, from roture, newly cultivated land, from Latin ruptūra, action of breaking. See RUPTURE.]

Rou·ault (rōō-ō'), Georges. 1871-1958. French artist whose paintings, often of biblical figures, clowns, or prostitutes, are characterized by brilliant colors and black outlines.

Rou·baix (rōō-bě') A city of northern France north-northeast of Lille near the Belgian border. It is an important textile center. Population, 101,602.

rou·ble (rōō'bəl) n. Variant of ruble.

rou·é (rōō-ā') n. A lecherous, dissipated man. [French, from past participle of rouer, to break on a wheel (from the feeling that such a person deserves that punishment), from Old French, from Latin rotāre, to rotate. See ROTATE.]

Rou·en¹ (rōō-än', -än') A city of northern France on the Seine River west-northwest of Paris. Of pre-Roman origin, it was repeatedly raided by the Norse in the ninth century, became the capital of medieval Normandy in the tenth century, and was held by the English from 1418 to 1449. Joan of Arc was burned at the stake here in 1431. Population, 101,945.

Rou·en² (rōō-än', -än') n. Any of a breed of common domestic ducks descended from and resembling the mallard. [After Rouen¹.]

rouge (rōōzh) n. 1. A red or pink cosmetic for coloring the cheeks or lips. 2. A reddish powder, chiefly ferric oxide, used to polish metals or glass. — v.

rouged, roug·ing, roug·es. — v. tr. 1. To put rouge onto: rouged her cheeks. 2. To color as if with a facial cosmetic: "Their job is to rouge up the war... to turn the horror into cheering press releases" (Richard Corliss). — v. intr. To use rouge. [French, from Old French, red, from Latin rubeus. See reudh- in Appendix.]

Rou·get cell (rōō-zhā' sĕl) n. Any of numerous branching, contractile cells on the external wall of a capillary. [After Charles Marie Benjamin Rouget (1824-1904), French physiologist.]

Rouget de Lisle (rōō-zhā' də lĕl'), Claude Joseph. 1760-1836. French soldier and songwriter who wrote "La Marseillaise" (1792), the French national anthem.

rough (rŭf) adj. rough-er, rough-est. 1. Having a surface marked by irregularities, protuberances, or ridges; not smooth. 2. Coarse or shaggy to the touch: a rough, scratchy blanket. 3. a. Difficult to travel over or through: the rough terrain of the highlands. b. Characterized by violent motion; turbulent: rough waters. c. Difficult to endure or live through, especially because of harsh or inclement weather: a rough winter. d. Unpleasant or difficult: had a rough time during the exam. 4. a. Boisterous, unruly, uncouth, or rowdy: ran with a rough crowd. b. Lacking polish or finesse: rough manners. 5. Characterized by carelessness or force, as in manipulating: broke the crystal through rough handling. 6. Harsh to the ear: a rough, raspy sound. 7. Being in a natural state: rough diamonds. 8. Not perfected, completed, or fully detailed: a rough drawing; rough carpentry. — n. 1. a. Rugged, overgrown terrain. b. Sports. The part of a golf course left unmowed and uncultivated. 2. The difficult or disagreeable aspect, part, or side: observed politics in the rough when working as an intern on Capitol Hill. 3. Something in an unfinished or hastily worked-out state. 4. A crude, unmannered person; a rowdy. — v. tr. roughed, rough-ing, roughs. 1. a. To treat roughly or with physical violence: roughed up his opponent. b. Sports. To treat (an opposing player) with unnecessary roughness during a sport or game: roughed the passer and was ejected from the game. 2. To prepare or indicate in an unfinished form: rough out a house plan. — adv. In a rough manner; roughly. — idiom. rough it. To live without the usual comforts and conveniences: roughed it in a small hunting shack. [Middle English, from Old English rūh.] — rough'er n. — rough'ly adv. — rough'ness n.

SYNONYMS: rough, harsh, jagged, rugged, scabrous, uneven. These adjectives apply to what is not smooth but has a coarse, irregular surface. Rough describes something that to the sight or touch has inequalities, as projections or ridges: rough bark; rough, chapped hands; a rough homespun fabric. Something harsh is unpleasantly rough, discordant, or grating: harsh burlap; the harsh cry of a crow. Jagged refers to an edge or a surface with irregular projections and indentations: a jagged piece of glass. Rugged, which often refers to strength or endurance, especially in people, can also apply to land surfaces characterized by irregular, often steep rises and slopes: a rugged, rocky trail; rugged countryside. Scabrous means rough and scaly to the tactile sense: a granular, scabrous spot on his cheek. Uneven describes lines or surfaces of which some parts are not level with others: uneven ground; uneven handwriting. See also Synonyms at rude rough-age (rŭf'ij) n. See fiber (n., sense 6).

rough-and-read-y (rŭf'ən-rĕd'ē) adj. Rough or crude but effective for a purpose or use.

rough-and-tumble (rŭf'an-tŭm'bəl) adj. Characterized by roughness and disregard for order or rules: rough-and-tumble politics. — n. A condition marked by rough, disorderly struggle; infighting: the rough-and-tumble of national politics.

rough-back (rŭf'băk') n. Any of several flatfish with rough skin, especially a species of dab (Hippoglossoides platessoides).

rough breathing (rŭf brē'thĭng) n. Linguistics. 1. An aspirate sound in ancient Greek like that of the sound (h) in English. 2. The symbol (´) written over some initial vowels and the letter rho in ancient Greek to indicate that a word begins with the sound (h). 3. In ancient Greek, a word beginning with the sound (h) plus a vowel or diphthong.

rough-cast (rŭf'kăst') n. 1. A coarse plaster of lime, shells, and pebbles used for outside wall surfaces. 2. A rough preliminary model or form. — v. tr.

rough-cast, rough-cast-ing, rough-casts. 1. To plaster (a wall, for example) with roughcast. 2. To shape or work into a rough or preliminary form.

—rough'cast'er n.

rough collie (rŭf kŏl'ē) n. A collie with a long, rough, mostly black-and-white coat.

rough-cut (rŭf'kŭt') n. A print of a movie that has not been completely edited. — adj. Lacking manners and finesse: “a rough-cut man who drew his life with a broad stroke” (Clif Garboden).

rough-dry (rŭf'drī') v. tr. rough-dried, rough-dry-ing, rough-dries. To dry (laundry) without ironing or smoothing out. —rough'dry' adj.

rough-en (rŭf'ən) v. tr. intr. rough-ened, rough-en-ing, rough-ens. To make or become rough.

rough fish (rŭf fĭsh) n. A fish that is neither a sport fish nor an important food fish.

rough-hew (rŭf'hyōō') v. tr. rough--hewed, rough--hewed or rough-hewn (-hyōōn'), rough--hew-ing, rough--hews. 1. To hew or shape (timber, for example) roughly, without finishing. 2. To make in rough form.

rough-house (rŭf'hous') n. Rowdy, uproarious behavior or play. — v. rough-housed, rough-hous-ing, rough-hous-es (also rŭf'houz'). — v. intr. To engage in rowdy, uproarious behavior or play. — v. tr. To handle or treat roughly, usually in fun.

rough-leg-ged hawk (rŭf'lĕg'ĭd hŏk) n. An Arctic hawk (Buteo lagopus) that has dark plumage and whitish feathers covering the legs and feeds mainly on small rodents.

rough-neck (rŭf'nĕk') n. 1. An uncouth person. 2. A rowdy. 3. A member of the crew of an oil rig other than the driller.

rough-rid·er (rŭf'rĭ'dər) n. 1. A skilled rider of little-trained horses, especially one who breaks horses for riding. 2. Rough Rider. A member of the First U.S.

Volunteer Cavalry regiment under Theodore Roosevelt in the Spanish-American War.

rough-shod (rŭfʹshödʹ) adj. 1. Shod with horseshoes having projecting nails or points to prevent slipping. 2. Marked by brutal force: Stalin's roughshod treatment of the kulaks. —idiom. ride roughshod over. To treat with brutal force: a manager who rode roughshod over all opposition.

rough sledding (rŭf slĕdʹing) n. Informal. A difficult time or situation.

rough trade (rŭf trād) n. Slang. 1. Violent, often brutal sex acts. 2. A person, especially a male prostitute, who engages in or appears likely to engage in such acts.

rough-winged swallow (rŭfʹwīngdʹ swŏlʹō) n. 1. Either of two New World species of swallow (Stelgidopteryx serripennis or S. ruficollis) having outer primary feathers equipped with small barblike hooks. 2. An African swallow of the genus Psalidoprocne having similarly barbed outer primaries.

rough-y (rŭfʹē) n. pl. roughy or rough-ies. 1. A perchlike food fish (Arripis georgianus) of Australia and New Zealand. 2. A small fish (Trachichthys australis) with rough scales, found in shallow waters along the southeast coast of Australia. [Probably from ROUGH.]

rou-lade (rōō-lādʹ) n. 1. Music. a. An embellishment consisting of a rapid run of several notes sung to one syllable. b. A roll on a drum. 2. A slice of meat rolled around a filling and cooked. [French, from rouler, to roll, from Old French roler. See ROLL.]

rou-leau (rōō-lōʹ) n. pl. rou-leaux or rou-leaus (-lōzʹ). A small roll, especially of coins wrapped in paper. [French, from Old French rolel, diminutive of role, roll, from Latin rotula, diminutive of rota, wheel. See ROTA.]

rou-lette (rōō-lĕtʹ) n. 1. Games. A gambling game in which the players bet on which slot of a rotating disk a small ball will come to rest in. 2. a. A small, toothed disk of tempered steel attached to a handle and used to make rows of dots, slits, or perforations, as in engraving or on a sheet of postage stamps. b. Short consecutive incisions made between individual stamps in a sheet for easy separation. — v. tr. rou-lett-ed, rou-lett-ing, rou-lettes. To mark or divide with a roulette. [French, from Old French ruelete, feminine diminutive of ruele diminutive of roue, wheel, from Latin rota. See ret- in Appendix.]

round¹ (round) adj. Abbr. rd., rnd. 1. a. Being such that every part of the surface or the circumference is equidistant from the center: a round ball. b. Moving in or forming a circle. c. Shaped like a cylinder; cylindrical. d. Rather rounded in shape: the child's round face. e. Full in physique; plump: a round figure. 2. a. Linguistics. Formed or articulated with the lips in a rounded shape: a round vowel. b. Full in tone; sonorous. 3. Whole or complete; full: a round dozen. 4. a. Mathematics. Expressed or designated as a whole number or integer; not fractional. b. Not exact; approximate: a round estimate. 5. Large; considerable:

a round sum of money. 6. Brought to satisfactory conclusion or completion; finished. 7. a. Outspoken; blunt: a round scolding. b. Done with full force; unrestrained: gave me a round thrashing. — n. 1. a. Something, such as a circle, disk, globe, or ring, that is round. b. A circle formed of various things. c. Movement around a circle or about an axis. 2. A rung or crossbar, as one on a ladder or chair. 3. A cut of beef from the part of the thigh between the rump and the shank. 4. An assembly of people; a group. 5. A round dance. 6. a. A complete course, succession, or series: a round of parties; a round of negotiations. b. Often rounds. A course of customary or prescribed actions, duties, or places: physicians' rounds. 7. A complete range or extent. 8. One drink for each person in a gathering or group: Let me buy the next round. 9. A single outburst, as of applause or cheering. 10. a. A single shot or volley. b. Ammunition for a single shot or volley. 11. A specified number of arrows shot from a specified distance to a target in archery. 12. Sports & Games. An interval of play that occupies a specified time, constitutes a certain number of plays, or allows each player a turn. 13. Music. A composition for two or more voices in which each voice enters at a different time with the same melody. — v. round-ed, round-ing, rounds. — v. tr. 1. To make round. See Synonyms at bend¹. 2. To encompass; surround. 3. To cause to proceed or move in a circular course. 4. Linguistics. To pronounce with rounded lips; labialize. 5. To fill out; make plump. 6. To bring to completion or perfection; finish. 7. Mathematics. To express as a round number: The number 1.64 can be rounded to 1.6 or to 2. 8. To make a complete circuit of; go or pass around. 9. To make a turn about or to the other side of: rounded a bend in the road. — v. intr. 1. To become round. 2. To take a circular course; complete or partially complete a circuit: racecars rounding into the final lap. 3. To turn about, as on an axis; reverse. 4. To become curved, filled out, or plump. 5. To come to satisfactory completion or perfection. — adv. 1. In a circular progression or movement; around. 2. With revolutions: wheels moving round. 3. To a specific place or person: called round for the pastor; sent round for the veterinarian. — prep. 1. Around. 2. From the beginning to the end of; throughout: a plant that grows round the year. — phrasal verbs. round on. To turn on and assail. round up. 2. To seek out and bring together; gather. 3. To herd (cattle) together from various places. — idioms. in the round. 1. With the stage in the center of the audience. 2. Fully shaped so as to stand free of a background: a sculpture in the round. make the rounds (or go the rounds). 3. To go from place to place, as on business or for entertainment: a delivery truck making the rounds; students going the rounds in the entertainment district. 4. To be communicated or passed from person to person: The news quickly made the rounds. A piece of juicy gossip is going the rounds. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman rounde, variant of Old French rond, ultimately from Vulgar Latin retundus*, from Latin rotundus, from rota, wheel. See ret- in Appendix.] — round/ness n.

round² (round) v. tr. round-ed, round-ing, rounds. Archaic. To whisper.

[Middle English rounden, from Old English rūnian, from rūn, a secret.]

round-a-bout (round'ə-bout') adj. Indirect; circuitous: "This conclusion was reached in a roundabout but nevertheless perfectly reliable way" (George Gamow).

See Synonyms at indirect. — n. 1. A short, close-fitting jacket. 2. Chiefly British. A merry-go-round. 3. Chiefly British. A traffic circle.

round clam (round klām) n. See quahog.

round dance (round dāns) n. 1. A folk dance performed with the dancers arranged in a circle. 2. A ballroom dance in which couples proceed in a circular direction around the room.

round-ed (roun'dīd) adj. 1. Shaped into the form of a circle or sphere; made round. 2. Linguistics. Pronounced with the lips shaped ovally; labialized.

3. Complete; balanced: a rounded meal. — round'ed-ness n.

roun-del (roun'dəl) n. 1. A curved form, especially a semicircular panel, window, or recess. 2. a. A rondel. b. A rondeau. c. An English variation of the rondeau consisting of three triplets with a refrain after the first and third. [Middle English, from Old French rondel, diminutive of rond, circle, round. See ROUND¹.]

roun-de-lay (roun'də-lā') n. A poem or song with a regularly recurring refrain. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by lai, poem, song); see LAY³, of Old French rondelet, diminutive of rondel, roundel. See ROUNDEL.]

round-er (roun'dər) n. 1. One that rounds, especially a tool for rounding corners and edges. 2. One, such as a security guard, who makes rounds. 3. A dissolute person. 4. Sports. a. A boxing match that goes on for a specified number of rounds. Often used in combination: a five-rounder. b. rounders. (used with a sing. verb). An English ball game similar to baseball.

round hand (round hānd) n. A style of handwriting in which the letters are rounded and full rather than angular.

Round-head (round'hēd') n. A supporter of the Parliamentarians during the English Civil War and the Commonwealth. [From the close-cropped hair of the Puritans.]

round herring (round hēr'ing) n. Any of the mostly tropical marine fishes of the family Dussumierlidae, similar to the clupeid herrings but having an abdomen that is rounded and smooth along the edges.

round-house (round'hous') n. 1. A circular building for housing and switching locomotives. 2. Nautical. A cabin on the after part of the quarterdeck of a ship. 3. Games. A meld of four kings and four queens in pinochle. 4. Slang. A punch or swing delivered with a sweeping sidearm movement.

round-ish (roun'dīsh) adj. Somewhat round. — round'ish-ness n.

round-let (roun'dlīt) n. 1. A little circle. 2. A small circular object. [Middle English, from Old French rondelet, diminutive of rondel, roundel. See ROUNDEL.]

round-ly (round/'lē) adv. 1. In the form of a circle or sphere. 2. With full force or vigor; thoroughly: applauded roundly; was roundly criticized.

round robin (round rōb/'in) n. 1. Sports. A tournament in which each contestant is matched in turn against every other contestant. 2. A petition or protest on which the signatures are arranged in a circle in order to conceal the order of signing. 3. A letter sent among members of a group, often with comments added by each person in turn.

round-shouldered (round/'shōl/'dərd) adj. Having the shoulders and upper back rounded.

rounds-man (roundz/'mən) n. 1. A police officer in charge of several other officers. 2. One, such as a delivery person, who makes rounds.

round steak (round stāk) n. A lean, oval cut of beef from between the rump and shank.

round-table (round/'tā'bəl) n. 1. Often round-table (round/'tā'bəl) or round table. A conference or discussion involving several participants.

2. Round Table. a. In Arthurian legend, the circular table of King Arthur and his knights. b. The knights of King Arthur considered as a group. — n. also round-table Often used to modify another noun: a roundtable discussion; round-table interviews.

round-the-clock (round/'thə-klōk') also a-round-the-clock (ə-round'-) adj. Lasting or continuing throughout the entire 24 hours of the day; continuous.

round-trip or round-trip also round trip (round/'trīp') n. A trip from one place to another and back, usually over the same route. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: roundtrip flights; round-trip tickets; round trip passengers.

round-up (round/'ŭp') n. 1. a. The herding together of cattle for inspection, branding, or shipping. b. The cattle so herded. c. The workers and horses employed in such herding. 2. A gathering up, as of people under suspicion by the police. 3. A summary: a news roundup.

round-worm (round/'wûrm') n. See nematode.

roup (rōop) n. An infectious disease of poultry and pigeons characterized by inflammation of and mucous discharge from the mouth and eyes. [Origin unknown.]

Rour-ke-la (rôr-kā/'lə) See Raurkela.

Rous (rous), Francis Peyton. 1879-1970. American pathologist. He shared a 1966 Nobel Prize for his discovery of tumor-producing viruses.

rouse (rouz) v. roused, rous-ing, rous-es. — v. tr. 1. To arouse from slumber, apathy, or depression. 2. To excite, as to anger or action; stir up. See Synonyms at provoke. — v. intr. 1. To awaken. 2. To become active. — n. The act or an instance of arousing. [Middle English rousen, to shake the feathers: used of a hawk, perhaps from Old French reuser, ruser, to repel, push back, from Vulgar Latin recūsāre*, from Latin, to refuse. See RECUSE.] —rous'er n.

rous-ing (rou/'zɪŋ) adj. 1. Inducing enthusiasm or excitement; stirring: a rousing sermon. 2. Lively; vigorous: a rousing march tune. 3. Used as an intensive: a rousing lie. —rous'ing-ly adv.

Rous sarcoma (rous sär-kō'mə) n. A sarcoma produced in chickens by an RNA-containing virus. [After Francis Peyton Rous.]

Rous-seau (rōō-sō'), Henri. Known as “Le Douanier Rousseau.” 1844-1910. French primitive painter of portraits, still lifes, city scenes, and metaphorical works, such as The Snake Charmer (1907).

Rous-seau (rōō-sō'), Jean Jacques. 1712-1778. French philosopher and writer who held that humanity is essentially good but corrupted by society. His written works include The Social Contract and the novel Émile (both 1762).

Rous-seau (rōō-sō'), Théodore. 1812-1867. French landscape painter who was the leader of the Barbizon school. His works include Descent of the Cattle (c. 1834).

Rous-sil-lon (rōō-sē-yōn') A historical region of southern France bordering on Spain and the Mediterranean Sea. Originally inhabited by Iberians, it became part of Roman Gaul after c. 121 B.C. and later changed hands many times, eventually becoming a Spanish possession that was transferred to France by the Treaty of the Pyrenees (1659).

roust (rust) v. tr. roust-ed, roust-ing, rousts. To rout, especially out of bed. [Probably alteration of ROUSE.]

roust-a-bout (rous/'tə-bout') n. 1. A laborer employed for temporary or unskilled jobs, as in an oil field. 2. A circus laborer. 3. A deck or wharf laborer, especially on the Mississippi River.

rout¹ (rout) n. 1. a. A disorderly retreat or flight following defeat. b. An overwhelming defeat. 2. a. A disorderly crowd of people; a mob. b. People of the lowest class; rabble. 3. A public disturbance; a riot. 4. A company, as of knights or wolves, that are in movement. 5. A fashionable gathering. — v. tr. rout-ed, rout-ing, rousts. 1. To put to disorderly flight or retreat: “the flock of starlings which Jasper had routed with his gun” (Virginia Woolf). 2. To defeat overwhelmingly. See Synonyms at defeat. [Middle English route, from Old French, troop, defeat, from Vulgar Latin rupta*, from feminine of Latin ruptus, past participle of rumpere, to break. See reup- in Appendix.]

rout² (rout) v. rout-ed, rout-ing, rousts. — v. intr. 1. To dig with the snout; root. 2. To poke around; rummage. — v. tr. 1. To expose to view as if by digging; uncover. 2. To hollow, scoop, or gouge out. 3. To drive or force out as if by digging; eject: rout out an informant. 4. Archaic. To dig up with the snout. [Variant of ROOT².]

rout³ (rout, rōōt) v. intr. rout-ed, rout-ing, routs. Chiefly British. To bellow. Used of cattle. [Middle English routen, to roar, from Old Norse rauta.]

route (rōōt, rout) n. Abbr. rte. 1. a. A road, course, or way for travel from one place to another. b. A highway. 2. A customary line of travel. See Synonyms at way. 3. A fixed course or territory assigned to a salesperson or delivery person. 4. A means of reaching a goal. — v. tr. rout-ed, rout-ing, routes. 1. To send or forward by a specific route. See Synonyms at send¹. 2. To schedule the order of (a sequence of procedures). [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin rupta (via), broken (road), feminine past participle of rumpere, to break. See ROUT¹.]

rout-er¹ (rou'tər) n. One that routs, especially a machine tool that mills out the surface of metal or wood.

rout-er² (rōō'tər, rou' -) n. One that routes, especially one who prepares shipments for distribution and delivery.

rou-tine (rōō-tēn') n. 1. A prescribed, detailed course of action to be followed regularly; a standard procedure. 2. A set of customary and often mechanically performed procedures or activities. See Synonyms at method. 3. A set piece of entertainment, especially in a nightclub or theater. 4. Slang. A particular kind of behavior or activity: She went into her hurt routine. 5. Computer Science. A set of programming instructions designed to perform a specific, limited task. — adj. 1. In accord with established procedure: a routine check of passports. 2. Habitual; regular: made his routine trip to the store. 3. Having no special quality; ordinary: a routine day. [French, from route, route, from Old French. See ROUTE.]

—rou-tine/ly adv. —rou-tin/ism n. —rou-tin/ist n.

rou-tin-ize (rōō-tē'nīz', rōōt'n-īz') v. tr. rou-tin-ized, rou-tin-iz-ing, rou-tin-iz-es. 1. To establish a routine for. 2. To reduce to a routine: a government that routinized mass murder while carrying out its totalitarian policies.

—rou-tin'i-za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

roux (rōō) n. pl. roux. A mixture of flour and fat cooked together and used as a thickening. [French (beurre) roux, browned (butter), from Old French rous, reddish brown, from Latin russus, red. See reudh- in Appendix.]

Rou-yn (rōō'īn, rwǎn) A city of southwest Quebec, Canada, near the Ontario border west-northwest of Quebec City. It is a trade center in a mining region. Population, 17,224.

rove¹ (rōv) v. roved, rov-ing, roves. — v. intr. To wander about at random, especially over a wide area; roam. — v. tr. To roam or wander around, over, or through. See Synonyms at wander. — n. An act of wandering about, over, around, or through. [Middle English roven, to shoot arrows at a mark.]

rove² (rōv) v. tr. roved, rov-ing, roves. 1. To card (wool). 2. To put (fibers) through an eye or opening. 3. To stretch and twist (fibers) before spinning; ravel out. — n. A slightly twisted and extended fiber or sliver. [Origin unknown.]

rove³ (rōv) v. Nautical. A past tense and a past participle of reeve².

rove beetle (rōv bēt'l) n. Any of numerous beetles of the family Staphylinidae, often found in decaying matter and having slender bodies and short wing covers. Also called staphylinid [Possibly from ROVE¹.]

rov-er¹ (rō'vər) n. 1. a. One that roves; a wanderer. b. A crewed or uncrewed vehicle, used especially in exploring the terrain of a planet and its satellites.

2. Sports. A mark in archery selected by chance.

ro-ver² (rō'vər) n. 1. A pirate. 2. A pirate vessel. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German, robber from roven, to rob. See reup- in Appendix.]

Ro-vi-go (rō-vē'gō) A city of northeast Italy between the Adige and Po rivers southwest of Venice. It belonged to the Este family from 1194 to 1482, when it passed to Venice. Population, 51,708.

Rov-no (rôv'nə) A city of northwest Ukraine west of Kiev. It was annexed by Russia in 1793 and by Poland in 1921. The city was occupied by Soviet troops in 1939. Population, 221,000.

Ro-vu-ma (rō-vō'mə) See Ruvuma.

row¹ (rō) n. 1. A series of objects placed next to each other, usually in a straight line. 2. A succession without a break or gap in time: won the title for three years in a row. 3. A continuous line of buildings along a street. — v. tr. rowed, row-ing, rows. To place in a row. — idiom. a tough row to hoe. Informal. A difficult situation to endure. [Middle English, from Old English rāw.]

row² (rō) v. rowed, row-ing, rows. — v. intr. Nautical. To propel a boat with or as if with oars. — v. tr. 1. Nautical. a. To propel (a boat) with or as if with oars. b. To carry in or on a boat propelled by oars. c. To use (a specified number of oars or people deploying them). 2. To propel or convey in a manner resembling rowing of a boat. 3. Sports. a. To pull (an oar) as part of a racing crew. b. To race against by rowing. — n. Nautical. 1. a. The act or an instance of rowing. b. A shift at the oars of a boat. 2. A trip or an excursion in a row-boat. [Middle English rowen, from Old English rōwan. See erə- in Appendix.] — row'er n.

row³ (rou) n. 1. A boisterous disturbance or quarrel; a brawl. See Synonyms at brawl. 2. An uproar; a great noise. — v. intr. rowed, row-ing, rows. To take part in a quarrel, a brawl, or an uproar. [Origin unknown.]

row-an (rō'ən, rou'-) n. A small deciduous European tree (Sorbus aucuparia) of the rose family, having pinnately compound leaves, corymbs of white flowers, and orange-red berries. [Of Scandinavian origin. See reudh- in Appendix.]

row-boat (rō'bōt') n. 1. Nautical. A small boat propelled by oars. 2. Sports. A rowing machine.

row·dy (rou/'dē) n. pl. row·dies. A rough, disorderly person. — adj.

row·di·er, row·di·est. Disorderly; rough: rowdy teenagers; a rowdy beer party.

[Probably from ROW³.] — row/'di·ly adv. — row/'di·ness n. — row/'dy·ism n.

Rowe (rō), Nicholas. 1674-1718. English writer whose works include drama, poetry, and an edition of Shakespeare. He was appointed poet laureate in 1715.

row·el (rou/'əl) n. A sharp-toothed wheel inserted into the end of the shank of a spur. [Middle English, from Old French roelle, diminutive of roue, wheel, from Latin rota. See ret- in Appendix.] — row/'el v.

row·en (rou/'ən) n. New England. A second crop, as of hay, in a season. [Middle English rowein, from Anglo-Norman rewain, variant of Old French regain : re-, re- + gaaignier, to till; see GAIN¹.]

row house (rō hous) n. One of a series of identical houses situated side by side and joined by common walls.

row·ing machine (rō'ɪŋ mə-shēn') n. Sports. A fitness device with oarlike handles, pivoting footrests, and an adjustable sliding seat, used to provide a thorough workout of all major muscle groups in the body.

Row·land Heights (rō'lənd hīts) A community of southern California, a suburb of the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area. Population, 28,252.

Row·land·son (rō'lənd-sən), Thomas. 1756-1827. British caricaturist and illustrator of works by Sterne, Swift, and others.

row·lock (rō'lɒk') n. Chiefly British. An oarlock.

Ro·xas y A·cu·ña (rô'häs ē ä-kōon'yə, -yä), Manuel. 1892-1948. Philippine politician who was the first president of the Republic of the Philippines (1946-1948).

Roy (roi) A city of northern Utah, a suburb of Ogden. Population, 24,603.

roy·al (roi/'əl) adj. Abbr. R. 1. Of or relating to a monarch. 2. Of the rank of a monarch. 3. Of, relating to, or in the service of a kingdom. 4. Issued or performed by a monarch: a royal warrant; a royal visit. 5. Founded, chartered, or authorized by a monarch: a royal society of musicians. 6. Befitting royalty; stately: royal treatment. 7. a. Superior, as in size or quality. b. Used as an intensive: “It would be a first-class royal mess” (Sam Nunn). — n. 1. Informal. A member of a monarch’s family: “Among the resort’s distinguished visitors are Swedish and Spanish royals” (Alistair Scott). 2. Nautical. A sail set on the royalmast. 3. A paper size, 20 by 25 inches for printing, 19 by 24 inches for writing.

—idiom. the royal road. A way or method that presents no difficulties: the royal road to success. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin rēgālis, from rēx, rēg-, king. See reg- in Appendix.] — roy/'al·ly adv.

royal blue (roi/'əl blō) n. Color. A deep to strong blue. — roy/'al·blue' (roi/'əl-blō') adj.

royal fern (roi/'əl fûrn) n. A deep-rooted fern (Osmunda regalis) of worldwide distribution, having tall, upright, bipinnately compound fronds.

royal flush (roi'əl flüş) n. Games. A straight flush consisting of the five highest cards of one suit, ranked as the highest hand in certain games of poker.

Royal Gorge (roi'əl gôrj) A long, narrow canyon formed by the Arkansas River in south-central Colorado. Its near-vertical walls are more than 305 m (1,000 ft) high. The gorge was discovered by Zebulon Pike's expedition in 1806.

royal-ism (roi'ə-liz'əm) n. Support of or adherence to the principle of rule by a monarch.

royal-ist (roi'ə-līst) n. 1. A supporter of government by a monarch.

2. Royalist. a. See cavalier (n., sense 3). b. An American loyal to British rule during the American Revolution; a Tory.

royal jelly (roi'əl jël'ē) n. A nutritious substance secreted by the pharyngeal glands of worker bees that serves as food for all young larvae and as the only food for larvae that will develop into queen bees.

Roy-all (roi'əl), Anne Newport. 1769-1854. American writer known for her travel writing and muckraking journalism.

Royal Leam-ington Spa (roi'əl lēm'ing-tən spä) See Leamington.

royal lily (roi'əl līl'ē) n. A western Chinese lily (Lilium regale) having umbels of very large, fragrant, horizontal, funnel-shaped flowers that are lilac or purple on the outside and white with a yellow base on the inside.

royal-mast also roy-al mast (roi'əl-mäst') n. Nautical. The small mast immediately above the topgallant mast.

Royal Oak (roi'əl ōk) A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 65,410.

royal palm (roi'əl päm) n. Any of several tropical American palm trees of the genus Roystonea having a tall, naked trunk surmounted by a large tuft of pinnately compound leaves.

royal poinciana (roi'əl poin'sē-än'ə) n. A tropical and semitropical tree (Delonix regia) native to Madagascar, having bipinnately compound leaves, clusters of large scarlet flowers, and long pods. Also called flamboyant, poinciana.

royal purple (roi'əl pûr'pəl) n. Color. A moderate or strong violet to deep purple or dark reddish purple. —roy'al-pur'ple (roi'əl-pûr'pəl) adj.

roy-al-ty (roi'əl-tē) n. pl. roy-al-ties. 1. a. A person of royal rank or lineage. b. Monarchs and their families considered as a group. 2. The lineage or rank of a monarch. 3. The power, status, or authority of a monarch. 4. Royal quality or bearing. 5. A kingdom or possession ruled by a monarch. 6. A right or prerogative of the crown, as that of receiving a percentage of the proceeds from mines in the royal domain. 7. a. The granting of a right by a monarch to a corporation or an individual to exploit specified natural resources. b. The payment for such a right. 8. a. A share paid to a writer or composer out of the proceeds resulting from the sale or performance of his or her work. b. A share in the proceeds paid to an inventor or a proprietor for the right to use his or her invention or services.

9. A share of the profit or product reserved by the grantor, especially of an oil or mining lease. In this sense, also called override Royce (rois), Josiah. 1855-1916. American philosopher. The leading American idealist of his day, he contributed to the fields of metaphysics, religion, logic, and mathematics.

R.P. abbr. Received Pronunciation.

RPG (är'pē-jē') n. Computer Science. A programming language used for creating business reports. [r(eport) p(rogram) g(enerator).] rpm or r.p.m. abbr. Revolutions per minute.

rps or r.p.s. abbr. Revolutions per second.

rpt. abbr. 1. Repeat. 2. Report.

R.Q. abbr. Respiratory quotient.

RR also R.R. abbr. 1. Railroad. 2. Rural route.

R.R. abbr. Right Reverend.

RRB abbr. Railroad Retirement Board.

-rrhagia suff. Abnormal or excessive flow or discharge: menorrhagia. [Greek -rragia, from rhēgnunai, rhag-, to burst forth.]

-rrhea or -rrhoea suff. Flow; discharge: seborrhea. [New Latin -rrhoea, from Greek -rrhoia, from rhoia, a flowing, from rhein, to flow. See sreu- in Appendix.]

rRNA abbr. Ribosomal RNA.

RS abbr. 1. Recording secretary. 2. Right side. 3. Also R.S. Royal Society.

r selection (är sī-lĕk'shən) n. Ecology. A form of selection that occurs in an environment with plentiful resources, favoring a reproductive strategy in which many offspring are produced. [r(ate of increase).]

RSFSR or R.S.F.S.R. abbr. Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic.

RSV or R.S.V. abbr. Bible. Revised Standard Version.

R.S.V.P. or r.s.v.p. abbr. French. Répondez s'il vous plaît (please reply).

RT abbr. 1. Radiotelephone. 2. Room temperature.

rt. abbr. Right.

Rt. abbr. Bible. Ruth.

RTA abbr. Ready to assemble.

rte. abbr. Route.

Rt. Hon. abbr. Right Honorable.

Rt. Rev. abbr. Right Reverend.

RTW abbr. Ready-to-wear.

Ru The symbol for the element ruthenium.

RU 486 (är'yōō fôr'ā-tē-sĭks', fôr'-) n. A drug that chemically terminates a pregnancy. [R(oussel) U(CLAF), a French pharmaceutical company + project number 486.]

Ru·an·da (rōō-än'də) See Rwanda.

Ru-an-da-U-run-di (rōō-än'də-ōō-rōon'dē) A former colonial possession of central Africa. A German territory after the Conference of Berlin (1884-1885), it was mandated to Belgium by the League of Nations after World War I. When independence was achieved in 1962, the region split into the present-day countries of Rwanda and Burundi.

rub (rüb) v. rubbed, rub-bing, rubs. — v. tr. 1. a. To subject to the action of something that moves back and forth with friction and pressure. b. To cause to move along a surface with friction and pressure. 2. To irritate; annoy: His laziness was beginning to rub me. — v. intr. 1. a. To move along a surface with friction and pressure. b. To chafe with friction. c. To cause irritation or annoyance. 2. To continue in a given situation, usually with some difficulty: Despite all our problems, we continue to rub along. 3. To admit rubbing: a blackboard that rubs clean easily. 4. To be transferred by contact or proximity: wished some of her luck would rub off on me. — n. 1. The act of rubbing. 2. The application of friction and pressure: a back rub. 3. An unevenness on a surface. 4. An act or a remark that annoys or hurts another. 5. Difficulty: “Ay, there’s the rub” (Shakespeare). — phrasal verbs. rub down. To perform a brisk rubbing of the body, as in massage. rub in. To harp on (an unpleasant matter). rub out. 3. To obliterate by or as if by rubbing. 4. Slang. To kill; murder. — idioms. rub elbows (or rub shoulders). To mix or socialize closely: diplomats rubbing elbows with heads of state. rub (one’s) hands. To experience or display pleased anticipation, self-satisfaction, or glee. rub (someone’s) nose in. Slang. To bring repeatedly and forcefully to another’s attention. rub (someone) the wrong way. To annoy; irritate: “One can see... how [his] expression of his ideals and intentions must have rubbed many people the wrong way” (Christopher Lehmann-Haupt). rub up on. To refresh one’s knowledge of: I have to rub up on my French. [Middle English rubben.]

Rub al Kha-li (rōōb' ä'l kä'lē, ä'l KHä'lē) Sometimes called “the Empty Quarter.” A desert region in the southeast interior of the Arabian Peninsula. Virtually without water and uninhabited, it was first visited by an English explorer in 1932 but has not yet been completely explored.

ru-basse (rōō-bäs', rōō'bäs') n. A variety of quartz colored ruby red by its iron-oxide content. [French rubace, from rubis, ruby. See RUBY.]

ru-ba-to (rōō-bä'tō) Music. n. pl. ru-ba-tos. Rhythmic flexibility within a phrase or measure; a relaxation of strict time. — adj. Containing or characterized by rubato. [Italian (tempo) rubato, stolen (time), rubato, past participle of rubare, to rob, of Germanic origin. See reup- in Appendix.]

rub-ber¹ (rüb'ər) n. 1. A yellowish, amorphous, elastic material obtained from the milky sap or latex of various tropical plants, especially the rubber tree, and vulcanized, pigmented, finished, and modified into products such as electric insulation, elastic bands and belts, tires, and containers. Also called caoutchouc, India rubber. 2. Any of numerous synthetic elastic materials of varying chemical composition with properties similar to those of natural rubber. 3. A low overshoe made of rubber. 4. Baseball. The oblong piece of hard rubber on which the pitcher must stand when delivering the ball. 5. Something made of rubber, as:

a. An eraser. b. A tire. c. A set of tires on a vehicle. 6. Slang. A condom.

7. One that rubs, especially one that gives a massage. [From RUB.]

rub-ber² (rüb'ər) n. Abbr. r. Games. 1. A series of games of which two out of three or three out of five must be won to terminate the play. 2. An odd game played to break a tie. [Origin unknown.]

rubber band (rüb'ər bänd) n. An elastic loop of natural or synthetic rubber used to hold objects together. Regional. Also called gum band rub-ber-base paint (rüb'ər-bās' pānt) n. See latex paint.

rubber bullet (rüb'ər bööl'it) n. A hard rubber bullet for a riot gun used especially by military personnel and law enforcement officers in crowd control.

rubber cement (rüb'ər sī-měnt') n. Nonvulcanized rubber in an organic solvent, used as an adhesive.

rubber check (rüb'ər chěk) n. Slang. A check returned by a bank because of insufficient funds in the account on which it is drawn.

rub-ber-chick-en circuit (rüb'ər-chīk'ən sūr'kīt) n. Informal. A monotonous series of events, such as lunches and dinners often featuring chicken, which politicians and heads of state feel compelled to attend.

rub-ber-ize (rüb'ə-rīz') v. tr. rub-ber-ized, rub-ber-iz-ing, rub-ber-iz-es. To coat, treat, or impregnate with rubber.

rub-ber-neck (rüb'ər-něk') Slang. v. intr. rub-ber-necked, rub-ber-neck-ing, rub-ber-necks. To look about or survey with unsophisticated wonderment or curiosity. — n. A rubbernecker.

rub-ber-neck-er (rüb'ər-něk'ər) n. Slang. A gawking onlooker.

rubber plant (rüb'ər plānt) n. 1. Any of several tropical plants yielding sap that can be coagulated to form crude rubber. 2. A small tree (Ficus elastica) that has large, oblong, glossy, leathery leaves and is a popular house plant.

rubber stamp also rub-ber-stamp (rüb'ər-stāmp') n. 1. rubber stamp. A piece of rubber affixed to a handle and bearing raised characters used to make ink impressions, as of names or dates. 2. A person or body that gives perfunctory approval or endorsement of a policy without assessing its merit. 3. A perfunctory approval or endorsement.

rub-ber-stamp (rüb'ər-stāmp') v. tr. rub-ber--stamped, rub-ber--stamp-ing, rub-ber--stamps. 1. To mark with the imprint of a rubber stamp. 2. To endorse, vote for, or approve without question or deliberation.

rubber tree (rüb'ər trē) n. A tropical South American tree (Hevea brasiliensis) widely cultivated throughout the Tropics and yielding a milky juice that is a major source of commercial rubber.

rub·ber·y (rüb'ə-rē) adj. rub·ber·i·er, rub·ber·i·est. Of or resembling rubber; elastic.

Rub·bi·a (rōō'bē-ə, rōō'byä), Carlo. Born 1934. Italian physicist. He shared a 1984 Nobel Prize for the discovery of three subatomic particles.

rub·bing (rüb'ing) n. 1. The act of polishing, cleaning, or drying. 2. A representation of a raised or indented surface made by placing paper over the surface and rubbing the paper gently with a marking agent such as charcoal or chalk.

rub·bish (rüb'ish) n. 1. Refuse; garbage. 2. Worthless material. 3. Foolish discourse; nonsense. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: rub-bish collection; a rubbish pail. [Middle English robishe.] rub·bish·y (rüb'ī-shē) adj. 1. Littered with rubbish. 2. Of no value; worthless.

rub·ble (rüb'əl) n. 1. A loose mass of angular fragments of rock or masonry crumbled by natural or human forces. 2. a. Irregular fragments or pieces of rock used in masonry. b. The masonry made with such rocks. [Middle English rubel.] —rub'bly adj.

rub·ble·work (rüb'əl-wûrk') n. Masonry made with rubble.

rub·down (rüb'doun') n. An energetic massage of the body.

rube (rōōb) n. Slang. An unsophisticated country fellow. [Probably from Rube, nickname for Reuben.] ru·be·fa·cient (rōō'bə-fā'shənt) adj. Producing redness, as of the skin. — n. A substance that irritates the skin, causing redness. [Latin rubefaciēns, rubefacient- present participle of rubefacere, to make red : rubeus, red; see reudh- in Appendix + facere, to make; see dhē- in Appendix.] —ru'be·fac'tion (-fäk'shən) n.

Rube Goldberg (rōōb' göld'bûrg') adj. Of, relating to, or being a contrivance that brings about by complicated means what apparently could have been accomplished simply. [After Reuben Lucius GOLDBERG.]

WORD HISTORY: When we are told in the November 9, 1978, issue of Nature that “Orchids are Rube Goldberg machines; a perfect engineer would certainly have come up with something better,” we see a recent example of how a proper name has worked its way into the language as a common word. Reuben (“Rube”) Lucius Goldberg (1883-1970) was an American cartoonist who delighted his readers with drawings of contrivances that used complicated means to perform what otherwise could be accomplished quite simply. For example, a device to shell an egg is tripped when one picks up the morning paper from the kitchen table. In doing so, one pulls a string that opens the door of a birdcage, releasing a bird that follows a trail of birdseed up a platform. The bird falling off the platform into a pitcher of water splashes water onto a flower that grows, pushing up a rod that causes a pistol to fire. A monkey scared by the shot hits his head against a bumper attached to a razor that cuts into the egg, loosening the shell, which falls into a ru·bel·la (rōō-běł'ə) n. A mild, contagious, eruptive disease caused by a virus and capable of producing congenital defects in infants born to mothers infected during the first three months of pregnancy. Also called German measles [From Latin, neuter pl. of rubellus, red, from ruber. See reudh- in Appendix.]

ru·bel·lite (rōō'bə-līt', rōō-běł'it) n. The red variety of tourmaline, used as a gemstone. [Latin rubellus, red; see RUBELLA + -ITE¹.]

Ru·bens (rōō'bənz), Peter Paul. 1577-1640. Flemish painter. A master of the baroque, he executed many portraits and exuberant works of allegorical, historical, and religious themes, including Descent from the Cross (1611-1614).

—Ru·ben·esque' (rōō'bə-něsk') adj.

ru·be·o·la (rōō-bē'ə-lə, rōō'bē-ō'lə) n. See measles (n., sense 1a). [From Latin, neuter pl. diminutive of rubeus, red. See reudh- in Appendix.]

—ru·be·o·lar adj.

ru·bes·cent (rōō-běs'ənt) adj. Turning red; reddening. [Latin rubescēns, rubescēt- present participle of rubescere, to grow red inchoative of rubēre, to be red. See reudh- in Appendix.] —ru·bes'cence n.

Ru·bi·con (rōō'bī-kŏn') n. A limit that when passed or exceeded permits of no return and typically results in irrevocable commitment. [Latin Rubicō Rubicōn-, Rubicon, a short river of north-central Italy, the crossing of which by Julius Caesar and his army in 49 B.C. began a civil war.]

ru·bi·cund (rōō'bī-kənd) adj. Inclined to a healthy rosininess; ruddy. [Latin rubicundus. See reudh- in Appendix.] —ru·bi·cun'di·ty (-kŭn'dī-tē) n.

ru·bid·i·um (rōō-bīd'ē-əm) n. Symbol Rb A soft silvery-white metallic element of the alkali group that ignites spontaneously in air and reacts violently with water, used in photocells and in the manufacture of vacuum tubes. Atomic number 37; atomic weight 85.47; melting point 38.89°C; boiling point 688°C; specific gravity (solid) 1.532; valence 1, 2, 3, 4. [From Latin rubidus, red. See reudh- in Appendix.]

ru·big·i·nous (rōō-bīj'ə-nəs) also ru·big·i·nose (-nŏs') adj. Rust-colored; reddish-brown. [Latin rūbiginōsus, from rūbigo, rūbigin-, rust, from rōbus, red. See reudh- in Appendix.]

Ru·bin·stein (rōō'bīn-stīn'), Anton Gregor. 1829-1894. Russian pianist and composer who founded the St. Petersburg Conservatory (1862). His compositions include chamber music, operas, and six symphonies.

Ru·bin·stein (rōō'bīn-stīn'), Arthur or Artur. 1887-1982. Polish-born American pianist particularly known for his interpretations of the works of Chopin.

ru·bi·ous (rōō'bē-əs) adj. Of the color of a ruby; red.

ru·ble also rou·ble (rōō'bəl) n. Abbr. r. A basic unit of currency in Russia. See Table at currency. [Russian rubl', from Old Russian rublŭ, cut, piece (probably originally a piece cut from a silver bar), from rubiti, to chop, hew. See reup- in Appendix.]

rub-off or rub-off (rüb'ôf', -ôf') n. A repercussion.

rub-out (rüb'out') n. Slang. Murder; destruction.

ru-bre-dox-in (rōō'brī-dok'sīn) n. An electron-carrying protein associated with oxidation-reduction reactions in anaerobic bacteria and eukaryotic cells. [Latin ruber, rubr-, red; see RUBRIC + REDOX + -IN.]

ru-bric (rōō'brik) n. 1. a. A class or category: "This mission is sometimes discussed under the rubric of 'horizontal escalation'... from conventional to nuclear war" (Jack Beatty). b. A title; a name. 2. A part of a manuscript or book, such as a title, a heading, or an initial letter, that appears in decorative red lettering or is otherwise distinguished from the rest of the text. 3. A title or heading of a statute or chapter in a code of law. 4. Ecclesiastical. A direction in a missal, hymnal, or other liturgical book. 5. An authoritative rule or direction. 6. A short commentary or explanation covering a broad subject. 7. Red ocher. — adj. 1. Color. Red or reddish. 2. Written in red. [Middle English rubrike, from Old French rubrique, from Latin rūbrīca, red chalk, from ruber, rubr-, red. See reudh- in Appendix.] — ru'bri-cal adj.

ru-bri-cate (rōō'brī-kāt') v. tr. ru-bri-cat-ed, ru-bri-cat-ing, ru-bri-cates.

1. To arrange, write, or print as a rubric. 2. To provide with rubrics. 3. To establish rules for. [Late Latin rūbrīcāre, rūbrīcāt-, to color red, from Latin rūbrīcātus, rubricated, from rūbrīca, rubric. See RUBRIC.] — ru'bri-ca'tion n. — ru'bri-ca'-tor n.

ru-bri-cian (rōō-brīsh'ən) n. Ecclesiastical. A person learned in the rubrics of ritual.

ru-by (rōō'bē) n. pl. ru-bies. 1. A deep red, translucent variety of the mineral corundum, highly valued as a precious stone. 2. Something, such as a watch bearing, that is made from a ruby. 3. Color. A dark or deep red to deep purplish red. — adj. Color. Of the color ruby. [Middle English, from Old French rubi, from Medieval Latin rubīnus (lapis), red (stone), ruby, from Latin rubeus, red. See reudh- in Appendix.]

ruby laser (rōō'bē lā'zər) n. A laser that uses a ruby crystal to produce an intense, narrow beam of coherent red light, used in light-transmission communication and for localized heating.

ru-by-throat-ed hummingbird (rōō'bē-thrō'tīd hūm'īng-būrd') n. A small bird (Archilochus colubris) of eastern North America, having metallic-green upper plumage and, in the male, a brilliant red throat.

ru-che (rōōsh) n. A ruffle or pleat of lace, muslin, or other fine fabric used for trimming women's garments. [French, from Old French rusche, beehive, from Medieval Latin rūsca, bark of a tree (used for making beehives), of Celtic origin.]

ruck¹ (rük) n. 1. a. A multitude; a throng. b. The undistinguished crowd or ordinary run of persons or things. 2. People who are followers, not leaders. [Middle English ruke, heap, probably of Scandinavian origin.]

ruck² (rük) v. rucked, ruck-ing, rucks. — v. tr. To make a fold in; crease. — v. intr. To become creased. — n. A crease or pucker, as in cloth. [Ultimately from Old Norse hrukka, wrinkle, fold. See sker⁻² in Appendix.]

ruck-sack (rük'säk', rōök'-) n. A knapsack. [German : dialectal Ruck, back (from Middle High German rück, ruck, from Old High German hrukki); see sker⁻² in Appendix + Sack, sack (from Middle High German sac, from Old High German, from Latin saccus); see SACK¹.]

ruck-us (rük'əs) n. A disturbance; a commotion: "Little was heard by us in the upper regions of the considerable ruckus (and surely the heartbreak) being endured some floors below" (Brendan Gill). [Perhaps blend of RUCTION, and RUMPUS.]

ruc-tion (rük'shən) n. A riotous disturbance; a noisy quarrel. See Synonyms at brawl. [Possibly alteration of INSURRECTION.]

Ru·da Śląs·ka (rōō'də shlôn'skə) A city of south-central Poland, a suburb of Katowice in a mining area. Population, 164,600.

rudd (rüd) n. A European freshwater fish (Scardinius erythrophthalmus) related to the carp and having a brownish body and red fins. [Probably from rud, red. See RUDDLE.]

rud·der (rüd'ər) n. 1. a. Nautical. A vertically hinged plate of metal, fiberglass, or wood mounted at the stern of a vessel for directing its course. b. A similar structure at the tail of an aircraft, used for effecting horizontal changes in course. 2. A controlling agent or influence over direction; a guide. [Middle English ruder, from Old English rōther, steering oar. See er- in Appendix.]

rud·der·fish (rüd'ər-fish') n. pl. rudderfish or rud·der·fish·es. Any of several oval-shaped schooling fishes of the family Kyphosidae, found in tropical parts of the Atlantic and often sighted swimming behind ships.

rud·der·less (rüd'ər-līs) adj. 1. Lacking in direction, control, or coherence: the confused and rudderless financial markets; characterized the administration's Central American policy as rudderless. 2. Nautical. Lacking a rudder or a crew member at the rudder.

rud·der·post (rüd'ər-pōst') n. See rudderstock.

rud·der·stock (rüd'ər-stök') n. The vertical shaft of a rudder that allows it to pivot when the tiller or steering gear is operated. Also called rudderpost rud·dle (rüd'l) also red·dle (rēd'l) or rad·dle (räd'l) n. Red ochreous iron ore, used in dyeing and marking. — v. tr. rud·dled, rud·dling, rud·dles. To dye or mark with or as if with red ocher: ruddle sheep. [Probably diminutive of rud, red, from Middle English rudde, from Old English rudu. See reudh- in Appendix.]

rud·dock (rüd'ək) n. Chiefly British. An Old World robin (Erithacus rubecula) having olive-brown upper plumage and a conspicuous orange breast. [Middle English ruddok, from Old English rudduc. See reudh- in Appendix.]

rud·dy (rüd'ē) adj. rud·di·er, rud·di·est. 1. a. Having a healthy, reddish color. b. Reddish; rosy. 2. Chiefly British. Used as an intensive: “You ruddy liar!” (John Galsworthy). [Middle English rudi, from Old English rudig. See reudh- in Appendix.] —rud'di·ly adv. —rud'di·ness n.

ruddy duck (rüd'ē dük) n. A North American duck (Oxyura jamaicensis) having stiff, pointed tail feathers and, in the male, brownish-red upper plumage and a black-and-white head. Also called sprigtail rude (rōd) adj. rud·er, rud·est. 1. Relatively undeveloped; primitive: a rude and savage land; a rude agricultural implement. 2. a. Being in a crude, rough, unfinished condition: a rude thatched hut. b. Exhibiting a marked lack of skill or precision in work: rude crafts. c. In a natural, raw state: bales of rude cotton. 3. a. Lacking the graces and refinement of civilized life; uncouth. b. Lacking education or knowledge; unlearned. c. Ill-mannered; discourteous: rude behavior. 4. Vigorous, robust, and sturdy. 5. Abruptly and unpleasantly forceful: received a rude shock. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin rudis.] —rude'ly adv. —rude'ness n.

SYNONYMS: rude, crude, primitive, raw, rough. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “marked by a lack of skill and finish”: a rude hut; a crude drawing; primitive kitchen facilities; a raw wooden canoe; a rough sketch.

ru·der·al (rōd'dər-əl) Botany. adj. Growing in rubbish, poor land, or waste. — n. A plant that grows in rubbish, poor land, or waste. [New Latin rūderālis, from Latin rūdus, rūder-, rubbish.]

ru·di·ment (rōd'də-mənt) n. 1. Often rudiments. A fundamental element, principle, or skill, as of a field of learning. 2. Often rudiments. Something in an incipient or undeveloped form: the rudiments of social behavior in children; the rudiments of a plan of action. 3. Biology. An imperfectly or incompletely developed organ or part. [Latin rudimentum, from rudis, rough, unformed.] —ru'di·men'tal (-mĕn'tl) adj.

ru·di·men·ta·ry (rōd'də-mĕn'tə-rē, -mĕn'trē) adj. 1. Of or relating to basic facts or principles; elementary. 2. Being in the earliest stages of development; incipient. 3. Biology. Imperfectly or incompletely developed; embryonic: a rudimentary beak. —ru'di·men·tar'i·ly (-târ'ə-lē) adv. —ru'di·men'ta·ri·ness n.

Ru·dolf (rōd'dölf), 1858-1889. Austrian crown prince. The controversially liberal heir to Francis Joseph I, he was found dead with his mistress in Mayerling, his hunting lodge near Vienna. Officially deemed a double suicide, the suspicious event was never fully investigated.

Ru·dolf I (rōō'dōlf), 1218-1291. Holy Roman emperor (1273-1291) and founder of the Hapsburg dynasty.

Rudolf, Lake. See Lake Turkana.

Ru·dolph (rōō'dōlf), Wilma Glodean. 1940-1994. American athlete who won gold medals in the 1960 Olympics in the 100-meter dash, 200-meter dash, and 400-meter relay race.

rue¹ (rōō) v. rued, ru-ing, rues. — v. tr. To feel regret, remorse, or sorrow for. — v. intr. To feel regret, remorse, or sorrow. — n. Sorrow; regret: "To their rue, the Social Democrats have to acknowledge that the Conservative-Liberal coalition has captured the center where elections are won" (Elizabeth Pond). [Middle English ruen, from Old English hrēowan, to affect with grief, and hrēowian, to repent.] —ru'er n.

rue² (rōō) n. Any of various aromatic southwest Asian or Mediterranean plants of the genus Ruta, especially the ornamental R. graveolens, having bipinnately compound leaves that yield an acrid, volatile oil formerly used in medicine. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin rūta, probably from Greek rhutē.]

rue anemone (rōō ə-nēm'ə-nē) n. A small North American woodland plant (Anemonella thalictroides) having white or pinkish apetalous flowers grouped in umbels.

rue·ful (rōō'fəl) adj. 1. Inspiring pity or compassion. 2. Causing, feeling, or expressing sorrow or regret. —rue'ful·ly adv. —rue'ful·ness n.

Ru·eil·Mal·mai·son (rōō-ā'mäl-mā-zōN', rü-ě'yə-) A town of north-central France on the Seine River west of Paris. It is an industrial center and the site of a museum housed in the former estate of Malmaison, where Napoleon lived from 1800 to 1804. Population, 63,412.

ru·fes·cent (rōō-fēs'ənt) adj. Tinged with red. [Latin rūfescēns, rūfescēnt-present participle of rūfescere, to become red, from rūfus, red, reddish. See reudh- in Appendix.] —ru·fes'cence n.

ruff¹ (rűf) n. 1. A stiffly starched frilled or pleated circular collar of lace, muslin, or other fine fabric, worn by men and women in the 16th and 17th centuries. 2. A distinctive collarlike projection around the neck, as of feathers on a bird or of fur on a mammal. 3. A Eurasian sandpiper (Philomachus pugnax) the male of which has collarlike, erectile feathers around the neck during the breeding season. [Perhaps short for RUFFLE¹.] —ruffed adj.

ruff² (rűf) Games. n. 1. The playing of a trump card when one cannot follow suit. 2. An old game resembling whist. — v. tr. intr. ruffed, ruff-ing, ruffs. To trump or play a trump. [Obsolete French ronfle, roffle, a kind of card game, from Old French ronfle, from renfler, to rise : re-, re- + enfler, to cause to swell (from Latin inflāre); see INFLATE.]

ruff³ (rŭf) n. A small European freshwater fish (Acerina cernua) related to the perch. [Middle English ruffe, probably from Medieval Latin rufus, a kind of fish.]

ruffed grouse (rŭft grous) n. A chickenlike North American game bird (Bonasa umbellus) having mottled brownish plumage and noted for the drumming sounds the male makes with its wings. Also called birch partridge ruffed lemur (rŭft lē'mər) n. A chiefly nocturnal lemur (Lemur variegatus) of Madagascar that has a black and white coat with a fluffy white ruff and makes nests.

ruf·fi·an (rŭf'ē-ən, rŭf'yən) n. 1. A tough or rowdy fellow. 2. A thug or gangster. [French, pimp, from Old French rufien, from Old Provençal rufian, from Old Italian ruffiano.] —ruf'fi-an-ism n. —ruf'fi-an-ly adj.

ruf·fle¹ (rŭf'əl) n. 1. A strip of frilled or closely pleated fabric used for trimming or decoration. 2. A ruff on a bird. 3. a. A ruckus or fray. b. Annoyance; vexation. 4. An irregularity or a slight disturbance of a surface. — v. ruf·fled, ruf·fling, ruf·fles. — v. tr. 1. To disturb the smoothness or regularity of; ripple. 2. To pleat or gather (fabric) into a ruffle. 3. To erect (the feathers). Used of birds. 4. To discompose; fluster: a book that is bound to ruffle some people. 5. To flip through (the pages of a book). 6. Games. To shuffle (cards). — v. intr.

1. To become irregular or rough. 2. To flutter. 3. To become flustered. [From Middle English ruffelen, to roughen.]

ruf·fle² (rŭf'əl) Music. n. A low continuous beating of a drum that is not as loud as a roll. — v. tr. ruf·fled, ruf·fling, ruf·fles. To beat a ruffle on (a drum). [Perhaps from frequentative of ruff, a drum roll, perhaps of imitative origin.]

ruf·fle³ (rŭf'əl) v. intr. ruf·fled, ruf·fling, ruf·fles. To behave arrogantly or roughly; swagger. [Middle English ruffelen, to quarrel.] —ruf'fler n.

ru·fi·yaa (rōō'fē-yä') n. A basic unit of currency in Maldives. See Table at currency. [Hindi rupayā, rupiyā, from rūpyam, silver coin. See RUPEE.]

ru·fous (rōō'fəs) adj. Color. Strong yellowish pink to moderate orange; reddish. [From Latin rūfus, red. See reudh- in Appendix.]

rufous hummingbird (rōō'fəs hŭm'ing-bŭrd') n. A hummingbird (Selasphorus rufus) of western North America, distributed from Mexico to Alaska, having rufous upper parts in the male.

rug (rŭg) n. 1. A heavy fabric used to cover a floor. 2. An animal skin used as a floor covering. 3. Chiefly British. A piece of thick, warm fabric or fur used as a coverlet or lap robe. 4. Slang. A toupee. [Of Scandinavian origin.]

ru·ga (rōō'gə) n. pl. ru·gae (-gē', -gī'). Biology. A fold, crease, or wrinkle, as in the lining of the stomach. Often used in the plural. [Latin rūga.] —ru'gate' (-gāt') adj.

Rug-by¹ (rŭg'bē) A municipal borough of central England east-southeast of Birmingham. It is noted primarily as the site of Rugby School, opened in 1574, where the game of Rugby was developed in the 19th century. Population, 59,564.

Rug-by² (rŭg'bē) n. Sports. A form of football in which players on two competing teams may kick, dribble, or run with the ball and in which forward passing, substitution of players, and time-outs are not permitted. [After Rugby School, England.]

Rugby shirt (rŭg'bē shŭrt) n. A knit pullover sports shirt typically having long sleeves, a white collar and neckline, front button closure, and bold horizontal team stripes.

Rü-gen (rōō'gən, rü'-) An island of northeast Germany in the Baltic Sea. Separated from the mainland by a narrow channel, it was seized by Denmark in 1168, passed to Pomerania in 1325 and to Sweden in 1648, and became part of Prussia in 1815.

rug-ged (rŭg'id) adj. 1. Having a rough, irregular surface. See Synonyms at rough. 2. Having strong features marked with furrows or wrinkles: the rugged face of the old sailor. 3. Having a sturdy build or strong constitution: a rugged trapper who spent months in the wilderness. 4. Tempestuous; stormy: the rugged weather of the North Atlantic. 5. Demanding great effort, ability, or endurance: the rugged conditions of barracks life. 6. Lacking culture or polish; coarse and rude: rugged manners and ribald wit. [Middle English, shaggy, of Scandinavian origin.] —rug'ged-ly adv. —rug'ged-ness n.

rug-ger (rŭg'ər) n. Chiefly British. Rugby. [Alteration of RUGBY².]

ru-gose (rōō'gōs') also ru-gous (-gəs) adj. 1. Having many wrinkles or creases; ridged or wrinkled. 2. Botany. Having a rough, wrinkled surface, as in certain prominently veined leaves. [Latin rŭgōsus, from rŭga, wrinkle.] —ru'-gose'ly adv. —ru-gos'i-ty (-gōs'ī-tē) n.

Ruhr (rōōr) A region of northwest Germany along and north of the Ruhr River, which flows about 233 km (145 mi) westward to the Rhine River near Duisburg. The industrial development of the region began in the 19th century.

ru-in (rōō'in) n. 1. Total destruction or disintegration, either physical, moral, social, or economic. 2. A cause of total destruction. 3. a. The act of destroying totally. b. A destroyed person, object, or building. 4. Often ruins. The remains of something destroyed, disintegrated, or decayed: studied the ruins of ancient Greece. — v. ru-ined, ru-in-ing, ru-ins. — v. tr. 1. To destroy completely; demolish. 2. To harm irreparably. 3. To reduce to poverty or bankruptcy. 4. To deprive of chastity. — v. intr. To fall into ruin. [Middle English ruine, from Old French, from Latin ruīna, from ruere, to rush, collapse.] —ru'in-a-ble adj. —ru'in-er n.

SYNONYMS: ruin, raze, demolish, destroy, wreck. These verbs mean to injure and deprive something—or, less often, someone—of usefulness, soundness, or value. Ruin usually implies irretrievable harm but not necessarily total destruction: The fire ruined the books in the library. “You will ruin no more lives as you ruined mine” (Arthur Conan Doyle). Raze, to level to the ground, demolish, to pull down or break to pieces, and the more general destroy, to tear down, can all imply reduction to ruins or even complete obliteration: “raze what was left of the city from the surface of the earth” (John Lothrop Motley). The conquerors tried to raze the very name of the people’s national hero from their memories. Both of the cars involved were demolished in the accident. The prosecutor demolished the opposition’s argument. “It became necessary to destroy the town in order to save it” (Anonymous major in Vietnam). “I saw the best minds of my generation destroyed by madness” (Allen Ginsberg). To wreck is to ruin in or as if in a violent collision: “The Boers had just wrecked a British military train” (Arnold Bennett). When wreck is used in its extended sense, as in referring to the ruination of a person or his or her hopes or reputation, it implies irreparable shattering: “Coleridge, poet and philosopher wrecked in a mist of opium” (Matthew Arnold).

ru·in·ate (rōō’ə-nāt’) adj. Having been ruined. [Medieval Latin ruīnātus, from Latin ruīna, ruin. See RUIN.]

ru·in·a·tion (rōō’ə-nā’shən) n. 1. The act of ruining or the condition of being ruined. 2. A cause of ruin.

ru·in·ous (rōō’ə-nəs) adj. 1. Causing or apt to cause ruin; destructive.

2. Falling to ruin; dilapidated or decayed. —ru’in·ous·ly adv.

—ru’in·ous·ness n.

Ruis·dael or Ruys·dael (rīz’däl’, rīs’-, rois’-), Jacob van. 1628?-1682.

Dutch landscape painter whose baroque works, such as Windmill at Wijk (c. 1665), depict the majesty of nature.

Ru·key·ser (rōō’kī-zər), Muriel. 1913-1980. American writer whose feminist poetry, including the collections Beast in View (1944) and The Gates (1976), often speaks out against racism and war.

rule (rōōl) n. 1. a. Governing power or its possession or use; authority. b. The duration of such power. 2. a. An authoritative, prescribed direction for conduct, especially one of the regulations governing procedure in a legislative body or a regulation observed by the players in a game, sport, or contest. b. The body of regulations prescribed by the founder of a religious order for governing the conduct of its members. 3. A usual, customary, or generalized course of action or behavior: “The rule of life in the defense bar ordinarily is to go along and get along” (Scott Turow). 4. A generalized statement that describes what is true in most or all cases: In this office, hard work is the rule, not the exception.

5. Mathematics. A standard method or procedure for solving a class of problems.

6. Law. a. A court order limited in application to a specific case. b. A subordinate regulation governing a particular matter. 7. See ruler (n., sense 2).

8. Printing. A thin metal strip of various widths and designs, used to print borders or lines, as between columns. — v. ruled, rul-ing, rules. — v. tr. 1. To exercise control, dominion, or direction over; govern. 2. To dominate by powerful influence. 3. To decide or declare authoritatively or judicially; decree. See Synonyms at decide. 4. a. To mark with straight parallel lines. b. To mark (a straight line), as with a ruler. — v. intr. 1. To be in total control or command; exercise supreme authority. 2. To formulate and issue a decree or decision. 3. To prevail at a particular level or rate: Prices ruled low. — phrasal verb. rule out. 1. To prevent; preclude: The snowstorm ruled out their weekly meeting. 2. To remove from consideration; exclude: The option of starting over has been ruled out. — idiom. as a rule. In general; for the most part: As a rule, we take the bus. [Middle English reule, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin regula*, from Latin rēgula, rod, principle. See reg- in Appendix.] — rul/a-ble adj.

ruled surface (rōōld sūr'fəs) n. A surface, such as a cone or cylinder, generated by the motion of a straight line.

rule of engagement (rōōl ūv ěn-gāj'mənt) n. pl. rules of engagement. A directive issued by competent military authority that delineates the limitations and circumstances under which forces will initiate and prosecute combat engagement with other forces encountered.

rule of the road (rōōl ūv thē rōd) n. pl. rules of the road. 1. A set of customary practices, especially for the operation of a motor vehicle, a boat, or an aircraft, established to promote efficiency and safety. Often used in the plural. 2. A set of established rules or practices, usually unstated, intended to minimize confusion or conflict. Often used in the plural: "Great powers... wishing to avoid war could resort to one of three tools: condominium, spheres of influence or rules of the road" (Charles William Maynes).

rule of thumb (rōōl ūv thŭm) n. pl. rules of thumb. A useful principle having wide application but not intended to be strictly accurate or reliable in every situation.

rul-er (rōō'lər) n. 1. One, such as a monarch or dictator, that rules or governs. 2. A straightedged strip, as of wood or metal, for drawing straight lines and measuring lengths. In this sense, also called rule rul-ing (rōō'lɪŋ) adj. 1. Exercising control or authority: the ruling junta; ruling circles of the government. 2. Predominant: the ruling principle. — n. 1. The act of governing or controlling. 2. An authoritative or official decision: a court ruling.

rul-y (rōō'lē) adj. ru-li-er, ru-li-est. Neat and orderly: "A small, ruly beard balances his hair" (Whitney Balliett). [Back-formation from UNRULY.]

rum¹ (rŭm) n. 1. An alcoholic liquor distilled from fermented molasses or sugar cane. 2. Intoxicating beverages. [Probably short for obsolete rumbullion.]

rum² (rŭm) adj. rum·mer, rum·mest. Chiefly British. 1. Odd; strange.

2. Presenting danger or difficulty. [Origin unknown.]

ru·ma·ki (rə-mä'kē) n. pl. ru·ma·kis. An appetizer of Japanese origin consisting of a marinated piece of chicken liver and a water chestnut wrapped in a slice of bacon and grilled or broiled. [Origin unknown.]

Ru·ma·ni·a (rōō-mā'nē-ə, -mān'yə) See Romania.

Ru·ma·ni·an (rōō-mā'nē-ən, -mān'yən) adj. & n. Variant of Romanian.

rum·ba also rhum·ba (rŭm'bə, rōōm'-, rōōm'-) n. 1. A complex rhythmical dance that originated in Cuba. 2. A modern ballroom adaptation of this dance. [American Spanish, from Spanish rumbo, ship's course, revelry, pomp. See RHUMB.] —rum'ba v.

rum·ble (rŭm'bəl) v. rum·bled, rum·bling, rum·bles. — v. intr. 1. To make a deep, long, rolling sound. 2. To move or proceed with a deep, long, rolling sound. 3. Slang. To engage in a gang fight. — v. tr. 1. To utter with a deep, long, rolling sound. 2. To polish or mix (metal parts) in a tumbling box. — n. 1. A deep, long, rolling sound. 2. A tumbling box. 3. A luggage compartment or servant's seat in the rear of a carriage. 4. Slang. a. Pervasive, widespread expression of unrest or dissatisfaction. b. A gang fight. [Middle English romblen, perhaps from Middle Dutch rommelen, or from Middle Low German rummeln.] —rum'bler n. —rum'bling-ly adv. —rum'bly adj.

rumble seat (rŭm'bəl sēt) n. An uncovered passenger seat that opens out from the rear of an automobile.

rum·bus·tious (rŭm-bŭs'chəs) adj. Uncontrollably exuberant; unruly: "Common to both his illustrations and his independent paintings... and lurking below their rumbustious surface, is a sympathy for the vulnerability of the ordinary human being" (Christopher Andreae). [Probably alteration of ROBUSTIOUS.]

—rum·bus'tious-ly adv. —rum·bus'tious-ness n.

ru·men (rōō'mən) n. pl. ru·mi·na (-mə-nə) or ru·mens. The first division of the stomach of a ruminant animal, in which most food collects immediately after being swallowed and from which it is later returned to the mouth as cud for thorough chewing. Also called paunch [Latin rūmen, throat.] —ru'mi·nal adj.

ru·mi·nant (rōō'mə-nənt) n. Any of various hoofed, even-toed, usually horned mammals of the suborder Ruminantia, such as cattle, sheep, goats, deer, and giraffes, characteristically having a stomach divided into four compartments and chewing a cud consisting of regurgitated, partially digested food. — adj.

1. Characterized by the chewing of cud. 2. Of or belonging to the Ruminantia. 3. Meditative; contemplative. [From Latin rūmināns, rūminant- present participle of rūmināre, to ruminate. See RUMINATE.]

ru·mi·nate (rōō'mə-nāt') v. ru·mi·nat·ed, ru·mi·nat·ing, ru·mi·nates. — v. intr. 1. To turn a matter over and over in the mind. See Synonyms at ponder. 2. To chew cud. — v. tr. To reflect on over and over again. [Latin rūmināre, rūmināt-, from rūmen, rūmin-, throat.] —ru'/mi-na'tive adj. —ru'/mi-na'-tive-ly adv. —ru'/mi-na'tor n.

ru-mi-na-tion (rōō'mə-nā'shən) n. 1. The act of pondering; meditation.

2. The act or process of chewing cud.

rum-mage (rüm'ij) v. rum-maged, rum-mag-ing, rum-mag-es. — v. tr.

1. To search thoroughly by handling, turning over, or disarranging the contents of. 2. To discover by searching thoroughly. — v. intr. To make an energetic, usually hasty search. — n. 1. A thorough search among a number of things.

2. A confusion of miscellaneous articles. [From earlier romage, act of packing cargo, from French arrumage, from Old French, from arumer, to stow, from Old Provençal arumar: a-, to (from Latin ad-); see AD- + perhaps run, ship's hold (of Germanic origin); see reuə- in Appendix.] —rum'/mag-er n.

rummage sale (rüm'ij sāl) n. 1. A sale of assorted secondhand objects contributed by donors to raise money for a charity. 2. A sale, especially of unclaimed or excess goods, as at a warehouse or wharf.

rum-mer (rüm'ər) n. A large drinking cup or glass. [German Römer, from Dutch roemer, from roem, praise, from Middle Dutch.]

rum-my¹ (rüm'ē) n. Games. A card game, played in many variations, in which the object is to obtain sets of three or more cards of the same rank or suit. [Origin unknown.]

rum-my² (rüm'ē) n. pl. rum-mies. Slang. A drunkard.

rum-my³ (rüm'ē) adj. rum-mi-er, rum-mi-est. Chiefly British. Odd, strange, or dangerous; rum.

ru-mor (rōō'mər) n. Unverified information of uncertain origin usually spread by word of mouth; hearsay. — v. tr. ru-mored, ru-mor-ing, ru-mors. To spread or tell by rumor. [Middle English rumour, from Old French, from Latin rūmor.]

ru-mor-mon-ger (rōō'mər-müŋ'gər, -mōŋ'-) n. One that spreads rumors. — v. intr. ru-mor-mon-gered, ru-mor-mon-ger-ing, ru-mor-mon-gers. To engage in the spreading of rumors.

ru-mour (rōō'mər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of rumor.

rump (rŭmp) n. 1. The fleshy hindquarters of an animal. 2. A cut of beef or veal from the rump. 3. The buttocks. 4. The part of a bird's back nearest the tail. 5. The last or inferior part. 6. A legislature having only a small part of its original membership and therefore being unrepresentative or lacking in authority. [Middle English rumpe, of Scandinavian origin.]

rum-ple (rüm'pəl) v. rum-pled, rum-pling, rum-ples. — v. tr. To wrinkle or form into folds or creases. — v. intr. To become wrinkled or creased. — n. An irregular or untidy crease. [Perhaps Dutch rompelen, from Middle Dutch rumpelen.] —rum'ply adj.

rum-pus (rüm'pəs) n. A noisy clamor. [Origin unknown.]

rumpus room (rŭm'pəs rōōm) n. A room for play and parties.

rum·run·ner (rŭm'rŭn'ər) n. 1. One who illegally transports liquor across a border. 2. Nautical. A boat used to transport liquor illegally across a border.

Rum·sey (rŭm'zē), James. 1743-1792. American engineer and inventor of a practical steamboat (1787) and steam boiler.

rum shop (rŭm shŏp) n. Caribbean. A tavern, usually selling alcoholic beverages by the bottle as well as by the drink.

run (rŭn) v. ran (răn), run, run·ning, runs. — v. intr. 1. a. To move swiftly on foot so that both feet leave the ground during each stride. b. To move at a fast gallop. Used of a horse. 2. To retreat rapidly; flee: seized the money and ran. 3. a. To move without hindrance or restraint: dogs that always ran loose. b. To keep company: runs with a wild crowd. c. To go or move about from place to place; roam: I am always running about, looking for my glasses. 4. To migrate, especially to move in a shoal in order to spawn. Used of fish. 5. a. To move or go quickly; hurry: run for the police; ran for help. b. To go when in trouble or distress: He is always running to his lawyer. c. To make a short, quick trip or visit: ran next door to borrow a cup of sugar; ran down to the store. 6. a. To take part in a race or contest: ran in the marathon; athletes who run for the gold medal. b. To compete in a race for elected office: ran for mayor. c. To finish a race or contest in a specified position: ran second. 7. To move freely, on or as if on wheels: The car ran downhill. The drawer runs on small bearings. 8. To be in operation: The engine is running. 9. To go back and forth especially on a regular basis; ply: The ferry runs every hour. 10. Nautical. To sail or steer before the wind or on an indicated course: run before a storm. 11. a. To flow, especially in a steady stream: Fresh water runs from the spring. Turn on the faucet and let the water run. b. To emit pus, mucus, or serous fluid: Pollen makes my nose run. 12. To melt and flow: A hot flame will make the solder run. 13. To spread or dissolve, as dyes in fabric: Colorfast garments are not supposed to run. 14. To extend, stretch, or reach in a certain direction or to a particular point: This road runs to the next town. 15. To extend, spread, or climb as a result of growing: Ivy ran up the wall. 16. To spread rapidly: disease that ran rampant. 17. a. To be valid in a given area: The speed limit runs only to the town line. b. To be present as a valid accompaniment: Fishing rights run with ownership of the land. 18. To unravel along a line: Her stocking ran. 19. To continue in effect or operation: a lease with one year to run. 20. To pass: Days ran into weeks. 21. To tend to persist or recur: Stinginess seems to run in that family. 22. a. To accumulate or accrue: The interest runs from the first of the month. b. To become payable. 23. To take a particular form, order, or expression: My reasoning runs thus. The report runs as follows. 24. To tend or incline: Their taste in art runs to the bizarre. 25. To occupy or exist in a certain range: The sizes run from small to large. 26. To be presented or performed for a continuous period of time: The play ran for six months. 27. To pass into a specified condition: We ran into debt. — v. tr. 1. a. To travel over on foot at a pace faster than a walk: ran the entire distance. b. To cause (an animal) to move quickly or rapidly: We run our hunting dogs every morning. 2. To allow to move without restraint. 3. To do or accomplish by or as if by running: run errands. 4. To hunt or pursue; chase: dogs running deer. 5. To bring to a given condition by or as if by running: The toddlers ran me ragged. 6. To cause to move quickly: She ran her fingers along the keyboard. 7. a. To cause to compete in or as if in a race: He ran two horses in the Kentucky Derby. b. To present or nominate for elective office: The party ran her for senator. 8. To cause to move or progress freely. 9. To cause to function; operate: run a machine. 10. To convey or transport: Run me into town. Run the garbage over to the dump. 11. Nautical. To cause to move on a course: We ran our boat into a cove. 12. a. To smuggle: run guns. b. To evade and pass through: run a roadblock. 13. To pass over or through: run the rapids. 14. To cause to flow: run water into a tub. 15. To stream with: The fountains ran champagne. 16. Metallurgy. a. To melt, fuse, or smelt (metal). b. To mold or cast (molten metal): run gold into ingots. 17. To cause to extend or pass: run a rope between the poles. 18. To mark or trace on a surface: run a pencil line between two points. 19. To sew with a continuous line of stitches: run a seam. 20. To cause to unravel along a line: She ran her stocking on a splinter. 21. a. To cause to crash or collide: ran the car into a fence. b. To cause to penetrate: I ran a pin into my thumb. 22. To continue to present or perform: ran the film for a month. 23. To publish in a periodical: run an advertisement. 24. To subject or be subjected to: run a risk. 25. Games. a. To score (balls or points) consecutively in billiards: run 15 balls. b. To clear (the table) in pool by consecutive scores. 26. To conduct or perform: run an experiment. 27. Computer Science. To process or execute (a program or an instruction). 28. To control, manage, or direct: ran the campaign by himself; a bureau that runs espionage operations. — n. 1. a. A pace faster than a walk. b. A fast gallop. Used of a horse. 2. An act of running. 3. a. A distance covered by or as if by running. b. The time taken to cover such a distance: It is a two minutes' run from the subway. 4. A quick trip or visit: a run into town. 5. a. Sports. A running race: the winner of the mile run. b. A campaign for public office: She managed his successful senatorial run. 6. Abbr. r, r. Baseball. A point scored by advancing around the bases and reaching home plate safely. 7. Football. A player's attempt to carry the ball past or through the opposing team, usually for a specified distance: a 30-yard run. 8. a. The migration of fish, especially in order to spawn. b. A group or school of fish ascending a river in order to spawn. 9. Unrestricted freedom or use: I had the run of the library. 10. A stretch or period of riding, as in a race or to the hounds. 11. a. A track or slope along or down which something can travel: a logging run. b. Sports. A particular type of passage down a hill or across country experienced by an athlete, especially a skier or bobsledder: had two very good runs before the end of the day. 12. Sports. The distance a golf ball rolls after hitting the ground. 13. a. A scheduled or regular route. b. The territory of a news reporter. 14. a. A continuous period of operation, especially of a machine or factory. b. The production achieved during such a period: a press run of 15,000 copies. 15. a. A movement or flow. b. The duration of such a flow. c. The amount of such a flow. 16. A pipe or channel through which something flows. 17. Eastern Lower Northern U.S. See creek (n., sense 1). 18. A fall or slide, as of sand or mud. 19. Continuous length or extent: a five-foot run of tubing. 20. Geology. A vein or seam, as of ore or rock. 21. The direction, configuration, or lie: the run of the grain in leather. 22. a. A trail or way made or frequented by animals. b. An outdoor enclosure for domestic animals or poultry: a dog run; a turkey run. 23. a. A length of torn or unraveled stitches in a knitted fabric. b. A blemish caused by excessive paint flow. 24. An unbroken series or sequence: a run of dry summers. 25. An unbroken sequence of theatrical performances. 26. Music. A rapid sequence of notes; a roulade. 27. A series of unexpected and urgent demands, as by depositors or customers: a run on a bank. 28. a. A continuous set or sequence, as of playing cards in one suit. b. A successful sequence of shots or points. 29. A sustained state or condition: a run of good luck. 30. A trend or tendency: the run of events. 31. The average type, group, or category: The broad run of voters want the candidate to win. 32. Computer Science. An execution of a specific program or instruction. 33. runs. Slang. Diarrhea. Often used with the. — adj. 1. Being in a melted or molten state: run butter; run gold. 2. Completely exhausted from running. — phrasal verbs. run across. To find by chance; come upon. run after. 2. To pursue; chase. 3. To seek the company or attention of for purposes of courting: He finally became tired of running after her. run against. 4. To encounter unexpectedly; run into. 5. To work against; oppose: found public sentiment running against him. run along. To go away; leave. run away. 7. To flee; escape. 8. To leave one's home, especially to elope. 9. To stampe. run down. 10. To stop because of lack of force or power: The alarm clock finally ran down. 11. To become tired. 12. a. To collide with and knock down: a pedestrian who was run down by a speeding motorist. b. Nautical. To collide with and cause to sink. 13. To chase and capture: Detectives ran down the suspects. 14. To trace the source of: The police ran down all possible leads in the missing-person case. 15. To disparage: Don't run her down; she is very talented. 16. To go over; review: run down a list once more. 17. Baseball. To put a runner out after trapping him or her between two bases. 18. a. To collide with and knock down: a pedestrian who was run down by a speeding motorist. b. Nautical. To collide with and cause to sink. run in. 19. To insert or include as something extra: ran in an illustration next to the first paragraph. 20. Printing. To make a solid body of text without a paragraph or other break. 21. Slang. To take into legal custody. 22. To go to or seek out the company of in order to socialize; visit: We ran in for an hour.

run into. 23. To meet or find by chance: ran into an old friend. 24. To encounter (something): ran into trouble. 25. To collide with. 26. To amount to: His net worth runs into seven figures. run off. 27. To print, duplicate, or copy: ran off 200 copies of the report. 28. To run away; elope. 29. To flow off; drain away. 30. To decide a contest or competition by a runoff. 31. To force or drive off (trespassers, for example). run on. 32. a. To keep going; continue. b. To talk volubly, persistently, and usually inconsequentially: He is always running on about his tax problems. c. To continue a text without a formal break. 33. a. To keep going; continue. b. To talk volubly, persistently, and usually inconsequentially: He is always running on about his tax problems. c. To continue a text without a formal break. run out. 34. To become used up; be exhausted: Our supplies finally ran out. 35. To put out by force; compel to leave: We ran him out of town. 36. To become void, especially through the passage of time or an omission: an insurance policy that had run out. run over. 37. To collide with, knock down, and often pass over: The car ran over a child. 38. To read or review quickly: run over a speech before giving it. 39. To flow over. 40. To go beyond a limit: The meeting ran over by 30 minutes. run through. 41. To pierce: The soldier was run through by a bayonet. 42. To use up quickly: She ran through all her money. 43. To rehearse quickly: Let's run through the first act again. 44. To go over the salient points or facts of: The crew ran through the preflight procedures. We ran through the witness's testimony before presenting it in court. run up. To make or become greater or larger: ran up huge bills; run up the price of the company's stock. run with. To take as one's own; adopt: “[He] was determined to run with the idea and go public before it had been researched” (Betty Cuniberti). —idioms. a run for (one's) money. Strong competition. in the long run. In the final analysis or outcome. in the short run. In the immediate future. on the run. 4. a. In rapid retreat: guerrillas on the run after an ambush. b. In hiding: fugitives on the run. 5. Hurrying busily from place to place: executives always on the run from New York to Los Angeles. 6. a. In rapid retreat: guerrillas on the run after an ambush. b. In hiding: fugitives on the run. run a temperature. To have a fever. run away with. 8. a. To make off with hurriedly. b. To steal. 9. To be greater or bigger than others in (a performance, for example). 10. a. To make off with hurriedly. b. To steal. run foul (or run afoul of). 11. To run into; collide with: a sloop that had run foul of the submerged reef. 12. To come into conflict with: a pickpocket who ran foul of the law. run in place. To go through the movements of running without leaving one's original position. run off with. To capture or carry off: ran off with the state championship. run (one's) eyes over. To look at or read in a cursory manner. run out of. To exhaust the supply of: ran out of fuel. run out of gas. Slang. 17. To exhaust one's energy or enthusiasm. 18. To falter or come to a stop because of a lack of capital, support, or enthusiasm. run out on. To abandon: has run out on the family. run rings around. To be markedly superior to. run scared. Informal. To become intimidated or frightened. run short. To become scanty or insufficient in supply: Fuel oil ran short during the winter. run short of. To use up so that a supply becomes insufficient or scanty: ran short of paper clips. run to earth (or run to ground). To pursue and successfully capture: Dogs ran the fox to earth. The police ran the terrorists to ground. [Middle English ernen, runnen, from Old English rinnan, eornan, earnan, and from Old Norse rinna; see rei- in Appendix.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Terms for “a small, fast-flowing stream” vary throughout the eastern United States especially. Speakers in the eastern part of the Lower North (including Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, and southern Pennsylvania) use the word run, as in Bull Run. Speakers in New York State are liable to call such a stream a kill (a Dutch borrowing). Brook has come to be used throughout the Northeast. Southerners refer to a branch, and throughout the northern United States the term is crick, a variant of creek.

run-a-bout (rŭn'ə-bout') n. 1. a. Nautical. A small motorboat. b. A light aircraft. c. A small, open automobile or carriage. 2. A vagabond or wanderer.

run-a-gate (rŭn'ə-gāt') n. 1. A renegade or deserter. 2. A vagabond. [Alteration of obsolete renegate, renegade (influenced by RUN + agate, on the way from Middle English, straight way : Middle English a, on variant of on; see on + Old Norse gata, way); see ghē- in Appendix, from Middle English, from Medieval Latin renegātus. See RENEGADE.]

run-a-round (rŭn'ə-round') n. 1. Informal. Deception, usually in the form of evasive excuses. 2. Printing. Type set in a column narrower than the body of the text, as on either side of a picture.

run-a-way (rŭn'ə-wā') n. 1. A person who has run away. 2. Something that has escaped control or proper confinement. 3. Informal. An easy victory. — adj. 1. Escaping or having escaped restraint, captivity, or control: runaway horses; runaway children. 2. Out of control: a runaway car; runaway inflation. 3. Easily won: a runaway victory.

run-back (rŭn'băk') n. Football. 1. The act of returning a kickoff, a punt, or an intercepted forward pass. 2. The distance so covered.

run-ci-ble spoon (rŭn'sə-bəl spōn) n. A three-pronged fork, such as a pickle fork, curved like a spoon and having a cutting edge. [Coined by Edward Lear, perhaps alteration of rounceval, big woman, large pea, wart, monster, huge, from Roncevaux (Roncesvalles), site where giant bones were found.]

Run-cie (rŭn'sē), Robert Alexander Kennedy. Born 1921. British prelate and archbishop of Canterbury (1980-1991).

run-ci-nate (rŭn'sə-nāt') adj. Botany. Having saw-toothed divisions directed backward: runcinate leaves. [Latin runcinātus, past participle of runcināre, to plane, from runcina, carpenter's plane, formerly taken to mean saw, alteration (influenced by runcāre, to weed, pluck), of Greek rhukanē, carpenter's plane.]

run-down (rŭn'doun') n. 1. A point-by-point summary. 2. Baseball. A play in which a runner is trapped between bases and is pursued by fielders attempting to make the tag. — adj. also run-down (rŭn'doun') 1. a. In poor physical condition; weak or exhausted. b. Dirty and dilapidated: rundown housing projects. 2. Unwound and not running: a run-down watch.

Rundstedt (rŭon'stět', rŭont'shtět'), Karl Rudolf Gerd von. 1875-1953. German general who took part in the invasions of Poland, France, and Russia during World War II and was commander in chief of the western front (1942-1945).

rune¹ (rŭon) n. 1. a. Any of the characters in several alphabets used by ancient Germanic peoples from the 3rd to the 13th century. b. A similar character in another alphabet, sometimes believed to have magic powers. 2. A poem or an incantation of mysterious significance, especially a magic charm. [Possibly Old Norse, or Old English rŭn.] —run'ic adj.

rune² (rŭon) n. A Finnish poem or section of a poem. [Finnish runo, of Germanic origin.]

rung¹ (rŭng) n. 1. A rod or bar forming a step of a ladder. 2. A crosspiece between the legs of a chair. 3. The spoke in a wheel. 4. Nautical. One of the spokes or handles on a ship's wheel. [Middle English, from Old English hrung.]

rung² (rŭng) v. Past participle of ring².

run-in (rŭn'in') n. 1. A quarrel or an argument. 2. Printing. Matter added to a text. — adj. Printing. Having been added to or inserted into a text.

run-let (rŭn'lit) n. A rivulet.

run-nel (rŭn'əl) n. 1. A rivulet; a brook. 2. A narrow channel or course, as for water. [Middle English rynel, from Old English, from rinnan, to run. See rei- in Appendix.]

run-ner (rŭn'ər) n. 1. Sports. One who competes in a race. 2. a. Baseball. One who runs the bases. b. Football. One who carries the ball. 3. A fugitive. 4. One who carries messages or runs errands. 5. One who serves as an agent or a collector, as for a bank or brokerage house. 6. One who solicits business, as for a hotel or store. 7. A smuggler: a narcotics runner. 8. Nautical. A vessel engaged in smuggling. 9. One who operates or manages something: the runner of a series of gambling operations. 10. A device in or on which a mechanism slides or moves, as: a. The blade of a skate. b. The supports on which a drawer slides. 11. A long narrow carpet. 12. A long narrow tablecloth. 13. A roller towel. 14. Metallurgy. A channel along which molten metal is poured into a mold; a gate. 15. Botany. a. A slender, creeping stem that puts forth roots from nodes spaced at intervals along its length. b. A plant, such as the strawberry, having such a stem. c. A twining vine, such as the scarlet runner. 16. Any of several marine fishes of the family Carangidae, especially the blue runner (Caranx crysos), of temperate waters of the American Atlantic coast. Also called blue runner 17. Sports. See flat¹ (n., sense 9).

run-ner-up (rŭn'ər-ŭp') n. pl. run-ners-up (rŭn'ərz-). One that takes second place, as in a game, sport, or other competition.

run-ning (rŭn'ɪŋ) n. 1. The act or an instance of running. 2. The power or ability to run. 3. Sports. The exercise or sport of someone who runs. — adj. Ongoing over a period of time: a running conversation; a running joke among us. — adv. In a consecutive way: four years running. — idioms. in the running.

1. Entered as a contender in a competition. 2. Having the possibility of winning or placing well in a competition. out of the running. 3. Not entered as a contender in a competition. 4. Having no possibility of winning or placing well in a competition.

running back (rŭn'ɪŋ băk) n. Football. An offensive back, such as a fullback or halfback, who is designated the responsibility of advancing the ball by running with it on plays from the line of scrimmage.

running board (rŭn'ɪŋ bôrd) n. A narrow footboard extending under and beside the doors of some automobiles and other conveyances.

running dog (rŭn'ɪŋ dôg) n. A servile follower or lackey. [Translation of Chinese (Mandarin) zǒu gǒu : zǒu, running + gǒu, dog.]

running gear (rŭn'ɪŋ gîr) n. The working parts of an automobile, a locomotive, or other vehicle.

running hand (rŭn'ɪŋ hănd) n. Handwriting done rapidly without lifting the pen from the paper.

running head (rŭn'ɪŋ hĕd) n. Printing. A title printed at the top of every page or every other page, as in a book. Also called running title running knot (rŭn'ɪŋ nŏt) n. See slipknot.

running light (rŭn'ɪŋ līt) n. One of several lights on a vehicle, such as a ship, turned on between dusk and dawn to indicate position and size.

running mate (rŭn'ɪŋ măt) n. 1. The candidate or nominee for the lesser of two closely associated political offices. 2. A companion. 3. A horse used to set the pace in a race for another horse.

running noose (rŭn'ɪŋ nŏos) n. See noose (n., sense 1).

running shoe (rŭn'ɪŋ shŏo) n. Sports. A shoe in which to run for sport or exercise, especially one with a durable insole for support and comfort, a soft padded collar for reduced friction, and a resilient outer sole for cushioning and absorbing shock.

running start (rŭn'ɪŋ stărt) n. See flying start.

running stitch (rŭn'ɪŋ stĭch) n. One of a series of small, even stitches.

running title (rŭn'ɪŋ tīt'l) n. Printing. See running head.

running track (rŭn'ŭng trāk) n. Sports. A course, indoors or outdoors, for engaging in the sport or exercise of running.

run-ny (rŭn'ē) adj. run-ni-er, run-ni-est. Inclined to run or flow: runny icing; a runny nose.

Run-ny-mede (rŭn'ē-mēd') A meadow in southeast England on the Thames River west of London. King John accepted the Magna Carta here or on a nearby island in 1215.

run-off (rŭn'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. a. The overflow of fluid from a container.

b. Rainfall not absorbed by soil. 2. Eliminated waste products from manufacturing processes. 3. An extra competition held to break a tie.

run-of-the-mill (rŭn'əv-thə-mīl') adj. Not special or outstanding; average.

run-on (rŭn'ôn', -ôn') n. Printing. Matter that is appended or added without a formal break. —run-on' adj.

run-on sentence (rŭn'ôn' sĕn'təns) n. Grammar. A sentence in which two or more independent clauses are improperly joined, as by a comma fault.

run-out (rŭn'out') n. 1. The act or an instance of fleeing so as to evade undesirable consequences. 2. The area where one curved surface merges with another: a snowy runout at the bottom of the ski slope. 3. The act or an instance of expiring or having expired: the runout of an executive contract.

runt (rŭnt) n. 1. An undersized animal, especially the smallest animal of a litter. 2. Offensive. A short person. [Origin unknown.] —runt'i-ness n. —runt'y adj.

run-through (rŭn'thrō') n. A complete but rapid review or rehearsal of something, such as a theatrical work.

run-up or run-up (rŭn'ŭp') n. An often sudden increase: a run-up in interest rates; a run-up in food prices; a run-up in house values.

run-way (rŭn'wā') n. 1. A strip of level, usually paved ground on which aircraft take off and land. 2. A path, channel, or track over which something runs. 3. The channel of a stream. 4. A chute down which logs are skidded. 5. Sports. A narrow track in a bowling lane on which balls are returned after they are bowled. 6. A smooth ramp for wheeled vehicles. 7. A narrow walkway extending from a stage into an auditorium.

Run-yon (rŭn'yən), (Alfred) Damon. 1884-1946. American writer known for his stylized, idiomatic stories about Broadway and the New York underworld, such as "Guys and Dolls" (1931). —Run'yon-esque' (rŭn'yə-nĕsk') adj.

run-za (rĕn'zə) n. Nebraska. A pastry consisting of cabbage and usually pork or beef encased in yeast dough. [Origin unknown.]

ru-pee (rōō-pē', rōō'pē) n. Abbr. Re., r., R. A basic unit of currency in India, Mauritius, Nepal, Pakistan, Seychelles, and Sri Lanka. See Table at currency. [Hindi rupayā, rupyā, from Sanskrit rūpyam, silver coin, from rūpya-, silver, from rūpam, shape.]

Ru·pert (rōō'pərt), Prince. 1619-1682. German-born English military and political leader who was the dominant Royalist figure during the English Civil War.

Rupert River (rōō'pərt rɪv'ər) A river of west-central Quebec, Canada, rising in Lake Mistassini and flowing about 611 km (380 mi) westward to James Bay.

ru·pi·ah (rōō-pē'ə) n. pl. rupiah or ru·pi·ahs. A basic unit of currency in Indonesia. See Table at currency. [Hindi rupayā, rupiyā. See RUPEE.]

ru·pic·o·lous (rōō-pɪk'ə-ləs) adj. Thriving among or inhabiting rocks. [Latin rūpēs, rock (from ruptus, past participle of rumpere, to break); see reup- in Appendix + -COLOUS.]

rup·ture (rʊp'chər) n. 1. a. The process of breaking open or bursting. b. The state of being broken open. 2. A break in friendly relations. 3. Pathology. a. A hernia, especially of the groin or intestines. b. A tear in bodily tissue. — v. rup·tured, rup·tur·ing, rup·tures. — v. tr. To break open; burst. — v. intr. To undergo or suffer a rupture. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin ruptūra, from ruptus, past participle of rumpere, to break. See reup- in Appendix.] —rup'tur·a·ble adj.

ru·ral (rōōr'əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the country. 2. Of or relating to people who live in the country: rural households. 3. Of or relating to farming; agricultural. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin rūrālis, from rūs, rūr-, country. See reua- in Appendix.] —ru'ral·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: rural, bucolic, rustic, pastoral. These adjectives all mean of or typical of the country as distinguished from the city. Rural applies to sparsely settled or agricultural country: “I do love quiet, rural England” (George Meredith). Bucolic is often used pejoratively or facetiously of country people or their manners: “The keenest of bucolic minds felt a whispering awe at the sight of the gentry” (George Eliot). Rustic frequently suggests a lack of sophistication or elegance, but it may also connote artless and pleasing simplicity: “some rustic phrases which I had learned at the farmer’s house” (Jonathan Swift). The cottage has a rustic grace and beauty. Pastoral, which evokes the image of shepherds, sheep, and verdant countryside, suggests the charm and serenity of the country: We watched from the train window as the pastoral landscapes of Burgundy unfolded.

rural free delivery (rōōr'əl frē dī-lɪv'ə-rē) n. Abbr. RFD, R.F.D. Free government delivery of mail in rural areas.

ru·ral·ism (rōōr'ə-lɪz'əm) n. Rurality.

ru·ral·ist (rōōr'ə-lɪst) n. 1. One who resides in a rural area. 2. An advocate of rural life.

ru·ral·i·ty (rōō-rāl'i-tē) n. pl. ru·ral·i·ties. 1. The state or quality of being rural. 2. A rural trait or characteristic.

ru-ral-ize (rōōr'ə-līz') v. tr. intr. ru-ral-ized, ru-ral-iz-ing, ru-ral-iz-es. To make or become rural. —ru'ral-i-za'tion (rōōr'ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

rural route (rōōr'əl rōōt) n. Abbr. RR, R.R. A rural mail route.

Ru-rik (rōōr'īk, rōō'rik), Died c. 879. Scandinavian warrior and the founder of the dynasty that ruled Russia until 1598.

Ru-ri-ta-ni-an (rōōr'ī-tā'nē-ən) adj. Of, relating to, or having the characteristics of a mythical place of high, typically comic-opera romance: designed Ruritanian uniforms for the honor guard. [After Ruritania, imaginary realm in the novel The Prisoner of Zenda by Anthony Hope.]

Rus. abbr. Russia; Russian.

ruse (rōōs, rōōz) n. A crafty stratagem; a subterfuge. See Synonyms at artifice. [Middle English, detour, dodging, from Old French, from ruser, to drive back. See RUSH¹.]

Ru-se (rōō'sā) A city of northeast Bulgaria on the Danube River south of Bucharest, Romania. Founded as a Roman fortress in the second century A.D., it is today a major port and industrial center. Population, 185,000.

rush¹ (rūsh) v. rushed, rush-ing, rush-es. — v. intr. 1. To move or act swiftly; hurry. 2. To make a sudden or swift attack or charge. 3. To flow or surge rapidly, often with noise: Tons of water rushed over the falls. 4. Football. To move the ball by running. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move or act with unusual haste or violence. 2. To perform with great haste: rushed completion of the project. 3. To attack swiftly and suddenly: Infantry rushed the enemy after the artillery barrage. 4. To transport or carry hastily: An ambulance rushed her to the hospital. 5. To entertain or pay great attention to: They rushed him for their fraternity. 6. Football. To charge (a quarterback or passer) in order to block or prevent a play. — n. 1. A sudden forward motion. 2. a. Surging emotion: a rush of shame. b. An anxious and eager movement to get to or from a place: a rush to the goldfields. c. A sudden, very insistent, generalized demand: a rush for gold coins. 3. General haste or busyness: The office always operates in a rush. 4. A sudden attack; an onslaught. 5. A rapid, often noisy flow or passage. See Synonyms at flow. 6. Football. a. An attempt to move the ball by running. b. An act of charging the offensive quarterback or passer in order to block or prevent a play. 7. Often rushes. The first, unedited print of a movie scene. 8. a. A time of attention, usually one in which extensive social activity occurs. b. A drive by a Greek society on a college campus to recruit new members: a sorority rush. 9. a. The intensely pleasurable sensation experienced immediately after use of a stimulant or a mind-altering drug. b. A sudden, brief exhilaration: A familiar rush overtook him each time the store announced a half-price special on expensive stereo equipment. [Middle English rushen, from Anglo-Norman russher, variant of Old French ruser, to drive back, from Latin recūsāre, to reject : re-, re- + causārī, to give as a reason (from causa, cause).] —rush'er n.

rush² (rüşh) n. 1. a. Any of various stiff marsh plants of the genus Juncus, having pliant hollow or pithy stems and small flowers with scalelike perianths.

b. Any of various similar, usually aquatic plants. 2. The stem of one of these plants, used in making baskets, mats, and chair seats. [Middle English, from Old English rusc.]

Rush (rüşh), Benjamin. 1745-1813. American physician, politician, and educator. A signer of the Declaration of Independence, he promoted the abolition of slavery and the humane treatment of the mentally handicapped.

rush candle (rüşh kăn'dl) n. See rushlight.

rush hour (rüşh our) n. A period of heavy traffic. —rush'-hour' (rüşh'our') adj.

rush-light (rüşh'līt') n. A candle consisting of a rush wick in tallow. Also called rush candle

Rush·more (rüşh'môr', -môr'), Mount. A mountain, 1,708 m (5,600 ft) high, in the Black Hills of western South Dakota. Its monument with massive carved likenesses of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt was carved under the direction of Gutzon Borglum.

rush-y (rüşh'ē) adj. rush-i·er, rush-i·est. 1. Resembling or characteristic of rushes; rushlike. 2. Abounding in rushes: a rushy marsh.

ru·sine antler (roo'sīn änt'lər) n. An antler with three tines, as that of the sambar. [From New Latin Rusa, former genus name, from Malay rusa, a deer.]

rusk (rüşk) n. 1. A light, soft-textured sweetened biscuit. 2. Sweet raised bread dried and browned in an oven. [Spanish, or Portuguese rosca, coil, rusk perhaps from Vulgar Latin rotisca*, diminutive of Latin rota, wheel. See ROTATE.]

Rusk (rüşk), David Dean. 1909-1994. American public official. As U.S. secretary of state (1961-1969) he supported U.S. military involvement in Vietnam.

Rus·ka (rüş'kə, rōös'kä), Ernst. 1906-1988. German physicist. He shared a 1986 Nobel Prize for the development of the electron microscope.

Rus·kin (rüş'kīn), John. 1819-1900. British writer and art critic who considered a great painting to be one that conveys great ideas to the viewer. His works include Modern Painters (1843-1860). —Rus'kin'i·an adj.

Russ. abbr. Russia; Russian.

Rus·sell (rüş'əl), Bertrand Arthur William Third Earl Russell. 1872-1970. British philosopher, mathematician, social critic, and writer who had profound influence on the development of symbolic logic, logical positivism, and the set theory of mathematics. His written works include Principia Mathematica (1910-1913), written with Alfred North Whitehead, and A History of Western Philosophy (1945). He won the 1950 Nobel Prize for literature.

Rus·sell (rüş'əl), Charles Taze. 1852-1916. American religious leader who founded (1884) the sect now called Jehovah's Witnesses.

Rus·sell (rūs'əl), George William. Pen name "A.E." 1867-1935. Irish writer and nationalist who was a leader of the Irish literary renaissance at the turn of the 20th century.

Rus·sell (rūs'əl), Henry Norris. 1877-1957. American astronomer who developed a theory of stellar evolution and devised the Hertzsprung-Russell diagram.

Rus·sell (rūs'əl), John First Earl Russell. 1792-1878. British politician who served as prime minister (1846-1852 and 1865-1866) and advocated parliamentary reform.

Rus·sell (rūs'əl), Lillian. 1861-1922. American entertainer known for her roles in comic operas.

Russell, Mount. A peak, 4,296.8 m (14,088 ft) high, of the Sierra Nevada in eastern California.

Rus·sell (rūs'əl), William Felton. Known as "Bill." Born 1934. American basketball player and coach. A center for the Boston Celtics (1956-1969), he led the team to 11 National Basketball Association championships (1957-1965 and 1968-1969).

Rus·sell's viper (rūs'əlz vī'pər) n. A venomous snake (Vipera russellii) of India and southeast Asia, characterized by large black-ringed spots on yellow, tan, or light brown skin. [After Patrick Russell (1727-1805), Scottish naturalist.]

Rüs·sels·heim (röös'əls-hīm', rü'səls-) A city of west-central Germany, a manufacturing suburb of Mainz on the Main River. Population, 58,167.

rus·set (rūs'it) n. 1. Color. A moderate to strong brown. 2. A coarse reddish-brown to brown homespun cloth. 3. A winter apple with a rough reddish-brown skin. — adj. Color. Moderate to strong brown. [Middle English, from Old French rousset, from rous, red, from Latin russus. See reudh- in Appendix.]

Rus·sia (rüş'ə) Abbr. Rus., Russ. 1. A former empire of eastern Europe and northern Asia. Originally settled by Slavs from the 3rd to the 8th century, the region was long a conglomerate of independent principalities until Moscow gained ascendancy in the 14th, 15th, and 16th centuries. The empire achieved the height of its power and territorial influence under Peter the Great and Catherine the Great in the 17th and 18th centuries. The early 1800's were a period of reactionism, and although some liberal reforms were effected in the late 1800's, discontent remained and led directly to the Revolutions of 1905 and 1917, an internal power struggle, and the formation of the U.S.S.R. in 1922. 2. A republic of eastern Europe and northern Asia bordering in the west on Finland, the Baltic States, Belarus, and the Ukraine and stretching eastward to the Pacific Ocean. The Russian Soviet Federated Republic, coextensive with the region, was proclaimed in 1917 after the Russian Revolution. It became part of the U.S.S.R. in 1922, and reemerged as an independent republic after the disintegration of the Soviet Union in 1991. Moscow is the capital and the largest city. Population, 143,093,000. 3. The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Rus·sian (rüş'ən) adj. Abbr. Rus., Russ. 1. Of or relating to Russia or its people, language, or culture. 2. Of or relating to the former Soviet Union. — n.

1. a. A native or inhabitant of Russia. b. A person of Russian descent. c. A native or inhabitant of the former Soviet Union. 2. The Slavic language of the Russians. [Medieval Latin Russiānus, from Old Russian Rusĭ, from Old Norse rōdhsmenn*, seafarers, from rōdhr, rowing. See erə- in Appendix.]

Russian dressing (rüş'ən drēs'ing) n. Salad dressing, such as mayonnaise, with chili sauce or ketchup, chopped pickles, and pimientos.

Rus·sian·ize (rüş'ə-nīz') v. tr. Rus·sian·ized, Rus·sian·iz·ing, Rus·sian·iz·es. To make Russian. — Rus'sian·i·za'tion (-ə-nī-zā'shən) n.

Russian olive (rüş'ən ɔl'iv) n. See oleaster.

Russian Orthodox Church (rüş'ən ôr'thə-döks' chûrch) n. The Eastern Orthodox Church in Russia that until 1917 constituted the established church and has autonomous branches outside Russia.

Russian roulette (rüş'ən rō-lēt') n. 1. A stunt in which one spins the cylinder of a revolver loaded with only one bullet, aims the muzzle at one's head, and pulls the trigger. 2. An act of reckless bravado.

Russian thistle (rüş'ən thīs'al) n. A red-stemmed, prickly Eurasian plant (Salsola kali var. tenuifolia) that is a troublesome weed in western North America.

Russian wolfhound (rüş'ən wōlf'hound') n. See borzoi.

Russo- pref. Russia; Russian: Russophobe. [From Russia.]

Rus·so·phile (rüş'ə-fīl') n. An admirer of Russia or its people, language, or culture. — Rus'so·phil'i·a (-fīl'ē-ə) n.

Rus·so·phobe (rüş'ə-fōb') n. One who fears or dislikes Russia or its people or culture. — Rus'so·pho'bi·a n.

rust (rüst) n. 1. Any of various powdery or scaly reddish-brown or reddish-yellow hydrated ferric oxides formed on iron and iron-containing materials by low-temperature oxidation in the presence of water. 2. Any of various metallic coatings, especially oxides, formed by corrosion. 3. A stain or coating resembling iron rust. 4. Deterioration, as of ability, resulting from inactivity or neglect.

5. Botany. a. Rust fungus. b. A plant disease caused by a rust fungus, characterized by reddish or brownish spots on leaves, stems, and other parts. 6. Color. A strong brown. — v. rust·ed, rust·ing, rusts. — v. intr. 1. To become corroded. 2. To deteriorate or degenerate through inactivity or neglect. 3. To become the color of rust. 4. Botany. To develop a disease caused by a rust fungus.

— v. tr. 1. To corrode or subject (a metal) to rust formation. 2. To impair or spoil, as by misuse or inactivity. 3. To color (something) a strong brown. [Middle English, from Old English rūst. See reudh- in Appendix.] — rust adj.

— rust'a·ble adj.

Rus-ta-vi (rōō-stä'vē, -vyī) A city of southern Georgia southeast of Tbilisi. An ancient town on the site was destroyed c. 1400 by Tamerlane. Population, 143,000.

rust belt or rust-belt also Rust Belt (rŭst bĕlt) n. A heavily industrialized area containing older factories, particularly those that are marginally profitable or that have been closed. —rust'-belt' adj.

rust fungus (rŭst fŭng'gəs) n. Any of various fungi of the order Uredinales that are injurious to a wide variety of plants.

rus-tic (rŭs'tĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or typical of country life or country people. See Synonyms at rural. 2. Marked by a lack of sophistication or elegance. 3. Appropriate for use in the country: rustic gloves and boots. — n. 1. A rural person. 2. A person regarded as crude, coarse, or simple. [Middle English rustik, from Old French rustique, from Latin rŭsticus, from rŭs, country. See reuə- in Appendix.] —rus'ti-cal-ly adv.

rus-ti-cate (rŭs'tĭ-kāt') v. rus-ti-cat-ed, rus-ti-cat-ing, rus-ti-cates. — v. intr. To go to or live in the country. — v. tr. 1. To send to the country. 2. Chiefly British. To suspend (a student) from a university. 3. To construct (masonry) with conspicuous, often beveled points. [Latin rŭsticārĭ, rŭsticāt-, from rŭsticus, rustic. See RUSTIC.] —rus'ti-ca'tion n. —rus'ti-ca'tor n.

rus-tic-i-ty (rŭ-stĭs'ĭ-tē) n. pl. rus-tic-i-ties. 1. The condition of being rustic. 2. A rustic trait or mannerism.

Rus-tin (rŭs'tĭn), Bayard. 1910-1987. American civil rights leader and pacifist who organized the 1963 March on Washington.

rus-tle (rŭs'əl) v. rus-tled, rus-tling, rus-tles. — v. intr. 1. To move with soft fluttering or crackling sounds. 2. To move or act energetically or with speed. 3. To forage food. 4. To steal livestock, especially cattle. — v. tr. 1. To cause to rustle. 2. To obtain by rustling: rustled up some food in the kitchen. 3. To steal (livestock, especially cattle). [Middle English rustlen, perhaps of imitative origin.] —rus'tler n. —rus'tling-ly adv.

rust-less (rŭst'lis) adj. 1. Free from rust. 2. Unlikely to rust; not rustable.

rust mite (rŭst mīt) n. Any of various mites that cause a plant disease characterized by reddish or brownish spots on leaves and fruits.

Rus-ton (rŭs'tən) A city of northern Louisiana west of Monroe. It was settled in 1884 as a railroad town. Population, 20,027.

rust-proof (rŭst'prōōf') adj. Incapable of rusting. —rust'proof' v.

rust-y (rŭs'tē) adj. rust-i-er, rust-i-est. 1. Covered with rust; corroded. 2. Consisting of or produced by rust. 3. Color. Of a yellowish-red or brownish-red color. 4. Working or operating stiffly or incorrectly because of or as if because of rust. 5. Weakened or impaired by neglect, disuse, or lack of practice. —rust'i-ly adv. —rust'i-ness n.

rusty blackbird (rŭs'tē blāk'bŭrd') n. A North American blackbird (Euphagus carolinus), the male of which has blue-black feathers in the spring that turn rust-colored in the fall.

rut¹ (rüt) n. 1. A sunken track or groove made by the passage of vehicles. 2. A fixed, usually boring routine. — v. tr. rut-ted, rut-ting, ruts. To furrow. [Possibly alteration of ROUTE.]

rut² (rüt) n. 1. An annually recurring condition or period of sexual excitement and reproductive activity in male deer. 2. A condition or period of mammalian sexual activity, such as estrus. — v. intr. rut-ted, rut-ting, ruts. To be in rut. [Middle English rutte, from Old French rut, from Vulgar Latin rūgitus*, from rūgere*, to roar, from Latin rūgīre, to roar.]

ru-ta-ba-ga (rōō'tə-bā'gə, rōōt'ə-, rōō'tə-bā'gə, rōōt'ə-) n. 1. A European plant (Brassica napus var. napobrassica) having a thick bulbous root used as food and as livestock feed. 2. The edible root of this plant. Also called swede, Swedish turnip. [Swedish dialectal rotabagge : rot, root (from Old Norse rōt); see wrād- in Appendix + bagge, bag (from Old Norse baggi).]

ruth (rōōth) n. 1. Compassion or pity for another. 2. Sorrow or misery about one's own misdeeds or flaws. [Middle English ruthe, from Old Norse hrygdh (influenced by Old English hrēow, sorrow, regret).]

Ruth (rōōth) n. Bible. 1. In the Old Testament, a Moabite widow who left home with her mother-in-law and went to Bethlehem, where she later married Boaz. 2. Abbr. Rt. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Ruth (rōōth), George Herman. Called "Babe." 1895-1948. American baseball player. A pitcher for the Boston Red Sox (1915-1919) and outfielder for the New York Yankees (1920-1935), he hit 714 home runs, played in 10 World Series, and held 54 major-league records. Known as "the Sultan of Swat," he was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1936.

Ru-the-nia (rōō-thēn'yə, -thē'nē-ə) A region of western Ukraine south of the Carpathian Mountains. It was once a province of Czechoslovakia (1918-1939) and was annexed by the U.S.S.R. in 1945.

Ru-the-ni-an (rōō-thē'nē-ən, -thēn'yən) adj. Of or relating to Ruthenia, the Ruthenians, or their language or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Ruthenia. 2. The variety of Ukrainian used by the Ruthenians.

ru-then-ic (rōō-thē'n'ik, -thē'n'ik) adj. Relating to or containing ruthenium with a high valence.

ru-the-ni-ous (rōō-thē'nē-əs) adj. Relating to or containing ruthenium with a low valence.

ru-the-ni-um (rōō-thē'nē-əm) n. Symbol Ru A hard white acid-resistant metallic element that is found in platinum ores and is used to harden platinum and palladium for jewelry and in alloys for nonmagnetic wear-resistant instrument pivots and electrical contacts. Atomic number 44; atomic weight 101.07; melting point 2,310°C; boiling point 3,900°C; specific gravity 12.41; valence 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. [From Medieval Latin Ruthenia, Russia, from Ruthenī, Russians, from Russian Rusin, from Old Russian Rusī, Russian. See RUSSIAN.]

ruth·er·ford (rŭth'ər-fərd) n. Abbr. rd A unit expressing the rate of decay of radioactive material, equal to one million disintegrations per second. [After Ernest RUTHERFORD.]

Ruth·er·ford (rŭth'ər-fərd, rŭth'-) A borough of northeast New Jersey, a residential suburb of the New York City metropolitan area. Population, 17,790.

Ruth·er·ford (rŭth'ər-fərd, rŭth'-), Daniel. 1749-1819. British chemist and physician who is credited with the discovery of nitrogen.

Ruth·er·ford (rŭth'ər-fərd, rŭth'-), Ernest First Baron Rutherford of Nelson. 1871-1937. New Zealand-born British physicist who classified radiation into alpha, beta, and gamma types and discovered the atomic nucleus. He won the 1908 Nobel Prize in chemistry.

ruth·er·ford·i·um (rŭth'ər-fōr'dē-əm, -fōr'-) n. Element 104. [After Ernest RUTHERFORD.]

Rutherford scattering (rŭth'ər-fərd skăt'ər-ɪŋ) n. The scattering undergone by a stream of heavy charged particles fired at a sample of a heavy metal, caused by exposure to coulombic forces in the atomic nuclei of the sample.

ruth·ful (rōōth'fəl) adj. 1. Full of sorrow; rueful. 2. Causing sorrow or pity. —ruth'ful·ly adv. —ruth'ful·ness n.

ruth·less (rōōth'lis) adj. Having no compassion or pity; merciless: ruthless cruelty; ruthless opportunism. —ruth'less·ly adv. —ruth'less·ness n.

ru·ti·lant (rōōt'l-ənt) adj. Bright red. [Middle English rutilaunt, from Latin rutilāns, rutilant- present participle of rutilāre, to make red, to be reddish, from rutilus, red, reddish. See reudh- in Appendix.]

ru·tile (rōō'tēl', -tīl') n. A lustrous red, reddish-brown, or black mineral, TiO_2 , used as a gemstone, as an ore, and in paints and fillers. [French, from German Rutil, from Latin rutilus, red. See RUTILANT.]

Rut·land (rŭt'lənd) A city of central Vermont south-southwest of Montpelier. There are marble quarries in the area. Population, 18,230.

Rut·ledge (rŭt'lij), John. 1739-1800. American politician and jurist. Governor of South Carolina (1779-1782) and a delegate to the U.S. Constitutional Convention, he advocated slavery and a strong central government. He also served as an associate justice (1789-1791) and the chief justice (1795) of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Rut·ledge (rŭt'lij), Wiley Blount, Jr. 1894-1949. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1943-1949).

rut·tish (rŭt'ish) adj. Lustful; libidinous. —rut'tish·ly adv. —rut'tish·ness n.

rut·ty (rüt'ē) adj. rut·ti·er, rut·ti·est. Full of ruts: rutty farm roads.

—rut'ti·ness n.

Ru·vu·ma also Ro·vu·ma (rōō-vōō'mə) A river of southeast Africa flowing about 724 km (450 mi) eastward along the Mozambique-Tanzania border to the Indian Ocean.

Ru·wen·zo·ri (rōō'wən-zôr'ē, -zōr'ē) A mountain range of east-central Africa on the Uganda-Zaire border. The range was explored in 1889 by Henry M. Stanley and has traditionally been associated with the geographer Ptolemy's Mountains of the Moon, the supposed source of the Nile River.

Ruys·dael (rīz'däl', rīs'-, rois'-), Jacob van. See Jacob van Ruisdael.

Ru·žič·ka (rōō'žich-kə, rōō-zich'-, rōō'zhēch-kä), Leopold. 1887-1976. Yugoslavian-born Swiss chemist. He won a 1939 Nobel Prize for his study of ringed molecules and terpenes.

RV abbr. 1. Recreational vehicle. 2. Reentry vehicle. 3. Or R.V. Bible. Revised Version.

Rv. abbr. Bible. Revelations.

R-val·ue (är'văl'yōō) n. A measure of the capacity of a material, such as insulation, to impede heat flow, with increasing values indicating a greater capacity. [r(esistance) value.]

R.W. abbr. 1. Right Worshipful. 2. Right Worthy.

Rwan·da (rōō-än'də) Formerly Ru·an·da (rōō-än'də). A country of east-central Africa. Part of the colonial territory of Ruanda-Urundi administered by Germany and Belgium, it achieved independence in 1962. The southern portion of the territory became the country of Burundi. Kigali is the capital of Rwanda and its largest city. Population, 5,109,000. —Rwan'dan adj. & n.

rwy. abbr. Railway.

Rx (är'ěks') n. 1. A prescription for medicine or a medical appliance. 2. A remedy, cure, or solution for a disorder or problem. [Alteration of R, symbol used in prescriptions, abbreviation of Latin recipe, imperative of recipere, to take. See RECEIVE.]

ry. abbr. Railway.

-ry suff. Variant of -ery.

ry·a (rē'ə) n. 1. A handwoven Scandinavian rug with a thick pile and usually colorful abstract designs. 2. The weaving pattern characteristic of such rugs. [After Rya, a village of southwest Sweden.]

Rya·zan (ryĭ-zän') A city of west-central Russia southeast of Moscow. Founded in 1095, it was the capital of an independent principality until it was annexed by Moscow in 1521. It is now a manufacturing and industrial center. Population, 494,000.

Ryb-nik (rīb'nik) A town of southern Poland west-southwest of Katowice.

Chartered in the 14th century, it passed to Poland in 1921 and is today a manufacturing and industrial center. Population, 135,500.

Ry-der (rī'dər), Albert Pinkham. 1847-1917. American painter known for his rhythmic allegorical works, landscapes, and marine scenes, such as Toilers of the Sea (c. 1884).

rye¹ (rī) n. 1. A cereal grass (Secale cereale) widely cultivated for its grain. 2. The grain of this plant, used in making flour and whiskey and for livestock feed.

3. Whiskey made from the grains of this plant. [Middle English, from Old English ryge.]

rye² (rī) n. A Gypsy man. [Romany rai, from Sanskrit rājā, king. See RAJAH.]

Rye (rī) A city of southeast New York on Long Island Sound northeast of New York City. It is primarily residential. Population, 15,083.

rye bread (rī brəd) n. Bread made partially or entirely from rye flour.

rye grass or rye-grass (rī'grās') n. See darnel. [Alteration of raygrass: ray, darnel (from Middle English rai, perhaps alteration of Old French ivraie, from Latin ēbriaca, from feminine of ēbriācus, drunk (from the plant's effects if ingested), from ēbrius); see INEBRIATE + GRASS.]

Ryle (rīl), Gilbert. 1900-1976. British philosopher who regarded the linguistic misrepresentation of mental concepts as the root of philosophical problems and challenged Cartesian dualism in The Concept of Mind (1949).

Ryle (rīl), Sir Martin. 1918-1984. British astronomer. He shared a 1974 Nobel Prize for physics for using radio telescopes to probe outer space with great precision.

Rys-wick (rīz'wīk) See Rijswijk.

Ryu-kyu Islands (rē-ōō'kyōō' ī'ləndz, ryōō'-kyōō) An island group of southwest Japan extending about 1,046 km (650 mi) between Kyushu and Taiwan. The archipelago was incorporated into Japan in 1879 and returned to Japanese sovereignty in 1972 after occupation by U.S. forces following World War II.

Rze-szów (zhě'shōōf') A city of southeast Poland east of Cracow. Chartered in the 14th century, it passed to Austria in 1772 and reverted to Poland after World War I. Population, 138,000.

- s¹ or S (ěs) n. pl. s's or S's. 1. The 19th letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter s. 3. The 19th in a series. 4. Something shaped like the letter S.
- s² abbr. 1. Second (unit of time). 2. Mathematics. Second (of arc). 3. Stere. 4. Physics. Strange quark.
- S¹ 1. The symbol for the element sulfur. 2. The symbol for entropy (n., sense 1).
- S² abbr. 1. Bible. Samuel. 2. Or s. Siemens. 3. Also S. or s or s.. South; southern.
- s. abbr. 1. Or S.. School. 2. Or S.. Sea. 3. See. 4. Shilling. 5. Grammar. Singular. 6. Sire. 7. Sister. 8. Small. 9. Or S.. Society. 10. Music. Solo. 11. Son. 12. Or S.. Music. Soprano. 13. Sou. 14. Stock. 15. Grammar. Substantive. 16. Surplus.
- S. abbr. 1. Sabbath. 2. Saint. 3. Saturday. 4. Saxon. 5. Medicine. Signature. 6. Signor; signore. 7. Grammar. Singular. 8. Sunday.
- s¹ or -es suff. Used to form plural nouns: letters. [Middle English -es, -s, from Old English -es, -as, nominative and accusative pl. suff.]
- s² or -es suff. Used to form the third person singular present tense of all regular and most irregular verbs: looks; holds. [Middle English -es, -s, from Old English -es, -as.]
- s³ suff. Used to form adverbs: They were caught unawares. He works nights. [Middle English -es, -s, genitive sing. suff., from Old English -es.]
- 's suff. Used to form the possessive case of singular nouns, plural nouns that do not end in s, certain pronouns, and phrases that function as nouns or pronouns: nation's; women's; another's; the girl next door's cat. [Middle English -s, -es, from Old English -es, genitive sing. suff.]
- 's 1. Is: She's here. 2. Has: He's arrived. 3. Does: What's he want? 4. Us: Let's go.
- SA abbr. 1. Salvation Army. 2. Seventh Avenue (New York City garment district).
- s.a. abbr. Latin. Sine anno (without date).
- S.A. abbr. 1. South Africa. 2. South America.
- Saa·le (zä'lə, sä'l-) A river, about 426 km (265 mi) long, rising in central Germany east of Kassel and flowing north to the Elbe River.
- Saa·nen (sä'nən, zä'l-) n. A dairy goat of a breed developed in Switzerland, having a short-haired white coat and no horns. [After Saanen, a town of southwest Switzerland.]
- Saar¹ (sär, zär) A river, about 241 km (150 mi) long, rising in northeast France and flowing north and north-northwest to the Moselle River in western Germany. The river's valley, also known as the Saar Basin, is a highly industrialized region.
- Saar² (sär, zär) See Saarland.

Saar-brück-en (zär-bröök'ən, sär-, zär-brük'-) A city of southwest Germany on the Saar River near the French border south of Bonn. Located on the site of earlier Celtic, Roman, and Frankish settlements, it was chartered in 1321. Population, 188,763.

Saa-re-maa also Sa-re-ma (sär'ə-mä') An island of western Estonia in the Baltic Sea at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga. Long strategically important, it has been controlled by the Teutonic Knights and by Denmark, Sweden, Livonia, Estonia, and Russia.

Saa-ri-nen (sär'ə-nən, -nĕn'), Eero. 1910-1961. Finnish-born American architect whose designs include the General Motors Technical Center in Warren, Michigan (1951-1955) and the Trans World Airlines terminal at Kennedy Airport in New York City (1962).

Saar-land (sär'länd', zär'-, -länt') or Saar (sär, zär) A region of southwest Germany in the Saar River valley on the border with France. Because of its extensive coal deposits, it was long contested between Germany and France, especially after World War I, when the League of Nations assigned the administration of the newly formed Saar Territory to France. After a 1935 plebiscite Saarland became a German province, but it was again placed under French control in 1945. The notion of an autonomous Saarland was rejected by the populace in 1955, and the region officially became a state of West Germany in 1957. —Saar/land'er n.

Saa-ve-dra La-mas (sä-vā'drə lä'mäs, sä'ä-vĕ'thrä), Carlos. 1878?-1959. Argentinean diplomat. He won the 1936 Nobel Peace Prize for his part in negotiating an end to the Chaco War (1932-1935) between Bolivia and Paraguay.

Sab. abbr. Sabbath.

Sa-ba (sä'bə, -bä) An island of the northern Netherlands Antilles in the West Indies between St. Martin and St. Eustatius. First occupied by the Dutch in 1632, the island is the cone of an extinct volcano.

Sa-ba-dell (sä'bə-dĕl', sä'bä-thĕl') A city of northeast Spain, an industrial and manufacturing suburb of Barcelona. Population, 189,775.

sab-a-dil-la (säb'ə-dil'ə, -dĕ'ə) n. 1. A Mexican and Central American plant (Schoenocaulon officinale) of the lily family, having very long, densely flowered spikelike racemes, straplike perianth segments, and brown seeds that are rich in veratrine. 2. The seeds of this plant used in insecticides and formerly in medicine. [Spanish cebadilla, diminutive of cebada, barley, from Latin cibātus, from past participle of cibāre, to feed, from cibus, food.]

Sa-bah (sä'bä') A region of Malaysia in northeast Borneo. Sabah was a British protectorate, originally controlled by the British North Borneo Company, from the early 1800's until it became part of Malaysia in 1963.

sa-bal (sä'bäl) n. See palmetto (n., sense 1). [New Latin, genus name.]

Sab-a-oth (säb'ä-ōth', sə-bä'ōth') pl.n. Hosts; armies: the Lord of Sabaoth. [Latin sabaoth, from Greek sabaōth, from Hebrew šĕbā'ōt, pl. of šābā', army.]

Sa·ba·tier (sä-bä-tyä'), Paul. 1854-1941. French chemist. He shared a 1912 Nobel Prize for developing methods of hydrogenating organic compounds.

Sa·ba·ti·ni (säb'ə-tē'nē, sä'bä-), Rafael. 1875-1950. Italian-born British writer noted for his historical novels, including The Sea Hawk (1915) and Captain Blood (1922).

sa·ba·yon (sä'bä-yôn') n. See zabaglione. [French, from Italian zabaglione, zabaione.]

sab·bat (säb'ət) n. Witches' Sabbath. [French, Sabbath, sabbat, from Old French, Sabbath. See SABBATH.]

Sab·ba·tar·i·an (säb'ə-târ'ē-ən) n. 1. One who observes Saturday as the Sabbath, as in Judaism. 2. One who believes in strict observance of the Sabbath. — adj. Relating to the Sabbath or to Sabbatarians. [From Late Latin sabbatārius, from Latin sabbatum, Sabbath. See SABBATH.] — Sab'ba·tar'i·an·ism n.

Sab·bath (säb'əth) n. Abbr. S., Sab. 1. The seventh day of the week, Saturday, observed as the day of rest and worship by the Jews and some Christian sects.

2. The first day of the week, Sunday, observed as the day of rest and worship by most Christians. [Middle English sabath, from Old French sabbat, and Old English sabat both from Latin sabbatum, from Greek sabbaton, from Hebrew šabbāt, from šābat, to rest.]

sab·bat·i·cal (sä-bät'ī-kəl) also sab·bat·ic (-īk) adj. 1. Relating to a sabbatical year. 2. Sabbatical. also Sabbatic. Relating or appropriate to the Sabbath as the day of rest. — n. A sabbatical year. [From Late Latin sabbaticus, from Greek sabbatikos, from sabbaton, Sabbath. See SABBATH.]

sabbatical year (sä-bät'ī-kəl yîr) n. 1. A leave of absence, often with pay, usually granted every seventh year, as to a college professor, for travel, research, or rest. 2. Often Sabbatical year. A year during which land remained fallow, observed every seven years by the ancient Jews.

Sa·bel·li·an (sä-běl'ē-ən) n. 1. A group of extinct Italic languages that includes Sabine. 2. A speaker of one of these languages. [From Latin Sabellus, Sabine.] — Sa·bel'li·an adj.

sa·ber (sā'bər) n. 1. A heavy cavalry sword with a one-edged, slightly curved blade. 2. A light dueling or fencing sword having an arched guard covering the hand and a tapered flexible blade with a cutting edge on one side and on the tip. — v. tr. sa·bered, sa·ber·ing, sa·bers. To hit, injure, or kill with a saber. [French sabre, from obsolete German sabel, from Middle High German, from Hungarian szábyla, from szabni, to cut.]

saber rattling (sā'bər rät'līng) n. 1. A flamboyant display of military power. 2. A threat or an implied threat to use military force.

sa·ber·toothed tiger (sā'bər-tōōtht' tī'gər) n. Any of various extinct cats of the Oligocene to the Pleistocene Epoch, especially one of the larger members of the genus Smilodon, characterized by long upper canine teeth.

sa·bin (sā'bĭn) n. A unit of acoustic absorption equivalent to the absorption by one square foot of a surface that absorbs all incident sound. [After Wallace Clement Ware Sabine (1868-1919), American physicist.]

Sa·bin (sā'bĭn), Albert Bruce. 1906-1993. American microbiologist and physician who developed a live-virus vaccine against polio (1957), replacing the killed-virus vaccine invented by Jonas Salk.

Sa·bin (sā'bĭn), Florence Rena. 1871-1953. American pioneer anatomist noted for her investigations of the lymphatic system. She was the first woman elected to the National Academy of Sciences (1925).

Sa·bine (sā'bĭn') n. 1. A member of an ancient people of central Italy, conquered and assimilated by the Romans in 290 B.C. 2. The Italic language of the Sabines. — adj. Of or relating to the Sabines or their language or culture. [Middle English Sabyn, from Latin Sabĭnus.]

Sa·bine River (sə-bĕn' rĭv'ər) A river of eastern Texas rising northeast of Dallas and flowing about 925 km (575 mi) generally southeast and south to the Gulf of Mexico. Its lower course forms the Texas-Louisiana border and crosses Sabine Lake before entering the Gulf.

Sab·ine's gull (săb'ĭnz gŭl, -ĭnz, sā'bĭnz) n. A gull (Xema sabinii) of Arctic regions, having a forked tail with feathers rounded at the ends. [After Sir Edward Sabine (1788-1883), British astronomer and explorer.]

Sabin vaccine (sā'bĭn vāk-sĕn') n. An oral vaccine consisting of live attenuated polio viruses, used to immunize against poliomyelitis. [After Albert Bruce SABIN.]

sa·ble (sā'bəl) n. 1. a. A carnivorous mammal (Martes zibellina) of northern Europe and Asia, having soft dark fur. b. The pelt or fur of this animal. c. The similar fur of other species of martens. 2. a. The color black, especially in heraldry. b. sables. Black garments worn in mourning. 3. Color. A grayish yellowish brown. 4. A sablefish. — adj. 1. Color. Of a grayish yellowish brown. 2. Of the color black, as in heraldry or mourning. 3. Dark; somber. 4. Of the fur of the sable: a sable coat. [Middle English, from Old French, from Middle Low German sabel, from Old Russian sobol', ultimately from Persian samōr.]

Sa·ble (sā'bəl), Cape. 1. A promontory of extreme southern Nova Scotia, Canada. It is on an inlet south of Sable Island, a low, sandy island often called “the Graveyard of the Atlantic” because of its hazard to navigation. 2. A cape at the southwest tip of Florida. Part of Everglades National Park, it is the southernmost extremity of the U.S. mainland.

sable antelope (sā'bəl ăn'tl-ōp') n. A large African antelope (Hippotragus niger) having backward-curving horns and a usually dark coat.

sa·ble·fish (sā'bəl-fĭsh') n. pl. sablefish or sa·ble·fish·es. A dark-colored marine food fish (Anoplopoma fimbria) of North American Pacific waters. Also called black cod

- sa·bot (sä-bō', säb'ō) n. 1. A wooden shoe worn in some European countries. 2. (säb'ət) A sandal or shoe having a band of leather or other material across the instep. 3. A lightweight carrier in which a projectile of a smaller caliber is centered so as to permit firing the projectile within a larger caliber weapon. The carrier fills the bore of the weapon from which the projectile is fired; it is normally discarded a short distance from the muzzle. [French, from Old French çabot, alteration of savate, old shoe, probably of Turkish or Arabic origin.]
- sab·o·tage (säb'ə-täzh') n. 1. Destruction of property or obstruction of normal operations, as by civilians or enemy agents in time of war. 2. Treacherous action to defeat or hinder a cause or an endeavor; deliberate subversion. — v. tr. sab·o·taged, sab·o·tag·ing, sab·o·tag·es. To commit sabotage against. [French, from saboter, to walk noisily, bungle, sabotage, from sabot, sabot. See SABOT.]
- sab·o·teur (säb'ə-tûr') n. One that commits sabotage. [French, from saboter, to sabotage. See SABOTAGE.]
- sa·bra (sä'brə) n. A native-born Israeli. [New Hebrew šābār, sabra, prickly pear.]
- sabra cactus (sä'brə kāk'təs) n. A Central American cactus (Opuntia ficus-indica) naturalized and cultivated in the warmer parts of the world for its prickly edible fruits and as a hedge plant.
- sa·bre (sä'bər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of saber.
- sab·u·lous (säb'yə-ləs) also sab·u·lose (-lōs') adj. Gritty; sandy. [From Latin sabulōsus, from sabulum, coarse sand.] — sab'·u·los'·i·ty (-lōs'ī-tē) n.
- sac (säk) n. A pouch or pouchlike structure in a plant or an animal, sometimes filled with fluid. [French, bag, from Old French, from Latin saccus. See SACK¹.]
- Sac (säk, sōk) n. Variant of Sauk.
- SAC abbr. Strategic Air Command.
- Sac·a·ja·we·a (säk'ə-jə-wē'ə), 1787?-1812. Shoshone guide and interpreter who accompanied (1805-1806) the Lewis and Clark Expedition.
- sac·a·ton (säk'ə-tōn') n. A tufted perennial grass (Sporobolus wrightii) of the southwest United States, used for pasture and hay in arid regions. [American Spanish zacatón, from zacate, coarse grass, from Nahuatl zacatl, grass, straw.]
- sac·cade (sä-käd', sə-) n. A rapid intermittent eye movement, as that which occurs when the eyes fix on one point after another in the visual field. [French, twitch, from Old French, from Old North French saquier, to pull, from sac, sack. See SAC.] — sac·cad'ic adj.
- sac·cate (säk'ät') adj. 1. Shaped like a pouch or sac. 2. Having a pouch or sac. [Latin saccus, bag; see SACK¹ + -ATE¹.]
- sacchar- pref. Variant of saccharo-.
- sac·cha·rase (säk'ə-räs', -rāz') n. See invertase.

sac·cha·rate (săk'ə-rāt') n. A salt or an ester of saccharic acid. [SACCHAR(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

sac·char·ic acid (sə-kăr'ik əs'id) n. A white crystalline acid, COOH(CHOH)₄COOH, formed by the oxidation of glucose, sucrose, or starch.

sac·cha·ride (săk'ə-rīd') n. Any of a series of compounds of carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen in which the atoms of the latter two elements are in the ratio of 2:1, especially those containing the group C₆H₁₀O₅.

sac·char·i·fy (sə-kăr'ə-fī', sə-) v. tr. sac·char·i·fied (-fīd'), sac·char·i·fy·ing, sac·char·i·fies (-fīz'). To convert (starch, for example) into sugar.

—sac·char·i·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

sac·cha·rim·e·ter (săk'ə-rīm'ī-tər) n. 1. A polarimeter that indicates the concentration of sugar in a solution. 2. An instrument that determines the concentration of sugar in a fermenting solution from carbon dioxide measurements.

—sac'cha·rim'e·try n.

sac·cha·rin (săk'ər-īn) n. A white crystalline powder, C₇H₅NO₃S, having a taste about 500 times sweeter than cane sugar, used as a calorie-free sweetener.

sac·cha·rine (săk'ər-īn, -ə-rēn', -ə-rīn') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of sugar or saccharin; sweet. 2. Having a cloyingly sweet attitude, tone, or character: a saccharine smile. 3. Excessively sentimental: "It was enough for him to rely on sentiment... and saccharine assertions about The Home" (Kate Millett).

—sac'cha·rine·ly adv. —sac'cha·rin'·i·ty (-ə-rīn'ī-tē) n.

saccharo- or sacchar- pref. Sugar: saccharide. [From Medieval Latin saccharum, sugar, from Latin saccharon, from Greek sakkhar, from Pali sakkharā, from Sanskrit śarkarā.]

sac·cha·roid (săk'ə-roid') or sac·cha·roi·dal (-roid'l) adj. Having a texture similar to that of granulated sugar. Used of rocks and minerals.

sac·cha·rom·e·ter (săk'ə-rōm'ī-tər) n. A hydrometer that determines the amount of sugar in a solution from density measurements.

sac·cha·ro·my·ces (săk'ə-rō-mī'sēz) n. pl. saccharomyces. Any of several single-celled yeasts belonging to the genus Saccharomyces that lack a true mycelium and many of which ferment sugar. [New Latin Saccharomycēs, genus name : SACCHARO- + Greek mukēs, fungus.]

sac·cha·ro·my·cete (săk'ə-rō-mī'sēt') n. A yeast of the family Saccharomycetaceae, including the saccharomyces. —sac'cha·ro·my·ce'tic (-mī-sē'tik), sac'cha·ro·my·ce'tous adj.

sac·cha·rose (săk'ə-rōs') n. See sucrose.

Sac·co (săk'ō, săk'kō), Nicola. 1891-1927. Italian-born American anarchist who with Bartolomeo Vanzetti was convicted of a double murder and sentenced to death (1921). Despite the circumstantial nature of the evidence against them and worldwide protest at the political overtones of the proceedings, the two were executed in 1927.

sac·cu·late (săk'yə-lāt') or sac·cu·lat·ed (-lā'tīd) also sac·cu·lar (-lər) adj.

Formed of or divided into a series of saclike dilations or pouches.

sac·cule (săk'yōōl) also sac·cu·lus (-yə-ləs) n. pl. sac·cules also sac·cu·li (săk'yə-lī'). 1. A small sac. 2. The smaller of two membranous sacs in the vestibule of the inner ear. [Latin sacculus, diminutive of saccus, bag. See SACK¹.]

sac·er·do·tal (săs'ər-dōt'l, săk'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to priests or the priesthood; priestly. 2. Of or relating to sacerdotalism. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sacerdōtālis, from sacerdōs, sacerdōt-, priest. See sak- in Appendix.] —sac'er·do'tal·ly adv.

sac·er·do·tal·ism (săs'ər-dōt'l-iz'əm, săk'-) n. The belief that priests act as mediators between God and human beings.

SACEUR abbr. Supreme Allied Commander, Europe.

sac fungus (săk fŭng'gəs) n. Botany. See ascomycete.

sa·chem (sā'chəm) n. 1. a. A chief of a Native American tribe or confederation, especially an Algonquian chief. b. A member of the ruling council of the Iroquois confederacy. 2. A high official of the Tammany Society, a political organization in New York City. [Of Massachusetts origin.]

sa·cher torte (sä'kər tōrt', zä'KHƏR tōr'tə) n. A rich chocolate cake filled with apricot jam and topped with chocolate icing. [German Sachertorte: Sacher, surname of a family of 19th- and 20th-century hoteliers + Torte, torte; see TORTE.]

sa·chet (să-shā') n. A small packet of perfumed powder used to scent clothes, as in trunks or closets. [French, from Old French, diminutive of sac, bag, from Latin saccus. See SACK¹.]

Sachs (zäks, säks), Hans. 1494-1576. German writer and Meistersinger noted for his many dramas, poems, and songs. His life inspired Wagner's opera Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg (1868).

Sachs (zäks, säks), Nelly. 1891-1970. German writer whose work is based on the suffering of the Jewish people during World War II. She shared the 1966 Nobel Prize for literature.

sack¹ (săk) n. Abbr. sk. 1. a. A large bag of strong, coarse material for holding objects in bulk. b. A similar container of paper or plastic. c. The amount that such a container can hold. 2. Also sacque. A short, loose-fitting garment for women and children. 3. Slang. Dismissal from employment: finally got the sack after a year of ineptitude. 4. Informal. A bed, mattress, or sleeping bag.

5. Baseball. A base. 6. Football. A successful attempt at sacking the quarterback.

— v. tr. sacked, sack·ing, sacks. 1. To place into a sack. 2. Slang. To discharge from employment. See Synonyms at dismiss. 3. Football. To tackle (a quarterback attempting to pass the ball) behind the line of scrimmage.

—phrasal verb. sack out. Slang. To sleep. [Middle English, from Old English sacc, from Latin saccus, from Greek sakkos, of Semitic origin.]

WORD HISTORY: The word sack may seem an odd candidate for preserving a few thousand years of history, but this word for an ordinary thing probably goes back to Middle Eastern antiquity. Sack owes its long history to the fact that it and its ancestors denoted an object that was used in trade between peoples. Thus the Greeks got their word sakkos, “a bag made out of coarse cloth or hair,” from the Phoenicians with whom they traded. We do not know the Phoenician word, but we know words that are akin to it, such as Hebrew saq and Akkadian saqqu. The Greeks then passed the sack, as it were, to the Latin-speaking Romans, who transmitted their word saccus, “a large bag or sack,” to the Germanic tribes with whom they traded, who gave it the form ·sakkiz (other peoples as well have taken this word from Greek or Latin, including speakers of Welsh, Russian, Polish, and Albanian). The speakers of Old English, a Germanic language, used two forms of the word, sæc, from ·sakkiz, and sacc, directly from Latin; the second Old English form is the ancestor of our sack.

sack² (săk) v. tr. sacked, sack-ing, sacks. To rob of goods or valuables, especially after capture. — n. 1. The looting or pillaging of a captured city or town. 2. Plunder; loot. [Probably from French (mettre à) sac, (to put in) a sack, from Old French sac, sack, from Latin saccus, sack, bag. See SACK¹.]

sack³ (săk) n. Any of various light, dry, strong wines from Spain and the Canary Islands, imported to England in the 16th and 17th centuries. [From French (vin) sec, dry (wine), from Old French, from Latin siccus, dry.]

sack-but (săk'bü't) n. Music. 1. A medieval instrument resembling the trombone. 2. An ancient triangular stringed instrument. [French saquebute, from Old French saqueboute: Old North French saquier, to pull; see SACCADE + Old French bouter, to push (of Germanic origin); see bhau- in Appendix. Sense 2, alteration of Aramaic sabbēka from Greek sambukē.]

sack-cloth (săk'klôth', -klôth') n. 1. Sacking. 2. a. A rough cloth of camel's hair, goat hair, hemp, cotton, or flax. b. Garments made of this cloth, worn as a symbol of mourning or penitence.

sack-er (săk'ər) n. 1. Football. A lineman skilled at sacking the quarterback. 2. Baseball. A baseman. 3. One who puts things into sacks: a grocery sacker.

sack-ing (săk'ing) n. A coarse, stout woven cloth, such as burlap or gunny, used for making sacks; sackcloth.

Sack-ville (săk'vil'), Thomas First Earl of Dorset and Baron Buckhurst. 1536-1608. English political adviser and poet who collaborated with Thomas Norton (1532-1584) on the blank-verse drama Gorboduc (1561), the first tragedy written in English.

Sack-ville-West (săk'vīl-wĕst'), Victoria Mary. Known as "Vita." 1892-1962. British writer whose novels include The Edwardians (1930) and All Passion Spent (1931).

Sa-co (sô'kō) A river, about 169 km (105 mi) long, rising in the White Mountains of northeast-central New Hampshire and flowing southeast through Maine to the Atlantic Ocean.

sacque (săk) n. Variant of sack¹ (n., sense 2).

sacr- pref. Variant of sacro-.

sa-cra (să'krə, săk'rə) n. Plural of sacrum.

sa-cral¹ (să'krəl) adj. Of, near, or relating to the sacrum.

sa-cral² (să'krəl) adj. Relating to sacred rites or observances. [From Latin sacer, sacr-, sacred. See SACRED.]

sac-ra-ment (săk'rə-mənt) n. Theology. 1. A visible form of invisible grace, especially: a. In the Eastern, Roman Catholic, and some other Western Christian churches, any of the traditional seven rites that were instituted by Jesus and recorded in the New Testament and that confer sanctifying grace. b. In most other Western Christian churches, the two rites, Baptism and the Eucharist, that were instituted by Jesus to confer sanctifying grace. 2. Often Sacrament. a. The Eucharist. b. The consecrated elements of the Eucharist, especially the bread or host. [Middle English, from Old French sacrement, from Late Latin sacrāmentum, from Latin, oath, from sacrāre, to consecrate, from sacer, sacr-, sacred. See SACRED.] sac-ra-men-tal (săk'rə-mĕn'tl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or used in a sacrament.

2. Consecrated or bound by or as if by a sacrament: a sacramental duty.

3. Having the force or efficacy of a sacrament. — n. A rite, an act, or a sacred object used by some Christian churches in worship. —sac'ra-men'tal-ly adv.

sac-ra-men-tal-ism (săk'rə-mĕn'tl-iz'əm) n. 1. The doctrine that observance of the sacraments is necessary for salvation and that such participation can confer grace. 2. Emphasis on the efficacy of a sacramental. —sac'ra-men'tal-ist n.

Sac-ra-men-tar-i-an (săk'rə-mĕn-târ'ē-ən) n. One who regards the consecrated bread and wine of the Eucharist as only the metaphorical, and not the physical, body and blood of Jesus. — adj. 1. Of or relating to Sacramentarians. 2. Of or relating to sacramentalism or sacramentalists.

—Sac'ra-men-tar'i-an-ism n.

Sac-ra-men-to (săk'rə-mĕn'tō) The capital of California, in the north-central part of the state on the Sacramento River northeast of Oakland. Discovery of gold nearby in 1848 led to the growth of the original settlement as a trade and shipping center. It became the state capital in 1854. Population, 369,365.

Sacramento Mountains (săk'rə-mĕn'tō moun'tənz) A range of south-central New Mexico extending north and south to the Texas border and rising to 3,660.9 m (12,003 ft) at Sierra Blanca Peak.

Sacramento River (săk' rə-mən' tō rīv' ər) A river of northern California rising near Mount Shasta and flowing about 611 km (380 mi) generally southward to an extension of San Francisco Bay.

sa·crar·i·um (sə-krâr' ē-əm, sə-, sâ-) n. pl. sa·crar·i·a (-ē-ə). Ecclesiastical.

1. The sanctuary or sacristy of a church. 2. Piscina. [Medieval Latin sacrarium, from Latin, shrine, from sacer, sacr-, sacred. See SACRED.]

sa·cred (sā'krīd) adj. 1. Dedicated to or set apart for the worship of a deity. 2. Worthy of religious veneration: the sacred teachings of the Buddha. 3. Made or declared holy: sacred bread and wine. 4. Dedicated or devoted exclusively to a single use, purpose, or person: sacred to the memory of her sister; a private office sacred to the President. 5. Worthy of respect; venerable. 6. Of or relating to religious objects, rites, or practices. [Middle English, past participle of sacren, to consecrate, from Old French sacrer, from Latin sacrāre, from sacer, sacr-, sacred. See sak- in Appendix.] —sa'cred·ly adv. —sa'cred·ness n.

sacred baboon (sā'krīd bā-bōn') n. See hamadryas. [From the fact that the ancient Egyptians revered it as the god Anubis.]

Sa·cred College (sā'krīd kōl'ij) n. Roman Catholic Church. The College of Cardinals. sacred cow (sā'krīd kou) n. One that is immune from criticism, often unreasonably so: "The need for widespread secrecy has become a sacred cow" (Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists). [From the veneration of the cow by Hindus.]

sacred ibis (sā'krīd ī'bis) n. A large, short-legged ibis (Threskiornis aethiopica) of Africa and Asia, having white plumage and a sooty black, naked head and neck. [From the veneration of this ibis by the ancient Egyptians.]

sac·ri·fice (săk' rə-fīs') n. 1. a. The act of offering something to a deity in propitiation or homage, especially the ritual slaughter of an animal or a person. b. A victim offered in this way. 2. a. Forfeiture of something highly valued for the sake of one considered to have a greater value or claim. b. Something so forfeited. 3. a. Relinquishment of something at less than its presumed value. b. Something so relinquished. c. A loss so sustained. 4. Baseball. A sacrifice hit. — v. sac·ri·ficed, sac·ri·fic·ing, sac·ri·fic·es. — v. tr. 1. To offer as a sacrifice to a deity. 2. To forfeit (one thing) for another thing considered to be of greater value. 3. To sell or give away at a loss. — v. intr. 1. To make or offer a sacrifice. 2. Baseball. To make a sacrifice hit. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sacrificium : sacer, sacred; see SACRED + facere, to make; see dhē- in Appendix.] —sac'ri·fic'er n.

sacrifice fly (săk' rə-fīs' flī) n. Abbr. SF Baseball. A fly ball enabling a runner to score after it is caught by a fielder.

sacrifice hit (săk' rə-fīs' hīt) n. Baseball. A bunt that allows a runner to advance a base while the batter is retired.

sac·ri·fi·cial (săk' rə-fīsh' əl) adj. Of, relating to, or concerned with a sacrifice: a sacrificial offering. —sac'ri·fi·cial·ly adv.

sacrificial anode (săk' rə-fīsh' əl ən' ōd') n. Metallurgy. An anode that is attached to a metal object, such as a boat or an underground tank, to inhibit corrosion of the object. The anode is electrolytically decomposed while the object remains free of damage.

sac·ri·lege (săk' rə-līj) n. Desecration, profanation, misuse, or theft of something sacred. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sacrilegium, from sacrilegus, one who steals sacred things : sacer, sacred; see SACRED + legere, to gather; see leg- in Appendix.] —sac'ri·le'gist (săk' rə-lē'jīst) n.

sac·ri·le·gious (săk' rə-līj' əs, -lē'jəs) adj. 1. Grossly irreverent toward what is or is held to be sacred. See Synonyms at profane. 2. Having committed sacrilege. —sac'ri·le'gious·ly adv. —sac'ri·le'gious·ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Sacrilegious, the adjective of sacrilege, is often misspelled through confusion with religious.

sac·ris·tan (săk' rī-stən) n. 1. One who is in charge of a sacristy. 2. A sexton. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin sacristānus, from sacrista, from Latin sacer, sacred. See SACRED.]

sac·ris·ty (săk' rī-stē) n. pl. sac·ris·ties. A room in a church housing the sacred vessels and vestments; a vestry. [Middle English sacriste, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin sacristia, from sacrista, sacristan. See SACRISTAN.]

sacro- or sacr- pref. Sacrum: sacrolumbar.

sac·ro·coc·cyg·e·al (săk' rō-kōk-sij' ē-əl, sā'krō-) adj. Of, relating to, or affecting the sacrum and coccyx.

sac·ro·il·i·ac (săk' rō-īl' ē-āk', sā'krō-) adj. Of, relating to, or affecting the sacrum and ilium and their articulation or associated ligaments. — n. The sacroiliac region or cartilage.

sac·ro·lum·bar (săk' rō-lūm' bər, -bār', sā'krō-) adj. Of, relating to, or affecting the sacral and the lumbar region.

sac·ro·sanct (săk' rō-săngkt') adj. Regarded as sacred and inviolable. [Latin sacrōsānctus, consecrated with religious ceremonies : sacrum, religious rite (from sacer, sacred); see SACRED + sānctus, past participle of sancīre, to consecrate; see sak- in Appendix.] —sac'ro·sanc'ti·ty (-săngk' tī-tē) n.

sac·ro·sci·at·ic (săk' rō-sī-ăt' īk, sā'krō-) adj. Of, relating to, or affecting the sacrum and ischium.

sa·crum (sā'krəm, săk' rəm) n. pl. sa·cra (sā'krə, săk' rə). A triangular bone made up of five fused vertebrae and forming the posterior section of the pelvis. [New Latin, from Late Latin (os) sacrum (translation of Greek hieron (osteon), sacred bone : hieros, sacred + osteon, bone), from Latin sacer, sacred. See SACRED.]

sad (sād) adj. sad·der, sad·dest. 1. Affected or characterized by sorrow or unhappiness. 2. Expressive of sorrow or unhappiness. 3. Causing sorrow or gloom; depressing: a sad movie; sad news. 4. Deplorable; sorry: a sad state of affairs; a sad excuse. 5. Dark-hued; somber. [Middle English, weary, sorrowful, from Old English sæd, sated, weary. See sā- in Appendix.] —sad'ly adv.
—sad'ness n.

SYNONYMS: sad, melancholy, sorrowful, doleful, weebegone, desolate. These adjectives all mean affected with or marked by unhappiness, as that caused by affliction. Sad is the most general: “Better by far you should forget and smile/Than that you should remember and be sad” (Christina Rossetti). Melancholy can refer to a lingering or habitual state of mind marked by somberness or sadness: The patient’s face, though it was melancholy, brightened at the arrival of the guests. Sorrowful applies to mental pain such as that resulting from irreparable loss: “Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful” (Proverbs 14:13). Doleful describes what is mournful, morose, or gloomy: The chastised child looked at her father with a pathetic, doleful expression. Weebegone suggests grief or wretchedness, especially as it is reflected in a person’s appearance: “His sorrow... made him look... haggard and... weebegone” (George du Maurier). Desolate applies to one that is sorrowful to the point of being beyond consolation: “No one is so accursed by fate,/No one so utterly desolate,/But some heart, though unknown,/Responds unto his own” (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow).

SAD abbr. Seasonal affective disorder.

Sa·dat (sə·dāt', -dāt'), Anwar el-. 1918-1981. Egyptian politician. President of Egypt (1970-1981), he shared the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin for negotiations that led to a historic peace treaty in 1979. Sadat was assassinated by Islamic fundamentalists.

sad·den (sād'n) v. tr. intr. sad·dened, sad·den·ing, sad·dens. To make or become sad.

sad·dhu (sä'dō) n. Hinduism. Variant of sadhu.

sad·dle (sād'l) n. 1. a. A leather seat for a rider, secured on an animal’s back by a girth. Regional. Also called rig. b. Similar tack used for attaching a pack to an animal. c. The padded part of a driving harness fitting over a horse’s back. d. The seat of a bicycle, motorcycle, or similar vehicle. e. Something shaped like a saddle. 2. a. A cut of meat consisting of part of the backbone and both loins. b. The lower part of a male fowl’s back. 3. a. A saddle-shaped depression in the ridge of a hill. b. A ridge between two peaks. — v. sad·dled, sad·dling, sad·dles. — v. tr. 1. To put a saddle onto. 2. To load or burden; encumber: They were saddled with heavy expenses. — v. intr. 1. To saddle a horse. 2. To get into a saddle. —idiom. in the saddle. In control; dominant. [Middle English sadel, from Old English sadol. See sed- in Appendix.]

sad·dle·back (săd'ĭ-l-băk') n. Any of various birds, fishes, and other animals having saddle-shaped markings on the back.

saddleback caterpillar (săd'ĭ-l-băk' kăt'ər-pĭl'ər) n. The brown and green larva of a moth (Sibine stimulea) of the southeast United States, having a brown saddle-shaped mark on its back and stinging spines that are mildly poisonous.

sad·dle·bag (săd'ĭ-l-băg') n. 1. One of a pair of pouches hanging across the back of a horse behind the saddle. 2. A pouch hanging from a saddle or over the rear wheel of a motorcycle or bicycle.

sad·dle·billed stork (săd'ĭ-l-bĭld' stôrk) n. A large stork (Ephippiorhynchus senegalensis) of tropical Africa, having a white body and a very long black and red bill.

saddle blanket (săd'ĭ blăng'kĭt) n. A blanket placed between a saddle and a horse's back to prevent galling.

sad·dle·bow (săd'ĭ-l-bō') n. The arched upper front part of a saddle.

sad·dle·cloth (săd'ĭ-klôth', -klôth') n. A cloth placed under the saddle of a racehorse and bearing its number.

saddle horse (săd'ĭ hōrs) n. A horse bred or schooled for riding.

sad·dler (săd'lər) n. One that makes, repairs, or sells equipment for horses.

saddle roof (săd'ĭ rōof) n. A roof having a ridge and two gables.

sad·dler·y (săd'lə-rē) n. pl. sad·dler·ies. 1. Equipment, such as saddles and harnesses, for horses. 2. A shop that sells tack. 3. The craft or business of one that makes or sells tack.

saddle shoe (săd'ĭ shō) n. A flat casual shoe, usually white, having a band of leather in a contrasting color across the instep.

saddle soap (săd'ĭ sōp) n. A preparation containing mild soap and neat's-foot oil, used for cleaning and softening leather.

saddle sore (săd'ĭ sôr) n. 1. A sore on a horse's back caused by an improperly fitted saddle. 2. A sore on a rider caused by the chafing of a saddle.

saddle stitch (săd'ĭ stĭch) n. 1. A simple overcasting stitch, usually of a thread contrasting in color with the fabric, used primarily as ornament on clothing.

2. A stitch used in sewing together the leaves of a book at the fold lines, either with thread or wire.

sad·dle·tree (săd'ĭ-trē') n. The frame of a saddle.

Sad·du·cee (săj'ə-sē', săd'yə-) n. A member of a priestly, aristocratic Jewish sect founded in the second century B.C. that accepted only the written Mosaic law and that ceased to exist after the destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D. [Middle English Saducee, from Old English Sadducēas, Sadducees, from Late Latin Saddūcaei, from Greek Saddoukaioi, from Hebrew Šəḏūqî.] —Sad'du·ce'an (-sē'ən) adj. —Sad'du·cee'ism n.

Sade (sād, sād), Comte Donatien Alphonse François de. Known as “Marquis de Sade.” 1740-1814. French writer of novels, plays, and short stories characterized by a preoccupation with sexual violence.

sa-dhe (sā'də, tsä'-, -dē) also tsa-de (tsä'də, -dē) n. The 18th letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew šādē.]

sa-dhu also sad-dhu (sā'dō) n. Hinduism. An ascetic holy man. [From Sanskrit sādhu-, right, holy.]

sa-dism (sā'diz'əm, sād'iz'-) n. 1. Psychology. a. The act or an instance of deriving sexual gratification from infliction of pain on others. b. A psychological disorder in which sexual gratification is derived from infliction of pain on others. 2. Delight in cruelty. 3. Extreme cruelty. [After Comte Donatien Alphonse Fran SADEÇOIS DE.] —sa/dist n. —sa-dis/tic (sə-dīs'tik) adj. —sa-dis/ti-cal-ly adv.

sa-do-mas-o-chism (sā'dō-mäs'ə-kiz'əm, sād'ō-) n. Abbr. S-M, s-m, S & M, s & m Psychology. The perversion of deriving pleasure, especially sexual pleasure, from simultaneous sadism and masochism. [SAD(ISM) + MASOCHISM.] —sa'do-mas'o-chist n. —sa'do-mas'o-chis/tic adj.

sad sack (sād sāk) n. Informal. A person regarded as extremely inept or clumsy. [After a cartoon character created in 1942 by George Baker (1915-1975).]

Sa-far also Sa-phar (sə-fär') n. The second month of the year in the Muslim calendar. See Table at calendar. [Arabic šafar.]

sa-fa-ri (sə-fär'ē) n. pl. sa-fa-ris. 1. An overland expedition, especially one for hunting or exploring in eastern Africa. 2. A journey or trip: a sightseeing safari. [Arabic safarī, journey, from safara, to travel, set out.]

safari jacket (sə-fär'ē jāk'it) n. A belted, often pleated shirt jacket with large patch pockets.

safe (sāf) adj. safe-er, safe-est. 1. Secure from danger, harm, or evil. 2. Free from danger or injury; unhurt: safe and sound. 3. Free from risk; sure: a safe bet. 4. Affording protection: a safe place. 5. Baseball. Having reached a base without being put out, as a batter or base runner. — n. 1. A metal container usually having a lock, used for storing valuables. 2. A repository for protecting stored items, especially a cooled compartment for perishable foods: a cheese safe. 3. Slang. A condom. [Middle English sauf, from Old French, from Latin salvus, healthy. See sol- in Appendix.] —safe/ly adv. —safe/ness n.

safe-con-duct (sāf'kōn'dükt) n. 1. An official document or an escort assuring unmolested passage, as through enemy territory. 2. The protection afforded by such a document.

safe-crack-er (sāf'krāk'ər) n. One who breaks into safes in order to steal items from them. —safe/crack'ing n.

safe-de-pos-it box (sāf'di-pōz'it) n. A fireproof metal box, usually in a bank vault, for the safe storage of valuables.

safe-guard (sāf'gärd') n. 1. a. One that serves as protection or a guard. b. A mechanical device designed to prevent accidents. c. A safe-conduct. 2. a. A protective stipulation, as in a contract. b. A precautionary measure. — v. tr. safe-guard-ed, safe-guard-ing, safe-guards. To ensure the safety of; protect. See Synonyms at defend.

safe house (sāf hous) n. A house or an apartment used as a hiding place or secure refuge by the members of an organization, such as a secret service agency or an underground terrorist group.

safe-keep-ing (sāf'kē'pīng) n. The act of keeping safe or the state of being kept safe; protection.

safe-light (sāf'līt') n. A lamp having one or more color filters allowing moderate darkroom illumination without affecting photosensitive film or paper.

safe sex (sāf sěks) n. Sexual activity in which safeguards, such as the use of a condom, are taken to avoid acquiring or spreading a sexually transmitted disease. — safe'-sex' (sāf'sěks') adj.

safe-ty (sāf'tē) n. pl. safe-ties. 1. The condition of being safe; freedom from danger, risk, or injury. 2. A device designed to prevent accidents, as a lock on a firearm preventing accidental firing. 3. Football. a. A play in which a member of the offensive team downs the ball, willingly or unwillingly, behind his own goal line, resulting in two points for the defensive team. b. One of two defensive backs; a safetyman. 4. Slang. A condom. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: safety precautions; safety rules.

safety belt (sāf'tē bēlt) n. 1. A strap or belt worn as a safety precaution by a person working at great heights. 2. See seat belt.

safety circuit (sāf'tē sūr'kīt) n. An electronic circuit that prevents malfunction by either sounding an alert or activating a trip circuit on a protective device.

safety glass (sāf'tē glās) n. 1. Glass that resists shattering, especially a composite of two sheets of glass with an intermediate layer of transparent plastic. Also called shatterproof glass. 2. See wire glass. 3. Tempered glass that breaks into rounded grains instead of jagged shards.

safety island (sāf'tē ī'lənd) n. An area marked off within a roadway from which traffic is banned, especially to provide pedestrian safety.

safety lamp (sāf'tē lāmp) n. A miner's lamp with a protective wire gauze surrounding the flame to prevent ignition of flammable gases.

safe-ty-man (sāf'tē-măn') n. Football. A safety.

safety match (sāf'tē mäch) n. A match that can be lighted only by being struck against a chemically prepared friction surface.

safety net (sāf'tē nēt) n. 1. A large net for catching one that falls or jumps, as from a circus trapeze. 2. A guarantee, as of professional, physical, or financial security: "They cannot invoke the sacrifice of vital policies having to do with... terrorism as a safety net for their own careers" (Moorhead Kennedy).

safety pin (sāf'tē pīn) n. 1. A pin in the form of a clasp, having a sheath to cover and hold the point. 2. A pin that prevents the premature or accidental detonation of an explosive device, such as a bomb or grenade.

safety razor (sāf'tē rā'zər) n. See razor (n., sense 2).

safety valve (sāf'tē vālv) n. 1. A valve in a pressure container, as in a steam boiler, that automatically opens when pressure reaches a dangerous level. 2. An outlet for the release of repressed energy or emotion.

saf·flow·er (săf'lou'ər) n. 1. A thistlelike Eurasian plant (Carthamus tinctorius) of the composite family, having heads of orange flowers that yield a dyestuff and produce seeds containing an oil used in cooking, cosmetics, paints, and medicine. 2. The dried flowers of this plant. [Middle English saf flour, from Old French safleur, from Old Italian saffiore, from Arabic aşfar, yellow, a yellow plant.]

saf·fron (săf'rən) n. 1. a. A corm-producing plant (Crocus sativus) native to the Old World, having purple or white flowers with orange stigmas. b. The dried aromatic stigmas of this plant, used to color foods and as a cooking spice and dyestuff. 2. Color. A moderate or strong orange yellow to moderate orange. [Middle English saffran, from Old French safran, from Medieval Latin safrānum, from Arabic za'farān.]

Sa·fi (săf'ē) A city of western Morocco on the Atlantic Ocean west-northwest of Marrakesh. A Portuguese base in the early 16th century, it is today a fishing, processing, and shipping center. Population, 197,309.

S.Afr. abbr. South Africa.

saf·ra·nine (săf'rə-nēn', -nīn) also saf·ra·nin (-nīn) n. Any of a family of dyes based on phenazine, used in the textile industry and as a biological stain. [French safran, saffron (from Old French); see SAFFRON + -INE².]

saf·role (săf'rōl') n. A colorless or pale yellow oily liquid, C₁₀H₁₀O₂, derived from oil of sassafras and other essential oils and used in making perfume and soap. [French safran, saffron; see SAFFRON + -OLE.]

sag (săg) v. sagged, sag·ging, sags. — v. intr. 1. To sink, droop, or settle from pressure or weight. 2. To lose vigor, firmness, or resilience: My spirits sagged after I had been rejected for the job. 3. To decline, as in value or price: Stock prices sagged after a short rally. 4. Nautical. To drift to leeward. — v. tr. To cause to sag. — n. 1. a. The act or an instance of sagging. b. The degree or extent to which something sags. 2. A sagging area; a depression. 3. A temporary decline in monetary value. 4. Nautical. A drift to leeward. [Middle English saggen, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish sacka, to sink.]

sa·ga (să'gə) n. 1. a. A prose narrative usually written in Iceland between 1120 and 1400, dealing with the families that first settled Iceland and their descendants, with the histories of the kings of Norway, and with the myths and legends of early Germanic gods and heroes. b. A modern prose narrative that resembles a saga. 2. A long, detailed report: recounted the saga of their family problems. [Old Norse. See sek^{w-3} in Appendix.]

sa·ga·cious (sə-gā'shəs) adj. Having or showing keen discernment, sound judgment, and farsightedness. See Synonyms at shrewd. [From Latin sagāx, sagāc-, of keen perception. See sāg- in Appendix.] —sa·ga'cious·ly adv.

—sa·ga'cious·ness n.

sa·gac·i·ty (sə-gās'ī-tē) n. The quality of being discerning, sound in judgment, and farsighted; wisdom. [French sagacité, from Old French sagacite, from Latin sagācitās, quickness of perception, from sagāx, sagāc-, of keen perception. See SAGACIOUS.]

Sa·ga·mi·ha·ra (sə-gā'mē-hār'ə) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, an industrial suburb of Tokyo. Population, 482,778.

Sa·ga·mi Sea (sə-gā'mē, sə-) A bay of the western Pacific Ocean on the east-central coast of Honshu, Japan, south-southwest of Tokyo.

sag·a·more (săg'ə-môr', -mōr') n. A subordinate chief among the Algonquians of North America. [Eastern Abenaki s·kəmα.]

Sa·gan (sā'gən), Carl. Born 1934. American astronomer noted for research on the possibility of extraterrestrial life and for speculation on the severity of a nuclear winter. His books include Dragons of Eden (1977).

Sa·gan (sä-gän'), Françoise. Pen name of Françoise Quoirez. Born 1935. French writer best known for her first novel, Bonjour Tristesse (1954).

saga novel (sä'gə nŏv'əl) n. See roman-fleuve.

sage¹ (sāj) n. One venerated for experience, judgment, and wisdom. — adj.

sag·er, sag·est. 1. Having or exhibiting wisdom and calm judgment.

2. Proceeding from or marked by wisdom and calm judgment: sage advice.

3. Archaic. Serious; solemn. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin sapius*, from Latin sapere, to be wise. See sep- in Appendix.] —sage'ly adv. —sage'ness n.

sage² (sāj) n. 1. a. Any of various plants of the genus Salvia, especially S. officinalis, having aromatic grayish-green, opposite leaves used as a cooking herb. Also called ramona b. The leaves of this plant. 2. Any of various similar or related plants in the mint family. 3. Sagebrush. [Middle English sauge, from Old French, from Latin salvia, from salvus, healthy. See sol- in Appendix.]

sage·brush (sāj'brūsh') n. Any of several aromatic plants of the genus Artemisia, especially A. tridentata, a shrub of arid regions of western North America, having silver-green leaves and large clusters of small white flower heads.

sage cock (sāj kŏk) n. The male sage grouse.

sage grouse (sāj grous) n. A chickenlike bird (Centrocercus urophasianus) of western North America, having long, pointed tail feathers that can be spread like a fan.

sage hen (sāj hĕn) n. The sage grouse, especially the female.

sage sparrow (sāj spār'ō) n. A small brownish-gray sparrow (Amphispiza belli) found in dry or desert regions of the southwest United States.

sage thrasher (sāj thrāsh'ər) n. A light grayish-brown thrasher (Oreoscoptes montanus) that nests in low sage and cactus bushes in dry or desert regions of the western United States.

sag-ger also sag-gar (säg'ər) n. 1. A protective casing of fire clay in which delicate ceramic articles are fired. 2. Clay used to make ceramic casings. [Perhaps alteration of SAFEGUARD.]

Sag Harbor (säg) A village of southeast New York on the eastern end of Long Island on an inlet of Long Island Sound. A major whaling port in the early 19th century, it is today primarily a resort. Population, 2,581.

Sa-gi-naw (säg'ə-nô') A city of east-central Michigan on the Saginaw River, which flows about 32 km (20 mi) northward into Saginaw Bay, a large inlet of Lake Huron. The city is a port of entry and an industrial center. Population, 69,572.

Sa-git-ta (sə-jīt'ə) n. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Aquila and Vulpecula. [Latin, sagitta, arrow.]

sag-it-tal (sāj'ī-tl) adj. 1. Anatomy. Of or relating to the suture uniting the two parietal bones of the skull. 2. Zoology. Of or relating to the sagittal plane. [New Latin sagittālis, from Latin sagitta, arrow.] —sag'it-tal-ly adv.

sagittal plane (sāj'ī-tl plān) n. Zoology. A longitudinal plane that divides the body of a bilaterally symmetrical animal into right and left sections.

Sag-it-tar-i-an (sāj'ī-tār'ē-ən) n. One who is born under the sign of Sagittarius. —Sag'it-tar'i-an adj.

Sag-it-tar-i-us (sāj'ī-tār'ē-əs) n. 1. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Scorpius and Capricorn. 2. a. The ninth sign of the zodiac in astrology. b. One who is born under this sign. Also called Archer [Middle English, from Latin Sagittārius, from sagittārius, archer, from sagitta, arrow.]

sag-it-tate (sāj'ī-tāt') adj. Biology. Having the shape of an arrowhead: sagittate leaves; sagittate shells. [Latin sagitta, arrow + -ATE¹.]

sa-go (sā'gō) n. pl. sa-gos. A powdery starch obtained from the trunks of certain sago palms and used in Asia as a food thickener and textile stiffener. [Malay sagu, mealy pith.]

sago palm (sā'gō pām) n. 1. Any of various palms of the genera Metroxylon, Arenga, and Caryota of tropical Asia. 2. Either of two palmlike cycads (Cycas circinalis or C. revoluta) of eastern and tropical Asia.

sa-gua-ro (sə-gwār'ō, -wār'ō) also sa-hua-ro (sə-wār'ō) n. pl. sa-gua-ros.

1. A very large cactus (Carnegiea gigantea) of the southwest United States and northern Mexico, having ribbed upward-curving branches, white funnel-shaped flowers, and edible red fruit. 2. The fruit of this cactus. [American Spanish, probably of Piman origin.]

Sag·ue·nay (säg'ə-nā') A river, about 201 km (125 mi) long, of southern Quebec, Canada, flowing from Lake St. John eastward to the St. Lawrence River. First visited by Jacques Cartier in 1535, it was long an important route for explorers, missionaries, and fur traders.

Sa·gun·to (sə-gōon'tō, sä-) A city of eastern Spain north-northeast of Valencia. Founded by Greek colonists and later allied with Rome, it was besieged and captured by Carthaginian forces led by Hannibal (219-218 B.C.), thus precipitating the Second Punic War. Segunto was held by the Moors from A.D. 713 until 1238. Population, 57,380.

Sa·hap·ti·an (sä-hăp'tē-ən) also Sha·hap·ti·an (shä-) n. 1. A North American Indian language family spoken in Washington, Oregon, and Idaho and comprising the Sahaptin and Nez Perce languages. 2. A speaker of a Sahaptian language. —Sa·hap'ti·an adj.

Sa·hap·tin (sä-hăp'tin) also Sha·hap·tin (shä-) n. pl. Sahaptin or Sa·hap·tins also Shahaptin or Sha·hap·tins. 1. a. Any of various Native American peoples of Idaho, Washington, and Oregon. b. A member of any of these peoples. 2. The dialectally diverse Sahaptian language of the Sahaptin. [Southern Interior Salish s'aptnx.]

Sa·har·a (sə-hâr'ə, -hă'ə, -hă'rə) A vast desert of northern Africa extending east from the Atlantic coast to the Nile Valley and south from the Atlas Mountains to the region of the Sudan. During the Ice Age (about 50,000 to 100,000 years ago), the Sahara was a region of extensive shallow lakes watering large areas of vegetation, most of which had disappeared by Roman times. Introduction of the camel (probably in the first century A.D.) led to occupation by nomadic tribes who moved from oasis to oasis in search of water. —Sa·har'an adj.

Sa·ha·ran·pur (sə-hăr'ən-pöör') A city of north-central India north-northeast of Delhi. It was once a summer resort for the Mogul court. Population, 295,355.

Sa·hel (sə-hāl', -hēl') A semiarid region of north-central Africa south of the Sahara Desert. Since the 1960's it has been afflicted by prolonged periods of extensive drought. —Sa·hel'i·an adj.

sa·hib (sä'ib, -ēb, -hīb) n. Used formerly as a form of respectful address for a European man in colonial India. [Hindi ṣāhib, master, from Arabic, companion, master.]

sa·hua·ro (sə-wär'ō) n. Variant of saguaro.

said (sēd) v. Past tense and past participle of say. — adj. Law. Named or mentioned before; aforementioned: Said party has denied the charges.

USAGE NOTE: The adjective said is seldom appropriate to any but legal or business writing, where it is equivalent to aforsaid: the said tenant (named in a lease); said property. In similar general contexts said is usually unnecessary, and the tenant or the property will suffice.

sai-ga (sī'gə) n. Either of two small antelopes (Saiga tatarica or S. mongolia) of the plains of northern Eurasia, having a stubby snout. [Russian saïga, of Turkic origin.]

Sai-gon (sī-gŏn') See Ho Chi Minh City.

sail (sāl) n. 1. Nautical. a. A piece of fabric sewn together and fitted to the spars and rigging of a vessel so as to convert the force of the wind into forward motion of the vessel. b. The sails of a ship or boat. c. The superstructure of a submarine. 2. pl. sail or sails. Nautical. A sailing vessel. 3. Nautical. A trip or voyage in a sailing craft. 4. Something, such as the blade of a windmill, that resembles a sail in form or function. — v. sailed, sail-ing, sails. — v. intr. 1. Nautical. a. To move across the surface of water, especially by means of a sailing vessel. b. To travel by water in a vessel. c. To start out on such a voyage or journey. d. To operate a sailing craft, especially for sport. 2. To move swiftly, smoothly, or effortlessly: sailed through the examination. — v. tr. Nautical. 1. To navigate or manage (a vessel). 2. To voyage upon or across: sail the Pacific. — phrasal verb. sail into. To attack or criticize vigorously. [Middle English, from Old English segl.]

sail-board (sāl'bôrd', -bôrd') Nautical. n. A small light sailboat with a flat hull. — v. intr. sail-board-ed, sail-board-ing, sail-boards. To engage in the activity or sport of sailing a small, flat-hulled sailboat. — sail/board'er n.

sail-boat (sāl'bôt') n. Nautical. A small boat propelled partially or wholly by sail.

sail-cloth (sāl'klôth', -klôth') n. A strong fabric, such as cotton canvas, suitable for making sails or tents.

sail-fish (sāl'fîsh') n. pl. sailfish or sail-fish-es. Any of various large marine fishes of the genus Istiophorus, having a large saillike dorsal fin and an upper jaw that is prolonged into a spearlike bone.

sail-ing (sāl'ling) n. Nautical. 1. The skill required to operate and navigate a vessel; navigation. 2. The sport of operating or riding in a sailboat. 3. Departure or time of departure from a port.

sail-or (sāl'lər) n. 1. Nautical. One who serves in a navy or works on a ship. 2. One who travels by water. 3. A low-crowned straw hat with a flat top and flat brim.

sail-or's-choice (sāl'lərz-chois') n. pl. sailor's-choice. Any of various fishes of the North American Atlantic coast, as the pinfish or the grunt Haemulon parrai of southerly waters.

sail-plane (sāl'plān') n. A light glider used especially for soaring. — v. intr. sailed, sail-plan-ing, sail-planes. To fly a sailplane. — sail/plan'er n.

Sai-maa (sī'mä'), Lake. A lake of southeast Finland. It is the largest of the Saimaa Lakes, a group of more than 120 interconnected lakes in the south-central and southeast part of the country.

sain·foin (sān'foin', sän'-) n. A Eurasian plant (Onobrychis viciifolia) having pinnately compound leaves and pink or white flowers, often grown as a forage crop. [French, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sānum faenum : Latin sānum, neuter of sānus, healthy + Latin faenum, hay; see dhē(i)- in Appendix.]

saint (sānt) n. Abbr. S., St. 1. a. Theology. A person officially recognized, especially by canonization, as being entitled to public veneration and capable of interceding for people on earth. b. A person who has died and gone to heaven.

c. Saint. A member of any of various religious groups, especially a Latter-Day Saint. 2. An extremely virtuous person. — v. tr. saint-ed, saint-ing, saints. To name, recognize, or venerate as a saint; canonize. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin sānctus, from Latin, holy, past participle of sancīre, to consecrate. See sak- in Appendix.]

Saint Ag·nes' Eve (sānt äg'nīs ēv, -nī-sīz) n. January 20th, considered especially in the British Isles to be the night on which young women dream of their future husbands.

Saint Al·bans (sānt ðl'bənz) A municipal borough of southeast England north-northwest of London. On the site of the Roman settlement of Verulamium, it was founded as an abbey town in 793 and was the home of numerous important early chroniclers, including Matthew Paris. Population, 125,400.

Saint Al·bert (sānt ä'l'bərt) A city of central Alberta, Canada, an industrial suburb of Edmonton. Population, 31,996.

Saint An·drews (sānt ä'n'drōz) 1. A burgh of eastern Scotland southeast of Dundee on Saint Andrews Bay, an inlet of the North Sea. Chartered in 1160, it was an important ecclesiastical center during the Middle Ages. It is now primarily a resort known for its golf courses. Population, 10,358. 2. A community of southeast South Carolina, a suburb of Charleston. Population, 26,692.

Saint An·drew's cross (sānt ä'n'drōz krôs) n. 1. A cross shaped like the letter X. 2. A shrubby New World plant (Hypericum hypericoides) having four-petaled yellow flowers.

Saint Ann (sānt än) A city of eastern Missouri, a suburb of St. Louis. Population, 15,523.

Saint An·tho·ny's cross (sānt ä'n'thə-nēz krôs) n. See tau cross.

Saint Anthony's fire (sānt ä'n'thə-nēz fīr) n. See erysipelas. [From the belief that Saint Anthony's intercession could cure it.]

Saint Au·gus·tine (sānt ô'gə-stēn') A city of northeast Florida on the Atlantic Ocean south-southeast of Jacksonville. Founded by the Spanish in 1565, it is the oldest permanent European settlement in the United States. The city was strategitally important from 1586, when Sir Francis Drake burned it, until the Civil War, when it was occupied by Union troops. Population, 11,692.

Saint-Bar-thél-e-my (sǎN-bār-tāl-mē') or Saint Bar-thol-o-mew (sānt bār-thōl'ə-myō') Familiarly known as Saint Barts (bārts). An island of the French overseas department of Guadeloupe in the Leeward Islands of the West Indies north-northwest of the island of Guadeloupe.

Saint Ber-nard (sānt bər-nārd') n. Any of a breed of large, strong dog developed in Switzerland, having a thick brown and white coat, originally used by monks of the hospice of Saint Bernard in the Swiss Alps to help patrol the snow-covered region.

Saint Bru-no de Mon-tar-ville or Saint-Bru-no-de-Mon-tar-ville (sānt brōō'nō də mōn'tər-vīl', sǎN brü-nô' də mōN-tār-vēl') A town of southern Quebec, Canada, a suburb of Montreal on the eastern bank of the St. Lawrence River. Population, 22,880.

Saint Cath-a-rines (sānt kǎth'ə-rīnz', kǎth'rīnz) A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, on the Welland Ship Canal east-southeast of Hamilton. Founded in 1790, it is an industrial center. Population, 124,018.

Saint Charles (sānt chārlz) 1. A city of northeast Illinois west of Chicago. It is a manufacturing center in an agricultural area. Population, 22,501. 2. A city of eastern Missouri on the Missouri River northwest of St. Louis. Settled by French traders in 1769, it was the state capital from 1821 to 1826. Population, 54,555.

Saint Chris-to-pher-Ne-vis (sānt krīs'tə-fər-nē'vīs, -nēv'īs) also Saint Kitts and Ne-vis (kīts; nē'vīs, nēv'īs) An island country in the Leeward Islands of the West Indies east-southeast of Puerto Rico comprising Saint Christopher, the largest island of the group, and the islands of Nevis and Sombbrero. The main islands were discovered by Columbus in 1493 and settled by the English in the early 1600's. They were part of the West Indies Federation from 1958 to 1962 and in 1967 joined in a short-lived association with Anguilla. St. Christopher-Nevis became independent in 1983. Basseterre, on St. Christopher, is the capital. Population, 44,404.

Saint Clair (sānt klār', sīng, sīn), Arthur. 1736-1818. Scottish-born American general and governor of the Northwest Territory (1787-1802) who led (1791) a disastrous military campaign against Native Americans near Fort Wayne, in which 600 of his troops were killed.

Saint Clair (sānt klār), Lake. A lake between southwest Ontario, Canada, and southeast Michigan. It is connected with Lake Huron by the Saint Clair River, about 64 km (40 mi) long.

Saint Clair Shores (sānt klār shōrz) A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 68,107.

Saint Cloud (sānt kloud) A city of central Minnesota on the Mississippi River northwest of Minneapolis. Granite has been quarried in the area since the 1860's. Population, 48,812.

Saint Croix (sānt kroi) An island of the U.S. Virgin Islands in the West Indies east of Puerto Rico. Discovered by Columbus in 1493, it was controlled successively by Holland, England, Spain, France, and Denmark, which sold it to the United States in 1917.

Saint Croix River (sānt krwä' rīv'ər) 1. A river, about 264 km (164 mi) long, rising in northwest Wisconsin and flowing generally south along the Minnesota border to the Mississippi River southeast of St. Paul. 2. A river, about 121 km (75 mi) long, forming part of the boundary between eastern Maine and southwest New Brunswick, Canada. It rises in a series of lakes and flows generally southeast to Passamaquoddy Bay. In 1604 Samuel de Champlain established a colony on Saint Croix Island near the mouth of the river, but the settlement was abandoned in 1605.

Saint-Cyr-l'École (sāN-sîr-lā-kôl') A town of north-central France west of Versailles. It was long noted as the site of a military academy founded by Napoleon I in 1808. Population, 14,996.

Saint Denis (sānt dēn'is), Ruth. 1878-1968. American choreographer and pioneer of modern dance. With her husband Ted Shawn she founded (1915) the influential Denishawn Dance School.

Saint-De-nis (sāN-də-nē') 1. A city of north-central France, an industrial suburb of Paris. Dating from early Christian times as a place of pilgrimage, it is the site of a Benedictine abbey founded in 626. The city's 12th-century Gothic cathedral contains the tombs of numerous French monarchs, including those of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette. Population, 90,829. 2. The capital of Réunion, a port on the Indian Ocean. It was founded in the late 17th century as a way station on the route to the Orient. Population, 84,400.

saint-dom (sānt'dəm) n. The condition or quality of being a saint.

Sainte Anne de Beau-pré or Sainte-Anne-de-Beau-pré (sānt än' də bō-prā', sāN-tān) A village of southern Quebec, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River northeast of Quebec City. Its famous shrine was established by shipwrecked sailors in 1620.

Sainte-Beuve (sānt-bœv'), Charles Augustin. 1804-1869. French literary critic and historian noted for his biographical approach to literature. His works include Port-Royal (1840-1859), a cultural history of 17th-century France.

saint-ed (sān'tīd) adj. 1. Having been canonized. 2. Of saintly character; holy.

Sainte Foy or Sainte-Foy (sānt foi', sānt fwä') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a suburb of Quebec City. Population, 68,883.

Saint E-li-as (sānt ĭ-lī'əs), Mount. A peak, 5,492.4 m (18,008 ft) high, in the Saint Elias Mountains, a section of the Coast Ranges on the border between eastern Alaska and southwest Yukon Territory, Canada. Mount Logan, rising to 5,954.8 m (19,524 ft), is the highest peak in the range and the highest elevation in Canada.

Saint El·mo's fire (sānt ɛl'mōz fīr) n. A visible electric discharge on a pointed object, such as the mast of a ship or the wing of an airplane, during an electrical storm. Also called corposant [After Saint Elmo, fourth-century A.D. patron saint of sailors.]

Sainte Thé·rèse or Sainte-Thé·rèse (sānt' tə-rēz', sānt tā-rēz') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River northwest of Montreal. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 18,750.

Saint-É·tienne (sāN-tā-tyēn') A city of southeast-central France southwest of Lyons. It has been a textile-producing center since the 11th century. Population, 204,995.

Saint Eu·stache or Saint-Eu·stache (sānt' ōō-stāsh', sāN-toē-stāsh') A town of southern Quebec, Canada, west of Montreal. It is a residential and resort community. Population, 29,716.

Saint Eu·sta·ti·us (sānt yōō-stā'shəs, -shē-əs) An island of the Netherlands Antilles in the Leeward Islands of the West Indies northwest of St. Christopher. Settled originally by the French, it passed to the Dutch in 1632. During the 18th century the island was a favorite haunt of pirates and smugglers.

Saint-Ex·u·pé·ry (sāN-těg-zōō-pā-rē', -zü-), Antoine de. 1900-1944.

French writer and aviator best known for his fairy tale The Little Prince (1943).

Saint Fran·cis River (sānt frāN'sis rīv'ər) A river, about 756 km (470 mi) long, rising in southeast Missouri and flowing generally southward in a meandering course to the Mississippi River in eastern Arkansas.

Saint Fran·çois or Saint-Fran·çois (sānt' frāN-swä', sāN frāN-swä') A river, about 265 km (165 mi) long, of southern Quebec, Canada, flowing southwest and northwest to the Mississippi River.

Saint Gall (sānt gōl', gäl', sāN gäl') See Sankt Gallen.

Saint-Gau·dens (sānt-gōd'nz), Augustus. 1848-1907. Irish-born American sculptor noted for his heroic monuments, including the standing figure of Abraham Lincoln in Chicago (1887) and the equestrian statue of Gen. William T. Sherman in New York City (1903).

Saint George's (sānt jōr'jəz) The capital of Grenada, on the southwest coast of the island in the Windward Islands of the West Indies. Population, 7,500.

Saint George's Channel (sānt jōr'jiz chān'əl) A strait between western Wales and southeast Ireland. It connects the Atlantic Ocean with the Irish Sea.

Saint Gott·hard (sānt gōt'ərd) A range of the Lepontine Alps in south-central Switzerland. It is crossed by Saint Gotthard Pass, 2,115.2 m (6,935 ft) high.

Saint He-le-na (sānt hə-lē'nə) A volcanic island in the southern Atlantic Ocean west of Angola. Together with the islands of Ascension and Tristan da Cunha, it forms the British dependency of Saint Helena and has been occupied by the British since the mid-1600's. The island is best known as Napoleon's place of exile from 1815 until his death in 1821. Jamestown is the capital. Population, 5,147.

Saint Hel-ens (sānt hēl'ənz) A borough of northwest England east-northeast of Liverpool. It is an important glassmaking center. Population, 190,000.

Saint Helens, Mount. (sānt hēl'ənz) An active volcanic peak of the Cascade Range in southwest Washington. Before its violent eruption on May 18, 1980, it was 2,949.7 m (9,671 ft) high. The eruption produced a smoke plume visible over much of western Washington and Oregon, set off fires and mud slides that killed at least 65 people, and covered a large area with a blanket of volcanic ash. Sporadic eruptions of lesser intensity have occurred since that time.

Saint Hel-ier (sānt hēl'yər) A town of Jersey, England, in the Channel Islands. Home to Victor Hugo from 1852 to 1855, it is now a resort and residential center. Population, 24,941.

saint-hood (sānt'hōod') n. 1. The status, character, or condition of being a saint. 2. Saints considered as a group.

Saint Hu-ber or Saint-Hu-ber (sānt' hyōō'bərt, sǎn ü-bēr') A town of southern Quebec, Canada, a suburb of Montreal east of the St. Lawrence River. Population, 60,573.

Saint Hy-a-cinthe or Saint-Hy-a-cinthe (sānt' hī'ə-sīnth, sǎn-tyä-sānt') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, east-northeast of Montreal. It is an industrial and processing center. Population, 38,246.

Saint Jean (sānt jōn) or Saint-Jean (sānt jēn) or Saint Johns (sānt jōnz') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the Richelieu River southeast of Montreal. Founded in 1666, it was an important British fortress in the 17th and 18th centuries. Population, 35,640.

Saint Jean (sānt jōn) or Saint-Jean (sānt jēn) or Saint Johns (sānt jōnz') See Lake Saint John.

Saint Jé-rôme or Saint-Jé-rôme (sānt' jə-rōm', sǎn zhā-rōm') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, northwest of Montreal. It is an industrial center with textile and paper mills. Population, 25,123.

Saint John¹ (sānt jōn') An island of the U.S. Virgin Islands in the West Indies east of Puerto Rico. It was discovered by Columbus in 1493 and passed to various European powers before being sold to the United States by Denmark in 1917.

Saint John² (sānt jōn') A city of southern New Brunswick, Canada, at the mouth of the St. John River on the Bay of Fundy. First settled as a French trading post in the 1630's, it was captured by the British in 1758 and was a refuge for Loyalists after the American Revolution. Population, 80,521.

Saint John (sānt jŏn'), Henry. See First Viscount. Bolingbroke.

Saint John (sānt jŏn) or Saint Jean or Saint-Jean (sǎn zhǎn'), Lake. A lake of south-central Quebec, Canada, connected by the Saguenay River with the St. Lawrence River. The lake is a popular resort area.

Saint John River (sānt jŏn rĭv'ər) A river, about 673 km (418 mi) long, rising in northern Maine and flowing northeast into New Brunswick, Canada, then generally southeast, south, east, and south into the Bay of Fundy. It was discovered in 1604 by Samuel de Champlain.

Saint Johns (sānt jŏnz) 1. See Saint Jean. 2. See Saint John's (sense 1).

Saint Johns (sānt jŏnz, sĭnt), Adela Rogers. 1894-1988. American journalist who covered major stories for the Hearst newspapers for more than 60 years.

Saint John's (sānt jŏnz) 1. Also Saint Johns. The capital of Antigua and Barbuda, on the northern coast of Antigua in the Leeward Islands of the West Indies. Tourism is important to its economy. Population, 24,359. 2. The capital and largest city of Newfoundland, Canada, on the southeast coast of the island. One of the oldest settlements in North America, it was first colonized by the English in 1583 but did not come under permanent British control until 1762. Population, 83,770.

Saint John's Eve (sānt jŏnz ěv) n. See Midsummer Eve (n., sense 2).

Saint Johns River (sānt jŏnz rĭv'ər) A river, about 459 km (285 mi) long, of northeast Florida flowing generally north to Jacksonville then east to the Atlantic Ocean.

Saint Johns-wort (sānt jonz'wŭrt', -wŏrt') n. Any of various herbs or shrubs of the genus Hypericum, having yellow flowers with five petals and numerous stamens that are united at the base into three to five fascicles.

Saint Jo-seph (sānt jŏ'zəf, -səf) A city of northwest Missouri on the Missouri River north-northwest of Kansas City. Laid out in 1843 on the site of a trading post founded in 1826, it became the eastern terminus of the Pony Express in 1860. Population, 71,852.

Saint Joseph River (sānt jŏ'zəf rĭv'ər) A river, about 338 km (210 mi) long, of southwest Michigan and northwest Indiana flowing generally west, south, west, and northwest into Lake Michigan.

Saint-Just (sǎn-zhŏöst', -zhüst'), Louis Antoine Léon de. 1767-1794. French revolutionary. Active during the Reign of Terror, he was tried and executed with his colleague Robespierre in 1794.

Saint Kitts and Ne-vis (sānt kĭts ənd nē'vĭs, nĕv'is) See Saint Christopher-Nevis.

Saint Lam-bert or Saint-Lam-bert (sānt lām'bərt, sǎn lām-bĕr') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a residential suburb of Montreal on the St. Lawrence River. Population, 20,557.

Saint Lau-rent or Saint-Lau-rent (sǎnt' lô-rěnt', sǎn lô-rǎn') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, an industrial suburb of Montreal. Population, 65,900.

Saint Lau-rent (sǎn lô-rǎn'), Louis Stephen. 1882-1973. Canadian politician who served as prime minister (1948-1957). His administration was marked by the entry of Newfoundland into the confederacy.

Saint Law-rence (sǎnt lôr'əns, lõr'-), Gulf of. An arm of the northwest Atlantic Ocean off southeast Canada bordered by New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, and Quebec. It is connected with the Atlantic by Cabot Strait and the Straits of Canso and Belle Isle.

Saint Lawrence River (sǎnt lôr'əns rĭv'ər) A river of southeast Canada flowing about 1,207 km (750 mi) northeast from Lake Ontario along the Ontario-New York border and through southern Quebec to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The river was first sighted by Jacques Cartier in 1534; in 1535 he ascended it as far as the modern-day city of Montreal. Long a water highway for explorers, missionaries, and fur traders, it is today a major shipping route.

Saint Lawrence Seaway (sǎnt lôr'əns sē'wā') An international waterway, about 3,781 km (2,350 mi) long, consisting of a system of canals, dams, and locks in the St. Lawrence River and connecting channels through the Great Lakes. Jointly developed by the United States and Canada, the seaway opened in 1959 and provides passage for oceangoing ships as far west as Lake Superior.

Saint Lé-o-nard or Saint-Lé-o-nard (sǎnt' lěn'ərd, sǎn lā-ō-nār') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, a residential suburb of Montreal. Population, 79,429.

Saint-Lô (sǎnt'lō', sǎn-) A town of northwest France west of Caen. Its capture on July 18, 1944, played a pivotal role in the Allied invasion of Europe during World War II. Population, 23,212.

Saint Lou-is (sǎnt lōō'is) An independent city of eastern Missouri on the Mississippi River just south of its confluence with the Missouri River. Settled by the French as a trading post in 1763-1764, it passed to Spain (1770), to France again (1800), and to the United States as part of the Louisiana Purchase (1803). The city has long been a major river port, railroad hub, and industrial center. It is the largest city in the state. Population, 396,685.

Saint-Lou-is (sǎn-lōō-ē') A city of northwest Senegal at the mouth of the Senegal River. The oldest French colonial settlement in Africa, it was founded as a trading base c. 1658 and was the capital of French West Africa from 1895 to 1902. Dakar replaced it as the capital of Senegal in 1958. Population, 107,072.

Saint Lou-is encephalitis (sǎnt sǎnt ěn-sěf'ə-lī'tis) n. A viral encephalitis occurring in parts of North America and transmitted by a culex mosquito. [After Saint Louis, Missouri.]

Saint Louis Park (sǎnt lōō'ē pǎrk) A city of southeast Minnesota, an industrial suburb of Minneapolis. Population, 43,787.

Saint Louis River (sānt lōō'ē rīv'ər) A river, about 257 km (160 mi) long, of northeast Minnesota flowing southwest then southeast to Lake Superior.

Saint Lu·cia (sānt lōō'shə, lōō-sē'ə) An island country of the West Indies in the Windward Islands south of Martinique. The island was probably discovered by Columbus in 1502 and was first settled by the English in 1605. Its possession was contested by the French until the end of the Napoleonic Wars (1814), when it passed definitively to Great Britain. The country achieved independence in 1979. Castries is the capital. Population, 134,006.

saint·ly (sānt'lē) adj. saint·li·er, saint·li·est. Of, relating to, resembling, or befitting a saint. —saint'li·ness n.

Saint Mar·ten (sānt mār'tn) See Saint Martin.

Saint-Ma·lo (sāN-mə-lō') A town of northwest France north-northwest of Nantes on the Gulf of Saint-Malo, an inlet of the English Channel. Founded on the site of a 6th-century A.D. monastery, it was a base for French corsairs in the 17th and 18th centuries. Population, 46,347.

Saint Mar·tin or Saint Maar·ten (sānt mār'tn) An island of the West Indies in the western Leeward Islands. Administration of the island is divided between the French overseas department of Guadeloupe and the Netherlands Antilles. The French and Dutch first assumed joint control in 1648.

Saint Mar·ys River (sānt mār'ēz rīv'ər) 1. A river, about 282 km (175 mi) long, rising in southeast Georgia in the Okefenokee Swamp and flowing eastward along the Georgia-Florida border to the Atlantic Ocean. 2. A river, about 101 km (63 mi) long, rising in the eastern Upper Peninsula of Michigan and flowing generally south and southeast to the northern end of Lake Huron. It forms part of the U.S.-Canadian border.

Saint-Maur-des-Fos·sés (sāN-môr-dā-fô-sā') A city of north-central France, a residential and industrial suburb of Paris. Population, 80,811.

Saint Mau·rice or Saint-Mau·rice (sānt' mâr'ris, -môr'-, sāN-mô-rēs') A river, about 523 km (325 mi) long, of southern Quebec, Canada, flowing south and southeast to the St. Lawrence River at Trois Rivières.

Saint-Mi·hiel (sānt-mē-yē'l', sāN-) A village of northeast France on the Meuse River east of Paris. The World War I battle here (September 12-14, 1918) was the first major American offensive led by Gen. John J. Pershing and forced the Germans to relinquish a salient held since 1914.

Saint Mo·ritz (sānt' mə-rīts', sāN-mô-rēts') A city of southeast Switzerland on the Inn River south-southeast of Chur. It is noted as a skiing resort and was the site of the Winter Olympics in 1928 and 1948. Population, 5,900.

Saint-Na·zaire (sāN-nā-zēr') A city of west-central France at the mouth of the Loire River west of Nantes. Built on the ruins of an ancient Gallo-Roman town, it was an important naval base during both World Wars. Population, 68,348.

Saint Nich·o·las (sānt nīk'ə-ləs) or Saint Nick (nīk) n. Santa Claus.

Saint Pat-rick's Day (sānt păt'riks dā) n. March 17, observed in the United States and Ireland by some Christians in honor of Saint Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland.

Saint Paul (sānt pōl) The capital of Minnesota, in the southeast part of the state on the Mississippi River adjacent to Minneapolis. Founded on the site of an early fur-trading post, it became territorial capital in 1849 and state capital in 1858. Population, 272,235.

Saint Pe-ters (sānt pē'tərz) A city of eastern Missouri west-northwest of St. Louis. Population, 45,779.

Saint Pe-ters-burg (sānt pē'tərz-bûrg') 1. A city of west-central Florida on Tampa Bay south-southwest of Tampa. Settled in the mid-1800's, it is a port of entry and popular resort. Population, 238,629. 2. A city of northwest Russia on the Neva River at the head of the Gulf of Finland. Founded by Peter the Great in 1793, it soon flourished as his "window on Europe" and became the capital of Russia in 1712. Noted for its architecture and its cultural achievements, the city was known as Petrograd from 1914 to 1924 and as Leningrad from 1924 to 1991. Moscow replaced it as capital in 1918. Population, 4,329,000.

Saint Pi-erre or Saint-Pi-erre (sānt' pîr', pē-âr', sǎn pyër') The capital of St. Pierre and Miquelon, on St. Pierre Island in the northern Atlantic Ocean. Population, 5,371.

Saint Pierre and Mi-que-lon (sānt pē-âr' ənd mîk'ə-lōn', sǎn; mîk'ə-lōn', mē-klōn') A French island group and overseas department in the northern Atlantic Ocean south of Newfoundland, Canada. The group consists of nine small islands, including Saint Pierre Island, site of the capital, and Miquelon, the largest of the islands. Probably first visited by Breton and Basque fishermen, the islands were colonized by France in 1604, taken by the British three times, and finally awarded to France in 1814. They are the sole remnants of the once vast French territory in North America. St. Pierre is the capital. Population, 6,041.

Saint-Quen-tin (sānt'kwĕn'tən, sǎn-kān-tǎn') A city of northern France on the Somme River north-northeast of Paris. Chartered in 1080, the city was an important center of the woolen industry during the Middle Ages. Population, 63,567.

Saint-Saëns (sǎn-sāns', -sān'), Charles Camille. 1835-1921. French composer whose works include symphonies, operas, such as Samson et Dalila (1877), and symphonic poems, including Danse Macabre (1874).

saint's day (sānts dā) n. pl. saints' days. A day in a liturgical calendar that is observed in honor of a saint.

Saint-Si-mon (sǎn-sē-mōn'), Comte de Title of Claude Henri de Rouvroy. 1760-1825. French philosopher who advocated a society governed by technocrats, in which poverty would be abolished and religion replaced by rationalism. Among his works are The New Christianity (1825).

Saint-Si-mon (sǎN-sē-mōN'), Duc de Title of Louis de Rouvroy. 1675-1755.

French diplomat and writer whose memoirs of the court of Louis XIV are a valuable historical source.

Saint Tho·mas¹ (sānt tōm'əs) An island of the U.S. Virgin Islands in the West Indies east of Puerto Rico. Discovered and named by Columbus in 1493, it was settled by the Dutch in 1657 and later passed to the Danes, who sold it to the United States in 1917.

Saint Tho·mas² (sānt tōm'əs) A city of southern Ontario, Canada, near Lake Erie south of London. It is an industrial center. Population, 28,165.

Saint-Tro-pez (sǎN-trô-pā') A town of southeast France on the Mediterranean coast of the French Riviera. It is a noted seaside resort. Population, 4,961.

Saint Val-en-tine's Day (sānt vāl'ən-tīnz' vāl'ən-tīnz') n. February 14, celebrated in various North American and European countries by the exchange of valentines or love tokens. Also called Valentine's Day [Primarily after Saint. VAL-ENTINE.]

Saint Vin-cent (sānt vīn'sənt) An island of St. Vincent and the Grenadines in the central Windward Islands of the West Indies. Supposedly sighted by Columbus in 1498, the island was first settled by the British in the mid-1700's and was held by France from 1779 to 1783.

Saint Vincent, Cape. (sānt vīn'sənt) A promontory at the southwest extremity of Portugal. Prince Henry the Navigator established (c. 1420) an observatory and a school of navigation nearby.

Saint Vincent and the Gren·a·dines (sā vīn'sənt ənd thē grēn'ə-dēnz') An island country in the central Windward Islands of the West Indies. It comprises St. Vincent Island and the northern islets of the Grenadines. Part of the West Indies Federation from 1958 to 1962, the country gained its independence in 1979. Kingstown, on St. Vincent, is the capital. Population, 108,704.

Saint Vi-tus' dance also Saint Vi-tus's dance (sānt vītəs dāns, -tə-sīz) n. See Sydenham's chorea. [After Saint Vitus, third-century A.D. Christian martyr.]

Sai-on-ji (sī-ōn'jē, -ōn'-, sī'ōn-jē'), Prince Kim-mochi. 1849-1940. Japanese politician. The last surviving member of the genro, he served as prime minister (1906-1908 and 1911-1912) and later attempted to curtail Japan's military buildup.

Sai-pan (sī-pǎn', -pān', sī'pǎn) An island of the western Pacific Ocean in the southern Mariana Islands. It is part of the U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands and was held by Spain, Germany, and Japan before being captured by U.S. troops in July 1944 during World War II. —Sai'pa-nese' (-nēz', -nēs') adj. & n.

Sa·īs (sā'īs) A city of ancient Egypt in the west-central region of the Nile delta. It served as a royal residence during the XXVI Dynasty.

saith (sēth, sā'īth) v. Archaic. A third person singular present tense of say.

Sai·va (sī'və, shī'v-) n. Hinduism. One who worships Shiva. [Sanskrit śaiva-, belonging to Shiva, from śivah, Shiva.] —Sai'vism n.

Sa·ja·ma (sə-hä'mə) A mountain, 6,574.3 m (21,555 ft) high, in the Andes of western Bolivia near the Chilean border.

Sa·kai (sä'kī') A city of southern Honshu, Japan, on Osaka Bay south of Osaka. It was a leading port from the 15th to the 17th century. Population, 818,368.

Sak·a·ka·we·a (säk'ə-kə-wē'ə), Lake. A reservoir in west-central North Dakota. It is a widening of the Missouri River and was created in 1956 when the Garrison Dam was completed.

sake¹ (sāk) n. 1. Purpose; motive: a quarrel only for the sake of argument.

2. Advantage; good: for the sake of his health. 3. Personal benefit or interest; welfare: for her own sake. [Middle English, lawsuit, guilt, from Old English sacu. See sāg- in Appendix.]

sa·ke² also sa·ki (sä'kē, -kē) n. A Japanese wine made from fermented rice. [Japanese.]

sa·ker (sä'kər) n. A Eurasian falcon (Falco cherrug) having brown plumage and often trained for falconry. [Middle English sagre, from Old French sacre, from Arabic saqr.]

Sa·kha·lin (säk'ə-lēn', -lən, sä-KHə-lyēn') An island of southeast Russia in the Sea of Okhotsk north of Hokkaido, Japan. Colonized by Russia and Japan in the 18th and 19th centuries, it passed under Russian control in 1875.

Sa·kha·rov (sä'kə-rôf', säk'ə-, sä'KHə-rəf), Andrei Dimitrievich. 1921-1989. Soviet physicist and dissident who helped develop the first Soviet hydrogen bomb. An outspoken advocate of human rights and nuclear disarmament, he won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize and was banished to Gorky from 1980 to 1986.

sa·ki (sä'kē, -kē) n. Variant of sake².

Sa·ki (sä'kē) See Hector Hugh Munro.

Sa·ki·shi·ma (sä'kē-shē'mä, sä-kē'shē-mä') An island group of Japan in the southern Ryuku Islands east of Taiwan. The islands were heavily bombed by the Allies in April-June 1945.

Sak·ka·ra (sə-kär'ə) See Saqqara.

sal (säl) n. Salt. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sāl. See sal- in Appendix.]

sa·laam (sə-läm') n. 1. A ceremonious act of deference or obeisance, especially a low bow performed while placing the right palm on the forehead. 2. A respectful ceremonial greeting performed especially in Islamic countries. — v. tr. intr.

sa·laamed, sa·laam·ing, sa·laams. To greet with or perform a salaam. [Arabic salām, peace, salaam, from salima, to be safe.]

sal·a·ble also sale·a·ble (säl'ə-bəl) adj. Offered or suitable for sale; marketable. —sal'a·bil'i·ty, sal'a·ble·ness n. —sal'a·bly adv.

sa·la·cious (sə-lā'shəs) adj. 1. Appealing to or stimulating sexual desire; lascivious. 2. Lustful; bawdy. [From Latin salāx, salāc-, fond of leaping, lustful, from salīre, to leap. See sel- in Appendix.] —sa·la'cious·ly adv. —sa·la'cious·ness, sa·lac'i·ty (sə-lās'ī-tē) n.

sal·ad (sāl'əd) n. 1. a. A dish consisting of green, leafy raw vegetables, often with radish, cucumber, or tomato, served with a dressing. b. The course of a meal consisting of this dish. 2. A cold dish of chopped fruit, meat, fish, eggs, or other food, usually prepared with a dressing, such as mayonnaise. 3. A green vegetable or herb used in salad, especially lettuce. 4. A varied mixture: “The Declaration of Independence was... a salad of illusions” (George Santayana). — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: salad plates; salad makings. [Middle English salade, from Old French, possibly from Old Provençal salada, from Vulgar Latin salāta*, from feminine past participle of ·salāre, to salt, from Latin sāl, salt. See sal- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The word salad may have come to us from Vulgar Latin, the chiefly unrecorded common speech of the ancient Romans, which is distinguished from standard literary, or Classical, Latin. The word takes its origin from the fact that salt was and is an important ingredient of salad dressings. Hence the Vulgar Latin verb ·salāre, “to salt,” from Latin sāl, “salt,” in the past participial form ·salāta, “having been salted,” came to mean “salad.” The Vulgar Latin word passed into languages descending from it, such as Portuguese (salada) and Old Provençal (salada). Old French may have borrowed its word salade from Old Provençal. Medieval Latin also carried on the Vulgar Latin word in the form salāta. As in the case of so many culinary delights, the English borrowed the word and probably the dish from the French. The Middle English word salade, from Old French salade and Medieval Latin salāta, is first recorded in a recipe book composed before 1399.

salad bar (sāl'əd bär) n. A counter in a restaurant from which customers may serve themselves a variety of salad ingredients and dressings.

salad days (sāl'əd dāz) pl.n. A time of youth, innocence, and inexperience: “my salad days, / When I was green in judgment, cold in blood” (Shakespeare).

salad dressing (sāl'əd drēs'ɪŋ) n. A sauce, such as one made of mayonnaise or of oil and vinegar, that is served on salad.

Sal·a·din (sāl'ə-dīn), 1137?-1193. Sultan of Egypt and Syria who captured (1187) Jerusalem and defended it during the Third Crusade (1189-1192).

Sa·la·do (sə-lā'dō, sə-lā'thō) 1. Also Salado del Nor·te (děl nôr'tě). A river of northern Argentina rising in the Andes and flowing about 2,011 km (1,250 mi) southeast to the Paraná River. 2. A river, about 1,368 km (850 mi) long, rising in western Argentina and flowing south-southeast to the Colorado River.

salad oil (säl'əd oil) n. An edible vegetable oil, such as corn oil or olive oil, that can be used in salad dressings.

sa·lal (sə-läl') n. A small evergreen shrub (Gaultheria shallon) native to the Pacific coast of North America, having white or pink flowers clustered in racemes and edible purple-black berries. [Chinook Jargon sallal, from Chinook sälal.]

Sa-lam (sä-läm'), Abdus. Born 1926. Pakistani physicist. He shared a 1979 Nobel Prize for theorizing that electromagnetism and weak interaction are facets of the same phenomenon.

Sal·a·man·ca (säl'ə-mäng'kə, sä'lä-mäng'kä) A city of west-central Spain west-northwest of Madrid. Conquered by Hannibal in 220 B.C., it was captured by Moors in the 8th century A.D. and held by them until the late 11th century. Population, 159,336.

sal·a·man·der (säl'ə-män'dər) n. 1. Any of various small lizardlike amphibians of the order Caudata, having porous scaleless skin and four, often weak or rudimentary legs. 2. A mythical creature, generally resembling a lizard, believed capable of living in or withstanding fire. 3. An object, such as a poker, used in fire or capable of withstanding heat. 4. Metallurgy. A mass of solidified material, largely metallic, left in a blast-furnace hearth. 5. A portable stove used to heat or dry buildings under construction. [Middle English salamandre, from Old French, from Latin salamandra, from Greek.] —sal'a-man'drine (-drin) adj.

sa·la·mi (sə-lä'mē) n. pl. sa-la-mis. A highly spiced and salted sausage, either hard or soft in consistency. [Italian, pl. of salame, salami, from Vulgar Latin salāmen*, from salāre*, to salt, from Latin sāl, salt. See sal- in Appendix.]

Sal·a·mis¹ (säl'ə-mīs, sä'lä-mēs') An island of Greece in the Saronic Gulf east of Athens. In an important naval battle off the island's northeast coast the Greeks, led by Themistocles, defeated the Persian fleet in 480 B.C.

Sal·a·mis² (säl'ə-mīs, sä'lä-mēs') An ancient city of eastern Cyprus. According to tradition, it was founded c. 1180 B.C. by Teucer, a hero of the Trojan War, and was visited by Saint Paul during his first missionary journey. The city was abandoned after A.D. 648.

sal ammoniac (säl ə-mō'nē-äk') n. See ammonium chloride. [Middle English sal armoniak, alteration of sal amoniak, from Latin sāl ammōniacus, salt of Amen : sāl, salt; see SAL + ammōniacus, of Amen; see AMMONIA.]

sal·a·ry (säl'ə-rē, sä'l'rē) n. pl. sal-a-ries. Fixed compensation for services, paid to a person on a regular basis. [Middle English salarie, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin salārium, money given to Roman soldiers to buy salt, from neuter of salārius, pertaining to salt, from sāl, salt. See sal- in Appendix.] —sal'a-ried adj.

Sa-la-zar (säl'ə-zär', sä'lə-), Antonio de Oliveira. 1889-1970. Portuguese dictator (1932-1968) known for his programs of fiscal austerity and his attempts to repress growing opposition in Portugal's African colonies.

sal·bu·ta·mol (säl-byōō'tə-mōl', -mōl', -mōl') n. A sympathomimetic agent, $C_{13}H_{21}NO_3$, used as a bronchodilator, especially in the treatment of asthma.

[SAL(ICYCLIC ACID) + BUT(YL) + AM(INO)- + -OL¹.]

Sal·can·tay (säl'kən-tī', säl'kän-) A peak, 6,275.4 m (20,575 ft) high, of the Cordillera Oriental in southern Peru. It is the highest mountain in the range.

sal·chow (säl'kou') n. Sports. A move in figure skating in which the skater jumps from one skate, completes a full rotation, and lands on the other skate.

[After Ulrich Salchow (1877-1949), Swedish figure skater.]

sale (sāl) n. 1. The exchange of goods or services for an amount of money or its equivalent; the act of selling. 2. An instance of selling. 3. An opportunity for selling or being sold; demand. 4. Availability for purchase: a store where pets are for sale. 5. A selling of property to the highest bidder; an auction. 6. A special disposal of goods at lowered prices: coats on sale this week. 7. sales. a. Activities involved in selling goods or services. b. Gross receipts. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: sale merchandise; sale advertising. [Middle English, from Old English sala, from Old Norse.]

Sa·lé (sä-lā') also Sla (slä) A city of northwest Morocco, a suburb of Rabat on the Atlantic Ocean. Population, 289,391.

sale·a·ble (säl'lə-bəl) adj. Variant of salable.

sale and leaseback (säl ənd lēs'bāk') n. pl. sales and leasebacks. See leaseback.

sale-lease-back (säl'lēs'bāk') n. See leaseback.

Sa·lem (säl'ləm) 1. A city of southern India southwest of Madras. It is a trade center with an important textile industry. Population, 361,394. 2. A city of northeast Massachusetts northeast of Boston. Founded in 1626, it is noted as the site of witchcraft trials (1692) and of Nathaniel Hawthorne's House of the Seven Gables. Population, 38,091. 3. A town of southeast New Hampshire east of Nashua. It was part of Haverhill, Massachusetts, until 1741. Population, 25,746. 4. The capital of Oregon, in the northwest part of the state on the Willamette River south-southwest of Portland. Founded c. 1840, it became territorial capital in 1851 and state capital in 1859. Population, 107,786. 5. An independent city of southwest Virginia, an industrial and residential suburb of Roanoke. Population, 23,756.

sal·ep (säl'əp) n. A starchy meal ground from the dried roots of various Old World orchids of the genera Orchis and Eulophia, used for food and formerly as medicine. [French, or Spanish both from Ottoman Turkish sālep, from Arabic saḥlab, a kind of orchid.]

sal·er·a·tus (säl'ə-rā'təs) n. Sodium or potassium bicarbonate used as a leavening agent; baking soda. [New Latin sāl āerātus: Latin sāl, salt; see SAL + New Latin āerātus, aerated (from Latin āēr, air); see AIR.]

Sa-ler-no (sə-lûr'nō, sə-lër'-) A city of southern Italy on the Gulf of Salerno, an inlet of the Tyrrhenian Sea. Originally a Greek settlement and later a Roman colony (founded in 197 B.C.), Salerno was the site of a noted medical school during the Middle Ages. Population, 157,243.

sales check (sälz chĕk) n. A slip of paper given by a store to serve as a record or receipt of a purchase or sale.

sales-clerk (sälz'klûrk') n. One who is employed to sell goods in a store.

sales-girl (sälz'gûrl') n. A saleswoman.

Sa-le-sian (sə-lĕ'zhən, -shən) n. A member of the Society of Saint Francis of Sales, a Roman Catholic congregation founded in Turin in 1845 and dedicated chiefly to education and missionary work. — adj. Of or relating to the Salesians.

sales-la-dy (sälz'lā'dē) n. A saleswoman.

sales-man (sälz'mən) n. A man who is employed to sell merchandise in a store or in a designated territory. — sales'man-ship' n.

sales-peo-ple (sälz'pĕ'pəl) pl.n. Persons who are employed to sell merchandise in a store or in a designated territory.

sales-per-son (sälz'pûr'sən) n. A salesman or a saleswoman.

sales-room (sälz'rōom', -rōom') n. A room in which items are displayed and offered for sale or auction.

sales tax (sälz tăks) n. A tax levied on the retail price of merchandise and collected by the retailer.

sales-wom-an (sälz'wōom'ən) n. A woman who is employed to sell merchandise in a store or in a designated territory.

Sal-ford (sôl'fərd) A borough of northwest England on the Manchester Ship Canal adjacent to Manchester. It was first chartered in 1230. Population, 247,400.

sal- pref. Salt: salimeter. [From Latin sāl, sal-, salt. See sal- in Appendix.]

Sa-li-an (sā'lĕ-ən, sāl'γən) adj. Of or relating to a tribe of Franks who settled in the Rhine region of the Netherlands in the fourth century A.D. — n. A Salian Frank. [From Late Latin Saliī, the Salian Franks.]

sal-ic (säl'ik) adj. Of or relating to certain minerals, such as quartz and the feldspars, that commonly occur in igneous rocks and contain large amounts of silica and alumina. [S(ILICA) + AL(UMINA) + -IC.]

Sa-lic (sā'lik, sāl'ik) also Sa-lique (sā'lik, sāl'ik, sǎ-lĕk') adj. 1. Of or relating to the Salian Franks. 2. Of or relating to the Salic law or to the legal code of the Salian Franks. [French salique, from Medieval Latin Salicus, from Late Latin Salii, the Salian Franks.]

sal-i-cin (säl'i-sĭn) n. A bitter glucoside, C₁₃H₁₈O₇, obtained mainly from the bark of poplar and willow trees and formerly used as an analgesic. [French salicine, from Latin salix, salic-, willow.]

Salic law (sāl'ɪk lô) n. 1. The legal code of the Salian Franks. 2. A law, thought to derive from the code of laws of the Salian Franks, prohibiting a woman from succeeding to a throne.

sa·lic·y·late (sə-līs'ə-lāt', -līt, sāl'ə-sīl'it) n. A salt or an ester of salicylic acid. [SALICYL(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

sal·i·cyl·ic acid (sāl'ī-sīl'ɪk əs'ɪd) n. A white crystalline acid, C₆H₄(OH)(COOH), used in making aspirin, as a preservative, and in the external treatment of skin conditions such as eczema. [From French salicyle, the radical of salicylic acid, from salicine, salicin. See SALICIN.]

sal·i·cyl·ism (sāl'ī-sə-līz'əm) n. A toxic syndrome caused by excessive doses of salicylic acid or salicylates. [SALICYL(IC ACID) + -ISM.]

sa·li·ence (sāl'lē-əns, sāl'yəns) also sa·li·en·cy (sāl'lē-ən-sē, sāl'yən-) n. pl.

sa·li·en·ces also sa·li·en·cies. 1. The quality or condition of being salient. 2. A pronounced feature or part; a highlight.

sa·li·ent (sāl'lē-ənt, sāl'yənt) adj. 1. Projecting or jutting beyond a line or surface; protruding. 2. Strikingly conspicuous; prominent. See Synonyms at noticeable. 3. Springing; jumping: salient tree toads. — n. 1. The area of a military defense, such as a battle line, that projects closest to the enemy. 2. A projecting angle or part. [Latin saliēns, salient- present participle of salīre, to leap. See sel- in Appendix.] — sa/li·ent·ly adv. — sa/li·ent·ness n.

sa·li·en·tian (sāl'lē-ən'shən) n. An amphibian of the order Salientia (formerly Anura or Batrachia), which includes the frogs and toads. Also called anuran — adj. Of or belonging to the Salientia. [From New Latin Salientia, order name, from Latin saliēns, salient- present participle of salīre, to leap. See SALIENT.]

sa·lif·er·ous (sə-lif'ər-əs) adj. Containing or yielding salt.

sa·lim·e·ter (sə-līm'ĭ-tər) or sa·lom·e·ter (-lōm'-) n. A specially graduated hydrometer that directly indicates the concentration of salt in a solution. Also called salinometer — sal/i·met'ric (sāl'ə-mēt'ɹɪk) adj. — sa·lim'e·try n.

sa·li·na (sə-lī'nə, -lē'-) n. 1. A salt marsh, spring, pond, or lake. 2. An area of land encrusted with salt. 3. A saltworks. [Spanish, from Latin salīnae, salt pits, from feminine pl. of salīnus, of salt. See SALINE.]

Sa·li·na (sə-lī'nə) A city of central Kansas north-northwest of Wichita. It is a processing, trade, and manufacturing center. Population, 42,303.

Sa·li·nas (sə-lē'nəs) A city of western California east-northeast of Monterey on the Salinas River, about 241 km (150 mi) long, near its outlet on Monterey Bay. The city is a processing center and the birthplace of John Steinbeck, who based many of his stories on the migratory farm workers of the Salinas Valley. Population, 108,777.

sa·line (sāl'lēn', -līn') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or containing salt; salty. 2. Of or relating to chemical salts. — n. 1. A salt of magnesium or of the alkalis, used in medicine as a cathartic. 2. A saline solution, especially one that is isotonic with blood and is used in medicine and surgery. [Latin salīnus, from sāl, salt. See sal- in Appendix.] —sa·lin'·i·ty (sə-līn'ī-tē) n.

Sal·in·ger (sāl'īn-jər), J(erome) D(avid). Born 1919. American writer whose works, most notably his novel The Catcher in the Rye (1951), often concern troubled, sensitive adolescents.

sal·i·nize (sāl'ə-nīz') v. tr. sal·i·nized, sal·i·niz·ing, sal·i·niz·es. To treat with salt. —sal'·i·ni·za'tion (-nī-zā'shən) n.

sal·i·nom·e·ter (sāl'ə-nōm'ī-tər) n. 1. An instrument that uses electrical conductivity to measure the concentration of salt in a solution. 2. See salimeter. —sal'·i·no·met'ric (-nə-mět'rik) adj. —sal'·i·nom'·e·try n.

Sa·lique (sā'līk, sāl'īk, sā-lēk') adj. Variant of Salic.

Salis·bur·y (sôlz'bēr'ē, -brē) 1. A municipal borough of southern England northwest of Southampton on the edge of Salisbury Plain, a chalky plateau that is the site of Stonehenge. The city was chartered in 1220 and developed around its noted cathedral. Population, 35,700. 2. A city of southeast Maryland on the Eastern Shore south of Dover, Delaware. It is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 20,592. 3. A city of central North Carolina south-southwest of Winston-Salem. During the Civil War the city was the site of one of the largest Confederate prisons. Population, 23,087. 4. See Harare.

Salisbury steak (sôlz'bēr'ē stāk) n. A patty of ground beef mixed with eggs, milk, onions, and various seasonings and broiled, fried, or baked. [After James Henry Salisbury (1823-1905), American physician.]

Sa·lish (sā'līsh) also Sa·lish·an (-lī-shən) n. 1. A family of Native American languages of the northwest United States and British Columbia. 2. The group of Native American peoples speaking languages of the Salish family. [Southern Interior Salish se'lish, Flatheads.] —Sa'lish·an adj.

sa·li·va (sə-lī'və) n. The watery mixture of secretions from the salivary and oral mucous glands that lubricates chewed food, moistens the oral walls, and contains ptyalin. [Latin salīva.]

sal·i·var·y (sāl'ə-vēr'ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or producing saliva. 2. Of or relating to a salivary gland.

salivary gland (sāl'ə-vēr'ē glānd) n. A gland that secretes saliva, especially any of three pairs of large glands, the parotid, submaxillary, and sublingual, whose secretions enter the mouth and mingle in saliva.

sal·i·vate (sāl'ə-vāt') v. sal·i·vat·ed, sal·i·vat·ing, sal·i·vates. — v. intr. To secrete or produce saliva. — v. tr. To produce excessive salivation in. [Latin salīvāre, salīvāt-, from salīva, saliva.]

sal·i·va·tion (sāl'ə-vā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of secreting saliva. 2. An abnormally abundant flow of saliva.

Salk (sôlk), Jonas Edward. 1914-1995. American microbiologist who developed the first effective killed-virus vaccine against polio (1954).

Salk vaccine (sôlk vāk-sēn') n. A vaccine consisting of inactivated polioviruses, used to immunize against poliomyelitis. [After Jonas Edward SALK.]

sal·let (săl'it) n. A light, late medieval helmet with a brim flaring in the back, sometimes fitted with a visor. [Middle English, from Old French sallade, from Old Spanish celada, or Old Italian celata both probably from Latin caelāta (cassis), engraved (helmet), feminine past participle of caelāre, to engrave, from caelum, chisel. See CAELUM.]

sal·low¹ (săl'ō) adj. sal·low·er, sal·low·est. Of a sickly yellowish hue or complexion. — v. tr. sal·lowed, sal·low·ing, sal·lows. To make sallow. [Middle English salowe, from Old English salō.] — sal'low·ly adv. — sal'low·ness n.

sal·low² (săl'ō) n. A broad-leaved European willow (Salix caprea) having large catkins that appear before the leaves and tough wood used as a source of charcoal. [Middle English, from Old English sealh.]

Sal·lust (săl'əst), 86?-34? B.C. Roman politician and historian known for his account of the conspiracy of Catiline.

sal·ly (săl'ē) v. intr. sal·lied, sal·ly·ing, sal·lies. 1. To rush out or leap forth suddenly. 2. To issue suddenly from a defensive or besieged position to attack an enemy. 3. To set out on a trip or an excursion: sallied forth to see the world. — n. pl. sal·lies. 1. A sudden rush forward; a leap. 2. An assault from a defensive position; a sortie. 3. A sudden emergence into action or expression; an outburst. 4. A sudden quick witticism; a quip. See Synonyms at joke. 5. A venturing forth; a jaunt. [From French saillie, a sally, from Old French, from feminine past participle of salir, to rush forward, from Latin salīre, to leap. See sel- in Appendix.]

sal·ly lunn (săl'ē lün') n. A somewhat sweet bread leavened with yeast. [After Sally Lunn, 18th-century British baker.]

sally port (săl'ē pôrt) n. A gate in a fortification designed for sorties.

Sal·ma·cis (săl-mă'sis) n. Greek Mythology. A nymph who fell in love with Her-maphroditus and became united with him in one body.

sal·ma·gun·di (săl'mə-gün'dē) n. pl. sal·ma·gun·dis. 1. A salad of chopped meat, anchovies, eggs, and onions, often arranged in rows on lettuce and served with vinegar and oil. 2. A mixture or an assortment; a potpourri. [French salmigondis: probably from Old French salemine, salted food (from Vulgar Latin salāmen*); see SALAMI + Old French condir, to season (from Latin condīre); see CONDIMENT.]

sal·mi (săl'mē) n. pl. sal·mis. A highly spiced dish consisting of roasted game birds minced and stewed in wine. [French salmis, short for salmigondis, salmagundi. See SALMAGUNDI.]

salm·on (săm'ən) n. pl. salmon or salm·ons. 1. Any of various large food and game fishes of the genera Salmo and Oncorhynchus, of northern waters, having delicate pinkish flesh and characteristically swimming from salt to fresh water to spawn. 2. Color. A moderate, light, or strong yellowish pink to a moderate reddish orange or light orange. [Middle English, from Old French saumon, from Latin salmō, salmōn-. See sel- in Appendix.]

salm·on·ber·ry (sǎm'ən-bĕr'ē) n. 1. Any of several prickly shrubs of the genus Rubus, especially R. spectabilis of western North America, having trifoliate leaves and fragrant reddish flowers. 2. The edible salmon-colored, raspberrylike fruit of this plant.

sal·mo·nel·la (sāl'mə-nĕl'ə) n. pl. sal·mo·nel·lae (-nĕl'ē) or sal·mo·nel·las or salmonella. Any of various rod-shaped bacteria of the genus Salmonella, many of which are pathogenic, causing food poisoning, typhoid, and paratyphoid fever in human beings and other infectious diseases in domestic animals. [New Latin Salmonella, genus name, after Daniel Elmer Salmon (1850-1914), American pathologist.]

sal·mo·nel·lo·sis (sāl'mə-nĕ-lō'sis) n. pl. sal·mo·nel·lo·ses (-sēz'). Infection with salmonellae, characterized by intestinal problems and fever and caused especially by eating certain improperly stored or undercooked foods.

salm·o·nid (sǎm'ə-nīd, sāl'mə-) adj. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the family Salmonidae, which includes the salmon, trout, and whitefish. [From New Latin Salmōnidae, family name, from Salmō, type genus, from Latin salmō, salmōn-, salmon. See SALMON.] —salm'o·nid n.

salm·o·noid (sǎm'ə-noid', sāl'mə-) adj. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the suborder Salmonoidea. —salm'o·noid' n.

Sal·mon River (sǎm'ən rīv'ər, sāl'mən) A river of central Idaho rising in the Salmon River Mountains and flowing about 684 km (425 mi) to the Snake River. The mountain range rises to 3,153.7 m (10,340 ft) at Twin Peaks.

salmon trout (sǎm'ən trout) n. Any of various large trouts, especially the lake trout, the sea trout, or the steelhead.

sal·ol (sāl'ôl', -ôl', -ôl') n. A white crystalline powder, C₁₃H₁₀O₃, derived from salicylic acid and used in the manufacture of plastics and suntan oils and medically as an analgesic and antipyretic. [Originally a trademark.]

Sa·lo·me (sə-lō'mē, sāl'ə-mē') In the New Testament, the daughter of Herodias and niece of Herod Antipas, who granted her the head of John the Baptist in return for her dancing.

sa·lom·e·ter (sə-lōm'ī-tər) n. Variant of salimeter.

Sal·o·mon (sāl'ə-mən), Haym. 1740?-1785. Polish-born American financier who helped fund the Continental Army during the American Revolution.

sa·lon (sə-lōn', sāl'ōn', sǎ-lōn') n. 1. A large room, such as a drawing room, used for receiving and entertaining guests. 2. A periodic gathering of people of social or intellectual distinction. 3. A hall or gallery for the exhibition of works of art. 4. A commercial establishment offering a product or service related to fashion: a beauty salon. [French, from Italian salone, augmentative of sala, hall, of Germanic origin.]

Sa-lo-ni-ka (sə-lŏn'ī-kə, səl'ə-nē'kə) See Thessaloníki.

sa-loon (sə-lŏon') n. 1. A place where alcoholic drinks are sold and drunk; a tavern. 2. A large room or hall for receptions, public entertainment, or exhibitions. 3. Nautical. a. The officers' dining and social room on a cargo ship. b. A large social lounge on a passenger ship. 4. Chiefly British. A sedan automobile. [French salon, salon. See SALON.]

sa-loon-keep-er (sə-lŏon'kē'pər) n. One that owns or operates a drinking saloon.

sa-loop (sə-lŏop') n. Archaic. A hot drink, sometimes used medicinally, made from salep, sassafras, or similar aromatic herbs. [Alteration of SALEP.]

salp (sǎlp) also sal-pa (sǎl'pə) n. Any of various free-swimming chordates of the genus Salpa, of warm seas, having a translucent, somewhat flattened, kegl-like body. [From New Latin Salpa, genus name, from Latin, a kind of stockfish, from Greek salpē.] —sal/pi-form' (sǎl'pə-fŏrm') adj.

salping- pref. Salpinx: salpingitis. [From Greek salpinx, salping-, trumpet.]

sal-pin-gec-to-my (sǎl'pīn-jĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. sal-pin-gec-to-mies. Surgical removal of the fallopian tube. Also called tubectomy sal-pin-ges (sǎl-pīn'jĕz) n. Plural of salpinx.

sal-pin-gi-tis (sǎl'pīn-jī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the fallopian or eustachian tube.

sal-pin-x (sǎl'pīngks) n. pl. sal-pin-ges (sǎl-pīn'jĕz). 1. The fallopian tube.

2. The eustachian tube. [New Latin, from Greek salpinx, trumpet.]

—sal-pin'gi-an (-pīn'jĕ-ən, -jən) adj.

sal-sa (sǎl'sə) n. 1. Also sar-sa (sǎr'sə). Chiefly Southwestern U.S. A spicy sauce made of tomatoes, onions, and chili peppers, eaten with tortilla chips or other Mexican food. 2. Music. A popular form of Latin-American dance music, characterized by Afro-Caribbean rhythms, Cuban big-band dance melodies, and elements of jazz and rock. [American Spanish, from Spanish, sauce, from Old Spanish, from Vulgar Latin salsa*. See SAUCE.]

sal-si-fy (sǎl'sə-fĕ, -fī') n. pl. sal-si-fies. 1. A European plant (Tragopogon porrifolius) having grasslike leaves, purple flower heads, and an edible taproot.

2. The root of this plant, eaten as a vegetable. Regional. Also called oyster plant, vegetable oyster. [French salsifis, from obsolete Italian (erba) salsifica.]

sal soda (sǎl sŏ'də) n. A hydrated sodium carbonate used as a general cleanser.

salt (sŏlt) n. 1. A colorless or white crystalline solid, chiefly sodium chloride, used extensively as a food seasoning and preservative. Also called common salt, table salt. 2. A chemical compound formed by replacing all or part of the hydrogen ions of an acid with metal ions or electropositive radicals. 3. salts. Any of various mineral salts used as laxatives or cathartics. 4. salts. Smelling salts. 5.

Often salts. Epsom salts. 6. An element that gives flavor or zest. 7. Sharp, lively wit. 8. Informal. A sailor, especially when old or experienced. 9. A saltcellar. — adj. 1. Containing or filled with salt: a salt spray; salt tears. 2. Having a salty taste or smell: breathed the salt air. 3. Preserved in salt or a salt solution: salt mackerel. 4. a. Flooded with seawater. b. Found in or near such a flooded area: salt grasses — v. tr. salt-ed, salt-ing, salts. 1. To add, treat, season, or sprinkle with salt. 2. To cure or preserve by treating with salt or a salt solution. 3. To provide salt for (deer or cattle). 4. To add zest or liveliness to: salt a lecture with anecdotes. 5. To give an appearance of value to by fraudulent means, especially to place valuable minerals in (a mine) for the purpose of deceiving. — phrasal verbs. salt away. To put aside; save. salt out. To separate (a dissolved substance) by adding salt to the solution. — idiom. worth (one's) salt. Efficient and capable. [Middle English, from Old English sealt. See sal- in Appendix.]

SALT abbr. Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

Sal·ta (säl'tə, -tā) A city of northwest Argentina north-northeast of Córdoba. Founded in 1582, it is a processing and shipping center in an agricultural region. Population, 260,744.

salt-and-pep·per (sôlt'ən-pĕp'ər) adj. Pepper-and-salt.

sal·ta·rel·lo (säl'tə-rĕl'ō, sôl'-) n. pl. sal·ta·rel·los or sal·ta·rel·li (-rĕl'ē). A lively Italian dance with a skipping step at the beginning of each measure. [Italian, from saltare, to leap, from Latin saltāre. See SALTATION.]

sal·ta·tion (säl-tā'shən, sôl-) n. 1. The act of leaping, jumping, or dancing. 2. Discontinuous movement, transition, or development; advancement by leaps. 3. Genetics. A single mutation that drastically alters the phenotype. [Latin saltātiō, saltātiōn-, from saltātus, past participle of saltāre, to leap frequentative of salīre, to jump. See SALIENT.]

sal·ta·to·ri·al (säl'tə-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-, sôl'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to leaping or dancing. 2. Adapted for or characterized by leaping.

sal·ta·to·ry (säl'tə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē, sôl'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or adapted for leaping or dancing. 2. Proceeding by leaps rather than by smooth, gradual transitions.

salt·box (sôlt'böks') n. A frame house with two stories in front and one in back, topped by a roof with a long, often broken, rear slope.

salt·bush (sôlt'bōōsh') n. Any of several salt-tolerant plants of the genus Atriplex, especially A. hortensis of Asia, grown for greens and ornament.

salt cake (sôlt kāk) n. Impure sodium sulfate used in making paper pulp, soaps and detergents, glass, ceramic glazes, and dyes.

salt·cel·lar (sôlt'sĕl'ər) n. A small dish for holding and dispensing salt. [Alteration of Middle English salt saler: salt, salt; see SALT + saler, saltcellar (from Old French saliere, from Medieval Latin salāria, from Latin, feminine of salārius, of salt, from sāl, sal-, salt); see sal- in Appendix.]

salt dome (sôlt dôm) n. Geology. An anticlinal fold with a columnar salt plug at its core.

salt·er (sôl'tər) n. 1. One that manufactures or sells salt. 2. One that treats meat, fish, or other foods with salt.

salt·ern (sôl'tərn) n. A saltworks. [Old English sealtærn : sealt, salt; see SALT + ærn, house.]

salt gland (sôlt gländ) n. A specialized gland in marine animals that excretes the excess salt taken into the body.

salt grass (sôlt gräs) n. Any of various grasses, especially North American perennial plants of the genus Distichlis, that grow in salt marshes and alkaline areas.

salt hay (sôlt hā) n. 1. The wiry, tough stems of several species of salt-marsh rushes, especially Juncus gerardi, used as a garden mulch and packing material. 2. Hay prepared from salt grass.

Sal·til·lo (säl-tē'yō) A city of northeast Mexico southwest of Monterrey. It was founded in 1575 and occupied by Zachary Taylor's forces during the Mexican War. Population, 284,937.

sal·tim·boc·ca (säl'tim-bō'kə) n. Scallops of veal, rolled and stuffed with sage, spiced ham, and cheese, sautéed and served with a wine sauce. [Italian, contraction of salta in bocca, it leaps into the mouth : salta, third person sing. of saltare, to leap (from Latin saltāre, to leap); see SALTATION + in, into (from Latin); see IN-² + bocca, mouth (from Latin bucca, cheek, mouthful).]

sal·tine (sôl-tēn') n. A thin, crisp cracker sprinkled with coarse salt.

sal·tire (sôl'tīr', -tīr', sāl'-) n. Heraldry. An ordinary in the shape of a Saint Andrew's cross, formed by the crossing of a bend and a bend sinister. [Middle English sawtire, from Old French saultoir, stile, from saulter, to jump, from Latin saltāre. See SALTATION.]

salt·ish (sôl'tīsh) adj. Somewhat salty.

Salt Lake City (sôlt lāk sīt'ē) The capital and largest city of Utah, in the north-central part of the state near Great Salt Lake. Brigham Young and his followers settled here in 1847 and established the community as the center of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Population, 159,936.

salt lick (sôlt līk) n. 1. A natural deposit of exposed salt that animals lick. 2. A block of salt or an artificial medicated saline preparation set out for cattle, sheep, or deer to lick.

salt marsh (sôlt märsh) n. Low coastal grassland frequently overflowed by the tide.

salt-marsh caterpillar (sôlt'märsh' kăt'ər-pīl'ər) n. The larva of a common tiger moth (Estigmene acrea) that feeds destructively on various grasses.

Salt-on Sea (sôl'tən sē) A saline lake of southeast California in the Imperial Valley. It was a salt-covered depression known as the Salt-on Sink until 1905, when flood waters of the Colorado River formed the lake.

salt-pe-ter (sôlt'pē'tər) n. 1. See potassium nitrate. 2. See sodium nitrate. 3. See niter. [Middle English salpetre, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sālpetrae: Latin sāl, salt; see sal- in Appendix + Latin petrae, genitive of petra, rock (from Greek).]

Salt River (sôlt rĭv'ər) 1. A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, rising in eastern Arizona and flowing generally west to the Gila River near Phoenix. It has been used for irrigation for many centuries. 2. A river rising in northeast Missouri and flowing about 322 km (200 mi) southeast to the Mississippi River.

salt-shak-er (sôlt'shā'kər) n. A container with a perforated top for sprinkling table salt.

salt-wa-ter or salt-wa-ter (sôlt'wô'tər, -wôt'ər) adj. 1. Relating to, consisting of, or containing salt water: a saltwater solution. 2. Inhabiting or occurring in seawater or salt water: saltwater fish; the saltwater crocodile. 3. Done or used in salt water: saltwater fishing; saltwater lures.

salt-works (sôlt'wûrks') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A place where salt is produced commercially.

salt-wort (sôlt'wûrt', -wôrt') n. 1. Any of several plants of the genus Salsola, especially S. kali, native to the Old World, having stiff, awl-shaped prickly leaves and growing on sandy seashores. 2. A strong-smelling succulent shrub (Batis maritima) native to warm coastal regions of the New World, having unisexual flowers and thick leaves that are flattened on the upper surface.

salt-y (sôl'tē) adj. salt-i-er, salt-i-est. 1. Of, containing, or seasoned with salt. 2. Suggestive of the sea or sailing life. 3. Witty; pungent: salty humor.

—salt'i-ly adv. —salt'i-ness n.

sa-lu-bri-ous (sə-lōō'brē-əs) adj. Conducive or favorable to health or well-being. [From Latin salūbris, from salūs, health. See sol- in Appendix.]

—sa-lu'bri-ous-ly adv. —sa-lu'bri-ous-ness, sa-lu'bri-ty (-brĭ-tē) n.

Sa-lu-da (sə-lōō'də) A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, of west-central South Carolina rising in the Blue Ridge and flowing southeast across the Piedmont to the Broad River.

sa-lu-ki (sə-lōō'kē) n. pl. sa-lu-kis. Any of an ancient breed of tall, slender dog developed in Arabia and Egypt and having a smooth, silky, variously colored coat. [Arabic salūqīy, of Saluq, an ancient city of southern Arabia.]

sal-u-ret-ic (sāl'yə-rēt'ĭk) n. A drug that promotes excretion of salt in the urine. — adj. Relating to or causing excretion of salt.

sal-u-tar-y (sāl'yə-tēr'ē) adj. 1. Effecting or designed to effect an improvement; remedial: salutary advice. 2. Favorable to health; wholesome: a salutary climate. [Middle English, from Old French salutaire, from Latin salūtāris, from salūs, salūt-, health. See sol- in Appendix.] —sal' u·tar'i·ly (-târ'ə-lē) adv.

—sal' u·tar'i·ness n.

sal·u·ta·tion (säl'yə-tā'shən) n. 1. a. A polite expression of greeting or goodwill. b. salutations. Greetings indicating respect and affection; regards. 2. A gesture of greeting, such as a bow or kiss. 3. A word or phrase of greeting used to begin a letter. —sal' u·ta'tion·al adj.

sa·lu·ta·to·ri·an (sə-lōō'tə-tôr'ē-ən, -tôr'-) n. The student with the second highest academic rank in a class who delivers the salutatory at graduation exercises.

sa·lu·ta·to·ry (sə-lōō'tə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) n. pl. sa·lu·ta·to·ries. An opening or welcoming statement or address, especially one delivered at graduation exercises. — adj. Of, relating to, or expressing a salutation.

sa·lute (sə-lōōt') v. sa·lut·ed, sa·lut·ing, sa·lutes. — v. tr. 1. To greet or address with an expression of welcome, goodwill, or respect. 2. To recognize (a superior) with a gesture prescribed by military regulations, as by raising the hand to the cap. 3. a. To honor formally and ceremoniously. b. To express warm approval of; commend: salute an organization for its humanitarian work. 4. To become noticeable to: A foul smell saluted our nostrils. — v. intr. To make a gesture of greeting or respect. — n. 1. An act of greeting; a salutation. 2. a. An act or a gesture of welcome, honor, or courteous recognition: a musical salute to the composer's 90th birthday. b. The position of the hand or rifle or the bodily posture of a person saluting a military superior. 3. A formal military display of honor or greeting, such as the firing of cannon. [Middle English saluten, from Latin salūtāre, from salūs, salūt-, health. See sol- in Appendix.] —sa·lut'er n.

sal·va·ble (säl'və-bəl) adj. That can be salvaged or saved: salvable merchandise that survived the fire. [From Late Latin salvāre, to save. See SALVAGE.]

Sal·va·dor (säl'və-dôr', säl'və-dôr') Formerly Ba·hi·a (bə-hē'ə, bə-ē'ə). A city of eastern Brazil on the Atlantic Ocean south-southwest of Recife. Founded in 1549, it was the capital of the Portuguese possessions in the New World until 1763. Population, 1,501,981.

Sal·va·do·ran (säl'və-dôr'ən, -dôr'-) or Sal·va·do·ri·an (-dôr'ēən, -dôr'-) adj. Of or relating to El Salvador or its people or culture. — n. A native or inhabitant of El Salvador.

sal·vage (säl'vij) n. 1. a. The rescue of a ship, its crew, or its cargo from fire or shipwreck. b. The ship, crew, or cargo so rescued. c. Compensation given to those who voluntarily aid in such a rescue. 2. a. The act of saving imperiled property from loss. b. The property so saved. 3. Something saved from destruction or waste and put to further use. — v. tr. sal·vaged, sal·vag·ing, sal·vag·es. 1. To save from loss or destruction. 2. To save (discarded or damaged material) for further use. [Obsolete French, from Old French salvaige, right of salvage, from Late Latin salvāre, from Latin salvus, safe. See sol- in Appendix.]

—sal'vage-a-bil'i-ty n. —sal'vage-a-ble adj. —sal'vag-er n.

sal·va·tion (säl-vā'shən) n. 1. a. Preservation or deliverance from destruction, difficulty, or evil. b. A source, means, or cause of such preservation or deliverance. 2. Theology. a. Deliverance from the power or penalty of sin; redemption. b. The agent or means that brings about such deliverance. 3. Christian Science. The realization and demonstration of Life, Truth, and Love as supreme over all, carrying with it the destruction of the illusions of sin, sickness, and death. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin salvātiō, salvātiōn-, from salvātus, past participle of salvāre, to save. See SALVAGE.] —sal·va'tion-al adj.

Sal·va·tion Army (säl-vā'shən är'mē) n. Abbr. SA An international evangelical and charitable organization founded in 1865 by William Booth as a London revival society and renamed in 1878.

sal·va·tion·ism (säl-vā'shə-nīz'əm) n. Religious doctrine stressing salvation of the soul.

Sal·va·tion·ist (säl-vā'shə-nīst) n. 1. A member of the Salvation Army.

2. salvationist. One who preaches salvation; an evangelist. —sal·va'tion·ist adj.

salve¹ (säv, säv) n. 1. An analgesic or medicinal ointment. 2. Something that soothes or heals; a balm. 3. Flattery or commendation. — v. tr. salved, salv-ing, salves. 1. To soothe or heal with or as if with salve. 2. To ease the distress or agitation of; assuage: salved my conscience by apologizing. [Middle English, from Old English sealf.]

salve² (sälv) v. tr. salved, salv-ing, salves. To salvage. [Back-formation from SALVAGE, or SALVABLE.] —sal'vor n.

sal·ver (säl'vər) n. A tray for serving food or drinks. [Alteration of French salve, from Spanish salva, tasting of food to detect poison, salver, from salvar, to save, taste food to detect poison, from Late Latin salvāre, to save. See SALVAGE.]

sal·ver·form (säl'vər-fōrm') adj. Botany. Of, relating to, or being a gamopetalous corolla having a slender tube and an abruptly expanded limb, as in phlox.

sal·vi·a (säl'vē-ə) n. Any of various plants of the genus Salvia in the mint family, having opposite leaves, a two-lipped corolla, and two stamens. [Latin salvia, sage. See SAGE².]

sal·vif·ic (säl-vīf'ik) adj. Having the intention or power to bring about salvation or redemption: “the doctrine that only a perfect male form can incarnate God fully and be salvific” (Rita N. Brock). [Late Latin salvificus: Latin salvus, safe; see SAFE + Latin -ficus, -fic.] —sal·vif'i·cal·ly adv.

sal·vo¹ (säl'vō) n. pl. sal·vos or sal·voes. 1. a. A simultaneous discharge of firearms. b. The simultaneous release of a rack of bombs from an aircraft. c. The projectiles or bombs thus released. 2. Something resembling a release or discharge of bombs or firearms, as: a. A sudden outburst, as of cheers or praise.

b. A forceful verbal or written assault. [Italian salva, from French salve, from Latin salvĕ, hail, imperative of salvēre, to be in good health, from salvus, safe. See sol- in Appendix.]

sal·vo² (säl'vō) n. pl. sal·vos. 1. A mental provision or reservation. 2. Law. A saving clause. 3. An expedient for protecting one's reputation or for soothing one's conscience. [Latin salvō (as in Medieval Latin salvō jure, saving the right), ablative of salvus, safe. See SAFE.] sal vo·la·ti·le (säl vō-lăt'l-ē) n. A solution of ammonium carbonate in alcohol or ammonia water, used in smelling salts. [New Latin : Latin sāl, salt + Latin volātile, flying.]

Sal·ween (säl'wĕn') A river of southeast Asia rising in eastern Tibet and flowing about 2,816 km (1,750 mi) east then south through Burma into the Gulf of Martaban.

Salz·burg (sôlz'bûrg', sälz'-, zälts'boörk') A city of west-central Austria near the German border southwest of Linz. Originally a Celtic settlement, it was later a Roman colony and is now a major music center and tourist resort. Population, 139,426.

Salz·git·ter (zälts'gīt'ər) A city of central Germany southeast of Hanover. First mentioned c. 1000, it is an important metallurgical center in a rich iron ore region. Population, 107,023.

SAM abbr. Surface-to-air missile.

Sam. abbr. Bible. Samuel.

Sa·ma (sä'mä) n. An Austronesian language spoken in the Sulu Archipelago. Also called Samal Sa·mal (sä-mäl') n. See Sama.

Sa·mar (sä'mär') An island of east-central Philippines in the Visayan Islands northeast of Leyte in the Samar Sea, an arm of the Pacific Ocean. The island was the first in the archipelago to be discovered by the Spaniards (1521).

sam·a·ra (säm'ər-ə, sə-mâr'ə, -mâr'ə) n. Botany. A dry, indehiscent, winged, often one-seeded fruit, as of the ash, elm, or maple. Also called key fruit [Latin, elm seed.]

Sa·mar·i·a (sə-mär'ē-ə, -mâr'-) An ancient city of central Palestine in present-day northwest Jordan. It was founded in the ninth century B.C. as the capital of the northern kingdom of Israel, also known as Samaria. Conquered by Sargon II in 721, it was destroyed in the second century and rebuilt by Herod the Great. According to tradition, Saint John the Baptist is buried here.

Sa·mar·i·tan (sə-mär'ī-tn) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Samaria. 2. Often samaritan. A Good Samaritan. — adj. Of or relating to Samaria or to Samaritans. [Middle English, from Old English, from Late Latin Samaritānus, from Greek Samaritēs, from Samareia, Samaria.]

sa·mar·i·um (sə-mâr'ē-əm, -mâr'-) n. Symbol Sm A silvery or pale gray metallic rare-earth element found in monazite and bastnaesite and used as a dopant for laser materials, in infrared absorbing glass, and as a neutron absorber in certain nuclear reactors. Atomic number 62; atomic weight 150.35; melting point 1,072°C; boiling point 1,791°C; specific gravity (approximately) 7.50; valence 2, 3. [SAMAR(SKITE) + -IUM.]

Sam·ar·kand (săm'ər-känd', sə-mər-känt') A city of southern Uzbekistan southwest of Tashkent. Dating from the third or fourth millennium B.C., the city was conquered by Alexander the Great in 329, taken by the Arabs in the eighth century A.D., and destroyed by Genghis Khan c. 1220. It was rebuilt as a fabled center of great splendor and opulence when it became (c. 1370) the capital of Tamerlane's empire. Population, 371,000.

Sa·mar·ra (sə-mär'ə) A city of north-central Iraq on the Tigris River north-northwest of Baghdad. It was the capital of the Abbasside dynasty in the ninth century and is today a pilgrimage center for Shiite Muslims. Population, 24,746.

sa·mar·skite (sə-mär'skīt', săm'ər-) n. A velvet-black mineral that is a complex mixture of several rare-earth metals with niobium and tantalum oxide. [After Col. M. von Samarski, 19th-century Russian mining official.]

sam·ba (săm'bə, săm'-) n. 1. A Brazilian ballroom dance of African origin. 2. Music in 4/4 time for performing this dance. — v. intr. sam·baed, sam·ba·ing, sam·bas. To perform this dance. [Portuguese, possibly of African origin.]

sam·bal (săm'bäl) n. A very spicy condiment or side dish of southeast Asia that is usually seasoned with hot chili peppers. [Malay, from Tamil sambhar, from Prakrit sambhārei, he gathers, from Sanskrit sambhārayati, he causes to be brought together : sam, together; see SANSKRIT + bharati, he carries, brings; see bher¹ in Appendix.]

sam·bar also sam·bur (săm'bər, săm'-) n. A large deer (Cervus unicolor) of southern Asia, having three-tined antlers and a reddish-brown coat. [Hindi sāambar, from Sanskrit śambarah.]

Sam Browne belt (săm' broun' bēlt) n. A belt having a shoulder strap that runs diagonally across the chest, worn as part of a military or police uniform. [After Sir Samuel James Browne (1824-1901), British general.]

sam·bu·ca (săm-bōō'kə, săm-bōō'kă) n. An Italian liqueur made from elderberries and flavored with licorice. [Italian, from feminine of sambuco, elder, from Latin sambucus.]

sam·bur (săm'bər, săm'-) n. Variant of sambar.

same (sām) adj. 1. Being the very one; identical: the same boat we rented before. 2. Similar in kind, quality, quantity, or degree. 3. Conforming in every detail: according to the same rules as before. 4. Being the one previously mentioned or indicated; aforesaid. — adv. In the same way. — pron. 1. Someone or something identical with another. 2. Someone or something previously mentioned or described. [Middle English, from Old Norse samr. See sem-¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: same, identical, selfsame, very. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “not different in identity or nature from another or others”: wore the same dress twice; gave identical answers; saw the selfsame quotation in two newspapers; the very person who should have warned us.

ANTONYM: different

USAGE NOTE: The expressions same and the same are sometimes used in place of pronouns such as it or one, as in When you have filled out the form, please remit same to this office. As this example suggests, the usage is associated chiefly with commercial and legal language, and some critics have suggested that it should be reserved for such contexts. But though the usage often does sound stilted, it occurs with some frequency in informal writing, particularly in the phrase lack of same, as in It is a question of money, or lack of same. And blind conformity to the critical injunction would have deprived us of the famously laconic radio message sent by a U.S. Navy officer during World War II: “Sighted sub, sank same.” same·ness (säm'nīs) n. 1. The quality or condition of being the same. 2. A lack of variety or change; monotony.

sa·mekh (sä'mëk, -mäKH) n. The 15th letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew sāmek.]

same·sex (säm'sëks') adj. 1. Of or relating to people of the same gender. 2. Of or relating to people who are gay or homosexual.

USAGE NOTE: Same-sex is a recent coinage that fills two needs. First, it is used to denote the participation of one gender exclusive of the other. Thus, it is frequently used of all-male or all-female education, as in same-sex classes and same-sex schools. Second, same-sex provides a convenient substitute for homosexual in contexts that do not warrant explicit reference to sexuality. It often appears in phrases such as same-sex couples and same-sex marriages. Both the “single-gender” and “homosexual” usages are acceptable to a large majority of the Usage Panel.

sam hill also Sam Hill (säm'hīl') n. Slang. Used as an intensive: What in sam hill is going on? [Origin unknown.]

Sa·mi (sä'mē) n. pl. Sami or Sa·mis. See Lapp (n., sense 1).

sam·iel (säm-yēl') n. See simoom. [Turkish samyeli: sam, poisonous + yel, wind.]

sam·i·sen (säm'i-sën') n. Music. A Japanese instrument resembling a banjo, having a very long neck and three strings played with a plectrum. [Japanese: sami, three + sen, string.]

sam·ite (sǎm'it', sǎ'mīt') n. A heavy silk fabric, often interwoven with gold or silver, worn in the Middle Ages. [Middle English samit, from Old French, from Medieval Latin examitum, from Medieval Greek hexamiton, from Greek, neuter of hexamitos, of six threads : hexa-, hexa- + mitos, warp thread.]

sa·miz·dat (sǎ'mīz-dāt', sə-myīz-dāt') n. 1. a. The secret publication and distribution of government-banned literature in the Soviet Union. b. The literature produced by this system. 2. An underground press. [Russian : sam, self; see sem⁻¹ in Appendix + izdatel'stvo, publishing house (from izdat', to publish, on the model of Gosizdát, State Publishing House : iz, from, out of; see eghs in Appendix + dat', to give); see dō- in Appendix.]

sam·let (sǎm'lit') n. A young salmon. [SA(L)M(ON) + -LET.]

Sam·ni·um (sǎm'nē-əm) An ancient country of central and southern Italy. The expansionist desires of its rulers led to the Samnite Wars (343-290 B.C.) and the ultimate defeat of Samnium by Rome. —Sam'nite (sǎm'nīt') adj. & n.

Sa·mo·a (sə-mō'ə) An island group of the southern Pacific Ocean east-northeast of Fiji, divided between American Samoa and Western Samoa. The islands were originally populated by Polynesians perhaps as early as 1000 B.C. and were first sighted by European explorers in 1722. Dual administration of the archipelago was established by treaty in 1899.

Sa·mo·an (sə-mō'ən) adj. Of or relating to Samoa or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Samoa. 2. The Polynesian language of Samoa.

Sa·mos (sǎ'mōs', sǎm'ōs, sǎ'mōs) An island of eastern Greece in the Aegean Sea off the western coast of Turkey. First inhabited in the Bronze Age, it was later colonized by Ionian Greeks and became an important commercial and maritime power in the sixth century B.C. Subsequently controlled by Persia, Athens, Sparta, Rome, Byzantium, and the Ottoman Empire, the island became part of modern-day Greece in 1913.

sa·mo·sa (sə-mō'sə, sǎ-mō'sǎ) n. A small fried turnover of Indian origin that is filled with seasoned vegetables or meat and served hot. [Urdu.]

Sam·o·set (sǎm'ə-sēt'), Died c. 1653. Native American leader and friend of the early colonists. He was the first to sell land to the Pilgrims (1625).

Sam·o·thrace (sǎm'ə-thrās') or Sam·o·thrá·ki (sǎ'mō-thrā'kē) An island of northeast Greece in the northeast Aegean Sea off the coast of European Turkey. The famed Winged Victory of Samothrace, now at the Louvre in Paris, was sculpted c. 200 B.C. and found on the island in 1863.

sam·o·var (sǎm'ə-vār') n. A metal urn with a spigot, used to boil water for tea and traditionally having a chimney and heated by coals. [Russian : samo, self; see sem⁻¹ in Appendix + varit', to boil.]

Sam·o·yed also Sam·o·yede (sǎm'ə-yēd', -oi-ēd', sə-moi'īd) n. 1. See Nenets. 2. Any of a breed of medium-sized dog originally developed in northern Eurasia, having a thick, long, white or cream-colored coat. [Obsolete Russian samoyed (samo-, self; see samovar + -ed, eater); see ed- in Appendix, alteration of Sami sāmñ emñne, land of the Sami.] — Sam'o-yed', Sam'o-yed'ic adj.

samp (sämp) n. New England. Cornmeal mush. [Narragansett nasàump.]

sam-pan (säm'pän') n. Nautical. A flat-bottomed Asian skiff usually propelled by two oars. [Chinese (Mandarin) sān bǎn : sān, three + bǎn, board.]

sam-phire (säm'fir') n. 1. See glasswort. 2. An Old World coastal plant (Crithmum maritimum) having fleshy compound leaves and small white flowers grouped in compound umbels. [Alteration of French herbe de Saint Pierre, from Saint Pierre, Saint Peter.]

sam-ple (säm'pəl) n. 1. a. A portion, piece, or segment that is representative of a whole. b. An entity that is representative of a class; a specimen. See Synonyms at example. 2. Statistics. A set of elements drawn from and analyzed to estimate the characteristics of a population. In this sense, also called sampling — v. tr. sam-pled, sam-pling, sam-ples. To take a sample of, especially to test or examine by a sample: the restaurant critic who must sample a little of everything. — adj. Serving as a representative or an example: sample test questions; a sample piece of fabric. [Partly Middle English (from Anglo-Norman), and partly short for Middle English ensample (from Anglo-Norman) both from Latin exemplum. See EXAMPLE.]

sam-pler (säm'plər) n. 1. One who is employed to take and appraise samples, as of a food product. 2. A mechanical device that is used to obtain and analyze samples. 3. A decorative piece of cloth embroidered with various designs or motives in a variety of stitches, serving as an example of skill at needlework. 4. a. A representative collection or selection: a sampler of American short-story writers. b. A variety; an assortment. [Senses 3 and 4, partly Middle English, model (from Anglo-Norman essamplur*), and partly short for Middle English ensampler (from Anglo-Norman ensamplour) both from Late Latin exemplarium, model, copy, from Latin, copy. See EXEMPLAR.]

sam-pling (säm'plɪŋ) n. 1. Statistics. See sample (n., sense 2). 2. a. The act, process, or technique of selecting an appropriate sample. b. A small portion, piece, or segment selected as a sample.

sampling distribution (säm'plɪŋ dɪs'trə-byō'shən) n. Statistics. The distribution of a statistic, such as occurs when a number of sample means are calculated for a given population.

sampling gate (säm'plɪŋ gāt) n. Electronics. A circuit that produces an output only when first activated by a preliminary pulse.

Samp-son (sämp'sən), Deborah. 1760-1827. American Revolutionary soldier who fought disguised as a man (1782-1783) and was wounded twice before her secret was discovered. In 1818 she was granted a full veteran's pension.

- sam·sa·ra (səm-sär'ə) n. Hinduism & Buddhism. The eternal cycle of birth, suffering, death, and rebirth. [Sanskrit samsāraḥ, course of life, samsara : sam, together; see sem¹ in Appendix + sarati, it flows.]
- Sam·son¹ (səm'sən) In the Old Testament, the Israelite judge and powerful warrior who was betrayed to the Philistines by Delilah.
- Sam·son² (səm'sən) n. A man of great physical strength. —Sam·so'ni-an (səm-sō'nē-ən) adj.
- Sam·sun (säm-sōn') A city of northern Turkey northeast of Ankara on Sam·sun Bay, an inlet of the Black Sea. In ancient times Samsun was an important Greek colony. Population, 198,749.
- Sam·u·el (səm'yōō-əl) n. Bible. 1. Hebrew judge and prophet of the 11th century B.C. who anointed Saul as king. 2. Abbr. Sam., S A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.
- Sam·u·el·son (səm'yōō-əl-sən, -yōōl-sən), Paul Anthony. Born 1915. American economist who wrote the classic textbook Economics (1948) and advised Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. He won the 1970 Nobel Prize for improving the analytical methods used in economic theory.
- Sam·u·els·son (səm'yōō-əl-sən), Bengt Ingemar. Born 1934. Swedish physician and biochemist. He shared a 1982 Noble Prize for research on prostaglandins.
- sam·u·rai (səm'ə-rī') n. pl. samurai or sam·u·rais. 1. The Japanese feudal military aristocracy. 2. A professional warrior belonging to this class. [Japanese, warrior.]
- san also -san (sän) n. Used as a courtesy title in Japanese-speaking areas as a suffix to the given name, surname, or title of the person being addressed, regardless of age or gender: Yamamoto san; sensei-san. [Japanese -san.]
- San (sän) n. pl. San or Sans. 1. A member of a traditionally nomadic hunting people of southwest Africa. 2. Any of the Khoisan languages of the San. Also called Bushman [Khoikhoi (Nama) : sa, to pick up from the ground, gather + n, common gender pl. suff.]
- Sa·na or Sa·n'a or Sa·naa (sä-nä') The capital of Yemen, in the western part of the country. Settled in ancient times, it became the capital of North Yemen in 1962 and the capital of united North Yemen and Southern Yemen in 1990. Population, 277,800.
- San An·dre·as Fault (sän ən-drā'əs fôlt) A major zone of fractures in the earth's crust extending along the coastline of California from the northwest part of the state to the Gulf of California. Movement of the tectonic plates along the fault has caused numerous tremors, including the devastating San Francisco earthquake of 1906.

San An-ge-lo (sän äñ'jə-lō') A city of west-central Texas south-southwest of Abilene. A notorious frontier town in the 1870's, it grew after the coming of the railroad in 1888. Population, 84,474.

San An-to-ni-o (sän äñ-tō'nē-ō') A city of south-central Texas southwest of Austin on the San Antonio River, flowing about 322 km (200 mi) southeast to San Antonio Bay on the Gulf of Mexico. The city was founded as a Franciscan mission in 1718 and is the site of the Alamo, which was besieged and captured by Mexican forces in February-March 1836. Population, 935,933.

San Antonio Peak (sän äñ-tō'nē-ō' pēk) A mountain, 3,074.4 m (10,080 ft) high, of the San Gabriel Mountains in southern California. It is the highest peak in the range.

san-a-tar-i-um (sän'ə-târ'ē-əm) n. Variant of sanatorium.

san-a-tive (sän'ə-tiv) adj. Having the power to cure; healing or restorative: a sanative environment of mountains and fresh air. [Middle English sanatif, from Old French, from Late Latin sānātīvus, from Latin sānātus, past participle of sānāre, to heal. See SANATORIUM.]

san-a-to-ri-um (sän'ə-tōr'ē-əm, -tōr'-) also san-a-tar-i-um (-târ'ē-əm) n. pl. san-a-to-ri-ums or san-a-to-ri-a (-tōr'ē-ə, -tōr'-) also san-a-tar-i-ums or san-a-tar-i-a (-târ'ē-ə). 1. An institution for the treatment of chronic diseases or for medically supervised recuperation. 2. A resort for improvement or maintenance of health, especially for convalescents. Also called sanitarium [From neuter of Late Latin sānātōrius, curative, from Latin sānātus, past participle of sānāre, to heal, from sānus, healthy.]

san-be-ni-to (sän'bə-nē'tō) n. pl. san-be-ni-tos. A garment of sackcloth worn at an auto-da-fé of the Spanish Inquisition by condemned heretics, being yellow with red crosses for the penitent and black with painted flames and devils for the impenitent. [Spanish sambenito, from SAN BENITO, Saint Benedict of Nursia (from its similarity to the scapular supposedly introduced by him).]

San Be-ni-to (sän bə-nē'tō) A city of extreme southern Texas north of Brownsville. It is a processing and shipping center and a winter resort. Population, 20,125.

San Ber-nar-di-no (sän bûr'nə-dē'nō, -nər-) A city of southern California at the foot of the San Bernardino Mountains east of Los Angeles. The site was first explored in 1772, named in 1810, and laid out as a city in the 1850's. Population, 164,164.

San Bernardino Mountains (sän bûr'nə-dē'nō moun'tənz) A mountain range of southern California in the Coast Ranges south of the Mojave Desert. It rises to 3,507.2 m (11,499 ft) at San Gorgonio Mountain.

San Bernardino Pass (sän bûr'nə-dē'nō päs) A pass, about 2,065 m (6,770 ft) high, through the Lepontine Alps in southeast Switzerland. It is thought to have been in use since prehistoric times.

San Ber-nar-do (sǎn bər-nār'dō, sǎn bĕr-nār'thō) A city of central Chile, an industrial suburb of Santiago. Population, 117,132.

San Blas (sǎn blās', sǎn blās'), Gulf of. An inlet of the Caribbean Sea on the northern coast of Panama east of the Panama Canal.

San Bru-no (sǎn brōō'nō) A city of western California, a residential suburb of San Francisco on San Francisco Bay. Population, 38,961.

San Car-los (sǎn kār'ləs) A city of western California southeast of San Francisco. It is mainly residential. Population, 26,167.

San Cle-men-te (sǎn klə-mĕn'tē) A city of southern California on the Pacific Ocean southeast of Long Beach. It is a popular resort center. Population, 41,100.

San Clemente Island (sǎn klə-mĕn'tē ī'lənd) An island of southern California in the Santa Barbara Islands south of Santa Catalina Island.

San Cris-tó-bal (sǎn krīs-tō'bəl, sǎn' krĕ-stō'vəl) A city of extreme western Venezuela in a mountainous region near the Colombian border south-southwest of Maracaibo. Founded in 1561, it was severely damaged by an earthquake in 1875. Population, 280,000.

sanc-ta (sǎngk'tə) n. A plural of sanctum.

sanc-ti-fy (sǎngk'tə-fī') v. tr. sanc-ti-fied, sanc-ti-fy-ing, sanc-ti-fies. 1. To set apart for sacred use; consecrate. 2. To make holy; purify. 3. To give religious sanction to, as with an oath or a vow: sanctify a marriage. 4. To give social or moral sanction to. 5. To make productive of holiness or spiritual blessing. [Middle English sanctifien, alteration of seintefien, from Old French saintifier, from Late Latin sānctificāre: Latin sānctus, holy, from past participle of sancĭre, to consecrate; see sak- in Appendix + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] —sanc'ti-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —sanc'ti-fi'er n.

sanc-ti-mo-ni-ous (sǎngk'tə-mō'nĕ-əs) adj. Feigning piety or righteousness. See Synonyms at religious. —sanc'ti-mo'ni-ous-ly adv.

—sanc'ti-mo'ni-ous-ness n.

sanc-ti-mo-ny (sǎngk'tə-mō'nĕ) n. Feigned piety or righteousness; hypocritical devoutness or high-mindedness. [Obsolete French sanctimonie, from Latin sānctimōnia, sacredness, from sānctus, holy. See SANCTIFY.] sanc-tion (sǎngk'shən) n. 1. Authoritative permission or approval that makes a course of action valid. See Synonyms at permission. 2. Support or encouragement, as from public opinion or established custom. 3. A consideration, an influence, or a principle that dictates an ethical choice. 4. a. A law or decree. b. The penalty for noncompliance specified in a law or decree. 5. A penalty, specified or in the form of moral pressure, that acts to ensure compliance or conformity. 6. A coercive measure adopted usually by several nations acting together against a nation violating international law. — v. tr. sanc-tioned, sanc-tion-ing, sanc-tions. 1. To give official authorization or approval to: “The president, we are told, has sanctioned greed at the cost of compassion” (David Rankin). 2. To encourage or tolerate by indicating approval. See Synonyms at approve. [Middle English, enactment of a law, from Old French, ecclesiastical decree, from Latin sānctiō, sānctiōn-, binding law, penal sanction, from sānctus, holy. See SANCTIFY.]

sanc-ti-ty (sǎngk'tī-tē) n. pl. sanc-ti-ties. 1. Holiness of life or disposition; saintliness. 2. The quality or condition of being considered sacred; inviolability. 3. Something considered sacred. [Middle English saunctite, from Old French sainctite, from Latin sānctitās, from sānctus, sacred. See SANCTIFY.]

sanc-tu-ar-y (sǎngk'chō-ēr'ē) n. pl. sanc-tu-ar-ies. 1. a. A sacred place, such as a church, temple, or mosque. b. The holiest part of a sacred place, as the part of a Christian church around the altar. 2. a. A sacred place, such as a church, in which fugitives formerly were immune to arrest. b. Immunity to arrest afforded by a sanctuary. 3. A place of refuge or asylum. 4. A reserved area in which birds and other animals, especially wild animals, are protected from hunting or molestation. See Synonyms at shelter. [Middle English, from Old French sainctuarie, from Late Latin sānctuārium, from Latin sānctus, sacred. See SANCTIFY.]

sanc-tum (sǎngk'təm) n. pl. sanc-tums or sanc-ta (-tə). 1. A sacred or holy place. 2. A private place where one is free from intrusion. [Late Latin sānctum, from Latin, neuter of sānctus, sacred. See SANCTIFY.]

sanctum sanc-to-rum (sǎngk'təm sǎngk-tōr'əm, -tōr'-) n. 1. Judaism. The innermost shrine of a tabernacle and temple; the holy of holies. 2. An inviolably private place: The clubhouse was their sanctum sanctorum. [Late Latin sānctum sānctōrum (translation of Greek to hagion tōn hagiōn, translation of Hebrew qōdēš haqqodāšim): sānctum, holy place + sānctōrum, genitive pl. of sānctum, holy place.]

Sanc-tus (sǎngk'təs) n. pl. Sanc-tus-es. A hymn of praise sung at the end of the Preface in many Eucharistic liturgies. [Middle English, from Late Latin Sānctus, from Latin sānctus, holy (from the first word of the hymn). See SANCTIFY.]

sand (sǎnd) n. 1. a. Small, loose grains of worn or disintegrated rock. b. Geology. A sedimentary material, finer than a granule and coarser than silt, with grains between 0.06 and 2.0 millimeters in diameter. 2. Often sands. A tract of land covered with sand, as a beach or desert. 3. a. The loose, granular, gritty particles in an hourglass. b. sands. Moments of allotted time or duration: "The sands are numb'ed that makes up my life" (Shakespeare). 4. Slang. Courage; stamina; perseverance: "She had more sand in her than any girl I ever see; in my opinion she was just full of sand" (Mark Twain). 5. Color. A light grayish brown to yellowish gray. — v. tr. sand-ed, sand-ing, sands. 1. To sprinkle or cover with or as if with sand. 2. To polish or scrape with sand or sandpaper.

3. To mix with sand. 4. To fill up (a harbor) with sand. [Middle English, from Old English.]

Sand (sǎnd, sǎnd), George. Pen name of Amandine Aurore Lucie Dupin, Baroness Dudevant. 1804-1876. French writer whose novels, plays, and essays concern the freedom and independence of women. Among her works are the novels Lélia (1833) and Consuelo (1842).

San-da-kan (sǎn-dǎ'kən, sǎn-dǎ'kən) A city of Malaysia in northern Borneo on Sandakan Harbor, an inlet of the Sulu Sea. It was the capital of British North Borneo until 1947. Population, 73,144.

sand-al¹ (sǎn'dl) n. 1. A shoe consisting of a sole fastened to the foot by thongs or straps. 2. A low-cut shoe fastened to the foot by an ankle strap. 3. A rubber overshoe cut very low and covering little more than the sole of the shoe. 4. A strap or band for fastening a low shoe or slipper on the foot. [Middle English, from Old French sandale, from Latin sandalium, from Greek sandalion, diminutive of sandalon, sandal.] —san'daled adj.

sand-al² (sǎn'dl) n. Sandalwood. [Middle English, from Old French sandale (possibly via Late Greek santalón), from Arabic ṣandal, from Sanskrit candanam.]

sand-al-wood (sǎn'dl-wōd') n. 1. Any of several tropical Asian trees of the genus Santalum, especially S. album, having aromatic yellowish heartwood used in cabinetmaking and wood carving and yielding an oil used in perfumery. 2. Any of several tropical Asian trees of the genera Adenanthera, Myroporum, and Pterocarpus. 3. The wood of any of these trees. 4. Color. A light to moderate or grayish brown.

sand-a-rac (sǎn'də-răk') n. 1. A coniferous evergreen tree (Tetraclinis articulata) of Spain and northern Africa, having flattened branches, scalelike leaves, and bark that yields a hard, brittle, translucent resin used in varnishes. 2. The resin of this tree. [Middle English sandaracha, from Latin, red pigment, from Greek sandarakē, realgar.]

sand-bag (sǎnd'băg') n. A bag filled with sand and used as ballast, in the formation of protective walls, or as a weapon. — v. tr. sand-bagged, sand-bag-ging, sand-bags. 1. To put sandbags in or around. 2. a. To hit with or as if with a sandbag. b. Slang. To treat severely or unjustly. c. Slang. To force by crude means; coerce. —sand'bag'ger n.

sand-bank (sǎnd'băngk') n. A ridge of sand forming a mound, shoal, or hillside.

sand-bar (sǎnd'băr') n. A ridge of sand formed in a river or along a shore by the action of waves or currents.

sand-blast (sǎnd'blăst') n. 1. a. A blast of air or steam carrying sand at high velocity to etch glass or to clean stone or metal surfaces. b. A machine used to apply such a blast. 2. A strong wind carrying sand along. — v. tr.

sand·blast·ed, sand·blast·ing, sand·blasts. To apply a sandblast to (a building, for example). —sand'blast'er n.

sand-blind (sǎnd'blīnd') adj. Having poor vision; partially blind. [Middle English, from Old English sāmbblind*: sām-, half; see sēmi- in Appendix + blind, blind; see BLIND.] —sand'blind'ness n.

sand·box (sǎnd'bōks') n. 1. A low box filled with sand for children to play in. 2. A litter box, especially for a cat.

sandbox tree (sǎnd'bōks' trē) n. A tropical American tree (Hura crepitans) having an irritating milky juice, a spiny trunk, and large woody seed capsules that split explosively when ripe. [So called because the capsules were formerly used to hold sand for drying ink.]

sand·bur (sǎnd'būr') n. 1. Any of several grasses of the genus Cenchrus, especially C. tribuloides, of the eastern United States and tropical America, having a spiny burlike envelope that surrounds several one-grained spikelets. 2. The burlike envelope of any of these plants. Also called sandspur Sand·burg (sǎnd'bûrg', sǎn'-), Carl. 1878-1967. American writer known for his free verse poems celebrating American people, geography, and industry and for his six-volume biography Abraham Lincoln (1926-1939). His collections of poetry include Cornhuskers (1918) and Smoke and Steel (1920).

sand-cast (sǎnd'kăst') v. tr. sand--cast, sand--cast·ing, sand--casts. To make (a casting) by pouring molten metal into a sand mold.

sand casting (sǎnd kăst'ŭng) n. A casting made in a mold of sand.

sand·cas·tle (sǎnd'kăst'əl) n. 1. A castlelike structure built of wet sand, as by children at a beach. 2. Something that lacks substance or significance.

sand crack (sǎnd krăk) n. A fissure in the side of a horse's hoof, often causing lameness.

sand dab (sǎnd dăb) n. Any of several small food fishes of the genus Citharichthys of Pacific waters, related to and resembling the flounders.

sand dollar (sǎnd dōl'ər) n. Any of various thin, circular echinoderms of the class Echinoidea, especially Echinarachnius parma, of sandy ocean bottoms of the northern Atlantic and Pacific.

sand eel (sǎnd ēl) n. See sand lance.

sand·er (sǎn'dər) n. One that sands, especially: a. A device that spreads sand on roads. b. Such a device together with the truck that carries it. c. A machine having a powered abrasive-covered disk or belt, used for smoothing or polishing surfaces: a floor sander.

sand·er·ling (sǎn'dər-līng) n. A small shore bird (Crocethia alba) related to the sandpipers, having predominantly gray and white plumage. [Perhaps from SAND + -LING¹.]

sand·fish (sǎnd'fīsh') n. pl. sandfish or sand·fish·es. 1. Any of various marine fishes that live or burrow in sandy or muddy bottoms, as a scaleless fish of the family Trichodontidae of the northern Pacific. 2. A slender fish (Gonorhynchus gonorhynchus) of the Pacific and Indian oceans, characterized by an angular snout. In this sense, also called beaked salmon sand flea (sǎnd flē) n. 1. Any of various small crustaceans living on sandy beaches. 2. See chigoe (n., sense 1).

sand fly (sǎnd flī) n. Any of various small biting flies of the genus Phlebotomus of tropical areas, some of which transmit diseases.

sand-fly fever (sǎnd'flī' fē'vər) n. A mild viral disease transmitted by the bite of the sand fly (Phlebotomus papatasi), characterized by fever, malaise, eye pain, and headache. Also called pappataci fever, phlebotomus fever.

sand grouse (sǎnd grous) n. Any of various pigeonlike birds of the genus Pterocles and related genera, of arid and semiarid regions of the Old World.

san-dhi (sǎn'dē, sǎn'-) n. Linguistics. Modification of the sound of a morpheme in certain phonetic contexts, as the difference between the pronunciation of don't in don't you and in don't we. [Sanskrit saṁdhiḥ, union, sandhi : saṁ, together; see sem⁻¹ in Appendix + dadhāti, dhī-, he places; see dhē- in Appendix.]

sand-hill crane (sǎnd'hil' krān) n. A North American crane (Grus canadensis) having gray plumage and a bald red forehead.

sand-hog (sǎnd'hōg', -hōg') n. Slang. A laborer who works inside a caisson, as in the construction of underwater tunnels.

sand hopper (sǎnd hōp'ər) n. See beach flea.

Sand-hurst (sǎnd'hūrst') A village of south-central England southeast of Reading. Its famed Royal Military College (now Academy) was founded in the 1790's.

San-di-a Peak or San-di-a Crest (sǎn-dē'ə pēk) A mountain, 3,256.2 m (10,676 ft) high, in the Sandia Mountains of north-central New Mexico north-east of Albuquerque.

San Di-e-go (sǎn dē-ā'gō) A city of southern California on San Diego Bay, an inlet of the Pacific Ocean near the Mexican border. The bay was first explored by the Spanish in 1542 although the area was not settled until the 1700's. A noted zoological park is located in the city, which is a major port of entry and a commercial, industrial, and research center. Population, 1,110,549.

San Di-mas (sǎn dē'məs) A city of southern California east of Los Angeles. It is a residential community in a citrus-growing area. Population, 32,397.

San-di-no (sǎn-dē'nō, sǎn-dē'nô), César Augusto. 1893-1934. Nicaraguan guerrilla leader who took up arms (1927-1933) against the American troops supporting the government in Nicaragua. He was assassinated after a meeting with government officials in 1934.

S & L abbr. Savings and loan association.

sand lance (sǎnd lǎns) n. Any of several small marine fishes of the genus Ammodytes, having a slender body with a forked tail fin and often burrowing in the sand of tidelands. Also called launce, sand eel.

sand lily (sǎnd lǐl'ē) n. A low-growing plant (Leucocrinum montanum) of the western United States, having grasslike leaves and fragrant, white, star-shaped flowers.

sand·lot (sǎnd'lōt') n. Sports & Games. A vacant lot used especially by children for unorganized sports and games. — adj. Of, relating to, or played in a sandlot: sandlot baseball. — sand'lot'ter n.

S & M or s & m abbr. Psychology. Sadosomochism.

sand·man (sǎnd'mǎn') n. A character in fairy tales and folklore who makes children go to sleep by sprinkling sand in their eyes.

sand painting (sǎnd pān'tǐng) n. 1. A ceremonial design of the Navajo and Pueblo peoples made by trickling fine colored sand, pollen, or powder onto a base of neutral sand. 2. The art of making designs with colored sand.

sand·pa·per (sǎnd'pā'pər) n. Heavy paper coated on one side with sand or other abrasive material and used for smoothing surfaces. — v. tr.

sand·pa·pered, sand·pa·per·ing, sand·pa·pers. To rub with or as if with sandpaper. — sand'pa'per·y adj.

sand pear (sǎnd pâr) n. 1. A Chinese tree (Pyrus pyrifolia) of the rose family, having edible, globose, firm, juicy fruit. 2. The fruit of this plant. Also called Asian pear, Chinese pear.

sand·pi·per (sǎnd'pī'pər) n. Any of various small wading birds of the family Scolopacidae, usually having a long, straight, sensitive bill with which it picks up insects, worms, and soft mollusks in mud and sand.

sand·pit (sǎnd'pīt') n. A large, deep pit in sandy ground from which sand is dug.

San·dring·ham (sǎn'drɪŋ-əm) A village of eastern England near the Wash west-northwest of Norwich. Sandringham House, a private royal residence, was purchased in 1861 by Victoria for her son the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, and extensively rebuilt in the 1890's.

sand shark (sǎnd shärk) n. A shark of the genus Carcharias, especially C. taurus, found mainly in shallow waters of the temperate and tropical Atlantic.

sand·spur (sǎnd'spûr') n. See sandbur.

sand·stone (sǎnd'stōn') n. A sedimentary rock formed by the consolidation and compaction of sand and held together by a natural cement, such as silica.

sand·storm (sǎnd'stōrm') n. A strong wind carrying clouds of sand and dust through the air.

sand table (sǎnd tā'bəl) n. 1. A table with raised edges, used for holding sand with which children play. 2. A table on which a relief model of terrain is built out of sand for the study of military maneuvers.

sand trap (sǎnd trǎp) n. Sports. A hazard on a golf course consisting of a depression partly filled with sand.

San-dus-ky (sən-dūs'kē, sǎn-) A city of northern Ohio west of Cleveland on Sandusky Bay, an inlet of Lake Erie. The Sandusky River, about 241 km (150 mi) long, flows west and north into the bay. Sandusky was founded in the early 1800's and is a port of entry and manufacturing center. Population, 29,764.

sand verbena (sǎnd vər-bē'nə) n. Any of several herbs of the genus Abronia, of western North America, having fragrant, usually red, yellow, or white flowers that are grouped in long-stalked heads.

sand viper (sǎnd vī'pər) n. See horned viper.

sand-wich (sǎnd'wīch, sǎn'-) n. 1. a. Two or more slices of bread with a filling such as meat or cheese placed between them. b. A partly split long or round roll containing a filling. c. One slice of bread covered with a filling. 2. Something resembling a sandwich. — v. tr. sand-wiched, sand-wich-ing, sand-wich-es. 1. To make into or as if into a sandwich. 2. To insert (one thing) tightly between two other things of differing character or quality. 3. To make room or time for: sandwiched a trip to the store between the hours of one and three. [After John Montagu, Fourth Earl of Sandwich (1718-1792), British politician.]

Sand-wich (sǎnd'wīch', sǎn'-) A municipal borough of southeast England north of Dover. One of the original Cinque Ports, it is now a resort and market center. Population, 4,227.

sandwich board (sǎnd'wīch bôrd) n. Two large boards bearing placards, hinged at the top by straps for hanging over the shoulders with one board in front and the other behind, used for picketing or advertising.

sandwich coin (sǎnd'wīch koin) n. A coin having a layer of one metal, such as copper, between exterior layers of a different metal, such as silver.

Sandwich Islands (sǎnd'wīch ī'ləndz) See Hawaiian Islands.

sandwich man (sǎnd'wīch mǎn) n. A man who pickets or advertises by carrying a sandwich board.

sand-worm (sǎnd'wûrm') n. Any of various segmented worms, especially of the genera Nereis and Arenicola, generally inhabiting coastal mud or sand and often used as fishing bait.

sand-wort (sǎnd'wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of numerous low-growing herbs of the genus Arenaria, having small, usually white flowers often grouped in cymose clusters.

sand-y (sǎn'dē) adj. sand-i-er, sand-i-est. 1. Covered with, full of, or consisting of sand. 2. Having characteristics similar to sand. 3. Color. Of the color of sand; light yellowish brown. —sand'i-ness n.

Sand-y or Sand-y City (sǎn'dē) A city of north-central Utah, a manufacturing suburb of Salt Lake City. Population, 75,058.

Sandy Hook (săn'dē hōök) A low peninsula of eastern New Jersey at the entrance to Lower New York Bay. It separates Sandy Hook Bay from the Atlantic Ocean and was first explored in 1609.

Sandy Springs (săn'dē sprīngz) An unincorporated community of northwest Georgia, a suburb of Atlanta. Population, 67,842.

sane (sān) adj. san-er, san-est. 1. Of sound mind; mentally healthy: “their protector, the strongest and sanest of them all” (Pat Conroy). 2. Having or showing sound judgment; reasonable. [Latin sānus, healthy.] —sane/ly adv. —sane/-ness n.

San Fer-nan-do (săn fər-năn'dō) 1. (also sän' fěr-năn'dô) A city of eastern Argentina, an industrial suburb of Buenos Aires on the Río de la Plata. Population, 128,939. 2. (also sän' fěr-năn'dô) A city of southern Spain, a seaport and suburb of Cádiz on the Gulf of Cádiz. Population, 76,101. 3. A city of southern California in the San Fernando Valley surrounded by Los Angeles. It is a residential community with varied light industries. Population, 22,580.

San Fernando Valley (săn fər-năn'dō văl'ē) A fertile valley of southern California northwest of central Los Angeles. The valley, first explored by the Spanish in 1769, lies partly within the city limits of Los Angeles and includes many residential communities.

San-ford (săn'fərd) 1. A city of central Florida north-northeast of Orlando. It is a manufacturing and agricultural trade center. Population, 32,387. 2. A city of southwest Maine west of Biddeford. Formerly dependent on textile and clothing manufacturing, it now has diversified industries. Population, 18,020.

San-ford (săn'fərd), Edward Terry. 1865-1930. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1923-1930).

Sanford, Mount. A mountain, 4,952.3 m (16,237 ft) high, of southern Alaska in the Wrangell Mountains northeast of Anchorage.

San-for-ized (săn'fə-rīzd') A trademark used for fabric preshrunk by a patented mechanical process so as to minimize later shrinkage.

San Fran-cis-co (săn frən-sīs'kō) A city of western California on a peninsula between the Pacific Ocean and San Francisco Bay, an inlet of the Pacific. A Spanish presidio and mission were founded here in 1776. The first settlement was known as Yerba Buena, and the name was changed to San Francisco after control of the town passed to the United States in 1846. Discovery of gold nearby in 1848 changed the city from a small community into a thriving boom town known for its lawlessness and bawdy amusements. The city was all but destroyed by a devastating earthquake and fire on April 18, 1906. Population, 723,959. —San Fran-cis'can (-kən) n.

San Francisco Peaks also San Francisco Mountains (săn frən-sīs'kō pēks) A group of mountains in north-central Arizona north of Flagstaff. The range rises to 3,853.1 m (12,633 ft) at Humphreys Peak, the highest point in the state.

sang (sǎng) v. A past tense of sing.

San Ga·bri·el (sǎn gā'brē-əl) A city of southern California, a residential suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 37,120.

San Gabriel Mountains (sǎn gā'brē-əl moun'tənz) A mountain range of southern California east and northeast of Los Angeles. It rises to 3,074.4 m (10,080 ft) at San Antonio Peak.

San·gal·lo (sǎn-gā'lō, sǎng-), Giuliano da. 1445-1516. Italian architect and engineer noted especially for the works he executed under Medici patronage, including the church of Santa Maria delle Carceri in Prato (1485) and the Palazzo Gondi in Florence (1490).

San·ga·mon (sǎng'gə-mən) A river, about 402 km (250 mi) long, of central Illinois flowing southwest and west to the Illinois River.

san·ga·ree (sǎng'gə-rē') n. 1. A sweet, chilled beverage made of wine or other alcoholic liquor and grated nutmeg. 2. See sangria. [Origin unknown.]

Sang·er (sǎng'ər), Frederick. Born 1918. British biochemist. He won a 1958 Nobel Prize for determining the order of amino acids in the insulin molecule and shared a 1980 Nobel Prize for developing methods for mapping the structure and function of DNA.

Sang·er (sǎng'ər), Margaret Higgins. 1883-1966. American nurse who campaigned widely for birth control and founded (1929) the organization that became the Planned Parenthood Federation (1942).

sang·froid (sǎn-frwä') n. Coolness and composure, especially in trying circumstances. See Synonyms at equanimity. [French : sang, blood (from Old French, from Latin sanguis) + froid, cold (from Old French, from Vulgar Latin frigidus*, alteration of Latin frigidus); see FRIGID.]

San Gior·gio a Cre·ma·no (sǎn jôr'jō ä krī-mä'nō, krē-mä'nô, sǎn) A city of south-central Italy, a suburb of Naples on the Bay of Naples. Population, 61,721.

San Gor·go·ni·o Mountain (sǎn gôr-gō'nē-ō moun'tən) A peak in the San Bernardino Mountains of southern California east of the city of San Bernardino. It rises to 3,507.2 m (11,499 ft) and is the highest elevation in the range.

San·gre de Cris·to Mountains (sǎng'grē dē krīs'tō moun'tənz) A range of the southern Rocky Mountains extending about 354 km (220 mi) from south-central Colorado to north-central New Mexico. Blanca Peak, 4,375.2 m (14,345 ft), is the highest point.

san·gri·a (sǎng-grē'ə, sǎn-) n. A cold drink made of red or white wine mixed with brandy, sugar, fruit juice, and soda water. Also called sangaree [Probably from Spanish sangría, act of bleeding, sangria, from sangre, blood, from Latin sanguis, sanguin-.]

Sang·ster (sǎng'stər), Margaret Elizabeth Munson. 1838-1912. American writer and editor of Harper's Bazaar from 1889 to 1899.

san·guic·o·lous (sǎng-gwīk'ə-ləs) adj. Living in the blood: a sanguicolous parasite. [Latin sanguis, blood + -COLOUS.]

san·gui·nar·i·a (sǎng'gwə-nâr'ē-ə) n. The bloodroot. [New Latin Sanguinaria, genus name, from Latin (herba) sanguināria, a plant that stanches blood, feminine of sanguinārius, sanguinary. See SANGUINARY.]

san·gui·nar·y (sǎng'gwə-nēr'ē) adj. 1. Accompanied by bloodshed. See Synonyms at bloody. 2. Eager for bloodshed; bloodthirsty. 3. Consisting of blood. [Latin sanguinārius, from sanguis, sanguin-, blood.] —san'gui·nar'i·ly (-nâr'ē-lē) adv.

san·guine (sǎng'gwīn) adj. 1. a. Color. Of the color of blood; red. b. Of a healthy, reddish color; ruddy: a sanguine complexion. 2. Archaic. a. Having blood as the dominant humor in terms of medieval physiology. b. Having the temperament and ruddy complexion formerly thought to be characteristic of a person dominated by this humor; passionate. 3. Cheerfully confident; optimistic. [Middle English, from Old French sanguin, from Latin sanguineus, from sanguis, sanguin-, blood.] —san'guine·ly adv. —san'guine·ness, san·guin'i·ty n.

WORD HISTORY: Perhaps one has wondered what the connection between sanguinary, “bloodthirsty,” and sanguine, “cheerfully optimistic,” could be. The connection can be found in medieval physiology with its notion of the four humors (blood, bile, phlegm, and black bile). These four body fluids were thought to determine a person’s temperament, or distinguishing mental and physical characteristics. Thus, if blood was the predominant humor, one had a ruddy face and a disposition marked by courage, hope, and a readiness to fall in love. Such a temperament was called sanguine, the Middle English ancestor of our word sanguine. The sources of the Middle English word were Old French sanguin and Latin sanguineus, the source of the French word. Both the Old French and Latin words meant “bloody,” “blood-colored,” Old French sanguin having the sense “sanguine in temperament” as well. Latin sanguineus in turn was derived from sanguis, “blood,” just as English sanguinary is. The English adjective sanguine, first recorded in Middle English before 1350, went on to refer simply to the cheerfulness and optimism that accompanied a sanguine temperament, no longer having any direct reference to medieval physiology.

san·guin·e·ous (sǎng-gwīn'ē-əs) adj. 1. Relating to or involving blood or bloodshed. See Synonyms at bloody. 2. Color. Having the color of blood; blood-red. [From Latin sanguineus, from sanguis, sanguin-, blood.]

san·guin·o·lent (sǎng-gwĭn'ə-lənt) adj. Mixed or tinged with blood. [Latin sanguinolentus, full of blood : sanguīs, sanguin-, blood + -olentus, abounding in.]

San·hed·rin (sǎn-hĕd'rĭn, -hĕ'drĭn, sǎn-) n. The highest judicial and ecclesiastical council of the ancient Jewish nation, composed of from 70 to 72 members. [Hebrew sanhedhrĭn, from Greek sunedrion, council, from sunedros, sitting in council : sun-, syn- + hedra, seat; see sed- in Appendix.]

San·i·bel Island (sǎn'ə-bəl ī'lənd) An island of southwest Florida in the Gulf of Mexico southwest of Fort Myers. The island's beaches are popular with seashell collectors.

san·i·cle (sǎn'ĭ-kəl) n. Any of various plants of the genus Sanicula, having usually compound leaves and compound umbels of small yellow, purple, or greenish flowers, formerly used as an astringent. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sānicula, probably from Latin sānus, healthy.]

san·i·dine (sǎn'ĭ-dĕn', -dĭn) n. A glassy variety of orthoclase feldspar, known as moonstone when translucent. [Greek sanis, sanid-, board (from its flat crystals) + *-INE*².]

sa·ni·es (sā'nĕ-ĕz') n. pl. sanies. A thin, fetid, greenish fluid consisting of serum and pus discharged from a wound, an ulcer, or a fistula. [Latin saniēs.] —sa'ni-ous (-əs) adj.

San I·si·dro (sǎn' ĭ-sĕ'drō, sǎn' ĕ-sĕ'thrō) A city of eastern Argentina, a residential and industrial suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 287,048.

sanit. abbr. 1. Sanitary. 2. Sanitation.

san·i·tar·i·a (sǎn'ĭ-tār'ĕ-ə) n. A plural of sanitarium.

san·i·tar·i·an (sǎn'ĭ-tār'ĕ-ən) n. A public health or sanitation expert.

san·i·tar·i·um (sǎn'ĭ-tār'ĕ-əm) n. pl. san·i·tar·i·ums or san·i·tar·i·a (-ĕ-ə). See sanatorium. [New Latin, from Latin sānitās, health. See SANITY.]

san·i·tar·y (sǎn'ĭ-tĕr'ĕ) adj. Abbr. sanit. 1. Of or relating to health. 2. Free from elements, such as filth or pathogens, that endanger health; hygienic: sanitary conditions for the preparation of food. [French sanitaire, from Latin sānitās, health. See SANITY.] —san'i·tar'i·ly (-tār'ə-lĕ) adv.

sanitary engineer (sǎn'ĭ-tĕr'ĕ ĕn'jə-nĭr') n. An engineer specializing in the maintenance of urban environmental conditions conducive to the preservation of public health. —sanitary engineering n.

sanitary landfill (sǎn'ĭ-tĕr'ĕ lǎnd'fĭl') n. Rehabilitated land in which garbage and trash have been buried; a landfill.

sanitary napkin (sǎn'ĭ-tĕr'ĕ nǎp'kĭn) n. A disposable pad of absorbent material worn to absorb menstrual flow.

san·i·ta·tion (sǎn'ĭ-tā'shən) n. Abbr. sanit. 1. Formulation and application of measures designed to protect public health. 2. Disposal of sewage. [SANIT(ARY) + -ATION.]

sanitation worker (sǎn'ī-tā'shən wūr'kər) n. A person employed, as by a municipality or private company, to collect and dispose of garbage.

san-i-tize (sǎn'ī-tīz') v. tr. san-i-tized, san-i-tiz-ing, san-i-tiz-es. 1. To make sanitary, as by cleaning or disinfecting. 2. To make more acceptable by removing unpleasant or offensive features from: sanitized the language in adapting the novel for television. —san'i-ti-za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n.

san-i-ty (sǎn'ī-tē) n. 1. The quality or condition of being sane; soundness of mind. 2. Soundness of judgment or reason. [Middle English sanite, health, from Old French, from Latin sānitās, from sānus, healthy.]

San Ja-cin-to (sǎn jə-sǎn'tō) A river, about 209 km (130 mi) long, of southeast Texas flowing into Galveston Bay. The final battle of the Texas Revolution, in which insurgents under Sam Houston defeated the Mexican forces led by Santa Anna, was fought on its banks on April 21, 1836.

San Joa-quin (sǎn wô-kēn', wä-) A river of central California, rising in the Sierra Nevada and flowing about 515 km (320 mi) west and northwest to form a large delta with the Sacramento River. The San Joaquin Valley is a rich, irrigated agricultural region.

San Jo-se (sǎn hō-zā') A city of western California southeast of San Francisco. Founded in 1777, it was the state capital from December 1849 to January 1852. Population, 782,248.

San Jo-sé (sǎn' hô-sě') The capital and largest city of Costa Rica, in the central part of the country. Settled c. 1736, it became the capital in 1823. Population, 277,800.

San Jose scale (sǎn hō-zā' skāl) n. A destructive scale insect (Aspidiotus perniciosus) that damages fruit trees and fruit-bearing plants. [After San Jose, California.]

San Juan (sǎn wǎn', hwǎn') 1. A city of northwest Argentina west of Córdoba. Founded in 1562, it was moved to its present site in the 1590's. Population, 310,000. 2. The capital and largest city of Puerto Rico, in the northeast part of the island on the Atlantic Ocean. First settled by Ponce de León in 1508-1509, it was attacked by English buccaneers in the 1590's and sacked by the Dutch in 1625. American forces took control of the city during the Spanish-American War (1898). Population, 424,600.

San Juan Cap-is-tra-no (sǎn wǎn kǎp'ī-strā'nō) A city of southern California southeast of Santa Ana. Founded as a mission in 1776, it is famous for the swallows that supposedly return to the area every year on March 19 and depart on October 23, the date on which Saint John of Capistrano died in 1456. Population, 26,183.

San Juan Hill (sǎn wǎn hīl) An elevation in eastern Cuba near Santiago de Cuba. It was captured by Cuban and American forces on July 1, 1898, during the Spanish-American War. Theodore Roosevelt and his Rough Riders became famous for a charge up the hill during the battle.

San Juan Islands (sän wän ī'lændz) An archipelago of northwest Washington off the southeast coast of Vancouver Island north of Puget Sound. The islands were discovered and named c. 1790 by Spanish explorers and were later claimed by both Great Britain and the United States. The boundary dispute was finally settled in 1872.

San Juan Mountains (sän wän moun'tənz) A range of the Rocky Mountains in southwest Colorado extending northwest to southeast and rising to 4,364.2 m (14,309 ft) at Uncompahgre Peak.

San Juan River (sän wän rīv'ər) A river rising in southern Colorado and flowing about 579 km (360 mi) into northwest New Mexico and southeast Utah, where it joins the Colorado River.

San Jus·to (sän hōō'stō, sän) A city of eastern Argentina, an industrial suburb of Buenos Aires. Population, 941,499.

sank (sängk) v. A past tense of sink.

San·khya (säng'kyə) n. Hinduism. A system of Hindu philosophy based on a dualism involving the ultimate principles of soul and potential matter. [Sanskrit sāṃkhya-, based on enumeration, Sankhya, from samkhyā, enumeration : sam, together; see SANDHI + khyāti, he tells.]

Sankt Gal·len (zängkt gäl'lən) also Saint Gall (sānt gōl', gäl', sän gäl') A city of northeast Switzerland east of Zurich. Developed around a Benedictine abbey founded by an Irish missionary in the seventh century, it joined the Swiss Confederation in 1454. Population, 73,500.

Sankt Pöl·ten (zängkt pœl'tən) A city of northern Austria west of Vienna. It was chartered in 1159. Population, 50,419.

San·ku·ru (säng-kōōr'ōō) A river, about 1,207 km (750 mi) long, of southern and central Zaire flowing west-northwest to the Kasai River.

San Le·an·dro (sän lē-än'drō) A city of western California southeast of Oakland. It is a residential community with varied light industries. Population, 68,223.

San Lo·ren·zo (sän lə-rěn'zō) An unincorporated community of western California, a residential suburb of Oakland. Population, 19,987.

San Lu·cas (sän lōō'kəs, sän lōō'käs), Cape. A cape of western Mexico at the southern tip of Baja California extending into the Pacific Ocean.

San Lu·is O·bis·po (sän lōō'is ə-bīs'pō) A city of southwest California northwest of Santa Barbara. A Franciscan mission was founded on the site in 1772. Population, 41,958.

San Luis Peak (sän lōō'is pēk) A mountain, 4,274.3 m (14,014 ft) high, in the San Juan Mountains of southwest Colorado.

San Lu·is Po·to·sí (sän lōō-ēs' pō'tō-sē') A city of central Mexico northeast of León. Founded in the late 1500's, it is a mining, transportation, and industrial center. Population, 362,371.

San Mar·cos (sän mär'kəs) 1. A city of southern California north-northwest of San Diego. It is a manufacturing center in an agricultural region. Population, 38,974. 2. A city of south-central Texas northeast of San Antonio. Food processing is important to its economy. Population, 28,743.

San Ma·ri·no (sän mə-rē'nō) A country in the Apennines near the Adriatic Sea. It is surrounded by Italy and is the world's smallest republic. According to tradition, it was founded in the fourth century A.D. and has succeeded, with a few brief interruptions, in maintaining its independence because of its relative inaccessibility. The city of San Marino is its capital. The country's population is 21,537; the city's, 4,628.

San Mar·tín (sän mär-tēn', sän), José de. 1778-1850. Argentine revolutionary leader who played a major part in expelling the Spanish from Chile (1818) and Peru (1821).

San Ma·te·o (sän mə-tā'ō) A city of western California south-southeast of San Francisco. Named by a Spanish expedition in 1776, it was the center of a Mexican colony from 1822 to 1846. Population, 85,486.

San Mi·guel de Tu·cu·mán (sän' mī-gēl' də tōō'kə-män', sän' mē-gēl' də tōō'kōō-män') or Tucumán A city of northern Argentina at the foot of an eastern range of the Andes north-northwest of Córdoba. The country's independence was proclaimed here in July 1816. Population, 392,751.

San Ni·co·lás de los Gar·zas (sän nē'kô-lās' də lôs gār'sās) A city of northern Mexico, a suburb of Monterrey in a citrus-growing area. Population, 280,696.

san·nup (sän'əp) n. A married Native American man. [Of Massachusetts origin.]

sann·ya·si (sün-yä'sē) or sann·ya·sin (-sın) n. Hinduism. A wandering mendicant and ascetic. [Hindi sannyāsī, from Sanskrit saṃnyāsī, from saṃnyasyati, he renounces : saṃ, together; see SANSKRIT + ni, down + asyati, he throws.]

S-A node (ēs'ā' nōd) n. The sinoatrial node.

San Pab·lo (sän pāb'lō) A city of western California north-northwest of Oakland near San Pablo Bay, a northern arm of San Francisco Bay. It is one of the oldest Spanish settlements in the region. Population, 25,158.

san·pa·ku (sän-pä'kōō) n. A condition in which the white of the eye is visible below the iris as well as on either side, believed by some to indicate poor health remedied by a macrobiotic diet. [Japanese : san, three + haku, white.]

San Pe·dro Channel (sän pē'drō čhän'əl) A strait of southern California between the mainland and Santa Catalina Island. San Pedro Bay is an inlet of the channel.

San Pe·dro Su·la (sǎn pē'drō sōō'lə, sǎn pē'thrô sōō'lä) A city of northwest Honduras northwest of Tegucigalpa. It is a commercial center. Population, 344,500.

San Ra·fael (sǎn rə-fěl') A city of western California north-northwest of San Francisco. It is a residential community with varied light industries. Population, 48,404.

San Re·mo (sǎn rā'mō, rē'-) A city of northwest Italy on the Ligurian Sea east of Monaco. It is a fashionable resort on the Italian Riviera. Population, 50,200.

San River (sǎn rīv'er) A river, about 451 km (280 mi) long, of southeast Poland flowing generally north-northwest from the Carpathian Mountains to the Vistula River.

sans (sǎnz, sǎn) prep. Without. [Middle English, from Old French, blend of Latin sine, and absentiā, in the absence of, ablative of absentia, absence from absēns, absent- present participle of abesse, to be away. See ABSENT.]

San Sal·va·dor¹ (sǎn sǎl'və-dôr', sǎn sǎl'və-dôr') Formerly Wat·lings Island (wät'līngz). An island of the central Bahamas in the West Indies. It is generally identified as the first landfall of Christopher Columbus (October 12, 1492).

San Sal·va·dor² (sǎn sǎl'və-dôr', sǎn sǎl'və-thôr') The capital and largest city of El Salvador, in the west-central part of the country. Founded in the 16th century, it became the national capital in 1841. Population, 445,100.

sans·cu·lotte (sǎnz'kyōō-lôt', -kōō-, sǎn-kü-lôt') n. 1. An extreme radical republican during the French Revolution. 2. A revolutionary extremist. [French : sans, without + culotte, breeches.] —sans'-cu·lot'tic (-lôt'ik), sans'-cu·lot'tish (-lôt'ish) adj. —sans'-cu·lot'tism n. —sans'-cu·lot'tist n.

San Se·bas·tián (sǎn sə-bās'chīn, sǎn' sě-vās-tyän') A city of northern Spain on the Bay of Biscay near the French border east of Bilbao. It is a fashionable seaside resort and has fishing and chemical industries. Population, 178,906.

San·sei (sǎn'sā', sǎn-sā') n. pl. Sansei or San·seis. The U.S.-born grandchild of Japanese immigrants to America. [Japanese : san, three + sei, generation.]

San Se·ve·ro (sǎn sə-vēr'ō, sě-) A city of southeast Italy north-northwest of Foggia. It is an agricultural trade center. Population, 54,273.

san·se·vie·ri·a (sǎn'sə-vîr'ē-ə, -vē-ēr'-) n. Any of various tropical Old World plants of the genus Sansevieria, having thick, lance-shaped leaves and often cultivated as a houseplant. [New Latin Sanseveria, genus name, after Raimondo di Sangro (1710-1771), Prince of San Severo, Italy.]

San·skrit (sǎn'skrīt') n. Abbr. Skr., Skt. An ancient Indic language that is the language of Hinduism and the Vedas and is the classical literary language of India. [Sanskrit saṃskṛtam, from neuter of saṃskṛta-, perfected, refined : saṃ, together; see sem⁻¹ in Appendix + karoti, he makes; see k^wer- in Appendix.]

—San'skrit'ist n.

San·skrit·ic (sǎn-skrīt'ik) n. See Indic. —San·skrit'ic adj.

sans ser·if (sǎn sēr'if) n. Printing. A typeface without serifs. Also called gothic —sans-ser'if adj.

San·ta An·a¹ (sǎn'tə ǎn'ə) 1. (also sǎn'tä ä'nä) A city of western El Salvador northwest of San Salvador. It is an important commercial, industrial, and processing center. Population, 132,200. 2. A city of southern California east of Long Beach in the fertile valley of the Santa Ana River, about 145 km (90 mi) long. Santa Ana is a manufacturing and trade center for a large metropolitan area. Population, 293,742.

San·ta An·a² (sǎn'tə ǎn'ə) n. A strong, dry, hot wind blowing from the desert regions of southern California toward the Pacific coast usually in winter. [After the Santa Ana Canyon of southern California.]

San·ta An·na or San·ta An·a (sǎn'tä ǎn'ə, sǎn'tə ä'nä), Antonio López de. 1795?-1876. Mexican military and political leader who tried to crush the Texan revolt. Victorious at the Alamo (1836), he was soon after defeated and captured by the Texans. In the Mexican War he lost several major battles (1846-1847) to Gen. Zachary Taylor.

San·ta Bar·ba·ra (sǎn'tə bär'bər-ə, bär'brə) A city of southern California on the Santa Barbara Channel west-northwest of Los Angeles. Site of an early Spanish presidio and mission, it is a residential and resort community with aerospace and electronics research and development industries. Population, 85,571.

Santa Barbara Islands (sǎn'tə bär'bər-ə ī'ləndz) A chain of islands and islets off southern California in the Pacific Ocean. The islands are separated from the mainland by Santa Barbara Channel in the north and San Pedro Channel in the south.

Santa Cat·a·li·na Island (sǎn'tə kät'l-ē'nə ī'lənd) or Catalina Island An island off southern California in the southern Santa Barbara Islands. Discovered in 1542, it has been a noted resort center since the 1920's.

Santa Cla·ra (sǎn'tə klār'ə, klâr'ə) 1. (also sǎn'tä klä'rä) A city of central Cuba east-southeast of Havana. Founded in 1689, it is a processing center and rail junction. Population, 172,652. 2. A city of western California northwest of San Jose. It is a residential community with diversified light industries. Population, 93,613.

San·ta Claus (sǎn'tə klôz') n. The personification of the spirit of Christmas, usually represented as a jolly, fat old man with a white beard and a red suit, who brings gifts to good children on Christmas Eve. [Probably alteration of Dutch Sinterklaas, from Middle Dutch Sinterclaes, St. Nicholas : sint, saint (from Middle Dutch, from Old French saint); see SAINT + heer, lord; see MYNHEER + claes (short for Niclaes, Nicholas).]

San·ta Co·lo·ma de Gra·ma·net (sǎn'tə kə-lō'mə də grä'mə-nět', sǎn'tä kô-lô'mä thë grä'mä-nět') A city of northeast Spain, an industrial suburb of Barcelona. Population, 140,274.

San·ta Cruz (sǎn'tə krōōz') 1. (also sǎn'tä krōōs') A city of central Bolivia northeast of Sucre. Founded c. 1560, it is a trade and processing center. Population, 441,717. 2. A city of western California on Monterey Bay south-southwest of San Jose. It is a tourist center with varied processing and manufacturing industries. Population, 49,040.

Santa Cruz de Te·ne·ri·fe (sǎn'tə krōōz' də tĕn'ə-rĕ'fā, -rĕf', -rĭf', sǎn'tä krōōth' thĕ tĕn'ĕ-rĕ'fĕ) A city of the Canary Islands on the northeast coast of Tenerife Island. It is a popular resort. Population, 185,899.

San·ta Cruz Island (sǎn'tə krōōz' ī'lənd) An island off southern California in the northern Santa Barbara Islands.

Santa Cruz Islands (sǎn'tə krōōz' ī'ləndz) An island group of the southwest Pacific Ocean in the southeast Solomon Islands. They were discovered in 1595.

San·ta Fe (sǎn'tə fā') 1. (also sǎn'tä fĕ') A city of northeast Argentina on the Salado River northwest of Buenos Aires. Founded in 1573, it is a port with various light industries. Population, 291,966. 2. The capital of New Mexico, in the north-central part of the state northeast of Albuquerque. The Spanish established a settlement here c. 1609 on the site of ancient Native American ruins and developed it as a trade center over the next 200 years. Occupied by U.S. forces in 1846, it became territorial capital in 1851 and state capital in 1912. Population, 55,859.

Santa Fe Trail (sǎn'tə fā' trāl) A trade route to the southwest United States extending about 1,287 km (800 mi) westward from Independence, Missouri, to Santa Fe, New Mexico. First traversed in 1821, it was the primary wagon and stage route to the Southwest until the coming of the railroad in 1880.

Santa Ger·tru·dis (sǎn'tə gər-trōō'dĭs) n. pl. Santa Gertrudis. Any of a breed of large beef cattle that are highly resistant to heat and insects, developed in the United States by crossing Brahmans and shorthorns. [After the Santa Gertrudis section of the King Ranch in Kingsville, Texas.]

San·ta Is·a·bel (sǎn'tə ĭz'ə-bĕl', sǎn'tä ĕ-sä-bĕl') See Malabo.

san·ta·lol (sǎn'tə-lōl', -lōl', -lōl') n. A colorless liquid, C₁₅H₂₄O, obtained from sandalwood and used in perfumes. [New Latin Santalum, sandalwood genus (from Medieval Latin santalum, sandalwood); see SANDAL² + -OL(E).]

San·ta Ma·ri·a (sǎn'tə mə-rĕ'ə) 1. (also sǎn'tä mä-rĕ'ä) A city of southern Brazil west of Pôrto Alegre. It is a rail junction and processing center. Population, 151,156. 2. A city of southern California northwest of Santa Barbara. Nearby Vandenberg Air Force Base is important to its economy. Population, 61,284.

San·ta Mar·ta (sǎn'tə mär'tə, sǎn'tä mär'tä) A city of northern Colombia on the Caribbean Sea east-northeast of Barranquilla. Founded in 1525, it is the oldest city in the country and an important processing and shipping center. Population, 193,160.

San-ta Mon-i-ca (sǎn'tə mǒn'ĩ-kə) A city of southern California on the Pacific Ocean west of Los Angeles. It is a resort and residential community with varied light industries. Population, 86,905.

San-tan-der (sǎn'tän-děr') A city of northern Spain on the Bay of Biscay west-northwest of Bilbao. It was a major port after the discovery of America and is now a resort and industrial center. Population, 187,057.

San-tan-der (sǎn'tän-děr'), Francisco de Paula. 1792-1840. Colombian politician who helped liberate Colombia from Spanish rule (1819) and later served as president of New Granada (1832-1837).

Santa Pau-la (sǎn'tə pô'lə) A city of southern California east of Santa Barbara. Food processing is important to its economy. Population, 25,062.

San-ta-rém (sǎn'tə-rēm', sǎn'tä-rān') A city of northern Brazil on the Amazon River east of Manaus. Founded in 1661, it is a major river port. Population, 102,181.

Santa Ro-sa (sǎn'tə rō'zə) A city of western California north-northwest of San Francisco. Luther Burbank lived here, and his experimental gardens are preserved as a memorial. Population, 113,313.

Santa Rosa Island (sǎn'tə rō'zə ī'lənd) 1. An island of southern California in the northwest Santa Barbara Islands separated from the mainland by the Santa Barbara Channel. 2. A barrier island of northwest Florida extending about 80 km (50 mi) eastward from Pensacola Bay along the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

San-ta-ya-na (sǎn'tē-ă'nə, sǎn'tä-yä'nä), George. 1863-1952. Spanish-born American philosopher and writer primarily known for his theories of aesthetics, morality, and the spiritual life. In addition to his philosophical works, such as the four-volume Realms of Being (1927-1940), he wrote poetry and a novel, The Last Puritan (1935).

San-tee¹ (sǎn-tē') n. pl. Santee or San-tees. 1. The eastern branch of the Sioux, comprising the Mdewakanton, Sisseton, Wahpekute, and Wahpeton peoples, with present-day populations in Nebraska, Minnesota, the Dakotas, and Canada. 2. A member of a people of this division. Also called Eastern Sioux, Santee Dakota, Santee Sioux.

San-tee² (sǎn-tē') A community of southern California, a suburb of San Diego. Population, 52,902.

Santee Dakota (sǎn-tē' də-kō'tə) n. See Santee¹.

Santee River (sǎn-tē' rīv'ər) A river, about 230 km (143 mi) long, of central South Carolina flowing southeast to the Atlantic Ocean.

Santee Sioux (sǎn-tē' sō) n. See Santee¹.

San-ti-a-go (sǎn'tē-ă'gō, sǎn'-) 1. The capital and largest city of Chile, in the central part of the country east-southeast of Valparaiso. On a plain in the foothills of the Andes, it was founded in 1541. Population, 425,924. 2. Also Santiago de los Ca-bal-le-ros (dā' lôs kă'bəl-yěr'ôz, thĕ lôs kă'vä-yĕ'rôs). A city of northern Dominican Republic northwest of Santo Domingo. Settled c. 1500, it is a transportation hub in a fertile agricultural region. Population, 278,638. 3. Also Santiago de Com-pos-te-la (də kōm'pə-stēl'ə, thĕ kōm'pōs-tē'lä). A city of northwest Spain south-southwest of La Coruña. The city grew around a shrine housing the reputed tomb of Saint James the Great (discovered in the ninth century) and has long been a pilgrimage center. Population, 62,300.

Santiago de Cu-ba (sän'tē-ä'gō də kyōō'bə, thĕ kōō'vä) A city of southeast Cuba on an inlet of the Caribbean Sea. Founded in 1514, it was a haven for buccaneers and smugglers during its early history. Population, 349,444.

Santiago del Es-te-ro (sän'tē-ä'gō děl ə-stēr'ō, thĕl ě-stĕ'rō) A city of north-central Argentina north of Córdoba. Originally founded in 1553, it is the oldest continuous settlement in the country. Population, 148,758.

san-tir (sän'tir') n. Music. An instrument of Persia that closely resembles a dulcimer. [Arabic sanṭir, from Greek psaltērion, psaltery. See PSALTERY.]

San-to An-dré (sän'tōō äñ-drä') A city of southern Brazil, an industrial suburb of São Paulo. Population, 549,546.

San-to Do-min-go (sän'tō də-mīng'gō, sän'tō dō-) Formerly (1936-1961) Ci-u-dad Tru-jil-lo (sē'ōō-däd' trōō-hĕ'yō, syōō-thäth'). The capital and largest city of the Dominican Republic, in the southeast part of the island of Hispaniola on the Caribbean Sea. Founded in 1496 by Christopher Columbus's brother Bartholomew, it is the oldest continuously inhabited settlement in the Western Hemisphere. The name has also been used for a Spanish colony on Hispaniola and for the Dominican Republic. Population, 1,313,172.

san-ton-i-ca (sän-tōn'i-kə) n. 1. A perennial or shrubby Eurasian plant (Artemisia maritima) having aromatic, bipinnately dissected leaves and numerous flower heads that yield santonin. 2. The dried unopened flower heads of this plant. [New Latin, from Latin (herba) santonica, from feminine of santonicus, of the Santoni, a people of Aquitania.]

san-to-nin (sän'tə-nĭn) n. A colorless crystalline compound, C₁₅H₁₈O₃, obtained from species of wormwood, especially santonica, and used as an anthelmintic. [SANTON(ICA) + -IN.]

San-to-rin (sän'tə-rĕn') See Thíra.

San-tos (sän'təs, sän'tōōs) A city of southeast Brazil on an offshore island in the Atlantic Ocean southeast of São Paulo. Settled in the 1540's, it is a major port, especially for coffee. Population, 410,933.

San-tos-Du-mont (sän'təs-dōō-mōnt', -dyōō-, sän'tōōz-dōō-mōnt'), Alberto. 1873-1932. Brazilian pioneer aeronaut who was the first to fly a gasoline-powered airship (1898).

São Ber-nar-do do Cam-po (souñ bĕr-när'dōō dōō kăn'pōō) A city of southeast Brazil, an industrial suburb of São Paulo. Population, 381,097.

São Cae-ta·no do Sul (soun kī-tā'nōō dōō sōōl') A city of southeast Brazil, an industrial suburb of São Paulo. Population, 163,082.

São Car·los (soun kār'ləs, -lōōs) A city of southeast Brazil northwest of São Paulo. It is a commercial and processing center. Population, 109,167.

São Fran-cis-co (soun frən-sīs'kō, frän-sēs'kōō) A river of eastern Brazil flowing about 2,896 km (1,800 mi) generally north-northeast and east to the Atlantic Ocean.

São Gon-ça·lo (soun gōn-säl'ōō) A city of southeast Brazil, an industrial suburb on Guanabara Bay opposite Rio de Janeiro. Population, 221,579.

São João de Me-ri-ti (soun zhwoun' də mə-rē'tē, dī mī-rī-tē') A city of southeast Brazil, a residential suburb of Rio de Janeiro. Population, 210,574.

São Jo-sé do Ri-o Prê-t-o (soun zhōō-zā' dōō rē'ōō prēt'ōō) A city of southeast Brazil, an industrial suburb of São Paulo. Population, 172,127.

São José dos Cam-pos (soun dōōs kăn'pōōs) A city of southeast Brazil east-northeast of São Paulo. It is a major center of Brazil's aircraft industry. Population, 268,034.

São Lu-is (soun lōō-ēs') A city of northeast Brazil on an offshore island in the Atlantic Ocean east-southeast of Belém. It was founded by the French in 1612 and named in honor of Louis XIII. Population, 182,258.

São Mi-guel (soun mē-gěl') An island of the eastern Azores in the Atlantic Ocean. It is the largest island in the archipelago and a popular tourist center.

Saône (sōn) A river, about 431 km (268 mi) long, rising in the Vosges Mountains of northeast France and flowing generally south-southwest to the Rhone River at Lyons.

São Pau-lo (soun pou'lō, -lōō) A city of southeast Brazil west-southwest of Rio de Janeiro. Founded by Jesuits in 1554, it developed rapidly as an industrial and commercial center after the 1880's and is now the largest city in South America. Population, 8,493,226.

São Tia-go (soun tē-ä'gōō, tyä'gōō) An island of southern Cape Verde in the northern Atlantic Ocean. It is the largest island in the group and the site of the capital, Praia.

São To-mé (soun tə-mā', tōō-mě') An island of São Tomé and Príncipe in the Gulf of Guinea off western Africa. The city of São Tomé, the capital of the country, is on the southeast coast. Its population is 17,380.

São Tomé and Prín-ci-pe (soun prīn'sə-pə, prēn'sē-pə) An island country in the Gulf of Guinea off western Africa. It was an overseas province of Portugal from the early 16th century until it achieved independence in 1975. São Tomé is the capital. Population, 73,631.

São Vi-cen-te (soun vē-sēn'tə) A city of southeast Brazil on an offshore island in the Atlantic Ocean west of Santos. Founded in 1532, it was sacked by English pirates in 1591. Population, 192,858.

sap¹ (săp) n. 1. a. The watery fluid that circulates through a plant, carrying food and other substances to the various tissues. b. The fluid contents of a plant cell vacuole. 2. An essential bodily fluid. 3. Health and energy; vitality. 4. Slang. A gullible person; a dupe. 5. A leather-covered hand weapon; a blackjack. — v. tr. sapped, sap-ping, saps. 1. To drain of sap. 2. To hit or knock out with a sap. [Middle English, from Old English sæp.]

sap² (săp) n. A covered trench or tunnel dug to a point within an enemy position. — v. sapped, sap-ping, saps. — v. tr. 1. To undermine the foundations of (a fortification). 2. To deplete or weaken gradually; devitalize. — v. intr. To dig a sap. [Obsolete French sappe, or Italian zappa, hoe from Old French, and Old Italian both from Late Latin sappa.]

s.ap. abbr. Apothecaries' scruple.

sap-a-jou (săp'ə-jō) n. See capuchin (n., sense 3). [French.]

Sa-phar (sə-fär') n. Variant of Safar.

sap-head (săp'hěd') n. Slang. A person regarded as gullible or foolish.
—sap/head/ed adj.

sa-phe-na (sə-fē'nə) n. pl. sa-phe-nae (-nē'). Either of two main superficial veins of the leg, one larger than the other, that begin at the foot. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin saphēna, from Arabic ṣāfin.] —sa-phe/nous adj.

sap-id (săp'īd) adj. 1. a. Perceptible to the sense of taste; having flavor. b. Having a strong, pleasant flavor; savory. 2. Pleasing to the mind; engaging. [Latin sapidus, from sapere, to taste. See sep- in Appendix.] —sa-pid/i-ty (să-pīd'i-tē, sə-) n.

sa-pi-ens (săp'pē-əns, -ənz) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of Homo sapiens. — n. An early or prehistoric form of Homo sapiens. [Latin sapiēns, sapient- present participle of sapere, to taste, be wise. See SAPIENT.]

sa-pi-ent (săp'pē-ənt) adj. Having great wisdom and discernment. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sapiēns, sapient- present participle of sapere, to taste, be wise. See sep- in Appendix.] —sa/pi-ence n. —sa/pi-ent-ly adv.

Sa-pir (sə-pîr'), Edward. 1884-1939. American linguist and anthropologist noted for his studies of Native American languages and his theories on the ways in which language shapes our perceptions.

sap-less (săp'līs) adj. 1. Devoid of sap; dry. 2. Lacking spirit or energy.
—sap/less-ness n.

sap-ling (săp'līng) n. 1. A young tree. 2. A youth.

sap-o-dil-la (săp'ə-dīl'ə, -dē'yə) n. 1. An evergreen tree (Manilkara zapota) of Mexico and Central America, having latex that yields chicle and edible fruit with sweet yellow-brown flesh. 2. The fruit of this plant. Also called naseberry [Spanish zapotillo, diminutive of zapote, sapodilla fruit, from Nahuatl tzapotl.]

sap·o·na·ceous (săp'ə-nā'shəs) adj. Having the qualities of soap. [Latin sāpō, sāpōn-, hair dye; see SAPONIN + -ACEOUS.] — sap'o·na·ceous·ness n.

sap·o·na·ted (săp'ə-nā'tid) adj. Combined or treated with a soap. [From Latin sāpō, sāpōn-, hair dye. See SAPONIN.]

sa·pon·i·fi·ca·tion (sə-pŏn'ə-fī-kā'shən) n. A reaction in which an ester is heated with an alkali, such as sodium hydroxide, producing a free alcohol and an acid salt, especially alkaline hydrolysis of a fat or an oil to make soap.

sa·pon·i·fy (sə-pŏn'ə-fī') v. sa·pon·i·fied, sa·pon·i·fy·ing, sa·pon·i·fies. — v. tr. 1. To convert (an ester) by saponification. 2. To convert (a fat or an oil) into soap. — v. intr. To undergo saponification. [French saponifier, from Latin sāpō, sāpōn-, hair dye. See SAPONIN.] — sa·pon'i·fi'a·ble adj. — sa·pon'i·fi'er n.

sap·o·nin (săp'ə-nīn, sə-pŏn'-) n. Any of various plant glucosides that form soapy lathers when mixed and agitated with water, used in detergents, foaming agents, and emulsifiers. [From Latin sāpō, sāpōn-, hair dye (of Germanic origin).]

sap·o·nite (săp'ə-nīt') n. A clay mineral that is a hydrous silicate of aluminum and magnesium and occurs in soft amorphous masses in the cavities of certain rocks. [Latin sāpō, sāpōn-, hair dye; see SAPONIN + -ITE¹.]

sa·por (sā'pər, -pŏr') n. A quality perceptible to the sense of taste; flavor. [Middle English, from Latin, from sapere, to taste. See sep- in Appendix.]

— sa'po·rif'ic (sā'pə-rif'ik, săp'ə-), sa'po·rous (sā'pər-əs, săp'ər-) adj.

sa·po·te (sə-pŏ'tē, -tā) or sa·po·ta (-tə) n. 1. A Mexican and Central American tree (Poulteria sapota) having edible, brown, oval fruit with very sweet reddish flesh. 2. The fruit of this tree. Also called marmalade plum [Spanish zapota, from Nahuatl tzapotl.]

sap·pan·wood (sə-păn'wŏd', săp'ăn-, -ən-) n. 1. A tree (Caesalpinia sappan) of tropical Asia, having wood that yields a red dye. 2. The wood of this tree. [Malay sapang + WOOD¹.]

sap·per (săp'ər) n. 1. A military engineer who specializes in sapping and other field fortification activities. 2. A military engineer who lays, detects, and disarms mines. [From SAP².]

Sap·phic (săf'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to the Greek poet Sappho. 2. a. Of, relating to, or being an Aeolic verse of 11 syllables, consisting of a first part of 4 syllables, a central choriamb, and a final part of 3 syllables. b. Relating to or being a stanza of three such verses followed by a verse consisting of a dactyl followed by a spondee or trochee. c. Relating to or being an ode made up of such stanzas. d. Of, relating to, or being a verse, stanza, or poem in accentual meter composed in imitation of Sapphic quantitative verse. 3. Often sapphic. Of or relating to lesbianism. — n. A Sapphic meter, verse, stanza, or ode.

sap·phire (săf'īr') n. 1. A clear, hard variety of corundum used as a gemstone that is usually blue but may be any color except red. 2. A corundum gem.

3. Color. The blue color of a gem sapphire. — adj. 1. Made of or resembling a gem sapphire. 2. Color. Having the color of a blue sapphire. [Middle English saphir, from Old French safir, from Latin sapphīrus, from Greek sappheiros, from Hebrew sappîr, a precious stone.]

sap·phi·rine (săf'ə-rīn', -rēn', sə-fīr'īn) adj. Of or resembling sapphire. — n. A rare light blue or green aluminum-magnesium silicate mineral.

Sap·pho (săf'ō), fl. c. 600 B.C. Greek lyric poet considered one of the greatest poets of antiquity although only fragments of her romantic lyrics survive.

Sap·po·ro (sə-pôr'ō, -pōr'ō) A city of southwest Hokkaido, Japan, near the head of Ishikari Bay. A processing and commercial center, it was the site of the 1972 Winter Olympics. Population, 1,542,979.

sap·py (săp'ē) adj. sap·pi·er, sap·pi·est. 1. Full of sap; juicy. 2. Slang. Excessively sentimental; mawkish. 3. Slang. Silly or foolish. — sap'pi·ly adv.

— sap'pi·ness n.

sapr- pref. Variant of sapro-.

sa·pre·mi·a also sa·prae·mi·a (sə-prē'mē-ə) n. Blood poisoning resulting from the absorption of the products of putrefaction. — sa·pre'mic adj.

sapro- or sapr- pref. 1. Decay; putrefaction; decomposition: saprogenic.

2. Dead or decaying organic material: saprophyte. [Greek, from sapros, rotten.]

sap·robe (săp'rōb') n. An organism that derives its nourishment from nonliving or decaying organic matter. [SAPRO- + Greek bios, life; see g^wei- in Appendix.] — sap·ro'bi·al (să-prō'bē-əl), sap·ro'bic (-bīk) adj. — sap·ro'bi·cal·ly adv.

sap·ro·bi·ol·o·gy (săp'rō-bī-ōl'ə-jē) n. The study of decaying organisms or environments, especially as a branch of ecology. — sap'ro·bi'o·log'i·cal (-bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. — sap'ro·bi·ol'o·gist n.

sap·ro·gen·ic (săp'rə-jěn'īk) also sa·prog·e·nous (sə-prōj'ə-nəs) adj. Of, producing, or resulting from putrefaction. — sap'ro·ge·nic'i·ty (-jə-nīs'ī-tē) n.

sap·ro·lite (săp'rə-līt') n. Soft, partially decomposed rock rich in clay and remaining in its original place.

sap·ro·pel (săp'rə-pěl') n. 1. A mud rich in organic matter formed at the bottom of a body of water. 2. A fluid slime found in swamps as a product of putrefaction. [SAPRO- + Greek pēlos, mud.] — sap'ro·pel'ic (-pěl'īk, -pē'līk) adj.

sa·proph·a·gous (să-prōf'ə-gəs) adj. Feeding on decaying organic matter.

sap·ro·phyte (săp'rə-fīt') n. An organism, especially a fungus or bacterium, that grows on and derives its nourishment from dead or decaying organic matter. — sap'ro·phyt'ic (-fīt'īk) adj. — sap'ro·phyt'i·cal·ly adv.

sap-ro-zo·ic (săp'rə-zō'ik) adj. 1. Obtaining nourishment by absorption of dissolved organic and inorganic materials, as in protozoans and some fungi.

2. Feeding on dead or decaying animal matter.

sap-sa-go (săp-sā'gō, săp'sə-gō') n. pl. sap-sa-gos. A hard green cheese made from skim-milk curd, colored and flavored with sweet clover. [Alteration of German Schabzieger : schaben, to scrape (from Middle High German, from Old High German skaban) + Zieger, whey, whey cheese (from Middle High German ziger, probably of Celtic origin).]

sap-suck·er (săp'sük'ər) n. Any of various small American woodpeckers of the genus Sphyrapicus that drill holes in certain trees to drink the sap and eat insects in them, especially S. varius, the common species in the eastern United States, and S. thyrsoides, found in the mountain regions of the western United States.

Sa-pul-pa (sə-pül'pə) A city of east-central Oklahoma south-southwest of Tulsa. It is a trade center in an agricultural region. Population, 18,074.

sap-wood (săp'wōod') n. Newly formed outer wood that lies just inside the cambium of a tree trunk and is usually lighter in color and more active in water conduction than the heartwood.

Saq-qa-ra also Sak-ka-ra (sə-kär'ə) A village of northern Egypt near Cairo. It is the site of the oldest Egyptian pyramids, including the Step Pyramid built by Zoser during the III Dynasty (c. 2980-2900 B.C.).

SAR abbr. Sons of the American Revolution.

sar-a-band also sar-a-bande (săr'ə-bänd') n. 1. A stately court dance of the 17th and 18th centuries, in slow triple time. 2. The music for this dance. [French sarabande, from Spanish zarabanda.]

Sar-a-cen (săr'ə-sən) n. 1. A member of a pre-Islamic nomadic people of the Syrian-Arabian deserts. 2. An Arab. 3. A Muslim, especially of the time of the Crusades. [Middle English, from Old English, from Late Latin Saracēnus, from Late Greek Sarakēnos, ultimately from Arabic šarq, east.] —Sar'a-cen'ic (-sən'ik) adj.

Sar-a-gos-sa (săr'ə-gōs'ə) also Za-ra-go-za (zăr'ə-gō'zə, thă'rä-gô'thä) A city of northeast Spain on the Ebro River northeast of Madrid. An important city under Roman rule, it was held by the Moors from 713 until 1118. Population, 601,235.

Sar-ah (săr'ə) In the Old Testament, the wife of Abraham and mother of Isaac.

Sa-ra-je-vo (săr'ə-yā'vō, săr'ə-yě-vô') The capital and largest city of Bosnia-Herzegovina, in the south-central part southwest of Belgrade. The assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife here on June 28, 1914, triggered the outbreak of World War I. Population, 374,500.

sa-ran (sə-răn') n. Any of various thermoplastic resins derived from vinyl compounds and used to make packaging films, fittings, and bristles and as a fiber in various heavy fabrics. [From Saran, a former U.S. trademark.]

Sar·a·nac Lakes (sǎr'ə-năk' lāks) A group of three lakes in the Adirondack Mountains of northeast New York. They are linked by the Saranac River, which flows about 161 km (100 mi) generally northeast to Lake Champlain. The lakes are in a popular year-round resort area.

Sa·ransk (sə-rănsk') A city of western Russia west of Ulyanovsk. Founded as a fort in the 1600's, it is a manufacturing and processing center. Population, 307,000.

sa·ra·pe (sə-rä'pē, -răp'ē) n. Variant of serape.

Sar·a·so·ta (sǎr'ə-sō'tə) A city of west-central Florida south of Tampa Bay on Sarasota Bay, an inlet of the Gulf of Mexico. A yachting and fishing resort with varied industries, Sarasota is the site of the Circus Hall of Fame. Population, 50,961.

Sar·a·to·ga (sǎr'ə-tō'gə) 1. A city of western California southwest of San Jose. It is a residential community in a wine-producing region. Population, 28,061. 2. A former village of eastern New York on the west bank of the Hudson River east of Saratoga Springs. The defeat and surrender of Gen. John Burgoyne's British army on October 17, 1777, marked the end of the hard-fought Saratoga Campaign (June-October) and was a major turning point in the American Revolution.

Saratoga Springs (sǎr'ə-tō'gə sprīngz) A city of eastern New York in the foothills of the Adirondack Mountains north of Albany. The city's mineral springs led to its development as a health resort in the late 18th century. It has also been an important horseracing and sporting center since the 1860's. Population, 25,001.

Saratoga trunk (sǎr'ə-tō'gə trŭngk) n. A large traveling trunk having a rounded top. [After Saratoga (Springs).]

Sa·ra·tov (sə-rä'təf) A city of southwest Russia on the Volga River north-northeast of Volgograd. Founded on a nearby site in 1590, it is a major industrial center. Population, 899,000.

Sa·ra·wak (sə-rä'wāk, -wāk, -wä) A region of Malaysia on northwest Borneo. A British protectorate after 1888 and a crown colony after 1946, it joined Malaysia in 1963.

sarc- pref. Variant of sarco-.

sar·casm (sǎr'kăz'əm) n. 1. A cutting, often ironic remark intended to wound. 2. A form of wit that is marked by the use of sarcastic language and is intended to make its victim the butt of contempt or ridicule. 3. The use of sarcasm. See Synonyms at wit¹. [Late Latin sarcasmus, from Greek sarkasmos, from sarkazein, to bite the lips in rage, from sarx, sark-, flesh.]

sar·cas·tic (sǎr-kăs'tik) adj. 1. Expressing or marked by sarcasm. 2. Given to using sarcasm. [SARC(ASM) + -astic as in ENTHUSIASTIC.] —sar·cas'ti·cal·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: sarcastic, ironic, caustic, satirical, sardonic. These adjectives mean having or marked by a feeling of bitterness and a biting or cutting quality. Sarcastic suggests sharp taunting and ridicule that wounds: “a deserved reputation for sarcastic, acerbic and uninhibited polemics” (Burke Marshall). Ironic implies a subtler form of mockery in which an intended meaning is conveyed obliquely: “a man of eccentric charm, ironic humor, and—above all—profound literary genius” (Jonathan Kirsch). Caustic means corrosive and biting trenchant: “The caustic jokes... deal with such diverse matters as political assassination, talk-show hosts, medical ethics” (Frank Rich). Satirical implies the exposure of something, especially vice or folly, to ridicule: “on the surface a satirical look at commercial radio, but also a study of the misuse of telecommunications” (Richard Harrington). Sardonic is associated with scorn, derision, mockery, and often cynicism: “He was proud, sardonic, harsh to inferiority of every description” (Charlotte Brontë).

Sarcelles (sär-sěl') A city of north-central France, a residential suburb of Paris. Population, 53,630.

sarce-net (särs'nīt) n. A fine, soft silk cloth. [Middle English sarsenet, from Anglo-Norman sarzinett, perhaps from Old French Saracin, Saracen, from Late Latin Saracēnus. See SARACEN.]

sarco- or sarc- pref. 1. Flesh: sarcophagic. 2. Striated muscle: sarcolemma. [Greek sarko-, from sarx, sark-, flesh.]

sar-co-din-i-an (sär'kə-dīn'ē-ən) adj. Of or belonging to the Sarcodina, a superclass of protozoans that includes the rhizopods. — n. A protozoan belonging to the superclass Sarcodina. [New Latin Sarcodīna, superclass name, from Greek sarkōdēs, fleshy, from sarx, sark-, flesh.]

sar-coid (sär'koid') adj. Relating to or resembling flesh. — n. 1. See sarcoi-dosis. 2. A tumor resembling a sarcoma.

sar-coid-o-sis (sär'koi-dō'sis) n. pl. sar-coid-o-ses (-sēz). A disease of unknown origin characterized by the formation of granulomatous lesions that appear especially in the liver, lungs, skin, and lymph nodes. Also called sarcoid sar-co-lac-tic acid (sär'kə-lăk'tik əs'īd) n. An isomeric form of lactic acid produced by muscle tissue during the anaerobic metabolism of glucose.

sar-co-lem-ma (sär'kə-lēm'mə) n. A thin membrane enclosing a striated muscle fiber. [SARCO- + Greek lemma, husk; see LEMMA².] —sar'co-lem'mal adj.

sar-co-ma (sär-kō'mə) n. pl. sar-co-mas also sar-co-ma-ta (-mə-tə). A malignant tumor arising from connective tissues. [New Latin, from Greek sarkōma, sarkōmat-, fleshy excrescence, from sarkoun, to produce flesh, from sarx, sark-, flesh.] —sar-co'ma-toid' (-mə-toid'), sar-co'ma-tous (-təs) adj.

sar-co-ma-to-sis (sär-kō'mə-tō'sis) n. Formation of numerous sarcomas in various parts of the body.

sar-co-mere (sär'kə-mîr') n. One of the segments into which a fibril of striated muscle is divided.

sar·coph·a·gi (sär-köf'ə-jī') n. A plural of sarcophagus.

sar·co·phag·ic (sär'kə-fāj'ik, -fā'jik) also sar·coph·a·gous (sär-köf'ə-gəs) adj. Flesh-eating; carnivorous.

sar·coph·a·gus (sär-köf'ə-gəs) n. pl. sar·coph·a·gi (-jī') or sar·coph·a·gus·es. A stone coffin, often inscribed or decorated with sculpture.

[Latin, from Greek sarkophagos, coffin, from (lithos) sarkophagos, limestone that consumed the flesh of corpses laid in it : sarx, sark-, flesh + -phagos, -phagous.]

WORD HISTORY: A gruesome name befits a gruesome thing, as in the case of sarcophagus, our term for a stone coffin, often a decorated one, that is located above ground. The word comes to us from Latin and Greek, having been derived in Greek from sarx, “flesh,” and phagein, “to eat.” The Greek word sarkophagos meant “eating flesh,” and in the phrase lithos (“stone”) sarkophagos denoted a limestone that was thought to decompose the flesh of corpses placed in it. The Greek term used by itself as a noun then came to mean “coffin.” The term was carried over into Latin, where sarcophagus was used in the phrase lapis (“stone”) sarcophagus, referring to the same stone as in Greek. Sarcophagus used as a noun in Latin meant “coffin of any material.” This Latin word was borrowed into English, first being recorded in 1601 with reference to the flesh-consuming stone and then in 1705 with reference to a stone coffin.

sar·co·plasm (sär'kə-pläz'əm) n. The cytoplasm of a striated muscle fiber.

—sar'co·plas·mat'ic (-pläz-mät'ik), sar'co·plas'mic (-mīk) adj.

sarcoplasmic reticulum (sär'kə-pläz'mīk rī-tīk'yə-ləm) n. The form of endoplasmic reticulum found in striated muscle fibers.

sar·cop·tic mange (sär-köp'tik mänj) n. Mange caused by the mite Sarcoptes scabiei. [From New Latin Sarcoptes, genus name : SARCO- + Greek koptein, to cut.]

sar·co·some (sär'kə-sōm') n. A large specialized mitochondrion found in striated muscle. —sar'co·so'mal adj.

sar·co·style (sär'kə-stīl') n. See myofibril.

sar·cous (sär'kəs) adj. Of, relating to, or consisting of flesh or muscle tissue.

sard (särd) n. A clear or translucent, deep orange-red to brownish-red variety of chalcedony. Also called sardius [Middle English sarde, from Old French, from Latin sarda, perhaps from Sardis, Sardis, an ancient city of western Asia Minor.]

sar·dine (sär-dēn') n. 1. Any of various small or half-grown edible herrings or related fishes of the family Clupeidae, frequently canned in oil or water, especially the pilchard of European waters. 2. Any of numerous small, silvery, edible freshwater or marine fishes unrelated to the sardine. — v. tr. sar·dined, sar·din·ing, sar·dines. Slang. To pack tightly; cram: “The bars are sardined with hungry hopefuls” (Gael Greene). [Middle English sardin, from Old French sar- dine, from Latin sardīna, from sarda, a kind of fish, ultimately from Greek Sardō, Sardinia.]

Sar·din·i·a (sär-dĭn'ē-ə, -dĭn'yə) An island of Italy in the Mediterranean Sea south of Corsica. Settled by Phoenicians, Greeks, and Carthaginians before the sixth century B.C., the island was taken by Rome in 238 B.C. and later fell to the Vandals (fifth century A.D.) and the Byzantines (early sixth century). Numerous European powers controlled the island before 1720, when it passed to the House of Savoy and became the nucleus of the Kingdom of Sardinia. Victor Emmanuel II of Sardinia became the first king of Italy in 1861.

Sar·din·i·an (sär-dĭn'ē-ən, -yən) adj. Of or relating to Sardinia or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Sardinia. 2. The Romance language of the Sardinians.

Sar·dis (sär'dĭs) An ancient city of western Asia Minor northeast of modern-day Izmir, Turkey. As the capital of Lydia it was the political and cultural center of Asia Minor from 650 to c. 550 B.C. and remained an important city during Roman and Byzantine times. Sardis was destroyed by Tamerlane in 1402.

sar·di·us (sär'dē-əs) n. See sard. [Middle English, from Old English, from Latin, from sarda. See SARD.]

sar·don·ic (sär-dŏn'ĭk) adj. Scornfully or cynically mocking. See Synonyms at sarcastic. [French sardonique, from Greek sardonios, alteration of sardanio.] —sar·don'i·cal·ly adv. —sar·don'i·cism (-ĭ-sĭz'əm) n.

sar·don·yx (sär-dŏn'ĭks, sär'dn-ĭks') n. An onyx with alternating brown and white bands of sard and other minerals. [Middle English sardonix, probably from Latin sardonix, from Greek sardonux: sardion, sard; see SARD + onux, onyx, nail; see nogh- in Appendix.]

Sar·dou (sär-dō'), Victorien. 1831-1908. French playwright known especially for his light comedies, including A Scrap of Paper (1860) and Peril (1861).

Sa·re·ma (sär'ə-mä') See Saaremaa.

sar·gas·so (sär-gäs'ō) n. pl. sar·gas·sos. See gulfweed. [Portuguese sar-gaço.]

Sar·gas·so Sea (sär-gäs'ō sē) A part of the northern Atlantic Ocean between the West Indies and the Azores. The relatively calm sea is noted for the abundance of gulfweed floating on its surface.

sar·gas·sum (sär-gäs'əm) n. See gulfweed. [New Latin Sargassum, genus name, from SARGASSO.]

sargassum fish (sär-gäs'əm fĭsh) n. A frogfish (Histrio histrio) found commonly among the drifting gulfweed of the Atlantic and western Pacific.

sarge (särj) n. Informal. Sergeant.

Sar·gent (sär'jənt), John Singer. 1856-1925. American painter known especially for his elegant portraits and watercolor landscapes.

Sar-go-dha (sər-gō'də) A city of northeast Pakistan west-northwest of Lahore. It is an agricultural trade center with varied industries. Population, 235,000.

Sar-gon II (sär'gōn'), Died 705 B.C. Assyrian king (721-705) who completed the conquest of the northern Jewish kingdom of Israel, later known as Samaria.

sa-ri (sä'rē) n. pl. sa-ris. An outer garment worn chiefly by women of India and Pakistan, consisting of a length of lightweight cloth with one end wrapped about the waist to form a skirt and the other draped over the shoulder or covering the head. [Hindi sārī, from Prakrit sādī, from Sanskrit śāṭī.]

Sark (särk) One of the Channel Islands in the English Channel east of Guernsey. It comprises Great Sark and Little Sark, which are joined by a natural causeway. —Sark-ese' (-ēz', -ēs') adj. & n.

Sar-ma-tia (sär-mā'shə, -shē-ə) An ancient region of eastern Europe northeast of the Black Sea. The Sarmatian people occupied the area after the fourth century B.C. and fled across the Carpathian Mountains and along the Danube River after the onslaught of the Huns. The term is also applied to the territory between the Vistula and Volga rivers during the time of the Roman Empire. —Sar-ma'tian adj. & n.

sar-men-tose (sär-měn'tōs') adj. Botany. Having slender, prostrate stolons, as in the strawberry. [Latin sarmentōsus, full of twigs, from sarmentum, twigs.]

Sar-ni-a (sär'nē-ə) A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, at the southern end of Lake Huron west of London. Settled by the French in 1807 and the British in 1833, it is a port and manufacturing center. Population, 50,892.

Sar-noff (sär'nōf'), David. 1891-1971. American radio and television pioneer who proposed the first commercial radio receiver and in 1926 formed the National Broadcasting Company.

sa-rod or sa-rode (sə-rōd') n. Music. A many-stringed lute of northern India that is played with a bow. [Urdu, from Persian sarūd, from Middle Persian srōd, from Old Iranian srauta-. See kleu- in Appendix.] —sa-rod'ist n.

sa-rong (sə-rōng', -rōng') n. 1. A skirt consisting of a length of brightly colored cloth wrapped about the waist that is worn by men and women in Malaysia, Indonesia, and the Pacific islands. 2. Cloth for such skirts. [Malay (kain) sarong, covering (cloth), sarong.]

Sa-ron-ic Gulf (sə-rōn'ik gulf) An arm of the Aegean Sea in southern Greece between Attica and the Peloponnesus east of Corinth. A canal links it with the Gulf of Corinth.

Sa-ros (sär'ōs', sä'rōs), Gulf of. An inlet of the northeast Aegean Sea indenting northwest European Turkey north of Gallipoli.

Sa-roy-an (sə-roi'ən), William. 1908-1981. American writer whose works include short stories, such as The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze (1934), plays, most notably The Time of Your Life (1939), and novels.

Sar-pe-don (sär-pēd'n, -pē'dōn) n. Greek Mythology. A son of Zeus and Europa who became king of Lycia and was killed by Patroclus in the Trojan War.

sar·sa (sär'sə) n. Chiefly Southwestern U.S. Variant of salsa (n., sense 1).

sar·sa·pa·ril·la (säs'pə-rīl'ə, särs'-) n. 1. a. Any of several tropical American plants of the genus Smilax, having fragrant roots used as a flavoring. b. The dried roots of any of these plants. c. A sweet soft drink flavored with these roots. 2. Either of two North American plants (Aralia hispida or A. nudicaulis) having umbels of small white flowers and bipinnately compound leaves. [Spanish zarzaparrilla : zarza, bramble (from Arabic šaraṣ) + parrilla, diminutive of parra, vine.]

Sarthe (särt) A river, about 285 km (177 mi) long, of northwest France flowing generally south to Angers.

sar·to·ri·al (sär-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj. Of or relating to a tailor, tailoring, or tailored clothing: sartorial elegance. [From Late Latin sartor, tailor. See SARTORIUS.]
—sar·to·ri·al·ly adv.

sar·to·ri·us (sär-tôr'ē-əs, -tôr'-) n. pl. sar·to·ri·i (-tôr'ē-ī, -tôr'-). A flat, narrow thigh muscle, the longest of the human anatomy, crossing the front of the thigh obliquely from the hip to the inner side of the tibia. [New Latin, from Late Latin sartor, tailor (from its producing the cross-legged position of a tailor at work), from sartus, past participle of sarcīre, to mend.]

Sar·tre (sär'trə, särt), Jean Paul. 1905-1980. French writer and philosopher. A leading existentialist, he wrote literary works, such as the autobiographical novel Nausea (1938) and the play No Exit (1944), and philosophical volumes that include Being and Nothingness (1943). Sartre declined the 1964 Nobel Prize for literature.

sa·rus crane (sär'əs krān) n. A large crane (Grus antigone) of southern Asia, having a partly red head and neck. [Hindi sāras, from Sanskrit sārasaḥ, from sārasa-, of lakes, from saraḥ, lake, from sarati, it flows.]

SASE abbr. Self-addressed stamped envelope.

Sa·se·bo (sä'sě-bō') A city of northwest Kyushu, Japan, on the East China Sea north-northwest of Nagasaki. A naval base was established here in 1886. Population, 250,635.

sash¹ (säsh) n. A band or ribbon worn about the waist, as for ornament, or over the shoulder as a symbol of rank. — v. tr. sashed, sash·ing, sash·es. To put a band or ribbon about (the waist). [Arabic šāš, muslin.]

sash² (säsh) n. A frame in which the panes of a window or door are set. — v. tr. sashed, sash·ing, sash·es. To furnish with a sash. [Alteration of French châssis, frame (taken as pl.). See CHASSIS.]

sa·shay (sä-shā') Informal. v. intr. sa·shayed, sa·shay·ing, sa·shays.

1. a. To walk or proceed, especially in an easy or casual manner. b. To strut or flounce in a showy manner: “sashays in tight black pants and harlequin shoes across the patio" (Tom Ashbrook). 2. To perform the chassé in dancing. 3. To move in a sideways manner. — n. 1. A chassé. 2. An excursion; an outing. 3. A figure in square dancing in which partners circle each other by taking sideways steps.

[Alteration of CHASSÉ.]

sa-shi-mi (sä-shē'mē) n. pl. sa-shi-mis. A Japanese dish consisting of very thin, bite-size slices of fresh raw fish, traditionally served with a sharp tasting sauce. [Japanese.]

Sas-katch-e-wan (sä-skäch'ə-wän', -wən) Abbr. SK, Sask. A province of south-central Canada. It joined the Confederation in 1905. The French established trading posts in the area c. 1750, but the first permanent settlement was made by the Hudson's Bay Company in 1774. The region became part of the Northwest Territories in 1870. Regina is the capital and the largest city. Population, 968,313.

Saskatchewan River (sä-skäch'ə-wän' rīv'ər) A river, about 547 km (340 mi) long, of south-central Canada formed by the confluence of the North and South Saskatchewan rivers in central Saskatchewan and flowing eastward to Lake Winnipeg in Manitoba.

sas-ka-toon (sä's'kə-tōon') n. 1. A shrub (Amelanchier alnifolia) of northwest North America, having white flowers and edible dark purple fruit. 2. The fruit of this plant. [From Cree misaaskwatoomin, saskatoon berry.]

Sas-ka-toon (sä's'kə-tōon') A city of south-central Saskatchewan, Canada, on the South Saskatchewan River northwest of Regina. Settled in 1883, it is a trade and processing center. Population, 154,210.

Sas-quatch (sä's'kwöch, -kwäch) n. See Bigfoot. [Halkomelem (Salish language) sésq'əč.] sass (sä) Informal. n. Impertinent, disrespectful speech; back talk. — v. tr. sassed, sass-ing, sass-es. To talk impudently to. [Back-formation from SASSY¹.]

sas-sa-by (sä's'ə-bē) n. pl. sas-sa-bies. A South African antelope (Damaliscus lunatus) having curved, ridged horns. [Sotho (Setswana) tshêšêbê.] sas-sa-fras (sä's'ə-fräs') n. 1. A deciduous eastern North American tree (Sassafras albidum) having irregularly lobed leaves and aromatic bark, leaves, and branches. 2. The dried root bark of this plant, used as a flavoring and a source of a volatile oil. [Spanish sasafrás, from Late Latin saxifragia, kind of herb, variant of (herba) saxifraga, saxifrage. See SAXIFRAGE.]

Sas-sa-nid (sä's'ə-nīd, sə-sä'nīd, -sän'īd) also Sas-sa-ni-an (sə-sä'nē-ən, sə-) or Sas-sa-nide (sä's'ə-nīd', -nīd) A Persian dynasty (A.D. 224-651) and the last line of Persian kings before the Arab conquest. The Sassanid era was marked by wars against Romans, Armenians, and Huns and by the revival of Zoroastrianism. —Sas'sa-nid adj.

- Sas-sa-ri (să'sə-rē') A city of northwest Sardinia, Italy, north-northwest of Cagliari. An important trading center in the Middle Ages, it was held by the Genoese and Aragonese before passing to Piedmont in 1718. Population, 118,158.
- Sas-soon (sə-sōn', sǎ-), Siegfried Lorraine. 1886-1967. British writer known for his antiwar poems, based on his combat experience in World War I, and for his fictionalized three-volume autobiography, first published as The Memoirs of George Sherston (1928-1936).
- sass-wood (säs'wōd') n. See sassy². [Alteration of sassywood: SASSY² + WOOD¹.]
- sas-sy¹ (säs'ē) adj. sas·si·er, sas·si·est. 1. Rude and disrespectful; impudent. 2. Lively and spirited; jaunty. 3. Stylish; chic: a sassy little hat. [Alteration of SAUCY.] —sas/si·ly adv. —sas/si·ness n.
- sas-sy² (säs'ē) n. pl. sas·sies. A western African tree (Erythrophleum suaveolens) of the pea family, having bark that yields a poison and wood that is used for construction. Also called sasswood, sassy bark. [Of West African origin; akin to Twi ð-sésé, plane tree Ewe séséwú, timber tree Gã sèsè, kind of tree.]
- sas-tru-ga (sǎ-strōō'gə, sǎs'trə-, sǎ'strə-) also zas-tru-ga (zǎ-strōō'gə, zǎ-) n. A long wavelike ridge of snow, formed by the wind and found on the polar plains. [Russian dialectal zastruga: za, beyond + struga, deep place into which one may fall; see sreu- in Appendix.]
- sat (săt) v. Past tense and past participle of sit.
- SAT (ēs'ā-tē') A trademark used for Scholastic Aptitude Test.
- sat. abbr. Saturate; saturated; saturation.
- Sat. abbr. Saturday.
- Sa-tan (sāt'n) n. Theology. The profoundly evil adversary of God and humanity, often identified with the leader of the fallen angels; the Devil. [Middle English, from Old English, from Late Latin Satān, from Greek Satanas, Satan, from Hebrew šāṭān, devil, adversary, from šāṭan, to accuse.]
- sa-tang (sə-täng') n. pl. satang. A unit of currency in Thailand. See Table at currency. [Thai satān.]
- sa-tan-ic (sə-tǎn'ik, sǎ-) or sa-tan-i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. 1. Relating to or suggestive of Satan or evil. 2. Profoundly cruel or evil; fiendish. —sa-tan/i-cal·ly adv.
- Sa-tan-ism (sāt'n-iz'əm) n. 1. The worship of Satan characterized by a travesty of the Christian rites. 2. satanism. Profound wickedness. —Sa'tan-ist n.
- sa-tay also sa-té or sa-te (sǎ'tā) n. A dish of southeast Asia consisting of strips of marinated meat, poultry, or seafood grilled on skewers and dipped in peanut sauce. [Malay, or Indonesian.]
- satch-el (säch'əl) n. A small bag, often having a shoulder strap, used for carrying books or clothing. [Middle English sachel, from Old French, from Late Latin sacculus, from Latin sacculus, diminutive of saccus, bag. See SACK¹.] —satch'eled adj. —satch'el·ful' (-fōl') n.

satd. abbr. Saturated.

sate¹ (sāt) v. tr. sat·ed, sat·ing, sates. 1. To satisfy (an appetite) fully. 2. To satisfy to excess. See Synonyms at satiare. [Probably alteration of Middle English saden, from Old English sadian. See sā- in Appendix.]

sate² (sāt, sāt) v. Archaic. A past tense of sit.

sa·té or sa·te (sā'tā) n. Variants of satay.

sa·teen (sā-tēn') n. A cotton fabric with a satinlike finish. [Alteration (influenced by VELVETEEN), of SATIN.]

sat·el·lite (săt'l-īt') n. 1. Astronomy. A celestial body that orbits a planet; a moon. 2. Aerospace. An object launched to orbit Earth or another celestial body. 3. One who attends a powerful dignitary; a minion. 4. A subservient follower; a sycophant. 5. A nation dominated politically and economically by another nation. 6. An urban or suburban community located near a big city. 7. Genetics. A short segment of a chromosome separated from the rest by a constriction, typically associated with the formation of a nucleolus. 8. Microbiology. A colony of microorganisms whose growth in culture medium is enhanced by certain substances produced by another colony in its proximity. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: satellite telecommunications; satellite countries in the Eastern Bloc. [French, hanger-on, hireling, from Old French, from Latin satelles, satellit-.] satellite cell (săt'l-īt' sĕl) n. Anatomy. Any of the cells that encapsulate the bodies of nerve cells in many ganglia.

satellite DNA (săt'l-īt' dē'ĕn-ā') n. A portion of DNA in animal cells whose density differs from that of the other DNA and that consists of short, repeating sequences of nucleotide pairs near the region of the centromere.

satellite station (săt'l-īt' stā'shən) n. A radio or television station that rebroadcasts a received transmission immediately on a different wavelength.

sa·tem (sā'təm) adj. Designating those Indo-European languages, including the Indo-Iranian, Armenian, Albanian, and Balto-Slavic subfamilies, in which original velar stops became fricatives (as k > s or š) and labiovelar stops became velars (as kw > k). [Avestan satəm, hundred (a word whose initial sound illustrates the sound change). See dekṃ in Appendix.]

sa·ti (sū-tē', sūt'ē') n. Variant of suttee.

sa·tia·ble (sā'shə-bəl, -shē-ə-) adj. Possible to satisfy or sate: satiable thirst; a satiable appetite. —sa'tia·bil'i·ty n. —sa'tia·bly adv.

sa·ti·ate (sā'shē-āt') v. tr. sa·ti·at·ed, sa·ti·at·ing, sa·ti·ates. 1. To satisfy (an appetite or a desire) fully. 2. To satisfy to excess. — adj. (-īt) Filled to satisfaction. [Middle English saciaten, from Latin satiāre, satiāt-, from satis, sufficient. See sā- in Appendix.] —sa'ti·a'tion n.

SYNONYMS: satiare, sate, cloy, glut, gorge, surfeit. These verbs mean to fill or become filled to the utmost. Satiate and sate, which are generally interchangeable, can mean merely to satisfy fully, but usually both imply satisfaction beyond natural desire: The actor is so vain that he can never be satiated with adulation. The novel she finished last night sated her appetite for fiction. Cloy stresses the distaste or ennui produced by overindulgence: The host served a dessert so sweet that it cloyed. Glut emphasizes the sheer volume of oversupply: Even the surrender of half of Europe failed to glut Hitler's ambition. Gorge refers principally to greedy overstuffing with food: The children gorged on potato chips. Surfeit implies excess resulting in revulsion or illness: I surfeited myself with chocolate.

Sa-tie (sä-tē'), Erik. 1866-1925. French composer who rebelled against romanticism with his unorthodox and often whimsical compositions, such as Socrate (1918).

sa-ti-e-ty (sə-tī'ī-tē) n. The condition of being full or gratified beyond the point of satisfaction; surfeit. [French satiète, from Old French saciete, from Latin satiētās, from satis, sufficient. See sā- in Appendix.]

Sa-til-la (sə-tīl'ə) A river, about 354 km (220 mi) long, of southeast Georgia flowing generally east, south, and east to an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean.

sat-in (săt'n) n. 1. A smooth fabric, as of silk or rayon, woven with a glossy face and a dull back. 2. A garment made of this fabric. — adj. 1. Made of or covered with satin. 2. Glossy, sleek, and smooth. [Middle English, from Old French, probably from Arabic ('aṭlas) zaitūnīy, (satin) of Zaitun, from Zaitūn, probably Tsinkiang (Quanzhou or Chuanchow), a city of southeast China.]

sat-in-et (săt'n-ēt') n. A thin inferior satin or an imitation satin, especially one containing cotton.

satin flower (săt'n flou'ər) n. 1. A plant (Clarkia amoena) of coastal California having showy, red-blotched flowers. 2. See honesty (n., sense 4).

satin stitch (săt'n stīč) n. An embroidery stitch worked in close parallel lines to give a solid satinlike finish.

satin weave (săt'n wēv) n. A basic weave construction with the interlacing of the threads so arranged that the face of the cloth is covered with warp yarn or filling yarn and no twill line is distinguishable.

sat-in-wood (săt'n-wōōd') n. 1. A deciduous tree (Chloroxylon swietenia) of India and Sri Lanka, having hard, yellowish, close-grained wood. 2. A West Indian tree (Zanthoxylum flavum) having smooth, slightly oily, lustrous wood. 3. The wood of either of these trees, used for furniture and cabinetwork.

sat-in-y (săt'n-ē) adj. Lustrous and smooth like satin. See Synonyms at sleek.

sat-ire (săt'īr') n. 1. a. A literary work in which human vice or folly is attacked through irony, derision, or wit. b. The branch of literature constituting such works. See Synonyms at caricature. 2. Irony, sarcasm, or caustic wit used to attack or expose folly, vice, or stupidity. [Latin satira, probably alteration (influenced by Greek satur, satyr, and satyros, burlesque of a mythical episode), of (lanx) satura, fruit (plate) mixture, from feminine of satur, sated, well-fitted. See sā- in Appendix.]

sa·tir·i·cal (sə-tīr'ī-kəl) or sa·tir·ic (-īk) adj. Of, relating to, or characterized by satire. See Synonyms at sarcastic. —sa·tir'ic·al·ly adv.

sat·i·rist (săt'ər-īst) n. One who is given to satire, especially a writer of satirical works.

sat·i·rize (săt'ə-rīz') v. tr. sat·i·rized, sat·i·riz·ing, sat·i·riz·es. To ridicule or attack by means of satire.

sat·is·fac·tion (săt'is-fāk'shən) n. 1. a. The fulfillment or gratification of a desire, a need, or an appetite. b. Pleasure or contentment derived from such gratification. c. A source or means of gratification. 2. a. Compensation for injury or loss; reparation. b. The opportunity to avenge a wrong; vindication. 3. Assurance beyond doubt or question; complete conviction. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin satisfactiō, satisfactiōn-, amends, from satisfactus, past participle of satisfacere, to satisfy. See SATISFY.]

sat·is·fac·to·ry (săt'is-fāk'tə-rē) adj. Giving satisfaction sufficient to meet a demand or requirement; adequate. —sat'is·fac'to·ri·ly adv.

—sat'is·fac'to·ri·ness n.

sat·is·fi·a·ble (săt'is-fī'ə-bəl) adj. Capable of being satisfied: satisfiable needs and desires.

sat·is·fied (săt'is-fīd') adj. 1. Filled with satisfaction; content: a very satisfied customer. 2. Paid or discharged in full, as a debt or an obligation. 3. Convinced beyond a doubt.

sat·is·fy (săt'is-fī') v. sat·is·fied, sat·is·fy·ing, sat·is·fies. — v. tr. 1. To gratify the need, desire, or expectation of. 2. To fulfill (a need or desire). 3. a. To free from doubt or question; assure. b. To get rid of (a doubt or question); dispel. 4. a. To discharge (a debt or an obligation, for example) in full. b. To discharge an obligation to (a creditor). 5. To conform to the requirements of (a standard or rule); be sufficient to (an end). 6. To make reparation for; redress. 7. Mathematics. To make the left and right sides of an equation equal after substituting equivalent quantities for the unknown variables in the equation. — v. intr. 1. To be sufficient or adequate. 2. To give satisfaction. [Middle English satisfien, from Old French satisfier, from Latin satisfacere : satis, sufficient; see sā- in Appendix + facere, to make; see dhē- in Appendix.] —sat'is·fi'er n. —sat'is·fy'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: satisfy, answer, fill, fulfill, meet. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to supply fully or completely”: satisfied all requirements; answered our needs; filling a purpose; fulfilled their aspirations; meeting her obligations.

Sa-to (sä'tō), Eisaku. 1901-1975. Japanese politician who served as prime minister (1964-1972). He won the 1974 Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts toward nuclear disarmament.

sa-to-ri (sä-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē, sə-) n. Buddhism. A state of spiritual enlightenment sought in Zen Buddhism. [Japanese.]

sa-trap (sā'trăp', sät'răp') n. 1. A governor of a province in ancient Persia. 2. A ruler. 3. A subordinate bureaucrat or an official: "The satraps of Capitol Hill will not sit idly by" (David Nyhan). [Middle English satrape, from Old French, from Latin satrapēs, from Greek, from Old Persian khshathrapāvā, protector of the province : khshathra-, realm, province + pāvā, protector; see pā- in Appendix.]

sa-tra-py (sā'trə-pē, -trăp'ē, sät'rə-pē) n. pl. sa-tra-pies. 1. The territory or sphere under the rule of a satrap. 2. A nation, state, territory, or area controlled as if by a satrap: "No military legions from the West are going to liberate their Eastern European satrapies" (John Hughes).

sat-su-ma (sät-sōō'mə, sä-tsōō'mä, sä'tsōō-mä') n. 1. A tangerine native to Japan and the hardiest commercial citrus fruit. 2. Satsuma. A Japanese porcelain. In this sense, also called Satsuma ware [After Satsuma, a peninsula of southwest Kyushu, Japan.]

Sa-tu-Ma-re also Sa-tu Ma-re (sä'tōō-mär'ē) A city of northwest Romania near the Hungarian border northwest of Bucharest. It is a commercial, cultural, and industrial center. Population, 124,691.

sat-u-rant (säch'ər-ənt) adj. Serving to saturate. — n. A substance used to saturate.

sat-u-rate (säch'ə-rāt') v. tr. sat-u-rat-ed, sat-u-rat-ing, sat-u-rates. Abbr. sat. 1. To imbue or impregnate thoroughly: "The recollection was saturated with sunshine" (Vladimir Nabokov). See Synonyms at charge. 2. To soak, fill, or load to capacity. 3. Chemistry. To cause (a substance) to unite with the greatest possible amount of another substance. — adj. (-rīt) Saturated. [Latin saturāre, saturāt-, to fill, from satur, sated. See sā- in Appendix.] —sat/u-ra-ble (säch'ər-ə-bəl) adj. —sat/u-ra'tor n.

sat-u-rat-ed (säch'ə-rā'tīd) adj. Abbr. sat., satd. 1. Unable to hold or contain more; full. 2. Soaked with moisture; drenched. 3. Chemistry. a. Combined with or containing all the solute that can normally be dissolved at a given temperature. b. Having all available valence bonds filled. Used especially of organic compounds: saturated fats. 4. Geology. Of or relating to minerals that can crystallize from magmas even in the presence of excess silica.

saturated fat (säch'ə-rā'tīd făt) n. A fat, most often of animal origin, whose fatty acid chains cannot incorporate additional hydrogen atoms. An excess of these fats in the diet is thought to raise the cholesterol level in the bloodstream.

sat·u·ra·tion (säch'ə-rā'shən) n. Abbr. sat. 1. a. The act or process of saturating. b. The condition of being saturated. c. The condition of being full to or beyond satisfaction; satiety. 2. Physics. A state of a ferromagnetic substance in which an increase in applied magnetic field strength does not produce an increase in magnetic intensity. 3. Chemistry. The state of a compound or solution that is fully saturated. 4. Meteorology. A condition in which air at a specific temperature contains all the water vapor it can hold; 100 percent relative humidity. 5. Color. Vividness of hue; degree of difference from a gray of the same lightness or brightness. Also called intensity 6. Intensive shelling or bombing of a military target to achieve total destruction. 7. The flooding of a market with all of a commodity that consumers can purchase.

Sat·ur·day (săt'ər-dē, -dā') n. Abbr. S., Sat. 1. The seventh day of the week. 2. The Sabbath for many Jews. [Middle English, from Old English Sæternesdæg, translation of Latin Sāturnīdiēs: Sāturnī, genitive of Sāturnus, Saturn + diēs, day.]

Saturday night special (săt'ər-dē nīt spësh'əl) n. Informal. A cheap handgun easily obtained and concealed.

Sat·urn (săt'ərn) n. 1. Roman Mythology. The god of agriculture. 2. The sixth planet from the sun and the second largest in the solar system, having a sidereal period of revolution about the sun of 29.5 years at a mean distance of about 1,425,000,000 kilometers (886,000,000 miles), a mean diameter of approximately 119,000 kilometers (74,000 miles), and a mass 95 times that of Earth. [Middle English Saturnus, from Old English, from Latin Sāturnus, of Etruscan origin.]

sat·ur·na·li·a (săt'ər-nā'lē-ə, -nāl'yə) pl.n. 1. Saturnalia. The ancient Roman seven-day festival of Saturn, which began on December 17. 2. (used with a sing. verb). A celebration marked by unrestrained revelry and often licentiousness; an orgy. [Latin Sāturnālia, from neuter pl. of Sāturnālis, Saturnian, from Sāturnus, Saturn. See SATURN.]

Sa·tur·ni·an (să-tûr'nē-ən, sə-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the planet Saturn or to its supposed astrological influence. 2. Archaic. Of or relating to the god Saturn or his reign.

sa·tur·ni·id (să-tûr'nē-īd, sə-) n. Any of various often large and colorful moths of the family Saturniidae, such as the emperor moth. — adj. Of or belonging to the Saturniidae. [From New Latin Sāturniidae, family name, from Sāturnia, type genus, from Latin, daughter of Saturn, from feminine of Sāturnius, Saturnian, from Sāturnus, Saturn. See SATURN.]

sat·ur·nine (săt'ər-nīn') adj. 1. Having the temperament of one born under the supposed astrological influence of Saturn. 2. a. Melancholy or sullen. b. Having or marked by a tendency to be bitter or sardonic: a saturnine expression on his face. See Synonyms at glum. 3. Produced by absorption of lead. —sat'ur-nine'ly adv.

sat·urn·ism (săt'ər-nīz'əm) n. See lead poisoning. [From SATURN, lead (obsolete), with which alchemists associated the planet Saturn.]

Sa·tya·gra·ha (sə-tyä'grə-hə, sūt'yə-grü'hə) n. The policy of nonviolent resistance initiated in India by Mahatma Gandhi as a means of pressing for political reform. [Sanskrit satyāgrahaḥ : satyam, truth (from sat-, sant-, existing, true); see es- in Appendix + āgrahaḥ, determination, insistence (ā-, to + grahaḥ, act of seizing from grhñāti, he seizes); see ghrebh-¹ in Appendix.]

sa·tyr (sā'tər, săt'ər) n. 1. Often Satyr. Greek Mythology. A woodland creature depicted as having the pointed ears, legs, and short horns of a goat and a fondness for unrestrained revelry. 2. A licentious man; a lecher. 3. A man who is affected by satyriasis. 4. Any of various butterflies of the family Satyridae, having brown wings marked with eyelike spots. [Middle English satire, from Old French, from Latin satyrus, from Greek saturos.] — sa·tyr'ic (sā-tīr'ik, sə-), sa·tyr'i·cal (-ikəl) adj.

sa·ty·ri·a·sis (sā'tə-rī'ə-sis, săt'ə-) n. Excessive, often uncontrollable sexual desire in a man. [Late Latin, from Greek saturiasis, from saturos, satyr.]

sa·tyr·id (sā'tər-īd, săt'ər-, sə-tī'rīd) n. A butterfly of the family Satyridae, including the satyrs and wood nymphs. — adj. Of or belonging to the Satyridae. [From New Latin Satyridae, family name, from Satyrus, type genus, from Latin satyrus, satyr. See SATYR.]

sauce (sôs) n. 1. A flavorful seasoning or relish served as an accompaniment to food, especially a liquid dressing or topping for food. 2. Stewed fruit, usually served with other foods. 3. Something that adds zest, flavor, or piquancy.

4. Informal. Impudent speech or behavior; impertinence or sauciness. 5. Slang. Alcoholic liquor. — v. tr. sauced, sauc·ing, sauc·es. 1. To season or flavor with sauce. 2. To add piquancy or zest to. 3. Informal. To be impertinent or impudent to. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin salsa*, from Latin, feminine of salsus past participle of sallere, to salt. See sal- in Appendix.]

sauce·boat (sôs'böt') n. A low, boat-shaped pitcher typically having a wide lip at one end and a handle at the other and used for serving sauces and gravies.

sauce·box (sôs'böks') n. Informal. An impertinent person.

sauce·pan (sôs'pän') n. A deep cooking pan with a handle.

sauce·pot (sôs'pöt') n. A cooking pot having a close-fitting lid and a handle on either side.

sau·cer (sô'sər) n. 1. A small shallow dish having a slight circular depression in the center for holding a cup. 2. An object similar in shape to a saucer. [Middle English, sauce dish, from Old French saussier, from sauce, sauce. See SAUCE.]

sauce suprême (sôs sō-prēm') n. See suprême (n., sense 1). [French : sauce, sauce + suprême, suprême.]

sauc·y (sô'sē) adj. sauc·i·er, sauc·i·est. 1. a. Impertinent or disrespectful.

b. Impertinent in an entertaining way; impossible to repress or control.

2. Piquant; pert: a saucy red bow tie. —sau'ci·ly adv. —sau'ci·ness n.

Sa·ud (sä-ōōd'), Abdul Aziz ibn. 1901?-1969. Saudi Arabian king (1953-1964) who was unable to deal with his country's economic problems and was replaced by his brother Faisal in 1964.

Sa·u·di A·ra·bi·a (sou'dē ə-rā'bē-ə, sô'dē, sä-ōō'dē) A country occupying most of the Arabian Peninsula. Political agitation in the region began in the late 18th century and resulted in a dual kingdom formed in 1926 and a unified independent kingdom proclaimed in 1932. Oil was discovered in 1936 and production begun in 1938. Riyadh is the capital and the largest city. Population, 9,320,000.

—Sa·u'di, Sa·u'di A·ra'bi·an adj. & n.

sau·er·bra·ten (sour'brät'n) n. A pot roast of beef marinated in vinegar, water, wine, and spices before being cooked. [German : sauer, sour (from Middle High German sūr, from Old High German) + Braten, roast meat (from Middle High German brāte, edible meat, from Old High German brāto); see bhreu- in Appendix.]

sau·er·kraut (sour'krout') n. Chopped or shredded cabbage salted and fermented in its own juice. [German : sauer, sour; see SAUERBRATEN + Kraut, cabbage (from Middle High German krūt, from Old High German).]

sau·ger (sô'gær) n. A small North American freshwater fish (Stizostidion canadense) having a spotted, spiny dorsal fin. [Origin unknown.]

Sau·gus (sô'gäs) A town of northeast Massachusetts, a residential and manufacturing suburb of Boston. Population 25,549.

Sauk (sôk) also Sac (säk, sôk) n. pl. Sauk or Sauks also Sac or Sacs. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting parts of Wisconsin, Illinois, and Iowa, with a present-day population mainly in Oklahoma. Sauk resistance to removal from their Illinois lands ended in 1832 with the Black Hawk War. b. A member of this people. 2. The Algonquian language of the Sauk, dialectally related to Fox. [North American French saki, from Sauk asaakiiha.]

Sauk Cen·tre (sôk sën'tər) A city of central Minnesota west-northwest of Minneapolis. Sinclair Lewis was born here and used the community as the setting for a number of novels, including Main Street (1920). Population, 3,709.

Saul (sôl), fl. 11th century B.C. The first king of Israel. He defended Israel against numerous enemies, especially the Philistines, and was succeeded by David.

sault (sōō) n. A waterfall or rapids. [Obsolete French, from Old French, leap, waterfall. See SOMERSAULT.]

Sault Sainte Ma·rie (sōō' sânt' mə-rē') A city of southern Ontario, Canada, at the falls of the St. Marys River opposite Upper Michigan. It is an industrial center in a resort area. Population, 82,698.

Sault Sainte Marie Canals (sōō sānt mə-rē' kə-nālz') Popularly called Soo Canals (sōō). Three ship canals bypassing the rapids on the St. Marys River between Lakes Superior and Huron. The Canadian canal, opened in 1895, follows the route of the canal built around the rapids by a fur company in 1797-1798. The first American canal was completed in 1855 and was enlarged and split into two canals, opened in 1896 and 1919. Though often icebound in winter, the canals are vital links in the Great Lakes waterway system.

sau-na (sô'nə, sou' -) n. 1. a. A Finnish steam bath in which the steam is produced by pouring water over heated rocks. b. A bathhouse or room for taking such a steam bath. 2. a. A dry heat bath. b. A room or an enclosure for taking a dry heat bath. [Finnish.]

saun-ter (sôn'tər) v. intr. saun-tered, saun-ter-ing, saun-ters. To walk at a leisurely pace; stroll. — n. 1. A leisurely pace. 2. A leisurely walk or stroll. [Probably from Middle English santrēn, to muse.] —saun'ter-er n.

sau-rel (sô'r'əl, sô-rēl') n. 1. A marine fish of the genus Trachurus, characterized by bony lateral lines, especially T. trachurus of eastern Atlantic waters. Also called horse mackerel 2. See jack mackerel. [French, from Late Latin saurus, horse mackerel, from Greek sauros.]

sau-ri-an (sô'r'ē-ən) n. Any of various reptiles of the suborder Sauria, which includes the lizards and in former classifications also the crocodiles and dinosaurs. — adj. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the Sauria. [From New Latin Sauria, suborder name, from saurus, lizard, from Greek sauros.]

saur-is-chi-an (sô-rīs'kē-ən) n. A dinosaur of the order Saurischia, having a pelvic girdle similar to that of modern reptiles. — adj. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the order Saurischia. [From New Latin Saurischia, order name : saurus, lizard; see SAURIAN + Latin ischium, hip joint (possibly of Greek origin).]

sau-ro-pod (sô'r'ə-pōd') n. Any of various large semiaquatic dinosaurs of the suborder Sauropoda, of the Jurassic and Cretaceous periods. — adj. Of, belonging to, or characteristic of the suborder Sauropoda. [From New Latin Sauropoda, suborder name : saurus, lizard; see SAURIAN + -poda, -pod.]

—sau-rop'o-dous (sô-rōp'ə-dəs) adj.

sau-ry (sô'r'ē) n. pl. sau-ries. Any of several offshore marine fishes of the family Scomberesocidae, related to the needlefishes. [From New Latin saurus, lizard, from Greek sauros.]

sau-sage (sô'sij) n. Finely chopped and seasoned meat, especially pork, usually stuffed into a prepared animal intestine or other casing and cooked or cured. [Middle English sausige, from Anglo-Norman sausiche, from Vulgar Latin salsīcia*, from Late Latin, neuter pl. of salsīcius, prepared by salting, from salsus, salted. See SAUCE.]

sausage tree (sô'sij trē) n. A tropical African tree (Kigelia pinnata) having pinnately compound whorled leaves, large scarlet bell-shaped flowers borne on loose drooping clusters, and long gourdlike fruit suspended on stalks more than a meter long.

Sau-sa-li-to (sô'sə-lē'tō) A city of western California on San Francisco Bay at the northern terminus of the Golden Gate Bridge. It is a residential community, an artists' colony, and a popular boating resort. Population, 7,152.

Saus-sure (sō-sōor', -sür'), Ferdinand de. 1857-1913. Swiss linguist. The founder of structural linguistics, he declared that there is only an arbitrary relationship between a linguistic sign and that which it signifies. The posthumously published collection of his lectures, Course in General Linguistics (1916), is a seminal work of modern linguistics.

sau-té (sō-tā', sô-) v. tr. sau-téed, sau-té-ing, sau-tés. To fry lightly in fat in a shallow, open pan. — n. A dish of food so prepared. [French sautéed, from past participle of sauter, to leap, from Old French, from Latin saltāre. See SALTA-TION.]

WORD HISTORY: The term sauté is connected with lightness in several ways. One goes lighter on the use of fat when one sautés food. Also, sautéing food is one example of the lightened workload and expanded opportunities for the average cook after ranges with adjustable heat levels were invented (around the turn of the 19th century) and brought into wide use. Before the advent of the range, the ordinary cook could not sauté food; only a specialized member of a large staff had the time to do this kind of cooking. Perhaps this is why the term is first recorded in French (1812) and then, passing across the Channel, in English (1813). The last association with lightness is etymological. The French word comes from the past participle of sauter, “to jump,” the reference being to the occasional tossing of food being sautéed.

Sau-ternes or sau-ternes (sō-tûrn', sô-) n. pl. Sauternes or sauternes.

1. A delicate, sweet white wine from the Bordeaux region of France. 2. Often sau-terne (-tûrn'). pl. sauternes. A sweet to moderately dry white wine from California. [French, after Sauternes, a village of southwest France.]

Sa-va (să'və, -və) A river, about 933 km (580 mi) long, rising in two headstreams in the Julian Alps and flowing generally eastward to the Danube River at Belgrade.

sav-age (săv'ij) adj. 1. Not domesticated or cultivated; wild: savage beasts of the jungle. 2. Not civilized; barbaric: a savage people. 3. Ferocious; fierce: in a savage temper. 4. Vicious or merciless; brutal: a savage attack on a political rival. See Synonyms at cruel. 5. Lacking polish or manners; rude. — n. 1. A person regarded as primitive or uncivilized. 2. A person regarded as brutal, fierce, or vicious. 3. A rude person; a boor. — v. tr. sav-aged, sav-ag-ing, sav-ag-es. 1. To assault ferociously. 2. To attack without restraint or pity: The critics sav-aged the new play. [Middle English sauvage, from Old French, from Late Latin salvāticus, from Latin silvāticus, of the woods, wild, from silva, forest.]

—sav'age-ly adv. —sav'age-ness n.

Sav-age (sāv'ij), Michael Joseph. 1872-1940. Australian-born New Zealand labor leader and politician who served as prime minister from 1935 to 1940.

Sav-age (sāv'ij), Richard. 1697?-1743. British poet who is best known as the subject of Samuel Johnson's short biography Account of the Life of Mr. Richard Savage (1744).

sav-age-ry (sāv'ij-rē) n. pl. sav-age-ries. 1. The quality or condition of being savage. 2. An act of violent cruelty. 3. Savage behavior or nature; barbarity.

Sa-vai-i or Sa-vai'i (sā-vī'ē) An island of Western Samoa in the southwest Pacific Ocean. It is the largest and most westerly of the Samoa Islands.

sa-van-na also sa-van-nah (sə-văn'ə) n. A flat grassland of tropical or subtropical regions. [Obsolete Spanish çavana, from Taino zabana.]

Sa-van-nah (sə-văn'ə) A city of southeast Georgia near the mouth of the Savannah River. Founded by James Oglethorpe in 1733, it is the oldest city in Georgia and has been a major port since the early 19th century. Population, 137,560.

Savannah River (sə-văn'ə rīv'ər) A river, about 505 km (314 mi) long, rising in northwest South Carolina and flowing southeast along the South Carolina-Georgia border to the Atlantic Ocean.

sa-vant (sā-vānt') n. 1. A learned person; a scholar. 2. An idiot savant.

[French, learned, savant, from Old French, present participle of savoir, to know, from Vulgar Latin sapēre*, from Latin sapere, to be wise. See sep- in Appendix.]

sa-vate (sə-vāt', -vāt') n. Sports. A form of boxing in which kicking as well as punching is permitted. [French, from Old French, old shoe.]

save¹ (sāv) v. saved, sav-ing, saves. — v. tr. 1. a. To rescue from harm, danger, or loss. b. To set free from the consequences of sin; redeem. 2. To keep in a safe condition; safeguard. 3. To prevent the waste or loss of; conserve. 4. To set aside for future use; store. 5. To treat with care by avoiding fatigue, wear, or damage; spare: save one's eyesight. 6. To make unnecessary; obviate: Your taking the trunk to the attic has saved me an extra trip. 7. a. Sports. To prevent (a goal, score, or win by an opponent). b. Baseball. To preserve (another pitcher's win) by protecting one's team's lead during a stint of relief pitching. 8. Computer Science. To copy (a file) from a computer's main memory to a disk or other storage medium so that it can be used again. — v. intr. 1. To avoid waste or expense; economize. 2. To accumulate money: saving for a vacation. 3. To preserve a person or thing from harm or loss. — n. 1. Sports. An act that prevents an opponent from scoring. 2. Baseball. A preservation by a relief pitcher of another pitcher's win. — idiom. save (one's) breath. To refrain from a futile appeal or effort: Save your breath; you can't dissuade them. [Middle English saven, from Old French sauver, from Late Latin salvāre, from Latin salvus, safe. See sol- in Appendix.] —sav'a-ble, save'a-ble adj. —sav'er n.

SYNONYMS: save, rescue, reclaim, redeem, deliver. These verbs are compared in the sense of freeing a person or thing from danger, evil, confinement, or servitude. Save, the most general, applies to an act of keeping safe or preserving from danger, harm, or the consequences of evil: The smallpox vaccine has saved many lives. A police officer saved the tourist from being cheated. Rescue usually implies saving from immediate harm or danger by direct action: rescue a rare manuscript from a fire; rescued sailors from a torpedoed ship. Reclaim, applied to people, means to bring back, as from error to virtue or to right or proper conduct; it can also mean to return a thing to usefulness or productivity: “To reclaim me from this course of life was the sole cause of his journey to London” (Henry Fielding). “The foundations of the capital were gradually reclaimed from the watery element” (William Hickling Prescott). To redeem is to free someone from captivity or the consequences of sin or error or to save something from pawn or from deterioration or destruction; the term can imply the expenditure of money or effort: The price exacted by the hijackers for redeeming the hostages was extortionate. He redeemed his ring from the pawnbroker. Deliver in this comparison applies to liberating people from something such as misery, peril, error, or evil: “consigned to a state of wretchedness from which no human efforts will deliver them” (George Washington).

save² (sāv) prep. With the exception of; except: “No man enjoys self-reproach save a masochist” (Philip Wylie). — conj. 1. Were it not; except: The house would be finished by now, save that we had difficulty contracting a roofer.

2. Unless. [Middle English, from Old French sauf, from Latin salvō, ablative sing. of salvus, safe. See sol- in Appendix.]

save-all (sāv'ôl') n. 1. Any of various devices for preventing waste, damage, or loss. 2. A receptacle for catching the waste products of a process for further use in manufacture.

sav-e-loy (säv'ə-loi') n. A highly seasoned smoked pork sausage. [Alteration of obsolete French cervelat, from Italian cervellato, ultimately from dialectal zervello, brain, from Latin cerebellum, diminutive of cerebrum, brain. See ker-1 in Appendix.]

sav-in or sav-ine (säv'in) n. 1. An evergreen Eurasian shrub (Juniperus sabina) having brownish-blue seed-bearing cones and young shoots that yield an oil formerly used medicinally. 2. Any of several related plants. [Middle English, from Old English safine, and from Old French savine both from Latin (herba) Sabīna, Sabine (plant), savin, feminine of Sabīnus.]

sav-ing (sāv'vīng) n. 1. Rescue from harm, danger, or loss. 2. Avoidance of excess expenditure; economy. 3. A reduction in expenditure or cost.

4. Something saved. 5. savings. Abbr. svgs. Money saved: a bank account for savings. 6. Law. An exception or reservation. — prep. With the exception of. — conj. Except; save.

USAGE NOTE: There is a widespread tendency to use the form savings as a singular, as reflected in compounds such as savings account and savings bond (note by contrast that one would not form compounds like investments account, using an unambiguous plural). But the phrase a savings, though increasingly common, remains unacceptable to 57 percent of the Usage Panel; a saving is the only uncontroversial form.

savings account (sā'vīngz ə-kount') n. An account that draws interest at a bank.

savings and loan association (sā'vīngz ənd lōn ə-sō'sē-ā'shən) n. Abbr. S & L A financial institution, organized cooperatively or corporately, that holds the funds of its members or clients in interest-bearing accounts and certificates of deposit, invests these funds chiefly in home mortgage loans and may also offer checking accounts and other banking services.

savings bank (sā'vīngz bāngk) n. A bank that receives and invests the savings of private depositors and pays interest on the deposits.

savings bond (sā'vīngz bönd) n. A nontransferable registered bond issued by the U.S. government in denominations of $50 to $10,000.

sav-ior (sāv'yər) n. 1. A person who rescues another from harm, danger, or loss. 2. Savior. Jesus. [Middle English saviour, from Old French sauveour, from Late Latin salvātor, from salvāre, to save. See *SAVE*¹.]

sav-iour (sāv'yər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of savior.

sa-voir-faire (säv'wār-fâr') n. The ability to say or do the right or graceful thing. See Synonyms at tact. [French : savoir, to know how + faire, to do.]

Sa-vo-na (sə-vō'nə, sä-vô'nä) A city of northwest Italy on an arm of the Ligurian Sea west-southwest of Genoa. Known since early Roman times, it was an important commercial center in the Middle Ages. Population, 75,069.

Sa-vo-na-ro-la (säv'ə-nə-rō'lə, sä'vô-nä-), Girolamo. 1452-1498. Italian reformer. A Dominican friar, he gained a vast popular following and drove the Medici family out of Florence in 1494. He was later excommunicated and executed for criticizing Pope Alexander VI.

sa-vor (sāv'vər) n. 1. The taste or smell of something. 2. A specific taste or smell. See Synonyms at taste. 3. A distinctive quality or sensation: enjoying the savor of victory. — v. sa-vored, sa-vo-ring, sa-vors. — v. intr. 1. To have a particular taste or smell: a dish that savors of curry. 2. To exhibit a specified quality or characteristic; smack: postures that savored of vanity. — v. tr. 1. To impart flavor or scent to; season: savored the bland soup with salt. 2. To taste or smell, especially with pleasure: savored each morsel of the feast. 3. To appreciate fully; enjoy or relish: I want to savor this great moment of accomplishment. [Middle English savour, from Old French, from Latin sapor, from sapere, to taste. See sep- in Appendix.] —sa'vor-er n. —sa'vor-ous adj.

sa·vor-y¹ (sā'və-rē) adj. 1. Appetizing to the taste or smell: a savory stew.

2. Piquant, pungent, or salty to the taste; not sweet. 3. Morally respectable; inoffensive: a past that was scarcely savory. — n. pl. sa·vor-ies. A dish of pungent taste, such as anchovies on toast or pickled fruit, sometimes served in Great Britain as an hors d'oeuvre or instead of a sweet dessert. [Middle English savure, from Old French savoure, past participle of savourer, to taste, from Late Latin sapōrāre, from Latin sapor. See SAVOR.] —sa'vor-i-ly adv. —sa'vor-i-ness n.

sa·vor-y² (sā'və-rē) n. pl. sa·vor-ies. 1. An annual Mediterranean aromatic herb (Satureja hortensis) of the mint family, having flowers with a pale lavender to white corolla. Also called summer savory 2. A related Mediterranean aromatic herb (Satureja montana) having flowers in a long, white or pink corolla. Also called winter savory 3. The leaves of either of these plants, used as seasoning. 4. Any of several plants of the genus Micromeria in the mint family. [Middle English saverey, alteration of Old French sarree, alteration of Latin saturēia.] sa·vour (sā'vər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of savor.

sa·vour-y (sā'və-rē) adj. & n. Chiefly British. Variant of savory¹.

Sa·voy¹ (sə-voi') A ruling house of Sardinia (1720-1861) and Italy (1861-1946).

Sa·voy² (sə-voi') A historical region and former duchy of southeast France, western Switzerland, and northwest Italy. The region changed hands many times after its conquest by Julius Caesar and became a duchy in the early 15th century. In 1720 the duke of Savoy gained the title king of Sardinia, and in 1861 the Savoyard Victor Emmanuel II ascended the throne of the newly formed kingdom of Italy. Much of the original territory was ceded to France at the same time.

—Sa·voy'ard (sə-voi'ärd', säv'oi-yärd') adj. & n.

Savoy Alps (sə-voi' älpz) A range of the western Alps in southeast France rising to 4,810.2 m (15,771 ft) at Mont Blanc, the highest elevation in Europe.

sav·vy (säv'ē) Informal. adj. sav·vi-er, sav·vi-est. Well informed and perceptive; shrewd: savvy Washington insiders. — n. Practical understanding or shrewdness: a banker known for financial savvy. — v. tr. intr. sav·vied (säv'ēd), sav·vy-ing, sav·vies (säv'ēz). To understand; comprehend. [From Spanish sabe (usted), (you) know, from saber, to know, from Old Spanish, from Vulgar Latin sapēre*, from Latin sapere, to be wise. See sep- in Appendix.]

—sav'vi-ly adv.

saw¹ (sô) n. Any of various tools, either hand-operated or power-driven, having a thin metal blade or disk with a sharp, usually toothed edge, used for cutting wood, metal, or other hard materials. — v. sawed, sawed or sawn (sôn), saw-ing, saws. — v. tr. 1. To cut or divide with a saw. 2. To produce or shape with a saw: sawed a hole in the board. 3. To make back-and-forth motions through or on: a speaker who saws the air with his arms. — v. intr. 1. To use a saw: sawing along a penciled guideline. 2. To undergo cutting with a saw: Pine wood saws easily. [Middle English sawe, from Old English sagu. See sek- in Appendix.] — saw'er n.

saw² (sô) n. A familiar saying, especially one that has become trite through repetition. See Synonyms at saying. [Middle English sawe, from Old English sagu, speech. See sek^{w-3} in Appendix.]

saw³ (sô) v. Past tense of see¹.

Sa-watch Range (sə-wöch' rānj) A range of the Rocky Mountains in central Colorado rising to 4,402.1 m (14,433 ft) at Mount Elbert.

saw-bones (sô'bōnz') n. pl. sawbones or saw-bones-es (-bōn'ziz). Slang. A physician, especially a surgeon.

saw-buck (sô'bŭk') n. 1. A sawhorse, especially one having a crossed pair of legs at each end. 2. Slang. A ten-dollar bill.

saw-dust (sô'düst') n. The small particles of wood or other material that fall from an object being sawed. — saw/dust'y adj.

sawed-off (sôd'ôf', -ôf') adj. 1. Having one end sawed off: a sawed-off shotgun. 2. Slang. Short; runty.

saw-fish (sô'fish') n. pl. sawfish or saw-fish-es. Any of various marine fishes of the genus Pristis, related to the rays and skates and having a bladelike snout with teeth along both sides.

saw-fly (sô'fli') n. Any of various hymenopterous insects, chiefly of the family Tenthredinidae, the females of which have sawlike ovipositors used for cutting into plant tissue to deposit their eggs.

saw grass (sô grās) n. A tall coastal or marshy sedge (Cladium jamaicense) of eastern North America, Mexico, and the West Indies, having leaves with sharp, minutely toothed margins.

saw-horse (sô'hôrs') n. A frame with legs, used to support pieces of wood being sawed.

saw log (sô lôg) n. A log of a size large enough to be sawed into boards.

saw-mill (sô'mil') n. 1. A plant where timber is sawed into boards. 2. A large machine for sawing lumber.

sawn (sôn) v. A past participle of saw¹.

saw palmetto (sô pāl-mět'ô) n. A small, creeping palm (Serenoa repens) of the southeast United States, having palmately divided leaves with one-ribbed segments and black, one-seeded fruit.

saw set (sô sět) n. An instrument used to give set to the teeth of a saw by bending each alternate tooth slightly outward.

saw-toothed (sô'tōōtht') adj. 1. Having teeth resembling the teeth of a saw: saw-toothed sharks. 2. Often saw-tooth (-tōōth'). Having a jagged or zigzag pattern, outline, or course; serrate: a saw-toothed mountain range; a sawtooth curve.

saw-whet owl (sô'hwët' oul, -wët') n. A small brown and white owl (Aegolius acadicus) of North America, having no ear tufts. [From the resemblance of its call to the sound made in sharpening a saw.]

saw·yer (sô'γər) n. 1. One that is employed in sawing wood. 2. Any of several long-horned beetles of the genus Monochamus having larvae that bore large holes in living or dead wood. 3. See snag (n., sense 1a). See Regional note at preacher. [Middle English sauere, sawier, from sawen, to saw, from sawe, saw. See SAW¹.]

sax (säks) n. Music. A saxophone.

Sax. abbr. Saxon.

sax·a·tile (säk'sə-tīl', -tīl) adj. Saxicolous. [Latin saxātilis, from saxum, rock. See sek- in Appendix.]

Saxe (säks), Comte Hermann Maurice de. 1696-1750. French military leader who commanded a number of successful campaigns during the War of the Austrian Succession (1740-1748).

Saxe-Co·burg (säks-kō'bûrg) A British royal house (1901-1910) whose only ruler was Edward VII.

sax·horn (säks'hôrn') n. Music. Any of a family of valved brass wind instruments that resemble the bugle and have a full, even tone and wide compass. [After Sax, name of 19th-century Belgian instrument-making family.]

sax·ic·o·lous (säk-sīk'ə-ləs) also sax·ic·o·line (-līn') adj. Growing on or living among rocks: saxicolous lichens. [Latin saxum, stone; see sek- in Appendix + -COLOUS.]

sax·i·frage (säk'sə-frīj, -frāj') n. Any of numerous herbs of the genus Saxifraga, having small, variously colored flowers and leaves that often form a basal rosette. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin (herba) saxifraga, maidenhair fern, from Latin saxifragus, rock-breaking (from its being found growing in rock crevices) : saxum, rock; see sek- in Appendix + frangere, frāct-, to break; see bhreg- in Appendix.]

sax·i·tox·in (säk'sī-tōk'sīn) n. A potent neurotoxin produced by certain dinoflagellates that accumulates in shellfish feeding on these organisms and consequently causes food poisoning in human beings who eat the shellfish. [New Latin Saxidomus gigantēus, clam species (Latin saxum, stone; see saxatile + Latin domus, house; see dome + Latin gigantēus, giant) + TOXIN.]

Sax·o Gram·mat·i·cus (säk'sō grə-mät'i-kəs), 1150?-1220?. Danish historian whose Gesta Danorum, a chronicle of legendary and historical Danish kings, contains the story of Hamlet.

Sax·on (säk'sən) n. Abbr. Sax., S. 1. A member of a West Germanic tribal group that inhabited northern Germany and invaded Britain in the fifth and sixth centuries A.D. with the Angles and Jutes. 2. A person of English or Lowland Scots birth or descent as distinguished from one of Irish, Welsh, or Highland Scots birth or descent. 3. A native or inhabitant of Saxony. 4. The West Germanic language of any of the ancient Saxon peoples. 5. The Germanic element of English as distinguished from the French and Latin elements. [Middle English, from Late Latin Saxō, Saxon-, of Germanic origin. See sek- in Appendix.]

—Sax'on adj.

Sax-on-ism (săk'sə-nīz'əm) n. An English word, phrase, or idiom of Anglo-Saxon origin.

sax-o-ny also Sax-o-ny (săk'sə-nē) n. pl. sax-o-nies. 1. A high-grade wool fabric originally made from the wool of sheep raised in Saxony. 2. A fine soft woolen fabric similar in weave to tweed. 3. A woven carpet having a cut pile of dense, erect tufts.

Saxony A historical region of northern Germany. The original home of the Saxons, it was conquered by Charlemagne in the 8th century and became a duchy after his death. Its borders were eventually extended southeastward as the region was subdivided and redivided. The dukes of Saxony became electors of the Holy Roman Empire in 1356, and in 1806 the elector was elevated to kingship but lost half his territory to Prussia in 1815. A later kingdom of Saxony was part of the German Empire (1871-1918).

sax-o-phone (săk'sə-fōn') n. Music. A woodwind instrument with a single-reed mouthpiece and a usually curved conical metal tube, including soprano, alto, tenor, and baritone sizes. [After Sax, name of 19th-century Belgian instrument-making family.] —sax'o-phon'ist n.

sax-tu-ba (săks'tōō'bə, -tyōō'-) n. Music. A large bass saxhorn. [SAX(HORN) + TUBA.]

say (sā) v. said (sēd), saying, says (sēz). — v. tr. 1. To utter aloud; pronounce: The children said, "Good morning." 2. To express in words: Say what's on your mind. 3. a. To state as one's opinion or judgment; declare: I say let's eat out. b. To state as a determination of fact: It's hard to say who is right in this matter. 4. To repeat or recite: said grace. 5. To report or maintain; allege. 6. a. To indicate; show: The clock says half past two. b. To give nonverbal expression to; signify or embody: It was an act that said "devotion." 7. To suppose; assume: Let's say that you're right. — v. intr. To make a statement; express oneself: The story must be true because the teacher said so. — n. 1. A turn or chance to speak: Having had my say, I sat down. 2. The right or power to influence or make a decision: Citizens have a say in the councils of government. All I want is some say in the matter. 3. Archaic. Something said; a statement. — adv. 1. Approximately: There were, say, 500 people present. 2. For instance: a woodwind, say an oboe. — interj. Used to express surprise or appeal for someone's attention. —idioms. I say. 1. Used preceding an utterance to call attention to it: I say, do you have the time? 2. Used as an exclamation of surprise, delight, or dismay. that is to say. In other words. to say nothing of. And there is no need to mention. Used to allude to things that fill out an idea or argument: The yard is a mess, to say nothing of the house. you can say that again. Slang. Used to express strong agreement with what has just been said. [Middle English seien, from Old English secgan. See sek^{w-3} in Appendix.] —say'er n.

Say (sā), Thomas. 1787-1834. American entomologist who wrote the three-volume pioneering study American Entomology (1824-1828).

Sa-yan Mountains (sä-yän' moun'tənz) A range of mountains in south-central Russia west of Lake Baikal. The mountains have important mineral deposits.

Say-ers (sā'ərz), Dorothy L(eigh). 1893-1957. British writer known for her detective stories, usually featuring the amateur investigator Lord Peter Wimsey.

saying (sā'ing) n. Something, such as an adage or a maxim, that is said.

SYNONYMS: saying, maxim, adage, saw, motto, epigram, proverb, aphorism. These nouns refer to concise verbal expressions setting forth wisdom or a truth. A saying is an often repeated and familiar expression: She was fond of quoting the sayings of philosophers. Maxim denotes particularly an expression of a general truth or a rule of conduct: "For a wise man, he seemed to me... to be governed too much by general maxims" (Edmund Burke). Adage applies to a saying that has gained credit through long use: On his birthday the child gave no credence to the adage, "Good things come in small packages." Saw often refers to a familiar saying that has become trite through frequent repetition: My wise saws gave little comfort to the losing team. A motto is a maxim that expresses the aims, character, or guiding principles of a person, a group, or an institution: "Exuberance over taste" was her motto. An epigram is a terse, witty expression, often paradoxical or satirical and neatly or brilliantly phrased: In his epigram Samuel Johnson called remarriage a "triumph of hope over experience." Proverb refers to an old and popular saying that illustrates something such as a basic truth or a practical precept: "Slow and steady wins the race" is a proverb to live by. Aphorism, a concise expression of a truth or principle, implies depth of content and stylistic distinction: Few writers have coined more aphorisms than Benjamin Franklin.

sa-yo-na-ra (sī'ə-när'ə) interj. Good-bye. [Japanese.]

Say-re-ville (sā'ər-vīl', sār'-) A borough of east-central New Jersey southwest of Perth Amboy. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 34,986.

say-so (sā'sō') n. pl. say--sos. Informal. 1. An unsupported statement or assurance. 2. An authoritative expression of permission or approval. 3. The right or authority to decide.

Say-ville (sā'vīl) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on south-central Long Island. Mainly residential, it is also a resort with light industries. Population, 16,550.

say-yid (sä'yīd) n. Islam. Used as a title and form of address for a male dignitary. [Arabic.]

Sb The symbol for the element antimony. [Latin stibium. See STIBNITE.]

SB abbr. Simultaneous broadcast.

sb. abbr. Substantive.

s.b. abbr. Baseball. Stolen base.

S.B. abbr. Latin. Scientiae Baccalaureus (Bachelor of Science).

SBA abbr. Small Business Administration.

SbE abbr. South by east.

'sblood (zblūd) interj. Archaic. Used as an oath. [Alteration of God's blood.]

SBN abbr. Standard Book Number.

SbW abbr. South by west.

sc also s.c. abbr. Printing. Small capital.

Sc The symbol for the element scandium.

SC abbr. 1. Security Council. 2. Or S.C. South Carolina.

sc. abbr. 1. Scale. 2. Scene. 3. Science. 4. Scilicet. 5. Scruple (unit of weight).

Sc. abbr. 1. Scots; Scottish. 2. Scotch.

S.C. abbr. Law. Supreme Court.

scab (skäb) n. 1. A crust discharged from and covering a healing wound.

2. Scabies or mange in domestic animals or livestock, especially sheep. 3. a. Any of various plant diseases caused by fungi or bacteria and resulting in crustlike spots on fruit, leaves, or roots. b. The spots caused by such a disease. 4. Slang. A person regarded as contemptible. 5. a. A worker who refuses membership in a labor union. b. An employee who works while others are on strike; a strike-breaker. c. A person hired to replace a striking worker. — v. intr. scabbed, scab-bing, scabs. 1. To become covered with scabs or a scab. 2. To work or take a job as a scab. [Middle English, from Old Norse skabb.]

scab-bard (skäb'ärd) n. A sheath, as for a dagger or sword. — v. tr.

scab-bard-ed, scab-bard-ing, scab-bards. To put into or furnish with such a sheath. [Middle English scauberc, scabbard, from Old French escauberc, possibly of Germanic origin. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

scabbard fish (skäb'ärd fīsh) n. Any of various marine fishes with a long, narrow, silvery body, especially a cutlass fish (Trichiurus lepturus) of the western Atlantic.

scab-ble (skäb'əl) v. tr. scab-bled, scab-bling, scab-bles. To work or dress (stone) roughly, preliminary to fine tooling. [Middle English scaplen, from Old North French escapler, to dress timber : es-, off (from Latin ex-); see EX- + capler, to cut (from Late Latin capulāre, cappulāre*).]

scab·by (skäb'ē) adj. scab·bi·er, scab·bi·est. 1. Having, consisting of, or covered with scabs. 2. Affected with scab or scabies. 3. Informal. Contemptible; vile: scabby greed. —scab'bi·ly adv. —scab'bi·ness n.

sca·bies (skä'bēz) n. pl. scabies. 1. A contagious skin disease caused by a parasitic mite (Sarcoptes scabiei) and characterized by intense itching. 2. A similar disease in animals, especially sheep. [Middle English, from Latin scabiēs, from scabere, to scratch.]

sca·bi·et·ic (skä'bē-ět'ik) adj. Relating to or affected with scabies.

sca·bi·o·sa (skä'bē-ō'sə, -zə, skäb'ē-) n. See scabious². [New Latin Scabiōsa, genus name, from Medieval Latin (herba) scabiōsa, (herb) for scabies, scabious, feminine of Latin scabiōsus, mangy, from scabiēs, itch. See SCABIES.]

sca·bi·ous¹ (skä'bē-əs, skäb'ē-) adj. 1. Of or relating to scabies. 2. Having scabs. [From Latin scabiōsus, mangy. See SCABIOSA.]

sca·bi·ous² (skä'bē-əs) n. Any of various plants of the genus Scabiosa, especially S. atropurpurea, having opposite leaves and variously colored flower heads that are subtended by an involucre. Also called scabiosa [Middle English scabiose, from Medieval Latin (herba) scabiōsa, (herb) for scabies, scabious. See SCABIOSA.]

scab·land (skäb'länd') n. An elevated area of barren, rocky land with little or no soil cover, often crossed by dry stream channels: the scablands of eastern Washington.

scab·rous (skäb'rəs, skä'brəs) adj. 1. Having or covered with scales or small projections and rough to the touch. See Synonyms at rough. 2. Difficult to handle; knotty: a scabrous situation. 3. Dealing with scandalous or salacious material: a scabrous novel. [Late Latin scabrōsus, from scaber, scabr-, scurfy.] —scab'rous·ly adv. —scab'rous·ness n.

scad¹ (skäd) n. pl. scad or scads. Any of several carangid fishes of the genus Decapterus, especially D. punctatus of the western Atlantic. [Origin unknown.]

scad² (skäd) n. Informal. A large number or amount. Often used in the plural: Scads of people are in the hall. [Origin unknown.]

Sca·fell Pike (skô'fěl' pīk) A mountain in the Cumbrian Mountains of northwest England. At 979.1 m (3,210 ft), it is the highest peak in the range and the highest elevation in England.

scaf·fold (skäf'əld, -öld') n. 1. A temporary platform, either supported from below or suspended from above, on which workers sit or stand when performing tasks at heights above the ground. 2. A raised wooden framework or platform. 3. A platform used in the execution of condemned prisoners, as by hanging or beheading. — v. tr. scaf·fold·ed, scaf·fold·ing, scaf·folds. 1. To provide or support with a raised framework or platform. 2. To place on a raised framework or platform. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin scaffaldus, of Old French origin.]

scaf·fold·ing (skäf'əl-dīng, skäf'ōl'-) n. 1. A scaffold or system of scaffolds.

2. Materials used for constructing scaffolds.

scag (skäg) n. Slang. Heroin. [Origin unknown.]

scagl·io·la (skäl-yō'lə, -yô'-) n. Plasterwork in imitation of ornamental marble, consisting of ground gypsum and glue colored with marble or granite dust. [Italian, diminutive of scaglia, chip, of Germanic origin. See skel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

sca·lade (skə-lād', -lād') also sca·la·do (-lā'dō, -lā'-) *n. pl. sca·lades also sca·la·dos. Archaic. An act of scaling a wall; an escalade. [Alteration of Italian scalata, from scala, ladder. See ESCALADE.]*

scal·age (skāl'lij) n. 1. An assessed percentage of the total price or measured amount of goods being shipped or stored, used to figure a deduction from the price or amount to reflect normal shrinkage or depletion of the goods. 2. The estimated amount of lumber in logs being scaled.

sca·lar (skāl'lər, -lär') n. 1. A quantity, such as mass, length, or speed, that is completely specified by its magnitude and has no direction. 2. A device that yields an output equal to the input multiplied by a constant, as in a linear amplifier. — adj. Mathematics. Having only magnitude. Used of numbers or quantities. [Latin scālāris, of a ladder, from scālae, ladder. See SCALE².]

sca·la·re (skə-lār'ē, -lär'ē) n. See angelfish (n., sense 2). [Latin scālāre, neuter of scālāris, of a ladder (so-called from its parallel markings), from scālae, ladder. See SCALE².]

sca·lar·i·form (skə-lār'ə-fōrm') adj. Biology. Resembling the rungs of a ladder; ladderlike. Used of certain vessels and tissues. [Latin scālāris, of a ladder; see SCALARE + -FORM.] — sca·lar'i·form'ly adv.

scalar product (skāl'lər prōd'əkt) n. Mathematics. The numerical product of the lengths of two vectors and the cosine of the angle between them. Also called dot product, inner product.

scal·a·wag (skäl'ə-wäg') also scal·ly·wag (skäl'ē-) n. 1. Informal. A reprobate; a rascal. 2. A white Southerner working for or supporting the federal government during Reconstruction. [Origin unknown.]

scald¹ (skōld) v. scald·ed, scald·ing, scalds. — v. tr. 1. To burn with or as if with hot liquid or steam. 2. To subject to or treat with boiling water: *scalded the hide to remove the hair; scalded and peeled the tomatoes. 3. To heat (a liquid, such as milk) almost to the boiling point. 4. To criticize harshly; excoriate. — v. intr. To become scalded. — n. 1. A body injury caused by scalding. 2. Botany. a. A superficial discoloration on fruit, vegetables, leaves, or tree trunks caused by sudden exposure to intense sunlight or the action of gases. b. A disease of some cereal grasses caused by a fungus of the genus Rhynchosporium. [Middle English scalden, from Old North French escalder, from Late Latin excaldāre, to wash in hot water : Latin ex-, ex- + Latin calidus, caldus, warm, hot; see kelə⁻¹ in Appendix.]*

scald² (skôld, skäld) n. Variant of skald.

scald³ (skôld, skäld) n. Variant of scall.

scald-ing (skôld'đing) adj. 1. Causing a burning sensation, as from contact with hot liquid. 2. Boiling: scalding water. 3. Scorching; searing: scalding sunlight. 4. Harshly critical or denunciatory; scathing: a scalding review of the play.

—scald/ing-ly adv.

scale¹ (skäl) n. 1. a. One of the many small, platelike dermal or epidermal structures that characteristically form the external covering of fishes, reptiles, and certain mammals. b. A similar part, such as one of the minute structures overlapping to form the covering on the wings of butterflies and moths. 2. Pathology. A dry, thin flake of epidermis shed from the skin. 3. A small, thin piece.

4. Botany. A small, thin, usually dry, often appressed plant structure, such as any of the protective leaves that cover a tree bud or the bract that subtends a flower in a sedge spikelet. 5. a. A scale insect. b. A plant disease or infestation caused by scale insects. 6. a. A flaky oxide film formed on a metal, as on iron, that has been heated to high temperatures. b. A flake of rust. 7. A hard mineral coating that forms on the inside surface of boilers, kettles, and other containers in which water is repeatedly heated. — v. scaled, scal-ing, scales. — v. tr. 1. To clear or strip of scale or scales: Scale and clean the fish. 2. To remove in layers or scales: scaled off the old paint. 3. To cover with scales; encrust. 4. To throw (a thin, flat object) so that it soars through the air or skips along the surface of water.

5. Dentistry. To remove (tartar) from tooth surfaces with a pointed instrument.

6. Australian. a. To cheat; swindle. b. To ride on (a tram or train, for example) without paying the fare. — v. intr. 1. To come off in scales or layers; flake.

2. To become encrusted. [Middle English, from Old French escale, of Germanic origin. See skel⁻¹ in Appendix.] —scale/like adj.

scale² (skäl) n. Abbr. sc. 1. a. A system of ordered marks at fixed intervals used as a reference standard in measurement: a ruler with scales in inches and centimeters. b. An instrument or device bearing such marks. c. A standard of measurement or judgment; a criterion. 2. a. A proportion used in determining the dimensional relationship of a representation to that which it represents: a world map with a scale of 1:4,560,000. b. A calibrated line, as on a map or an architectural plan, indicating such a proportion. c. Proper proportion: a house that seemed out of scale with its surroundings. 3. A progressive classification, as of size, amount, importance, or rank: judging divers' performances on a scale of 1 to 10; a family that ranks high on the social scale. 4. A relative level or degree: entertained on a lavish scale. 5. A minimum wage fixed by contract: musicians playing a benefit concert for scale. 6. Mathematics. A system of notation in which the values of numerical expressions are determined by their places relative to the chosen base of the system: the decimal scale. 7. Music. An ascending or descending series of tones proceeding by a specified scheme of intervals and varying in pitch arrangement and interval size. — v. scaled, scal-ing, scales. — v. tr. 1. To climb up or over; ascend: scaled the peak. 2. To make in accord with a particular proportion or scale: Scale the model to be one tenth of actual size. 3. To alter according to a standard or by degrees; adjust in calculated amounts: scaled down their demands to fit reality; scaled back the scheduled pay increase. 4. To estimate or measure the quantity of lumber in (logs or uncut trees). — v. intr. 1. To climb; ascend. 2. To rise in steps or stages. [Middle English, from Latin scālae, ladder. See skand- in Appendix.] — scal/a-ble adj.

scale³ (skāl) n. 1. An instrument or a machine for weighing. Often used in the plural. 2. Either of the pans, trays, or dishes of a balance. — v. scaled, scal-ing, scales. — v. tr. To weigh with scales. — v. intr. To have a given weight, as determined by a scale: cargo that scales 14 metric tons. [Middle English, bowl, balance, from Old Norse skāl. See skel-¹ in Appendix.]

scale insect (skāl ɪn' sēkt') n. Any of various small homopterous insects of the superfamily Coccoidea that suck the juices of plants and the females of which secrete and remain under waxy scales on plant tissue.

scale moss (skāl mōs) n. Any of various leafy liverworts of the order Jungermanniales.

sca-lene (skā'lēn', skā-lēn') adj. Mathematics. Having three unequal sides. Used of triangles. [Late Latin scalēnus, from Greek skalēnos, from skallein, to hoe, stir up. See skel-¹ in Appendix.]

scalene muscle (skā'lēn' mŭs' əl) n. Any of three muscles on each side of the neck that serve to bend and rotate the neck and that assist breathing by raising or fixing the first two ribs. Also called scalenus sca-le-nus (skā-lē'nəs) n. pl. sca-le-ni (-nī, -nē). See scalene muscle. [Late Latin scalēnus, scalene. See SCALENE.]

scal-er (skā'lər) n. An electronic circuit that records the aggregate of a specific number of signals that occur too rapidly to be recorded individually. [From SCALE².]

Scales (skālz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). See Libra.

Sca-li-a (skə-lē'ə), Antonin. Born 1936. American jurist who was appointed an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1986.

Scal-i-ger (skāl'ə-jər), Julius Caesar. 1484-1558. Italian physician and scholar noted for his scientific and philosophical writings. His son Joseph Justus Scaliger (1540-1609), a French scholar, pioneered the modern study of classical texts.

scall (skōl, skāl) also scald (skōld, skäld) n. A scaly eruption of the skin or scalp. [Middle English, from Old Norse skalli, a bald head. See skel-¹ in Appendix.]

scal-lion (skāl'yən) n. 1. A young onion before the development of the bulb.

2. Any of several onionlike plants, such as the leek or shallot. [Middle English scaloun, from Anglo-Norman scalun, from Vulgar Latin escalōnia*, alteration of scal·lop (sköl'əp, skäl'-) also scol·lop (sköl'-) or es·cal·lop (ĭ-sköl'-, ĭ-skäl'-) n. 1. a. Any of various free-swimming marine mollusks of the family Pectinidae, having fan-shaped bivalve shells with a radiating fluted pattern. b. The edible adductor muscle of this mollusk. c. A shell of this mollusk, or a dish in a similar shape, used for baking and serving seafood. 2. One of a series of curved projections forming an ornamental border. 3. A thin, boneless slice of meat. — v. scal·loped, scal·lop·ing, scal·lops. — v. tr. 1. To edge (cloth, for example) with a series of curved projections. 2. To bake in a casserole with milk or a sauce and often with bread crumbs: scalloped potatoes. 3. To cut (meat) into thin, boneless slices. — v. intr. To gather scallops for eating or sale. [Middle English scalop, from Old French escalope, shell, of Germanic origin.] — scal'lop·er n.

Latin (caepa) Ascalōnia, Ascalonian (onion), shallot, feminine of Ascalōnius, Ascalonian, from Ascalō Ascalōn-, Ascalon (Ashqelon), an ancient city of southwest Palestine.]

scal·ly·wag (skäl'ē-wäg') n. Variant of scalawag.

scal·o·gram (skā'lə-grām') n. Psychology. A scale for measuring attitude or opinion in which agreement with a given item implies agreement with the items lower in rank.

sca·lop·pi·ne also sca·lop·pi·ni (skäl'ə-pē'nē, skä'lə-) n. Small, thinly sliced pieces of meat, especially veal, dredged in flour, sautéed, and served in a sauce. [Italian, pl. of scaloppina diminutive of scaloppa, thin slice, from French escalope, from Old French, shell (from the filets being served curled like shells). See SCAL·LOP.]

scalp (skälp) n. 1. The skin covering the top of the human head. 2. A portion of this skin with its attached hair, cut from a body by certain Native American warriors as a battle trophy or by American settlers as proof in claiming a bounty. 3. A piece of hide from the skull of certain animals, such as the fox, shown as proof of killing in order to collect a bounty. 4. A trophy of victory. 5. Slang. A quick profit made by buying and reselling something, especially tickets. — v. scalped, scalp·ing, scalps. — v. tr. 1. To cut or tear the scalp from. 2. To deprive of top growth or a top layer: land scalped by strip miners. 3. Slang. To resell at a price higher than the established value: scalping tickets to a popular sports event. 4. Slang. To buy and sell (securities or commodities) in order to make small, quick profits. — v. intr. Slang. 1. To engage in the reselling of something, such as tickets, at a price higher than the established value. 2. To buy and sell securities or commodities for small, quick profits. [Middle English, top of the head, of Scandinavian origin. See skel⁻¹ in Appendix.] — scalp'er n.

scal·pel (skäl'pəl) n. A small, straight knife with a thin, sharp blade used in surgery and dissection. [Latin scalpellum, diminutive of scalper, scalprum, knife, from scalpere, to scratch, cut. See skel⁻¹ in Appendix.]

scalp lock (skälp lök) n. A long lock of hair left on the top of the shaven head by certain Native American men.

scal·y (skā'lē) adj. scal·i·er, scal·i·est. 1. Covered or partially covered with scales. 2. Shedding scales or flakes; flaking. —scal/i·ness n.

scaly anteater (skā'lē änt'ē'tər) n. See pangolin.

scam (skäm) Slang. n. A fraudulent business scheme; a swindle. — v. tr.

scammed, scam·ming, scams. To defraud; swindle. [Origin unknown.]

—scam/mer n.

scam·mo·ny (skäm'ə-nē) *n. pl. scam·mo·nies. 1. An eastern Mediterranean plant (Convolvulus scammonia) having large roots that yield a resin formerly used as a cathartic. 2. The resin obtained from this plant. 3. A cathartic preparation made from this resin. [Middle English scamonie, from Old English scammōniam, and from Old French scamonie both from Latin scammōnea, from Greek skam-mōnia.]*

scamp¹ (skämp) n. 1. A rogue; a rascal. 2. A mischievous youngster. [Probably from scamp, to go about idly, probably from obsolete Dutch schampen, to decamp, from Middle Dutch ontscampen. See SCAMPER.]

scamp² (skämp) v. tr. scamped, scam·ping, scamps. To perform in a careless, superficial way. [Possibly of Scandinavian origin.] —scamp'er n.

scam·per (skäm'pər) v. intr. scam·pered, scam·per·ing, scam·pers. To run or go quickly and lightly: children scampering off to play. — n. A quick light run or movement. [Probably from Flemish schampeeren, frequentative of obsolete Dutch schampen, to run away, decamp, from Middle Dutch ontscampen, from Old French escamper, from Old Italian scampare, from Vulgar Latin excampāre*, from Latin ex campō, out of the field : ex-, away; see EX- + campō, ablative of campus, field.]

scam·pi (skäm'pē, skäm'-) n. pl. scam·pi. Large shrimp broiled or sautéed and served in a garlic and butter sauce. [Italian, pl. of scampo, a kind of lobster, from Greek kampē, bending (from its shape), perhaps from Greek kamptein, to bend.]

scan (skän) v. scanned, scan·ning, scans. — v. tr. 1. To examine closely.

2. To look over quickly and systematically: scanning the horizon for signs of land.

3. To look over or leaf through hastily: scanned the morning papers while eating breakfast.

4. To analyze (verse) into metrical patterns. 5. Electronics. a. To move a finely focused beam of light or electrons in a systematic pattern over (a surface) in order to reproduce or sense and subsequently transmit an image. b. To move a radar beam in a systematic pattern over (a sector of sky) in search of a target.

6. Computer Science. To search (stored data) automatically for specific data.

7. Medicine. To examine (a body or a body part) with a CAT scanner or similar scanning apparatus. — v. intr. 1. To analyze verse into metrical patterns. 2. To conform to a metrical pattern. 3. Electronics. To undergo electronic scanning.

— n. 1. The act or an instance of scanning. 2. Scope or field of vision.

3. a. Examination of a body or bodily part by a CAT scanner or similar scanning apparatus. b. A picture or an image produced by this means. 4. A single sweep of the beam of electrons across a television screen. [Middle English scanden, scannen, to scan a verse, from Latin scandere, to climb, scan a verse. See skand- in Appendix.] —scan/'na·ble adj. —scan/'ner n.

WORD HISTORY: In the 1969 edition of The American Heritage Dictionary a dead issue was buried by our Usage Panel, 85 percent of whom thought it was acceptable to use scan in the sense “to look over quickly,” though the note stated that this was less formal usage. The usage issue was raised because scan in an earlier sense meant “to examine closely.” From a historical perspective it is easy to see how these two opposite senses of scan developed. The source of our word, Latin scandere, which meant “to climb,” came to mean “to scan a verse of poetry,” because one could beat the rhythm by lifting and putting down one’s foot. The Middle English verb scannen, derived from scandere, came into Middle English in this sense (first recorded in a text composed before 1398). In the 16th century this highly specialized sense having to do with the close analysis of verse developed other senses, such as “to criticize, examine minutely, interpret, perceive.” From these senses having to do with examination and perception, it was an easy step to the sense “to look at searchingly” (first recorded in 1798), perhaps harking back still to the careful, detailed work involved in analyzing prosody. But a thorough search can change into a quick one, as it seems to have done in the case of the verb scan.

Scand. abbr. Scandinavia; Scandinavian.

scan·dal (skän'/dl) n. 1. A publicized incident that brings about disgrace or offends the moral sensibilities of society: a drug scandal that forced the mayor’s resignation. 2. A person, thing, or circumstance that causes or ought to cause disgrace or outrage: a politician whose dishonesty is a scandal; considered the housing shortage a scandal. 3. Damage to reputation or character caused by public disclosure of immoral or grossly improper behavior; disgrace. 4. Talk that is damaging to one’s character; malicious gossip. [French scandale, from Old French, cause of sin, from Latin scandalum, trap, stumbling block, temptation, from Greek skandalon. See skand- in Appendix.]

scan·dal·ize (skän'/dl-īz') v. tr. scan·dal·ized, scan·dal·iz·ing, scan·dal·iz·es. 1. To offend the moral sensibilities of: a lurid incident that scandalized the whole town. 2. Archaic. To dishonor; disgrace. —scan/'dal·i·za'tion (-ĭ-zā'shən) n. —scan/'dal·iz'er n.

scan·dal·mon·ger (skän'/dl-mŭng'gər, -mŏng'-) n. One who spreads malicious gossip. —scan/'dal·mon'ger·ing n.

scan-dal-ous (skän'dl-əs) adj. 1. Causing scandal; shocking: scandalous behavior. 2. Containing material damaging to reputation; defamatory: a scandalous exposé. —scan'dal-ous-ly adv. —scan'dal-ous-ness n.

scandal sheet (skän'dl shēt) n. A periodical, such as a newspaper, that habitually prints gossip or scandalous stories.

scan-dent (skän'dənt) adj. Botany. Climbing: a scandent vine. [Latin scandēns, scandent- present participle of scandere, to climb. See skand- in Appendix.]

Scan-der-beg (skän'dər-bĕg') See Skanderbeg.

scan-di-a (skän'dē-ə) n. See scandium oxide. [From SCANDIUM.]

Scan-di-a (skän'dē-ə) An ancient and poetic name for Scandinavia or the Scandinavian Peninsula.

Scan-di-an (skän'dē-ən) adj. Scandinavian. — n. A Scandinavian. [From Latin Scandia, Scandinavia.]

Scan-di-na-vi-a (skän'də-nā'vĕ-ə, -nāv'yə) Abbr. Scand. A region of northern Europe consisting of Norway, Sweden, and Denmark. Finland, Iceland, and the Faeroe Islands are often included in the region.

Scan-di-na-vi-an (skän'də-nā'vĕ-ən, -nāv'yən) adj. Abbr. Scand. Of or relating to Scandinavia or to its peoples, languages, or cultures. — n. Abbr. Scand. 1. A native or inhabitant of Scandinavia. 2. See North Germanic.

Scandinavian Peninsula (skän'də-nā'vĕ-ən pə-nĭn'syə-lə) A peninsula of northern Europe comprising Norway and Sweden.

scan-di-um (skän'dē-əm) n. Symbol Sc A silvery-white metallic element found in various rare minerals and separated as a byproduct in the processing of certain uranium ores. An artificially produced radioactive isotope is used as a tracer in studies of oil wells and pipelines. Atomic number 21; atomic weight 44.956; melting point 1,540°C; boiling point 2,850°C; specific gravity 2.99; valence 3. [From Latin Scandia, Scandinavia.] —scan'dic (-dĭk) adj.

scandium oxide (skän'dē-əm ɔk'sĭd') n. A white amorphous powder, Sc_2O_3 , used as a source of scandium and in the manufacture of ceramics. Also called scandia scan-ning electron microscope (skän'ɪŋ ĭ-lĕk'trɔn' mĭ'krə-skōp') n. Abbr. SEM An electron microscope that forms a three-dimensional image on a cathode-ray tube by moving a beam of focused electrons across an object and reading both the electrons scattered by the object and the secondary electrons produced by it.

scan-sion (skän'shən) n. Analysis of verse into metrical patterns. [Late Latin scānsiō, scānsiōn-, from Latin, act of climbing, from scānsus, past participle of scandere, to climb. See skand- in Appendix.]

scan-so-ri-al (skän-sōr'ē-əl, -sōr'-) adj. Zoology. Adapted to or specialized for climbing. [From Latin scānsōrius, from scānsus, past participle of scandere, to climb. See skand- in Appendix.]

scant (skǎnt) adj. scant-er, scant-est. 1. Barely sufficient: paid scant attention to the lecture. 2. Falling short of a specific measure: a scant cup of sugar. See Synonyms at meager. 3. Inadequately supplied; short: We were scant of breath after the lengthy climb. — v. tr. scant-ed, scant-ing, scants. 1. To give an inadequate portion or allowance to: had to scant the older children in order to nourish the newborn. 2. To limit, as in amount or share; stint: Our leisure time is scanted by this demanding job. 3. To deal with or treat inadequately or neglectfully; slight. [Middle English, from Old Norse skamt, neuter of skammr, short.] —scant'ly adv. —scant'ness n.

scant-ling (skǎnt/'lɪŋ, -lɪn) n. 1. A very small amount; a modicum. 2. A small timber used in construction. 3. The dimensions of a building material, especially the width and thickness of a timber. 4. Often scantlings. Nautical. The dimensions of the structural parts of a vessel. [Alteration of Middle English scantlon, scantilon, carpenter's gauge, from Old French escantillon, alteration of eschandillon*, from Late Latin scandiculum*, alteration of scandāculum, ladder, gauge, from Latin scandere, to climb. See SCAN.] scant-y (skǎn/'tē) adj. scant-i-er, scant-i-est. 1. Barely sufficient or adequate. 2. Insufficient, as in extent or degree. See Synonyms at meager. —scant'i-ly adv. —scant'i-ness n.

Scap-a Flow (skǎp/'ə flō) A sheltered area of water in the Orkney Islands off northern Scotland. It was the site of the chief British naval base in both World Wars. The German fleet was scuttled here in June 1919 at the end of World War I.

scape¹ (skāp) n. 1. Botany. A leafless flower stalk growing directly from the ground, as in the tulip. 2. Biology. A stalklike part, such as a feather shaft or a segment of an insect's antenna. 3. Architecture. The shaft of a column. [Latin scāpus, stalk, perhaps from Greek skapos.]

scape² (skāp) v. & n. Archaic. Variant of escape.

scape³ (skāp) n. A scene; a view. Often used in combination: seascape; mind-scape. [From LANDSCAPE.]

scape-goat (skāp/'gōt') n. 1. One that is made to bear the blame of others. 2. Bible. A live goat over whose head Aaron confessed all the sins of the children of Israel on the Day of Atonement. The goat, symbolically bearing their sins, was then sent into the wilderness. — v. tr. scape-goat-ed, scape-goat-ing, scape-goats. To make a scapegoat of. [scape (variant of ESCAPE) + GOAT (translation of Hebrew 'āzā'zēl, goat for Azazel, demon of the desert, misread as 'ēz 'ôzēl, goat that escapes).]

scape-grace (skāp/'grās') n. A scoundrel; a rascal. [scape (variant of ESCAPE) + GRACE.]

scaph-o-ce-phal-ic (skǎf'ō-sə-fāl'ik) adj. Having an abnormally long, narrow skull. [Greek skaphē, boat + -CEPHALIC.] —scaph'o-ceph'a-ly (-ə-sěf'ə-lē) n.

scaph-oid (skäf'oid') adj. Shaped like a boat. — n. Anatomy. See navicular.

[New Latin scaphoïdēs, from Greek skaphoeidēs, like a bowl : skaphē, tub, boat + -oidēs, -oid.]

scaph-o-pod (skäf'ə-pöd') n. See tooth shell. [From New Latin Scaphopoda, class name : Greek skaphē, boat + New Latin -poda, -pod.]

scap-o-lite (skäp'ə-līt') n. Any of a series of variously colored, often fluorescent mineral silicates of aluminum, calcium, and sodium. Also called wernerite [Latin scāpus, stalk; see SCAPE¹ + -LITE, stone (from the prismatic shape of its crystals).]

sca-pose (skā'pōs') adj. Resembling or consisting of a scape: a scapose column; scapose flowers; the scapose portion of a feather.

scap-u-la (skäp'yə-lə) n. pl. scap-u-las or scap-u-lae (-lē'). Either of two large, flat, triangular bones forming the back part of the shoulder. Also called shoulder blade [Late Latin, shoulder, from Latin scapulae, the shoulder blades.]

scap-u-lar (skäp'yə-lər) n. 1. A monk's sleeveless outer garment that hangs from the shoulders and sometimes has a cowl. 2. A badge worn by affiliates of certain religious orders, consisting of two pieces of cloth joined by shoulder bands and worn under the clothing on the chest and back. 3. One of the feathers covering the shoulder of a bird. — adj. also scap-u-lar-y (-lēr'ē) Anatomy. Of or relating to the shoulder or scapula. [Middle English scapulare, from Late Latin scapulāre, from neuter of scapulāris, pertaining to the shoulders or scapula, from scapula, shoulder. See SCAPULA.]

scap-u-lo-cla-vic-u-lar (skäp'yə-lō-klə-vīk'yə-lər) adj. Of, relating to, or affecting both the scapula and the clavicle.

scar¹ (skär) n. 1. A mark left on the skin after a surface injury or wound has healed. 2. A lingering sign of damage or injury, either mental or physical: nightmares, anxiety, and other enduring scars of wartime experiences. 3. Botany. A mark indicating a former attachment, as of a leaf to a stem. 4. A mark, such as a dent, resulting from use or contact. — v. scarred, scar-ring, scars. — v. tr. 1. To mark with a scar. 2. To leave lasting signs of damage on: a wretched childhood that scarred his psyche. — v. intr. 1. To form a scar: The pustule healed and scarred. 2. To become scarred: delicate skin that scars easily. [Middle English, alteration of escare, from Old French, scab, from Late Latin eschara, from Greek eskhara, hearth, scab caused by burning.]

scar² (skär) n. 1. A protruding, isolated rock. 2. A bare, rocky place on a mountainside or other steep slope. [Middle English skerre, from Old Norse sker, low reef. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

scar-ab (skär'əb) n. 1. A scarabaeid beetle, especially Scarabaeus sacer, regarded as sacred by the ancient Egyptians. 2. A representation of this beetle, such as a ceramic or stone sculpture or a cut gem, used in ancient Egypt as a talisman and a symbol of the soul. In this sense, also called scarabaeus [French scarabée, from Latin scarabaeus, from Greek karabos, crab, beetle.]

scar·a·bae·i (skär'ə-bē'ī') n. A plural of scarabaeus.

scar·a·bae·id (skär'ə-bē'īd) n. Any of the numerous stout-bodied, lamellicorn beetles of the family Scarabaeidae, which includes the June beetle and dung beetles. — adj. Of or belonging to the family Scarabaeidae. [From New Latin Scarabaeidae, family name, from Scarabaeus, type genus, from Latin scarabaeus, beetle. See SCARAB.]

scar·a·bae·us (skär'ə-bē'əs) n. pl. scar·a·bae·us·es or scar·a·bae·i (-bē'ī'). See scarab (n., sense 2). [Latin. See SCARAB.]

scar·a·boid (skär'ə-boid') adj. Resembling or characteristic of a scarabaeid beetle.

Scar·a·mouch also Scar·a·mouche (skär'ə-mōōsh', -mōōch', -mouch') n. A stock character in commedia dell'arte and pantomime, depicted as a boastful coward or buffoon. [French Scaramouche, from Italian Scaramuccia, from scaramuccia, skirmish, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

Scar·bor·ough (skär'bûr'ō, -bûr'ō, -bər-ə) A municipal borough of north-east England on the North Sea north of Hull. Site of a Bronze Age village and a fourth-century A.D. Roman signaling tower, it is a noted seaside resort. Population, 43,300.

scarce (skârs) adj. scarc·er, scarc·est. 1. Insufficient to meet a demand or requirement; short in supply: Fresh vegetables were scarce during the drought.

2. Hard to find; absent or rare: Steel pennies are scarce now except in coin shops.

— adv. Barely or hardly; scarcely. — idiom. make (oneself) scarce. Informal.

1. To stay away; be absent or elusive. 2. To depart, especially quickly or furtively; abscond. [Middle English scars, from Old French scars, from Vulgar Latin excarpsus*, narrow, cramped, from past participle of excarpere*, to pluck out, alteration of Latin excerpere, to pick out. See EXCERPT.] — scarce/ness n.

WORD HISTORY: The phrase scarce excerpt, if it ever should occur to one, is an excellent example of how two intimately related words can diverge from one another in form while passing from one language to another over the centuries. Both words can be traced back to the Latin word excerpo (past participle stem excerpt-), meaning “to pick out,” “to pick out mentally,” and “to select a passage for quotation.” This is clearly the ultimate source of our noun excerpt (first recorded before 1638) and verb (first recorded around 1536), a past participle usage already being recorded in the 15th century. A more tangled path leads to our word scarce. It is assumed that side by side with Latin excerpere existed the Vulgar Latin form ·excarpere. ·Excarpsus, an adjective formed with the past participle of ·excarpere in Vulgar Latin, meant “narrow, cramped,” and from this Vulgar Latin form came the Old French word échars, “insufficient, cramped,” and “stingy.” The Old French word, which existed in a variety of forms in Old French, including scars and the chiefly Old North French form escarse, was borrowed into Middle English as scarse, being first recorded in a manuscript written around 1300.

scarcely (skârs'lē) adv. 1. By a small margin; barely: We scarcely made it in time. 2. Almost not; hardly: We scarcely ever used the reserve generator. 3. Certainly not: They could scarcely complain after such good treatment.

USAGE NOTE: Scarcely has the force of a negative and is therefore regarded as incorrectly used with another negative, as in I couldn't scarcely believe it. • A clause following scarcely is correctly introduced by when or before; the use of than, though common, is still unacceptable to some grammarians: The meeting had scarcely begun when (or before but not than) it was interrupted. See Usage Note at double negative. See Usage Note at hardly.

scar-ci-ty (skâr'sī-tē) n. pl. scar-ci-ties. 1. Insufficiency of amount or supply; shortage: "Having looked to Government for bread, on the first scarcity they will turn and bite the hand that fed them" (Edmund Burke). 2. Rarity of appearance or occurrence: antiques that are valued for their scarcity.

scare (skâr) v. scared, scar-ing, scares. — v. tr. To strike with sudden fear; alarm. See Synonyms at frighten. — v. intr. To become frightened: a child who scares easily. — n. 1. A condition or sensation of sudden fear. 2. A general state of alarm; a panic: a bomb scare that necessitated evacuating the building. — adj. Serving or intended to frighten people: scare stories; scare tactics. — phrasal verb. scare up. Informal. To gather or prepare with considerable effort or ingenuity: managed to scare up some folding chairs for the unexpected crowd. [Middle English skerren, scaren, from Old Norse skirra, from skjarr, timid.] — scar'er n.

scare-crow (skâr'krō') n. 1. A crude image or effigy of a person set up in a field to scare birds away from growing crops. 2. Something frightening but not dangerous. 3. A gaunt or haggard person.

scare-mon-ger (skâr'müŋg'gər, -möŋg'-) n. One who spreads frightening rumors; an alarmist. — scare'mon'ger-ing n.

scarf¹ (skärf) n. pl. scarfs (skärf's) or scarves (skärvz). 1. A long piece of cloth worn about the head, neck, or shoulders. 2. A decorative cloth for covering the top of a piece of furniture; a runner. 3. A sash indicating military rank. — v. tr.

scarfed, scarf-ing, scarfs. 1. To dress, cover, or decorate with or as if with a scarf. 2. To wrap (an outer garment) around one like a scarf. [French dialectal escarpe, sash, sling, from Old North French, variant of Old French escherpe, pilgrim's bag hung from neck, from Frankish skirpja*, small rush, from Latin scirpus, rush.]

scarf² (skärf) n. pl. scarfs (skärfs). 1. A joint made by cutting or notching the ends of two pieces correspondingly and strapping or bolting them together. Also called scarf joint. 2. Either of the correspondingly cut or notched ends that fit together to form such a joint. — v. tr. scarfed, scarf-ing, scarfs. 1. To join by means of a scarf. 2. To cut a scarf in. [Middle English skarf, as in scarfnail, probably from Old Norse skarfr, end piece of a board cut off on the bias.]

scarf³ (skärf) v. tr. scarfed, scarf-ing, scarfs. Slang. To eat or drink voraciously; devour: “Americans scarf down 50 million hot dogs on an average summer day” (George F. Will). [Variant of SCOFF².] — scarf'er n.

scarf joint (skärf joint) n. See scarf² (n., sense 1).

scarf-skin (skärf'skīn') n. The outermost layer of skin, especially that which forms the cuticle.

scar-i-fi-ca-tor (skär'ə-fī-kä'tər) n. A surgical instrument with several spring-operated lancets, used to scarify the skin.

scar-i-fy¹ (skär'ə-fī') v. tr. scar-i-fied, scar-i-fy-ing, scar-i-fies. 1. To make shallow cuts in (the skin), as when vaccinating. 2. To break up the surface of (topsoil). 3. To distress deeply, as with severe criticism; lacerate. 4. Botany. To slit or soften the outer coat of (seeds) in order to speed germination. [Middle English scarifien, from Old French scarifier, from Late Latin scarificāre, alteration of Latin scarifāre, from Greek skariphasthai, to sketch, scratch, from skariphos, pencil, stylus. See skribh- in Appendix.] — scar'i-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kä'shən) n. — scar'i-fi'er n.

scar-i-fy² (skär'ə-fī') v. tr. scar-i-fied, scar-i-fy-ing, scar-i-fies. To scare.

scar-i-ous (skär'ē-əs) also scar-i-ose (-ōs') adj. Thin, membranous, and dry: scarious bracts; a scarious tongue. [New Latin scariōsus.]

scar-la-ti-na (skär'lə-tē'nə) n. See scarlet fever. [New Latin (febris) scarlatina, scarlet (fever), from Italian scarlattina, feminine of scarlattino, scarlet diminutive of scarlatto, from Persian saqirlāt. See SCARLET.] — scar'la-ti'nal adj.

scar-la-ti-noid (skär'lə-tē'noid') adj. Resembling scarlet fever or its rash.

Scar-lat-ti (skär-lä'tē), Alessandro. 1660-1725. Italian composer who influenced the development of modern opera. His son Domenico (1685-1757), a harpsichordist, wrote numerous works for the instrument.

scar-let (skär'līt) n. 1. Color. A strong to vivid red or reddish orange. 2. Scarlet-colored clothing or cloth. — adj. 1. Color. Of a strong to vivid red or reddish orange. 2. Flagrantly immoral or unchaste: scarlet thoughts. [Middle English, scarlet cloth, scarlet, from Old French escarlate, from Medieval Latin scarlata, scarlet cloth, from Persian sāqirlāt, rich cloth, scarlet cloth, variant of siqillāt, from Arabic, perhaps from Medieval Greek sigillatos, from Latin sigillātus, decorated with raised figures, from sigilla, little figures, pl. of sigillum, sigil. See SIGIL.] scarlet fever (skär'lit fē'vər) n. An acute contagious disease caused by a hemolytic streptococcus, occurring predominantly among children and characterized by a scarlet skin eruption and high fever. Also called scarlatina scarlet pimpernel (skär'lit pīm'pər-něl') n. The pimpernel.

scarlet runner (skär'lit rŭn'ər) n. A climbing tropical American bean plant (Phaseolus coccineus) having scarlet flowers and long pods with edible seeds.

scarlet sage (skär'lit sāj) n. A shrubby Brazilian plant (Salvia splendens) having showy scarlet flowers, red bracts, and opposite leaves.

scarlet tanager (skär'lit tän'ī-jər) n. A New World bird (Piranga olivacea) the male of which has bright scarlet plumage with a black tail and wings.

scarp (skärp) n. An escarpment. — v. tr. scarped, scarp-ing, scarps. To cut or make into an escarpment. [Italian scarpa, slope, perhaps of Germanic origin. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

Scar-ron (skä-rōN'), Paul. 1610-1660. French writer noted for his burlesque dramas and the picaresque novel Le Roman Comique (1651-1657).

Scars-dale (skärz'däl') A city of southeast New York, a residential suburb of New York City. Population, 16,987.

scar tissue (skär tish'ōō) n. Dense, fibrous connective tissue that forms over a healed wound or cut.

scarves (skärvz) n. A plural of scarf¹.

scar-y (skâr'ē) adj. scar-i-er, scar-i-est. 1. Causing fright or alarm. 2. Easily scared; very timid. —scar'i-ly adv. —scar'i-ness n.

scat¹ (skät) v. intr. scat-ted, scat-ting, scats. Informal. To go away hastily; leave at once. [Origin unknown.]

scat² (skät) Music. n. Jazz singing in which improvised, meaningless syllables are sung to a melody. — v. intr. scat-ted, scat-ting, scats. To sing scat. [Origin unknown.]

scat³ (skät) n. Excrement, especially of an animal; dung. [Perhaps from Greek skōr, skat-, excrement. See SCATO-.]

scathe (skāth) v. tr. scathed, scath-ing, scathes. 1. To harm or injure, especially by fire. 2. To criticize or denounce severely; excoriate. — n. Harm or injury. [Middle English skathen, from Old Norse skadha.]

scath-ing (skā'thīng) adj. 1. Bitterly denunciatory; harshly critical: "a scathing tract on the uselessness of war" (Pierre Brodin). 2. Harmful or painful; injurious. —scath'ing-ly adv.

scato- pref. Excrement: scatology. [Greek skato-, from skōr, skat-, dung. See sker-³ in Appendix.]

sca·tol·o·gy (skä-tōl'ə-jē, skə-) n. pl. sca·tol·o·gies. 1. The study of fecal excrement, as in medicine, paleontology, or biology. 2. a. An obsession with excrement or excretory functions. b. The psychiatric study of such an obsession. 3. Obscene language or literature, especially that dealing pruriently or humor-ously with excrement and excretory functions. —scat'o·log'i·cal (skăt'ĭ-ŏj'ĭ-kəl), scat'o·log'ic (-ĭk) adj. —scat·tol'o·gist n.

scat·ter (skăt'ər) v. scat·tered, scat·ter·ing, scat·ters. — v. tr. 1. To cause to separate and go in different directions. 2. To distribute loosely by or as if by sprinkling; strew: scattering confetti from the upper windows. 3. Physics. To deflect (radiation or particles). — v. intr. 1. To separate and go in different directions; disperse. 2. To occur or fall at widely spaced intervals. — n. 1. The act of scattering or the condition of being scattered. 2. Something scattered. [Middle English scateren.] —scat'ter·er n.

SYNONYMS: scatter, disperse, dissipate, dispel. These verbs are compared as they mean to cause a mass or an aggregate to separate and go in different directions. Scatter usually refers to widespread, often haphazard distribution of components: “the scattered driftwood, bleached and dry” (Celia Loughton Thaxter). Disperse implies the complete breaking up of the mass or aggregate: “only a few industrious Scots perhaps, who indeed are dispersed over the face of the whole earth” (George Chapman). Dissipate usually suggests a reduction to nothing: “Time dissipates to shining ether the solid angularity of facts” (Ralph Waldo Emerson). Dispel suggests driving away or off by or as if by scattering: “Truth is a torch that gleams through the fog without dispelling it” (Claude Adrien Helvétius).

scat·ter·brain (skăt'ər-brān') n. A person regarded as flighty, thoughtless, or disorganized. —scat'ter·brained' adj.

scat·ter·good (skăt'ər-gōöd') n. A spendthrift; a wastrel.

scat·ter·gun (skăt'ər-gŭn') n. See shotgun (n., sense 1).

scat·ter·ing (skăt'ər-ĭng) n. 1. Something scattered, especially a small, irregularly occurring amount or quantity: a scattering of applause. 2. Physics. The dispersal of a beam of particles or of radiation into a range of directions as a result of physical interactions. — adj. Placed irregularly and far apart; scattered.

—scat'ter·ing·ly adv.

scattering layer (skăt'ər-ĭng lā'ər) n. A concentrated layer of organisms in the ocean that reflects and scatters sound waves, as from sonar.

scatter pin (skăt'ər pĭn) n. A woman's small decorative brooch often worn in groups of two or three.

scatter rug (skăt'ər rŭg) n. A small rug for covering a part of a floor. Also called throw rug scat·ter·shot (skăt'ər-shŏt') adj. Covering a wide range in a random way; indiscriminate: “his habit of scattershot comment on whatever issue catches his eye” (Howell Raines).

scat·ter·site (skăt'ər-sīt') adj. Relating to or being publicly funded low-income housing units scattered throughout middle-income residential areas.

scat·ty (skăt'ē) adj. scat·ti·er, scat·ti·est. Chiefly British. Scatterbrained; flighty: “the scatty, glancing quality of a hyperactive but unfocused intelligence” (London Review of Books). [Probably SCATT(ERBRAIN) + -Y¹.]

scaup (skôp) n. pl. scaup or scaups. Either of two diving ducks (Aythya marila or A. affinis) having predominantly black and white plumage in the male. Also called bluebill [Perhaps from Scots scalp, scaup, bed of mussels (from its feeding on shellfish).]

scav·enge (skäv'ənj) v. scav·enged, scav·eng·ing, scav·eng·es. — v. tr.
1. To search through for salvageable material: scavenged the garbage cans for food scraps. 2. To collect and remove refuse from: The streets are periodically scavenged. 3. To collect (salvageable material) by searching. 4. a. To expel (exhaust gases) from a cylinder of an internal-combustion engine. b. To expel exhaust gases from (such a cylinder). 5. Metallurgy. To clean (molten metal) by chemically removing impurities. — v. intr. 1. To search through refuse for useful material. 2. To feed on dead or decaying matter. [Back-formation from SCAVENGER.]

scav·en·ger (skäv'ən-jər) n. 1. One that scavenges, as a person who searches through refuse for food. 2. An animal, such as a bird or an insect, that feeds on dead or decaying matter. 3. Chemistry. A substance added to a mixture to remove or inactivate impurities. [Alteration of Middle English scauager, schavager, official charged with street maintenance, from Anglo-Norman scawager, toll collector, from scawage, a tax on the goods of foreign merchants, from Flemish scauwen, to look at, show. See keu- in Appendix.]

Sc.B. abbr. Latin. Scientiae Baccalaureus (Bachelor of Science).

SCC abbr. Electronics. Storage connecting circuit.

Sc.D. abbr. Latin. Scientiae Doctor (Doctor of Science).

sce·na (shā'nə) n. Music. An extended operatic vocal composition for one or more voices consisting of a recitative and arias or an aria. [Italian, from Latin scaena, stage. See SCENE.]

sce·nar·i·o (sĭ-nâr'ē-ō', -nâr'-, -nâr'-) n. pl. sce·nar·i·os. 1. An outline of the plot of a dramatic or literary work. 2. A screenplay. 3. An outline or a model of an expected or a supposed sequence of events: “In the scenario posed by many climatologists, decades of continued global warming would raise sea levels anywhere from 20 inches to more than 11 feet as the polar ice caps melt and the ocean’s upper layers expand” (San Francisco Chronicle). [Italian, from scena, scene, from Latin scaena. See SCENE.]

sce·nar·ist (sĭ-nâr'ĭst, -nâr'-, -nâr'-) n. One who writes screenplays.

scend also send (sĕnd) Nautical. v. intr. scend·ed also send·ed, scend·ing also send·ing, scends also sends. To heave upward on a wave or swell. — n. The rising movement of a ship on a wave or swell. [Probably alteration (influenced by DESCEND, or ASCEND), of SEND¹.]

scene (sēn) n. 1. Something seen by a viewer; a view or prospect. 2. The place where an action or event occurs: the scene of the crime. 3. Abbr. sc. The place in which the action of a play, movie, novel, or other narrative occurs; a setting. 4. a. A subdivision of an act in a dramatic presentation in which the setting is fixed and the time continuous. b. A shot or series of shots in a movie constituting a unit of continuous related action. 5. a. The scenery and properties for a dramatic presentation. b. A theater stage. 6. A real or fictitious episode, especially when described. 7. A public display of passion or temper: tried not to make a scene. 8. a. A sphere of activity: observers of the political scene. b. Slang. A situation or set of circumstances: a bad scene; a wild scene. —idiom. behind the scenes. 1. Backstage. 2. In private. [French scène, stage, from Old French, from Latin scaena, from Greek skēnē, tent, stage.]

scen·er·y (sē'nə-rē) n. pl. scen·er·ies. 1. A view or views of natural features, especially in open country: enjoying the varied mountain scenery. 2. The painted backdrops on a theatrical stage.

scene-steal·er (sēn'stē'lər) n. An actor who draws attention from or overshadows other actors in the same production, as by charm or quality of performance.

sce·nic (sē'nīk) adj. 1. Of or relating to the stage, stage scenery, or theatrical representation: scenic design. 2. Constituting or affording pleasing views of natural features: climbed a hill for a scenic panorama of the valley; a scenic drive along the crater rim. — n. A depiction of natural scenery. —sce'ni·cal·ly adv.

sce·no·graph·ic (sē'nə-grāf'īk) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of scenography: "Contemporary design has a strongly scenographic appeal, as if modern rooms were meant to be stage sets" (Los Angeles Times).

sce·nog·ra·phy (sē-nōg'rə-fē) n. The art of representing objects in perspective, especially as applied in the design and painting of theatrical scenery. —sce·nog'raph·er n.

scent (sěnt) n. 1. A distinctive, often agreeable odor. See Synonyms at fragrance. See Synonyms at smell. 2. A perfume: an expensive French scent. 3. An odor left by the passing of an animal. 4. The trail of a hunted animal or fugitive. 5. The sense of smell: a bear's keen scent. 6. A hint of something imminent; a suggestion: caught the scent of a reconciliation. — v. scent·ed, scent·ing, scents. — v. tr. 1. To perceive or identify by the sense of smell: dogs scenting their prey. 2. To suspect or detect as if by smelling: scented danger. 3. To fill with a pleasant odor; perfume: when blossoms scent the air. — v. intr. To hunt prey by means of the sense of smell. Used of hounds. [Middle English sent, from senten, to scent, from Old French sentir, from Latin sentīre, to feel. See sent- in Appendix.] —scent'less adj.

scent gland (sěnt glānd) n. A specialized apocrine gland found in many mammals that produces a strong-smelling substance.

scent strip (sěnt strĭp) n. A strip of paper impregnated with perfume, used by advertisers to acquaint potential buyers with the fragrance of the perfume.

scep·ter (sěp'tər) n. 1. A staff held by a sovereign as an emblem of authority.

2. Ruling power or authority; sovereignty. — v. tr. scep·tered, scep·ter·ing, scep·ters. To invest with royal authority. [Middle English sceptre, from Old French, from Latin scēptrum, from Greek skēptron.]

scep·tic (skěp'tĭk) n. Variant of skeptic.

scep·ti·cal (skěp'tĭ-kəl) adj. Variant of skeptical.

scep·ti·cism (skěp'tĭ-sĭz'əm) n. Variant of skepticism.

scep·tre (sěp'tər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of scepter.

sch. abbr. School.

Schacht (shäkt, shäkHT), (Horace Greeley) Hjalmar. 1877-1970. German banker. As director of the national bank (1923-1930 and 1933-1939) he stabilized the currency and curtailed the inflation that had plagued Germany since World War I.

scha·den·freu·de (shäd'n-froi'də) n. Pleasure derived from the misfortunes of others. [German : Schaden, damage (from Middle High German schade, from Old High German scado) + Freude, joy (from Middle High German vreude, from Old High German frewida, from frō, happy).]

Schaer·beek (skär'bāk', skHär'-) A city of central Belgium, an industrial suburb of Brussels. Population, 105,672.

Schal·ly (shäl'ē), Andrew Victor. Born 1926. Polish-born American physiologist. He shared a 1977 Nobel Prize for research on hormones.

Scha·pi·ro (shə-pîr'ō), Miriam. Born 1923. Canadian-born American artist who developed “femmage,” a form of collage using such media as lace and fabric. With Judy Chicago she executed Womanhouse (1972), a project highlighting the traditional crafts and folk art of American women.

Scharn·horst (shärn'hôrst'), Gerhard Johann David von. 1755-1813.

Prussian general noted for his training tactics and command of the Prussian army during the Napoleonic Wars.

Schar·wen·ka (shär-věng'kə, -kä), Philipp. 1847-1917. German composer of orchestral, chamber, and choral works. His brother Xaver (1850-1924), also a composer, opened conservatories in Berlin (1881) and New York City (1891).

Schaum·burg (shäm'bûrg') A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 68,586.

schav (shäv, shchäv) n. A chilled soup made with sorrel, onions, lemon juice, eggs, and sugar and served with sour cream. [Yiddish shtshav, from Polish szczaw.]

Schaw·low (shô'lō), Arthur Leonard. Born 1921. American physicist. He shared a 1981 Nobel Prize for developing technologies to study complex forms of matter.

Schech-ter (shĕk'tər), Solomon. 1847-1915. Romanian-born Hebrew scholar who discovered the lost chapters of the biblical book Ecclesiasticus.

sched-ule (skĕj'ool, -oo-əl, skĕj'əl) n. 1. A list of times of departures and arrivals; a timetable: a bus schedule; a schedule of guided tours. 2. A plan for performing work or achieving an objective, specifying the order and allotted time for each part: finished the project on schedule. 3. A printed or written list of items in tabular form: a schedule of postal rates. 4. a. A program of events or appointments expected in a given time: Can you fit me into your schedule Tuesday afternoon? b. A student's program of classes. 5. A supplemental statement of details appended to a document. — v. tr. sched-uled, sched-ul-ing, sched-ules.

1. To enter on a schedule: calculate and schedule each tax deduction on the proper form. 2. To make up a schedule for: I haven't scheduled the coming week yet.

3. To plan or appoint for a certain time or date: scheduled a trip in June; was scheduled to arrive Monday. [Middle English sedule, slip of parchment or paper, note, from Old French cedule, from Late Latin schedula, diminutive of scheda, variant of Latin scida, papyrus strip, from Greek skhida, skhedē; perhaps akin to skhizein, to split. See SCHIZO-.] —sched'u-lar adj. —sched'u-ler n.

Schee-le (shā'lə), Karl Wilhelm. 1742-1786. German-born Swedish chemist who independently discovered oxygen (c. 1772) before Joseph Priestley.

schee-lite (shā'lit', shē'-) n. A variously colored mineral, CaWO₄, found in igneous rocks and used as an ore of tungsten. [After Karl Wilhelm SCHEELE.]

schef-fler-a (shĕf-lîr'ə, -lĕr'ə, shĕf'lār-ə) n. Any of numerous evergreen shrubs or small trees of the genus Schefflera, having palmately compound leaves and unisexual flowers that are grouped in umbels. It is widely grown indoors as a foliage plant. Also called umbrella tree [New Latin, genus name, after J.C. Scheffler, 18th-century German botanist.]

Scheldt (skĕlt) A river rising in northern France and flowing about 434 km (270 mi) generally northeast across western Belgium and southwest Netherlands. It empties into the North Sea through two estuaries.

Schel-ling (shĕl'ŋg), Friedrich Wilhelm Joseph von. 1775-1854. German idealist philosopher whose theories of the self, nature, and art influenced romanticism and to a degree presaged existentialism.

sche-ma (skĕ'mə) n. pl. sche-ma-ta (skĕ-mă'tə, skĭ-măt'ə) or sche-mas. 1. A diagrammatic representation; an outline or a model. 2. Psychology. A pattern imposed on complex reality or experience to assist in explaining it, mediate perception, or guide response. [Latin schĕma, schĕmat-, form. See SCHEME.]

sche-mat-ic (skĕ-măt'ik, skĭ-) adj. Of, relating to, or in the form of a scheme or diagram. — n. A structural or procedural diagram, especially of an electrical or mechanical system. —sche-mat'i-cal-ly adv.

sche-ma-tism (skĕ'mə-tĭz'əm) n. The patterned disposition of constituents within a given system.

sche·ma·tize (skē'mə-tīz') v. tr. sche·ma·tized, sche·ma·tiz·ing, sche·ma·tiz·es. To express in or reduce to a scheme: a diagram that schematizes the creation and consumption of wealth. [Greek skhēmatizein, to give form to, from skhēma, skhēmat-, form. See SCHEME.] —sche'ma·ti·za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n.

scheme (skēm) n. 1. A systematic plan of action. 2. A secret or devious plan; a plot. See Synonyms at plan. 3. An impractical or unrealistic plan: "Your scheme yields no revenue; it yields nothing but discontent, disorder, disobedience" (Edmund Burke). 4. An orderly combination of related parts: an irrigation scheme with dams, reservoirs, and channels. 5. A chart, a diagram, or an outline of a system or an object. — v. schemed, schem·ing, schemes. — v. tr. 1. To plot: scheming their revenge. 2. To contrive a plan or scheme for. — v. intr. To make plans, especially secret or devious ones. [Latin schēma, figure, from Greek skhēma. See segh- in Appendix.] —schem'er n.

Sche·nec·ta·dy (skə-něk'tə-dē) A city of eastern New York on the Mohawk River northwest of Albany. First settled in 1661, it prospered after the opening of the Erie Canal and the coming of the railroad in the early 19th century. Its electrical industry dates to the 1880's. Population, 65,566.

scher·zan·do (skért-sän'dō) Music. adv. & adj. In a light, playful manner. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. pl. scher·zan·dos. A scherzando passage. [Italian, gerund of scherzare, to joke, from Old Italian. See SCHERZO.]

scher·zo (skěr'tsō) n. pl. scher·zos or scher·zi (-tsē). Music. A lively movement, commonly in 3/4 time. [Italian, joke, scherzo, from Old Italian scherzare, to joke, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

Schia·pa·rel·li (skē-äp'ə-rěl'ē, skäp'-, shäp'-, skyäp'ä-rěl'lē), Elsa. 1896-1973. Italian-born fashion designer noted for her use of brilliant colors and synthetic materials in haute couture designs.

Schia·pa·rel·li (skē-äp'ə-rěl'ē, skäp'-, shäp'-, skyäp'ä-rěl'lē), Giovanni Vir·ginio. 1835-1910. Italian astronomer who first observed lines on the surface of Mars, which he described as canals.

Schick test (shīk tĕst) n. A test to determine immunity to diphtheria by injection into the skin of dilute diphtheria toxin. Inflammation of the injected area indicates a lack of immunity. [After Béla Schick (1877-1967), Hungarian-born American pediatrician.]

Schie·dam (skē-däm', skhē-) A city of southwest Netherlands, an industrial suburb of Rotterdam. Chartered in 1275, it is noted for its gin distilleries. Population, 69,849.

Schiff's reagent (shīfs rē-ä'jənt) n. An aqueous solution of rosaniline and sulfurous acid used to test for the presence of aldehydes. [After Hugo Schiff (1834-1915), German chemist.]

schil·ler (shīl'ər) n. A lustrous, colored reflection from certain planes in a mineral grain. [German, iridescence, from Middle High German schilher, iridescent taffeta, from schilhen, to twinkle, squint, from Old High German scilihen, to squint, wink.]

Schil·ler (shīl'ər), Johann Christoph Friedrich von. 1759-1805. German writer. A leading romanticist, he is best known for his historical plays, such as Don Carlos (1787) and Wallenstein (1798-1799), and for his long, didactic poems.

schil·ling (shīl'ing) n. A basic unit of currency in Austria. See Table at currency. [German, from Middle High German schillinc, from Old High German skilling, gold coin.]

schip·per·ke (skīp'ər-kē, -kə) n. A small stocky dog of a breed developed in Belgium, having dense, long black fur and small pointed ears. [Flemish, diminutive of schipper, skipper (from the dog's use as a watchdog on a boat), from Middle Dutch. See SKIPPER¹.]

schism (siz'əm, skīz'-) n. 1. A separation or division into factions. 2. a. A formal breach of union within a Christian church. b. The offense of attempting to produce such a breach. 3. Disunion; discord. [Middle English scisme, from Old French, from Latin schisma, schismat-, from Greek skhisma, from skhizein, to split. See skei- in Appendix.]

schis·mat·ic (siz-măt'ik, skīz-) adj. Of, relating to, or engaging in schism. — n. One who promotes or engages in schism. — schis·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

schist (shīst) n. Any of various medium-grained to coarse-grained metamorphic rocks composed of laminated, often flaky parallel layers of chiefly micaceous minerals. [French schiste, from Latin (lapis) schistos, fissile (stone), a kind of iron ore, from Greek skhistos, split, divisible, from skhizein, to split. See skei- in Appendix.] — schis'tose' (shīs'tōs'), schis'tous (-təs) adj.

schis·to·cyte (shīs'tə-sīt') n. 1. A red blood cell undergoing fragmentation. 2. A fragmented part of a red blood cell. [Greek skhistos, split; see SCHIST + CYTE.]

schis·to·cy·to·sis (shīs'tə-sī-tō'sīs) n. 1. Fragmentation of a red blood cell. 2. The presence or accumulation of schistocytes in the blood.

schis·tor·rha·chis (shī-stōr'ə-kīs) n. See spina bifida. [Greek skhistos, split; see SCHIST + Greek rhakhis, backbone.]

schis·to·some (shīs'tə-sōm') n. Any of several chiefly tropical trematode worms of the genus Schistosoma, many of which are parasitic in the blood of human beings and other mammals. Also called bilharzia, blood fluke. [New Latin Schistosoma, genus name : Greek skhistos, split; see SCHIST + Greek soma, body; see -SOME³.] — schis'to·som'al (-sō'məl) adj.

schis·to·so·mi·a·sis (shīs'tə-sə-mī'ə-sīs) n. pl. schis·to·so·mi·a·ses (-sēz'). Any of various generally tropical diseases caused by infestation with schistosomes, widespread in rural areas of Africa, Asia, and Latin America through use of contaminated water, and characterized by infection and gradual destruction of the tissues of the kidneys, liver, and other organs. Also called bilharziasis, snail fever.

schis·to·som·u·lum (shĭs'tə-sŏm'yə-ləm) n. pl. schis-to-som-u-la (-lə). The immature form of a parasitic schistosome after it has entered the blood vessels of its host. [New Latin, diminutive of Schistosoma, genus name. See SCHISTOSOME.]

schiz- pref. Variant of schizo-.

schiz·o (skĭt'sō) n. pl. schiz-os. Informal. A schizophrenic person. —schiz'o adj.

schizo- or schiz- pref. 1. Split; cleft: schizocarp. 2. Cleavage; fission: schizogenesis. 3. Schizophrenia: schizoid. [New Latin, from Greek skhizo-, from skhizein, to split. See skei- in Appendix.]

schiz·o·af·fec·tive (skĭt'sō-ə-fĕk'tĭv) adj. Showing symptoms of both schizophrenia and manic-depressive disorder.

schiz·o·carp (skĭz'ə-kärp', skĭt'sə-) n. A dry fruit that splits at maturity into two or more closed, one-seeded parts, as in the carrot or mallow.

—schiz'o-car'pous, schiz'o-car'pic adj.

schi·zog·a·my (skĭ-zŏg'ə-mĕ, skĭt-sŏg'-) n. Biology. Reproduction in which a sexual form is produced by fission from an asexual one, as in some annelid worms.

schiz·o·gen·e·sis (skĭz'ō-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs, skĭt'sō-) n. Biology. Reproduction by fission.

schi·zog·e·nous (skĭ-zŏj'ə-nəs, skĭt-sŏj'-) adj. 1. Relating to or characterized by schizogenesis. 2. Relating to or characterized by schizogony.

schi·zog·o·ny (skĭ-zŏg'ə-nĕ, skĭt-sŏg'-) n. Reproduction by multiple asexual fission, characteristic of many sporozoans. —schi-zog'o-nous adj.

schiz·oid (skĭt'soid') adj. 1. Schizophrenic. 2. Of, relating to, or having a personality marked by extreme shyness, seclusiveness, and an inability to form close relationships. — n. A schizoid or schizophrenic person.

schiz·ont (skĭz'önt', skĭt'sönt') n. A sporozoan cell produced by schizogony.

schiz·o·phrene (skĭt'sə-frĕn') n. A person having or predisposed to schizophrenia. [Probably back-formation from SCHIZOPHRENIA.]

schiz·o·phre·ni·a (skĭt'sə-frĕ'nĕ-ə, -frĕn'ĕ-ə) n. 1. Any of a group of psychotic disorders usually characterized by withdrawal from reality, illogical patterns of thinking, delusions, and hallucinations, and accompanied in varying degrees by other emotional, behavioral, or intellectual disturbances. Schizophrenia, often associated with dopamine imbalances in the brain and defects of the frontal lobe, may have an underlying genetic cause. 2. A condition that results from the coexistence of disparate or antagonistic qualities, identities, or activities: the schizophrenia of the double espionage agent.

schiz·o·phren·ic (skīt'sə-frĕn'ĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or affected with schizophrenia. 2. Of, relating to, or characterized by the coexistence of disparate or antagonistic elements. — n. One who is affected with schizophrenia.

—schiz'o·phren/i·cal·ly adv.

schiz·o·phren·i·form (skīt'sə-frĕn'ə-fōrm') adj. Having the form of or resembling schizophrenia.

schiz·o·phre·no·gen·ic (skīt'sə-frĕ'nə-jĕn'ĭk, -frĕn'ə-) adj. Tending to produce or develop schizophrenia.

schiz·o·pod (skĭz'ə-pōd', skīt'sə-) n. Any of various shrimplike crustaceans of the orders Euphausiacea and Mysidacea (formerly included in the single order Schizopoda), consisting of the krill and the mysids. [From New Latin Schizopoda, former order name : SCHIZO- + New Latin -poda, -pod.] —schiz·op'o·dous (skĭ-zōp'ə-dəs, skīt-sōp'-) adj.

schiz·o·thyme (skīt'sə-thīm') n. One who exhibits characteristics or symptoms of schizothymia. — adj. Relating to, characterized by, or showing schizothymia. [Probably back-formation from SCHIZOTHYMIA.]

schiz·o·thy·mi·a (skīt'sə-thī'mĕ-ə) n. Behavior or characteristics resembling schizophrenia in certain tendencies but remaining within the limits of normality.

—schiz'o·thy'mic adj. & n.

schiz·y also schiz·zy (skīt'sĕ) adj. schiz·i·er, schiz·i·est. Informal. Schizophrenic or schizoid. [Shortening and alteration of SCHIZOID.]

Schle·gel (shlā'gəl), August Wilhelm von. 1767-1845. German scholar who wrote influential criticism, translated several Shakespearean works, and composed poetry. He also edited a literary magazine with his brother Friedrich (1772-1829), a philosopher, poet, and critic whose essays formed the intellectual basis of German romanticism.

Schlei·cher (shlī'kər -KHƏr), Kurt von. 1882-1934. German military and political leader. Appointed chancellor in December 1932, he was unable to form a coalition government and was replaced one month later by Adolf Hitler.

Schlei·er·ma·cher (shlī'ər-mä'kər, -KHƏr), Friedrich Ernst Daniel. 1768-1834. German philosopher and Protestant theologian who believed that the individual must develop a personal religious attitude.

schle·miel also shle·miel (shlə-mĕl') n. Slang. A habitual bungler; a dolt. [Yiddish shlemil, perhaps from Hebrew šĕlumî'ēl, Shelumiel, a character in the Bible (Numbers 7:36).]

schlep or schlepp also shlep (shlĕp) Slang. v. schlepped or schlepped also shlepped, schlep·ping or schlepp·ing also shlep·ping, schleps or schlepps also shleps. — v. tr. To carry clumsily or with difficulty; lug: schlepped a shopping bag around town. — v. intr. To move slowly or laboriously: schlepped around with the twins in a stroller. — n. 1. An arduous journey. 2. A person regarded as clumsy or stupid. [Yiddish shlepn, to drag, pull, from Middle

Low German slēpen. See lei- in Appendix.] —schlep'per, schlepp'er, shlep'per n.

Schles-in-ger (shlēs'īn-jər), Arthur Meier. 1888-1965. American historian whose works include The Rise of the City (1933). His son Arthur Meier, Jr. (born 1917), also a historian, was an adviser to President John F. Kennedy, whose administration is chronicled in A Thousand Days (1965).

Schles-wig (shlēs'wīg, -wīk, shlās'vīk) A historical region and former duchy of northern Germany and southern Denmark in southern Jutland. The duchy was created in 1115 and passed, along with the duchy of Holstein, to Christian I of Denmark in 1460. After subdivisions caused by complex hereditary holdings, the duchies were once more reunited under the Danish crown in 1773. Denmark, Prussia, and Austria contended for the region until 1866, when it was annexed by Prussia. In 1920 the northern part of Schleswig was returned to Denmark by plebiscite. The southern portion became part of the West German state of Schleswig-Holstein after World War II.

Schley (slī), Winfield Scott. 1839-1911. American naval commander during the Spanish-American War (1898).

Schlie-mann (shlē'män'), Heinrich. 1822-1890. German archaeologist who discovered the ruins of ancient Troy (1871) and excavated Mycenae (1876).

schlie-ren (shlīr'ən) pl.n. 1. Geology. Irregular dark or light streaks in plutonic igneous rock that differ in composition from the principal mass. 2. Regions of a transparent medium, as of a flowing gas, that are visible because their densities are different from that of the bulk of the medium. [German, pl. of Schliere, from dialectal Shliere, streaks, from Middle High German slier, mud, slime, from Old High German sclierrun, pieces, bits.]

schli-ma-zel (shlī-mä'zəl) n. Slang. An extremely unlucky or inept person; a habitual failure. [Yiddish shlimázl, bad luck, unlucky person : Middle High German slimp, wrong + mázl, luck (from Hebrew mazzāl).]

schlock also shlock (shlök) Slang. n. Something, such as merchandise or literature, that is inferior or shoddy. — adj. Of inferior quality; cheap or shoddy. [Possibly from Yiddish shlak, apoplexy, stroke, wretch, evil, nuisance, from Middle High German slag, slak, stroke, from slahen, to strike, from Old High German slahan.]

schlock-meis-ter (shlök'mī'stər) n. Slang. One who produces or deals in inferior or shoddy goods or material. [SCHLOCK + German Meister, master; see MEISTERSINGER.]

schmaltz also schmalz (shmälts) n. 1. Informal. a. Excessively sentimental art or music. b. Maudlin sentimentality. 2. Liquid fat, especially chicken fat. [Yiddish shmalts, animal fat, sentimentality, from Middle High German smalz, animal fat, from Old High German. See mel-¹ in Appendix.]

schmaltz-y also schmalz-y (shmält'sē) adj. schmaltz-i-er, schmaltz-i-est.

Informal. Of, relating to, or marked by excessive or maudlin sentimentality. See Synonyms at sentimental. —schmaltz'i-ness n.

schmalz (shmälts) n. Variant of schmaltz.

schmalz-y (shmält'sē) adj. Informal. Variant of schmaltzy.

schmeer also schmear or shmear (shmîr) n. Slang. A number of things that go together; an aggregate: bought the whole schmeer. [Yiddish shmir, smear, smudge, from shmirn, to smear, grease, from Middle High German smiren, from Old High German smirwen.]

Schmidt (shmît), Helmut. Born 1918. German politician who served as West German minister of defense (1969-1972), minister of finance (1972-1974), and chancellor (1974-1982).

Schmidt system (shmît sîs'təm) n. A system consisting of a concave spherical mirror and a transparent plate of glass at its center of curvature, used in reflecting telescopes to offset spherical aberration and coma. [After Bernhard Voldemar Schmidt (1879-1935), Estonian-born German optical scientist.]

schmo (shmō) n. pl. schmoes or schmos. Slang. A person regarded as stupid or obnoxious. [From Yiddish shmok, penis, fool. See SCHMUCK.]

schmooze or schmoose (shmōōz) Slang. v. intr. schmoozed or schmoosed, schmooz-ing or schmoos-ing, schmooz-es or schmoos-es. To talk casually; chat. — n. A chat. [Yiddish shmúesn, possibly from shmúes, a chat, pl. of shmúe, rumor; akin to Hebrew šēmû'â, rumor.]

schmuck also shmuck (shmük) n. Slang. A person regarded as clumsy or stupid; an oaf. [Yiddish shmok, penis, fool, probably from Polish smok, serpent, tail.]

Schna-bel (shnă'bəl), Artur. 1882-1951. Austrian-born American pianist and composer noted for his interpretations of Beethoven, Mozart, and Schubert.

schnap-per (shnăp'ər, snăp'-) n. A porgy (Chrysophrys guttulatus) of Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand, having a large bony protuberance on the nape when fully grown and prized as a sport fish and food fish. Also called snapper [Alteration (influenced by German Schnapper, snap, snapper), of SNAPPER.]

schnapps (shnäps, shnäps) n. pl. schnapps. Any of various strong, dry liquors, such as a strong Dutch gin. [German Schnaps, mouthful, schnapps, from Low German snaps, from snappen, to snap, from Middle Low German, to snap at.]

schnau-zer (shnou'zər, shnou'tsər) n. Any of three German breeds of dog of a range of sizes, having a wiry pepper-and-salt or black coat and a blunt muzzle with wiry whiskers. [German, from Schnauze, snout, alteration of Middle Low German snūte.]

schnit-zel (shnît'səl) n. A thin cutlet of veal, usually seasoned, that is dipped in batter and fried. [German, from Middle High German snitzel, diminutive of sniz, slice, from snitzen, to carve, frequentative of snīden, to cut, from Old High German snīdan.]

Schnitz·ler (shnīts'lər), Arthur. 1862-1931. Austrian writer known for his psychologically penetrating and sometimes erotic novels and plays, particularly La Ronde (1896).

schnook (shnoök) n. Slang. A stupid or easily victimized person; a dupe. [Yiddish shnuk, snout, schnook, from Lithuanian snūkis, mug, snout.]

schnor·rer (shnôr'ər, shnôr'-) n. Slang. One who habitually takes advantage of the generosity of others; a parasite. [Yiddish shnorer, beggar, sponger, from shnorn, to beg, from Middle High German snurren, to hum, whir (from the sound of the musical instrument played by beggars).]

schnoz (shnöz) also schnoz·zle (shnöz'əl) n. Slang. The human nose. [Probably alteration of Yiddish snoyts, snout, muzzle, from German Schnauze.]

Scho·field (skō'fēld'), John McAllister. 1831-1906. American army officer who took part in Gen. William T. Sherman's march to Atlanta (1864) and later served as general in chief of the army (1888-1895).

schol·ar (sköl'ər) n. 1. a. A learned person. b. A specialist in a given branch of knowledge: a classical scholar. 2. One who attends school or studies with a teacher; a student. 3. A student who holds or has held a particular scholarship. [Middle English scoler, from Old French escoler, and from Old English scolere both from Medieval Latin scholāris, from Late Latin, of a school, from Latin scola, schola, school. See SCHOOL¹.]

schol·ar·ly (sköl'ər-lē) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of scholars or scholarship: scholarly pursuits; a scholarly edition with footnotes. See Synonyms at learned. —schol'ar·li·ness n.

schol·ar·ship (sköl'ər-shīp') n. 1. The methods, discipline, and attainments of a scholar or scholars. 2. Knowledge resulting from study and research in a particular field. See Synonyms at knowledge. 3. A grant of financial aid awarded to a student, as for the purpose of attending a college.

scho·las·tic (skə-lās'tīk) adj. 1. Of or relating to schools; academic. 2. Often Scholastic. Of, relating to, or characteristic of Scholasticism. 3. Adhering rigidly to scholarly methods; pedantic. See Synonyms at pedantic. — n. 1. Often Scholastic. A Scholastic philosopher or theologian. 2. A dogmatist; a pedant. [Latin scholasticus, from Greek skholastikos, learned, studious, from skholazein, to study, from skholē, school. See segh- in Appendix.]

—scho·las'ti·cal·ly adv.

scho·las·ti·cism (skə-lās'tī-sīz'əm) n. 1. Often Scholasticism. The dominant western Christian theological and philosophical school of the Middle Ages, based on the authority of the Latin Fathers and of Aristotle and his commentators. 2. Close adherence to the methods, traditions, and teachings of a sect or school. 3. Scholarly conservatism or pedantry.

scho-li-a (skō'lē-ə) n. A plural of scholium.

scho-li-ast (skō'lē-ăst') n. One of the ancient commentators who annotated the classical authors. [Medieval Greek skholiastēs, from skholiazein, to comment on, from Greek skholion, scholium. See SCHOLIUM.]

scho-li-um (skō'lē-əm) n. pl. scho-li-ums or scho-li-a (-lē-ə). 1. An explanatory note or commentary, as on a Greek or Latin text. 2. A note amplifying a proof or course of reasoning, as in mathematics. [New Latin, from Greek skholion, diminutive of skholē, lecture, school. See segh- in Appendix.]

Schön-berg (shœn'bûrg, shûrn'-, shœn'bërk'), Arnold. 1874-1951. Austrian composer who developed atonal composition. His works include operas, chamber music, symphonies, and vocal arrangements, such as Pierrot Lunaire (1912).

school¹ (skōol) n. Abbr. sch., s., S. 1. An institution for the instruction of children or people under college age. 2. An institution for instruction in a skill or business: a secretarial school; a karate school. 3. a. A college or university. b. An institution within or associated with a college or university that gives instruction in a specialized field and recommends candidates for degrees. c. A division of an educational institution constituting several grades or classes: advanced to the upper school. d. The student body of an educational institution. e. The building or group of buildings housing an educational institution. 4. The process of being educated formally, especially education constituting a planned series of courses over a number of years: The children were put to school at home. What do you plan to do when you finish school? 5. A session of instruction: School will start in three weeks. He had to stay after school today. 6. a. A group of people, especially philosophers, artists, or writers, whose thought, work, or style demonstrates a common origin or influence or unifying belief: the school of Aristotle; the Venetian school of painters. b. A group of people distinguished by similar manners, customs, or opinions: aristocrats of the old school. 7. Close-order drill instructions or exercises for military units or personnel. 8. Australian. A group of people gathered together for gambling. — v. tr. schooled, school-ing, schools. 1. To educate in or as if in a school. 2. To train or discipline: She is well schooled in literature. See Synonyms at teach. — adj. Of or relating to school or education in schools: school supplies; a school dictionary. [Middle English scole, from Old English scōl, from Latin schola, scola, from Greek skholē. See segh- in Appendix.]

school² (skōol) n. A large group of aquatic animals, especially fish, swimming together; a shoal. See Synonyms at flock¹. — v. intr. schooled, school-ing, schools. To swim in or form into a school. [Middle English scole, from Middle Dutch. See skel-¹ in Appendix.]

school age (skōol āj) n. The age at which a child is considered old enough to attend school. — school'-age' (skōol'āj') adj.

school bag or school·bag (skōol'bag') n. A bag for carrying textbooks and school supplies.

school board (skōol bōrd) n. A local board that oversees public schools.

school·book (skōol'boök') n. A textbook or other book for use in school.

school·boy (skōol'boi') n. A boy attending school.

school bus (skōol būs) n. A publicly or privately owned vehicle that is used for taking schoolchildren to and from school or school-related activities.

school·child also school child (skōol'chīld') n. A child attending school.

School·craft (skōol'kräft'), Henry Rowe. 1793-1864. American geologist, ethnologist, and explorer who discovered the source of the Mississippi River (1832).

school day (skōol dā) n. 1. A day on which school is in session. 2. The part of a day during which school is in session.

school district (skōol dīs'trīkt) n. A geographic district, the public schools of which are administered together.

school·fel·low (skōol'fēl'ō) n. A schoolmate.

school figure (skōol fīg'yər) n. Sports. A traditional pattern, such as a figure eight, performed as part of an ice-skating competition. Often used in the plural.

school·girl (skōol'gūrl') n. A girl attending school.

school·house (skōol'hous') n. A building used as a school.

school·ing (skōol'ling) n. 1. Instruction or training given at school.

2. Education obtained through experience or exposure: Her tumultuous childhood was a unique schooling. 3. The training of a horse or a horse and rider in equitation.

school·ma'am (skōol'mām', -mām') n. Variant of schoolmarm.

school·man (skōol'mən) n. 1. A man who is a professional educator or scholar. 2. Schoolman. A medieval Scholastic scholar or philosopher.

school·marm (skōol'märm') also school·ma'am (-mām', -mām') n. A woman teacher, especially one who is regarded as strict, old-fashioned, or prudish. [SCHOOL¹ + dialectal marm (variant of MA'AM).] —school'marm'ish adj.

school·mas·ter (skōol'mās'tər) n. 1. A man who is a teacher. 2. A headmaster of a school. 3. One that educates, guides, or instructs. 4. A grayish-brown snapper (Lutjanus apodus) of the tropical Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico.

—school'mas'ter-ish adj. —school'mas'ter-ly adj.

school·mate (skōol'māt') n. A companion or an associate in one's school.

school·mis·tress (skōol'mīs'trīs) n. 1. A woman who is a teacher. 2. A headmistress of a school.

school of hard knocks (skōol üv härd nōks) n. Informal. The practical experiences of life, including hardships and disappointments, that serve to educate and temper a person: “He hadn’t grown up in the school of hard knocks. Politically he had lived an easy life” (Thomas P. O’Neill, Jr.).

school of thought (skōōl ūv thôt) n. pl. schools of thought. The point of view held by a particular group: “We have many schools of thought in the intelligence services” (Tom Clancy).

school·room (skōōl’rōōm’, -rōōm’) n. A classroom.

school·teach·er (skōōl’tē’chər) n. A person who teaches in a school below the college level.

school·work (skōōl’wûrk’) n. Lessons done at school or to be done at home.

school·yard (skōōl’yärd’) n. An open area next to a school building for play and outdoor activities.

school year (skōōl yîr) n. The part of the year during which school is in session, typically from September to June.

schoo·ner (skōō’nər) n. 1. Nautical. A fore-and-aft rigged sailing vessel with at least two masts, a foremast, and a mainmast stepped nearly amidships. 2. A large beer glass, generally holding a pint or more. 3. A prairie schooner. [Origin unknown.]

Scho·pen·hau·er (shō’pən-hou’ər), Arthur. 1788-1860. German philosopher who believed that the will to live is the fundamental reality and that this will, being a constant striving, is insatiable and ultimately yields only suffering.

schorl (shôrl) n. Tourmaline, especially black tourmaline. [German Schörl.] —schor·la’ceous (shôr-lä’shəs) adj.

schot·tische (shöt’îsh, shō-tēsh’) n. 1. A round dance in 2/4 time. 2. A piece of music for this dance. [German, from schottisch, Scottish, from Middle High German schottesch, from schotte, a Scot, from Old High German scotto, from Late Latin Scottus, Irishman.]

Schou·ten Islands (skout’n ī’lændz) An island group of eastern Indonesia in the southern Pacific Ocean off the northern coast of New Guinea.

Schrief·fer (shrē’fər), John Robert. Born 1931. American physicist. He shared a 1972 Nobel Prize for work on superconductivity.

schrod (skröd) n. New England. Variant of scrod.

Schrö·ding·er (shrō’dīng-ər, shrā’-, shrœ’-), Erwin. 1887-1961. Austrian physicist. He shared a 1933 Nobel Prize for new formulations of the atomic theory.

schtick (shĭk) n. Variant of shtick.

Schu·bert (shōō’bərt, -bərt’), Franz Peter. 1797-1828. Austrian composer who perfected the form of the German art song in his more than 600 compositions for voice and piano. He also composed symphonies and chamber music.

Schultz (shōōlts), Theodore. Born 1902. American economist. He shared a 1979 Nobel Prize for work on the economic problems of developing countries.

Schulz (shōōlts), Charles Monroe. Born 1922. American cartoonist who created the Peanuts comic strip.

Schu·man (shōō-män', -mäN'), Robert. 1886-1963. French politician who served as prime minister (1947-1948) and promoted the economic and military unity of European nations.

Schu·man (shōō'mən), William Howard. 1910-1992. American composer whose works include symphonies, an opera, and the cantata A Free Song (1943), for which he received a Pulitzer Prize.

Schu·mann (shōō'män', -mən), Robert. 1810-1856. German composer known particularly for his song cycles, piano works, and symphonies. A leading romanticist and a noted critic, he encouraged Chopin and influenced Brahms.

Schu·mann-Heink (shōō'mən-hīngk'), Ernestine. 1861-1936. American contralto noted for her roles in the operas of Wagner and Richard Strauss.

Schum·pe·ter (shōōm'pā-tər), Joseph Alois. 1883-1950. Czechoslovakian-born American economist known for his theories of the development of capitalism.

Schurz (shōōrts, shûrz), Carl. 1829-1906. German-born American army officer, politician, and editor. A U.S. senator from Missouri (1869-1875), he influenced Republican Party policy through his speeches and later newspaper editorials.

Schusch·nigg (shōōsh'nīk, -nīg), Kurt von. 1897-1977. Austrian politician who as chancellor (1934-1938) resisted the German occupation of Austria.

schuss (shōōs, shōōs) Sports. v. intr. schussed, schuss-ing, schuss-es. To make a fast straight downhill run in skiing. — n. 1. A fast straight downhill run in skiing. 2. A straight, steep course for skiing. [From German, shot, schuss, from Middle High German schuz, shot, from Old High German scuz. See skeud- in Appendix.]

schuss·boom·er (shōōs'boō'mər, shōōs'-) n. Sports. A skier who schusses well.

Schuy·ler (skī'lər), Philip John. 1733-1804. American Revolutionary general of American forces in New York State who was relieved of his command after the British capture of Fort Ticonderoga (1777). He later served as a U.S. senator from New York (1789-1791 and 1797-1798).

Schuyl·kill (skōōl'kīl', skōō'kəl) A river, about 209 km (130 mi) long, of southeast Pennsylvania flowing generally southeast to the Delaware River at Philadelphia.

schwa (shwä) n. Linguistics. 1. A mid-central neutral vowel, typically occurring in unstressed syllables, as the final vowel of English sofa. Also called indeterminate vowel 2. The symbol (ə) used to represent an unstressed neutral vowel and, in some systems of phonetic transcription, a stressed mid-central vowel, as in but. [German, from Hebrew šewā^c, probably from Syriac šewayyā, equal.]

Schwä·bisch Gmünd (shvā'bish gə-mōōnt', -münt') A city of southwest Germany east of Stuttgart. Chartered in 1162, it was a free imperial city from 1268 to 1803. Population, 56,073.

Schwann (shvän), Theodor. 1810-1882. German physiologist and pioneer histologist who described the cell as the basic structure of animal tissue.

Schwann cell (shwän səl, shvän) n. Any of the cells that cover the nerve fibers in the peripheral nervous system and form the myelin sheath. [After Theodor SCHWANN.]

Schwartz (shwôrts), Melvin. Born 1932. American physicist. He shared a 1988 Nobel Prize for developing the use of a beam of neutrinos in high-energy particle research.

Schwarz·schild radius (shwôrts'child' rā'dē-əs, shvârts'shıld) n. The radius of a collapsing celestial object at which gravitational forces exceed the ability of matter and energy to escape, resulting in a black hole. [After Karl Schwarzschild (1873-1916), German astronomer.]

Schwedt (shvāt) A city of northeast Germany on the Oder River northeast of Berlin. A processing center, it was heavily damaged during World War II. Population, 51,881.

Schwein·furt (shvīn'fōōrt') A city of central Germany on the Main River east of Frankfurt. First mentioned c. 791, it became a free imperial city in 1282 and passed to Bavaria in 1803. Population, 51,079.

Schweitzer (shwīt'sər, shvīt'-), Albert. 1875-1965. French philosopher, physician, and musician who founded (1913) and spent much of his life at a missionary hospital in present-day Gabon. Schweitzer was a noted organist and wrote many philosophical and theological works. He won the 1952 Nobel Peace Prize.

Schwe·rin (shvā-rēn') A city of north-central Germany on Schwerin Lake southwest of Rostock. Originally a Wendish settlement, it was chartered c. 1160 and today is a commercial, industrial, and transportation center. Population, 124,975.

Schwing·er (shwīng'ər), Julian Seymour. 1918-1994. American physicist. He shared a 1965 Nobel Prize for research in quantum electrodynamics.

sci. abbr. Science; scientific.

sci·ae·noid (sī-ē'noid) adj. Of or belonging to the Sciaenidae, a family of fishes that includes the drums and croakers. — n. A sciaenoid fish. [New Latin Sciaena, type genus (from Latin sciaena, a kind of fish, from Greek skiaina) + -OID.] —sci·ae'nid (-nīd) adj. & n.

sci·at·ic (sī-ăt'īk) adj. 1. Of or relating to the ischium or to the region of the hipbone in which it is located. 2. Of or relating to sciatica. [French sciatique, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sciaticus, alteration of Latin ischiadicus, from Greek iskhiadikos, from iskhias, iskhiad-, sciatica, from iskhion, hip.]

sci-at-i-ca (sī-ăt'ī-kə) n. Pain along the sciatic nerve usually caused by a herniated disk of the lumbar region of the spine and radiating to the buttocks and to the back of the thigh. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, from feminine of sciaticus, of the hip. See SCIATIC.]

sciatic nerve (sī-ăt'īk nûrv) n. A sensory and motor nerve originating in the sacral plexus and running through the pelvis and upper leg.

SCID abbr. Severe combined immunodeficiency.

sci-ence (sī'əns) n. Abbr. sc., sci. 1. a. The observation, identification, description, experimental investigation, and theoretical explanation of phenomena.

b. Such activities restricted to a class of natural phenomena. c. Such activities applied to an object of inquiry or study. 2. Methodological activity, discipline, or study: I've got packing a suitcase down to a science. 3. An activity that appears to require study and method: the science of purchasing. 4. Knowledge, especially that gained through experience. 5. Science. Christian Science. [Middle English, knowledge, learning, from Old French, from Latin scientia, from sciēns, scient- present participle of scīre, to know. See skei- in Appendix.]

science fiction (sī'əns fīk'shən) n. Abbr. sf, SF A literary or cinematic genre in which fantasy, typically based on speculative scientific discoveries or developments, environmental changes, space travel, or life on other planets, forms part of the plot or background.

sci-en-ter (sī-ĕn'tər) adv. Law. Deliberately or knowingly. [Latin, from sciēns, scient- present participle of scīre, to know. See SCIENCE.]

sci-en-tial (sī-ĕn'shəl) adj. 1. Of or producing knowledge or science.
2. Capable; skillful.

sci-en-tif-ic (sī'ən-tīf'īk) adj. Abbr. sci. Of, relating to, or employing the methodology of science. [Medieval Latin scientificus, producing knowledge : Latin scientia, knowledge; see SCIENCE + Latin -ficus, -fic.] —sci'en-tif'i-cal-ly adv.

scientific empiricism (sī'ən-tīf'īk ĕm-pīr'ī-sīz'əm) n. The philosophical view that there are no ultimate differences among the various sciences.

scientific method (sī'ən-tīf'īk mĕth'əd) n. The principles and empirical processes of discovery and demonstration considered characteristic of or necessary for scientific investigation, generally involving the observation of phenomena, the formulation of a hypothesis concerning the phenomena, experimentation to demonstrate the truth or falseness of the hypothesis, and a conclusion that validates or modifies the hypothesis.

scientific notation (sī'ən-tīf'īk nō-tā'shən) n. Mathematics. A method of writing or displaying numbers in terms of a decimal number between 1 and 10 multiplied by a power of 10. The scientific notation of 10,492, for example, is 1.0492×10^4 .

sci-en-tism (sī'ən-tīz'əm) n. 1. The theory that investigational methods used in the natural sciences should be applied in all fields of inquiry. 2. The application of quasi-scientific techniques or justifications to unsuitable subjects or topics. —sci'en-tis'tic adj.

sci-en-tist (sī'ən-tĭst) n. 1. A person having expert knowledge of one or more sciences, especially a natural or physical science. 2. Scientist. A Christian Scientist.

sci-fi (sī'fī) n. pl. sci-fis. Informal. Science fiction. — adj. Of, relating to, being, or similar to science fiction: a sci-fi movie; a sci-fi weapons system.

scil-i-cet (sĭl'ī-sĕt', skĕ'lĭ-kĕt') adv. Abbr. sc., scil., ss, ss. That is to say; namely. [Middle English, from Latin scilicet, contraction of scire licet, it is permitted to know : scire, to know; see skei- in Appendix + licet, third person sing. of licere, to be permitted.]

Scil-y Islands (sĭl'ē ī'ləndz) or, Isles of Scilly. An archipelago comprising more than 140 small islands and rocky islets off southwest England at the entrance to the English Channel west-southwest of Land's End. The islands were formerly a haven for pirates and smugglers.

scim-i-tar (sĭm'ĭ-tər, -tär') n. A curved Asian sword with the edge on the convex side. [French cimeterre, and Italian scimitarra both perhaps ultimately from Persian šimšīr.]

scin-coid (sĭng'koid) adj. Of, belonging to, or resembling the skinks. — n. A scincoid lizard. [Latin scincus, skink; see SKINK + -OID.]

scin-ti-gram (sĭn'tĭ-grām') n. A two-dimensional record of the distribution of a radioactive tracer in a tissue or organ, obtained by means of a scanning scintillation counter. Also called scintigraph, scintiscan. [SCINTI(LLATION) + -GRAM.]

scin-ti-graph (sĭn'tĭ-grāf') n. 1. A device for producing a scintigram; a scintiscanner. 2. See scintigram. —scin'ti-graph'ic adj. —scin-ti-graph'i-cal-ly adv. —scin-tig'ra-phy (sĭn-tĭg'rə-fē) n.

scin-til-la (sĭn-tĭl'ə) n. 1. A minute amount; an iota or a trace. 2. A spark; a flash. [Latin, spark.] —scin'til-lant adj.

scin-til-late (sĭn'tl-āt') v. scin-til-lat-ed, scin-til-lat-ing, scin-til-lates. — v. intr. 1. To throw off sparks; flash. 2. To sparkle or shine. See Synonyms at flash. 3. To be animated and brilliant: dinner conversation that scintillated. — v. tr. To give off (sparks or flashes). [Latin scintillāre, scintillāt-, from scintilla, spark.] —scin'til-lat'ing-ly adv.

scin-til-la-tion (sĭn'tl-ā'shən) n. 1. The act of scintillating. 2. A spark; a flash. 3. Astronomy. Rapid variation in the light of a celestial body caused by turbulence in Earth's atmosphere; a twinkling. 4. Physics. A flash of light produced in a phosphor by absorption of an ionizing particle or photon.

scintillation counter (sĭn'tl-ā'shən koun'tər) n. A device for detecting and counting scintillations produced by ionizing radiation.

scin-til-la-tor (sĭn'tl-ā'tər) n. A substance that glows when hit by high-energy particles or photons.

scin·ti·scan (sɪn'ti-skən') n. See scintigram. [SCINTI(LLATION) + SCAN.]

—scin'ti·scan'ner n.

sci·o·lism (sɪ'ə-lɪz'əm) n. A pretentious attitude of scholarship; superficial knowledgeability. [From Late Latin sciolus, smatterer, diminutive of Latin sciūs, knowing, from scīre, to know. See skei- in Appendix.] —sci'o·list n.

—sci'o·lis'tic adj.

sci·on (sɪ'ən) n. 1. A descendant or an heir. 2. Also ci·on (sɪ'ən). A detached shoot or twig containing buds from a woody plant, used in grafting. [Middle English, from Old French cion, possibly of Germanic origin.]

Sci·o·to (sɪ-ō'tə) A river, about 381 km (237 mi) long, rising in western Ohio and flowing east then south to the Ohio River in south-central Ohio.

Scip·io (sɪp'ē-ō', skɪp'-), Publius Cornelius. Known as “Scipio the Younger.” 185?-129 B.C. Roman general and politician who commanded the final destruction of Carthage (146) in the Third Punic War.

Scipio Af·ri·ca·nus (sɪp'ē-ō' əf-rɪ-kä'nəs), Publius Cornelius. Known as “Scipio the Elder.” 236?-183? B.C. Roman general who invaded northern Africa, conquered Carthage, and brought to an end the Second Punic War by defeating Hannibal at Zama (202).

sci·re fa·ci·as (sɪ'rē fā'shē-əs, skē'rē fā'kē-äs') n. Law. 1. A writ requiring the party against which it is issued to appear and show cause why a judicial record should not be enforced, repealed, or annulled. 2. A judicial proceeding under this writ. [Middle English, from Latin scīre faciās, you should cause (him) to know (a phrase that occurs in the writ) : scīre, to know + faciās, second person sing. present subjunctive of facere, to do, make.] sci·roc·co (shə-rök'ō, sə-) n. Variant of sirocco.

scir·rhus (skɪr'əs, sɪr'-) n. pl. scir·rhi (skɪr'ɪ, sɪr'ɪ) or scir·rhus·es. A hard, dense cancerous growth usually arising from connective tissue. [New Latin, from Latin scirros, from Greek skiros, skirros, from skiros, hard.] —scir'rhus, scir'rhoid' adj.

scis·sile (sɪs'əl, -ɪl') adj. Cut or split easily: a scissile mineral; a scissile peptide bond. [French, from Latin scissilis, from scissus, past participle of scindere, to cut. See SCISSION.]

scis·sion (sɪzh'ən, sɪsh'-) n. The act of cutting or severing; division or fission. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin scissiō, scissiōn-, from Latin scissus, past participle of scindere, to cut, split. See skei- in Appendix.]

scis·sor (sɪz'ər) v. tr. scis·sored, scis·sor·ing, scis·sors. To cut or clip with scissors or shears. — n. 1. scissors. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A cutting implement consisting of two blades joined by a swivel pin that allows the cutting edges to be opened and closed. 2. Something resembling a two-bladed cutting implement: wore a jeweled scissor on her lapel. 3. scissors. (used with a sing. verb). a. Any of various gymnastic exercises or jumps in which the movement of the legs suggests the opening and closing of scissors. b. A scissors hold. [From alteration (influenced by Latin scissor, cutter, from scissus, cut); see SCISSION, of Middle English sisours, scissors, from Old French cisoires, from Vulgar Latin cīsōria*, from Late Latin, pl. of cīsōrium, cutting instrument, from Latin caesus, -cīsus, past participle of caedere, to cut. See kaə-id- in Appendix.]

scis-sors hold (sīz'ərz hōld) n. Sports. A wrestling hold in which the legs of one opponent are locked about the head or body of another opponent.

scissors kick (sīz'ərz kīk) n. Sports. A swimming kick in which the legs are opened and closed like scissors.

scis-sor-tail (sīz'ər-tāl') n. A scissor-tailed flycatcher.

scissor-tailed flycatcher (sīz'ər-tāld' flī'käch'ər) n. A flycatcher (Muscivora forficata) of the southwest United States, Mexico, and Central America, having a long forked tail.

scis-sure (sīzh'ər, sīsh'-) n. Anatomy. A split or opening in an organ or part. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin scissūra, from scissus, past participle of scindere, to split. See SCISSION.]

Scit-u-ate (sīch'ōō-āt', -īt) A town of eastern Massachusetts on Massachusetts Bay southeast of Boston. It is a residential community and summer resort. Population, 16,786.

sci-u-rid (sī'yōō-rīd') adj. Of, belonging to, or resembling the Sciuridae, a family of rodents that includes the squirrels and related mammals. — n. A sciurid rodent. [From New Latin Sciuridae, family name, from Latin sciūrus, squirrel. See SQUIRREL.] —sci'u-rine (-rīn') adj. —sci'u-roid (sī'yōō-roid', sī-yōōr'oid) adj.

sclaff (sklāf) v. sclaffed, sclaff-ing, sclaffs. Sports. — v. intr. To scrape or strike the ground with a golf club behind the ball before hitting it. — v. tr. 1. To strike (the ground) with a golf club before hitting the ball. 2. To hit (a ball) in this manner. [Scots, to strike with a flat surface.] —sclaff n. —sclaff'er n.

SCLC abbr. Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

scler- pref. Variant of sclero-.

scle-ra (sklīr'ə) n. The tough, white, fibrous outer envelope of tissue covering all of the eyeball except the cornea. Also called sclerotic, sclerotic coat. [New Latin, from Greek, feminine of sklēros, hard.] —scle'ral adj.

scler-e-id (sklēr'ē-īd) n. A thick-walled lignified plant cell that is often branched. [SCLERE(NCHYMA) + -ID.]

scle-ren-chy-ma (sklə-rěng'kə-mə) n. A supportive plant tissue that consists of thick-walled, usually lignified cells. —scle'ren-chym'a-tous (sklīr'ən-kīm'ə-təs, -kī'mə-) adj.

scle-rite (sklīr'īt') n. A chitinous or calcareous plate, spicule, or similar part of an invertebrate, especially one of the hard outer plates forming part of the exoskeleton of an arthropod.

scle·ri·tis (sklə-rī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the sclera. —scle·rit'ic (-rīt'ik) adj.

sclero- or scler- pref. 1. Hard: sclerite. 2. Hardness: sclerometer. 3. Sclera: scleritis. [Greek sklēro-, from sklēros, hard.]

scle·ro·der·ma (sklîr'ə-dûr'mə) n. A pathological thickening and hardening of the skin.

scle·ro·der·ma·tous (sklîr'ə-dûr'mə-təs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or affected by scleroderma. 2. Zoology. Having an outer covering of hard plates or bony scales.

scle·roid (sklîr'oid') adj. Biology. Hard or hardened; indurated.

scle·ro·ma (sklə-rō'mə) n. pl. scle·ro·mas or scle·ro·ma·ta (-mə-tə). An abnormally hard patch of body tissue especially in the upper respiratory tract. [New Latin, from Greek sklēroma, hardening, from sklēroun, to harden, from sklēros, hard.]

scle·rom·e·ter (sklə-rōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument used to determine the relative hardness of a material by measuring the pressure required to penetrate the material with a standard diamond stylus.

scle·ro·pro·tein (sklîr'ō-prō'tēn', -tē-ĭn) n. Any of a class of generally insoluble proteins, such as collagen, found in skeletal and connective tissue. Also called albuminoid scle·rosed (sklə-rōzd', -rōst') adj. 1. Affected by sclerosis; hardened.

2. Botany. Lignified. [From SCLEROSIS.]

scle·ro·sis (sklə-rō'sīs) n. pl. scle·ro·ses (-sēz). 1. a. A thickening or hardening of a body part, as of an artery, especially from excessive formation of fibrous interstitial tissue. b. A disease characterized by this thickening or hardening.

2. Botany. The hardening of cells by the formation of a secondary wall and the deposition of lignin. [Middle English sclirosis, from Medieval Latin sc̄līrōsis, from Greek sklērosis, hardening, from sklēroun, to harden. See SCLEROMA.]

scle·ro·ti·a (sklə-rō'shē-ə, -shə) n. Plural of sclerotium.

scle·ro·ti·al (sklə-rō'shē-əl, -shəl) adj. Of or relating to sclerotia or a sclerotium.

scle·rot·ic (sklə-rōt'ik) adj. 1. Affected or marked by sclerosis. 2. Anatomy. Of or relating to the sclera. — n. See sclera.

sclerotic coat (sklə-rōt'ik kōt) n. See sclera.

scler·o·tin (sklîr'ə-tĭn, sklĕr'-) n. An insoluble protein that hardens and darkens the cuticle of arthropods by a natural tanning process involving the cross-linkage of chitin protein molecules. [SCLERO- + -tin (as in KERATIN, or CHITIN).]

scle·ro·ti·um (sklə-rō'shē-əm, -shəm) n. pl. scle·ro·ti·a (-shē-ə, -shə). A dense mass of branched hyphae, as in certain fungi, that contain stored food and are capable of remaining dormant for long periods. [New Latin, from Greek sklērotēs, hardness, from sklēros, hard.]

scler·o·ti·za·tion (sklēr'ə-tī-zā'shən) n. The process by which the cuticle of an arthropod is hardened by formation of sclerotin. [Greek sklērotēs, hardness (from sklēros, hard) + -IZATION.]

scle·rot·o·my (sklə-rōt'ə-mē) n. pl. scle·rot·o·mies. Surgical incision of the sclera.

scle·rous (sklîr'əs, sklër'-) adj. Having been hardened; toughened.

scoff¹ (skōf, skōf) v. scuffed, scoff-ing, scoffs. — v. tr. To mock at or treat with derision. — v. intr. To treat or express derisively; mock. — n. An expression of derision or scorn. [Middle English scoffen, from scof, mockery, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Danish skof, jest, teasing.] —scoff'er n.

—scoff'ing-ly adv.

scoff² (skōf, skōf) v. scuffed, scoff-ing, scoffs. Slang. — v. tr. To eat (food) quickly and greedily. — v. intr. To eat greedily. [Alteration of obsolete scaff.]

—scoff'er n.

scoff-law (skōf'lô', skōf'-) n. One who habitually violates the law or fails to answer court summonses.

scold (skōld) v. scold-ed, scold-ing, scolds. — v. tr. To reprimand or criticize harshly and usually angrily. — v. intr. To reprove or criticize openly. — n.

One who persistently nags or criticizes: “As a critic gets older, he or she usually grows more tetchy and... may even become a big-league scold” (James Wolcott).

[Middle English scolden, to rail at, from scolde, an abusive person, probably of Scandinavian origin. See sek^{w-3} in Appendix.] —scold'er n. —scold'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: scold, upbraid, berate, revile, vituperate, rail. These verbs mean to reprimand or criticize angrily or vehemently. Scold implies an annoyed or bad-tempered reproof: The young woman's parents scolded her for questioning their authority. Upbraid generally suggests a well-founded reproach, as one leveled by an authority: “upbraided him for not having worn his overcoat” (Arnold Bennett). Berate suggests scolding or rebuking angrily and at length: The dissatisfied customer berated the florist. Revile and vituperate especially stress the use of disparaging or abusive language: Critics reviled the novel as unsophisticated pulp. “The incensed priests... continued to raise their voices, vituperating each other in bad Latin” (Sir Walter Scott). Rail suggests bitter, harsh, or denunciatory language: “Why rail at fate? The mischief is your own” (John Greenleaf Whittier).

WORD HISTORY: A scold is no poet and a scolding is not poetry, at least to the one being scolded, but it seems that the word scold has a poetic background. It is probable that scold, which is first recorded in Middle English in a work probably composed around 1150, has a Scandinavian source that is related to the Old Icelandic word skāld, “poet.” Middle English scolde may in fact mean “a minstrel,” but of that we are not sure. However, its Middle English meanings, “a ribald, abusive person” and “a shrewish, chiding woman,” may be related to skāld, as shown by the senses of some of the Old Icelandic words derived from skāld. Old Icelandic skāldskapr, for example, meant “poetry” in a good sense but also “a libel in verse,” while skāld-stöng meant “a pole with imprecations or charms scratched on it.” It would seem that libelous, cursing verse was a noted part of at least some poets’ productions and that this association with poets passed firmly along with the Scandinavian borrowing into English.

scold·ing (skōl’đing) n. A harsh or sharp reprimand.

sco·lex (skō’lěks’) n. pl. sco·li·ces (-lī-sēz’). The knoblike anterior end of a tapeworm, having suckers or hooklike parts that in the adult stage serve as organs of attachment to the host on which the tapeworm is parasitic. [New Latin, from Greek skōlēx, worm.]

sco·li·o·sis (skō’lē-ō’sīs, skōl’ē-) n. Abnormal lateral curvature of the spine. [Greek skolios, crooked + -OSIS.] —sco’li·ot’ic (-ōt’īk) adj.

scol·lop (skōl’əp) n. & v. Variant of scallop.

scol·o·pen·drid (skōl’ə-pěn’drīd) n. Any of numerous centipedes of the family Scolopendridae, especially the larger ones, such as Scolopendra gigas of the West Indies. [From New Latin Scolopendridae, family name, from Latin scolopendra, a kind of centipede, from Greek skolopendra, millipede.]

—scol’o·pen’drine’ (-drīn’, -drīn) adj.

scom·broid (skōm’broid’) adj. Of or belonging to the suborder Scombroidei, which includes marine fishes such as the mackerel. — n. A scombroid fish. [New Latin Scombroidei, suborder name, from Latin scomber, scombr-, mackerel, from Greek skombros.]

sconce¹ (skōns) n. A small defensive earthwork or fort. [Dutch schans, from German Schanze, from Middle High German.]

sconce² (skōns) n. 1. A decorative wall bracket for holding candles or lights. 2. A flattened candlestick that has a handle. 3. Slang. The human head or skull. [Middle English, from Old French esconse, lantern, hiding place, from Medieval Latin scōnsa, from Latin abscondēsa, feminine past participle of abscondere, to hide away : ab-, abs-, away; see *AB-*¹ + condere, to preserve; see dhē- in Appendix.]

scone (skōn, skōn) n. 1. A small, rich, biscuitlike pastry or quick bread, sometimes baked on a griddle. 2. Utah. Yeast bread dough, deep-fried and served with honey and butter or with a savory filling. [Perhaps from Dutch schoonbrood, fine white bread, from Middle Dutch schoonbroot : schoon, bright; see keu- in Appendix + broot, bread.]

Scone (skōn) A village of central Scotland northeast of Perth. The old part of the village was the coronation site of Scottish kings until 1651. The Stone of Scone, or Stone of Destiny, which served as a throne during the coronation rites, was taken to England by Edward I in the late 13th century and today rests in Westminster Abbey beneath the chair used during the crowning of British monarchs.

scoop (skōōp) n. 1. a. A shovellike utensil, usually having a deep, curved dish and a short handle: a flour scoop. b. The amount that such a utensil can hold. 2. a. A thick-handled cuplike utensil for dispensing balls of ice cream or other semisoft food, often having a sweeping band in the cup that is levered by the thumb to free the contents. b. A portion of food gathered with this utensil. 3. A ladle; a dipper. 4. An implement for bailing water from a boat. 5. A narrow, spoon-shaped instrument for surgical extraction in cavities or cysts. 6. The bucket or shovel, as of a dredge or backhoe. 7. A hollow area; a cavity. 8. An opening, as on the body of a motor vehicle, by which a fluid is directed inward: “The [sports car] has... enough scoops and spoilers to get you a citation just standing still” (Mark Weinstein). 9. A scooping movement or action. 10. Informal. An exclusive news story acquired by luck or initiative before a competitor.

11. Informal. Current information or details: What’s the scoop on the new neighbors? — v. tr. scooped, scoop-ing, scoops. 1. To take up or dip into with or as if with a scoop. 2. To hollow out by digging. 3. To gather or collect swiftly and unceremoniously; grab: scoop up a handful of jelly beans. 4. Informal. To top or outmaneuver (a competitor) in acquiring and publishing an important news story. [Middle English scope, from Middle Dutch, and Middle Low German schōpe, bucket for bailing water.] —scoop’er n. —scoop’ful’ n.

scoop neck (skōōp nĕk) n. A rounded, usually low-cut neckline, as on a blouse or dress. Also called scoop neckline scoot (skōōt) v. scoot-ed, scoot-ing, scoots. — v. intr. To go suddenly and speedily; hurry. — v. tr. Upper Southern U.S. To squirt with water: “I know I wouldn’t scoot down no hog with no hose” (Flannery O’Connor). —phrasal verb. scoot over. Midland U.S. & Upper Southern U.S. To move (a person or thing) to the side to make room: Scoot that chair over. [Scots, to eject, squirt, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skjöta, to shoot.] —scoot n.

REGIONAL NOTE: Scoot comes from a Scandinavian verb related to the verb shoot and, borrowed into Scots dialect, originally meant “to squirt with water.” Two derived senses, both intransitive verbs, have become even more common: “to slide suddenly across a surface” and “to move quickly”: The mouse scooted across the floor. In the American Midlands, there is a phrasal verb scoot over, meaning, in its transitive sense, “to push (someone or something) to the side to make room.”

scooter (skōō’tər) n. 1. A child’s vehicle consisting of a long footboard between two small end wheels, controlled by an upright steering handle attached to the front wheel. 2. A motor scooter. 3. Nautical. A flat-bottomed sailboat with runners that can skim over water or ice.

scop (shōp) n. An Old English poet or bard. [Old English.]

scope (skōp) n. 1. The range of one's perceptions, thoughts, or actions.

2. Breadth or opportunity to function. See Synonyms at room. 3. The area covered by a given activity or subject. See Synonyms at range. 4. The length or sweep of a mooring cable. 5. Informal. A viewing instrument such as a periscope, microscope, or telescope. — v. tr. scoped, scop-ing, scopes. Slang. To examine or study carefully and in detail: "[He] scopes the big picture of Israeli-Arab relations" (James Wolcott). [Italian scopo, aim, purpose, from Greek skopos, target, aim. See spek- in Appendix.]

-scope suff. An instrument for viewing or observing: bronchoscope. [New Latin -scopium, from Greek -skopion, from skopein, to see. See spek- in Appendix.]

Scopes (skōps), John Thomas. 1900-1970. American teacher who violated a state law by teaching the theory of evolution in a Tennessee high school. His trial (July 1925) was a highly publicized confrontation between defense attorney Clarence Darrow and the director of the prosecution William Jennings Bryan. Scopes was found guilty and fined a nominal sum, but his conviction was later reversed on technical grounds.

sco-pol-a-mine (skə-pōl'ə-mēn', -mīn) n. A thick, syrupy, colorless alkaloid, C₁₇H₂₁NO₄, extracted from plants such as henbane and used as a mydriatic, sedative, and truth serum. Also called hyoscine [New Latin Scopolia, plant genus (after Giovanni Antonio Scopoli (1723-1788), Italian naturalist) + -AMINE.]

scop-u-la (sköp'yə-lə) n. pl. scop-u-lae (-lē'). A dense, brushlike tuft of hairs, as on the feet of certain insects. [Latin scōpula, small brush of twigs, diminutive of scōpae, branches, broom.] — scop'u-late' (-lāt') adj.

-scopy suff. Viewing; seeing; observation: microscopy. [Greek -skopia, from skopein, to see. See spek- in Appendix.]

scor-bu-tic (skôr-byōō'tīk) also scor-bu-ti-cal (-tī-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, resembling, or affected by scurvy. [New Latin scorbūticus, from scorbūtus, scurvy, perhaps of Germanic origin.] — scor-bu'ti-cal-ly adv.

scorch (skôrçh) v. scorched, scorch-ing, scorch-es. — v. tr. 1. To burn superficially so as to discolor or damage the texture of. See Synonyms at burn¹. 2. To wither or parch with intense heat. 3. To destroy by or as if by fire (all land and buildings in one's path) so as to leave nothing salvageable to an enemy army. 4. To subject to severe censure; excoriate. — v. intr. 1. To become scorched or singed. 2. To go or move at a very fast, often excessively fast rate. — n. 1. A slight or surface burn. 2. A discoloration caused by heat. 3. Brown spotting on plant leaves caused by fungi, heat, or lack of water. [Middle English scorchen, possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skorpna, to shrink, be shriveled.] — scorch'ing-ly adv.

scorched-earth policy (skôrcht'ûrth' pöl'i-sē) n. The policy of devastating all land and buildings in the course of advancing or retreating troops so as to leave nothing salvageable to the enemy.

scorch-er (skôr'chər) n. 1. One that scorches: an iron that was a scorcher.

2. Informal. An extremely hot day.

score (skôr, skör) n. 1. A notch or an incision, especially one that is made to keep a tally. 2. Sports & Games. a. A usually numerical record of a competitive event: keeping score. b. The total number of points made by each competitor or side in a contest, either final or at a given stage: The score stood tied in the bottom of the ninth inning. c. The number of points attributed to a competitor or team. 3. A result, usually expressed numerically, of a test or examination. 4. a. An amount due; a debt. b. A grievance that is harbored and requires satisfaction: settle an old score. 5. A ground; a reason. 6. A group of 20 items. 7. scores. Large numbers: Scores of people attended the rally. 8. Music. a. The written form of a composition for orchestral or vocal parts, either complete or for a particular instrument or voice. b. A composition written for a musical comedy. 9. Slang. a. The act of securing an advantage, especially a surprising or significant gain: “He had dropped out of school and gone for that quick dollar, that big score” (Peter Goldman). b. The act or an instance of buying illicit drugs. c. A successful robbery. d. A sexual conquest. — v. scored, scor-ing, scores. — v. tr. 1. To mark with lines or notches, especially for the purpose of keeping a record. 2. To cancel or eliminate by or as if by superimposing lines. 3. To mark the surface of (meat, for example) with usually parallel cuts. 4. Sports & Games. a. To gain (a point) in a game or contest. b. To count or be worth as points. 5. To achieve; win. 6. To evaluate and assign a grade to. 7. Music. a. To orchestrate. b. To arrange for a specific instrument. 8. To criticize cuttingly; berate. 9. Slang. a. To succeed in acquiring: scored two tickets to the play. b. To succeed in obtaining (an illicit drug): “Aging punks try to impress her with tales of... the different drugs they’ve scored” (Art Jahnke). — v. intr. 1. Sports & Games. a. To make a point in a game or contest. b. To keep the score of a game or contest. 2. Slang. a. To achieve a purpose or advantage, especially to make a surprising gain or coup: “They... score in places like the bond market” (Mike Barnicle). b. To succeed in seducing someone sexually. c. To succeed in buying or obtaining an illicit drug. [Middle English, from Old English scoru*, twenty, from Old Norse skor. See sker¹ in Appendix.] — scor'er n.

score-board (skôr'bôrd', skör'börd') n. Sports & Games. A large board that records and displays the score of a game or contest.

score-card (skôr'kârd', skör'-) n. Sports & Games. 1. A printed program or card enabling a spectator to identify players and record the progress of a game or competition. 2. A small card used to record one's own performance in sports such as golf.

score-keep-er (skôr'kē'pær, skôr'-) n. Sports & Games. An official who records the score throughout a game or competition. —score/keep'ing adj. & n.

score-less (skôr'lis, skôr'-) adj. Sports & Games. Having no points scored.

Scores-by Sound (skôrz'bē sound, skôrz'-) An arm of the Norwegian Sea indenting eastern Greenland. It has numerous fjords branching generally westward toward the icecap.

sco-ri-a (skôr'ē-ə, skôr'-) *n. pl. sco-ri-ae (skôr'ē-ē', skôr'-). 1. Geology. Porous cinderlike fragments of dark lava. Also called cinders, slag. 2. Metallurgy. The refuse of a smelted metal or ore; slag. Also called cinder [Middle English, dross, from Latin scōria, from Greek skōria, from skōr, excrement, dung. See sker³ in Appendix.] —sco'ri-a'ceous (-ā'shəs) *adj.

sco-ri-fy (skôr'ə-fī', skôr'-) v. tr. sco-ri-fied, sco-ri-fy-ing, sco-ri-fies. To separate (an ore) into scoria and a precious metal. —sco'ri-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. —sco'ri-fi'er n.

scorn (skôrn) n. 1. a. Contempt or disdain felt toward a person or object considered despicable or unworthy. b. The expression of such an attitude in behavior or speech; derision. 2. One spoken of or treated with contempt. — v.

scorned, scorn-ing, scorns. — v. tr. 1. To consider or treat as contemptible or unworthy. 2. To reject or refuse with derision. See Synonyms at despise.

— v. intr. To express contempt; scoff. [Middle English, from Old French escarn, of Germanic origin.] —scorn'er n. —scorn'ful adj. —scorn'ful-ly adv.

—scorn'ful-ness n.

sco-r-pae-noid (skôr-pē'noid') adj. Of or belonging to the suborder Scorpaenoidei, which includes the scorpion fishes and rockfishes. — n. A scorpaenoid fish. [From New Latin Scorpaenoidei, suborder name, from Scorpaena, type genus, from Latin, a kind of fish, from Greek skorpaina, feminine of skorpios, a sea fish, scorpion.] —sco-r-pae'nid (-nīd) adj. & n.

Scor-pi-o (skôr'pē-ō') n. 1. Variant of Scorpius. 2. a. The eighth sign of the zodiac in astrology. b. One who is born under this sign. [Middle English, from Latin Scorpiō, from scorpiō, scorpion. See SCORPION.]

sco-r-pi-oid (skôr'pē-oid') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a scorpion.

2. Botany. Like the tail of a scorpion; circinate: a scorpioid cyme. [Greek skorpioeidēs, scorpionlike : skorpios, scorpion + -oeidēs, -oid.]

sco-r-pi-on (skôr'pē-ən) n. Any of various arachnids of the order Scorpionida, of warm, dry regions, having a segmented body and an erectile tail tipped with a venomous sting. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin scorpiō, scorpiōn-, alteration of scorpius, from Greek skorpios.]

Scor-pi-on (skôr'pē-ən) n. See Scorpius.

scorpion fish (skôr'pē-ən fīsh) n. Any of numerous small, often brilliantly colored marine fishes of the family Scorpaenidae, most species of which have poisonous spines in the dorsal fin.

scorpion fly (skôr'pē-ən flī) n. 1. A mecopterous insect of the family Panorpidae, having in the male of most species a curved genital structure that resembles the sting of a scorpion. 2. Any mecopterous insect; a mecopteran.

scorpion grass (skôr'pē-ən grās) n. See forget-me-not (n., sense 1).

Scor-pi-us (skôr'pē-əs) also Scor-pi-o (-pē-ō') n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Libra and Sagittarius, containing the bright red star Antares. Also called Scorpion [Latin scorpius, scorpion, Scorpius. See SCORPION.]

scot (sköt) n. Money assessed or paid. [Middle English, tax, partly from Old Norse skot, and partly from Old French escot of Germanic origin. See skeud- in Appendix.]

Scot (sköt) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Scotland. 2. A member of the ancient Gaelic tribe that migrated to the northern part of Britain from Ireland in about the sixth century A.D. See Usage Note at Scottish. [From Middle English Scottes, Scotsmen, from Old English Scottas, Scotsmen, Irishmen, from Late Latin Scottī, Irishmen.]

Scot. abbr. Scotch; Scotland; Scottish.

scot and lot (scöt ənd löt) n. A municipal tax formerly levied in Great Britain on the members of a community in proportion to their ability to pay. — idiom. pay scot and lot. To pay in full.

scotch¹ (sköch) v. tr. scotched, scotch-ing, scotch-es. 1. To put an abrupt end to: The prime minister scotched the rumors of her illness with a public appearance. 2. To injure so as to render harmless. 3. To cut or score. — n. 1. A surface cut or abrasion. 2. A line drawn on the ground, as one used in playing hopscotch. [Middle English scocchen, perhaps from Anglo-Norman escocher, to notch : es-, intensive pref. (from Latin ex-); see EX- + Old French coche, notch (probably from Latin coccum, scarlet oak berry, from Greek kokkos).]

scotch² (sköch) v. tr. scotched, scotch-ing, scotch-es. To block (a wheel, for example) with a prop to prevent rolling or slipping. — n. A block or wedge used as a prop behind or under an object likely to roll. [Origin unknown.]

Scotch (sköch) n. Abbr. Sc., Scot. 1. The people of Scotland. 2. Scots English. 3. Scotch whisky. — adj. 1. Scottish. See Usage Note at Scottish. 2. Tight with one's money; frugal. [Contraction of SCOTTISH.]

Scotch egg (sköch ěg) n. A hard-boiled egg wrapped in sausage meat, coated with bread crumbs, and deep-fried.

Scotch-I-rish (sköch'ī'rīsh) n. The people of Scotland who settled in northern Ireland or their descendants, especially those who emigrated to America. — adj. Of or relating to the Scotch-Irish.

Scotch-man (sköch'mən) n. A Scotsman. See Usage Note at Scottish.

Scotch pine (sköch pīn) n. 1. A Eurasian pine tree (Pinus sylvestris) having twisted needles arranged in fascicles of two and yellow wood that is valued as timber. 2. The wood of this tree.

Scotch Plains (sköch plänz) A community of northeast New Jersey west of Elizabeth. It is primarily residential. Population, 21,160.

Scotch terrier (sköch tēr'ē-ər) n. See Scottish terrier.

Scotch verdict (sköch vūr'dīkt) n. 1. Law. A verdict permissible in certain criminal cases indicating only that guilt is not proven. 2. An inconclusive judgment or pronouncement.

Scotch whisky (sköch hwīs'kē) n. A whiskey distilled in Scotland from malted barley.

Scotch-wom-an (sköch'wōm'an) n. A Scotswoman. See Usage Note at Scottish.

Scotch woodcock (sköch wōod'kōk') n. A savory dish consisting of scrambled eggs on toast with anchovies or anchovy paste.

sco-ter (skō'tər) n. Any of several dark-colored diving ducks of the genera Oidemia and Melanitta, of northern coastal areas. Also called coot [Origin unknown.]

scot-free (skōt'frē') adv. 1. Without having to pay: got away from the restaurant scot-free. 2. Without incurring any penalty or punishment: came away from the incident scot-free. —scot'-free' adj.

sco-tia (skō'shə) n. Architecture. A hollow concave molding at or near the base of a column. [Latin, from Greek skotia, from feminine of skotios, dark, shadowy (from the shadow it casts), from skotos, darkness.]

Sco-tia (skō'shə) A medieval and poetic name for Scotland.

Scot-land (skōt'lænd) Abbr. Scot. A constituent country of the United Kingdom comprising the northern part of the island of Great Britain and the Hebrides, Shetland Islands, and Orkney Islands. Inhabited by Picts in prehistoric times, the region was invaded but never conquered by the Romans and split into a variety of small kingdoms after the fifth century A.D. In the ninth century most of Scotland was unified into one kingdom, but conflicts with the English to the south soon erupted, leading to a series of bloody wars. When Mary Queen of Scots's son James VI succeeded to the English throne in 1603, the two kingdoms were united. Scotland became a part of the kingdom of Great Britain by a parliamentary act of 1707. Edinburgh is the capital and Glasgow the largest city. Population, 5,149,500.

Scot-land-ville (skōt'lænd-vīl') An unincorporated community of southeast Louisiana, a residential suburb of Baton Rouge. Population, 15,113.

sco-to-ma (skə-tō'mə) n. pl. sco-to-mas or sco-to-ma-ta (-mə-tə). An area of diminished vision within the visual field. [New Latin scotōma, from Late Latin, dim sight, from Greek skotōma, dizziness, from skotoun, to darken, from skotos, darkness.] —sco-to'ma-tous adj.

sco-to·phil (skō'tə-fīl') also sco-to·phil·ic (skō'tə-fīl'ik) adj. Biology. Growing or functioning best in darkness: a scotophil phase in the circadian rhythm.

[Greek skotos, darkness + -PHIL(E).] —sco-toph'i·ly (skō-tōf'ə-lē, skə-) n.

sco-to·pho·bin (skō'tə-fō'bīn) n. A peptide isolated from the brain tissue of rats conditioned to fear darkness, claimed to have been used in its natural or synthesized form to induce a similar fear in untrained rats, thereby implying that a memory or a conditioned response can be chemically transferred. [Greek skotos, darkness + -PHOB(E) + -IN.] —sco'to·pho'bic adj.

sco-to·pi·a (skə-tō'pē-ə) n. The ability to see in darkness or dim light; dark-adapted vision. [Greek skotos, darkness + -OPIA.] —sco-to'pic (-tō'pik, -tōp'ik) adj.

Scots (skōts) adj. Abbr. Sc. Scottish. See Usage Note at Scottish. — n. The dialect of English used in the Lowlands of Scotland. [Middle English scottis, variant of scottisc, Scottish, from Scotte, sing. of Scottes, Scotsmen. See SCOT.]

Scots·man (skōts'mən) n. A man who is a native or inhabitant of Scotland. See Usage Note at Scottish.

Scots·wom·an (skōts'wōm'ən) n. A woman who is a native or inhabitant of Scotland. See Usage Note at Scottish.

Scott (skōt), Dred. 1795?-1858. American slave who sued for his liberty after spending four years with his master in a territory where slavery had been banned by the Missouri Compromise. The resulting decision by the U.S. Supreme Court (1857) declared the Missouri Compromise unconstitutional because a slave could not be taken from a master without due process of law.

Scott (skōt), Sir George Gilbert. 1811-1878. British architect and a leader of the Gothic revival who restored the edifice of Westminster Abbey.

Scott (skōt), Robert Falcon. 1868-1912. British explorer who reached the South Pole (January 1912) only to find that Roald Amundsen had discovered the spot one month before.

Scott (skōt), Sir Walter. 1771-1832. British writer of ballads and historical novels, a genre he developed. His works include Waverley (1814) and Ivanhoe (1819).

Scott (skōt), Winfield. 1786-1866. American general. A hero of the War of 1812, he captured Veracruz, defeated Santa Anna, and captured Chapultepec during the Mexican War (1846-1848).

Scot·ti·cism (skōt'ī-sīz'əm) n. An idiom or other expression characteristic of Scottish English.

Scot·tie also Scot·ty (skōt'ē) n. pl. Scot·ties. A Scottish terrier.

Scot·tish (skōt'ish) adj. Abbr. Sc., Scot. Of or relating to Scotland or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. Scots English. 2. The people of Scotland. [Middle English scottisc. See SCOTS.]

USAGE NOTE: Scottish is the full, original form of the adjective. Scots is an old Scottish variant of the form; Scotch is an English contraction of Scottish that at one time also came into use in Scotland (as in Burns's "O thou, my Muse! guid auld Scotch drink!") but subsequently fell into disfavor. To some extent these facts can serve as a guide in choosing among the many variant forms of related words, such as Scot, Scotsman or Scotswoman, or Scotchman or Scotchwoman, for one of the people of Scotland; Scots, (the) Scotch, or, rarely, (the) Scottish for the people of Scotland; and Scots, Scotch, or Scottish for the dialect of English spoken in Scotland. The forms based on Scotch are English and disfavored in Scotland, while those involving the full form Scottish tend to be more formal. In the interest of civility, forms involving Scotch are best avoided in reference to people. But there is no sure rule for referring to things, since the history of variation in the use of these words has also left many expressions in which the choice is fixed, such as Scotch broth, Scotch whisky, Scottish rite, and Scots Guards.

Scottish deerhound (sköt'ish dîr'hound') n. See deerhound.

Scottish Gaelic (sköt'ish gā'lik) n. The Goidelic language of Scotland. Also called Erse Scottish rite (sköt'ish rīt) n. A ceremonial rite in a Masonic system.

Scottish terrier (sköt'ish tēr'ē-ər) n. A terrier of a breed originating in Scotland, having a heavy-set body, short legs, a long head with small erect ears, and a hard, wiry coat. Also called Scotch terrier Scot-to (sköt'ō, skôt'tô), Renata. Born 1934?. Italian operatic soprano noted for her dramatic intensity and her roles in the works of Italian composers.

Scott Peak (sköt pēk) A mountain, 3,474.9 m (11,393 ft) high, in the Bitterroot Range of eastern Idaho. It is the highest elevation in the range.

Scotts-dale (sköts'dāl') A city of south-central Arizona, a suburb of Phoenix. It is a noted resort area and retirement community. Population, 130,069.

Scot-ty (sköt'ē) n. Variant of Scottie.

scoun-drel (skoun'drəl) n. A villain; a rogue. [Origin unknown.] —scoun'-drel-ly adj.

scour¹ (skour) v. scoured, scour-ing, scours. — v. tr. 1. a. To clean, polish, or wash by scrubbing vigorously: scour a dirty oven. b. To remove by scrubbing: scour grease from a pan. 2. To remove dirt or grease from (cloth or fibers) by means of a detergent. 3. To clean (wheat) before the milling process. 4. To clear (an area) by freeing of weeds or other vegetation. 5. To clear (a channel or pipe) by flushing. — v. intr. 1. To scrub something in order to clean or polish it.

2. To have diarrhea. Used of livestock. — n. 1. A scouring action or effect.

2. A place that has been scoured, as by flushing with water. 3. A cleansing agent for wool. 4. scours. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Diarrhea in livestock. [Middle English scouren, from Middle Dutch scūren, from Old French escurer, from Late Latin excūrāre, to clean out : Latin ex-, ex- + Late Latin cūrāre, to clean (from Latin, to take care of, from cūra, care); see CURE.] —scour'er n.

scour² (skour) v. scoured, scouring, scours. — v. tr. 1. To search through or over thoroughly: The detective scoured the scene of the crime for clues. 2. To range over (an area) quickly and energetically. — v. intr. 1. To range over or about an area, especially in a search. 2. To move swiftly; scurry. [Middle English scouren, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skūr, shower.]

—scour'er n.

scourge (skûrj) n. 1. A source of widespread, dreadful affliction and devastation such as that caused by pestilence or war. 2. A means of inflicting severe suffering, vengeance, or punishment. 3. A whip used to inflict punishment. — v. tr. scourged, scouring, scourges. 1. To afflict with severe or widespread suffering and devastation; ravage. 2. To chastise severely; excoriate. 3. To flog. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman escorge, from Old French escorgier, to whip, from Vulgar Latin excorrigiāre* : Latin ex-, intensive pref.; see EX- + Latin corrigia, thong (probably of Celtic origin).] —scourg'er n.

scouring rush (skour'ing rūsh) n. Any of several species of horsetail, especially Equisetum hyemale, having rough-ridged stems formerly used for scouring utensils.

scourings (skour'ingz) pl.n. 1. The refuse that remains after scouring grain. 2. Dregs; scum.

scouse (skous) n. 1. A lobscouse. 2. a. Also scous-er (skou'sər). A native or resident of Liverpool, England. b. Often Scouse. The dialect of English spoken in Liverpool. [Short for LOBSCOUSE.]

scout¹ (skout) v. scout-ed, scouting, scouts. — v. tr. 1. To spy on or explore carefully in order to obtain information; reconnoiter. 2. To observe and evaluate (a talented person) for possible hiring. — v. intr. 1. To search: scout around for some gossip. 2. To search for talented people: She scouts for a professional basketball team. — n. 1. a. One that is dispatched from a main body to gather information, especially in preparation for military action. b. The act of reconnoitering. 2. A watcher or sentinel. 3. One who is employed to discover and recruit talented persons, especially in the fields of sports and entertainment. 4. Sports. One who is employed to observe and report on the strategies and players of rival teams. 5. Often Scout. a. A member of the Boy Scouts. b. A member of the Girl Scouts. 6. Informal. An individual; a person: a good scout. 7. Chiefly British. A student's male servant at Oxford University. [From Middle English scoute, act of watching or spying, from Old French escoute, from escouter, to listen, alteration of ascouter, from Vulgar Latin ascultāre*, alteration of Latin auscultāre. See ous- in Appendix.] —scout'er n.

scout² (skout) v. scout-ed, scout-ing, scouts. — v. tr. To reject with disdain or derision. See Synonyms at despise. — v. intr. To treat another with derision; scoff. [Of Scandinavian origin. See skeud- in Appendix.]

scout-ing (skou/'tɪŋ) n. 1. The act of one that scouts. 2. Often Scouting. The activities of the Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts.

scout-mas-ter (skout/'mäs'tər) n. The adult leader in charge of a troop of Boy Scouts.

scow (skou) n. Nautical. A large flatbottomed boat with square ends, used chiefly for transporting freight. [Dutch schouw, from Middle Dutch scouwe.]

scowl (skoul) v. scowled, scowl-ing, scowls. — v. intr. To wrinkle or contract the brow as an expression of anger or disapproval. See Synonyms at frown. — v. tr. To express with a frowning facial expression. — n. A look of anger or frowning disapproval. [Middle English scoulen, probably of Scandinavian origin.] — scowl'er n. — scowl'ing-ly adv.

SCP abbr. Single-cell protein.

SCPO abbr. Senior chief petty officer.

scr. abbr. Scruple (unit of weight).

scrab-ble (skrăb'əl) v. scrab-bled, scrab-bling, scrab-bles. — v. intr.

1. To scrape or grope about frenetically with the hands. 2. To struggle by or as if by scraping or groping. 3. To climb with scrambling, disorderly haste; clamber.

4. To make hasty, disordered markings; scribble. — v. tr. 1. To make or obtain by scraping together hastily. 2. To scribble on or over. — n. 1. The act or an instance of scrabbling. 2. A scribble; a doodle. [Dutch schrabbelen, from Middle Dutch, frequentative of schrabben, to scrape. See sker⁻¹ in Appendix.]

— scrab'bler n. — scrab'bly adj.

scrab-bled (skrăb'əld) adj. Covered with sparse vegetation; scrubby: "We can stand... and look out toward the scrabbled, snow-covered mountains in the west" (Russell Banks).

scrag (skrăg) n. 1. A bony or scrawny person or animal. 2. A piece of lean or bony meat, especially a neck of mutton. 3. Slang. The human neck. — v. tr.

scragged, scrag-ging, scrags. Slang. To wring the neck of; strangle. [Perhaps from dialectal crag, neck, from Middle English cragge, from Middle Dutch crāghe, throat.]

scrag-gly (skrăg'lē) adj. scrag-gli-er, scrag-gli-est. Ragged; unkempt.

scrag-gy (skrăg'ē) adj. scrag-gi-er, scrag-gi-est. 1. Jagged; rough: scraggy cliffs. 2. Bony and lean: a scraggy cat. — scrag'gi-ly adv. — scrag'gi-ness n.

scram (skrăm) Slang. v. intr. scrammed, scam-ming, scrams. 1. To leave a scene at once; go abruptly. 2. To shut down automatically. Used of a nuclear reactor. — n. A rapid shutting down of a nuclear reactor, especially in an emergency. [Perhaps short for SCRAMBLE.]

scram·ble (skräm'bal) v. scram·bled, scram·bling, scram·bles. — v. intr.

1. To move or climb hurriedly, especially on the hands and knees. 2. To struggle or contend frantically in order to get something: scrambled for the best seats.

3. To take off with all possible haste, as to intercept enemy aircraft. 4. Football.

a. To run around with the ball behind the line of scrimmage while searching for an open receiver. b. To run forward with the ball when unable to complete an intended pass play. Used of a quarterback. — v. tr.

1. To mix or throw together haphazardly. 2. To gather together in a hurried or disorderly fashion. 3. To cook (beaten eggs) until firm but with a soft consistency. 4. Electronics. To distort or garble (a signal) so as to render it unintelligible without a special receiver. 5. To cause (aircraft) to take off as fast as possible, as to intercept enemy aircraft. —

n. 1. The act or an instance of scrambling. 2. An arduous hike or climb over rough terrain. 3. An unceremonious scuffle or struggle. 4. Sports. A motorcycle race over rough terrain. 5. A swift takeoff of military aircraft in response to an alert or an attack. [Perhaps blend of obsolete scamble, to struggle for, and cramble, to crawl.]

scram·bled eggs (skräm'bæld ěgz') pl.n. 1. Eggs with the yolks and whites beaten together and cooked to a firm but soft consistency. 2. Slang. The gold braid worn on the bill of the cap of a field-grade officer in the armed services.

scram·bler (skräm'blər) n. 1. An electronic device that scrambles telecommunication signals to make them unintelligible to anyone without a special receiver. 2. A motorcycle with thick ridged tires and strong suspension, designed for riding and racing across rough terrain.

scram·jet (skräm'jět') n. A ramjet airplane engine designed for hypersonic flight that burns fuel in the supersonic airstream produced by the plane. [S(UPER-SONIC) + C(OMBUSTION) + RAMJET.]

Scran·ton (skrän'tən) A city of northeast Pennsylvania northeast of Wilkes-Barre. Settled in the late 1700's, it is a commercial and industrial center in an anthracite coal region. Population, 81,805.

scrap¹ (skrăp) n. 1. A small piece or bit; a fragment. 2. scraps. Leftover bits of food. 3. Discarded waste material, especially metal suitable for reprocessing.

4. scraps. Crisp pieces of rendered animal fat; cracklings. — v. tr. scrapped, scrap·ping, scraps. 1. To break down into parts for disposal or salvage. 2. To discard as worthless; junk. [Middle English, from Old Norse skrap, trifles, pieces. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

scrap² (skrăp) v. intr. scrapped, scrap·ping, scraps. To fight, often with the fists. — n. A fight or a scuffle. [Perhaps variant of SCRAPE.] — scrap'per n.

scrap·book (skrăp'boök') n. A book with blank pages used for the mounting and preserving of pictures, clippings, or other mementos.

scrape (skrăp) v. scrapped, scrap·ing, scrapes. — v. tr. 1. To remove (an outer layer, for example) from a surface by forceful strokes of an edged or rough instrument: scraped the wallpaper off before painting the wall. 2. To abrade or smooth by rubbing with a sharp or rough instrument. 3. To rub (a surface) with considerable pressure, as with an edged instrument or a hard object. 4. To draw (a hard or abrasive object) forcefully over a surface: scraped my fingernails down the blackboard. 5. To injure the surface of by rubbing against something rough or sharp: scraped my knee on the sidewalk. 6. To amass or produce with difficulty: scrape together some cash. — v. intr. 1. To come into sliding, abrasive contact. 2. To rub or move with a harsh grating noise. 3. To give forth a harsh grating noise. 4. To practice petty economies; scrimp. 5. To succeed or manage with difficulty: scraped through by a narrow margin. — n. 1. a. The act of scraping. b. The sound of scraping. 2. An abrasion on the skin. 3. a. An embarrassing predicament. b. A fight; a scuffle. [Middle English scrapen, from Old Norse skrapa. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

scrap-er (skrā'pər) n. One that scrapes, especially a tool for scraping off paint or other adherent matter such as ice on a windshield.

scrap-er-board (skrā'pər-bôrd', -bôrd') n. See scratchboard.

scrap-heap also scrap heap (skrăp'hēp') n. 1. A pile or heap of waste material. 2. A place for discarding useless or worthless material.

scrap-ie (skrā'pē, skrăp'ē) n. A usually fatal disease of sheep and goats, marked by chronic itching, loss of muscular coordination, and progressive degeneration of the central nervous system. [From SCRAPE (from the scraping of itching parts of the skin against objects).]

scrap-ple (skrăp'əl) n. A mush of ground pork and cornmeal that is set in a mold and then sliced and fried. [Diminutive of SCRAP¹.]

scrap-py¹ (skrăp'ē) adj. scrap-pi-er, scrap-pi-est. Composed of scraps; fragmentary: scrappy evidence. — scrap/pi-ly adv. — scrap/pi-ness n.

scrap-py² (skrăp'ē) adj. scrap-pi-er, scrap-pi-est. 1. Quarrelsome; contentious. 2. Full of fighting spirit. See Synonyms at argumentative. — scrap/pi-ly adv. — scrap/pi-ness n.

scratch (skrăch) v. scratched, scratch-ing, scratch-es. — v. tr. 1. To make a thin, shallow cut or mark on (a surface) with a sharp instrument. 2. To use the nails or claws to dig or scrape at. 3. To rub or scrape (the skin) to relieve itching. 4. To scrape or strike on an abrasive surface. 5. To write or draw (something) by scraping a surface: scratched their initials on a rock. 6. To write or draw hurriedly: scratched off a thank-you note. 7. a. To strike out or cancel (a word, for example) by or as if by drawing lines through. b. Slang. To cancel (a project or a program, for example). 8. Sports & Games. To withdraw (an entry) from a contest. — v. intr. 1. To use the nails or claws to dig, scrape, or wound. 2. To rub or scrape the skin to relieve itching. 3. To make a harsh, scraping sound. 4. To gather funds or produce a living with difficulty. 5. a. Sports & Games. To withdraw from a contest. b. Games. To make a shot in billiards that results in a penalty, as when the cue ball falls into a pocket or jumps the cushion. — n. 1. a. A mark resembling a line that is produced by scratching. b. A slight wound. 2. A hasty scribble. 3. A sound made by scratching. 4. a. Sports. The starting line for a race. b. Sports & Games. A contestant who has been withdrawn from a competition. 5. Games. a. The act of scratching in billiards. b. A fluke or chance shot in billiards. 6. Poultry feed. 7. Slang. Money. — adj. 1. Done haphazardly or by chance. 2. Assembled hastily or at random. 3. Sports. Having no golf handicap. — idioms. from scratch. From the very beginning. up to scratch. Informal. 2. Meeting the requirements. 3. In fit condition. [Middle English scracchen, probably blend of scratten, to scratch, cracchen, to scratch (possibly from Middle Dutch cratsen).] — scratch'er n.

scratch-board (skräch'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A drawing board covered with white clay and a black surface layer that is scraped away with a scratching tool to produce black-and-white line drawings. Also called scraperboard scratch hit (skräch hît) n. Baseball. A batted ball that is not squarely struck or cleanly fielded but is counted as a hit.

scratch line (skräch lîn) n. Sports. 1. A starting line for a race. 2. A line beyond which a contestant must not step.

scratch pad (skräch päd) n. 1. A pad of paper for preliminary or hasty writing, notes, or sketches. 2. Also scratch-pad (skräch'päd'). Computer Science. A usually high-speed internal register used for temporary storage of preliminary data or notes.

scratch-proof (scräch'prōof') adj. Resistant to or capable of withstanding scratches: scratchproof glass.

scratch sheet (skräch shēt) n. Sports & Games. A publication listing the horses withdrawn from a day's races and giving information and betting odds on the horses scheduled to race.

scratch test (skräch tĕst) n. A test for allergy performed by scratching the skin and applying an allergen to the wound.

scratch-y (skräch'ē) adj. scratch-i-er, scratch-i-est. 1. Marked by or consisting of scratches: scratchy handwriting. 2. Making a harsh, scratching noise: a scratchy voice; a scratchy record. 3. Harsh and irritating: a scratchy fabric.

4. Irregular; uneven: played a scratchy stroke. — scratch'i-ly adv.

— scratch'i-ness n.

scrawl (skrôl) v. scrawled, scrawling, scrawls. — v. tr. To write hastily or illegibly. — v. intr. To write in a sprawling, irregular manner. — n.

1. Irregular, often illegible handwriting. 2. Something, such as a note, written hastily or illegibly. [Perhaps from obsolete scrawl, to gesticulate, sprawl, from Middle English scrawlen, probably blend of sprawlen, to sprawl; see SPRAWL, and craulen, to crawl; see CRAWL¹.] — scrawl'er n. — scrawl'y adj.

scraw·ny (skrô'nē) adj. scraw·ni·er, scraw·ni·est. Gaunt and bony. See Synonyms at lean². [Alteration of dialectal scranny, possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to Norwegian skran, lean.] —scraw'ni-ness n.

scream (skrēm) v. screamed, scream·ing, screams. — v. intr. 1. To utter a long, loud, piercing cry, as from pain or fear. 2. To make a loud, piercing sound: Jet planes screamed through the air. 3. To speak or write in a heated, hysterical manner. 4. To have or produce a startling effect: The outlandish costume screamed with clashing colors. — v. tr. To utter or say in or as if in a screaming voice. — n. 1. A long, loud, piercing cry or sound. 2. Informal. One that is hilariously or ridiculously funny: The new play was a scream. [Middle English screamen, possibly of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse scræma.] —scream'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: scream, shriek, screech. These verbs mean to make or give voice to a loud, piercing sound. Scream generally denotes a prolonged penetrating sound indicative of physical suffering or emotion, such as fear: “He immediately began to scream with pain” (Francis Marion Crawford). Shriek differs from scream principally in implying a shrill, often frantic cry: “In the midst of the confusion and uproar... Cicero could only shriek that he had saved his country” (J.A. Froude). Screech stresses a high-pitched, strident, often annoying sound: ““Leave me alone!” he screeched” (Robert Louis Stevenson).

scream·er (skrē'mər) n. 1. One that screams, especially one that sings in a harsh, strident manner. 2. Slang. A sensational headline. 3. Slang. One that evokes screams or laughter: The comedian's act is a real screamer. 4. Slang. An exclamation point. 5. Baseball. A hard-hit line drive. 6. Any of several large aquatic birds of the family Anhimidae, of South America, that have a harsh, resonant call.

scream·ing mee·mies (skrē'mɪŋ mē'mēz) pl.n. (Used with a sing. or pl. verb.) Slang. An attack of nerves; the jitters. [Expressive of nervousness.]

scree (skrē) n. 1. Loose rock debris covering a slope. 2. A slope of loose rock debris at the base of a steep incline or cliff. [Probably ultimately from Old Norse skridha, landslide, from skridha, to slide.]

screech (skrēch) n. 1. A high-pitched, strident cry. 2. A sound suggestive of this cry: the screech of train brakes. — v. screched, screech·ing, screech·es. — v. tr. To utter in or as if in a screech. — v. intr. 1. To cry out in a high-pitched, strident voice. See Synonyms at scream. 2. To make a sound suggestive of a screech: Tires screeched on the wet pavement. [Alteration of obsolete scrich, from Middle English scrichen, to screech, perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skrækja.] —screech'er n. —screech'i-ness n.

—screech'y adj.

screech owl (skrēch owl) n. Any of various small owls of the genus Otus, especially O. asio, of North America, having ear tufts and a quavering, whistlelike call.

screed (skrēd) n. 1. A long, monotonous harangue or piece of writing. 2. a. A strip of wood, plaster, or metal placed on a wall or pavement as a guide for the even application of plaster or concrete. b. A layer or strip of material used to level off a horizontal surface such as a floor. c. A smooth final surface of a substance, such as concrete, applied to a floor. [Middle English screde, fragment, strip of cloth, from Old English scrēade, shred.]

screen (skrēn) n. 1. A movable device, especially a framed construction such as a room divider or a decorative panel, designed to divide, conceal, or protect.

2. One that serves to protect, conceal, or divide: Security guards formed a screen around the President. A screen of evergreens afforded privacy from our neighbors.

3. A coarse sieve used for sifting out fine particles, as of sand, gravel, or coal.

4. A system for preliminary appraisal and selection of personnel as to their suitability for particular jobs. 5. A window or door insertion of framed wire or plastic mesh used to keep out insects and permit airflow. 6. a. The white or silver surface on which a picture is projected for viewing. b. The movie industry: a star of stage and screen. Also called silver screen

7. a. Electronics. The phosphorescent surface on which an image is displayed, as on a television, computer monitor, or radar receiver. b. Computer Science. The information or image displayed at a given time on a monitor, display, or video terminal: printing a hard copy of the screen. 8. Electronics. The electrode placed between the anode and the control grid in a tetrode valve. Also called screen grid

9. Printing. A glass plate marked off with crossing lines, placed before the lens of a camera when photographing for halftone reproduction. 10. A body of troops or ships sent in advance of or surrounding a larger body to protect or warn of attack. 11. a. Sports. A block, set with the body, that impedes the vision or movement of an opponent. b. Football.

A screen pass. — v. tr. screened, screen-ing, screens. 1. To provide with a screen: screen a porch. 2. a. To conceal from view with or as if with a screen. See Synonyms at block. See Synonyms at hide¹. b. To protect, guard, or shield.

3. a. To separate or sift out (fine particles of sand, for example) by means of a sieve or screen. b. To examine (a job applicant, for example) systematically in order to determine suitability. 4. To show or project (a movie, for example) on a screen. 5. To test or examine for the presence of disease or infection: screen blood for the presence of a virus; screen patients in an epidemic zone. 6. Sports. a. To block the vision or movement of (an opponent) with the body. b. To obscure an opponent's view of (a shot) by positioning oneself between the opponent and the shooter. [Middle English screne, from Old North French escren, from Middle screen dump (skrēn dŭmp) n. Computer Science. The act or process of transferring data on a screen to a printer or storage medium.

Dutch scherm, shield, screen. See sker-¹ in Appendix.] —screen/a-ble adj.

—screen'er n.

screen grid (skrēn grīd) n. Electronics. See screen (n., sense 8).

screen-ing (skrē'nīng) n. 1. screenings. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) Refuse, such as waste coal, separated by a screen. 2. The mesh material used to make door or window screens. 3. A presentation of a movie.

screen-land (skrēn'länd') n. The movie industry; Hollywood.

screen memory (skrēn mēm'ə-rē) n. A memory of something that is unconsciously used to repress recollection of an associated but distressing event.

screen pass (skrēn pās) n. Football. A short forward pass to a receiver in the flat who is protected by a formation of blockers.

screen-play (skrēn'plā') n. The script for a movie, including camera directions and descriptions of scenes.

screen-print (skrēn'prīnt') v. tr. screen--print-ed, screen--print-ing, screen--prints. To print using the silk-screen process.

screen-print-ing (skrēn'prīnt'īng) n. See silk-screen.

screen test (skrēn tĕst) n. A brief movie sequence filmed to test the ability of an aspiring performer. —screen/-test' (skrēn'tĕst') v.

screen-writ-er (skrēn'rī'tər) n. One who writes screenplays.
—screen/writ'ing n.

screw (skrōō) n. 1. a. A cylindrical rod incised with one or more helical or advancing spiral threads, as a lead screw or worm screw. b. The tapped collar or socket that receives this rod. 2. A metal pin with incised threads and a broad slotted head that can be driven as a fastener by turning with a screwdriver, especially: a. A tapered and pointed wood screw. b. A cylindrical and flat-tipped machine screw. 3. A device having a helical form, such as a corkscrew. 4. A propeller. 5. A twist or turn of or as if of a screw. 6. Slang. a. A prison guard.

b. The turnkey of a jail. 7. Vulgar Slang. The act or an instance of having sexual intercourse. 8. Chiefly British. a. Salary; wages. b. A small paper packet, as of tobacco. c. An old broken-down horse. d. A stingy or crafty bargainer. — v.

screwed, screw-ing, screws. — v. tr. 1. To drive or tighten (a screw).

2. a. To fasten, tighten, or attach by or as if by means of a screw. b. To attach (a tapped or threaded fitting or cap) by twisting into place. c. To rotate (a part) on a threaded axis. 3. To contort (one's face). 4. Slang. To take advantage of; cheat: screwed me out of the most lucrative sales territory. 5. Vulgar Slang. To have sexual intercourse with. — v. intr. 1. To turn or twist. 2. a. To become attached by means of the threads of a screw. b. To be capable of such attachment. 3. Vulgar Slang. To have sexual intercourse. —phrasal verbs. screw around. 1. Slang.

To act or fool around aimlessly or in a confused way and accomplish nothing.

- 2. Vulgar Slang. To be sexually promiscuous. screw up. 3. To muster or summon up: screwed up my courage. 4. Slang. To make a mess of (an undertaking). 5. Slang. To injure; damage: Lifting those boxes really screwed up my back.
- 6. Slang. To make neurotic or anxious. —idiom. have a screw loose. Slang.
- 1. To behave in an eccentric manner. 2. To be insane. [Middle English skrewe, from Old French escrove, female screw, nut, perhaps from Medieval Latin scrōfa, from Latin, sow. See sker¹ in Appendix.] —screw'a·ble adj. —screw'er n.
- screw·ball (skrōō'bôl') n. 1. Baseball. A pitched ball that curves in the direction opposite to that of a normal curve ball. 2. Slang. A person who is regarded as eccentric, impulsively whimsical, or irrational. — adj. Slang. Impulsively whimsical; eccentric: That screwball proposal won't work.
- screw bean (skrōō bēn) n. 1. A shrub or small tree (Prosopis pubescens) of the southwest United States and adjacent areas of Mexico, having pinnately compound leaves, tiny yellowish-white flowers, and twisted pods used as fodder. 2. The pod of this plant. Also called tornillo
- screw cap (skrōō kăp) n. A cap that screws onto the threaded mouth of a container such as a bottle or jar.
- screw·driv·er (skrōō'drī'vər) n. 1. A tool used for turning screws. 2. A cocktail made with vodka and orange juice.
- screw eye (skrōō ī) n. A wood screw with an eyelet in place of a head.
- screw jack (skrōō jăk) n. See jackscrew.
- screw log (skrōō lôg) n. Nautical. See patent log.
- screw pine (skrōō pīn) n. See pandanus.
- screw propeller (skrōō prə-pěl'ər) n. A propeller.
- screw thread (skrōō thrəd) n. 1. The continuous helical groove on a screw or on the inner surface of a nut. 2. One complete turn of a screw thread.
- screw·up also screw-up (skrōō'üp') n. Slang. 1. One that makes a mess of an undertaking; a bungler. 2. A blunder; a mess: a managerial screwup.
- screw·worm (skrōō'wûrm') n. The larva of the screwworm fly.
- screwworm fly (skrōō'wûrm' flī) n. A bluish fly (Cochliomyia hominivorax) of the New World that breeds in the living tissue of mammals, having penetrated chiefly through open wounds or the nostrils, and whose parasitic larvae cause serious injury or death to livestock.
- screw·y (skrōō'ē) adj. screw·i·er, screw·i·est. Slang. 1. Eccentric; crazy. 2. Ludicrously odd, unlikely, or inappropriate. —screw'i·ness n.
- Scri·a·bin (skrē-ă'bīn), Alexander Nikolayevich. 1872-1915. Russian composer of orchestral and piano works who incorporated visual arts into some of his compositions, such as Prometheus (1910), a tonal poem whose performance includes the projection of colored lights.
- scrib·ble (skrīb'əl) v. scrib·bled, scrib·bling, scrib·bles. — v. tr. 1. To write hurriedly without heed to legibility or style. 2. To cover with scribbles, doodles, or meaningless marks. — v. intr. To write or draw in a hurried, careless way. — n. 1. Careless, hurried writing. 2. Meaningless marks and lines. [Middle English scriblen, probably from scriben, to write, from Latin scribere, to write. See skribh- in Appendix.] —scrib'/bly adj.

WORD HISTORY: It is not easy to think simultaneously of the carefully crafted writings of a trained scribe and the hastily scrawled jottings referred to by the word scribble, but the two words are related. Scribe goes back to the Latin scriba, meaning “one who has charge of things such as public records or accounts,” scriba, in turn, coming from scribere, “to write.” The Latin word was borrowed into English directly as well as by way of Old French (scribe), giving us Middle English scribe, first recorded in a work written probably around 1200. People do not always write with great care, especially when pressed for time, as is shown by an early use of the verb scribble in a Middle English text: “Scribled in hast with mine owne hand in default of other helpe.” Hence it is easy to see why the verb scribble came into existence. From Latin scribere English had formed its own verb scriben, “to write,” and probably from this verb with the addition of the suffix -el, denoting diminutive, repetitive, or intensive actions, came the Middle English word scriblen (first recorded around 1456), the ancestor of our word scribble.

scrib·bler (skrīb'lər) n. One who scribbles, especially an author regarded as very minor, untalented, or disreputable: a scribbler of sentimental verse.

scribe (skrīb) n. 1. A public clerk or secretary, especially in ancient times. 2. A professional copyist of manuscripts and documents. 3. A writer or journalist. 4. See scriber. — v. scribed, scrib-ing, scribes. — v. tr. 1. To mark with a scriber. 2. To write or inscribe. — v. intr. To work as a scribe. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin scriba, from Latin, keeper of accounts, secretary, from scribere, to write. See skribh- in Appendix.] —scrib'/al adj.

Scribe (skrēb), Augustin Eugène. 1791-1861. French playwright whose works include more than 300 comedies of manners.

scrib·er (skrī'bər) n. A sharply pointed tool used for marking lines, as on wood, metal, or ceramic. Also called scribe scried (skrīd) v. Past tense and past participle of scry.

scries (skrīz) v. Third person singular present tense of scry.

scrim (skrīm) n. 1. A durable, loosely woven cotton or linen fabric used for curtains or upholstery lining or in industry. 2. A transparent fabric used as a drop in the theater to create special effects of lights or atmosphere. [Origin unknown.]

scrim·mage (skrīm'ij) n. 1. Football. The contest between two teams from the time the ball is snapped until it is declared dead. 2. Sports. A practice session or informal game, as between two units of the same team. 3. a. A rough-and-tumble struggle; a tussle. b. A skirmish. — v. intr. scrim-maged, scrim-mag-ing, scrim-mag-es. Sports. To engage in a scrimmage. [Middle English, alteration of skirmisshē, scrimish. See SKIRMISH.]

scrimp (skrĭmp) v. scrimped, scrim-ping, scrimps. — v. intr. To economize severely. — v. tr. 1. To be excessively sparing with or of. 2. To cut or make too small or scanty. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish skrympa, to shrink.] — scrimp'er n. — scrimp'i-ness n. — scrimp'y adj.

scrim-shand-er (skrĭm'shān'dər) n. One who carves scrimshaw. [Origin unknown.]

scrim-shaw (skrĭm'shō') n. pl. scrimshaw or scrim-shaws. 1. The art of carving or incising intricate designs on whalebone or whale ivory. 2. A decorative article made by this art. — v. tr. intr. scrim-shawed, scrim-shaw-ing, scrim-shaws. To decorate (whale ivory or whalebone) with intricate carvings or designs or make such designs. [Probably from SCRIMSHANDER.]

scrip¹ (skrĭp) n. 1. Paper money issued for temporary emergency use. 2. A small scrap of paper, especially with a short list or schedule written on it. [Perhaps alteration (influenced by SCRAP¹), of SCRIPT.]

scrip² (skrĭp) n. 1. A provisional certificate entitling the holder to a fractional share of stock or of other jointly owned property. 2. Such certificates considered as a group. [Short for subscription receipt, receipt for a portion of a loan.]

scrip³ (skrĭp) n. Archaic. A wallet, small satchel, or bag. [Middle English scrippe.]

scrip issue (skrĭp ĩsh'ōō) n. An issue of shares made by a company free of charge to existing shareholders. Also called bonus issue

Scripps (skrĭps) Family of American newspaper publishers, including James Edmund (1835-1906), who founded the Detroit Evening News (1873), and his half-brother Edward Wyllis Scripps (1854-1926), who established (1907) the news agency that became United Press International and organized the syndication of features and illustrations. James's sister Ellen Browning Scripps (1836-1932) invested heavily in the family's newspaper projects and founded Scripps College in Claremont, California (1926).

script (skrĭpt) n. 1. a. Handwriting. b. A style of writing with cursive characters. c. A particular system of writing: cuneiform script. 2. Printing. a. A style of type that imitates handwriting. b. The matter set in this type. 3. a. The text of a play, broadcast, or movie. b. A copy of a text used by a director or performer. 4. Law. An original document. — v. tr. script-ed, script-ing, scripts. 1. To prepare (a text) for filming or broadcasting. 2. To orchestrate (behavior or an event, for example) as if writing a script: "the brilliant, charming, judicial moderate scripted by his White House fans" (Ellen Goodman). [Middle English skript, a piece of writing, alteration of scrite, from Old French escrit, from Latin scrĭptum, from neuter past participle of scrĭbere, to write. See skriĥb- in Appendix.]

Script. abbr. Scriptural; Scripture.

scrip-to-ri-um (skrĭp-tôr'ē-əm, -tôr'-) n. pl. scrip-to-ri-ums or scrip-to-ri-a (-tôr'ē-ə, -tôr'-). A room in a monastery set aside for the copying, writing, or illuminating of manuscripts and records. [Medieval Latin scrĭptōrium, from Latin scrĭptus, past participle of scrĭbere, to write. See skribh- in Appendix.]

scrip-tur-al (skrĭp'chər-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to writing; written. 2. Often Scriptural. Abbr. Script. Of, relating to, based on, or contained in the Scriptures. —scrip'tur-al-ly adv.

Script-ure (skrĭp'chər) n. Abbr. Script. 1. a. A sacred writing or book. b. A passage from such a writing or book. 2. Often Scriptures. The sacred writings of the Bible. Also called Holy Scriptures 3. scripture. A statement regarded as authoritative. [Middle English, from Late Latin scrĭptūra, from Latin, act of writing, from scrĭptus, past participle of scrĭbere, to write. See skribh- in Appendix.]

scrip-t-writ-er (skrĭpt'ri'tər) n. One who writes copy to be used by an announcer, performer, or director in a film or broadcast. —scrip't/writ'ing n.

scriv-en-er (skrĭv'ə-nər, skrĭv'nər) n. 1. A professional copyist; a scribe: “Gutenberg’s invention of movable type... took words out of the sole possession of monastic scribes and placed them before the wider public” (Irvin Molotsky).

2. A notary. [Middle English scriveiner, from scrivein, from Old French escrivein, from Vulgar Latin scrĭba*, scrĭbān-, from Latin scrĭba, scribe. See SCRIBE.]

scro-bic-u-late (skrō-bĭk'yə-lĭt, -lāt') adj. Biology. Marked with many shallow depressions, grooves, or pits. [Latin scrobiculus, diminutive of scrobis, trench; see sker¹ in Appendix + -ATE¹.]

scrod also schrod (skröd) n. pl. scrod also schrod. New England. A young cod or haddock, especially one split and boned for cooking as the catch of the day. [Possibly from obsolete Dutch schrood, slice, shred, from Middle Dutch scrōde.]

scrof-u-la (skröf'yə-lə) n. A form of tuberculosis affecting the lymph nodes, especially of the neck, that is most common in children and is usually spread by unpasteurized milk from infected cows. Also called struma [Middle English scrophula, from Late Latin scrōfulae, swelling of the glands, diminutive of Latin scrōfa, sow. See sker¹ in Appendix.]

scrof-u-lous (skröf'yə-ləs) adj. 1. Relating to, affected with, or resembling scrofula. 2. Morally degenerate; corrupt: “a scrofulous, grim, darkly funny burlesque on art, celebrity, and love” (Stephen Schiff). —scrof'u-lous-ly adv.

—scrof'u-lous-ness n.

scroll (skröl) n. 1. a. A roll, as of parchment or papyrus, used especially for writing a document. b. An ancient book or volume written on such a roll. 2. A list or schedule of names. 3. An ornament or ornamental design that resembles a partially rolled scroll of paper, as the volute in Ionic and Corinthian capitals.

4. Music. The curved head on an instrument of the violin family. 5. Heraldry. A ribbon inscribed with a motto. — v. scrolled, scroll-ing, scrolls. — v. tr.

1. To inscribe on a scroll. 2. To roll up into a scroll. 3. To ornament with a scroll.

4. Computer Science. To cause (displayed text or graphics) to move vertically or horizontally across the screen so that a line of text or graphics appears at one edge of the screen for each line that moves off the opposite edge: scroll a document; scroll a page of text. — v. intr. Computer Science. 1. To cause displayed text or graphics to move vertically or horizontally across the screen: scrolled down to the end of the document. 2. To appear on screen and roll by: “The information scrolls so fast it’s unreadable” (Creative Computing). [Middle English scrowle, alteration (influenced by rolle, roll, from rollen, to roll); see ROLL, of scrowe, from Old French escroue, escroe, strip of parchment, scroll, of Germanic origin.]

scroll saw (skrōl sô) n. A hand or power saw with a narrow ribbonlike blade for cutting curved or irregular shapes.

scroll-work (skrōl’wûrk’) n. Embellishment with a scroll motif, especially ornamentation executed in wood with a scroll saw.

scrooch also scrootch (skrōoch) v. intr. scrooched also scrootched, scrooch-ing also scrootch-ing, scrooch-es also scrootch-es. To hunch down; crouch: “the hot kind of hot Indiana hot weather that sends the family dog scrooching under the pickup truck to enjoy the shade” (John Skow). [Alteration (perhaps influenced by CROUCH, or scrunch or HUNCH), of scrooge, scrouge, to squeeze, crowd, possibly blend of SCREW, and SQUEEZE.]

Scrooge also scrooge (skrōoj) n. A mean-spirited miserly person; a skinflint. [After Ebenezer Scrooge, miserly protagonist of A Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens.]

scroogie (skrōoj’jē) n. Baseball. A screwball. [Shortening and alteration of SCREWBALL.]

scrootch (skrōoch) v. Variant of scrooch.

scro-tum (skrō’təm) n. pl. scro-ta (-tə) or scro-tums. The external sac of skin enclosing the testes in most mammals. [Latin scrōtum.] — scro’tal (skrōt’l) adj.

scrounge (skrounj) v. scrounged, scroung-ing, scroung-es. Slang. — v. tr. 1. To obtain (something) by begging or borrowing with no intention of reparation: scrounged a few dollars off my brother. 2. To obtain by salvaging or foraging; round up. — v. intr. 1. To seek to obtain something by begging or borrowing with no intention of reparation: scrounge for a cigarette. 2. To forage about in an effort to acquire something at no cost: scrounging around the kitchen for a late-night snack. [Alteration of dialectal scrunge, to steal.] — scroung’er n.

scroung-y (skrounj’jē) adj. scroung-i-er, scroung-i-est. Slang. Dirty or shabby: a scroungy overcoat.

scrub¹ (skrüb) v. scrubbed, scrub-bing, scrubs. — v. tr. 1. a. To rub hard in order to clean. b. To remove (dirt or stains) by hard rubbing. 2. To remove impurities from (a gas) chemically. 3. Slang. To cancel or abandon; drop: We had to scrub our plans for vacation. — v. intr. To clean or wash something by hard rubbing: Don’t forget to scrub behind your ears. — n. The act or an instance of scrubbing. —phrasal verb. scrub up. To wash the hands and arms thoroughly, as before performing or participating in surgery. [Middle English scrobben, to currycomb a horse, from Middle Dutch schrobben, to clean by rubbing, scrape. See sker¹ in Appendix.] —scrub/ba·ble adj.

scrub² (skrüb) n. 1. A straggly, stunted tree or shrub. 2. A growth or tract of stunted vegetation. 3. An undersized or poorly developed domestic animal. 4. An undersized or insignificant person. 5. Sports. A player not on the varsity or first team. 6. Australian. Remote rural land; the bush. [Middle English, variant of shrubbe. See SHRUB¹.]

scrub·ber (skrüb'ər) n. One that scrubs, especially: a. One who cleans floors, for example, by scrubbing. b. A brush, appliance, or abrasive that is used in cleaning. c. An apparatus that is used for removing impurities from a gas.

scrub·by (skrüb'ē) adj. scrub·bi·er, scrub·bi·est. 1. Covered with or consisting of scrub or underbrush. 2. Straggly or stunted. 3. Paltry or shabby; wretched. —scrub/bi·ly adv. —scrub/bi·ness n.

scrub fowl (skrüb foul) n. See megapode.

scrub jay (skrüb jā) n. A blue and gray jay (Aphelocoma coerulescens) with a long, slender body and no crest, found in dense brush or scrub especially in the Florida peninsula.

scrub·land (skrüb'länd') n. An area of land that is uncultivated and covered with sparse, stunted vegetation.

scrub pine (skrüb pīn) n. 1. A straggly pine tree (Pinus virginiana) of the eastern United States, having prickly cones and drooping or spreading branches. Also called spruce pine. 2. See jack pine.

scrub typhus (skrüb tī'fəs) n. An acute infectious disease common in Asia that is caused by the rickettsia R. tsutsugamushi transmitted by mites and that is characterized by sudden fever, painful swelling of the lymphatic glands, skin lesions, and skin rash. Also called Japanese river fever, tsutsugamushi disease.

scrub·wom·an (skrüb'wōm'ən) n. A woman hired to clean.

scruff (skrūf) n. The back of the neck; the nape. [Alteration of dialectal scuft, scuff.]

scruff·y (skrūf'ē) adj. scruff·i·er, scruff·i·est. 1. Shabby; untidy. 2. Chiefly British. Scaly; scabby. [From obsolete scruff, scurf, variant of scurf. See SCURF.] —scruff/i·ly adv. —scruff/i·ness n.

scrum (skrüm) Sports. n. A scrummage. — v. intr. scrumped, scrum·ming, scrums. To engage in a scrummage.

scrum·mage (skrüm'ij) Sports. n. A Rugby formation in which the two sets of forwards mass together around the ball and, with their heads down, try to shoulder their opponents off the ball and kick it to their own team. — v. intr.

scrum·maged, scrum·mag·ing, scrum·mag·es. To engage in a scrummage. [Alteration of SCRIMMAGE.] —scrum/mag·er n.

scrump-tious (skrŭmpʹshəs) adj. Splendid; delectable: “Normandy... where the bosky landscape is enchanting [and the pen] inadequate to describe the scrumptious food and wine” (Daily Telegraph). See Synonyms at delicious. [Perhaps alteration of SUMPTUOUS.] —scrumpʹtious-ly adv. —scrumpʹtious-ness n.

scrunch (skrŭnch, skrŭnch) v. scrunched, scrunch-ing, scrunch-es. — v. tr. 1. To crush or crunch. 2. To crumple or squeeze; hunch: scrunched up their shoulders; scrunch one’s nose against a window. — v. intr. 1. To hunch: “The men scrunched closer” (Susan Dworski). 2. To move with or make a crunching sound: scrunching along the gravel path. — n. A crunching sound. [Probably alteration of CRUNCH.] —scrunchʹa-ble adj.

scru-ple (skrŭpəl) n. 1. An uneasy feeling arising from conscience or principle that tends to hinder action. See Synonyms at qualm. 2. Abbr. sc., scr. A unit of apothecary weight equal to about 1.3 grams, or 20 grains. 3. A minute part or amount. — v. intr. scru-pled, scru-pling, scru-ples. To hesitate as a result of conscience or principle: “A man who could make so vile a pun would not scruple to pick a pocket” (John Dennis). [Middle English scrupul, from Old French scrupule, from Latin scrŭpulus, small unit of measurement, scruple, diminutive of scrŭpus, rough stone, scruple.]

scru-pu-lous (skrŭpʹpyə-ləs) adj. 1. Conscientious and exact; painstaking. See Synonyms at meticulous. 2. Having scruples; principled. [Middle English, from Old French scrupuleux, from Latin scrŭpulŏsus, from scrŭpulus, scruple. See SCRUPLE.] —scruʹpu-losʹi-ty (-lŏsʹi-tē), scruʹpu-lous-ness (-ləs-nĭs) n. —scruʹpu-lous-ly adv.

scru-ta-ble (skrŭtə-bəl) adj. Capable of being understood through study and observation; comprehensible. [Late Latin scrŭtābilis, searchable, from Latin scrŭtārĭ, to search. See SCRUTINY.]

scru-ti-nize (skrŭtʹn-ĭzʹ) v. tr. scru-ti-nized, scru-ti-niz-ing, scru-ti-niz-es. To examine or observe with great care; inspect critically. —scruʹti-nizʹer n. —scruʹti-nizʹing-ly adv.

scru-ti-ny (skrŭtʹn-ē) n. pl. scru-ti-nies. 1. A close, careful examination or study. 2. Close observation; surveillance. [Middle English scrutinie, taking of a formal vote, from Latin scrŭtinium, inquiry, search, from scrŭtārĭ, to search, examine, from scrŭta, trash.]

scry (skrĭ) v. intr. scried (skrĭd), scry-ing, scries (skrĭz). To see or predict the future by means of a crystal ball. [Short for DESCRY.]

SCSI (skŭzʹē) n. Computer Science. Small computer systems interface. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: SCSI port; SCSI technology.

scu-ba (skŭbə) n. A portable apparatus containing compressed air and used for breathing under water. [s(elf-)c(ontained) u(nderwater) b(reathing) a(pparatus).]

WORD HISTORY: To go scuba diving sounds much more desirable than to go self-contained underwater breathing apparatus diving. In talking about such an apparatus, first successfully tested in 1943, it must have seemed much simpler to say scuba, taking the first letter of each word in the phrase and putting them together to form one word. Scuba, like other acronyms, as such words are called, has a vowel at a point that allows it to be pronounced like an English word. The word, first recorded in 1952, has been accepted to the extent that people probably rarely think of it as a collection of initials and furthermore have used it in forming other words, such as scuba-dive. In fact, a verb scuba was first recorded in 1973 and is still in use.

scuba diver (skōō'bə dī'vər) n. One who uses scuba gear in underwater swimming. —scu'ba-dive' (skōō'bə-dīv') v. —scuba diving n.

scud (skūd) v. intr. scud·ded, scud·ding, scuds. 1. To run or skim along swiftly and easily: dark clouds scudding by. 2. Nautical. To run before a gale with little or no sail set. — n. 1. The act of scudding. 2. a. Wind-driven clouds, mist, or rain. b. A gust of wind. c. Ragged low clouds, moving rapidly beneath another cloud layer. [Possibly from Middle English scut, rabbit, rabbit's tail. See SCUT.]

Scu-dé-ry (skōō'dā-rē', skü-), Madeleine or Magdeleine de Known as "Sapho." 1607-1701. French writer of popular romances, including the ten-volume Clélie (1654-1660).

scu-do (skōō'dō) n. pl. scu-di (-dē). A monetary unit and coin formerly used in Italy and Sicily. [Italian, shield, scudo, from Latin scūtum, shield. See skei- in Appendix.]

scuff (skūf) v. scuffed, scuff·ing, scuffs. — v. intr. To scrape the feet while walking; shuffle. — v. tr. 1. To scrape with the feet. 2. To shuffle or shift (the feet), as in embarrassment. 3. To scrape and roughen the surface of. — n. 1. The act or sound of scraping especially with the feet. 2. A worn or rough spot resulting from scraping. 3. A flat, backless house slipper. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skūfa, to push.] —scuff'er n.

scuf·fle¹ (skūf'əl) v. intr. scuf·fled, scuf·fling, scuf·fles. 1. To fight or struggle confusedly at close quarters. 2. To shuffle. — n. A rough, disorderly struggle at close quarters. [Probably frequentative of scuff.] —scuf'fler n.

scuf·fle² (skūf'əl) n. A hoe manipulated by pushing rather than pulling. Also called Dutch hoe, scuffle hoe. [Dutch schoffel, hoe for weeding, from Middle Dutch, hoe, shovel.]

sculch (skūlch) n. New England. Variant of culch (n., sense 3).

scull (skül) Nautical. n. 1. A long oar mounted over the stern of a boat and moved from side to side to propel the boat forward. 2. One of a pair of short-handled oars used by a single rower. 3. A small, light racing boat for one, two, or four rowers. — v. sculled, scull-ing, sculls. — v. tr. To propel (a boat) with a scull. — v. intr. To use a scull to propel a boat. [Middle English sculle.]

—scull'er n.

scul-ler-y (skül'ə-rē) n. pl. scul-ler-ies. A small room adjoining a kitchen, in which dishwashing and other kitchen chores are done. [Middle English, from Old French escuelerie, from escuelier, keeper of dishes, from escuele, dish, from Vulgar Latin scūtella*, alteration (influenced by scūtum, shield), of Latin scutella, salver, diminutive of scutra, platter.]

scul-li-on (skül'yən) n. A servant employed to do menial tasks in a kitchen. [Middle English sculyon, probably from Old French escouvillon, dishcloth, diminutive of escouve, broom, from Latin scōpa, branches, broom.]

sculp. abbr. Sculptor; sculptress; sculpture.

scul-pin (skül'pĭn) n. pl. scul-pins or sculpin. 1. Any of various marine and freshwater fishes of the family Cottidae, having a large flattened head and prominent spines. 2. A scorpion fish (Scorpaena guttata) of California coastal waters. In this sense, also called sea scorpion [Origin unknown.]

sculpt (skulpt) v. sculpt-ed, sculpt-ing, sculpts. — v. tr. 1. To sculpture (an object). 2. To shape, mold, or fashion especially with artistry or precision: “Zoning is a blunt instrument that can at best shape but should not try to sculpt cities” (H. Claude Shostal). — v. intr. To be a sculptor. [French sculpter, from Old French, from Latin sculpere, sculpt-, to carve. See SCULPTURE.]

sculp-tor (skülp'tər) n. 1. Abbr. sculp. One who produces sculptural artwork. 2. One who shapes, molds, or fashions especially with artistry or precision.

[Latin, from sculpere, to carve. See SCULPTURE.]

Sculp-tor (skülp'tər) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Cetus and Phoenix. Also called Sculptor's Workshop Sculp-tor's Workshop (skülp'tərz wŭrk'shŏp') n. See Sculptor.

sculp-tress (skülp'trĭs) n. Abbr. sculp. Usage Problem. A woman who sculpts. See Usage Note at -ess.

sculp-ture (skülp'chər) n. Abbr. sculp. 1. The art or practice of shaping figures or designs in the round or in relief, as by chiseling marble, modeling clay, or casting in metal. 2. a. A work of art created by sculpture. b. Such works of art considered as a group. 3. Ridges, indentations, or other markings, as on a shell, formed by natural processes. — v. sculp-tured, sculp-tur-ing, sculp-tures. — v. tr. 1. To fashion (stone, bronze, or wood, for example) into a three-dimensional figure. 2. To represent in sculpture. 3. To ornament with sculpture. 4. To change the shape or contour of, as by erosion. — v. intr. To make sculptures or a sculpture. [Middle English, from Latin sculptūra, from sculptus, past participle of sculpere, to carve. See skel-¹ in Appendix.] —sculp'tur-al adj. —sculp'tur-al-ly adv.

sculp-tur-escape (skŭlp'chə-rĕsk') adj. Suggestive of or having the qualities of sculpture. — sculp'tur-escape'ly adv.

scultch (skŭlch) n. New England. Variant of culch (n., sense 3).

scum (skŭm) n. 1. A filmy layer of extraneous or impure matter that forms on or rises to the surface of a liquid or body of water. 2. The refuse or dross of molten metals. 3. Refuse or worthless matter. 4. Slang. One, such as a person or an element of society, that is regarded as despicable or worthless. — v. scummed, scum-ming, scums. — v. tr. To remove the scum from. — v. intr. To become covered with scum. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch schūm. See (s)keu- in Appendix.] — scum'mer n. — scum'mi-ly adv. — scum'mi-ness n. — scum'my adj.

scum-bag (skŭm'băg') n. Slang. A person regarded as despicable.

scum-ble (skŭm'bəl) v. tr. scum-bled, scum-bling, scum-bles. 1. To soften the colors or outlines of (a painting or a drawing) by covering with a film of opaque or semiopaque color or by rubbing. 2. To blur the outlines of: a writer who scumbled the line that divides history and fiction. — n. 1. The effect produced by or as if by scumbling. 2. Material used for scumbling. [Possibly from SCUM.]

scun-ner (skŭn'ər) n. A strong dislike; an aversion. [From Middle English skunner, to shrink back in disgust, from scurnen, to flinch.]

Scun-thorpe (skŭn'thōrp') A municipal borough of eastern England southwest of Hull. It has an important iron and steel industry. Population, 65,900.

scup (skŭp) n. pl. scup or scups. A porgy (Stenotomus chrysops) of the northern Atlantic coastal waters, important commercially as a food fish. [Short for Narragansett mishcŭp.]

scup-per¹ (skŭp'ər) n. 1. Nautical. An opening in the side of a ship at deck level to allow water to run off. 2. An opening for draining off water, as from a floor or the roof of a building. [Middle English scoper; possibly akin to scope, scoop. See SCOOP.]

scup-per² (skŭp'ər) v. tr. scup-pered, scup-per-ing, scup-pers. 1. Chiefly British. To overwhelm or massacre. 2. To ruin or destroy: "The world oil glut combined with disastrous federal energy policies to scupper Alberta's economy" (Christian Science Monitor). [Perhaps from SCUPPER¹.]

scup-per-nong (skŭp'ər-nōng', -nōng') n. 1. See muscadine. 2. a. A cultivated variety of the muscadine grape with sweet, yellowish fruit. b. A wine made from this grape. [After the Scuppernong River in northeast North Carolina.]

scurf (skŭrf) n. 1. Scaly or shredded dry skin, such as dandruff. 2. A loose, scaly crust coating a surface, especially of a plant. [Middle English, probably of Scandinavian origin. See sker⁻¹ in Appendix.] — scurf'i-ness n. — scurf'y adj.

scur-rile also scur-ril (skûr'əl, skûr'-) adj. Archaic. Scurrilous. [French, from Old French, from Latin scurrīlis, jeering, from scurra, buffoon, possibly of Etruscan origin.]

scur-ril-i-ty (skə-ril'ī-tē) n. pl. scur-ril-i-ties. 1. The quality of being vulgar, coarse, or abusive. 2. A vulgar, coarse, or abusive remark or passage.

scur-ri-lous (skûr'ə-ləs, skûr'-) adj. 1. Given to the use of vulgar, coarse, or abusive language; foul-mouthed. 2. Expressed in vulgar, coarse, and abusive language. —scur'ri-lous-ly adv. —scur'ri-lous-ness n.

scur-ry (skûr'ē, skûr'ē) v. intr. scur-ried, scur-ry-ing, scur-ries. 1. To go with light running steps; scamper. 2. To flurry or swirl about. — n. pl. scur-ries. 1. The act of scurrying. 2. The noise produced by scurrying. [Probably short for HURRY-SCURRY.]

scur-vy (skûr'vē) n. A disease caused by deficiency of vitamin C, characterized by spongy and bleeding gums, bleeding under the skin, and extreme weakness. — adj. scur-vi-er, scur-vi-est. Mean; contemptible. [From Middle English scurfy, characterized by scurf (influenced by French scorbut, scurvy, from Latin scorbūtus); see SCORBUTIC, from scurf, scurf. See SCURF.] —scur'vi-ly adv. —scur'vi-ness n.

scurvy grass (skûr'vē gräs) n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Cochlearia, especially C. officinalis, of northern Europe, having pungent foliage and formerly used to cure scurvy. 2. See sea kale.

scut (sküt) n. A stubby erect tail, as that of a hare, rabbit, or deer. [Middle English, hare.]

scu-ta (skyōō'tə) n. Plural of scutum.

scu-tage (skyōō'tij) n. A tax paid in lieu of military service in feudal times. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin scūtāgium, from Latin scūtum, shield. See SCUTUM.]

Scu-ta-ri (skōō'tə-rē), Lake. A lake of southeast Europe on the border between southwest Yugoslavia and northwest Albania. It was once an inlet of the Adriatic but is now separated from the sea by an alluvial isthmus.

scu-tate (skyōō'tāt) adj. 1. Zoology. Covered or protected by scutes. 2. Botany. Shaped like a shield or buckler: scutate leaves. [Latin scūtātus, shield-bearing, from scūtum, shield. See SCUTUM.]

scutch (sküch) v. tr. scutched, scutch-ing, scutch-es. To separate the valuable fibers of (flax, for example) from the woody parts by beating. — n. An implement used for scutching. [Obsolete French escoucher, from Anglo-Norman escucher, from Vulgar Latin excuticāre*, frequentative of Latin excutere, to shake out : ex-, ex- + quatere, to shake; see kwēt- in Appendix.] —scutch'er n.

scutch-eon (sküch'ən) n. 1. An escutcheon. 2. A shield-shaped object, such as a scute.

scutch grass (sküch gräs) n. See Bermuda grass.

scute (skyōōt) n. A horny, chitinous, or bony external plate or scale, as on the shell of a turtle or the underside of a snake. Also called scutum [From Latin scūtum, shield. See SCUTUM.]

scu·tel·la (skyōō-těł'ə) n. Plural of scutellum.

scu·tel·late (skyōō-těł'it, skyōōt'ł-āt') also scu·tel·lat·ed (skyōōt'ł-ā'tid) adj.

1. Zoology. a. Covered with shieldlike bony plates or scales. b. Having a scutellum. 2. Botany. Shaped like a shield or platter.

scu·tel·la·tion (skyōōt'ł-ā'šhən) n. An arrangement or a covering of scales, as that on a bird's leg.

scu·tel·lum (skyōō-těł'əm) n. pl. scu·tel·la (-těł'ə). 1. Zoology. A shieldlike bony plate or scale, as on the thorax of some insects. 2. Botany. Any of several shield-shaped structures, such as the cotyledon of a grass. [New Latin, from Latin, diminutive of scūtum, shield. See SCUTUM.] — scu·tel·lar (-těł'ər) adj.

scu·ti·form (skyōō'tə-fōrm') adj. Shield-shaped: scutiform leaves. [Latin scūtum, shield; see SCUTUM + -FORM.]

scut·ter (sküt'ər) v. intr. scut·tered, scut·ter·ing, scut·ters. To move with a clattering, scurrying sound: “The gun scutters over the tiles and lands against the molding of the hallway with a thump” (Scott Turow). [Alteration of SCUTTLE³.]

scut·tle¹ (sküt'ł) n. 1. A small opening or hatch with a movable lid in the deck or hull of a ship or in the roof, wall, or floor of a building. 2. The lid or hatch of such an opening. — v. tr. scut·tled, scut·tling, scut·tles. 1. Nautical. a. To cut or open a hole or holes in (a ship's hull). b. To sink (a ship) by this means. 2. Informal. To scrap; discard: “a program [the] President... sought to scuttle” (Christian Science Monitor). [Middle English skottell, from Old French escoutille, possibly from Spanish escotilla.]

scut·tle² (sküt'ł) n. 1. A metal pail for carrying coal. 2. A shallow open basket for carrying vegetables, flowers, or grain. [Middle English scutel, basket, from Old English, dish, from Latin scutella. See SCULLERY.]

scut·tle³ (sküt'ł) v. intr. scut·tled, scut·tling, scut·tles. To run or move with short hurried movements; scurry. — n. A hurried run. [Middle English scot-tlen; akin to possibly akin to SCUD.]

scut·tle·butt (sküt'ł-büt') n. 1. Slang. Gossip; rumor. 2. Nautical. a. A drinking fountain on a ship. b. A cask on a ship used to hold the day's supply of drinking water. [SCUTTLE¹ + BUTT⁵.]

scu·tum (skyōō'təm) n. pl. scu·ta (-tə). Zoology. See scute. [Latin scūtum, shield. See skei- in Appendix.]

scut·work (sküt'wûrk') n. Informal. Monotonous work or menial tasks that have to be done usually as part of a large, complex job or project. [From scut, worthless person, perhaps from SCOUT².]

scuz·zy (sküz'ē) adj. scuz·zi·er, scuz·zi·est. Slang. 1. Dirty; grimy: scuzzy floors. 2. Disreputable; sleazy: “ran a scuzzy operation” (Myra MacPherson). [Possibly from blend of SCUM, and FUZZ¹.]

Scyl·la (sīl'ə) n. Greek Mythology. A female sea monster who devoured sailors. — idiom. between Scylla and Charybdis. In a position where avoidance of one danger exposes one to another danger.

scy·phis·to·ma (sī-fis'tə-mə) n. pl. scy·phis·to·mae (-mē) or scy·phis·to·mas. A larva of a scyphozoan, consisting of an elongated and deeply constricted polyp that successively splits off minute, free-swimming medusas. [New Latin : Greek skuphos, cup + Greek stoma, mouth.]

scy·pho·zo·an (sī'fə-zō'ən) n. Any of various marine coelenterates of the class Scyphozoa, which includes the large jellyfishes, characterized by the absence of a velum and by a polyp stage that is very small or lacking entirely. — adj. Of or belonging to the class Scyphozoa. [From New Latin Scyphozoa, class name : Greek skuphos, cup + Greek zōia, pl. of zōion, -zoon.]

Scy·ros (skī'rəs, skē'rōs) See Skíros.

scythe (sīth) n. An implement consisting of a long, curved single-edged blade with a long, bent handle, used for mowing or reaping. — v. tr. scythed, scything, scythes. To cut with or as if with a scythe. [Middle English sithe, from Old English sīthe, sickle. See sek- in Appendix.]

Scyth·i·a (sīth'ē-ə, sīth'-) An ancient region of Eurasia extending from the mouth of the Danube River on the Black Sea to the territory east of the Aral Sea. The nomadic people of the region flourished from the eighth to the fourth century B.C. but were conquered by the Sarmatians in the second century and were soon subsumed into other cultures.

Scyth·i·an (sīth'ē-ən, sīth'-) adj. Of or relating to Scythia or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A member of the ancient nomadic people inhabiting Scythia. 2. The Iranian language of the Scythians.

Scyth·o·Dra·vid·i·an (sīth'ō-drə-vīd'ē-ən, sīth'-) adj. Of or relating to an ethnic group of northwest India having mixed Iranian and Dravidian characteristics. [SCYTH(IAN) + DRAVIDIAN.]

SD abbr. 1. Sight draft. 2. Or S.D., South Dakota. 3. Special delivery. 4. Statistics. Standard deviation.

sd. abbr. Sound (body of water).

s.d. abbr. Sine die.

S.Dak. abbr. South Dakota.

SDI or S.D.I. abbr. Strategic Defense Initiative.

SDS abbr. Students for a Democratic Society.

Se The symbol for the element selenium.

SE abbr. 1. a. Southeast. b. Southeastern. 2. Stock exchange.

sea (sē) n. Abbr. s., S. 1. a. The continuous body of salt water covering most of the earth's surface, especially this body regarded as a geophysical entity distinct from earth and sky. b. A tract of water within an ocean. c. A relatively large body of salt water completely or partially enclosed by land. d. A relatively large landlocked body of fresh water. 2. The condition of the ocean's surface with regard to its course, flow, swell, or turbulence: a high sea. 3. Something that suggests the ocean in its overwhelming sweep or vastness: a sea of controversy.

4. Seafaring as a way of life. 5. Astronomy. A lunar mare. — n. attributive.

Often used to modify another noun: sea air; sea voyages. — idiom. at sea.

1. On the sea, especially on a sea voyage. 2. In a state of confusion or perplexity; at a loss. [Middle English see, from Old English sǣ.]

sea anchor (sē ǎng'kər) n. Nautical. A drag, usually a canvas-covered conical frame, floating behind a vessel to prevent drifting or to maintain a heading into the wind. Also called drogue sea anemone (sē ə-nēm'ə-nē) n. Any of numerous flowerlike marine coelenterates of the class Anthozoa, having a flexible cylindrical body and tentacles surrounding a central mouth.

sea bass (sē bās) n. 1. Any of various marine food fishes of the genus Centropristes and related genera, especially C. striatus, of coastal Atlantic waters of the United States. 2. Any of the various similar fishes of the family Serranidea.

sea-bed (sē'bēd') n. The floor of the sea or the ocean.

Sea-bee (sē'bē') n. A member of one of the construction battalions in the U.S. Navy that builds naval aviation bases and facilities. [Alteration of cee bee, pronunciation of the initial letters of construction battalion.]

sea bird (sē būrd) n. A bird, such as a petrel or an albatross, that frequents the ocean, especially far from shore.

sea biscuit (sē bīs'kīt) n. See hardtack.

sea blubber (sē blüb'ər) n. A scyphozoan jellyfish of the genus Cyanea, especially the largest jellyfish, C. arctica, which usually grows to more than 3.6 meters (12 feet) wide and has tentacles over 30 meters (100 feet) long.

sea-board (sē'bôrd', -bôrd') n. 1. A seacoast. 2. Land near the sea.

Sea-borg (sē'bôrg'), Glenn Theodore. Born 1912. American chemist. He shared a 1951 Nobel Prize for the discovery of plutonium.

sea-borne (sē'bôrn', -bôrn') adj. 1. Conveyed by sea; transported by ship. 2. Carried on or over the sea.

sea bread (sē brēd) n. See hardtack.

sea bream (sē brēm) n. Any of various marine food fishes of the family Sparidae or Bramidae, especially a sparid fish (Archosargus rhomboidalis) of western Atlantic coastal waters.

sea breeze (sē brēz) n. A cool breeze blowing from the sea toward the land.

Sea-bur-y (sē'bēr'ē, -bə-rē), Samuel. 1729-1796. American religious leader who was the first bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America (1784-1796).

sea butterfly (sē bū'tər-flī') n. See pteropod.

sea calf (sē kāf) n. See harbor seal.

sea canary (sē kə-nâr'ē) n. See white whale. [So called for the variety of melodious sounds it makes.] sea captain (sē kăp'tən) n. Nautical. The captain of a ship, especially a merchant ship.

sea change (sē chānj) n. 1. A change caused by the sea: "Of his bones are coral made:/Those are pearls that were his eyes:/Nothing of him that doth fade,/But doth suffer a sea change" (Shakespeare). 2. A marked transformation: "The script suffered considerable sea changes, particularly in structure" (Harold Pinter).

sea chest (sē chĕst) n. A box or trunk suitable for use by a sailor to store personal property.

sea-coast (sē'kōst') n. Land bordering the sea. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: seacoast erosion; seacoast villages.

sea-cock (sē'kōk') n. Nautical. A valve in the hull of a boat or ship that may be opened to let in water so as to flood a ballast tank, for example.

sea cow (sē kou) n. Any of several large, cylindrical, herbivorous marine mammals of the order Sirenia, having a paddlelike tail and rounded front flippers, including the manatee, dugong, and the very large species Hydrodamalis stelleri of the northern Pacific that became extinct in the late 1700's. Also called sirenian sea cradle (sē krād'l) n. See chiton (n., sense 1).

sea crayfish also sea crawfish (sē krā'fish') n. See spiny lobster.

sea cucumber (sē kyōō'kŭm'bər) n. Any of various cucumber-shaped echinoderms of the class Holothuroidea, having a flexible body with tentacles surrounding the mouth.

sea devil (sē dĕv'əl) n. See manta (n., sense 2).

sea dog (sē dōg) n. 1. Any of various seals or similar marine mammals.

2. Nautical. A very experienced sailor. 3. sea-dog (sē'dōg', -dōg'). See fog-bow.

sea duck (sē dŭk) n. Any of various diving ducks, such as the eider or scoter, of coastal areas.

sea duty (sē dōō'tē) n. Duty at sea undertaken by personnel in the U.S. Navy.

sea eagle (sē ē'gəl) n. Any of various fish-eating eagles or similar birds, such as the bald eagle or the osprey.

sea elephant (sē ěl'ə-fənt) n. See elephant seal.

Sea Explorer (sē ĩk-splōr'ər) n. A participant in a program designed to train Explorer Scouts in seamanship. Also called Sea Scout sea fan (sē făn) n. Any of various yellowish to reddish fan-shaped corals of the genus Gorgonia, especially G. flabellum, of coastal waters of Florida and the West Indies.

sea-far·er (sē'fâr'ər) n. Nautical. 1. A sailor or mariner. 2. One who travels by sea.

sea-far·ing (sē'fâr'ing) Nautical. n. A sailor's calling. — adj. 1. Following a life at sea: *seafaring peoples of the world; seafaring nations. 2. Fit to travel on the sea; seagoing: *seafaring vessels.

sea feather (sē fěth'ər) n. Any of several anthozoans of the family Pennatulidae, having a featherlike shape formed by an elongate shaft with paired lateral pinnules.

sea fire (sē fīr) n. Bioluminescence produced by marine life.

sea floor also sea-floor (sē'flôr', -flôr') n. The bottom of a sea or an ocean.

sea-floor spread·ing (sē'flôr' sprěd'ing, -flôr') n. In the theory of plate tectonics, the process by which the sea floor is being continuously formed and spread by upwellings from the earth's mantle along the mid-ocean ridges when crustal plates move apart.

sea-food (sē'fōod') n. Edible fish or shellfish from the sea.

Sea-ford (sē'fərd) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on the southern shore of Long Island south of Bethpage. It is mainly residential. Population, 15,597.

sea-fowl (sē'foul') n. 1. A sea bird. 2. Sea birds considered as a group.

sea front (sē frünt) n. A strip of land at the very edge of the sea, especially land desirable for a resort.

sea-girt (sē'gûrt') adj. Surrounded by the sea.

sea-go·ing (sē'gō'ing) adj. Nautical. Made or used for ocean voyages; seafaring.

sea gooseberry (sē gōos'běr'ē) n. A ctenophore of the genus Pleurobrachia, having two tentacles and a round, iridescent body.

sea grant college (sē grănt kōl'ij) n. A state college or university that receives government grants for oceanographic research.

sea grape (sē grăp) n. A small tropical American tree (Coccolobis uvifera) growing on sandy beaches and having large, glossy, leathery, rounded leaves and hard, purplish fruit arranged in grapelike clusters.

sea green (sē grěn) n. Color. A medium green or bluish green.

sea gull also sea-gull (sē'gŭl') n. A gull, especially one found near coastal areas.

sea hog (sē hōg) n. See porpoise (n., sense 1).

sea holly (sē hōl'ē) n. A European seashore plant (Eryngium maritimum) having prickly, fleshy, bluish leaves and heads of blue or purplish flowers.

sea horse (sē hōrs) n. 1. A small marine fish of the genus Hippocampus, characteristically swimming in an upright position and having a prehensile tail, a horselike head, and a body covered with bony plates. 2. See walrus.

3. Mythology. An animal, half fish and half horse, ridden by Neptune and other sea gods. 4. A large white-capped wave.

Sea Island cotton (sē ī'lænd kۆt'n) n. A tropical American species of cotton (Gossypium barbadense) widely cultivated for its fine, long-staple fibers. [After the Sea Islands.]

Sea Islands (sē ī'lændz) A chain of islands in the Atlantic Ocean off South Carolina, Georgia, and northern Florida. The Spanish discovered and first inhabited the islands in the 16th century but were displaced by English colonists after the 17th century.

sea-jack (sē'jäck') v. tr. sea-jacked, sea-jack-ing, sea-jacks. To hijack a ship. [SEA + (HI)JACK.] —sea/jack'er n. —sea/jack'ing n.

sea kale (sē käl) n. A European seashore plant (Crambe maritima) of the mustard family, having edible, cabbagelike leaves. Also called scurvy grass sea king (sē kīng) n. A Viking pirate chief of the early Middle Ages.

seal¹ (sēl) n. 1. a. A die or signet having a raised or incised emblem used to stamp an impression on a receptive substance such as wax or lead. b. The impression so made. c. The design or emblem itself, belonging exclusively to the user: a monarch's seal. d. A small disk or wafer of wax, lead, or paper bearing such an imprint and affixed to a document to prove authenticity or to secure it. 2. Something, such as a commercial hallmark, that authenticates, confirms, or attests. 3. A substance, especially an adhesive agent such as wax or putty, used to close or secure something or to prevent seepage of moisture or air. 4. A device that joins two systems or elements in such a way as to prevent leakage. 5. a. An airtight closure. b. A closure, as on a package, used to prove that the contents have not been tampered with. 6. A small decorative paper sticker. — v. tr. sealed, seal-ing, seals. 1. To affix a seal to in order to prove authenticity or attest to accuracy, legal weight, quality, or another standard. 2. a. To close with or as if with a seal. b. To close hermetically. c. To make fast or fill up, as with plaster or cement. d. To apply a waterproof coating to: seal a blacktop driveway. 3. To grant, certify, or designate under seal or authority. 4. To establish or determine irrevocably: Our fate was sealed. 5. Mormon Church. To make (a marriage, for example) binding for life; solemnize forever. —phrasal verb. seal off. To close tightly or surround with a barricade or cordon: An unused wing of the hospital was sealed off. [Middle English, from Old French seel, from Vulgar Latin sigellum*, from Latin sigillum, diminutive of signum, sign, seal. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.] —seal/a-ble adj.

seal² (sēl) n. 1. Any of various aquatic, carnivorous mammals of the families Phocidae and Otariidae, found chiefly in the Northern Hemisphere and having a sleek, torpedo-shaped body and limbs that are modified into paddlelike flippers.

2. The pelt or fur of one of these animals, especially a fur seal. 3. Leather made from the hide of one of these animals. — v. intr. sealed, seal-ing, seals. To hunt seals. [Middle English sele, from Old English seolh, sēol-.]

sea lamprey (sē lām'prē) n. A large marine lamprey (Petromyzon marinus) common in the Great Lakes and parasitic to freshwater fish.

sea-lane (sē'lān') n. Nautical. A permanent or commonly used sea route.

seal-ant (sē'lənt) n. 1. A substance, such as sealing wax, used to seal a surface to prevent passage of a liquid or gas. 2. A plastic resin used in dentistry to coat the chewing surfaces of the back teeth to prevent the growth of cavity-causing bacteria.

sea lavender (sē lāv'ən-dər) n. Any of several salt-marsh plants of the genus Limonium, having clusters of small lavender or pinkish flowers. Also called statice sea legs (sē lēgz) pl.n. Nautical. The ability to walk on board ship with steadiness, especially in rough seas.

Seal Beach (sēl bēch) A city of southern California on the Pacific Ocean south-southeast of Los Angeles. It is a resort community with various light industries. Population, 25,098.

seal-er¹ (sē'lər) n. 1. One that seals, as an undercoat of paint or varnish used to size a surface. 2. An officer who inspects, tests, and certifies weights and measures.

seal-er² (sē'lər) n. One that is engaged in the hunting of seals.

sea lettuce (sē lēt'əs) n. Any of several green algae of the genus Ulva, having a membranous leaflike, irregularly shaped thallus sometimes used in salads.

sea level (sē lēv'əl) n. Abbr. SL The level of the ocean's surface, especially the level halfway between mean high and low tide, used as a standard in reckoning land elevation or sea depths.

sea-lift (sē'lift') v. tr. sea-lift-ed, sea-lift-ing, sea-lifts. To transport (troops or supplies) by sea, as when ground or air routes are blocked. — n. A system or an instance of such transport.

sea lily (sē lī'lē) n. Any of various marine crinoids having a flowerlike body supported by a long stalk and usually anchored to the ocean floor in deep water.

seal-ing wax (sē'līng wāks) n. A resinous preparation of shellac and turpentine that is soft and fluid when heated but solidifies upon cooling, used to seal letters, batteries, or jars.

sea lion (sē lī'ən) n. Any of several large-eared seals with relatively long neck and limbs, especially Zalophus californianus, of the northern Pacific.

seal ring (sēl rīng) n. See signet ring.

seal-skin (sēl'skīn') n. 1. The pelt or fur, especially the underfur, of a seal. 2. A garment made of sealskin.

Sea-ly-ham terrier (sē'lē-hām' tēr'ē-ər, -lē-əm) n. A terrier of a breed developed in Wales, having a wiry white coat with brownish markings on the head and ears, a long head, powerful jaws, and short legs. [After Sealyham, a town of southwest Wales.]

seam (sēm) n. 1. a. A line of junction formed by sewing together two pieces of material along their margins. b. A similar line, ridge, or groove made by fitting, joining, or lapping together two sections along their edges. c. A suture. d. A scar. 2. A line across a surface, as a crack, fissure, or wrinkle. 3. A thin layer or stratum, as of coal or rock. — v. seamed, seam-ing, seams. — v. tr. 1. To put together with or as if with a seam. 2. To mark with a groove, wrinkle, scar, or other seamlike line. 3. To form ridges in by purling. — v. intr. 1. To become fissured or furrowed; crack open. 2. To purl. [Middle English seme, from Old English sēam. See syū- in Appendix.] — seam'er n.

sea-maid-en (sē'mād'n) also sea-maid (-mād') n. Mythology. A mermaid or sea nymph.

sea-man (sē'mən) n. Nautical. 1. A mariner or sailor. 2. Abbr. SMN a. A non-commissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard that is above seaman apprentice and below petty officer. b. One who holds the rank of seaman, seaman apprentice, or seaman recruit.

Sea-man (sē'mən), Elizabeth Cochrane. Pen name Nellie Bly. 1867-1922. American journalist known for her muckraking articles in the New York World, particularly an exposé on conditions in mental institutions. She also wrote an account of her 72-day journey around the world.

seaman apprentice (sē'mən ə-prən'tīs) n. 1. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard that is above seaman recruit and below seaman. 2. One who holds this rank.

seaman recruit (sē'mən rī-krōt') n. 1. The lowest noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Navy or Coast Guard. 2. One who holds this rank.

sea-man-ship (sē'mən-shīp') n. Nautical. Skill in navigating or managing a boat or ship.

sea-mark (sē'märk') n. Nautical. A landmark visible from the sea, used as a guide in navigation.

sea mew (sē myōō) n. Any of various sea gulls, especially Larus canus, of Europe.

sea mile (sē mīl) n. See nautical mile.

sea milkwort (sē mīlk'wûrt') n. A succulent North American plant (Glaux maritima) of shores and brackish marshes, having pink or white flowers.

seam-less (sēm'līs) adj. 1. Having no seams: seamless stockings. 2. Perfectly consistent: a seamless plot in the novel. — seam'less-ly adv. — seam'less-ness n.

sea-mount (sē'mount') n. An underwater mountain rising from the ocean floor and having a peaked or flat-topped summit below the surface of the sea.

sea mouse (sē mous) n. Any of various large marine polychete worms of the genus Aphrodite, especially A. aculeata, having a flattened elliptic body with overlapping scales covered by long hairs.

seam-ster (sēm'stər) n. A tailor. [Middle English semester, from Old English sēamestre, from sēam, seam. See SEAM.]

seam-stress (sēm'strīs) n. A woman who sews, especially one who makes her living by sewing.

seam-y (sē'mē) adj. seam-i-er, seam-i-est. 1. Sordid; base: “seamy tales of aberrant sexual practices, messy divorces, drug addiction, mental instability, and suicide attempts” (Barbara Goldsmith). 2. Having, marked with, or showing a seam. —seam'i-ness n.

sé-ance (sā'āns', -āns') n. 1. A meeting of people to receive spiritualistic messages. 2. A meeting, session, or sitting, as of a learned or legislative body.

[French, a sitting, from Old French seoir, to sit, from Latin sedēre. See sed- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: A gathering in which phenomena such as levitation, telepathy, and communication with the dead take place should seemingly have little in common with a session of an administrative body of a learned society, but the word séance can refer to both. Séance does not have the mysterious and exciting background one might expect for such a word but rather comes from French séance, “seat, session,” from Old French seoir, “to sit.” In French as in English the word came to be used specifically for a meeting of people to receive spiritualistic messages (a sense first recorded in English in 1845), but earlier in French and English the word had been used for meetings more generally. Certainly the second recorded use of the word in English in 1803 hardly seems to refer to an exciting spiritualistic meeting: “your séances... which I have a shrewd suspicion must be something dull.”

sea nettle (sē nēt'l) n. A stinging jellyfish, especially a scyphozoan (Dactylometra quinquecirrha) of the tropical Atlantic.

sea oats (sē ōts) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) A tall coastal grass (Uniola paniculata) of the southeast United States, Mexico, and the West Indies.

sea onion (sē ūn'yən) n. 1. A Mediterranean plant (Urginea maritima) of the lily family, cultivated for its bulb that yields a powder used medicinally and as a rat poison. Also called red squill, squill. 2. A small bulbous European plant (Scilla verna) having fragrant blue flowers.

sea otter (sē ōt'ər) n. A large marine otter (Enhydra lutris) of northern Pacific coastal waters, formerly hunted for its soft, dark brown fur.

sea palm (sē pām) n. A brown seaweed (Postelsia palmaeformis) found in the middle littoral zone along the Pacific coast of the United States, having a shape resembling a palm tree with numerous edible, toothed blades that crown the tip of a long stipe.

sea peach (sē pēch) n. A tunicate (Halocynthia pyriformis) having a yellow or orange-red color and a sandpapery surface, found in shallow water along the northern Atlantic coast of North America.

sea pen (sē pēn) n. Any of various marine anthozoans of the families Stylatulidae and Funiculinidae, resembling and related to the sea feathers. [From its resemblance to a quill pen.]

sea pigeon (sē pīj'ən) n. A guillemot (Cephus grylle) of the North Atlantic.

sea-plane (sē'plān') n. An aircraft equipped with floats for landing on or taking off from a body of water. Also called hydroplane sea-port (sē'pōrt', -pōrt') n. Abbr. spt A harbor or town having facilities for seagoing ships.

sea power (sē pou'ər) n. 1. A nation having significant naval strength.
2. Naval strength.

sea purse (sē pûrs) n. The purse-shaped egg case of skates, rays, or certain sharks.

sea-quake (sē'kwāk') n. An earthquake originating under the sea floor.

sear¹ (sîr) v. seared, sear-ing, sears. — v. tr. 1. To char, scorch, or burn the surface of with or as if with a hot instrument. See Synonyms at burn¹. 2. To cause to dry up and wither. — v. intr. To become withered or dried up. — n. A condition, such as a scar, produced by searing. [Middle English seren, from Old English sēarian, to wither, from sēar, withered.]

sear² (sîr) n. The catch in a gunlock that keeps the hammer halfcocked or fully cocked. [Probably French serre, something that grasps, from Old French, lock, from serrer, to grasp, from Vulgar Latin serrāre*, from Late Latin serāre, to bolt, from Latin sera, bar, bolt. See ser⁻² in Appendix.]

sear³ (sîr) adj. Variant of sere¹.

sea raven (sē rā'vən) n. A large sculpin (Hemitripterus americanus) of the North Atlantic.

search (sûrch) v. searched, search-ing, search-es. — v. tr. 1. To make a thorough examination of; look over carefully in order to find something; explore. See Synonyms at seek. 2. To make a careful examination or investigation of; probe: search one's conscience for the right solution to the problem. 3. Law. To make a thorough check of (a legal document); scrutinize: search a title. 4. a. To examine in order to find something lost or concealed. b. To examine the person or personal effects of in order to find something lost or concealed. 5. To come to know; learn. — v. intr. To conduct a thorough investigation; seek: were searching for clues. — n. 1. An act of searching. 2. Law. The exercise of right of search. —idiom. search me. Slang. Used by a speaker to indicate that he or she does not have an answer to a question just asked. [Middle English serchen, from Anglo-Norman sercher, variant of Old French cerchier, from Latin circāre, to go around, from Latin circus, circle, from Greek krikos, kirkos. See sker-² in Appendix.] —search/a·ble adj. —search'er n.

search·ing (sûr'chĭng) adj. 1. Examining closely or thoroughly; probing: a searching investigation of their past dealings. 2. Keenly observant: searching insights. —search'ing·ly adv.

search·less (sûrch'lis) adj. Mysterious and inscrutable: gave me a searchless look and then passed by.

search·light (sûrch'lit') n. 1. a. An apparatus containing a light source and a reflector for projecting a high-intensity beam of approximately parallel rays of light. b. The beam of light so projected. 2. A flashlight.

search warrant (sûrch wôr'ənt) n. Law. A warrant giving legal authorization for a search.

sea robin (sē rōb'ĭn) n. Any of various marine fishes of the family Triglidae, having a bony head and extremely long pectoral fins with fingerlike rays that are used as feelers over the sea bottom, especially a gurnard of the genus Prionotus noted for its ability to produce sounds with its air bladder.

sea rocket (sē rōk'ĭt) n. Any of various succulent annual seashore herbs of the genus Cakile, of the mustard family, having pungent foliage and white to lavender flowers.

sea room (sē rōōm) n. Nautical. Space at sea adequate for maneuvering a ship.

sea rover (sē rō'vər) n. Nautical. 1. One that travels extensively by sea. 2. A pirate. 3. A pirate ship.

Sears (sĭrz), Richard Warren. 1863-1914. American merchant who founded (1886) the mail-order business that became Sears, Roebuck and Company.

sea·scape (sē'skāp') n. A view or picture of the sea.

sea scorpion (sē skôr'pē-ən) n. See sculpin (n., sense 2).

Sea Scout (sē skout) n. See Sea Explorer.

sea serpent (sē sûr'pənt) n. A large snakelike marine animal often reported by mariners since antiquity but never positively identified.

sea·shell (sē'shĕl') n. The calcareous shell of a marine mollusk or similar marine organism.

sea·shore (sē'shōr', -shōr') n. 1. Land by the sea. 2. Law. Ground lying between high-water and low-water marks; the foreshore. — n. attributive.

Often used to modify another noun: seashore resorts; seashore plants.

sea·sick·ness (sē'sĭk'nĭs) n. Motion sickness resulting from the pitching and rolling of a ship or boat in water, especially at sea. —sea'sick' adj.

sea·side (sē'sīd') n. The seashore. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: seaside dwellings; seaside amusement parks.

Sea-side (sē'sīd') A city of western California on Monterey Bay west-southwest of Salinas. It is a resort and commercial center for the nearby U.S. military installation Fort Ord. Population, 38,901.

seaside sparrow (sē'sīd' spär'ō) n. A small sparrow (Ammospiza maritima) of the Atlantic coast of North America.

sea slug (sē slŭg) n. Any of various highly colorful marine gastropods of the suborder Nudibranchia, lacking a shell and gills but having fringelike projections that serve as respiratory organs. Also called nudibranch sea snail (sē snāl) n. Any of various marine gastropods, such as a periwinkle, having a spiral shell.

sea snake (sē snāk) n. Any of various venomous tropical snakes of the family Hydrophidae that are adapted to living in the sea, especially in the Pacific and Indian oceans, and that bear live offspring.

sea-son (sē'zən) n. 1. a. One of the four natural divisions of the year, spring, summer, fall, and winter, in the North and South Temperate zones. Each season, beginning astronomically at an equinox or a solstice, is characterized by specific meteorological or climatic conditions. b. The two divisions of the year, rainy and dry, in some tropical regions. 2. A recurrent period characterized by certain occurrences, occupations, festivities, or crops: the holiday season; tomato season. 3. A suitable, natural, or convenient time: a season for merriment. 4. A period of time: gone for a season. — v. sea-soned, sea-son-ing, sea-sons. — v. tr.

1. To improve or enhance the flavor of (food) by adding salt, spices, herbs, or other flavorings. 2. To add zest, piquancy, or interest to: seasoned the lecture with jokes. 3. To treat or dry (lumber, for example) until ready for use; cure. 4. To render competent through trial and experience: a lawyer who had been seasoned by years in the trial courts. 5. To accustom or inure; harden: troops who had been seasoned in combat. See Synonyms at harden. 6. To moderate; temper. — v. intr. To become usable, competent, or tempered. — idioms. in season.

1. Available or ready for eating or other use. 2. Legally permitted to be caught or hunted during a specified period. 3. At the right moment; opportunely. 4. In heat. Used of animals. out of season. 5. Not available, permitted, or ready to be eaten, caught, or hunted. 6. Not at the right or proper moment; inopportune. [Middle English, from Old French seison, from Latin satiō, satiōn-, act of sowing, from satus, past participle of serere, to plant. See sē- in Appendix.]

sea-son-a-ble (sē'zə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. In keeping with the time or the season. 2. Occurring or performed at the proper time; timely. See Synonyms at opportune. See Usage Note at seasonal. — sea'son-a-bly adv.

sea-son-al (sē'zə-nəl) adj. Of or dependent on a particular season. — sea'son-al/i-ty (-zə-nāl'ī-tē) n. — sea'son-al-ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Seasonal and seasonable, though closely related, are differentiated in usage. Seasonal applies to what depends on or is controlled by the season of the year: a seasonal rise in employment. Seasonable applies to what is appropriate to the season (seasonable clothing) or timely (seasonable intervention in the dispute). Rains are seasonal if they occur at a certain time of the year. They are seasonable at any time if they save the crops.

seasonal affective disorder (sē'zə-nəl ə-fĕk'tiv dīs-ôr'dər) n. Abbr. SAD

A mild form of depression occurring at certain seasons of the year, especially one recurring in winter that is characterized by loss of energy and sexual drive, restlessness, and often a craving for carbohydrates.

sea-son-er (sē'zə-nər) n. 1. One that uses seasonings: The cook is a heavy seaso-ner. 2. See seasoning (n., sense 1).

sea-son-ing (sē'zə-nĭng) n. 1. Something, such as a spice or herb, used to flavor food. Also called seasoner 2. The act or process by which something is seasoned.

season ticket (sē'zən tik'ĭt) n. A ticket valid for a specified period of time, as for a series of performances or for transportation between designated points.

sea spider (sē spī'dər) n. Any of various marine arthropods of the class Pycnogonida, having long legs and a relatively small body. Also called pycnogonid sea squirt (sē skwŭrt) n. Any of various sedentary marine animals of the class Ascidiacea, having a transparent sac-shaped body with two siphons. Also called ascidian [From its habit of squirting water when disturbed.]

sea star (sē stār) n. See starfish.

sea-strand (sē'strænd') n. A seashore.

sea swallow (sē swŏl'ō) n. Any of various terns, especially a common tern (Sterna hirundo) that breeds within the Arctic Circle.

seat (sēt) n. 1. Something, such as a chair or bench, that may be sat on. 2. a. A place in which one may sit. b. The right to occupy such a place or a ticket indicating this right: got seats for the concert. 3. The part on which one rests in sitting: a bicycle seat. 4. a. The buttocks. b. The part of a garment that covers the buttocks. 5. a. A part serving as the base of something else. b. The surface or part on which another part sits or rests. 6. a. The place where something is located or based: The heart is the seat of the emotions. b. A center of authority; a capital: the county seat. See Synonyms at center. 7. A place of abode or residence, especially a large house that is part of an estate: the squire's country seat. 8. Membership in an organization, such as a legislative body or stock exchange, that is obtained by appointment, election, or purchase. 9. The manner of sitting on a horse: a fox hunter with a good seat. — v. seat-ed, seat-ing, seats. — v. tr. 1. a. To place in or on a seat. b. To cause or assist to sit down: The ushers will seat the members of the bride's family. 2. To provide with a particular seat: The usher seated me in the back row. 3. To have or provide seats for: We can seat

300 in the auditorium. 4. To install in a position of authority or eminence. 5. To fix firmly in place: seat an ammunition clip in an automatic rifle. — v. intr. To rest on or fit into another part: The O-rings had not seated correctly in their grooves. — idiom. by the seat of (one's) pants. Slang. 1. In a manner based on intuition and experience rather than method: He ran the business by the seat of his pants. 2. Without the use of instruments: an inexperienced pilot who had to fly the aircraft by the seat of her pants. [Middle English sete, probably from Old Norse sæti. See sed- in Appendix.]

sea tangle (sē tāng'gəl) n. Any of various brown algae, especially of the genus Laminaria.

seat-back also seat back (sēt'bāk') n. The back of a chair or other type of seating.

seat belt (sēt bēlt) n. A safety strap or harness designed to hold a person securely in a seat, as in a motor vehicle or an aircraft. Also called safety belt seating (sē'tiŋ) n. 1. a. The act of providing or furnishing with a seat or seats. b. The seats so provided or furnished: seating for 500. 2. The arrangement of seats in a room, an auditorium, or a banquet hall: a theater that offers semicircular seating. 3. The member or part on or within which another part is seated. 4. Material for upholstering seats.

seat-mate (sēt'māt') n. A person sitting next to another on a conveyance such as an airplane: "His seatmate was a gray-haired woman with glasses" (Anne Tyler).

SEATO abbr. Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

seat-of-the-pants (sēt'əv-thə-pānts') adj. Slang. 1. Based on or using intuition and experience rather than a plan or method; improvised: "Each has already moved beyond seat-of-the-pants management to more professional operating procedures" (Business Week). 2. Performed without using instruments: a seat-of-the-pants landing of the aircraft.

sea-train (sē'trān') n. Nautical. A seagoing vessel capable of carrying a train of railroad cars.

sea trout (sē trout) n. 1. Any of several marine fishes of the genus Cynoscion, especially the weakfish. 2. Any of several trouts or similar fishes that live in the sea but migrate to fresh water to spawn.

Se-at-tle¹ (sē-ăt'1), Originally Seatlh. 1786?-1866. Suquamish leader who befriended white settlers of the Pacific Northwest. The city of Seattle is named for him.

Se-at-tle² (sē-ăt'1) A city of west-central Washington bounded by Puget Sound and Lake Washington. First settled in the 1850's, it prospered after the coming of the railroad in 1884 and became a boom town during the Alaskan gold rush of 1897. It is now an important commercial, transportation, and industrial hub and a major port of entry. Population, 516,259.

sea turtle (sē tûr'tl) n. Any of various large marine turtles of the families Cheloniidae and Dermochelyidae, including the green turtle, loggerhead turtle, ridley, and leatherback, having the forelimbs modified into very large flippers and usually living in tropical and subtropical oceans.

seat-work (sēt'wûrk') n. Lessons assigned to be done by students at their desks in the classroom.

sea urchin (sē ûr'chĭn) n. Any of various echinoderms of the class Echinoidea, having a soft body enclosed in a round, symmetrical, calcareous shell covered with long spines.

sea wall also sea-wall (sē'wôl') n. An embankment to prevent erosion of a shoreline.

sea walnut (sē wôl'nût') n. A walnut-shaped ctenophore, especially one of the genus Mnemiopsis.

sea-ward (sē'wærd) adv. & adj. Toward or at the sea. — n. A seaward place or direction. — sea/wards (-wærdz) adv.

sea-ware (sē'wâr') n. Sea wrack used as fertilizer. [Possibly Old English sæwâr: sæ, sea + wâr, seaweed; see wei- in Appendix.]

sea wasp (sē wɔ̃sp) n. Any of various jellyfishes of the class Cubozoa, having a cube-shaped medusa and a venomous, sometimes fatal sting.

sea-water (sē'wô'tær, -wɔ̃t'ær) n. The salt water in or coming from the sea or ocean.

sea-way (sē'wā') n. Nautical. 1. A sea route. 2. An inland waterway for ocean shipping. 3. The headway of a ship. 4. A rough sea.

sea-weed (sē'wēd') n. 1. Any of numerous marine algae, such as a kelp, rockweed, or gulfweed. 2. Any of various marine plants.

sea whip (sē hwĭp) n. Any of various gorgonian corals forming flexible colonies with few or no branches and commonly found on coral reefs of the Atlantic.

sea-wor-thy (sē'wûr'thē) adj. sea-wor-thi-er, sea-wor-thi-est. Nautical. Fit to traverse the seas: a seaworthy freighter; a seaworthy crew. — sea'-wor'thi-ness n.

sea wrack (sē rāk) n. Material cast ashore, especially seaweed.

se-ba-ceous (sĭ-bā'shəs) adj. Physiology. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling fat or sebum; fatty. 2. Secreting fat or sebum. [Latin sēbum, tallow + -ACEOUS.]

sebaceous gland (sĭ-bā'shəs gländ) n. Any of various glands in the dermis of the skin that open into a hair follicle and produce and secrete sebum.

se-bac-ic acid (sĭ-bās'ĭk əs'ĭd, -bā'sĭk) n. A white crystalline acid, $\text{COOH}(\text{CH}_2)_8\text{COOH}$, used in the manufacture of certain synthetic resins and fibers, various plasticizers, and polyester rubbers. [From SEBACEOUS (so called because it was originally obtained from melted suet).]

Se-bas-to-pol (sə-bās'tə-pōl') See Sevastopol.

SEbE abbr. Southeast by east.

sebi- or sebo- pref. Fat; sebum: sebiferous. [From Latin sēbum, tallow.]

se·bif·er·ous (sī-bīf'ər-əs) also se·bip·a·rous (-bīp' -) adj. Producing or secreting fatty, oily, or waxy matter; sebaceous.

sebo- pref. Variant of sebi-.

seb·or·rhe·a also seb·or·rhe·a (sēb'ə-rē'ə) n. A disease of the sebaceous glands characterized by excessive secretion of sebum or an alteration in its quality, resulting in an oily coating, crusts, or scales on the skin. —seb'or·rhe'ic adj.

SEBS abbr. Southeast by south.

se·bum (sē'bəm) n. The semifluid secretion of the sebaceous glands, consisting chiefly of fat, keratin, and cellular material. [Latin sēbum, tallow.]

sec¹ (sĕk) adj. Dry. Used of wines, especially champagne. [French, from Old French, from Latin siccus.]

sec² abbr. 1. Mathematics. Secant. 2. Second. 3. Secondary.

SEC abbr. Securities and Exchange Commission.

sec. abbr. 1. Second. 2. Secondary. 3. Secretary. 4. Section. 5. Sector. 6. Latin. Secundum (according to). 7. Security.

se·cant (sē'kănt', -kənt) n. Abbr. sec Mathematics. 1. a. A straight line intersecting a curve at two or more points. b. The straight line drawn from the center through one end of a circular arc and intersecting the tangent to the other end of the arc. c. The ratio of the length of this line to the length of the radius of the circle. 2. The reciprocal of the cosine of an angle in a right triangle. [From Latin secāns, secant- present participle of secāre, to cut. See sek- in Appendix.]

sec·co (sĕk'ō) n. pl. sec·cos. The art or an example of painting on dry plaster. — adj. Music. Of or being a kind of recitative in which the words are sung rapidly to minimal melody, usually with continuo. [Italian, from Latin siccus, dry.]

se·cede (sī-sēd') v. intr. se·ced·ed, se·ced·ing, se·cedes. To withdraw formally from membership in an organization, association, or alliance. [Latin sēcēdere, to withdraw : sē-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + cēdere, to go; see ked- in Appendix.]

se·cern (sī-sŭrn') v. tr. se·cerned, se·cern·ing, se·cerns. To discern as separate; discriminate. [Latin sēcernere, to sever : sē-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + cernere, to separate; see krei- in Appendix.] —se·cern'ment n.

se·ces·sion (sī-sĕsh'ən) n. 1. The act of seceding. 2. Often Secession. The withdrawal of 11 Southern states from the Union in 1860-1861, precipitating the U.S. Civil War. [Latin sēcēssiō, sēcēssiōn-, from sēcēssus, past participle of sēcēdere, to secede. See SECEDE.] —se·ces'sion·al adj.

se·ces·sion·ism (sī-sĕsh'ə-nīz'əm) n. The policy of those maintaining the right of secession. —se·ces'sion·ist n.

Sech·ua·na (sĕch-wă'nə) n. Variant of Setswana.

Seck·el pear (sĕk'əl pâr, sĭk' -) n. A variety of pear having small, sweet, reddish-brown fruit. [Perhaps from Seckle, the name of a Pennsylvania farmer.]

se·clude (sĭ-klōōd') v. tr. se·clud·ed, se·clud·ing, se·cludes. 1. To set or keep apart, as from social contact with others. See Synonyms at isolate. 2. To screen from view; make private. [Middle English secluden, to shut off, from Latin sēclūdere : sē-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + claudere, to shut.]

se·clud·ed (sĭ-klōō'dĭd) adj. 1. Removed or remote from others; solitary. 2. Screened from view; sequestered. —se·clud'ed·ly adv. —se·clud'ed·ness n.

se·clu·sion (sĭ-klōō'zhən) n. 1. a. The act of secluding. b. The state of being secluded. See Synonyms at solitude. 2. A secluded place or abode. [Medieval Latin sēclūsiō, sēclūsiōn-, from Latin sēclūsus, past participle of sēclūdere, to seclude. See SECLUDE.]

se·clu·sive (sĭ-klōō'sĭv, -zĭv) adj. Of, fond of, or seeking seclusion. —se·clu·sive·ly adv. —se·clu'sive·ness n.

sec·o·bar·bi·tal (sĕk'ō-bār'bĭ-tōl', -tāl') n. A white, odorless barbiturate, $C_{12}H_{18}N_2O_3$, used in the form of its sodium salt as a sedative and hypnotic. [SECO(NDARY) + BARBITAL.]

sec·ond¹ (sĕk'ənd) n. 1. Abbr. sec, sec., s A unit of time equal to one sixtieth of a minute. See Table at measurement. 2. A brief interval of time; a moment. See Synonyms at moment. 3. Abbr. s Mathematics. A unit of angular measure equal to one sixtieth of a minute. [Middle English seconde, from Old French, from Medieval Latin (pars minūta) secunda, second (small part), feminine of Latin secundus, second, following. See SECOND².]

sec·ond² (sĕk'ənd) adj. Abbr. sec. 1. Coming next after the first in order, place, rank, time, or quality. 2. a. Repeating an initial instance: a second chance. b. Reminiscent of one that is well known: a second George Washington; a second Waterloo. c. Alternate; other: every second year. 3. Inferior to another; subordinate: received the title of second vice president at the bank; a leader who is second to none. 4. Music. a. Having a lower pitch. b. Singing or playing a part having a lower range. 5. Having the second-highest ratio. Used of gears in a sequence. — n. Abbr. sec. 1. a. The ordinal number matching the number 2 in a series. b. One of two equal parts. 2. One that is next in order, place, time, or quality after the first. 3. Often seconds. An article of merchandise of inferior quality. 4. The official attendant of a contestant in a duel or boxing match. See Synonyms at assistant. 5. Music. a. The interval between consecutive tones on the diatonic scale. b. A tone separated by this interval from another tone. c. A combination of two such tones in notation or in harmony. d. The second part, instrument, or voice in a harmonized composition. 6. An utterance of endorsement, as to a parliamentary motion. 7. The transmission gear or gear ratio used to produce forward speeds higher than those of first and lower than those of third in a motor vehicle. 8. Or seconds. Informal. A second serving of food. 9. Baseball. Second base. — v. tr. sec·ond·ed, sec·ond·ing, sec·onds. 1. To attend (a duelist or a boxer) as an aide or assistant. 2. To promote or encourage; reinforce. 3. To endorse (a motion or nomination) as a required preliminary to discussion or vote. 4. (sĭ-kōnd') Chiefly British. To transfer (a military officer, for example) temporarily. — adv. Abbr. sec. 1. In the second order, place, or rank: finished second. 2. But for one other; save one: the second highest peak. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin secundus. See sek^w-1 in Appendix.]

Sec-ond Advent (sĕk'ənd əd'vĕnt') n. See Second Coming.

sec-ond-ar-y (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē) adj. Abbr. sec, sec. 1. a. Of the second rank; not primary. b. Inferior. c. Minor; lesser. 2. Derived from what is primary or original: a secondary source; a secondary infection. 3. Of, relating to, or being the shorter flight feathers projecting along the inner edge of a bird's wing. 4. Electricity. Having an induced current that is generated by an inductively coupled primary. Used of a circuit or coil. 5. Chemistry. Characterized or formed by replacement of two atoms or radicals within a molecule. Used of a compound. 6. Geology. Produced from another mineral by decay or alteration. 7. Of or relating to a secondary school: secondary education. 8. Being a degree of health care intermediate between that offered in a physician's office and that available at a research hospital, as the care typically offered at a clinic or community hospital. 9. Botany. Of, relating to, or being growth or tissue caused by activity of the cambium and resulting in wider branches and stems: secondary xylem. — n. pl.

sec-ond-ar-ies. Abbr. sec, sec. 1. One that acts in an auxiliary, subordinate, or inferior capacity. 2. One of the shorter flight feathers projecting along the inner edge of a bird's wing. 3. Electricity. A coil or circuit having an induced current. 4. a. Astronomy. A celestial body that revolves around another; a satellite. b. The dimmer star of a binary star system. 5. Football. The defensive backfield. —sec'ond-ar'i-ly (-dâr'ə-lē) adv. —sec'ond-ar'i-ness n.

secondary accent (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē ək'sĕnt') n. Linguistics. 1. The degree of stress weaker than a primary accent placed on a syllable in the pronunciation of a word. 2. The mark (") used to indicate this degree of stress.

secondary battery (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē băt'ə-rē) n. Electricity. See storage battery.

secondary cell (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē sĕl) n. A rechargeable electric cell that converts chemical energy into electrical energy by a reversible chemical reaction. Also called storage cell secondary color (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē kŭl'ər) n. Color. A color produced by mixing two primary colors in approximately equal proportions.

secondary consumer (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē kən-sōō'mər) n. Ecology. An animal that feeds on smaller plant-eating animals in a food chain.

secondary electron (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē ĭ-lĕk'trŏn') n. An electron produced in secondary emission.

- secondary emission (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē ĭ-mĭsh'ən) n. Emission of electrons from the surface of a substance as a result of bombardment by electrons or ions.
- secondary offering (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē ô'fər-ĭng) n. The sale of a large block of outstanding stock through dealers outside a stock exchange.
- secondary school (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē skōōl) n. A school that is intermediate in level between elementary school and college and that usually offers general, technical, vocational, or college-preparatory curricula.
- secondary sex characteristic (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē sĕks kăr'ək-tə-rĭs'tĭk) n. Any of various genetically transmitted anatomical, physiological, or behavioral characteristics, such as voice quality, abundance of facial hair, or breast development, that first appear in humans at puberty and differentiate between the sexes without having a direct reproductive function.
- secondary syphilis (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē sĭf'ə-lĭs) n. The second and highly infectious stage of syphilis, appearing from seven to ten weeks after the initial exposure, characterized by a general skin rash accompanied by various symptoms of illness such as fatigue, headache, sore throat, muscle pain, and fever.
- secondary wall (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē wōl) n. The innermost wall of a plant cell that is deposited after cell elongation has ceased.
- secondary wave (sĕk'ən-dĕr'ē wāv) n. An earthquake wave in which rock particles vibrate at right angles to the direction of wave travel. It can travel through solids but not through liquids.
- second banana (sĕk'ənd bə-năn'ə) n. Slang. 1. One, such as an assistant or a deputy, who is subordinate to another. 2. One who serves as the straight man opposite the leading comedian in a burlesque.
- second base (sĕk'ənd bās) n. Baseball. 1. The base across the diamond from home plate, to be touched second by a runner. 2. The position played by a second baseman.
- second baseman (sĕk'ənd bās'mən) n. Baseball. The infielder who is positioned near and to the first-base side of second base.
- second best (sĕk'ənd bĕst) n. One that is next to the best. — adv. Next to the best. — sec'ond-best' (sĕk'ənd-bĕst') adj.
- second blessing (sĕk'ənd blĕs'ĭng) n. Sanctification of a Christian believer, considered as a gift of the Holy Spirit given after conversion and sometimes thought of as rendering the believer incapable of committing sin.
- second childhood (sĕk'ənd chĭld'hōōd') n. Senility; dotage.
- second class (sĕk'ənd klās) n. 1. Travel accommodations ranking next below the highest or first class. 2. Second-class mail.
- sec-ond-class (sĕk'ənd-klās') adj. 1. Of secondary status: second-class issues. 2. Of or relating to travel accommodations ranking next below the highest or first class. 3. Of or relating to a class of U.S. and Canadian mail consisting of newspapers and periodicals. — adv. By means of second-class mail or second-class travel accommodations.

second-class citizen (sɛk'ənd-klās' sīt'i-zən) n. A person considered inferior in status or rights in comparison with some others: “He believes women... are second-class citizens under the Constitution” (Edward M. Kennedy).

Second Coming (sɛk'ənd kŭm'ɪŋ) n. Theology. The return of Jesus as judge for the Last Judgment. Also called Advent, Second Advent.

second cousin (sɛk'ənd kŭz'ɪn) n. The child of one's first cousin.

sec-ond-de-gree burn (sɛk'ənd-dī-grē' bŭrn) n. A burn that blisters the skin and is more severe than a first-degree burn.

Second Empire (sɛk'ənd ɛm'pīr') n. A heavily ornate style of furniture, architecture, and decoration that was developed in France in the middle of the 19th century. [After Second Empire, the reign of Napoleon III, the next empire after that of Napoleon I.]

second fiddle (sɛk'ənd fid'l) n. Informal. 1. A secondary role. 2. One who plays a secondary role.

sec-ond-gen-er-a-tion (sɛk'ənd-jěn'ə-rā'shən) adj. 1. Of or relating to a person or persons whose parents are immigrants. 2. Of or relating to a person or persons whose parents are citizens by birth and whose grandparents are immigrants. 3. Computer Science. Of, relating to, or being the period of computer technology distinguished by the use of solid-state circuitry.

second growth (sɛk'ənd grōth) n. Trees that cover an area after the removal of the original stand, as by cutting or fire.

sec-ond-guess (sɛk'ənd-gēs') v. sec-ond--guessed, sec-ond--guess-ing, sec-ond--guess-es. — v. tr. 1. To criticize or correct after an outcome is known. 2. a. To outguess. b. To predict or anticipate: “She can second-guess indictments” (Scott Turow). — v. intr. To criticize a decision after its outcome is known. — sec'ond-guess'er n.

sec-ond-hand (sɛk'ənd-händ') adj. 1. Previously used by another; not new. 2. Dealing in previously used merchandise. 3. Obtained, derived, or borrowed from another; not original. — adv. In an indirect manner; indirectly.

second hand¹ (sɛk'ənd händ) n. The hand of a timepiece that marks the seconds.

second hand² (sɛk'ənd händ) n. An intermediary person or source: heard the news at second hand.

secondhand smoke (sɛk'ənd-händ' smōk) n. Cigarette, cigar, or pipe smoke that is inhaled unintentionally by nonsmokers and may be injurious to their health if inhaled regularly or continuously over a long period.

se-con-di (sī-kōn'dē) n. Music. Plural of secondo.

second lieutenant (sɛk'ənd lōō-tēn'ənt) n. 1. The lowest commissioned rank in the U.S. Army, Air Force, and Marine Corps. 2. One who holds this rank.

sec·ond·ly (sĕk'ənd-lē) adv. In the second place; second.

second mortgage (sĕk'ənd mōr'gĭj) n. A mortgage taken out on property that already has one mortgage, with priority in settlement of claims given to the earlier mortgage.

second nature (sĕk'ənd nā'chər) n. An acquired behavior or trait that is so long practiced as to seem innate. [From the proverb Habit is second nature.] se·con·do (sĭ-kōn'dō) n. pl. se·con·di (-dē). Music. The second part in a concert piece, especially the lower part in a piano duet. [Italian, from Latin secundus, second, following. See sek^w-1 in Appendix.]

second person (sĕk'ənd pūr'sən) n. Grammar. The form of a pronoun or verb used in referring to the person addressed, as you and shall in You shall not enter.

sec·ond·rate (sĕk'ənd-rāt') adj. Of inferior or mediocre quality or value.
—sec'ond-rate'ness n. —sec'ond-rat'er n.

second sight (sĕk'ənd sīt) n. Clairvoyance.

sec·ond·sto·ry man (sĕk'ənd-stōr'ē mǎn, -stōr'ē) n. Informal. A burglar adept at entering through upstairs windows.

sec·ond·strike (sĕk'ənd-strĭk') adj. Of, relating to, or constituting a nuclear-weapons force able to withstand nuclear attack and therefore capable of delivering a retaliatory attack.

sec·ond·string (sĕk'ənd-strĭng') adj. Of, relating to, or being a substitute, as on a sports team. —sec'ond-string'er n.

second thought (sĕk'ənd thōt) n. A reconsideration of a decision or opinion previously made.

second wind (sĕk'ənd wĭnd) n. 1. The return of relative ease of breathing after the initial exhaustion that occurs during continued physical exertion.
2. Restored energy or strength.

Second World (sĕk'ənd wûrld) n. The Communist nations of the world, especially as an economic and political bloc.

Second World War (sĕk'ənd wûrld wôr) n. World War II.

se·cre·cy (sē'krĭ-sē) n. pl. se·cre·cies. 1. The quality or condition of being secret or hidden; concealment. 2. The ability or habit of keeping secrets; closeness. [Alteration of Middle English secretee, from secret, secret. See SECRET.] se·cret (sē'krĭt) adj. 1. Kept hidden from knowledge or view; concealed.

2. Dependably discreet. 3. Operating in a hidden or confidential manner: a secret agent. 4. Not expressed; inward: their secret thoughts. 5. Not frequented; secluded: wandered about the secret byways of Paris. 6. Known or shared only by the initiated: secret rites. 7. Beyond ordinary understanding; mysterious.
8. Containing information, the unauthorized disclosure of which poses a grave threat to national security. — n. 1. Something kept hidden from others or known only to oneself or to a few. 2. Something that remains beyond understanding or explanation; a mystery. 3. A method or formula on which success is based: The secret of this dish is in the sauce. 4. Secret. A variable prayer said after the Offertory and before the Preface in the Mass. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sēcrētus, from past participle of sēcernere, to set aside : sē-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + cernere, to separate; see krei- in Appendix.] —se'cret-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: secret, stealthy, covert, clandestine, furtive, surreptitious, underhand. These adjectives mean deliberately hidden from view or knowledge. Secret is the most general: a desk with a secret compartment; a secret marriage; secret negotiations. Stealthy suggests quiet, cautious deceptiveness intended to escape notice: heard stealthy footsteps on the stairs. Covert describes something that is not overt but is concealed or disguised: Students protested covert actions undertaken by the CIA. Clandestine implies stealth and secrecy for the concealment of an often illegal or improper purpose: a clandestine tryst; clandestine intelligence operations. Furtive suggests the slyness, shiftiness, and evasiveness of a thief: a menacing and furtive look to his eye. Something surreptitious is stealthy, furtive, and often unseemly or unethical: took a surreptitious glance at his watch; the surreptitious mobilization of troops in preparation for a sneak attack. Underhand implies unfairness, deceit, fraud, or slyness as well as secrecy: achieved success in business only by resorting to underhand methods.

se·cre·ta (sī-krē'tə) pl.n. Substances secreted by a cell, a tissue, or an organ; the products of secretion. [Latin sēcrēta, neuter pl. past participle of sēcernere, to set aside. See SECRET.]

se·cre·ta·gogue (sī-krē'tə-gōg', -gōg') n. A hormone or another agent that causes or stimulates secretion. [SECRET(ION)¹ + -AGOGUE.]

sec·re·tar·i·at (sĕk'rī-târ'ē-ĭt) n. 1. a. The department administered by a governmental secretary, especially for an international organization. b. The office occupied by such a department. 2. The office or position of a governmental secretary. [French secrétariat, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sēcrētāriātus, from sēcrētārius, secretary. See SECRETARY.]

sec·re·tar·y (sĕk'rī-tĕr'ē) *n. pl. sec·re·tar·ies. Abbr. sec., secy. 1. A person employed to handle correspondence, keep files, and do clerical work for another person or an organization. 2. An officer who keeps records, takes minutes of the meetings, and answers correspondence, as for a company. 3. An official who presides over an administrative department of state. 4. A desk with a small bookcase on top. [Middle English secretarie, from Medieval Latin sēcrētārius, confidential officer, clerk, from Latin sēcrētus, secret. See SECRET.] —sec're-tar'i-al (-târ'ē-əl) *adj.

secretary bird (sĕk'ri-tĕr'ē būrd) n. A large African bird of prey (Sagittarius serpentarius) with long legs and a crest of quills at the back of the head.

sec-re-tar-y-gen-er-al (sĕk'ri-tĕr'ē-jĕn'ər-əl) n. pl. sec-re-tar-ies-gen-er-al (sĕk'ri-tĕr'ēz-). A principal executive officer, as in certain political parties or governmental bodies such as the United Nations.

secret ballot (sĕ'krīt bāl'ət) n. 1. A type of voting in which each person's vote is kept secret, but the amassed votes of various groups are revealed publicly. 2. See Australian ballot.

se-crete¹ (sĭ-krĕt') v. tr. se-cret-ed, se-cret-ing, se-cret-es. To generate and separate (a substance) from cells or bodily fluids: secrete digestive juices. [Back-formation from SECRETION¹.]

se-crete² (sĭ-krĕt') v. tr. se-cret-ed, se-cret-ing, se-cret-es. 1. To conceal in a hiding place; cache. See Synonyms at hide¹. 2. To steal secretly; filch. [Probably alteration of obsolete secret, from SECRET.]

se-cret-er (sĭ-krĕ'tər) n. Variant of secretor.

se-cre-tin (sĭ-krĕt'n) n. A polypeptide hormone produced in the duodenum, especially on contact with acid, to stimulate secretion of pancreatic juice. [SECRET(ION)¹ + -IN.]

se-cre-tion¹ (sĭ-krĕ'shən) n. 1. The process of secreting a substance, especially one that is not a waste, from the blood or cells: secretion of hormones; secretion of milk by the mammary glands. 2. A substance, such as saliva, mucus, tears, bile, or a hormone, that is secreted. [French sécrétion, from Old French, separation, from Latin sēcrētiō, sēcrētiōn-, from sēcrētus, past participle of sēcernere, to set aside. See SECERN.] —se-cre'tion-ar'y (-shə-nĕr'ē) adj.

se-cre-tion² (sĭ-krĕ'shən) n. 1. The act of concealing something in a hiding place. 2. The act of stealing something secretly. [From SECRETE².]

se-cre-tive (sĕ'krī-tĭv, sĭ-krĕ'tĭv) adj. Having or marked by an inclination to secrecy; not open, forthright, or frank. See Synonyms at silent. —se'cre-tive-ly adv. —se'cre-tive-ness n.

se-cre-tor also se-cret-er (sĭ-krĕ'tər) n. 1. A cell, a tissue, or an organ that produces a secretion. 2. A person whose saliva and other body fluids contain ABO antigens.

se-cre-to-ry (sĭ-krĕ'tə-rĕ) adj. Physiology. Relating to or performing secretion.

secret partner (sĕ'krīt pärt'nər) n. A partner whose participation in a business partnership is hidden from the public.

secret police (sĕ'krīt pə-lĕs') n. A police force operating largely in secret and often using terror tactics to suppress dissent and political opposition.

secret service (sĕ'krīt sŭr'vĭs) n. 1. a. Intelligence-gathering activities conducted secretly by a government agency. b. A government agency engaged in intelligence-gathering activities. 2. Secret Service. A branch of the U.S. Treasury Department concerned especially with protection of the President.

secret society (sē'krīt sə-sī'ī-tē) n. An organization, such as a lodge, that requires its members to conceal certain activities, such as its rites of initiation, from outsiders.

sect (sēkt) n. 1. A group of people forming a distinct unit within a larger group by virtue of certain refinements or distinctions of belief or practice. 2. A religious body, especially one that has separated from a larger denomination. 3. A small faction united by common interests or beliefs. [Middle English secte, from Old French, from Latin secta, course, school of thought, from feminine past participle of sequī, to follow. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

sect. abbr. 1. Section. 2. Sectional.

-sect suff. 1. To cut; divide: trisect. 2. Cut; divided: pinnalect. [From Latin sectus, past participle of secāre, to cut. See sek- in Appendix.]

sec·tar·i·an (sēk-târ'ē-ən) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a sect. 2. Adhering or confined to the dogmatic limits of a sect or denomination; partisan. 3. Narrow-minded; parochial. — n. 1. A member of a sect. 2. One characterized by bigoted adherence to a factional viewpoint. — sec·tar'·i·an·ism n.

sec·ta·ry (sēk'tə-rē) n. pl. sec·ta·ries. 1. A sectarian. 2. A dissenter from an established church, especially a Protestant nonconformist. [Medieval Latin sectārius, from Latin secta, sect. See SECT.] sec·tile (sēk'təl, -tīl') adj. Of or relating to a mineral that can be cut or severed smoothly by a knife but cannot withstand pulverization. [Latin sectilis, from secutus, past participle of secāre, to cut. See sek- in Appendix.] — sec·til'·i·ty (-tīl'ī-tē) n.

sec·tion (sēk'shən) n. Abbr. sec., sect. 1. One of several components; a piece. 2. A subdivision of a written work. 3. Law. A division of a statute or code. 4. A distinct portion of a newspaper: the sports section. 5. A distinct area of a town, county, or country: a residential section. 6. A land unit equal to one square mile (2.59 square kilometers), 640 acres, or 36 of a township. 7. The act or process of separating or cutting, especially the surgical cutting or dividing of tissue. 8. A thin slice, as of tissue, suitable for microscopic examination. 9. A segment of a fruit, especially a citrus fruit. 10. Representation of a solid object as it would appear if cut by an intersecting plane, so that the internal structure is displayed. 11. Music. A group of instruments or voices in the same class considered as a division of a band, an orchestra, or a choir: the rhythm section; the woodwind section. 12. A class or discussion group of students taking the same course: She taught three sections of English composition. 13. a. A portion of railroad track maintained by a single crew. b. An area in a train's sleeping car containing an upper and a lower berth. 14. An army tactical unit smaller than a platoon and larger than a squad. 15. A unit of vessels or aircraft within a division of armed forces. 16. One of two or more vehicles, such as a bus or train, given the same route and schedule, often used to carry extra passengers. 17. a. The character (§) used in printing to mark the beginning of a section. b. This character used as the fourth in a series of reference marks for footnotes. — v. tr. sec-tioned, sec-tion-ing, sec-tions. 1. To separate or divide into parts. 2. To cut or divide (tissue) surgically. 3. To shade or crosshatch (part of a drawing) to indicate sections. [Middle English seccioun, from Old French, from Latin sectiō, sectiōn-, from sectus, past participle of secāre, to cut. See sek- in Appendix.]

sec-tion-al (sĕk'shə-nəl) adj. Abbr. sec. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a particular district. 2. Composed of or divided into component sections. — n. A piece of furniture made up of sections that can be used separately or together. —sec'tion-al-ly adv.

sec-tion-al-ism (sĕk'shə-nə-līz'əm) n. Excessive devotion to local interests and customs. —sec'tion-al-ist n.

sec-tion-al-ize (sĕk'shə-nə-līz') v. tr. sec-tion-al-ized, sec-tion-al-iz-ing, sec-tion-al-iz-es. To divide into sections, especially into geographic sections. —sec'tion-al-i-za'tion (sĕk'shə-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

Sec-tion Eight (sĕk'shən āt) n. 1. A U.S. Army discharge based on military assessment of unfitness or character traits deemed undesirable. 2. Slang. A soldier given such a discharge. [After Section VIII of World War II U.S. Army Regulation 615-360, which provided for the discharge of those deemed unfit for military service.]

section gang (sĕk'shən gǎŋ) n. A work crew assigned to a section of railroad track.

section hand (sĕk'shən hǎnd) n. A laborer assigned to a section gang.

sec-tor (sĕk'tər, -tôr') n. Abbr. sec. 1. Mathematics. a. The portion of a circle bounded by two radii and the included arc. b. A measuring instrument consisting of two graduated arms hinged together at one end. 2. a. A division of a defensive position for which one military unit is responsible. b. A division of an offensive military position. 3. A part or division, as of a city or a national economy: the manufacturing sector; the private sector. 4. Computer Science. A bit or a set of bits on a magnetic storage device making up the smallest addressable unit of information. — v. tr. sec-tored, sec-tor-ing, sec-tors. To divide (something) into sectors. [Late Latin, from Latin, cutter, from sectus, past participle of secāre, to cut. See sek- in Appendix.] —sec-to'ri-al (-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj.

sec-u-lar (sĕk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Worldly rather than spiritual. 2. Not specifically relating to religion or to a religious body: secular music. 3. Relating to or advocating secularism. 4. Not bound by monastic restrictions, especially not belonging to a religious order. Used of the clergy. 5. Occurring or observed once in an age or a century. 6. Lasting from century to century. — n. 1. A member of the secular clergy. 2. A layperson. [Middle English, from Old French seculer, from Late Latin saeculāris, from Latin, of an age, from saeculum, generation, age.] —sec'u-lar-ly adv.

secular humanism (sĕk'yə-lər hyōō'mə-nīz'əm) n. 1. An outlook or a philosophy that advocates human rather than religious values. 2. Secularism.

—secular humanist adj. & n.

sec·u·lar·ism (sĕk'yə-lə-rīz'əm) n. 1. Religious skepticism or indifference.

2. The view that religious considerations should be excluded from civil affairs or public education. —sec'u·lar·ist n. —sec'u·lar·is'tic adj.

sec·u·lar·i·ty (sĕk'yə-lār'ī-tē) n. pl. sec·u·lar·i·ties. 1. The condition or quality of being secular. 2. Something secular.

sec·u·lar·ize (sĕk'yə-lə-rīz') v. tr. sec·u·lar·ized, sec·u·lar·iz·ing, sec·u·lar·iz·es. 1. To transfer from ecclesiastical or religious to civil or lay use or ownership. 2. To draw away from religious orientation; make worldly. 3. To lift the monastic restrictions from (a member of the clergy). —sec'u·lar·i·za'tion (-lə-r-ī-zā'shən) n.

se·cund (sē'künd', sī-künd') adj. Botany & Zoology. Arranged on or turned to one side of an axis. [Latin secundus, following. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

se·cun·dines (sē-kūn'dīnz', sĕk'ən-dīnz') pl.n. The afterbirth. [Middle English secundinas, from Late Latin secundinae, from secundus, following. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

se·cure (sī-kyōōr') adj. se·cur·er, se·cur·est. 1. Free from danger or attack: a secure fortress. 2. Free from risk of loss; safe: Her jewels were secure in the vault. 3. Free from the risk of being intercepted or listened to by unauthorized persons: Only one telephone line in the embassy was secure. 4. Free from fear, anxiety, or doubt. 5. a. Not likely to fail or give way; stable: a secure stepladder. b. Firmly fastened: a secure lock. 6. Reliable; dependable: secure investments. 7. Assured; certain: With three goals in the first period they had a secure victory, but somehow they lost. 8. Archaic. Careless or overconfident. — v. tr. se·cured, se·cur·ing, se·cures. 1. To guard from danger or risk of loss: The troops secured the area before the civilians were allowed to return. 2. To make firm or tight; fasten. See Synonyms at fasten. 3. To make certain; ensure: Despite making several good jokes, he could not secure the goodwill of the audience. 4. a. To guarantee payment of (a loan, for example). b. To guarantee payment to (a creditor). 5. To get possession of; acquire: secured a job. 6. To capture or confine: They secured the suspect in the squad car. 7. To bring about; effect: secured release of the hostages. 8. To protect or ensure the privacy or secrecy of (a telephone line, for example). [Latin sēcūrus : sē-, without; see s(w)e- in Appendix + cūra, care; see CURE.] —se·cur'a·ble adj. —se·cure'ly adv. —se·cure'ment n. —se·cure'ness n. —se·cur'er n.

Se·cu·ri·ties and Exchange Commission (sī-kyōōr'ī-tēz ənd ĩks-chānj' kə-mīsh'ən) n. Abbr. SEC A U.S. government agency that supervises the exchange of securities so as to protect investors against malpractice.

se-cu-ri-tize (sĭ-kyōōr'ĭ-tīz') v. tr. se-cu-ri-tized, se-cu-ri-tiz-ing, se-cu-ri-tiz-es. To buy (loans, such as mortgages) from lenders, arrange them in groups, and issue bonds on the groups.

se-cu-ri-ty (sĭ-kyōōr'ĭ-tē) n. pl. se-cu-ri-ties. Abbr. sec. 1. Freedom from risk or danger; safety. 2. Freedom from doubt, anxiety, or fear; confidence.

3. Something that gives or assures safety, as: a. A group or department of private guards: Call building security if a visitor acts suspicious. b. Measures adopted by a government to prevent espionage, sabotage, or attack. c. Measures adopted, as by a business or homeowner, to prevent a crime such as burglary or assault: Security was lax at the firm's smaller plant. d. Measures adopted to prevent escape: Security in the prison is very tight. 4. Computer Science. a. The level to which a program or device is safe from unauthorized use. b. Prevention of unauthorized use of a program or device. 5. Something deposited or given as assurance of the fulfillment of an obligation; a pledge. 6. One who undertakes to fulfill the obligation of another; a surety. 7. A document indicating ownership or creditorship; a stock certificate or bond. [Middle English securite, from Old French, from Latin sēcūritās, from sēcūrus, secure. See SECURE.] security blanket (sĭ-kyōōr'ĭ-tē bläng'kīt) n. 1. A blanket or toy carried by a child to reduce anxiety. 2. Informal. Something that dispels anxiety.

Se-cu-ri-ty Council (sĭ-kyōōr'ĭ-tē koun'səl) n. Abbr. SC The permanent peacekeeping organ of the United Nations, composed of five permanent members (China, France, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom, and the United States) and ten elected members.

security guard (sĭ-kyōōr'ĭ-tē gārd) n. A person hired by a private organization to guard a physical plant and maintain order.

secy. abbr. Secretary.

sed. abbr. 1. Sediment. 2. Sedimentation.

Se-da-lia (sĭ-dāl'yə) A city of central Missouri east-southeast of Kansas City. It is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 19,800.

se-dan (sĭ-dăn') n. 1. A closed automobile having two or four doors and a front and rear seat. 2. A portable enclosed chair for one person, having poles in the front and rear and carried by two other people. In this sense, also called sedan chair [Origin unknown.]

Se-dan (sĭ-dăn', sə-dăn') A town of northeast France on the Meuse River near the Belgian border. It was the site of the decisive defeat and surrender of Napoleon III (September 2, 1870) in the Franco-Prussian War. Population, 23,477.

Se-dar-im (sĭ-dār'ĭm, sə-dä-rĭm') n. Judaism. A plural of Seder.

se-date¹ (sĭ-dāt') adj. Serenely deliberate, composed, and dignified in character or manner. See Synonyms at serious. [Latin sēdātus, past participle of sēdāre, to settle, calm. See sed- in Appendix.] —se-date/ly adv. —se-date/ness n.

se·date² (sĭ-dāt') v. tr. se·dat·ed, se·dat·ing, se·dates. To administer a sedative to; calm or relieve by means of a sedative drug. [Back-formation from SEDATIVE, and SEDATION.]

se·da·tion (sĭ-dā'shən) n. 1. Reduction of anxiety, stress, irritability, or excitement by administration of a sedative agent or drug. 2. The state or condition induced by a sedative. [Middle English sedacioun, from Old French sedation, from Latin sēdātiō, sēdātiōn-, from sēdātus, past participle of sēdāre, to calm. See SEDATE¹.]

sed·a·tive (sĕd'ə-tĭv) adj. Having a soothing, calming, or tranquilizing effect; reducing or relieving anxiety, stress, irritability, or excitement. — n. An agent or a drug having a soothing, calming, or tranquilizing effect. [Middle English, from Old French sedatif, from Medieval Latin sēdātīvus, from Latin sēdātus, past participle of sēdāre, to calm. See SEDATE¹.]

sed·en·tar·y (sĕd'n-tĕr'ē) adj. 1. Characterized by or requiring much sitting: a sedentary job. 2. Accustomed to sitting or to taking little exercise. 3. Remaining or living in one area, as certain birds; not migratory. 4. Attached to a surface and not moving freely, as a barnacle. [French sédentaire, from Old French, from Latin sedentārius, from sedēns, sedent- present participle of sedēre, to sit. See sed- in Appendix.] — sed'en-tar'i-ly (-tār'ə-lē) adv. — sed'en-tar'i-ness n.

Se·der (sā'dər) n. pl. Se·ders or Se·dar·im (sĭ-dār'ĭm, sĕ-dā-rĭm'). Judaism. The feast commemorating the exodus of the Jews from Egypt, celebrated on the first two nights of Passover. [Hebrew sēder, order, arrangement, Seder.]

se·der·unt (sə-dĭr'ənt, -dĕr'-) n. A prolonged session, as for discussion. [From Latin sēdērunt, third person pl. perfect tense of sedēre, to sit. See sed- in Appendix.]

sedge (sĕj) n. Any of numerous grasslike plants of the family Cyperaceae, having solid stems, leaves in three vertical rows, and spikelets of inconspicuous flowers, with each flower subtended by a scalelike bract. [Middle English segge, from Old English secg. See sek- in Appendix.]

Sedge·moor (sĕj'mōor', -mōr', -mōr') A marshy tract in southwest England where the forces of James II defeated the Duke of Monmouth (June 6, 1685).

se·di·le (sĭ-dī'lē) n. pl. se·di·lia (-dĭl'yə, -dĭl'ē-ə). One of a set of seats, usually three, provided in some Roman Catholic and Anglican churches for the use of the presiding clergy, traditionally placed on the epistle side of the choir near the altar, and in Gothic-style churches often built into the wall. [Latin sedĭle, seat, from sedēre, to sit. See sed- in Appendix.]

sed·i·ment (sĕd'ə-mənt) n. Abbr. sed. 1. Material that settles to the bottom of a liquid; lees. 2. Solid fragments of inorganic or organic material that come from the weathering of rock and are carried and deposited by wind, water, or ice. [Latin sedimentum, act of settling, from sedēre, to sit, settle. See sed- in Appendix.]

sed·i·men·ta·ry (sĕd'ə-mĕn'tə-rĕ, -mĕn'trĕ) also sed·i·men·tal (-mĕn'tl)
adj. 1. Of, containing, resembling, or derived from sediment. 2. Geology. Of or relating to rocks formed by the deposition of sediment.

sed·i·men·ta·tion (sĕd'ə-mĕn-tā'shən, -mĕn-) n. Abbr. sed. The act or process of depositing sediment.

sed·i·men·tol·ogy (sĕd'ə-mĕn-tŏl'ə-jĕ, -mĕn-) n. The science that deals with the description, classification, and origin of sedimentary rock.

—sed'·i·men'to·log'ic (-mĕn'tl-ŏj'ĭk), sed'·i·men'to·log'ic·al (-ĭ-kəl) adj.

—sed'·i·men·tol'og·ist n.

se·di·tion (sĭ-dĭsh'ən) n. 1. Conduct or language inciting rebellion against the authority of a state. 2. Insurrection; rebellion. [Middle English sedicioun, violent party strife, from Old French sedition, from Latin sēditio, sēditiōn- : sēd-, sē-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + itiō, act of going (from itus, past participle of īre, to go); see ei- in Appendix.] —se·di'tion·ist n.

se·di·tious (sĭ-dĭsh'əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the nature of sedition. 2. Given to or guilty of engaging in or promoting sedition. See Synonyms at insubordinate. —se·di'tious·ly adv. —se·di'tious·ness n.

se·duce (sĭ-dŏos', -dyŏos') v. tr. se·duced, se·duc·ing, se·duc·es. 1. To lead away from duty, accepted principles, or proper conduct. See Synonyms at lure.

2. To induce to engage in sex. 3. a. To entice or beguile into a desired state or position. b. To win over; attract. [Middle English seduisen, from Old French seduire, seduis-, alteration (influenced by Medieval Latin sēducere, to lead astray, from Latin, to lead away : sē-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + dūcere, to lead), of suduire, to seduce, from Latin subdūcere, to withdraw : sub-, sub- + dūcere, to lead; see deuk- in Appendix.] —se·duce'a·ble, se·duc'i·ble adj. —se·duc'er n.

se·duce·ment (sĭ-dŏos'mĕnt, -dyŏos'-) n. 1. Seduction. 2. Something that seduces.

se·duc·tion (sĭ-dŭk'shən) n. 1. a. The act of seducing. b. The condition of being seduced. 2. Something that seduces or has the qualities to seduce; an enticement. [Latin sēductiō, sēductiōn-, from sēductus, past participle of sēducere, to lead astray. See SEDUCE.]

se·duc·tive (sĭ-dŭk'tĭv) adj. Tending to seduce: “his sad and fastidious but ever seductive Irish voice” (John Fowles). —se·duc'tive·ly adv. —se·duc'tive·ness n.

se·duc·tress (sĭ-dŭk'trĭs) n. A woman who seduces. See Usage Note at -ess.

sed·u·lous (sĕj'ə-ləs) adj. Persevering and constant in effort or application; assiduous. See Synonyms at busy. [From Latin sēdulus, from sēdulō, zealously : sē, without; see s(w)e- in Appendix + dolō, ablative of dolus, trickery (probably from Greek dolos, cunning); see del-² in Appendix.] —sed'u·lous·ly adv.

—sed'u·lous·ness, se·du'li·ty (sĭ-dŏo'lĭ-tĕ, -dyŏo'-) n.

se-dum (sē'dəm) n. Any of numerous plants of the genus Sedum, having thick, fleshy leaves. [Middle English cedum, from Latin sedum, houseleek.]

see¹ (sē) v. saw (sô), seen (sēn), see-ing, sees. — v. tr. 1. To perceive with the eye. 2. a. To apprehend as if with the eye. b. To detect by means analogous to use of the eye: an electronic surveillance camera that saw the activity in the embassy yard. 3. To have a mental image of; visualize: They could still see their hometown as it once was. 4. To understand; comprehend: I see your point. 5. To consider to be; regard: Many saw her as a world leader. 6. To believe possible; imagine: I don't see him as a teacher. 7. To foresee: I see great things for that child. 8. To know through firsthand experience; undergo: "He saw some service on the king's side" (Tucker Brooke). 9. To give rise to or be characterized by: "Her long reign saw the heyday of verbal humor" (Richard Kain). "The 1930s saw the development of sulfa drugs and penicillin" (Gregg Easterbrook). 10. To find out; ascertain: Please see who's knocking. 11. Abbr. s. To refer to; read: Persons interested in the book's history should see page one of the preface. 12. To take note of; recognize: She sees only the good aspects of the organization. 13. To meet or be in the company of: I saw all my aunts and uncles at the reunion. 14. To share the companionship of often or regularly: He's been seeing the same woman for eight years. 15. a. To visit socially; call on. b. To visit for consultation: You ought to see your doctor more frequently. 16. To admit or receive, as for consultation or a social visit: The doctor will see you now. 17. To attend; view: Let's see a movie. 18. To escort; attend: I'm seeing Nellie home. 19. To make sure; take care: See that it gets done right away. 20. Games. a. To meet (a bet) in card games. b. To meet the bet of (another player). — v. intr. 1. To have the power to perceive with or as if with the eye. 2. To understand; comprehend. 3. To consider: Let's see, which suitcase should we take? 4. a. To go and look: She had to see for herself and went into the garage. b. To ascertain; find out: We probably can do it, but we'll have to see. 5. To have foresight: "No man can see to the end of time" (John F. Kennedy). 6. To take note. — phrasal verbs. see about. 1. To attend to. 2. To investigate. see after. To take care of: Please see after the children while I'm gone. see off. To take leave of (someone): saw the guests off at the door; went to the airport to see us off. see out. To escort (a guest) to the door: Will you please see Ms. Smith out? see through. 6. To understand the true character or nature of: We saw through his superficial charm. 7. To provide unstinting support, cooperation, or management in good times and bad: We'll see you through until you finish your college education. I saw the project through and then resigned. see to. To attend to: See to the chores, will you? — idiom. see red. Informal. To be extremely angry. [Middle English sen, from Old English sēon. See sek^{w-2} in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: see, behold, note, notice, espy, descry, observe, contemplate, survey, view, perceive, discern, remark. These verbs refer to being or becoming visually or mentally aware of something. See, the most general, can mean merely to use the faculty of sight but more often implies recognition, understanding, or appreciation: “We must... give the image of what we actually see” (Paul Cézanne). “If I have seen further (than... Descartes) it is by standing upon the shoulders of Giants” (Isaac Newton). Behold more strongly implies awareness of what is seen: “My heart leaps up when I behold/A rainbow in the sky” (William Wordsworth). Note and notice suggest close observation and a rather detailed visual or mental impression; note in particular implies careful, systematic recording in the mind: Be careful to note where the road turns left. I have noted and overridden your protests. She didn’t notice the run in her stocking until she had arrived at the office. I notice that you’re out of sorts. Espy and descry both stress acuteness of sight that permits the detection of something distant, partially hidden, or obscure: “espied the misspelled Latin word in [the] letter” (Los Angeles Times); “the lighthouse, which can be descried from a distance” (Michael Strauss). Observe emphasizes careful, closely directed attention: “I saw the pots... red-hot... and observed that they did not crack at all” (Daniel Defoe). Contemplate implies looking attentively and thoughtfully: “It is interesting to contemplate an entangled bank, clothed with many plants of many kinds, with birds singing on the bushes” (Charles Darwin). Survey stresses detailed, often comprehensive examination: “Strickland looked away and idly surveyed the ceiling” (W. Somerset Maugham). View usually suggests examination with a particular purpose in mind or in a special way: The medical examiner viewed the victim’s body. “He [man] viewed the crocodile as a thing sometimes to worship, but always to run away from” (Thomas De Quincey). Perceive and discern both imply not only visual recognition but also mental comprehension; perceive is especially associated with insight, and discern, with the ability to distinguish, discriminate, and make judgments: “We perceived a little girl coming towards us” (Frederick Marryat). “I plainly perceive [that] some objections remain” (Edmund Burke). Even with a magnifying glass I couldn’t discern any imperfections in the porcelain. Many in the audience lack the background and taste to discern a good performance of the sonata from a bad one. Remark suggests close attention and often an evaluation of what is noticed: “Their assemblies afforded me daily opportunities of remarking characters and manners” (Samuel Johnson).

see² (sē) n. 1. The official seat, center of authority, jurisdiction, or office of a bishop. 2. Obsolete. A cathedra. [Middle English, from Old French se, from Vulgar Latin sedem*, from Latin sēdēs, seat. See sed- in Appendix.]

See (sē), Thomas Jefferson Jackson. 1866–1962. American astronomer and mathematician who investigated double stars and developed the wave theory of gravitation.

see-catch (sē’käch’) n. pl. see-catch-ie (-käch’ē). The adult male fur seal of Alaska. [Russian sekach, from sech, to cut.]

seed (sēd) n. pl. seeds or seed. 1. A ripened plant ovule containing an embryo. 2. A propagative part of a plant, as a tuber or spore. 3. Seeds considered as a group. 4. The seed-bearing stage of a plant. 5. Something that resembles a seed, as a tiny bubble in a piece of glass or a small crystal added to a solution to start crystallization. 6. A source or beginning; a germ. 7. Offspring; progeny. 8. Family stock; ancestry. 9. Sperm; semen. 10. A seed oyster or oysters; spat. 11. Sports. A player who has been seeded for a tournament, often at a given rank: a top seed. — v. seed-ed, seed-ing, seeds. — v. tr. 1. To plant seeds in (land, for example); sow. 2. To plant in soil. 3. To remove the seeds from (fruit). 4. Meteorology. To sprinkle (a cloud) with particles, as of silver iodide, in order to disperse it or produce rain. 5. Sports. a. To arrange (the drawing for positions in a tournament) so that the more skilled contestants meet in the later rounds. b. To rank (a contestant) in this way. 6. To help (a business, for example) in its early development. — v. intr. 1. To sow seed. 2. To go to seed. — adj. 1. Set aside for planting a new crop: seed corn; seed wheat. 2. Intended to help in early stages: provided seed capital for a fledgling business. — idiom. go to seed (or run to seed). 1. To pass into the seed-bearing stage. 2. To become weak or devitalized; deteriorate: The old neighborhood has gone to seed. [Middle English, from Old English sæd, sēd. See sē- in Appendix.]

seed-bed (sēd'bēd') n. 1. A bed of soil cultivated for planting seeds. 2. An area or source of growth or gradual manifestation: a seedbed of revolution.

seed cake (sēd kāk) n. A sweet cake or cookie containing aromatic seeds.

seed coat (sēd kōt) n. Botany. The outer protective covering of a seed.

seed-eat-er (sēd'ē'tər) n. Any bird that feeds primarily on seeds, especially a finch of the genus Sporophila.

seed-er (sē'dər) n. 1. A machine or an implement used for planting seeds. 2. A machine or implement used to remove the seeds from fruit. 3. One that seeds clouds.

seed leaf (sēd lēf) n. Botany. See cotyledon (n., sense 1).

seed-ling (sēd'līŋ) n. A young plant that is grown from a seed.

seed oyster (sēd oi'stər) n. A young oyster, especially one suitable for transplanting to another bed; a spat.

seed pearl (sēd pûrl) n. A very small, often imperfect pearl.

seed plant (sēd plānt) n. A seed-bearing plant.

seed-pod (sēd'pōd') n. See pod¹ (n., sense 1).

seed-snipe (sēd'snīp') n. pl. seed-snipe or seed--snipes. Any of several short-legged South American birds of the family Thinocoridae, related to the plover and snipe but resembling a small quail.

seed stock (sēd stök) n. 1. A supply of seed for planting. 2. A source of new entities: a seed stock of salmon in the river.

seed tick (sēd tĭk) n. The tiny six-legged larva of a tick, smaller than the eight-legged nymph.

seed·time (sēd'tīm') n. 1. A time for planting seeds. 2. A time of new growth or development.

seed weevil (sēd wē'vəl) n. Any of various small beetles of the family Bruchidae whose larvae bore into and feed on the dried seeds of peas, beans, and similar plants.

seed·y (sē'dē) adj. seed·i·er, seed·i·est. 1. Having many seeds. 2. Resembling seeds or a seed. 3. Worn and shabby; unkempt: “He was soiled and seedy and fragrant with gin” (Mark Twain). 4. Tired or sick; unwell. 5. Somewhat disreputable; squalid: a seedy hotel in a run-down neighborhood.
—seed'i·ly adv. —seed'i·ness n.

See·ger (sē'gər), Alan. 1888-1916. American poet best known for “I Have a Rendezvous with Death” (1916). He was killed in action in World War I.

See·ger (sē'gər), Peter. Known as “Pete.” Born 1919. American folk singer who was largely responsible for the revival of American folk music in the 1950's and 1960's. His songs, many of which have social or political themes, include “Where Have All the Flowers Gone” and “If I Had a Hammer.”

see·ing (sē'ing) conj. Inasmuch as; in view of the fact: Seeing that you're already at the door, I suppose I must invite you inside.

See·ing Eye (sē'ing ī) A trademark used for a dog trained to lead a sightless person.

seek (sēk) v. sought (sôt), seek·ing, seeks. — v. tr. 1. To try to locate or discover; search for. 2. To endeavor to obtain or reach: seek a college education. 3. To go to or toward: Water seeks its own level. 4. To inquire for; request: seek directions from a police officer. 5. To try; endeavor: seek to do good. 6. Obsolete. To explore. — v. intr. To make a search or an investigation: Seek and you will find. [Middle English sechen, seken, from Old English sēcan. See sāg- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: seek, hunt, quest, search. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to make an effort to find something”: seeking information; hunting through the telephone book for a number; questing after treasure; searched his face for his reaction.

seek·er (sē'kər) n. 1. One that seeks: a seeker of the truth. 2. A device used in a moving object, especially a missile, that locates a target by detecting light, heat, or other radiation.

seel (sēl) v. tr. seeled, seel·ing, seels. To stitch closed the eyes of (a falcon). [Middle English silen, from Old French cillier, from Medieval Latin ciliāre, from Latin cilium, lower eyelid. See kel-¹ in Appendix.]

seem (sēm) v. intr. seemed, seem-ing, seems. 1. To give the impression of being; appear: The child seems healthy, but the doctor is concerned. 2. To appear to one's own opinion or mind: I can't seem to get the story straight. 3. To appear to be true, probable, or evident: It seems you object to the plan. It seems like rain. He seems to have worked in sales for several years. 4. To appear to exist: There seems no reason to postpone it. [Middle English semen, from Old Norse sæma, to conform to, from sæmr, fitting. See sem-¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: seem, appear, look. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to present the appearance of being”: seems angry; appears skeptical; looks happy.

seem-ing (sē'mɪŋ) adj. Apparent; ostensible. — n. Outward appearance; semblance. — seem'ing-ly adv. — seem'ing-ness n.

seem-ly (sēm'lē) adj. seem-li-er, seem-li-est. 1. Conforming to standards of conduct and good taste; suitable: seemly behavior. 2. Of pleasing appearance; handsome. — adv. In a seemly manner; suitably. [Middle English semely, from Old Norse sæmiligr, from sæmr, fitting. See sem-¹ in Appendix.]

— seem'li-ness n.

seen (sēn) v. Past participle of see¹.

seep (sēp) v. intr. seeped, seep-ing, seeps. 1. To pass slowly through small openings or pores; ooze. 2. To enter, depart, or become diffused gradually. — n. 1. A spot where water or petroleum trickles out of the ground to form a pool. 2. Seepage. [Alteration of dialectal sipe.]

seep-age (sē'pɪj) n. 1. The act or process of seeping. 2. A quantity of something that has seeped.

seer (sīr) n. 1. (sē'ər) One that sees: an inveterate seer of sights. 2. A clairvoyant. 3. A prophet.

seer-ess (sīr'is) n. A woman who acts as a prophet or clairvoyant.

seer-suck-er (sīr'sŭk'ər) n. A light, thin fabric, generally cotton or rayon, with a crinkled surface and a usually striped pattern. [Hindi śīrśakar, from Persian shīroshakar : shīr, milk (from Middle Persian) + o, and (from Middle Persian u, from Old Persian utā) + shakar, sugar (from Sanskrit śarkarā, from the resemblance of its smooth and rough stripes to the smooth surface of milk and bumpy texture of sugar).]

WORD HISTORY: Through its name, seersucker, a lightweight fabric for summer suits and dresses, gives us a glimpse at the history of India. The facts of the word's history are that it came into English from the East Indian language Hindi (śīrśakar). The word in Hindi was borrowed from the Persian compound shīroshakar, meaning literally “milk and sugar” but used in a figurative way for a striped linen garment. The Persian word shakar, “sugar,” in turn came from Sanskrit śarkarā. Persian, Indian, English—clearly we are dealing with multiple cultural borrowing here, and the Persians did indeed borrow sugar and the word for sugar from India in the 6th century. During and after Tamerlane's invasion of India in the late 14th century, the opportunity for borrowing Persian things and words such as shīr-o-shakar was present, since the Mongol Turk Tamerlane incorporated Persia as well as India into his empire. It then remained for the English during the 18th century, when the East India Company and England were moving toward supremacy in India, to borrow the material and its name seersucker (first recorded in 1722 in the form Sea Sucker) from an Indian language.

see-saw (sē'sō') n. 1. A long plank balanced on a central fulcrum so that with a person riding on each end, one end goes up as the other goes down. Regional. Also called dandleRegional., dandle boardRegional., teedle boardRegional., teeter-Regional., teeterboardRegional., teeter-totterRegional., tilt¹Regional., tilting board. See Regional note at teeter-totter. 2. The act or game of riding a seesaw. 3. A back-and-forth or up-and-down movement, as of the lead between two contesting parties. — v. intr. see-sawed, see-saw-ing, see-saws. 1. To play on a seesaw. 2. To move back and forth or up and down. [Reduplication of *SAW*¹.] seethe (sēth) v. intr. seethed, seeth-ing, seethes. 1. To churn and foam as if boiling. 2. a. To be in a state of turmoil or ferment: The nation seethed with suppressed revolutionary activity. b. To be violently excited or agitated: I seethed with anger over the insult. See Synonyms at boil¹. 3. Archaic. To come to a boil. [Middle English sethen, to boil, from Old English sēothan.] —seethe n.

see-through (sē'thrōo') adj. Transparent.

Se-fe-ri-a-des (sē-fě'rē-ä'thēs), Giorgos Stylianos. Pen name George Sef-eris. 1900-1971. Greek poet and diplomat whose poetic works are imbued with references to ancient Greek history and classical mythology. He won the 1963 Nobel Prize for literature.

Se-gal (sē'gəl), George. Born 1924. American sculptor known for his realistic plaster casts of people in ordinary situations.

Se-gar (sē'gär'), Elzie Crisler. 1894-1938. American cartoonist who created the Popeye the Sailor comic strip.

Se-ges-ta (sī-jēs'tə, sē-jēs'tä) An ancient city of northwest Sicily near modern-day Alcamo. Traditionally a Trojan colony, it was a Carthaginian dependency after c. 400 B.C. but declined during the first century.

seg-ment (sĕg'mənt) n. 1. Any of the parts into which something can be divided: segments of the community; a segment of a television program. 2. Mathematics. a. The portion of a line between any two points on the line. b. The area bounded by a chord and the arc of a curve subtended by the chord. c. The portion of a sphere cut off by two parallel planes. 3. Biology. A clearly differentiated subdivision of an organism or part, such as a metamere. — v. tr.

intr. seg-ment-ed, seg-ment-ing, seg-ments (sĕg-mĕnt'). To divide or become divided into segments. [Latin segmentum, from secāre, to cut. See sek- in Appendix.] —seg'men-tar'y (-mən-tĕr'ē) adj.

seg-men-tal (sĕg-mĕn'tl) adj. 1. Of or relating to segments. 2. Divided or organized into segments. —seg-men'tal-ly adv.

seg-men-ta-tion (sĕg'mən-tā'shən, -mĕn-) n. 1. Division into segments. 2. Embryology. See cleavage (n., sense 4a).

segmentation cavity (sĕg'mən-tā'shən kăv'ī-tē) n. See blastocoel.

seg-ment-ed (sĕg'mĕn'tĭd, sĕg-mĕn'-) adj. Divided into or made up of distinct segments.

se-gno (sā'nyō) n. pl. se-gnos. Music. A notational sign, especially the sign marking the beginning or the end of a repeat. [Italian, from Latin signum, sign. See sek^w-1 in Appendix.]

se-go (sē'gō) n. pl. se-gos. The edible, succulent bulb of the sego lily. [Southern Paiute sigho'o.]

sego lily (sē'gō lil'ē) n. A western North American plant (Calochortus nuttallii) having showy, variously colored flowers.

Se-go-vi-a (sĭ-gō'vĕ-ə, sĕ-gô'vyä) A city of central Spain north-northwest of Madrid. An important Roman town, it was held sporadically by the Moors from 714 to 1079. Its Roman aqueduct (first or second century A.D.) is still in use. Population, 53,005.

Se-go-vi-a (sĭ-gō'vĕ-ə, sĕ-gô'vyä), Andrés. 1893?-1987. Spanish guitarist who spurred interest in the guitar as an instrument for classical music through his arrangements of the works of Bach, Handel, and modern composers.

Se-grè (sĭ-grā', sĕ-), Emilio Gino. 1905-1989. Italian-born American physicist. He shared a 1959 Nobel Prize for demonstrating the existence of the antiproton.

seg-re-ga-ble (sĕg'rĭ-gə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be segregated: segregable items in a budget. 2. Genetics. Able to undergo segregation: segregable characters.

seg-re-gant (sĕg'rĭ-gənt) Genetics. adj. Differing from either parent as a result of segregation: a segregant genotype. — n. A segregant type or organism. Also called segregate seg-re-gate (sĕg'rĭ-gāt') v. seg-re-gat-ed, seg-re-gat-ing, seg-re-gates. — v. tr. 1. To separate or isolate from others or from a main body or group. See Synonyms at isolate. 2. To impose the separation of (a race or class) from the rest of society. — v. intr. 1. To become separated from a main body or mass. 2. To practice a policy of racial segregation. 3. Genetics. To undergo genetic segregation. — adj. (-gĭt, -gāt') Separated; isolated. — n. (-gĭt, -gāt') 1. One that is or has been segregated. 2. Genetics. See segregant. [Latin sĕgregāre, sĕgregāt- : sĕ-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + greg, greg-, flock; see ger- in Appendix.] —seg're-ga'tive adj. —seg're-ga'tor n.

seg-re-ga-tion (sĕg'ri-gā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of segregating or the condition of being segregated. 2. The policy and practice of imposing the social separation of races, as in schools, housing, and industry, especially so as to practice discrimination against people of color in a predominantly white society.

3. Genetics. The separation of paired alleles especially during meiosis, so that the members of each pair of alleles appear in different gametes.

seg-re-ga-tion-ist (sĕg'ri-gā'shə-nĭst) n. One that advocates or practices a policy of racial segregation. —seg're-ga'tion-ist adj.

se-gue (sĕg'wā', sā'gwā') v. intr. se-gued, se-gu-ing, se-gues. 1. Music. To make a transition directly from one section or theme to another. 2. To move smoothly and unhesitatingly from one state, condition, situation, or element to another: “Daylight segued into dusk” (Susan Dworski). [From Italian, there follows, third-person sing. present tense of seguire, to follow, from Vulgar Latin sequere*, from Latin sequi. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

se-gui-dil-la (sĕg'ə-dē'yə, -dē'l'yə, sā'gə-, sĕ'gē-thē'lyä) n. 1. A Spanish stanza form of four to seven short verses. 2. a. A lively Spanish dance. b. The music for this dance, in 3/4 time. [Spanish, diminutive of seguida, sequence from feminine past participle of seguir, to follow, from Vulgar Latin sequere*, from Latin sequi. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

Se-guin (sĭ-gĕn') A city of south-central Texas east-northeast of San Antonio. It was founded by members of the Texas Rangers in 1831. Population, 18,853.

Se-gu-ra (sā-gōōr'ə, sĕ-gōō'rä) A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, of south-east Spain flowing generally eastward to the Mediterranean Sea.

sei (sā) n. pl. seis. A sei whale. [From Norwegian seihval: sei, coalfish (from Old Norse seidh) + hval, whale (from Old Norse hvalr).]

sei-cen-to (sā-chĕn'tō) n. The 17th century with reference to Italian literature and art. [Italian, from (mil)seicento, (one thousand) six hundred : sei, six (from Latin sex); see s(w)eks in Appendix + cento, hundred (from Latin centum); see dek^m in Appendix.]

seiche (sāsh, sĕch) n. A wave that oscillates in lakes, bays, or gulfs from a few minutes to a few hours as a result of seismic or atmospheric disturbances. [French dialectal, exposed lake bottom, probably from French sèche, feminine of sec, dry. See SEC¹.]

sei-del (sīd'l, zīd'l) n. A beer mug. [German, from Middle High German sīdel, from Latin situla, bucket.]

Seid-litz powder also Seid-litz powders (sĕd'lĭts pou'dər) n. A mixture of tartaric acid, sodium bicarbonate, and potassium sodium tartrate, used as a mild cathartic by dissolving in water and drinking. [After Seidlitz (Sedlec), a village of northwest Bohemia that is a site of large mineral springs.]

Sei-fert (sī'fərt), Jaroslav. 1901-1986. Czech poet whose work often concerns political repression. He won the 1984 Nobel Prize for literature.

seign·eur (sān-yûr', sĕn-) n. 1. A man of rank, especially a feudal lord in the ancien régime. 2. In Canada, a man who owned a large estate originally held by a feudal grant from the king of France. 3. Used as a form of address for such a man. [French, from Old French seignor, from Vulgar Latin senior*. See SEIGNIOR.]
—seign·eur'i·al adj.

seign·eur·y (sān'yə-rĕ, sĕn'-) n. pl. seign·eur·ies. The power, rank, or estate of a seigneur.

seign·ior (sān-yôr', sān'yôr') n. 1. A man of rank, especially a feudal lord. 2. Used as a form of address for such a man. [Middle English segnour, from Old French seignor, from Vulgar Latin senior*, from Latin, older, comparative of senex, sen-, old. See sen- in Appendix.] —sei·gnio'ri·al adj.

seign·ior·age (sān'yər-ij) n. Revenue or a profit taken from the minting of coins, usually the difference between the value of the bullion used and the face value of the coin. [Middle English seigneurage, from Old French, from seignor, seignior. See SEIGNIOR.]

seign·ior·y (sān'yə-rĕ) n. pl. seign·ior·ies. The power, rank, or estate of a feudal lord. Also called signory [Middle English seignorie, from Old French, from seignor, seignior. See SEIGNIOR.]

seine (sān) n. A large fishing net made to hang vertically in the water by weights at the lower edge and floats at the top. — v. seined, sein·ing, seines. — v. intr. To fish with such a net. — v. tr. To fish for or catch with such a net. [Middle English, from Old English segne, from Germanic sagina*, from Latin sagēna, from Greek sagēnē.] —sein'er n.

Seine (sān, sĕn) A river of northern France flowing about 772 km (480 mi) generally northwest to the Bay of the Seine, an inlet of the English Channel, near Le Havre. It has been an important commercial waterway since Roman times.

seise (sĕz) v. Variant of seize (v. tr., sense 6).

sei·sin also sei·zin (sĕ'zĭn) n. Law. 1. Legal possession of land, as a freehold estate. 2. a. The act or an instance of taking legal possession of land. b. Property thus possessed. [Middle English seisine, from Old French saisine, from seisir, to seize. See SEIZE.]

seism (sĭ'zəm) n. See earthquake. [Greek seismos, from seiein, to shake.]

seism- pref. Variant of seismo-.

seis·mic (sĭz'mĭk) adj. 1. Of, subject to, or caused by an earthquake or earth vibration. 2. Earthshaking: an issue of seismic proportions and ramifications.
—seis/mi·cal·ly adv. —seis·mic'i·ty (-mĭs'ĭ-tĕ) n.

seis·mism (sĭz'mĭz'əm) n. The phenomena involved in earthquakes.

seismo- or seism- pref. Earthquake: seismograph. [Greek, from seismos, seism. See SEISM.]

seis·mo·gram (sĭz'mə-grəm') n. The record of an earth tremor made by a seismograph.

seis·mo·graph (sīz'mə-grāf') n. An instrument for automatically detecting and recording the intensity, direction, and duration of a movement of the ground, especially of an earthquake. —seis·mog'ra·pher (sīz-mŏg'rə-fər) n. —seis'mo·graph'ic (-grāf'ik), seis'mo·graph'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. —seis·mog'ra·phy n.

seis·mol·o·gy (sīz-mŏl'ə-jē) n. The geophysical science of earthquakes and the mechanical properties of the earth. —seis'mo·log'ic (-mə-lŏj'ik), seis'mo·log'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. —seis'mo·log'i·cal·ly adv. —seis·mol'o·gist n.

seis·mom·e·ter (sīz-mŏm'ī-tər) n. A detecting device that receives seismic impulses. —seis'mo·met'ric (-mə-mēt'rīk), seis'mo·met'ri·cal (-rī-kəl) adj.

seis·mom·e·try (sīz-mŏm'ī-trē) n. The scientific study and recording of earthquakes.

seis·mo·scope (sīz'mə-skŏp') n. An instrument that indicates the occurrence or time of occurrence of an earthquake. —seis'mo·scop'ic (-skŏp'ik) adj.

sei·sor (sē'zər, -zŏr') n. Law. Variant of seizor.

sei whale (sā hwāl) n. A rorqual (Balaenoptera borealis) that is blue-black above and white below, that grows up to about 55 feet (17 meters) in length, and that is found in all the oceans, with the greatest number living in Antarctic waters. [From Norwegian seihval. See SEI.]

seize (sēz) v. seized, seiz·ing, seiz·es. — v. tr. 1. To grasp suddenly and forcibly; take or grab: seize a sword. 2. a. To grasp with the mind; apprehend: seize an idea and develop it to the fullest extent. b. To possess oneself of (something): seize an opportunity. 3. a. To have a sudden, overwhelming effect on: a heinous crime that seized the minds and emotions of the populace. b. To overwhelm physically: a person who was seized with a terminal disease. 4. To take into custody; capture. 5. To take quick and forcible possession of; confiscate: seize a cache of illegal drugs. 6. Also seise (sēz). a. To put (one) into possession of something. b. To vest ownership of a feudal property in. 7. Nautical. To bind with turns of small line. — v. intr. 1. To lay sudden or forcible hold of. 2. a. To cohere or fuse with another part as a result of high pressure or temperature and restrict or prevent further motion or flow. b. To come to a halt: The talks seized up and were rescheduled. [Middle English seisen, from Old French seisir, to take possession, of Germanic origin.] —seiz'a·ble adj. —seiz'er n.

sei·zin (sē'zīn) n. Law. Variant of seisin.

seiz·ing (sē'zīng) n. Nautical. A binding of larger lines made with multiple turns of smaller line.

sei·zor also sei·sor (sē'zər, -zŏr') n. Law. One that takes seisin.

sei-zure (sē'zhər) n. 1. The act or an instance of seizing or the condition of being seized. 2. A sudden attack, spasm, or convulsion, as in epilepsy or another disorder. 3. A sudden onset or sensation of feeling or emotion.

Se-ja-nus (sī-jā'nəs), Lucius Aelius. Died 31 A.D. Roman courtier who wielded great political power as an adviser to Tiberius.

Sek-on-di-Ta-ko-ra-di (sək'ən-dē'tä-kə-rä'dē) A city of southwest Ghana on the Gulf of Guinea west-southwest of Accra. The two parts of the city developed around Dutch and English forts built in the 17th century. Population, 93,882.

sel. abbr. Select; selected; selectivity.

se-la-chi-an (sī-lā'kē-ən) adj. Of or belonging to the order Selachii of elasmobranch fishes that includes the sharks and in some classifications also the rays and skates. — n. A member of this order. [Probably from New Latin Selachii, order name, from Greek selakhios, cartilaginous, from selakhos, cartilaginous fish.]

se-la-dang (sī-lä'däng) n. See gaur. [Malay.]

se-lag-i-nel-la (sə-lāj'ə-nəl'ə) n. Any of numerous fernlike, usually prostrate plants of the genus Selaginella, having small scalelike leaves and bearing spores. [New Latin Selāginella, genus name, from Latin selāgō, selāgin-, a plant resembling the savin.]

se-lah (sē'lə, səl'ə) interj. Used to conclude a verse in the Psalms. [Hebrew selā.]

Sel-den (səl'dən) An unincorporated community of southeast New York on north-central Long Island. It is mainly residential. Population, 24,100.

Sel-den (səl'dən), George Baldwin. 1846-1922. American inventor who was the first to patent a gasoline-powered automobile (1895).

Sel-den (səl'dən), John. 1584-1654. English jurist and scholar noted for his collection of Oriental manuscripts and his History of Tithes (1618), which was suppressed at the urging of the clergy.

sel-dom (səl'dəm) adv. Not often; infrequently or rarely. See Usage Note at rarely. — adj. Archaic. Infrequent; rare. [Middle English, from Old English seldum, alteration of seldan.] — sel'dom-ness n.

se-lect (sī-lĕkt') v. se-lect-ed, se-lect-ing, se-lects. — v. tr. To take as a choice from among several; pick out. — v. intr. To make a choice or selection. See Synonyms at choose. — adj. Abbr. sel. 1. Singled out in preference; chosen: a select few. 2. Of special quality or value; choice: select peaches. 3. Of or relating to a lean grade of beef. — n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). One that is preferred or chosen in preference to others or because of special value. Often used with the. [Latin sēligere, sēlēct- : sē-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + legere, to choose; see leg- in Appendix.] — se-lec'ta-ble adj. — se-lect'ness n.

se-lect-ee (sī-lĕk'tē') n. One who is selected, especially for military service.

se-lec-tion (sī-lĕk'shən) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of selecting or the fact of having been selected. b. One that is selected. 2. A carefully chosen or representative collection of people or things. See Synonyms at choice. 3. A literary or musical text chosen for reading or performance. 4. Biology. A natural or artificial process that favors or induces survival and perpetuation of one kind of organism over others that die or fail to produce offspring.

se-lect-ion-ist (sĭ-lĕk'/shə-nĭst) adj. or se-lect-ion-al (-shə-nəl) Of or relating to the view that evolution or genetic variation occurs chiefly as a result of natural selection. — n. One who holds or favors a selectionist view. — se-lect-ion-ism n.

se-lect-ive (sĭ-lĕk'/tĭv) adj. 1. Of or characterized by selection; discriminating. 2. Empowered or tending to select. 3. Electronics. Able to reject frequencies other than the one selected or tuned. — se-lect'ive-ly adv. — se-lect'ive-ness n.

selective service (sĭ-lĕk'/tĭv sŭr'vĭs) n. A system for calling up people for compulsory military service.

selective veto (sĭ-lĕk'/tĭv vĕ'tō) n. See item veto.

se-lect-iv-i-ty (sĭ-lĕk'/tĭv'ĭ-tĕ, sĕ'lĕk-) n. pl. se-lect-iv-i-ties. 1. The state or quality of being selective. 2. Abbr. sel. The degree to which an electronic receiver is selective.

se-lect-man (sĭ-lĕkt'măn', -mən) n. One of a board of town officers chosen annually in New England communities to manage local affairs.

se-lect-tor (sĭ-lĕk'tər) n. One that selects: the frequency selector of a radio.

se-lect-wom-an (sĭ-lĕkt'wŏm'ən) n. A woman who is one of a board of town officers chosen annually in New England communities to manage local affairs.

selen- pref. Variant of seleno-.

sel-e-nate (sĕl'ə-nāt') n. A salt or ester of selenic acid. [SELEN(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

Se-le-ne (sə-lĕ'nĕ) n. Greek Mythology. The goddess of the moon.

Se-len-ga (sĕl'ĕng-gä') A river of northern Mongolia and southeast Russia flowing about 1,207 km (750 mi) east and north to Lake Baikal.

se-le-nic (sə-lĕ'nĭk, -lĕn'ĭk) adj. Of, relating to, or containing selenium.

selenic acid (sə-lĕ'nĭk äs'ĭd) n. A highly corrosive hygroscopic white solid acid with composition H₂SeO₄.

sel-e-nif-er-ous (sĕl'ə-nĭf'ər-əs) adj. Containing selenium: seleniferous soil.

sel-e-nite (sĕl'ə-nĭt', sĭ-lĕ'-) n. Gypsum in the form of colorless clear crystals. [Latin selēnītēs, from Greek selēnītēs (lithos), moon (stone), selenite (so called because it was believed to wax and wane with the moon), from selēnē, moon. See SELENIUM.]

se-le-ni-um (sĭ-lĕ'nĕ-əm) n. Symbol Se A nonmetallic element, red in powder form, black in vitreous form, and metallic gray in crystalline form, resembling sulfur and obtained primarily as a byproduct of electrolytic copper refining. It is widely used in rectifiers, as a semiconductor, and in xerography. Its photovoltaic and photoconductive actions make it useful in photocells, photographic exposure meters, and solar cells. Atomic number 34; atomic weight 78.96; melting point (of gray selenium) 217°C; boiling point (gray) 684.9°C; specific gravity (gray) 4.79; (vitreous) 4.28; valence 2, 4, or 6. [Greek selēnē, moon (from selas, light, brightness) + -IUM.]

selenium cell (sī-lē'nē-əm sěl) n. A photoconductive cell consisting of an insulated selenium strip between two suitable electrodes.

seleno- or selen- pref. 1. Moon: selenography. 2. Selenium: selenosis. [Greek selēno-, from selēnē, moon. See SELENIUM.]

sel·e·nog·ra·phy (sěl'ə-nŏg'rə-fē) n. The study of the physical features of the moon. —sel'e-nog'ra-pher, sel'e-nog'ra-phist n. —sel'e-no-graph'ic (-nə-grăf'ik), sel'e-no-graph'i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —sel'e-no-graph'i-cal·ly adv.

sel·e·nol·o·gy (sěl'ə-nŏl'ə-jē) n. The astronomical study of the moon.

—sel'e-no-log'i-cal (-nə-lŏj'ĭ-kəl) adj. —sel'e-nol'o-gist n.

sel·e·no·sis (sěl'ə-nŏ'sis) n. Poisoning, especially of livestock, caused by ingesting selenium found in some plants, in the soil, or in some microorganisms.

Se-leu-ci-a (sī-lŏō'shē-ə, -shə) An ancient city of Mesopotamia on the Tigris River south-southeast of modern Baghdad. Founded c. 300 B.C., it was an important commercial center and the chief city of the empire founded by Seleucus I.

Se-leu-cid (sī-lŏō'-sĭd) A Hellenistic dynasty founded by Seleucus I after the death of Alexander the Great. It ruled much of Asia Minor from 312 to 64 B.C.

—Se-leu'cid adj.

Se-leu-cus I (sī-lŏō'kəs), 358?-281 B.C. Macedonian general under Alexander the Great. He founded and ruled (312-281) the Seleucid dynasty after Alexander's death.

self (sělf) n. pl. selves (sělvz). 1. The total, essential, or particular being of a person; the individual: "An actor's instrument is the self" (Joan Juliet Buck).

2. The essential qualities distinguishing one person from another; individuality: "He would walk a little first along the southern walls, shed his European self, fully enter this world" (Howard Kaplan). 3. One's consciousness of one's own being or identity; the ego: "For some of us, the self's natural doubts are given in mesmerizing amplification by way of critics' negative assessments of our writing" (Joyce Carol Oates).

4. One's own interests, welfare, or advantage: thinking of self alone.

5. Immunology. That which the immune system identifies as belonging to the body: tissues no longer recognized as self. — pron. Myself, yourself, himself, or herself: a living wage for self and family. — adj. 1. Of the same character throughout. 2. Of the same material as the article with which it is used: a dress with a self belt. 3. Obsolete. Same or identical. [Middle English, selfsame, from Old English. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

self- pref. 1. Oneself; itself: self-control. 2. Automatic; automatically: self-loading. [Middle English, from Old English, from self, self. See SELF.] self-a-ban-doned (sělf'ə-băn'dənd) adj. Lacking self-restraint, especially having completely yielded to one's impulses. —self'-a-ban'don-ment n.

self-a-base-ment (sĕlf'ə-bās'mənt) n. Degradation or humiliation of oneself, especially because of feelings of guilt or inferiority.

self-ab-ne-ga-tion (sĕlf'əb'nĭ-gā'shən) n. The setting aside of self-interest for the sake of others or for a belief or principle. —self'-ab/ne-gat'ing adj.

self-ab-sorbed (sĕlf'əb-sôrbd', -zôrbd') adj. Excessively self-involved.

—self'-ab-sorp'tion (-sôrp'shən, -zôrp'-) n.

self-a-buse (sĕlf'ə-byōōs') n. 1. Abuse of oneself or one's abilities.

2. Masturbation.

self-act-ing (sĕlf'ăk'tĭng) adj. Able to act or work automatically.

self-ac-tu-al-ize (sĕlf'ăk'chōō-ə-lĭz') v. intr. self-ac-tu-al-ized, self-ac-tu-al-izing, self-ac-tu-al-iz-es. To develop or achieve one's full potential.

—self'-ac'tu-al-i-za'tion (-ə-lĭ-zā'shən) n. —self'-ac'tu-al-iz'er n.

self-ad-dressed (sĕlf'ə-drĕst') adj. Addressed to oneself: a self-addressed envelope.

self-ad-he-sive (sĕlf'ăd-hĕ'sĭv) adj. Having a surface coated with an adhesive and not needing any substance, such as glue or paste, applied to form a bond: self-adhesive wallpaper; self-adhesive labels.

self-ad-min-is-ter (sĕlf'ăd-mĭn'ĭ-stĕr) v. tr. self-ad-min-is-tered, self-ad-min-is-ter-ing, self-ad-min-is-ters. To administer (something) to oneself or itself: "Laboratory animals chose to self-administer cocaine, to the exclusion of food and water, until they collapsed" (Ross Gelbspan). —self'-ad-min'is-tra-tion n.

self-ag-gran-dize-ment (sĕlf'ə-grăn'dĭz-mənt) n. The act or practice of enhancing or exaggerating one's own importance, power, or reputation. —self'-ag-gran'diz'ing (-ə-grăn'dĭ'zĭng) adj.

self-a-nal-y-sis (sĕlf'ə-nāl'ĭ-sĭs) n. pl. self-a-nal-y-ses (-sĕz'). An independent methodical attempt by one to study and comprehend one's own personality or emotions. —self'-an'a-lyt'i-cal (-ăn'ə-lĭt'ĭ-kəl), self'-an'a-lyt'ic (-ĭk) adj.

self-an-ni-hi-la-tion (sĕlf'ə-nĭ'ə-lā'shən) n. 1. Self-destruction. 2. Loss of self-awareness, as in a mystical state.

self-ap-point-ed (sĕlf'ə-poin'tĭd) adj. Designated or chosen by oneself rather than by due authority: a self-appointed arbiter.

self-as-sert-ing (sĕlf'ə-sûr'tĭng) adj. 1. Asserting oneself or one's own rights or views. 2. a. Self-confident. b. Overbearing; arrogant.

self-as-ser-tion (sĕlf'ə-sûr'shən) n. Determined advancement of one's own personality, wishes, or views. —self'-as-ser'tive adj. —self'-as-ser'tive-ly adv. —self-as-ser'tive-ness n.

self-as-sured (sĕlf'ə-shōōrd') adj. Having or showing confidence and poise. —self'-as-sur'ance (-shōōr'əns) n.

self-a·ware (sĕlf'ə-wâr') adj. Aware of oneself as an individual entity or personality. —self'-a·ware'ness n.

self-bast·ing (sĕlf'bā'stīng) adj. Prepared so as to remain moist while being cooked: a self-basting turkey.

self-care (sĕlf'kâr') n. The care of oneself without medical, professional, or other assistance or oversight.

self-cen·tered (sĕlf'sĕn'tĕrd) adj. Engrossed in oneself and one's own affairs; selfish. —self'-cen'tered-ly adv. —self'-cen'tered-ness n.

self-clean·ing (sĕlf'klĕ'ning) adj. Made or designed to clean itself, often automatically: a self-cleaning oven.

self-col·ored (sĕlf'kŭl'ərd) adj. 1. Being in the natural or original color. 2. Of only one color.

self-com·mand (sĕlf'kə-mänd') n. Full presence of mind; self-confidence.

self-com·pat·i·ble (sĕlf'kəm-păt'ə-bəl) adj. Botany. Capable of self-fertilization. —self'-com·pat'i·bil'i·ty n.

self-com·pla·cent (sĕlf'kəm-plā'sənt) adj. Self-satisfied, often smugly so. —self'-com·pla'cent-ly adv.

self-con·cept (sĕlf'kŏn'sĕpt) n. The mental image or perception that one has of oneself.

self-con·cep·tion (sĕlf'kən-sĕp'shən) n. Self-concept.

self-con·cern (sĕlf'kən-sŭrn') n. Selfish or excessive concern for oneself. —self'-con·cerned' adj.

self-con·fessed (sĕlf'kən-fĕst') adj. According to one's own admission: a self-confessed plagiarist.

self-con·fi·dence (sĕlf'kŏn'fi-dəns) n. Confidence in oneself or one's own abilities: "Without self-confidence we are as babes in the cradle" (Virginia Woolf). See Synonyms at confidence. —self'-con'fi·dent adj. —self'-con'fi·dent-ly adv.

self-con·scious (sĕlf'kŏn'shəs) adj. 1. Aware of oneself as an individual or of one's own being, actions, or thoughts. 2. Socially ill at ease: a self-conscious teenager. 3. Excessively conscious of one's appearance or manner: a young, self-conscious executive. 4. Showing the effects of self-consciousness; stilted: self-conscious prose. —self'-con'scious-ly adv. —self'-con'scious-ness n.

self-con·tained (sĕlf'kən-tānd') adj. 1. Constituting a complete and independent unit in and of itself: a self-contained retirement community; a self-contained dictionary. 2. a. Not dependent on others; self-sufficient: a self-contained settlement in the Arctic. b. Keeping to oneself; reserved. —self'-con·tain'-ment n.

self-con·tent (sĕlf'kən-tĕnt') adj. Satisfied with oneself; complacent. — n. Self-contentment. —self'con·tent'ed-ly adv.

self-con·tent·ment (sĕlf'kən-tĕnt'mənt) n. Self-satisfaction; complacency.

self-con-tra-dic-tion (sɛlf'kɔn'trə-dɪk'shən) n. 1. The act, state, or fact of contradicting oneself or itself. 2. An idea or statement containing contradictory elements. —self'-con'tra-dic'to-ry (-dɪk'tə-rē) adj.

self-con-trol (sɛlf'kən-trɒl') n. Control of one's emotions, desires, or actions by one's own will: "You think yourself a miracle of sensibility; but self-control is what you need" (Mary Boykin Chesnut). —self'-con-trolled' adj.

self-cor-rect-ing (sɛlf'kə-rɛk'tɪŋ) adj. 1. Correcting its or one's own mistakes. 2. Of or being a typewriter mechanism that allows for automatic correction of a typing error.

self-crit-i-cal (sɛlf'krɪt'ɪ-kəl) adj. Critical of oneself and one's faults and weaknesses: "In my experience, no species of performing artist is as self-critical as a dancer" (Susan Sontag). —self'-crit'i-cal-ly adv. —self'-crit'i-cism (-krɪt'ɪ-sɪz'əm) n.

self-de-ceive (sɛlf'di-sɛt') n. Self-deception.

self-de-ceived (sɛlf'di-sɛvd') adj. Deceived by one's own illusions or errors.

self-de-ceive-ing (sɛlf'di-sɛv'ɪŋ) adj. Given to or believing or fancying mistaken notions about oneself.

self-de-cep-tion (sɛlf'di-sɛp'shən) n. The act of deceiving oneself or the state of being deceived by oneself. —self'-de-cep'tive adj. —self'-de-cep'tive-ly adv.

self-de-feat-ing (sɛlf'di-fɛ'tɪŋ) adj. Injurious to one's or its own purposes or welfare: "American officials will find it harder than ever to ward off self-defeating protectionist measures" (George R. Packard).

self-de-fense (sɛlf'di-fɛns') n. 1. Defense of oneself when physically attacked: She was taking a course in self-defense. 2. Defense of what belongs to oneself, as one's works or reputation. 3. Law. The right to protect oneself against violence or threatened violence with whatever force or means are reasonably necessary. —self'-de-fen'sive adj.

self-def-i-ni-tion (sɛlf'dɛf'ənɪʃ'ən) n. Definition of one's identity, character, abilities, and attitudes, especially in relation to persons or things outside oneself or itself.

self-de-ni-al (sɛlf'di-ni'əl) n. Sacrifice of one's own desires or interests. See Synonyms at abstinence. —self'-de-ny'ing (-ni'ɪŋ) adj. —self'-de-ny'ing-ly adv.

self-dep-re-cat-ing (sɛlf'dɛp'rɪ-kā'tɪŋ) adj. Tending to undervalue oneself and one's abilities. —self'-dep're-cat'ing-ly adv.

self-dep-re-ca-to-ry (sɛlf'dɛp'rɪ-kə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. Self-deprecating.

self-de-pre-ci-a-tion (sɛlf'di-prɛ'shē-ā'shən) n. Disparagement or undervaluation of oneself and one's abilities.

self-de-scribed (sɛlf'di-skɪrɪbd') adj. 1. As described by oneself about oneself. 2. Self-styled. —self'-de-scrip'tion (-skɪp'shən) n.

self-de-struct (sɛlf'di-strʌkt/) n. A mechanism for causing a device to destroy itself. — v. intr. self-de-struct-ed, self-de-struct-ing, self-de-structs. To destroy oneself or itself: “died at 28, wasted from years of self-destructing on drugs” (Jack Knoll).

self-de-struc-tion (sɛlf'di-strʌk'shən) n. 1. The act or process of destroying oneself or itself. 2. Suicide.

self-de-struc-tive (sɛlf'di-strʌk'tiv) adj. 1. Tending to do harm to oneself. 2. Marked by an impulse or tendency to harm or kill oneself. —self'-de-struc'tive-ly adv. —self'-de-struc'tive-ness n.

self-de-ter-mi-na-tion (sɛlf'di-tûr'mə-nā'shən) n. 1. Determination of one's own fate or course of action without compulsion; free will. 2. Freedom of the people of a given area to determine their own political status; independence.

self-de-vel-op-ment (sɛlf'di-vɛl'əp-mənt) n. Development of one's capabilities or potentialities.

self-de-vo-tion (sɛlf'di-vō'shən) n. Devotion or dedication of oneself, especially to a service or an ideal. —self'-de-vot'ed-ly (-vō'tid-lē) adv. —self'-de-vot'ed-ness n.

self-di-ag-no-sis (sɛlf'di'æg-nō'sis) n. pl. self-di-ag-no-ses (-sēz). Diagnosis of one's own illness or disease without professional medical consultation. —self'-di'ag-nos'tic (-nōs'tik) adj.

self-di-ges-tion (sɛlf'di-jɛs'chən, -dī-) n. Biochemistry. See autolysis.

self-di-rect-ed (sɛlf'di-rɛk'tid, -dī-) adj. Directed or guided by oneself, especially as an independent agent: the self-directed study of a language. —self'-di-rect'ing adj. —self'-di-rec'tion n.

self-dis-ci-pline (sɛlf'dis'ə-plīn) n. Training and control of oneself and one's conduct, usually for personal improvement.

self-dis-cov-er-y (sɛlf'di-sküv'ə-rē) n. pl. self-dis-cov-er-ies. The act or process of achieving understanding or knowledge of oneself.

self-dis-trust (sɛlf'dis-trʌst/) n. Lack of faith or confidence in one's own abilities. —self'-dis-trust'ful adj.

self-dom (sɛlf'dəm) n. Selfhood.

self-doomed (sɛlf'doomd/) adj. Doomed by one's own feelings or actions: “The romantic is self-doomed, deliberately inviting terminal illness” (Margaret Spillane).

self-doubt (sɛlf'dout/) n. A lack of faith or confidence in oneself. —self'-doubt'ing adj.

self-ed-u-cat-ed (sɛlf'ɛj'ə-kā'tid) adj. Educated by one's own efforts rather than by formal instruction. —self'-ed'u-ca'tion n.

self-ef-fac-ing (sɛlf'i-fā'sing) adj. Not drawing attention to oneself; modest. —self'-ef-face'ment (-fās'mənt) n.

self-e-lect-ed (sɛlf'i-lɛk'tid) adj. Self-appointed.

self-em·ployed (sɛlf'ɛm-ploid') adj. Earning one's livelihood directly from one's own trade or business rather than as an employee of another. —self-employment n.

self-en·forc·ing (sɛlf'ɛn-fôr'sɪŋ, -fôr'-) adj. Holding within itself the means or a guarantee of its enforcement: a self-enforcing peace settlement.

self-en·rich·ment (sɛlf'ɛn-rɪç'mənt) n. 1. The act or process of developing or augmenting one's intellectual powers or spiritual resources. 2. The act or process of enriching oneself financially.

self-es·teem (sɛlf'ɪ-stēm') n. Pride in oneself; self-respect.

self-e·val·u·a·tion (sɛlf'ē-vəl'yōō-ā'shən) n. Evaluation or appraisal of oneself, especially in relation to certain objective standards.

self-ev·i·dent (sɛlf'ɛv'ɪ-dənt) adj. Requiring no proof or explanation. —self-ev'i·dence n. —self-ev'i·dent·ly adv.

self-ex·am·i·na·tion (sɛlf'ɪg-zəm'ə-nā'shən) n. 1. An introspective consideration of one's own thoughts or emotions. 2. Examination of one's own body for medical reasons: a periodontal self-examination; a breast self-examination.

self-ex·ile (sɛlf'ɛg'zɪl, -ɛk'sɪl) n. One exiled by his or her own decision or volition. —self-ex'iled adj.

self-ex·plan·a·to·ry (sɛlf'ɪk-splän'ə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. Needing no explanation; obvious.

self-ex·pres·sion (sɛlf'ɪk-sprɛsh'ən) n. Expression of one's own personality, feelings, or ideas, as through speech or art: "Self-expression must pass into communication for its fulfillment" (Pearl S. Buck). —self'-ex·press' v. —self'-ex·pres'sive (-sprɛs'ɪv) adj.

self-ex·tin·guish·ing (sɛlf'ɪk-stɪŋ'gwɪ-shɪŋ) adj. Having or designed to have within itself a substance or device that extinguishes: a self-extinguishing cigarette; a self-extinguishing light.

self-fer·tile (sɛlf'fûr'tl) adj. Having the property of fertilizing itself; capable of self-fertilization.

self-fer·til·i·za·tion (sɛlf'fûr'tl-ɪ-zā'shən) n. Fertilization by sperm from the same animal, as in some hermaphrodites, or by pollen from the same flower. —self'-fer'til·ized' (-ɪzd') adj. —self'-fer'til·iz'ing adj.

self-flag·el·la·tion (sɛlf'flāj'ə-lā'shən) n. 1. The act of severely criticizing oneself. 2. The act of punishing oneself.

self-ful·fill·ing (sɛlf'fūl-fɪl'ɪŋ) adj. 1. Achieving fulfillment as a result of having been expected or foretold: a self-fulfilling prophecy. 2. Achieving self-fulfillment.

self-ful·fill·ment (sɛlf'fūl-fɪl'mənt) n. Fulfillment of oneself.

self-giv·en (sɛlf'gɪv'ən) adj. 1. Originating or derived from itself: a self-given entity. 2. Given by oneself; self-appointed: a self-given role.

self-giv-ing (sĕlf'gĭv'ing) adj. Characterized by self-sacrificing behavior; unselfish.

self-gov-erned (sĕlf'gŭv'ərnd) adj. 1. Not controlled or swayed by others. 2. Characterized by self-discipline or self-control.

self-gov-ern-ing (sĕlf'gŭv'ər-ning) adj. 1. Exercising control or rule over oneself or itself. 2. Having the right or power of self-government; autonomous.

self-gov-ern-ment (sĕlf'gŭv'ər-nmənt) n. 1. Political independence; autonomy. 2. Popular or representative government; democracy. 3. Self-control.

self-grat-i-fi-ca-tion (sĕlf'grāt'ə-fi-kā'shən) n. The act of giving oneself pleasure or of satisfying one's own desires.

self-hard-en-ing (sĕlf'här'dn-ing) adj. Of or relating to materials, such as certain steels, that harden without special treatment.

self-hate (sĕlf'hāt') n. Self-hatred.

self-ha-tred (sĕlf'hā'trĭd) n. Hatred, disregard, and denigration of oneself.

self-heal (sĕlf'hēl') n. Any of several plants reputed to have healing powers, especially Prunella vulgaris, a creeping Eurasian plant with deep violet-blue, two-lipped flowers.

self-help (sĕlf'hĕlp') n. The act or an instance of helping or improving oneself without assistance from others. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: self-help manuals; self-help programs.

self-hood (sĕlf'hōöd') n. 1. The state of having a distinct identity; individuality. 2. The fully developed self; an achieved personality. 3. Self-centeredness: "the cult of selfhood that became fashionable in the 1960s" (David Rankin). [Translation of German Meinheit: mein, my, mine + -heit, n. suff.] self-hyp-no-sis (sĕlf'hĭp-nō'sĭs) n. See autohypnosis.

self-i-den-ti-fi-ca-tion (sĕlf'ī-dĕn'tə-fi-kā'shən) n. Identification of oneself with another person or thing.

self-i-den-ti-ty (sĕlf'ī-dĕn'tĭ-tē) n. 1. Oneness of a thing with itself.

2. Awareness of and identification with oneself as a separate individual.

self-im-age (sĕlf'ĭm'ij) n. The conception that one has of oneself, including an assessment of qualities and personal worth.

self-im-mo-la-tion (sĕlf'ĭm'ə-lā'shən) n. Deliberate sacrifice of oneself.

self-im-por-tance (sĕlf'ĭm-pŏr'tns) n. Excessively high regard for one's own importance or station; conceit. —self'-im-por'tant adj. —self'-im-por'tant-ly adv.

self-im-posed (sĕlf'ĭm-pōzd') adj. Imposed by oneself on oneself; voluntarily assumed or endured: self-imposed exile.

self-im-prove-ment (sĕlf'ĭm-prōöv'mənt) n. Improvement of one's condition through one's own efforts.

self-in-clu-sive (sĕlf'ĭn-klōō'sĭv, -zĭv) adj. 1. Enclosing or including itself.

2. Whole or complete in itself.

self-in-com-pat-i-ble (sɛlf'ɪn-kəm-pət'ə-bəl) adj. Botany. Incapable of self-fertilization. —self'-in'com-pat'i-bil'i-ty n.

self-in-crim-i-na-tion (sɛlf'ɪn-krɪm'ə-nā'shən) n. Incrimination of oneself, especially by one's own testimony in a criminal prosecution. —self'-in-crim/i-nat'ing adj. —self'-in-crim/i-na-to'ry (-nə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

self-in-duced (sɛlf'ɪn-dooost', -dyoost') adj. 1. Induced by oneself or itself: self-induced vomiting. 2. Electricity. Produced by self-induction.

self-in-duct-ance (sɛlf'ɪn-dŭk'təns) n. Electricity. The ratio of the electromotive force produced in a circuit by self-induction to the rate of change of current producing it, expressed in henries. Also called coefficient of self-induction self-in-duc-tion (sɛlf'ɪn-dŭk'shən) n. Electricity. The generation by a changing current of an electromotive force in the same circuit. —self'-in-duc'tive adj.

self-in-dul-gence (sɛlf'ɪn-dŭl'jəns) n. Excessive indulgence of one's own appetites and desires. —self'-in-dul'gent adj. —self'-in-dul'gent-ly adv.

self-in-flict-ed (sɛlf'ɪn-flɪk'tɪd) adj. Inflicted or imposed on oneself: died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

self-in-struct-ed (sɛlf'ɪn-strŭk'tɪd) adj. Self-taught.

self-in-struc-tion-al (sɛlf'ɪn-strŭk'shə-nəl) adj. Of, relating to, or designed for independent study.

self-in-sur-ance (sɛlf'ɪn-shoōr'əns) n. Insurance of oneself or one's possessions against possible loss by regularly setting aside funds. —self'-in-sure' v. —self'-in-sured' adj. —self'-in-sur'er n.

self-in-ter-est (sɛlf'ɪn'trɪst, -ɪn'tər-ɪst) n. 1. Selfish or excessive regard for one's personal advantage or interest. 2. Personal advantage or interest. —self'-in'ter-est-ed adj.

self-in-volved (sɛlf'ɪn-vōlvd') adj. Absorbed primarily or only in one's own interests or activities. —self'-in-volve'ment n.

self-ish (sɛl'fɪʃ) adj. 1. Concerned chiefly or only with oneself: "Selfish men were... trying to make capital for themselves out of the sacred cause of human rights" (Maria Weston Chapman). 2. Arising from, characterized by, or showing selfishness: a selfish whim. —self'ish-ly adv. —self'ish-ness n.

self-jus-ti-fy-ing (sɛlf'jüs'tə-fi'ɪŋ) adj. 1. Making excuses for oneself or one's behavior. 2. Justifying itself automatically: a self-justifying typewriter. —self'-jus'ti-fi-ca'tion (-jüs'tə-fi-kā'shən) n.

self-knowl-edge (sɛlf'nōl'ɪj) n. Knowledge or understanding of one's own nature, abilities, and limitations; insight into oneself: "The most elusive knowledge of all is self-knowledge" (Mirra Komarovsky).

self-less (sɛlf'lɪs) adj. Having, exhibiting, or motivated by no concern for oneself; unselfish: "Volunteers need both selfish and selfless motives to sustain their interest" (Natalie de Combray). —self'less-ly adv. —self'less-ness n.

- self-lim·it·ed (sĕlf-lĭm'ī-tĭd) adj. 1. Limited by its or one's own characteristics rather than by external influences. 2. Running a definite course within a specific period; little modified by treatment. Used of a disease.
- self-lim·it·ing (sĕlf-lĭm'ī-tĭng) adj. 1. Limiting oneself or itself. 2. Self-limited. —self'-lim'i-ta'tion (-tā'shən) n.
- self-liq·ui·dat·ing (sĕlf'lik'wĭ-dā'tĭng) adj. 1. Involving goods convertible into cash in a short time. Used of business transactions. 2. Producing a return equal to the sum invested to create or maintain something: a self-liquidating toll-bridge project. —self'-liq'ui-da'tion n.
- self-load·ing (sĕlf'lō'dĭng) adj. Automatically ejecting a shell and chambering the next round from the magazine; automatic or semiautomatic. Used of a fire-arm.
- self-loath·ing (sĕlf'lō'thĭng) n. Self-hatred.
- self-love (sĕlf'lŭv') n. The instinct or desire to promote one's own well-being; regard for or love of one's self. —self'-lov'ing adj.
- self-made (sĕlf'mād') adj. 1. Having achieved success or recognition by one's own efforts: a self-made millionaire. 2. Made by itself or oneself: a self-made pond.
- self-mail·er (sĕlf'mā'lər) n. A folder that can be mailed without being enclosed in an envelope. —self'-mail'ing adj.
- self-mas·ter·y (sĕlf'mās'tə-rē) n. Self-command.
- self-med·i·ca·tion (sĕlf'mĕd'ī-kā'shən) n. Medication of oneself without professional supervision to alleviate an illness or condition, as by using an over-the-counter drug or preparation.
- self·ness (sĕlf'nĭs) n. 1. The quality or state of being self-centered; selfishness. 2. Individuality; selfhood.
- self-ob·ser·va·tion (sĕlf'ŏb'zər-vā'shən) n. 1. Observation of one's own countenance or appearance. 2. Examination of one's own thoughts or emotions.
- self-o·pin·ion (sĕlf'ə-pĭn'yən) n. An unduly high opinion of oneself.
- self-o·pin·ion·at·ed (sĕlf'ə-pĭn'yə-nā'tĭd) adj. 1. Obstinately insistent upon one's own opinions. 2. Vain; conceited.
- self-or·dained (sĕlf'ôr-dānd') adj. Ordained by oneself rather than by others; practicing by one's own authority: a self-ordained foreign policy expert.
- self-per·cep·tion (sĕlf'pər-sĕp'shən) n. An awareness of the characteristics that constitute one's self; self-knowledge.
- self-per·pet·u·at·ing (sĕlf'pər-pĕch'ōō-ā'tĭng) adj. Having the power to renew or perpetuate oneself or itself for an indefinite length of time. —self'-per·pet'u-a'tion n.
- self-pit·y (sĕlf'pĭt'ē) n. Pity for oneself, especially exaggerated or self-indulgent pity. —self'-pit'y·ing adj. —self'-pit'y·ing·ly adv.

- self-poised (sĕlf'poizd') adj. 1. In command of oneself. 2. In a state of balance without need of support.
- self-pol-li-na-tion (sĕlf'pŏl'ə-nā'shən) n. Transfer of pollen from an anther to a stigma of the same flower. —self'-pol/li-nate' v.
- self-portrait (sĕlf'pŏr'trīt, -trāt', -pŏr'-) n. A pictorial or literary portrait of oneself, created by oneself.
- self-pos-ses-sion (sĕlf'pə-zĕsh'ən) n. Full command of one's faculties, feelings, and behavior. See Synonyms at confidence. —self'-pos-sessed' adj.
- self-pres-er-va-tion (sĕlf'prĕz'ər-vā'shən) n. 1. Protection of oneself from harm or destruction. 2. The instinct for individual preservation; the innate desire to stay alive.
- self-pro-claimed (sĕlf'prŏ-klāmd', -prə-) adj. So called by oneself; self-styled.
- self-pro-mo-tion (sĕlf'prə-mŏ'shən) n. Promotion, including advertising and publicity, of oneself effected by oneself: A television talk show is an excellent vehicle for self-promotion. —self'-pro-mot'er n.
- self-prop-elled (sĕlf'prə-pĕld') adj. Abbr. SP 1. Containing its own means of propulsion: a self-propelled golf cart. 2. Fired from or mounted on a moving vehicle: a self-propelled howitzer. —self'-pro-pul'sion (-pŭl'shən) n.
- self-pro-tec-tive (sĕlf'prə-tĕk'tiv) adj. Serving or designed to protect oneself. —self'-pro-tec'tion n. —self'-pro-tec'tive-ly adv.
- self-pub-lished (sĕlf'pŭb'lishd) adj. Having one's writings published by oneself: a self-published volume of memoirs; a self-published poet.
- self-pu-ri-fi-ca-tion (sĕlf'pyŭŕ'ə-fī-kā'shən) n. 1. Naturally produced purification: self-purification of water. 2. Purification of oneself.
- self-re-ac-tive (sĕlf'rĕ-āk'tiv) adj. Immunologically reactive to itself. Used of a cell or tissue.
- self-re-al-i-za-tion (sĕlf'rĕ'ə-lī-zā'shən) n. Complete development or fulfillment of one's own potential.
- self-re-cord-ing (sĕlf'rĭ-kŏr'dĭng) adj. Automatically recording its own functions or operations. Used of a machine or an instrument.
- self-re-crim-i-na-tion (sĕlf'rĭ-krĭm'ə-nā'shən) n. The act or an instance of blaming or censuring oneself.
- self-ref-er-en-tial (sĕlf'rĕf'ə-rĕn'shəl) adj. Referring to oneself or itself: The biographer's account of the poet's life was surprisingly self-referential. —self'-ref'er-ence n. —self'-ref'er-en'tial-ly adv.
- self-re-flec-tion (sĕlf'rĭ-flĕk'shən) n. Self-examination; introspection. —self'-re-flec'tive adj. —self'-re-flec'tive-ly adv.
- self-re-gard (sĕlf'rĭ-gārd') n. 1. Consideration of oneself or one's interests. 2. Self-respect.

self-reg·u·lat·ing (sɛlf'ɹɛg'yə-lā'tɪŋ) adj. 1. Regulating oneself or itself.

2. Regulating itself automatically. —self'-reg·u·la'tion n.

self-re·li·ance (sɛlf'rɪ-lī'əns) n. Reliance on one's own capabilities, judgment, or resources; independence. —self'-re·li'ant adj. —self'-re·li'ant·ly adv.

self-rep·li·cat·ing (sɛlf'rɛp'li-kā'tɪŋ) adj. Replicating oneself or itself: DNA is a self-replicating molecule. —self'-rep'li·ca'tion n.

self-re·proach (sɛlf'rɪ-prōch') n. The act or an instance of charging oneself with a fault or mistake. —self'-re·proach'ful adj. —self'-re·proach'ful·ly adv.

self-re·spect (sɛlf'rɪ-spɛkt') n. Due respect for oneself, one's character, and one's conduct. —self'-re·spect'ing adj.

self-re·strait (sɛlf'rɪ-strānt') n. Restraint of one's emotions, desires, or inclinations; self-control.

self-rev·e·la·tion (sɛlf'rɛv'ə-lā'shən) n. Revelation of one's own thoughts, emotions, or attitudes, especially unintentionally. —self'-re·veal'ing (-rɪ-vē'lɪŋ) adj.

Sel·fridge (sɛl'frɪj), Harry Gordon. 1864?-1947. American-born British merchant who founded (1908) the Selfridge and Company department store in London.

self-right·eous (sɛlf'rɪ'chəs) adj. 1. Piously sure of one's own righteousness; moralistic. 2. Exhibiting pious self-assurance: self-righteous remarks. —self'-right'eous·ly adv. —self'-right'eous·ness n.

self-right·ing (sɛlf'rɪ'tɪŋ) adj. Capable of righting itself when overturned: a self-righting boat.

self-ris·ing flour (sɛlf'rɪ'zɪŋ flour) n. A commercially produced mixture of flour and leavening.

self-rule (sɛlf'rōol') n. Self-government.

self-sac·ri·fice (sɛlf'sāk'rə-fɪs') n. Sacrifice of one's personal interests or well-being for the sake of others or for a cause. —self-sac'ri·fic'ing adj.

self-same (sɛlf'sām') adj. Being the very same; identical. See Synonyms at same. —self'same'ness n.

self-sat·is·fac·tion (sɛlf'săt'ɪs-fāk'shən) n. Satisfaction, especially complacent satisfaction, with oneself or with one's accomplishments. —self'-sat'is·fied' (-fɪd') adj.

self-scru·ti·ny (sɛlf'skrōōt'n-ē) n. 1. Examination of one's thoughts or emotions. 2. Scrutiny of one's appearance.

self-seal·ing (sɛlf'sē'lɪŋ) adj. 1. Capable of sealing itself, as after being pierced: a self-sealing tire. 2. Sealable without the application of moisture: a self-sealing envelope.

self-search·ing (sɛlf'sûr'chɪŋ) n. Careful examination of one's feelings and actions and their motivation. —self'-search·ing adj.

self-seed-ed (sɛlf'sē'did) adj. Botany. Self-sown.

self-see-king (sɛlf'sē'kɪŋ) adj. 1. Pursuing only one's own ends or interests.

2. Exhibiting concern only with promoting one's own ends or interests: self-seeking maneuvers. — n. Determined pursuit of one's own ends or interests.

—self'-seek'er n.

self-se-lect-ion (sɛlf'si-lɛk'shən) n. 1. Selection of or by oneself. 2. Selection of merchandise by oneself from a display counter or rack in a store. —self'- se-lect'ed adj. —self'-se-lect'tive adj.

self-serv-ice (sɛlf'sûr'vɪs) adj. Being a retail commercial enterprise or a service in which the customers or users help themselves: a self-service market; a self-service elevator. —self'-serv'ice n.

self-serv-ing (sɛlf'sûr'vɪŋ) adj. 1. Serving one's own interests, especially without concern for the needs or interests of others. 2. Exhibiting concern solely for one's own interests: a speech full of self-serving comments. —self'-serv'ing-ly adv.

self-sown (sɛlf'sōn') adj. Botany. Growing from seed dispersal effected by a natural agent, such as the wind or a bird, rather than by human agency.

self-start-er (sɛlf'stär'tər) n. 1. See starter (n., sense 2). 2. One who displays an unusual amount of initiative. —self'-start'ing adj.

self-stick (sɛlf'stɪk') also self-stick-ing (-stɪk'ɪŋ) adj. Self-adhesive: a self-stick envelope.

self-stud-y (sɛlf'stüd'ē) n. 1. Study or examination of oneself. 2. A form of study in which one is to a large extent responsible for one's own instruction.

self-styled (sɛlf'stɪld') adj. As characterized by oneself, often without right or justification: "poets, real or self-styled" (Constantine Fitzgibbon). See Usage Note at so-called.

self-suf-fi-cient (sɛlf'sə-fɪʃ'ənt) adj. 1. Able to provide for oneself without the help of others; independent. 2. Having undue confidence; smug. —self'-suf-fi'cien-cy n.

self-sup-port (sɛlf'sə-pôrt', -pôrt') n. The act of or capacity for supporting oneself, especially financially, without the help of others. —self'-sup-port'ed, self'-sup-port'ing adj.

self-sus-tain-ing (sɛlf'sə-stā'nɪŋ) adj. Able to sustain oneself or itself independently. —self'-sus-tain'ing-ly adv.

self-taught (sɛlf'tôt') adj. Having taught oneself without formal instruction or the help of others.

self-tol-er-ance (sɛlf'tɒl'ər-əns) n. Tolerance by the body's immune system to its own cells and tissues.

self-treat-ment (sɛlf'trēt'mənt) n. Treatment of oneself without professional supervision to alleviate an illness or condition.

self-trust (sɛlf'trust') n. Self-confidence.

self-un-der-stand-ing (sĕlf'ŭn'dər-stān'dīng) n. Self-knowledge.

self-val-i-dat-ing (sĕlf'vāl'i-dā'tīng) adj. Having validation within itself; not needing validation from the outside: a self-validating classic.

self-will (sĕlf'wīl') n. Willfulness, especially in satisfying one's own desires or adhering to one's own opinions. —self-willed' adj.

self-wind-ing (sĕlf'wīn'dīng) adj. Designed in such a way that manual winding is unnecessary. Used of clocks and watches.

self-worth (sĕlf'wŭrth') n. Self-esteem; self-respect.

Sel-juk (sĕl'jōok', sĕl-jōok') A Turkish dynasty ruling in central and western Asia from the 11th to the 13th century.

Sel-kirk (sĕl'kŭrk'), Alexander. 1676-1721. Scottish sailor who was marooned (1704-1709) on an island off Chile and is thought to have inspired Daniel Defoe's Robinson Crusoe (published 1719).

Selkirk Mountains (sĕl'kŭrk' moun'tənz) A range of the Rocky Mountains in southeast British Columbia, Canada. It rises to 3,524.3 m (11,555 ft) at Mount Sir Sanford.

sell (sĕl) v. sold (sōld), sell-ing, sells. — v. tr. 1. To exchange or deliver for money or its equivalent. 2. To offer for sale, as for one's business or livelihood: The partners sell textiles. 3. To give up or surrender in exchange for a price or reward: sell one's soul to the devil. 4. To be responsible for the sale of; promote successfully: Publicity sold that product. 5. To persuade (another) to recognize the worth or desirability of: They sold me on the idea. — v. intr. 1. To exchange ownership for money or its equivalent; engage in selling. 2. To be sold or be on sale: Grapes are selling high this season. 3. To attract prospective buyers; be popular on the market: an item that sells well. 4. To be approved of; gain acceptance. — n. 1. The activity of selling. 2. An instance of selling: "The political sell isn't ordinary marketing" (Brad Edmondson). 3. Slang. An item that sells in a particular way: a book that turned out to be a difficult sell. —phrasal verbs. sell off. To get rid of by selling, often at reduced prices. sell out. 2. To put all of one's goods or possessions up for sale. 3. Slang. To betray one's cause or colleagues: He sold out to the other side. —idioms. sell a bill of goods. Informal. To take unfair advantage of. sell down the river. Informal. To betray the true trust or faith of. sell short. 3. To contract for the sale of securities or commodities one expects to own at a later date and at more advantageous terms. 4. To underestimate the true value or worth of: Don't sell your colleague short; she's a smart lawyer. [Middle English sellen, from Old English sellan, to give, sell.] —sell/a-ble adj.

sell-back (sĕl'bāk') n. The act or an instance of selling something back that one had previously bought.

sell-er (sĕl'ər) n. 1. One that sells; a vendor. 2. An item that sells in a certain way: This washing machine has been an excellent seller.

sell-er's market also sell-ers' market (sɛl'ərz mār'kɪt) n. pl. sell-ers' markets. A market condition characterized by high prices and a supply of commodities falling short of demand.

sell-ing climax (sɛl'ɪŋ klɪ'mäks') n. A sharp decline in stock prices on a heavy volume of trading followed by a rally.

selling point (sɛl'ɪŋ point) n. An aspect of a product or service that is stressed in advertising or marketing.

sell-off (sɛl'ɒf', -ɔf') n. The sale or disposal of a relatively large number of stocks, bonds, or commodities that often causes a sharp decline in prices.

sell-out (sɛl'out') n. 1. The act of selling out. 2. An event for which all the tickets are sold. 3. Slang. One who has betrayed one's principles or an espoused cause.

Sel-ma (sɛl'mə) A city of south-central Alabama west of Montgomery. In 1965 it was the site of a voter registration drive led by Martin Luther King, Jr. Population, 23,755.

sel-syn (sɛl'sɪn) n. Physics. A device by which angular movement or position in a generator is transmitted to a motor. [SEL(F) + SYN(CHRONOUS).]

selt-zer (sɛlt'sər) n. 1. A natural effervescent spring water of high mineral content. 2. See soda water (n., sense 1a). [From German Selterser (Wasser), (water) of Selters, a village of central Germany.]

sel-va (sɛl'və) n. A dense tropical rain forest usually having a cloud cover, especially one in the Amazon Basin. [Spanish, forest, from Latin silva.]

sel-vage also sel-vedge (sɛl'vɪj) n. 1. a. The edge of a fabric that is woven so that it will not fray or ravel. b. An ornamental fringe at either end of an oriental rug. 2. The edge plate of a lock that has a slot for a bolt. [Middle English (influenced by Middle Low German selfegge): self, self; see SELF + egge, edge; see EDGE.]

selves (sɛlvz) n. Plural of self.

Selz-nick (sɛlz'nɪk), David Oliver. 1902-1965. American film producer known especially for his adaptation of popular novels, including Gone With the Wind (1939) and A Farewell to Arms (1958).

SEM abbr. Scanning electron microscope.

sem. abbr. Seminary.

Sem. abbr. Semitic.

se-man-teme (sɪ-män'tēm') n. Linguistics. An irreducible unit of meaning. [SEMANT(IC) + -EME.]

se-man-tic (sɪ-män'tɪk) also se-man-ti-cal (-tɪ-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to meaning, especially meaning in language. 2. Of, relating to, or according to the science of semantics. [French sémantique, from Greek sēmantikos, significant, from sēmantos, marked, from sēmainein, sēman-, to signify, from sēma, sign.]

—se-man'ti-cal-ly adv.

se-man-ti-cist (sɪ-män'tɪ-sɪst) n. A specialist in semantics.

se-man-tics (sĭ-măn'tĭks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb.) 1. Linguistics. The study or science of meaning in language forms. 2. Logic. The study of relationships between signs and symbols and what they represent. In this sense, also called semasiology sem-a-phore (sĕm'ə-fôr', -fôr') n. 1. A visual signaling apparatus with flags, lights, or mechanically moving arms, as one used on a railroad. 2. A visual system for sending information by means of two flags that are held one in each hand, using an alphabetic code based on the position of the signaler's arms. — v. tr. intr. sem-a-phored, sem-a-phor-ing, sem-a-phores. To send (a message) or to signal by semaphore. [Greek sēma, sign + -PHORE.] — sem'a-phor'ic adj. — sem'a-phor'i-cal-ly adv.

Se-ma-rang (sə-mär'äng) A city of northern Java, Indonesia, on the Java Sea east of Jakarta. It is a major port and industrial center. Population, 1,026,671.

se-ma-si-ol-o-gy (sĭ-mā'sē-ōl'ə-jē, -zē-) n. Logic. See semantics (n., sense 2). [Greek sēmasia, meaning (from sēmainein, to signify); see SEMANTIC + LOGY.]

— se-ma'si-o-log'i-cal (-ə-lŏj'ĭ-kəl) adj. — se-ma'si-ol'o-gist n.

se-mat-ic (sĭ-măt'ĭk) adj. Serving as a warning or signal of danger. Used especially of the coloring of some poisonous animals. [From Greek sēma, sēmat-, sign.]

sem-bla-ble (sĕm'blə-bəl) adj. 1. Having a resemblance; resembling or like: unfamiliar symbols semblable to religious icons. 2. Seeming; apparent: a semblable hit-and-run accident. — n. Archaic. Something that closely resembles something else. [Middle English, from Old French, from sembler, to resemble, from Latin simulāre, to simulate. See SIMULATE.] — sem'bla-bly adv.

sem-blance (sĕm'bləns) n. 1. An outward or token appearance: "Foolish men mistake transitory semblance for eternal fact" (Thomas Carlyle). 2. A representation; a copy. 3. The barest trace; a modicum: not a semblance of truth to the story. [Middle English, from Old French, from sembler, to resemble. See SEMBLABLE.]

se-mé (sə-mā') adj. Heraldry. Having a design embellished with small, delicate figures, such as a lacing of stars or flowers. [French, from Old French, past participle of semer, to sow, scatter, from Latin sēmināre, from sēmen, sēmin-, seed. See sē- in Appendix.]

se-mei-ol-o-gy (sē'mē-ōl'ə-jē, sĕm'ē-, sē'mī-) n. Variant of semiology.

se-mei-ot-ic (sē'mē-ōt'ĭk, sĕm'ē-, sē'mī-) also se-mei-ot-i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj.

Variants of semiotic.

se-mei-ot-ics (sē'mē-ōt'ĭks, sĕm'ē-, sē'mī-) n. Variant of semiotics.

se-meme (sē'mēm') n. Linguistics. The meaning expressed by a morpheme. [Greek sēma, sign + -EME.]

se-men (sē'mən) n. A viscous, whitish secretion of the male reproductive organs, containing spermatozoa and serving as their transporting medium. [Middle English, from Latin sēmen, seed, semen. See sē- in Appendix.]

Se-me-nov (sə-myô'nəf), Nikolai Nikolayevich. 1896-1986. Soviet chemist.

He shared a 1956 Nobel Prize for research on the kinetics of chemical reactions.

se-mes-ter (sə-měs'tər) n. One of two divisions of 15 to 18 weeks each of an academic year. [German, from Latin (cursus) sēmēstris, (course) of six months, from sex-mēnstris* : sē-, six (from sex); see s(w)eks in Appendix + mēnsis, month; see mē⁻² in Appendix.]

sem-i (sēm'ī, sēm'ē) n. pl. sem-is. Informal. 1. a. A semitrailer. b. A tractor-trailer. 2. A semifinal.

semi- pref. 1. Half: semicircle. 2. Partial; partially: semiconscious.

3. Resembling or having some of the characteristics of: semiofficial.

4. Occurring twice during: semimonthly. See Usage Note at bi⁻¹. [Middle English, from Latin sēmi-, half. See sēmi- in Appendix.]

sem-i-ab-tract (sēm'ē-ăb-străkt', -ăb'străkt', sēm'ī-) adj. Of or relating to an art form characterized by stylized but recognizable subject matter.

—sem'i-ab-strac'tion n.

sem-i-an-nu-al (sēm'ē-ăn'yoō-əl, sēm'ī-) adj. Occurring or issued twice a year. —sem'i-an'nu-al-ly adv.

sem-i-a-quatic (sēm'ē-ăkwŏt'ik, -kwăt'-, sēm'ī-) adj. Adapted for living or growing in or near water; not entirely aquatic: a semiaquatic plant or animal.

Sem-i-Ar-i-an (sēm'ē-ăr'ē-ən, -ăr'-, sēm'ī-) n. One of the members of the Homoiousian party led by the fourth-century A.D. Arian bishop Basil of Ancyra.

—Sem'i-Ar'i-an adj. —Sem'i-Ar'i-an-ism n.

sem-i-ar-id (sēm'ē-ăr'id) adj. Characterized by relatively low annual rainfall of 25 to 50 centimeters (10 to 20 inches) and having scrubby vegetation with short, coarse grasses; not completely arid. —sem'i-a-rid'i-ty (-ə-rĭd'ī-tē, -ă-rĭd'-) n.

sem-i-at-tached (sēm'ē-ətăcht', sēm'ī-) adj. Partially attached or joined: a semiattached two-family frame house.

sem-i-au-to-bi-o-graph-i-cal (sēm'ē-ô'tə-bĭ'ə-grăf'ī-kəl, sēm'ī-) adj. Of, relating to, or being a work that falls between fiction and autobiography: a semi-autobiographical film; a semiautobiographical novel.

sem-i-au-to-mat-ed (sēm'ē-ô'tə-mă'tĭd, sēm'ī-) adj. Partially automated.

sem-i-au-to-mat-ic (sēm'ē-ô'tə-măt'ik, sēm'ī-) adj. 1. Partially automatic.

2. Ejecting a shell and loading the next round of ammunition automatically after each shot has been fired; autoloading. Used of a firearm. — n. A semiautomatic firearm.

sem-i-au-ton-o-mous (sēm'ē-ô-tŏn'ə-məs, sēm'ī-) adj. 1. Partially self-governing. 2. Having the powers of self-government within a larger organization or structure.

—sem'i-au-ton'o-mous-ly adv. —sem'i-au-ton'o-my n.

sem-i-breve (sēm'ē-brĕv', -brĕv', sēm'ī-) n. Chiefly British. A whole note in music.

sem-i-cen-ten-ni-al (sĕm'ē-sĕn-tĕn'ē-əl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Marking the 50th anniversary of an event. — n. A 50th anniversary or its celebration.

sem-i-cir-cle (sĕm'ī-sûr'kəl) n. 1. A half of a circle as divided by a diameter. 2. An object or arrangement of objects or people in the shape of half a circle. — sem'ī-cir'cu-lar (-kyə-lər) adj.

semicircular canal (sĕm'ī-sûr'kyə-lər kə-nəl') n. Any of three tubular and looped structures of the inner ear, together functioning in maintenance of the sense of balance in the body.

sem-i-civ-i-lized (sĕm'ē-siv'ə-līzd', sĕm'ī-) adj. Partly civilized.

sem-i-clas-si-cal (sĕm'ē-klās'ī-kəl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Music. 1. Of, relating to, or being a work that in style or form falls between the classical and popular genres. 2. Of, relating to, or being a classical composition that enjoys popular appeal because of modern elements.

sem-i-co-lon (sĕm'ī-kō'lən) n. A mark of punctuation (;) used to connect independent clauses and indicating a closer relationship between the clauses than a period does.

sem-i-co-ma (sĕm'ē-kō'mə, sĕm'ī-) n. A partial or mild comatose state; a coma from which a person may be roused by various stimuli.

— sem'ī-co'ma-tose' (-kō'mə-tōs', -kōm'ə-) adj.

sem-i-con-duc-tor (sĕm'ē-kən-dŭk'tər, sĕm'ī-) n. Any of various solid crystalline substances, such as germanium or silicon, having electrical conductivity greater than insulators but less than good conductors. — sem'ī-con-duct'ing adj.

sem-i-con-scious (sĕm'ē-kŏn'shəs, sĕm'ī-) adj. Partially conscious; not completely aware of sensations. — sem'ī-con'scious-ly adv. — sem'ī-con's-cious-ness n.

sem-i-con-ser-va-tive (sĕm'ē-kən-sûr'və-tiv, sĕm'ī-) adj. Of or designating the replication of a nucleic acid molecule, especially DNA, by separation of the two original strands of the molecule so that each acts as a template on which a new, complementary strand is laid down.

sem-i-dark-ness (sĕm'ē-därk'nĭs, sĕm'ī-) n. Partial darkness.

sem-i-des-ert (sĕm'ē-dĕz'ərt, sĕm'ī-) n. A semiarid area often located between a desert and a grassland or woodland.

sem-i-de-tached (sĕm'ē-dĭ-tächt', sĕm'ī-) adj. Attached to something on one side only: a semidetached house.

sem-i-di-am-e-ter (sĕm'ē-dĭ-əm'ī-tər, sĕm'ī-) n. The apparent radius of a celestial body when viewed as a disk from Earth.

sem-i-di-ur-nal (sĕm'ē-dĭ-ûr'nəl, sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, occurring, or performed during half a day. 2. Occurring or coming approximately once every 12 hours, as the tides. 3. Of or relating to the arc described by a celestial body between its meridian passage and its points of rising or setting.

sem-i-di-vine (sĕm'ē-dī-vīn', sĕm'ī-) adj. Not fully divine but more than mortal, as a demigod in Greek mythology.

sem-i-doc-u-men-ta-ry (sĕm'ē-dök'yə-mĕn'tə-rē, sĕm'ī-) n. pl.

sem-i-doc-u-men-ta-ries. A book, movie, or television program presenting a fictional story that incorporates many factual details or actual events.

—sem'i-doc'u-men'ta-ry adj.

sem-i-dome (sĕm'ē-dōm', sĕm'ī-) n. A roof covering a semicircular space; half a dome.

sem-i-dry (sĕm'ē-drī', sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Partially dry. 2. Moderately dry. Used of wine.

sem-i-el-lip-ti-cal (sĕm'ē-ī-līp'tī-kəl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Having the form or shape of half of an ellipse, especially when divided along the major axis.

sem-i-feu-dal (sĕm'ē-fyōōd'l, sĕm'ī-) adj. Partially feudal: a semifeudal social and economic system; a landed, semifeudal class of people.

sem-i-fi-nal (sĕm'ē-fī'nəl, sĕm'ī-) n. 1. A match, a competition, or an examination that precedes the final one. 2. One of the two competitions of the next to the last round in an elimination tournament. —sem'i-fi'nal adj.

—sem'i-fi'nal-ist n.

sem-i-fin-ished (sĕm'ē-fīn'isht, sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Made, treated, or sold to be used in a finished product: semifinished steel. 2. Partially finished: a semifinished basement.

sem-i-flex-i-ble (sĕm'ē-flĕk'sə-bəl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Partially or somewhat flexible: semiflexible tubing.

sem-i-flex-ion (sĕm'ē-flĕk'shən, sĕm'ī-) n. The position of a limb or muscle halfway between flexion and extension.

sem-i-flu-id (sĕm'ē-flōō'īd, sĕm'ī-) adj. Intermediate in flow properties between solids and liquids; highly viscous. —sem'i-flu'id n.

—sem'i-flu-id/i-ty n.

sem-i-for-mal (sĕm'ē-fôr'məl, sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Moderately formal: a semiformal dance. 2. Suitable or appropriate for a moderately formal occasion: semiformal attire.

sem-i-gloss (sĕm'ē-glōs', -glōs', sĕm'ī-) n. A paint that dries with a finish that is between gloss and flat. —sem'i-gloss', sem'i-gloss'y adj.

sem-i-gov-ern-men-tal (sĕm'ē-gŭv'ər-n-mĕn'tl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Partially owned or managed by a government or government agency.

sem-i-group (sĕm'ē-grōōp', sĕm'ī-) n. Mathematics. A set for which there is a binary operation that is closed and associative.

sem-i-hard (sĕm'ē-härd', sĕm'ī-) adj. Intermediate between hard and soft: a semihard cheese.

sem-i-in-de-pend-ent (sĕm'ē-īn'dī-pĕn'dĕnt, sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Partially independent. 2. Semiautonomous.

sem-i-in-fi-nite (sĕm'ē-īn'fə-nīt, sĕm'ī-) adj. Mathematics. Unbounded in one direction or dimension.

sem-i-liq-uid (sĕm'ē-līk'wīd, sĕm'ī-) adj. Intermediate in properties, especially in flow properties, between liquids and solids. —sem'i-liq'uid n.

—sem'i-liq-uid/i-ty n.

sem-i-lit-er-ate (sĕm'ē-līt'ər-īt, sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Having achieved an elementary level of ability in reading and writing. 2. Having limited knowledge or understanding, especially of a technical subject. —sem'i-lit'er-a-cy (-ər-ə-sē) n.

Sé-mil-lon also Se-mil-lon (sā'mēl-yōN) n. A variety of late-ripening grapes, often blended with sauvignon blanc grapes to produce a dry white wine with a crisp taste. [French, from obsolete sémilion, from dialectal semilhoun, from Old Provençal semilhar, to sow, from seme, seed, from Latin sēmen. See SEMEN.]

sem-i-log (sĕm'ē-lōg', -lōg', sĕm'ī-) adj. Mathematics. Semilogarithmic.

sem-i-log-a-rith-mic (sĕm'ē-lō'gə-rīth'mīk, -lōg'ə-, sĕm'ī-) adj. Mathematics. Having one logarithmic and one arithmetic scale: semilogarithmic graph paper.

sem-i-lu-nar (sĕm'ē-lōō'nər, sĕm'ī-) also sem-i-lu-nate (-lōō'nāt') adj.

Shaped like a half-moon; crescent-shaped.

semilunar bone (sĕm'ē-lōō'nər bōn) n. See lunate bone.

semilunar cartilage (sĕm'ē-lōō'nər kār'tl-ij) n. Either of the crescent-shaped wedges of fibrocartilage found in the knee joint.

semilunar valve (sĕm'ē-lōō'nər vālv) n. Either of two valves, one located at the opening of the aorta and the other at the opening of the pulmonary artery, each consisting of three crescent-shaped cusps and serving to prevent blood from flowing back into the ventricles.

sem-i-lu-nate (sĕm'ē-lōō'nāt', sĕm'ī-) adj. Variant of semilunar.

sem-i-mem-bra-nous (sĕm'ē-mēm'brə-nəs, sĕm'ī-) adj. Partly membranous, as one of the hamstring muscles.

sem-i-month-ly (sĕm'ē-mūnth'lē, sĕm'ī-) adj. Occurring or issued twice a month. — n. pl. sem-i-month-lies. A semimonthly publication. — adv. At intervals twice monthly. See Usage Note at bi¹.

sem-i-mys-ti-cal (sĕm'ē-mīs'tī-kəl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Somewhat mystical: a semi-mystical tradition.

sem-i-nal (sĕm'ə-nəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, containing, or conveying semen or seed. 2. Of, relating to, or having the power to originate; creative. 3. Highly influential in an original way; constituting or providing a basis for further development. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sēminālis, from sēmen, sēmin-, seed. See SEMEN.] —sem'i-nal-ly adv.

seminal duct (sĕm'ə-nəl dükt) n. The duct of the testis that carries semen outward, especially the part of the duct that runs from the epididymis to the ejaculatory duct.

seminal fluid (sĕm'ə-nəl flōō'fīd) n. Semen, especially the fluid part of semen without the spermatozoa.

seminal vesicle (sĕm'ə-nəl vĕs'ī-kəl) n. Either of a pair of pouchlike glands situated on each side of the male urinary bladder that secrete seminal fluid and nourish and promote the movement of spermatozoa through the urethra.

sem·i·nar (sĕm'ə-nār') n. 1. a. A small group of advanced students in a college or graduate school engaged in original research or intensive study under the guidance of a professor who meets regularly with them to discuss their reports and findings. b. A course of study so pursued. c. A scheduled meeting of such a group. 2. A meeting for an exchange of ideas; a conference. [German, from Latin sēminārium, seed plot. See SEMINARY.]

sem·i·nar·i·an (sĕm'ə-nâr'ē-ən) also sem·i·nar·ist (-ĭst) n. A student at a seminary.

sem·i·nar·y (sĕm'ə-nĕr'ē) *n. pl. sem·i·nar·ies. Abbr. sem. 1. a. A school, especially a theological school for the training of priests, ministers, or rabbis. b. A school of higher education, especially a private school for girls. 2. A place or environment in which something is developed or nurtured. [Middle English, seed plot, from Latin sēminārium, from sēminārius, of seed, from sēmen, sēmin-, seed. See sē- in Appendix.]*

sem·i·nif·er·ous (sĕm'ə-nĭf'ər-əs) adj. Biology. 1. Conveying, containing, or producing semen. 2. Bearing seed. [Latin sēmen, sēmin-, seed, semen; see SEMEN + -FEROUS.]

sem·i·niv·o·rous (sĕm'ə-nĭv'ər-əs) adj. Feeding on seeds: seminivorous birds. [Latin sēmen, sēmin-, seed; see SEMEN + -VOROUS.]

Sem·i·nole (sĕm'ə-nōl') n. pl. Seminole or Sem·i·noles. 1. a. A Native American people made up of various primarily Creek groups who moved into northern Florida during the 18th and 19th centuries, later inhabiting the Everglades region as well, with present-day populations in Oklahoma and southern Florida. The Seminole Wars ended in the removal of the majority of the Seminoles to Indian Territory. b. A member of this people. 2. Either of the Muskogean languages of the Seminole. [Alteration of Seminolie, from Creek simalóoni, simanóoli, runaway, from American Spanish cimarrón. See MAROON¹.] —Sem'i·nole' adj.

Seminole bread (sĕm'ə-nōl' brĕd) n. See coontie.

sem·i·no·ma (sĕm'ə-nō'mə) n. pl. sem·i·no·mas or sem·i·no·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A malignant tumor of the testis arising from sperm-forming tissue. [Latin sēmen, sēmin-, semen; see SEMEN + -OMA.]

sem·i·no·mad (sĕm'ē-nō'măd', sĕm'ī-) n. One of a people whose living habits are largely nomadic but who plant some crops at a base point.

—sem'·i·no·mad'ic adj.

sem·i·nude (sĕm'ē-nōod', -nyōod', sĕm'ī-) adv. & adj. Only partially clothed: posed seminude for a painter; seminude statues. —sem'·i·nu'·di·ty n.

sem·i·of·fi·cial (sĕm'ē-ə-fīsh'əl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Having some official authority or sanction. —sem'·i·of·fi·cial·ly adv.

se·mi·ol·o·gy also se·mei·ol·o·gy (sē'mē-ōl'ə-jē, sĕm'ē-, sē'mī-) n. 1. a. The science that deals with signs or sign language. b. The use of signs in signaling, as with a semaphore. 2. Medicine. Symptomatology. [Greek sēmeion, sign; see SEMIOTIC + -LOGY.]

sem·i·o·paque (sĕm'ē-ō-pāk', sĕm'ī-) adj. Partially opaque.

se·mi·ot·ic (sē'mē-ōt'īk, sĕm'ē-, sē'mī-) also se·mi·ot·i·cal (-ī-kəl) or se·mei·ot·ic (sē'mē-, sĕm'ē-, sē'mī-) also se·mei·ot·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to semantics. 2. Medicine. Relating to symptomatology. [Greek sēmeiōtikos, observant of signs, significant, from sēmeiōsis, indication, from sēmeioun, to signal, to interpret as a sign, from sēmeion, sign, from sēma.]

se·mi·ot·ics also se·mei·ot·ics (sē'mē-ōt'īks, sĕm'ē-, sē'mī-) n. (used with a sing. verb). Semantics. —se'mi·o·ti·cian (-ə-tīsh'ən) n.

sem·i·o·vip·a·rous (sĕm'ē-ō-vīp'ər-əs, sĕm'ī-) adj. Bearing living young that are incompletely developed, as a kangaroo or other marsupial.

Sem·i·pa·la·tinsk (sĕm'ē-pə-lă'tīnsk, syī-myī-) A city of northeast Kazakhstan on the Irtysh River north-northeast of Alma-Ata. Founded as a fortress in 1718, it is a port and processing center. Population, 317,000.

sem·i·pal·mate (sĕm'ē-păl'māt', -pă'-, -păl'māt', sĕm'ī-) also sem·i·pal·mat·ed (-mă'tīd) adj. Having partial or reduced webbing between the toes, as some wading birds do.

semipalmated plover (sĕm'ē-păl'mă'tīd plŭv'ər) n. A small plover (Charadrius semipalmatus) that breeds in the arctic New World and has a web between the middle and inner toes.

sem·i·par·a·site (sĕm'ē-păr'ə-sīt', sĕm'ī-) n. See hemiparasite (n., sense 1).

—sem'·i·par'·a·sit'ic (-sīt'īk) adj. —sem'·i·par'·a·sit·ism (-sī-tīz'əm) n.

sem·i·per·me·a·ble (sĕm'ē-pŭr'mē-ə-bəl, sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Partially permeable. 2. Allowing passage of certain, especially small, molecules or ions but acting as a barrier to others. Used of biological and synthetic membranes.

—sem'·i·per'·me·a·bil'·i·ty n.

sem·i·po·lit·i·cal (sĕm'ē-pə-līt'ī-kəl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Political in some aspects or activities.

sem·i·por·ce·lain (sĕm'ē-pôr'sə-līn, -pōr'-, sĕm'ī-) n. Any of several glazed ceramic wares resembling porcelain but having little or no translucency.

sem·i·pre·cious stone (sĕm'ē-prĕsh'əs stōn, sĕm'ī-) n. A gem, such as an opal, that has commercial value but is not as rare or expensive as a precious stone.

sem·i·pri·vate (sĕm'ē-prī'vīt, sĕm'ī-) adj. Shared with usually one to three other hospital patients: a semiprivate room.

sem·i·pro (sĕm'ē-prō', sĕm'ī-) adj. Informal. Semiprofessional: a semipro baseball player. — sem'·i·pro' n.

sem·i·pro·fes·sion·al (sĕm'ē-prə-fĕsh'ə-nəl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Sports. 1. Taking part in a sport for pay but not on a full-time basis. 2. Composed of or engaged in by semiprofessional players. — n. 1. Sports. A semiprofessional player. 2. One whose occupation or work has some of the characteristics of a profession or of a professional. — sem'·i·pro·fes'sion·al·ly adv.

sem·i·pub·lic (sĕm'ē-pŭb'lik, sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Partially but not entirely open to the use of the public: prohibited smoking in public and semipublic places.

2. Partially but not totally owned by the public: purchases made by semipublic organizations such as universities, utilities, and the postal service. 3. Open to the knowledge and judgment of only a part of the public: Any public or semipublic expression of racism is controversial. — sem'·i·pub'lic·ly adv.

sem·i·qua·ver (sĕm'ē-kwā'vər) n. Chiefly British & Music. A sixteenth note.

sem·i·re·tired (sĕm'ē-rī-tīrd', sĕm'ī-) adj. Working only on a part-time basis, as for reasons of ill health or advanced age. — sem'·i·re·tire'ment (-tīr'mənt) n.

sem·i·rig·id (sĕm'ē-rīj'īd, sĕm'ī-) adj. Partly or moderately rigid.

sem·i·round (sĕm'ē-round', sĕm'ī-) adj. Having a round side and a flat side. — n. (sĕm'ē-round', sĕm'ī-) Something that has a round side and a flat side.

sem·i·ru·ral (sĕm'ē-rōōr'əl, sĕm'ī-) adj. Having both rural and urban characteristics: a semirural town; a semirural environment; a semirural way of life.

sem·i·skilled (sĕm'ē-skīld', sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Possessing some skills but not enough to do specialized work: semiskilled dockworkers. 2. Requiring limited skills: a semiskilled job.

sem·i·soft (sĕm'ē-sōft', -sōft', sĕm'ī-) adj. 1. Of medium softness. 2. Firm but easily sliced: semisoft cheese.

sem·i·sol·id (sĕm'ē-sōl'īd, sĕm'ī-) adj. Intermediate in properties, especially in rigidity, between solids and liquids. — n. (sĕm'ē-sōl'īd, sĕm'ī-) A semisolid substance, such as a stiff dough or firm gelatin.

sem·i·staged (sĕm'ē-stāj'd', sĕm'ī-) adj. Performed and presented without all the usual stage effects, costumes, or participants: a semistaged version of an opera.

sem·i·ster·ile (sĕm'ē-stēr'əl, -īl', sĕm'ī-) adj. Not completely fertile; partly sterile: semisterile pollen; semisterile male pupae.

sem·i·sub·mers·i·ble (sĕm'ē-səb-mûr'sə-bəl, sĕm'ī-) n. A seagoing, self-propelled barge that rides at anchor, stands on partially submerged vertical legs on submerged pontoons, and serves as living quarters and a base of operations in offshore drilling. Also called semisubmersible rig —sem'i-sub-mer'si-ble adj.

sem-i-sweet (sēm'ē-swēt', sēm'ī-) adj. Having a small amount of sweetening: semisweet chocolate.

sem-i-syn-thet-ic (sēm'ē-sīn-thēt'īk, sēm'ī-) adj. 1. Prepared by chemical synthesis from natural materials: a semisynthetic antibiotic. 2. Consisting of a mixture of natural and synthetic substances: a semisynthetic culture medium.

Sem-ite (sēm'it') n. 1. A member of a group of Semitic-speaking peoples of the Near East and northern Africa, including the Arabs, Arameans, Babylonians, Carthaginians, Ethiopians, Hebrews, and Phoenicians. 2. A Jew. 3. Bible. A descendant of Shem. [Back-formation from SEMITIC.]

sem-i-ter-res-tri-al (sēm'ē-tə-rēs'trē-əl, sēm'ī-) adj. Not growing or living entirely on land; partly terrestrial: a semiterrestrial crustacean.

Se-mit-ic (sə-mīt'īk) adj. Abbr. Sem. 1. Of or relating to the Semites or their languages or cultures. 2. Of, relating to, or constituting a subgroup of the Afro-Asiatic language group that includes Arabic, Hebrew, Amharic, and Aramaic. — n. Abbr. Sem. 1. The Semitic languages. 2. Any one of the Semitic languages. [New Latin Sēmiticus, from Sēmita, Semite, from Late Latin Sēm, Shem, eponymous ancestor of the Semites, from Greek, from Hebrew Šēm.]

Se-mit-ics (sə-mīt'īks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the history, languages, and cultures of the Semitic peoples. —Se-mit'i-cist (-ī-sīst) n.

Sem-i-tism (sēm'ī-tīz'əm) n. 1. A Semitic word or idiom. 2. Semitic traits, attributes, or customs. 3. A policy or predisposition in favor of Jews.

sem-i-tone (sēm'ē-tōn', sēm'ī-) n. Music. An interval equal to a half tone in the standard diatonic scale. Also called half step, half tone. —sem'i-ton'ic (-tōn'īk) adj. —sem'i-ton'i-cal-ly adv.

sem-i-trail-er (sēm'ē-trā'lər, sēm'ī-) n. A trailer having a set or several sets of wheels at the rear only, with the forward portion being supported by the truck tractor or towing vehicle.

sem-i-trans-par-ent (sēm'ē-trāns-pār'ənt, -pār'-, sēm'ī-) adj. Partially transparent.

sem-i-trop-i-cal (sēm'ē-trōp'ī-kəl, sēm'ī-) adj. Partly tropical; subtropical.

sem-i-vow-el (sēm'ī-vou'əl) n. Linguistics. A sound that has the quality of one of the high vowels, as (ē) or (ōō), and that functions as a consonant before vowels, as the initial sounds of yell and well. Also called glide sem-i-week-ly (sēm'ē-wēk'lē, sēm'ī-) adj. Issued or occurring twice a week. — n. pl. sem-i-week-lies. A semiweekly event or publication. — adv. Twice weekly. See Usage Note at bi¹.

sem-i-year-ly (sēm'ē-yîr'lē, sēm'ī-) adj. Issued or occurring twice a year or once every half year. — n. pl. sem-i-year-lies. A semiyearly event or publication. — adv. Every half year.

Semmes (sěmz), Raphael. 1809-1877. American Confederate naval officer who commanded the Alabama (1862-1864), which took a heavy toll on Union marine commerce until it was sunk by a Union ship off the coast of France (1864).

sem·o·li·na (sěm'ə-lē'nə) n. The gritty, coarse particles of wheat left after the finer flour has passed through a bolting machine, used for pasta. [Alteration of Italian semolino, diminutive of semola, bran, from Latin simila, fine flour, probably of Semitic origin.]

sem·pi·ter·nal (sěm'pī-tūr'nəl) adj. Enduring forever; eternal. See Synonyms at infinite. [Middle English, from Old French sempiternel, from Late Latin sempiternālis, from Latin sempiternus: semper, always; see sem-¹ in Appendix + aeternus, eternal; see aiw- in Appendix.] —sem'pi·ter'ni·ty (-nĭ-tē) n.

sem·pli·ce (sěm'plī-chā') adv. & adj. Music. In a simple or plain manner. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Latin simplex, simplic-, simple. See sem-¹ in Appendix.]

sem·pre (sěm'prā) adv. Music. In the same manner throughout. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, always, from Latin semper. See sem-¹ in Appendix.]

sen¹ (sěn) n. pl. sen. A unit of currency in Japan. See Table at currency. [Japanese, from Chinese (Mandarin) qián, money, coin.]

sen² (sěn) n. pl. sen. A unit of currency in Indonesia, Cambodia, and Malaysia. See Table at currency. [Indonesian seni, sen, ultimately from CENT.]

sen. or Sen. abbr. 1. Senate; senator. 2. Senior.

se·nar·i·us (sə-nâr'ē-əs) n. pl. se·nar·i·i (-ē-ī', -ē-ē'). A Latin verse consisting of six iambic feet. [Latin sēnārius, consisting of six each, senarius. See SENARY.]

sen·a·ry (sěn'ə-rē) adj. 1. Of or relating to the number six. 2. Having six things or parts. [Latin sēnārius, from sēnī, six each, from sex, six. See s(w)eks in Appendix.]

sen·ate (sěn'it) n. Abbr. sen., Sen. 1. An assembly or a council of citizens having the highest deliberative and legislative functions in a government, specifically: a. Senate. The upper house of the U.S. Congress, to which two members are elected from each state by popular vote for a six-year term. b. Often Senate. The upper house in the bicameral legislature of many states in the United States. c. Senate. The upper legislative house in Canada, France, and some other countries. d. The supreme council of state of the ancient Roman Republic and later of the Roman Empire. 2. The building or hall in which such a council or assembly meets. 3. A governing, advisory, or disciplinary body of some colleges and universities composed of faculty members and sometimes student representatives. [Middle English senat, from Old French, from Latin senātus, from senex, sen-, old, an elder. See sen- in Appendix.]

sen·a·tor (sěn'ə-tər) n. Abbr. sen., Sen. A member of a senate.

—sen'a·tor·ship' n.

sen-a-to-ri-al (sĕn'ə-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj. 1. Of, concerning, or befitting a senator or senate. 2. Composed of senators. —sen'a-to'ri-al-ly adv.

senatorial courtesy (sĕn'ə-tôr'ē-əl kûr'tī-sē) n. The custom in the U.S. Senate of refusing to confirm a presidential appointment to office opposed by both senators from the state of the appointee or by the senior senator of the President's party.

senatorial district (sĕn'ə-tôr'ē-əl dīs'trīkt) n. A territorial district from which a senator is elected.

send¹ (sĕnd) v. sent (sĕnt), send-ing, sends. — v. tr. 1. To cause to be conveyed by an intermediary to a destination: send goods by plane. 2. To dispatch, as by a communications medium: send a message by radio. 3. a. To direct to go on a mission: sent troops into the Middle East. b. To require or enable to go: sent her children to college. c. To direct (a person) to a source of information; refer: sent the student to the reference section of the library. 4. a. To give off (heat, for example); emit or issue: a stove that sends forth great warmth. b. To utter or otherwise emit (sound): sent forth a cry of pain. 5. To hit so as to direct or propel with force; drive: The batter sent the ball to left field. The slap on my back sent me staggering. 6. To cause to take place or occur: We will meet whatever vicissitudes fate may send. 7. a. To put or drive into a given state or condition: horrifying news that sent them into a panic. b. Slang. To transport with delight; carry away: That music really sends me. — v. intr. 1. To dispatch someone to do an errand or convey a message: Let's send out for hamburgers. 2. To dispatch a request or an order, especially by mail: send away for a new catalogue. 3. To transmit a message or messages: The radio operator was still sending when the ship went down.

—phrasal verbs. send down. Chiefly British. To suspend or dismiss from a university. send for. To request to come by means of a message or messenger; summon. send in. 3. To cause to arrive or to be delivered to the recipient: Let's send in a letter of protest. 4. Sports. To put (a player) into or back into a game or contest: The coach is sending in the kicker. 5. To cause (someone) to arrive in or become involved in a particular place or situation: The commander sent in the sappers. It's time to send in the lawyers. send up. Informal. 6. To send to jail: was sent up for 20 years. 7. To make a parody of: “grandiloquently eccentric but witty verbiage... that would send up the nastiness of suburban London” (New York).

—idioms. send flying. Informal. To cause to be knocked or scattered about with force: a blow to the table that sent the dishes flying. send packing. To dismiss (someone) abruptly. [Middle English senden, from Old English sendan. See sent- in Appendix.] —send'er n.

SYNONYMS: send, dispatch, forward, route, ship, transmit. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to cause to go or be taken to a destination”: sent the package by parcel post; dispatched a union representative to the factory; forwarding the mail to their new address; routed the soldiers through New York; shipping oil in tankers; transmitting money by cable.

send² (sënd) v. & n. Nautical. Variant of scend.

Sen-dai (sën-dī') A city of northeast Honshu, Japan, on an inlet of the Pacific Ocean north of Tokyo. It is an important cultural and educational center. Population, 700,248.

Sendai virus (sën-dī' vī'rəs) n. A paramyxovirus used in research laboratories for its tendency to induce genetically different cells or nuclei to fuse, the resulting hybrid cells having useful properties such as the ability to synthesize specific antibodies. [After Sendai.]

sen-dal (sën'dl) n. A thin, light silk used in the Middle Ages for fine garments, church vestments, and banners. [Middle English cedal, from Old French, ultimately from Greek sindōn, fine linen.]

send-off (sënd'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. A demonstration of affection and good wishes for the beginning of a new undertaking. 2. A farewell: gave our guests a hearty sendoff at the airport.

send-up or send-up (sënd'ŭp') n. Informal. An amusing imitation or parody; a takeoff: "The absurd trial is, of course, a send-up of the Dublin courts" (New Yorker).

se-ne (sā'nā) n. pl. sene. A unit of currency in Western Samoa. See Table at currency. [Samoan, from English CENT.]

Sen-e-ca (sën'ī-kə) n. pl. Seneca or Sen-e-cas. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting western New York from Seneca Lake to Lake Erie, with present-day populations in this same area and in southeast Ontario. The Seneca are the westernmost member of the original Iroquois confederacy. b. A member of this people. 2. The Iroquoian language of the Seneca. [From Dutch Senne-caas, probably of Mahican origin.]

Seneca, Lucius Annaeus. Known as "the Younger." 4 B.C.?-A.D. 65. Roman Stoic philosopher, writer, and tutor of Nero. His works include treatises on rhetoric and governance and numerous plays that influenced Renaissance and Elizabethan drama.

Seneca Falls (sën'ī-kə fôlz) A village of west-central New York on the Seneca River east-southeast of Rochester. The first women's rights convention was held here in 1848. Population, 7,370.

Seneca Lake (sën'ī-kə lāk) A lake of west-central New York connected with Cayuga Lake by the Seneca River, about 105 km (65 mi) long. Seneca Lake is the largest of the Finger Lakes.

Seneca snakeroot (sën'ī-kə snāk'rōot') n. An eastern North American plant (Polygala senega) having a terminal cluster of small white flowers and roots that are used medicinally.

se·nec·ti·tude (sĭ-nĕk'tĭ-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. Old age; elderliness. [Medieval Latin senectitūdō, from Latin senectūs, from senex, sen-, old, an elder. See sen- in Appendix.]

sen·e·ga (sĕn'ĭ-gə) n. The dried roots of the Seneca snakeroot, used medicinally as an expectorant. [Alteration of SENECA (from its use by this people).]

Sen·e·gal (sĕn'ĭ-gôl', -gäl') A country of western Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. First settled in prehistoric times, it was colonized by Portuguese, Dutch, French, and British traders and became a French possession in the 19th century. Senegal achieved independence in 1960. Dakar is the capital and the largest city. Population, 6,038,000. —Sen'e·ga·lese' (-gô-lēz', -lēz', -gə-) adj. & n.

Senegal River (sĕn'ĭ-gôl' rĭv'ər) A river of western Africa rising in western Mali and flowing about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) generally northwest and west along the Mauritania-Senegal border to the Atlantic Ocean.

Sen·e·gam·bi·a (sĕn'ĭ-gām'bē-ə) A region of western Africa watered by the Senegal and Gambia rivers.

se·nes·cent (sĭ-nĕs'ənt) adj. Growing old; aging. [Latin senēscēns, senēscēnt- present participle of senēscere, to grow old inchoative of senēre, to be old, from senex, sen-, old. See sen- in Appendix.] —se·nes'cence n.

sen·e·schal (sĕn'ə-shəl) n. An official in a medieval noble household in charge of domestic arrangements and the administration of servants; a steward or major-domo. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

se·nile (sĕ'nĭl', sĕn'ĭl') adj. 1. Relating to, characteristic of, or resulting from old age. 2. Exhibiting the symptoms of senility, as impaired memory or the inability to perform certain mental tasks. 3. Geology. Worn away nearly to the base level, as at the end of an erosion cycle. [Latin senĭlis, from senex, sen-, old. See sen- in Appendix.] —se'nile'ly adv.

WORD HISTORY: In earlier writings one finds phrases such as “a senile maturity of judgment” and “green and vigorous senility,” demonstrating that these two words have not always been burdened with their current negative connotations. Senile and senility are examples of pejoration, the process by which a word’s meaning changes for the worse over time. Even though senile (first recorded in 1661) and senility (first recorded in 1778) initially had neutral senses such as “pertaining to old age,” it is probable that the weakness (in particular the mental weakness) that sometimes accompanies old age eventually caused negative senses to predominate. Certainly some pejorative associations were present in Latin senĭlis, “relating to an old man, aged,” the ultimate source of both words, and in related Latin words such as senēscere, which could mean “to deteriorate with age.” But it seems that pejorative associations have taken over these words in English through general usage, perhaps because average life expectancy has risen steadily over the years.

senile dementia (sē'nīl' dī-mēn'shə) n. A progressive, abnormally accelerated deterioration of mental faculties and emotional stability in old age, occurring especially in Alzheimer's disease.

se-nil-i-ty (sī-nīl'ī-tē) n. 1. The state of being senile. 2. The mental and physical deterioration characteristic of old age.

sen-ior (sēn'yər) adj. 1. Abbr. Sr., sr. Of, relating to, or being the older of two, especially the older of two persons having the same name, as father and son. 2. Abbr. sen., Sen. a. Being in a position, rank, or grade above others of the same set or class: a senior officer; the senior ship in the battle group. b. Having precedence in making certain decisions. 3. Abbr. sen., Sen., Sr., sr. Of or relating to the fourth and last year of high school or college: our senior class. — n. 1. Abbr. sen., Sen. a. A person who is older than another: She is eight years my senior. b. A senior citizen: "The interests of seniors tend to be... varied... Their energy levels... can be every bit as intense as those expended by younger people" (Elaine Sherman). 2. Abbr. sen., Sen., Sr., sr. a. One that is of a higher position, rank, or grade than another in the same set or class. b. A student in the fourth year of high school or college. [Middle English, from Latin, comparative of senex, old. See sen- in Appendix.]

senior chief petty officer (sēn'yər chēf pēt'ē ô'fī-sər) n. Abbr. SCPO, CPOS 1. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Navy that is above chief petty officer and below master chief petty officer. 2. One who holds this rank.

senior citizen (sēn'yər sīt'ī-zən) n. A person of or over the age of retirement. —sen'ior-cit'ī-zen (sēn'yər-sīt'ī-zən) adj. —senior citizenry n.

senior debt (sēn'yər dēt) n. A class of corporate debt that has priority with respect to interest and principal over other classes of debt and over all classes of equity by the same issuer.

senior high school (sēn'yər hī skōol) n. A high school usually constituting grades 10, 11, and 12.

sen-ior-i-ty (sēn-yôr'ī-tē, -yôr'-) n. 1. The state of being older than another or others or higher in rank than another or others. 2. Precedence of position, especially precedence over others of the same rank by reason of a longer span of service.

senior lecturer (sēn'yər lēk'chər-ər) n. Chiefly British. A university teacher, especially one ranking next below a reader.

senior master sergeant (sēn'yər mäs'tər sār'jənt) n. Abbr. S.M.Sgt., SMSGT 1. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Air Force that is above master sergeant and below chief master sergeant. 2. One who holds this rank.

sen-i-ti (sēn'ī-tē) n. pl. seniti. A unit of currency in Tonga. See Table at currency. [Tongan, from English CENT.]

Sen·lac (sĕn'läk') A hill in southern England near Hastings. The battle fought here in 1066, in which William the Conqueror defeated Harold II, is known as the Battle of Hastings.

sen·na (sĕn'ə) n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Cassia, having pinnately compound leaves and showy, nearly regular, usually yellow flowers. 2. The dried leaves of C. angustifolia or C. acutifolia, used medicinally as a cathartic. [New Latin, from Arabic sanā']

Sen·nach·er·ib (sĭ-nāk'ər-ĭb), Died 681 B.C. King of Assyria (704-681) who invaded Judea, subjugated Babylon, and rebuilt Nineveh.

sen·net¹ (sĕn'ĭt) n. A call on a trumpet or cornet signaling the ceremonial exits and entrances of actors in Elizabethan drama. [Perhaps variant of SIGNET.]

sen·net² (sĕn'ĭt) n. Any of several barracudas, especially Sphyræna borealis, of the western Atlantic. [Origin unknown.]

Sen·nett (sĕn'ĭt), Mack. 1880?-1960. Canadian-born American filmmaker known for his slapstick motion pictures featuring the Keystone Kops.

sen·night (sĕn'ĭt') n. Archaic. A week. [Middle English senight, contraction of seveniht, from Old English seofon nihta, seven nights : seofon, seven; see SEVEN + nihta, pl. of niht, night; see NIGHT.]

sen·nit (sĕn'ĭt) n. 1. Nautical. Braided cordage formed by plaiting several strands of rope fiber or similar material. 2. Plaited straw, grass, or palm leaves for making hats. [Origin unknown.]

se·no·pi·a (sĭ-nō'pĕ-ə) n. Improvement of near vision sometimes occurring in the aged because of swelling of the crystalline lens in incipient cataract. [Latin senex, sen-, old; see sen- in Appendix + -OPIA.]

se·ñor (sān-yô'r', sĕ-nyô'r') n. pl. se·ño·res (sān-yô'r'ās, sĕ-nyô'rĕs). 1. Abbr. Sr. a. Used as a courtesy title before the surname, full name, or professional title of a man in a Spanish-speaking area. b. Used as a form of polite address for a man in a Spanish-speaking area. 2. A Spanish or Spanish-speaking man. [Spanish, from Old Spanish señor, from Vulgar Latin senior*, lord, from Latin, senior. See SENIOR.]

se·ño·ra (sān-yô'r'ə, sĕ-nyô'rä) n. 1. Abbr. Sra. a. Used as a courtesy title before the surname or full name of a married woman in a Spanish-speaking area. b. Used as a form of polite address for a woman in a Spanish-speaking area. 2. A Spanish or Spanish-speaking woman. [Spanish, feminine of señor, señor. See SEÑOR.]

se·ño·res (sān-yô'r'ās, sĕ-nyô'rĕs) n. Plural of señor.

se·ño·ri·ta (sān'yə-rĕ'tə, sĕ'nyô-rĕ'tä) n. 1. Abbr. Srta. a. Used as a courtesy title before the surname or full name of a girl or an unmarried woman in a Spanish-speaking area. b. Used as a form of address for a girl or young woman in a Spanish-speaking area. 2. A Spanish or Spanish-speaking unmarried woman or girl. [Spanish, diminutive of señora, señora. See SEÑORA.]

sen-sate (sĕn'sāt') also sen-sat-ed (-sā'tid) adj. 1. Perceived by a sense or the senses. 2. Having physical sensation. [Middle English sensat, from Late Latin sēnsātus, gifted with sense, from Latin sēnsus, sense. See SENSE.] —sen'sate'ly adv.

sen-sa-tion (sĕn-sā'shən) n. 1. a. A perception associated with stimulation of a sense organ or with a specific body condition: the sensation of heat; a visual sensation. b. The faculty to feel or perceive; physical sensibility: The patient has very little sensation left in the right leg. c. An indefinite, generalized body feeling: a sensation of lightness. 2. A state of heightened interest or emotion: "The anticipation produced in me a sensation somewhat between bliss and fear" (James Weldon Johnson). 3. a. A state of intense public interest and excitement: "The purser made a sensation as sailors like to do, by predicting a storm" (Evelyn Waugh). b. A cause of such interest and excitement. See Synonyms at wonder. [French, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sēnsātiō, sēnsātiōn-, from Late Latin sēnsātus, gifted with sense. See SENSATE.]

sen-sa-tion-al (sĕn-sā'shə-nəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to sensation. 2. Arousing or intended to arouse strong curiosity, interest, or reaction, especially by exaggerated or lurid details: sensational journalistic reportage of the scandal. 3. Outstanding; spectacular: We attended a sensational concert—one never to be forgotten. —sen-sa'tion-al-ly adv.

sen-sa-tion-al-ism (sĕn-sā'shə-nə-līz'əm) n. 1. a. The use of sensational matter or methods, especially in writing, journalism, or politics. b. Sensational subject matter. c. Interest in or the effect of such subject matter. 2. Philosophy. The theory that sensation is the only source of knowledge. 3. The ethical doctrine that feeling is the only criterion of good. —sen-sa'tion-al-ist n. —sen-sa'tion-al-is'tic adj.

sen-sa-tion-al-ize (sĕn-sā'shə-nə-līz') v. tr. sen-sa-tion-al-ized, sen-sa-tion-al-iz-ing, sen-sa-tion-al-iz-es. To cast and present in a manner intended to arouse strong interest, especially through inclusion of exaggerated or lurid details: "doubted the ability of the liberal press to handle such information fairly, to refrain from sensationalizing it" (Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein). —sen-sa'tion-al-i-za'tion (-shə-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

sense (sĕns) n. 1. a. Any of the faculties by which stimuli from outside or inside the body are received and felt, as the faculties of hearing, sight, smell, touch, taste, and equilibrium. b. A perception or feeling produced by a stimulus; sensation: a sense of fatigue and hunger. 2. senses. The faculties of sensation as means of providing physical gratification and pleasure. 3. Intuitive or acquired perception or ability to estimate: a sense of diplomatic timing. a. A capacity to appreciate or understand: a keen sense of humor. b. A vague feeling or presentiment: a sense of impending doom. c. Recognition or perception either through the senses or through the intellect; consciousness: has no sense of shame. 4. a.

Often senses. Normal ability to think or reason soundly; correct judgment: Come to your senses. b. Something sound or reasonable: There's no sense in waiting three hours. 5. a. A meaning that is conveyed, as in speech or writing; signification: The sense of the novel is the inevitability of human tragedy. b. One of the meanings of a word or phrase: The word set has many senses. See Synonyms at meaning. 6. a. Judgment; consensus: sounding out the sense of the electorate on capital punishment. b. Intellectual interpretation, as of the significance of an event or the conclusions reached by a group: I came away from the meeting with the sense that we had resolved all outstanding issues. — v. tr. sensed, sens-ing, sens-es. 1. To become aware of; perceive. 2. To grasp; understand. 3. To detect automatically: sense radioactivity. [Middle English, meaning, from Old French sens, from Latin sēnsus, the faculty of perceiving, from past participle of sentīre, to feel. See sent- in Appendix.]

sense datum (sěns dā'təm) n. A basic, unanalyzable sensation, such as color, sound, or smell, experienced upon stimulation of a sense organ or receptor.

sen-sei (sěn'sā', sěn-sā') n. pl. sen-seis. 1. A judo or karate teacher. 2. A teacher or mentor. 3. Used as a form of address for such a person. [Japanese, teacher, master.]

sense-less (sěns'lis) adj. 1. Lacking sense or meaning; meaningless. See Synonyms at meaningless. 2. Deficient in sense; foolish or stupid. 3. Insensate; unconscious. —sense/less-ly adv. —sense/less-ness n.

sense organ (sěns ôr'gən) n. A specialized organ or structure, such as the eye, ear, tongue, nose, or skin, where sensory neurons are concentrated and which functions as a receptor. Also called sensor sense perception (sěns pər-sěp'shən) n. Perception by or based on stimulation of the senses.

sen-si-bil-i-ty (sěn'sə-bil'i-tē) n. pl. sen-si-bil-i-ties. 1. The ability to feel or perceive. 2. a. Keen intellectual perception: the sensibility of a painter to color. b. Mental or emotional responsiveness toward something, such as the feelings of another. 3. Receptiveness to impression, whether pleasant or unpleasant; acuteness of feeling. Often used in the plural: "The sufferings of the Cuban people shocked our sensibilities" (George F. Kennan). 4. Refined awareness and appreciation in matters of feeling. 5. The quality of being affected by changes in the environment.

sen-si-ble (sěn'sə-bəl) adj. 1. Perceptible by the senses or by the mind. 2. Readily perceived; appreciable. 3. Having the faculty of sensation; able to feel or perceive. 4. Having a perception of something; cognizant: "I am sensible that a good deal more is still to be done" (Edmund Burke). See Synonyms at aware. 5. Acting with or exhibiting good sense: a sensible person; a sensible choice. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sensibilis, from sensus, sense. See SENSE.] —sen/si-ble-ness n. —sen/si-bly adv.

sensible horizon (sɛn'sə-bəl hə-rī'zən) n. The plane intersecting an observer's position perpendicular to the line formed by the observer's nadir and zenith.

sen-sil-lum (sɛn-sīl'əm) n. pl. sen-sil-la (-sīl'ə). A simple sensory receptor consisting of one cell or a few cells, especially a hairlike epithelial cell projecting through the cuticle of arthropods. [New Latin sēnillum, diminutive of Latin sēnsus, sense. See SENSE.]

sen-si-tive (sɛn'sī-tīv) adj. 1. Capable of perceiving with a sense or senses. 2. Responsive to external conditions or stimulation. 3. Susceptible to the attitudes, feelings, or circumstances of others. 4. Quick to take offense; touchy. 5. Easily irritated: sensitive skin. 6. Readily altered by the action of an agent: film that is sensitive to light. 7. Registering very slight differences or changes of condition. Used of an instrument. 8. Fluctuating or tending to fluctuate, as in price: sensitive stocks. 9. Of or relating to classified information: sensitive defense data; holds a sensitive position in the State Department. — n. 1. A sensitive person. 2. One held to be endowed with psychic or occult powers. [Middle English, from Old French sensitif, from Medieval Latin sēnsitīvus, from Latin sēnsus, sense. See SENSE.] — sen'si-tive-ly adv. — sen'si-tive-ness n.

sensitive plant (sɛn'sī-tīv plänt) n. 1. A shrubby tropical American plant (Mimosa pudica) having mauve flower heads and bipinnately compound leaves with leaflets and leafstalks that fold and droop when touched. Also called touch-me-not. 2. Any of various similar plants, such as Cassia nictitans, of eastern and central North America.

sen-si-tiv-i-ty (sɛn'sī-tīv'ī-tē) n. pl. sen-si-tiv-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being sensitive. 2. The capacity of an organ or organism to respond to stimulation. 3. Electronics. The degree of response of a receiver or an instrument to an incoming signal or to a change in the incoming signal; the signal strength required by an FM tuner to reduce noise and distortion. 4. The degree of response of a plate or film to light, especially to light of a specified wavelength.

sensitivity training (sɛn'sī-tīv'ī-tē trā'nīŋ) n. Training in small groups in which people learn how to interact with each other by developing a sensitive awareness and understanding of themselves and of their relationships with others.

sen-si-tize (sɛn'sī-tīz') v. sen-si-tized, sen-si-tiz-ing, sen-si-tiz-es. — v. tr. 1. To make sensitive: "The polarity principle... sensitizes the observer to the coexistence of seemingly contradictory phenomena" (Heinz Eulau). 2. To make (a film or plate) sensitive to light, especially to light of a specific wavelength. 3. To make hypersensitive or reactive to an antigen, such as pollen, especially by a second or repeated exposure. — v. intr. To become sensitive or hypersensitive.

— sen'si-ti-za'tion (-tī-zā'shən) n. — sen'si-tiz'er n.

sen-si·tom·e·ter (sĕn'sī-tŏm'ī-tər) n. 1. A device used for measuring the sensitivity of photographic film to light. 2. A similar device for measuring the sensitivity of eyes to light. [SENSIT(IVITY) + -METER.] —sen'si-to-met'ric (-tə-mĕt'rik) adj. —sen'si-tom'e-try n.

sen-sor (sĕn'sər, -sŏr') n. 1. A device, such as a photoelectric cell, that receives and responds to a signal or stimulus. 2. See sense organ.

sen-so·ri·a (sĕn-sŏr'ĕ-ə, -sŏr'-) n. A plural of sensorium.

sen-so·ri·al (sĕn-sŏr'ĕ-əl, -sŏr'-) adj. Of or relating to sensations or sensory impressions. —sen-so'ri-al-ly adv.

sen-so·ri·mo·tor (sĕn'sə-rĕ-mŏ'tər) adj. Of, relating to, or combining the functions of the sensory and motor activities: sensorimotor nerve centers; sensorimotor pathways.

sen-so·ri·neu·ral (sĕn'sə-rĕ-nŏŏr'əl, -nyŏŏr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or involving the sensory nerves, especially as they affect the hearing: sensorineural deafness.

sen-so·ri·um (sĕn-sŏr'ĕ-əm, -sŏr'-) n. pl. sen-so·ri·ums or sen-so·ri·a (-sŏr'ĕ-ə, -sŏr'-). 1. The part of the brain that receives and coordinates all the stimuli conveyed to various sensory centers. 2. The entire sensory system of the body. [Late Latin sēnsōrium, organ of sensation, from Latin sēnsus, sense. See SENSE.]

sen-so·ry (sĕn'sə-rĕ) adj. 1. Of or relating to the senses or sensation.

2. Transmitting impulses from sense organs to nerve centers; afferent.

sensory deprivation (sĕn'sə-rĕ dĕp'rə-vā'shən) n. Deprivation of sensory stimulation, as by prolonged isolation inside a sealed, unlighted chamber or tank, in order to observe physical and especially psychological reactions.

sen-su·al (sĕn'shŏŏ-əl) adj. 1. Relating to or affecting any of the senses or a sense organ; sensory. 2. a. Of, relating to, given to, or providing gratification of the physical and especially the sexual appetites. See Synonyms at sensuous.

b. Suggesting sexuality; voluptuous. c. Physical rather than spiritual or intellectual. d. Lacking in moral or spiritual interests; worldly. —sen'su-al-ly adv.

—sen'su-al-ness n.

sen-su·al·ism (sĕn'shŏŏ-ə-lĭz'əm) n. 1. Sensuality. 2. The ethical doctrine that the pleasures of the senses are the highest good. 3. Philosophy. Sensationalism. —sen'su-al-ist n. —sen'su-al-is'tic adj.

sen-su·al·i·ty (sĕn'shŏŏ-ăl'ī-tĕ) n. 1. The quality or state of being sensual or lascivious. 2. Excessive devotion to sensual pleasures.

sen-su·al·ize (sĕn'shŏŏ-ə-lĭz') v. tr. sen-su-al-ized, sen-su-al-iz-ing, sen-su-al-iz-es. To make sensual. —sen'su-al-i-za'tion (-ə-lĭ-zā'shən) n.

sen-su·ous (sĕn'shŏŏ-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or derived from the senses.

2. Appealing to or gratifying the senses. 3. a. Readily affected through the senses. b. Highly appreciative of the pleasures of sensation. —sen'su-os/i-ty (-ōs'ī-tē), sen'su-ous-ness (-əs-nīs) n. —sen'su-ous-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: sensuous, sensual, luxurious, voluptuous, sybaritic, epicurean. These adjectives mean of, given to, or furnishing satisfaction of the senses. Sensuous can refer to any of the senses but usually applies to those involved in aesthetic enjoyment, as of art or music: “The sensuous joy from all things fair/His strenuous bent of soul repressed” (John Greenleaf Whittier). Sensual more often applies to the physical senses or appetites, particularly those associated with sexual pleasure: “Of music Dr. Johnson used to say that it was the only sensual pleasure without vice” (William Seward). Luxurious in this comparison suggests a surrender to physical comfort, as that provided by a sumptuous lifestyle, leading to a delightful feeling of well-being: stayed in a luxurious, flower-filled suite with a crystal chandelier and thick oriental rugs. Voluptuous principally implies abandoning oneself to pleasures, especially sensual pleasures: “Lucullus... returned to Rome to lounge away the remainder of his days in voluptuous magnificence” (J.A. Froude). Sybaritic even more strongly suggests devotion to pleasure and luxury; the term implies excess and sometimes connotes effete-ness or decadence: A chinchilla robe of sybaritic lavishness was draped over the bed. Epicurean stresses the pleasure of indulging a taste for fine food and drink: an epicurean banquet of exquisitely prepared food accompanied throughout by vintage champagne.

Sen-sur-round (sɛn'sə-round') A trademark used for a motion-picture sound effect consisting of low-frequency sound signals felt by the audience as vibrations.

sent (sɛnt) v. Past tense and past participle of send¹.

sen-te (sɛn'tā) n. pl. li-sen-te (lē-sɛn'tā). A unit of currency in Lesotho. See Table at currency. [Sotho (Sesotho), from English CENT.]

sen-tence (sɛn'təns) n. 1. A grammatical unit that is syntactically independent and has a subject that is expressed or, as in imperative sentences, understood and a predicate that contains at least one finite verb. 2. Law. a. A court judgment, especially a judicial decision of the punishment to be inflicted on one adjudged guilty. b. The penalty meted out. 3. Archaic. A maxim. 4. Obsolete. An opinion, especially one given formally after deliberation. — v. tr. sen-tenced, sen-tenc-ing, sen-tenc-es. Law. To pronounce sentence upon (one adjudged guilty). See Synonyms at condemn. [Middle English, opinion, from Old French, from Latin sententia, from sentīēns, sentient- present participle of sentīre, to feel. See sent- in Appendix.] —sen-ten'tial (sɛn-tɛn'shəl) adj. —sen-ten'tial-ly adv.

sen-tenc-er (sɛn'tɛn-sər) n. Law. One, such as a court or judge, that pronounces sentence.

sentence stress (sɛn'təns strɛs) n. Linguistics. The variation in emphasis or vocal stress on the syllables of words within a sentence.

sen-tenc-ing (sɛn'tən-sɪŋ) Law. adj. 1. Relating to a judicial sentence: sentencing guidelines for juvenile defendants. 2. Being or relating to the one who pronounces a judicial sentence: “Prosecutors and sentencing judges alike try to deal with individuals on an individual basis, without regard to social status” (Hiller B. Zobel). — n. 1. The act of pronouncing a judicial sentence on a defendant. 2. The sentence so pronounced.

sen-ten-tia (sɛn-tɛn'shə, -shē-ə) n. pl. sen-ten-ti-ae (-shē-ē'). An adage or aphorism. [Latin. See SENTENCE.]

sen-ten-tious (sɛn-tɛn'shəs) adj. 1. Terse and energetic in expression; pithy. 2. a. Abounding in aphorisms. b. Given to aphoristic utterances. 3. a. Abounding in pompous moralizing. b. Given to pompous moralizing. [Middle English, from Old French sententieux, from Latin sententiōsus, full of meaning, from sententia, opinion. See SENTENCE.] —sen-ten'tiously adv. —sen-ten'tious-ness n.

sen-tience (sɛn'shəns, -shē-əns) n. 1. The quality or state of being sentient; consciousness. 2. Feeling as distinguished from perception or thought.

sen-tient (sɛn'shənt, -shē-ənt) adj. 1. Having sense perception; conscious: “The living knew themselves just sentient puppets on God's stage” (T.E. Lawrence). 2. Experiencing sensation or feeling. [Latin sentiens, sentient- present participle of sentire, to feel. See sent- in Appendix.] —sen'tient-ly adv.

sen-ti-ment (sɛn'tə-mənt) n. 1. a. A cast of mind; general mental disposition: Anti-American sentiment is running high in some countries. b. An opinion about a specific matter; a view. See Synonyms at opinion. 2. A thought, a view, or an attitude based on feeling or emotion instead of reason. 3. The emotional import of a passage. 4. a. Susceptibility to tender, romantic, or nostalgic feeling. b. An expression of such susceptibility. 5. a. Emotion that borders on mawkishness. b. Romantic, nostalgic feeling verging on sentimentality. 6. The expression of delicate and sensitive feeling, especially in art and literature. See Synonyms at feeling. 7. A vague feeling or awareness; sensation: “overpowered by an intense sentiment of horror” (Edgar Allan Poe). [Middle English sentement, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sentimentum, from Latin sentire, to feel. See sent- in Appendix.]

sen-ti-men-tal (sɛn'tə-mɛn'tl) adj. 1. a. Characterized or swayed by sentiment. b. Affectedly or extravagantly emotional. 2. Resulting from or colored by emotion rather than reason or realism. 3. Appealing to the sentiments, especially to romantic feelings: sentimental music. —sen'ti-men'tal-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: sentimental, bathetic, maudlin, mawkish, mushy, romantic, schmaltzy, slushy, soppy. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “excessively or insincerely emotional”: a sentimental soap opera; a bathetic novel; maudlin expressions of sympathy; mawkish sentiment; mushy effusiveness; a romantic adolescent; a schmaltzy song; slushy poetry; a soppy letter.

sen-ti-men-tal-ism (sĕn'tə-mĕn'tl-ĭz'əm) n. 1. A predilection for the sentimental. 2. An idea or expression marked by excessive sentiment.

—sen'ti-men'tal-ist n.

sen-ti-men-tal-i-ty (sĕn'tə-mĕn-tăl'ĭ-tē) n. pl. sen-ti-men-tal-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being excessively or affectedly sentimental. 2. A sentimental idea or an expression of it.

sen-ti-men-tal-ize (sĕn'tə-mĕn'tl-ĭz') v. sen-ti-men-tal-ized, sen-ti-men-tal-iz-ing, sen-ti-men-tal-iz-es. — v. tr. To imbue or regard with sentiment; be sentimental about. — v. intr. To behave in a sentimental manner.

—sen'ti-men'tal-i-za'tion (-mĕn'tl-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

sen-ti-nel (sĕn'tə-nəl) n. One that keeps guard; a sentry. — v. tr.

sen-ti-neled or sen-ti-nelled, sen-ti-nel-ing or sen-ti-nel-ling, sen-ti-nels or sen-ti-nels. 1. To watch over as a guard. 2. To provide with a guard. 3. To post as a guard. [French sentinelle, from Italian sentinella, probably from Old Italian sentina, vigilance, from sentire, to watch, from Latin sentire, to feel. See sent- in Appendix.]

sen-try (sĕn'trē) n. pl. sen-tries. 1. A guard, especially a soldier posted at a given spot to prevent the passage of unauthorized persons. 2. The duty of a sentry; watch. [Perhaps alteration of obsolete sen-trinel, variant of SENTINEL.]

sentry box (sĕn'trē bŏks) n. A small shelter for a posted sentry.

Seoul (sŏl) The capital and largest city of South Korea, in the northwest part of the country east of Inchon. Founded in the 14th century, it became the country's capital in 1948 and was twice occupied by Communist forces during the Korean War. Population, 9,646,000.

sep. abbr. Separate; separation.

se-pal (sĕ'pəl) n. One of the separate, usually green parts forming the calyx of a flower. [New Latin sepalum, perhaps blend of Greek skepē, covering, and Latin petalum, petal; see PETAL.] —se'paled, sep'a-lous (sĕp'ə-ləs) adj.

se-pal-oid (sĕ'pə-loid', sĕp'ə-) also se-pal-ine (-lĭn', -lĭn) adj. Resembling or characteristic of a sepal.

-sepalous suff. Having a specified kind or number of sepals: gamosepalous.

sep-a-ra-ble (sĕp'ər-ə-bəl, sĕp'rə-) adj. Possible to separate: separable sheets of paper. —sep'a-ra-bil/i-ty n. —sep'a-ra-bly adv.

sep-a-rate (sĕp'ə-rāt') v. sep-a-rat-ed, sep-a-rat-ing, sep-a-rates. — v. tr. 1. a. To set or keep apart; disunite. b. To space apart; scatter: small farms that were separated one from another by miles of open land. c. To sort: separate mail by postal zones. 2. To differentiate or discriminate between; distinguish: a researcher who separated the various ethnic components of the population sample.

3. To remove from a mixture or combination; isolate. 4. To part (a couple), often by decree: She was separated from her husband last year. 5. To terminate a contractual relationship, as military service, with; discharge. — v. intr. 1. To come apart. 2. To withdraw: The state threatened to separate from the Union.

3. To part company; disperse. 4. To stop living together as spouses. 5. To become divided into components or parts: Oil and water tend to separate. — adj. (sĕp'ər-ĭt, sĕp'rĭt) Abbr. sep. 1. Set or kept apart; disunited. 2. a. Existing as an independent entity. b. Often Separate. Having undergone schism or estrangement from a parent body: Separate churches. 3. Dissimilar from all others; distinct: "a policeman's way of being separate from you even when he was being nice" (John le Carré). 4. Not shared; individual: two people who held separate views on the issue. 5. Archaic. Withdrawn from others; solitary. — n. (sĕp'ər-ĭt, sĕp'rĭt) Abbr. sep.

A garment, such as a skirt, jacket, or pair of slacks, that may be purchased separately and worn in various combinations with other garments. [Middle English separaten, from Latin sĕparātus, past participle of sĕparāre : sĕ-, apart; see s(w)e- in Appendix + parāre, to prepare; see perə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—sep'a-rate-ly adv. —sep'a-rate-ness n.

SYNONYMS: separate, divide, part, sever, sunder, divorce. These verbs are compared as they mean to become or cause to become parted, disconnected, or disunited. Separate applies both to putting apart and to keeping apart: "In the darkness and confusion, the bands of these commanders became separated from each other" (Washington Irving). The Pyrenees separate France and Spain. The child's parents have separated. Divide implies separation by or as if by cutting, splitting, or branching into parts, portions, or shares; the term is often used to refer to separation into opposing or hostile groups: We divided the orange into segments. "[The rich] divide with the poor the produce of all their improvements" (Adam Smith). "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free" (Abraham Lincoln). Part refers most often to the separation of closely associated persons or things: "None shall part us from each other" (W.S. Gilbert). "I remember the way we parted" (Algernon Swinburne). Sever usually implies abruptness and force in the cutting off of a part from the whole or the breaking up of an association or a relationship: "His head was nearly severed from his body" (H.G. Wells). The United States severed diplomatic relations with Cuba in 1961. Sunder stresses violent tearing or wrenching apart: The country was sundered by civil war into two embattled states. Divorce implies the separation of the elements of a relationship or union: "a priest and a soldier, two classes of men circumstantially divorced from the kind and homely ties of life" (Robert Louis Stevenson). See also Synonyms at distinct single sep·a·ra·tion (sĕp'ə-rā'shən) n. Abbr. sep. 1. a. The act or process of separating. b. The condition of being separated. 2. The place at which a division or parting occurs. 3. An interval or a space that separates; a gap. 4. a. Law. An agreement or a court decree terminating a spousal relationship. b. Discharge, as from employment or military service.

sep·a·ra·tion·ist (sĕp'ə-rā'shə-nĭst) n. A separatist.

sep·a·ra·tist (sĕp'ər-ə-tĭst, sĕp'rə-, sĕp'ə-rā'-) n. 1. One who secedes or advocates separation, especially from an established church; a sectarian or separationist. 2. One who advocates disjunction of a group from a larger group or political unit: Basque separatists. 3. One who advocates cultural, ethnic, or racial separation. —sep'a·ra·tism n. —sep'a·ra·tist adj. —sep'a·ra·tis'tic adj.

sep·a·ra·tive (sĕp'ə-rā'tĭv, sĕp'ər-ə-, sĕp'rə-) adj. Tending to separate or to cause separation.

sep·a·ra·tor (sĕp'ə-rā'tər) n. One that separates, as a device for separating cream from milk.

sepd. abbr. Separated.

Se·phar·di (sə-fār'dē) n. pl. Se·phar·dim (-dĭm). A descendant of the Jews who lived in Spain and Portugal during the Middle Ages until persecution culminating in expulsion in 1492 forced them to leave. [Modern Hebrew Sĕpāraddî, Spaniard, from Sĕpārad, Spain.] —Se·phar'dic (-dĭk) adj.

se·pi·a (sĕ'pĕ-ə) n. 1. a. A dark brown ink or pigment originally prepared from the secretion of the cuttlefish. b. A drawing or picture done in this pigment. c. A photograph in a brown tint. 2. Color. A dark grayish yellow brown to dark or moderate olive brown. — adj. 1. Color. Of the color sepia. 2. Done or made in sepia. [Middle English, cuttlefish, from Latin sĕpia, cuttlefish, ink, from Greek, cuttlefish perhaps akin to sĕpein, to make rotten.]

Se·pik (sā'pĭk) A river, about 1,126 km (700 mi) long, of northern Papua New Guinea.

se·pi·o·lite (sĕ'pĕ-ə-līt') n. See meerschaum (n., sense 1). [Greek sĕpion, cuttlebone (from sĕpia, cuttlefish); see SEPIA + -LITE.]

se·poy (sĕ'poi') n. A regular soldier in some Middle Eastern countries, especially an Indian soldier formerly serving under British command. [Probably from Portuguese sipae, from Urdu sipāhī, from Persian, cavalryman, from sipāh, army.]

sep·pu·ku (sĕp'ōō-kōō, sĕ-pōō'-) n. Hara-kiri. [Japanese : seppu, to cut + ku, abdomen.]

sep·sis (sĕp'sĭs) n. pl. sep·ses (-sĕz). 1. The presence of pathogenic organisms or their toxins in the blood or tissues. 2. The poisoned condition resulting from the presence of pathogens or their toxins, as in septicemia. [Greek sĕpsis, putrefaction, from sĕpein, to make rotten.]

sept (sĕpt) n. A division of a family, especially a division of a clan. [Probably alteration of SECT.]

Sept. or Sept abbr. September.

sep·ta (sĕp'tə) n. Plural of septum.

sep·tage (sĕp'tij) n. The waste content found in a septic tank.

sep·tal (sĕp'təl) adj. Of or relating to a septum or septa.

sep·tar·i·um (sĕp-târ'ĕ-əm) n. pl. sep·tar·i·a (-ĕ-ə). An irregular polygonal system of calcite-filled cracks occurring in certain rock concretions. [Latin saep-tum, partition; see SEPTUM + -ARIUM.] —sep·tar'i·an adj.

sep·tate (sĕp'tāt') adj. Divided by a septum or septa.

sep·tec·to·my (sĕp-tĕk'tə-mĕ) n. pl. sep·tec·to·mies. Surgical excision of a septum or part of a septum, especially the nasal or atrial septum.

Sep·tem·ber (sĕp-tĕm'bĕr) n. Abbr. Sept., Sept The ninth month of the year in the Gregorian calendar. See Table at calendar. [Middle English Septembre, from Old French, from Latin September, the seventh month, from septem, seven. See septm in Appendix.]

Sep·tem·brist (sĕp-tĕm'brĭst) n. 1. A bloodthirsty revolutionist or terrorist. 2. One of the mob that massacred the imprisoned royalists in Paris, France, in September 1792.

sep·te·nar·i·us (sĕp'tə-nâr'ĕ-əs) n. pl. sep·te·nar·i·i (-ĕ-ī'). A Latin verse used only in comedy and consisting of seven iambic feet or a catalectic iambic tetrameter. [Latin septēnārius, of seven, from septēni, seven each, from septem, seven. See SEPTENNIAL.]

sep·ten·ni·al (sĕp-tĕn'ĕ-əl) adj. 1. Occurring every seven years. 2. Consisting of or continuing for seven years. — n. An event that occurs every seven years. [From Late Latin septennium, period of seven years, from Latin septennis, of seven years : septem, seven; see septm in Appendix + annus, year; see at- in Appendix.] —sep·ten'ni·al·ly adv.

sep·ten·tri·on (sĕp-tĕn'trĕ-ŏn', -ən) n. Obsolete. Northern regions; the north. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin septentriōnēs, seven plow oxen, the seven principal stars of Ursa Major : septem, seven; see septm in Appendix + tri-ōnēs (pl. of triō, triōn-, plow ox); see terə-¹ in Appendix.] —sep·ten'tri·o·nal (-trĕ-ə-nəl) adj.

sep·tet also sep·tette (sĕp-tĕt') n. 1. A group of seven. 2. Music. a. A composition for seven voices or instruments. b. The performers playing such a composition. [German Septett, from Latin septem, seven. See septm in Appendix.]

sep·tic (sĕp'tĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, having the nature of, or affected by sepsis. 2. Causing sepsis; putrefactive. [Latin sēpticus, putrefying, from Greek sēptikos, from sēptos, rotten, from sēpein, to make rotten.] —sep·tic'i·ty (-tĭs'ĭ-tĕ) n.

sep·ti·ce·mi·a (sĕp'tī-sĕ'mĕ-ə) n. A systemic disease caused by pathogenic organisms or their toxins in the bloodstream. Also called blood poisoning [SEPTIC + -EMIA.] —sep'ti·ce'mic (-mĭk) adj.

sep·ti·ci·dal (sĕp'tī-sĭd'l) adj. Botany. Dehiscing by splitting along or through the septa. Used of a seed capsule. [SEPT(UM) + Latin -cidere, to cut (from caedere); see CAESURA + -AL¹.] —sep'ti·ci'dal·ly adv.

septic sore throat (sĕp'tĭk sŏr thrŏt) n. An infection of the throat, often epidemic, caused by hemolytic streptococci and characterized by fever and inflammation of the tonsils. Also called strep throat septic tank (sĕp'tĭk tŏngk) n. A sewage-disposal tank in which a continuous flow of waste material is decomposed by anaerobic bacteria.

sep·tif·ra·gal (sĕp-tĭf'rŏ-gəl) adj. Botany. Dehiscing by the breaking away of the valves from its partitions. Used of a seed capsule. [SEPT(UM) + Latin frangere, to break; see bhreg- in Appendix.] —sep·tif'ra·gal·ly adv.

sep·ti·lat·er·al (sĕp'tŏ-lăt'ər-əl) adj. Seven-sided. [Latin septem, seven; see SEPTET + LATERAL.]

Sept Îles or Sept-Îles (sĕt-ĕl') also Sev-en Isles (sĕv'ən) A city of eastern Quebec, Canada, on the St. Lawrence River near its mouth. Jacques Cartier sailed into the harbor in 1535. Population, 29,262.

sep·til·lion (sĕp-tĭl'yən) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 10^{24} . 2. Chiefly British. The cardinal number equal to 10^{42} . [French : Latin septem, seven; see SEPTET + French -illion (as in million, million, from Old French milion); see MILLION.] —sep·til'liion adj.

sep·til·lionth (sĕp-tĭl'yənθ) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number septillion in a series. 2. One of a septillion equal parts. —sep·til'liionth adv. & adj.

sep·tu·a·ge·nar·i·an (sĕp'tŏŏ-ə-jŏ-năr'ĕ-ən, -tyŏŏ-, -chŏŏ-) n. A person who is 70 years old or between the ages of 70 and 80. — adj. 1. Being 70 years old or between the ages of 70 and 80. 2. Of or relating to a septuagenarian. [From Latin septuāgēnārius, of the number seventy, from septuāgēnī, seventy each, from septuāgintā, seventy. See SEPTUAGINT.]

Sep·tu·a·ges·i·ma (sĕp'tŏŏ-ə-jĕs'ə-mŏ, -jŏ'zŏ-, -chŏŏ-) n. The third Sunday before Lent. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin septuāgēsima (diēs), seventieth (day), feminine of Latin septuāgēsimus, from septuāgintā, seventy. See SEPTUAGINT.]

Sep·tu·a·gint (sĕp'tŏŏ-ə-jĭnt', sĕp-tŏŏ'ə-jənt, -tyŏŏ'-) n. A Greek translation of the Old Testament made in the third century B.C. [Latin septuāgintā, seventy (from the traditional number of its translators) : septem, seven; see septm in Appendix + -gintā, ten times; see dekṃ in Appendix.]

sep·tum (sĕp'təm) n. pl. sep·ta (-tə). A thin partition or membrane that divides two cavities or soft masses of tissue in an organism: the nasal septum; the atrial septum of the heart. [Latin saep̄tum, partition, from neuter past participle of saep̄īre, to enclose, from saep̄ēs, fence.]

septum pel·lu·ci·dum (sĕp'təm pə-lōō'sī-dəm) n. pl. septa pel·lu·ci·da (-də). Anatomy. A thin membrane of nervous tissue that forms the medial wall of the lateral ventricles in the brain. [New Latin septum pellucidum : septum, septum + Latin pellucidus, transparent.]

sep·tu·ple (sĕp-tōō'pəl, -tyōō'-, -tŭp'əl) adj. 1. Consisting of or containing seven. 2. Multiplied by seven. — v. tr. sep·tu·pled, sep·tu·pling, sep·tu·ples. To multiply by seven. [Late Latin septuplus, sevenfold : Latin septem, seven; see septm in Appendix + -plus, -fold; see pel² in Appendix.]

sep·tu·plet (sĕp-tŭp'līt, -tōō'plīt, -tyōō'-) n. 1. One of seven offspring delivered at a single birth. 2. septuplets. The seven offspring of one birth. 3. A group of seven persons or things. [SEPTU(PLE) + (TRI)PLET.]

sep·ul·cher (sĕp'əl-kər) n. 1. A burial vault. 2. A receptacle for sacred relics, especially in an altar. — v. tr. sep·ul·chered, sep·ul·cher·ing, sep·ul·chers. To place into a sepulcher; inter. [Middle English sepulcre, from Old French, from Latin sepulcrum, from sepultus, past participle of sepelīre, to bury the dead.]

se·pul·chral (sə-pŭl'krəl, -pōōl'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to a burial vault or a receptacle for sacred relics. 2. Suggestive of the grave; funereal. —se·pul·chral·ly adv.

sep·ul·chre (sĕp'əl-kər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of sepulcher.

sep·ul·ture (sĕp'əl-chōōr', -chər) n. 1. The act of interment; burial. 2. A sepulcher. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sepultūra, from sepultus, past participle of sepelīre, to bury the dead.]

seq. abbr. 1. Sequel. 2. Latin. Sequens (the following).

seqq. abbr. Latin. Sequentia (the following [things]).

se·qua·cious (sī-kwā'shəs) adj. 1. Persisting in a continuous intellectual or stylistic direction: “I make these notes, but am tired of notes... I want something sequacious now & robust” (Virginia Woolf). 2. a. Disposed to follow another or others, as a leader. b. Slavishly unthinking and uncritical. [From Latin sequāx, sequāc-, pursuing, from sequī, to follow. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.] —se·qua·cious·ly adv. —se·quac'i·ty (-kwās'ī-tē) n.

se·quel (sē'kwəl) n. Abbr. seq. 1. Something that follows; a continuation. 2. A literary work complete in itself but continuing the narrative of an earlier work. 3. A result or consequence. See Synonyms at effect. [Middle English sequele, from Old French sequelle, from Latin sequēla, from sequī, to follow. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

se·quel·a (sī-kwĕl'ə) n. pl. se·quel·ae (-kwĕl'ē). 1. A pathological condition resulting from a disease. 2. A secondary consequence or result. [Latin sequēla, sequel. See SEQUEL.]

se·que·na·tor (sē'kwə-nā'tər) n. See sequencer (n., sense 2). [SEQUEN(CER) + -ATOR.]

se·quence (sē'kwəns, -kwəns') n. 1. A following of one thing after another; succession. 2. An order of succession; an arrangement. 3. A related or continuous series. See Synonyms at series. 4. Games. Three or more playing cards in consecutive order; a run. 5. A series of single film shots so edited as to constitute an aesthetic or dramatic unit; an episode. 6. Music. A melodic or harmonic pattern successively repeated at different pitches with or without a key change.

7. Roman Catholic Church. A hymn sung between the gradual and the Gospel.

8. Mathematics. An ordered set of quantities, as $x, 2x^2, 3x^3, 4x^4$. 9. Biochemistry.

The order of constituents in a polymer, especially the order of nucleotides in a nucleic acid or of the amino acids in a protein. — v. tr. se·quenced, se·quenc·ing, se·quenc·es. 1. To organize or arrange in a sequence. 2. To determine the order of constituents in (a polymer, such as a nucleic acid or protein molecule). [Middle English, a type of hymn, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sequentia, hymn, that which follows, from Late Latin, from Latin sequēns, sequent- present participle of sequī, to follow. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

se·quenc·er (sē'kwən-sər, -kwən'-) n. 1. Computer Science. A device that sorts cards, data, or programs in a prearranged sequence. 2. An apparatus for determining the order of constituents in a biological polymer. In this sense, also called sequenator se·quent (sē'kwənt) adj. 1. Following in order or time; subsequent.

2. Following as a result; consequent. — n. A result; a consequence. [Latin sequēns, sequent- present participle of sequī, to follow. See SEQUENCE.]

se·quen·tial (sī-kwən'shəl) adj. 1. Forming or characterized by a sequence, as of units or musical notes. 2. Sequent. — se·quen'ti·al'i·ty (-shē-äl'i-tē) n.
— se·quen'tial·ly adv.

se·ques·ter (sī-kwēs'tər) v. se·ques·tered, se·ques·ter·ing, se·ques·ters.

— v. tr. 1. To cause to withdraw into seclusion. 2. To remove or set apart; segregate. See Synonyms at isolate. 3. Law. a. To take temporary possession of (property) as security against legal claims. b. To requisition and confiscate (enemy property). — v. intr. Chemistry. To undergo sequestration. [Middle English sequestren, from Old French, from Latin sequestrāre, to give up for safe-keeping, from Latin sequester, depositary, trustee. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

se·ques·tra (sī-kwēs'trə) n. Plural of sequestrum.

se·ques·trant (sī-kwēs'trənt) n. A chemical that promotes sequestration.

se·ques·trate (sē'kwī-strāt', sĕk'wī-, sī-kwēs'trāt') v. tr. se·ques·trat·ed, se·ques·trat·ing, se·ques·trates. 1. Chiefly British. To seize; confiscate: "The sheriffs... will be able to seize stock and other assets, and to sequestrate bank accounts belonging to defaulters" (Daily Telegraph). 2. To seclude; sequester. [Middle se-ques-tra-tion (sē'kwī-strā'shən, sĕk'wī-) n. 1. The act of sequestering; segregation. 2. Law. a. Seizure of property. b. A writ authorizing seizure of property. 3. Chemistry. The inhibition or prevention of normal ion behavior by combination with added materials, especially the prevention of metallic ion precipitation from solution by formation of a coordination compound with a phosphate.

English sequestraten, from Latin sequestrāre, sequestrāt-, to give up for safekeeping. See SEQUESTER.]

se-ques-trum (sī-kwĕs'trəm) n. pl. se-ques-tra (-trə). A fragment of dead bone separated from healthy bone as a result of injury or disease. [Latin, deposit, from neuter of sequester, depositary, trustee. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

se-quin (sē'kwīn) n. 1. A small shiny ornamental disk, often sewn on cloth; a spangle. 2. A gold coin of the Venetian Republic. In this sense, also called zecchino — v. tr. se-quin-ed, se-quin-ing, se-quin-s. To affix sequins to (a garment, for example). [French, from Old French, Venetian coin, from Italian zecchino, from zecca, mint, from Arabic sikkah, coin die.]

se-quoi-a (sī-kwoi'ə) n. 1. See redwood (n., sense 1). 2. Giant sequoia. [New Latin Sequoia, genus name, after SEQUOYA.]

Se-quoy-a or Se-quoy-ah (sī-kwoi'ə), Also called George Guess. 1770?-1843. Cherokee scholar who developed a system of transcribing the Cherokee language.

ser. abbr. 1. Serial. 2. Series. 3. Sermon.

se-ra (sīr'ə) n. A plural of serum.

sé-rac (sə-rāk', sā-) n. A large pointed mass of ice in a glacier isolated by intersecting crevasses. [French, cottage cheese, sérac, perhaps from Vulgar Latin serāceum*, whey, from Latin serum.]

se-ra-glio (sə-räl'yō, -räl'-) n. pl. se-ra-glios. 1. A large harem. 2. A sultan's palace. [Italian serraglio, enclosure, seraglio, probably partly from Vulgar Latin serraculum*, enclosure (from serrāre*, to lace up, from Latin serāre, from sera, door-bar), and partly from Turkish saray, palace (from Persian sarāi, inn); see CARAVANSARY.]

Se-raing (sə-rän') A city of eastern Belgium on the Meuse River south-southwest of Liège. It is a glassmaking and metallurgical center. Population, 63,001.

ser-al (sīr'əl) adj. Of or relating to an ecological sere: a seral stage; a seral community.

se-ra-pe also sa-ra-pe (sə-rä'pē, -răp'ē) n. A long blanketlike shawl, often brightly colored and fringed at the ends, worn especially by Mexican men. [American Spanish sarape.]

ser-aph (sĕr'əf) n. pl. ser-a-phem (-ə-fīm) or ser-aphs. 1. A celestial being having three pairs of wings. 2. Theology. One of the first order of angels. [Back-formation from pl. seraphim, from Middle English seraphin, from Old English, from Late Latin seraphīm, from Greek seraphim, from Hebrew serāpîm, pl. of sārāp.] —se·raph'ic (sə-rāf'ik), se·raph'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. —se·raph'i·cal·ly adv.

Se-ra·pis (sə-rā'pīs) n. Mythology. An ancient Egyptian god of the lower world, also worshiped in ancient Greece and Rome.

Serb (sûrb) n. A member of a southern Slavic people that is the principal ethnic group of Serbia and adjacent regions of Yugoslavia. [Serbian Srb.]

Ser·bi·a (sûr'bē-ə) A region of the central Balkan Peninsula. Serbs settled in the region in the 6th to the 7th century and formed an independent kingdom in the 13th to the 14th century but then fell under Turkish domination, which ended finally in 1878. The new kingdom of Serbia was an important Balkan power until the onset of World War I, precipitated in part by the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand by a Serbian nationalist. Serbia was later a major constituent of the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, which was renamed Yugoslavia in 1929. Serbia was joined by Montenegro to establish a new Yugoslavian nation in 1992 after Slovenia, Croatia, Bosnia-Herzegovina, and Macedonia declared independence from Yugoslavia. Serbia's capital and largest city is Belgrade. Population, 11,596,572.

Ser·bi·an (sûr'bē-ən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Serbia; a Serb. 2. Serbo-Croatian as spoken in Serbia and adjacent regions of Yugoslavia, written in a Cyrillic alphabet. — adj. Of or relating to Serbia or its people, language, or culture.

Ser·bo·Cro·a·tian (sûr'bō-krō-ā'shən) n. 1. The Slavic language of the Serbs and the Croats. 2. A native speaker of Serbo-Croatian. — adj. Of or relating to Serbo-Croatian or those who speak it.

sere¹ also sear (sîr) adj. Withered; dry: sere vegetation at the edge of the desert. [Middle English, from Old English sēar.] sere² (sîr) n. The entire sequence of ecological communities successively occupying an area from the initial stage to the climax. [From SERIES.]

ser·e·nade (sēr'ə-nād', sēr'ə-nād') n. 1. Music. A complimentary performance given to honor or express love for someone. 2. South Atlantic U.S. See shivaree. See Regional note at shivaree. 3. Music. An instrumental composition written for a small ensemble and having characteristics of the suite and the sonata. — v. ser·e·nad·ed, ser·e·nad·ing, ser·e·nades. Music. — v. tr. To perform a serenade for. — v. intr. To perform a serenade. [French sérénade, from Italian serenata, from sereno, calm, clear, the open air, from Latin serēnus. See SERENE.] —ser'e·nad'er n.

ser·en·dip·i·ty (sēr'ən-dīp'i-tē) n. The faculty of making fortunate discoveries by accident. [From the characters in the Persian fairy tale The Three Princes of Serendip, who made such discoveries, from Persian Sarandīp, Sri Lanka, from Arabic Sarandīb.] —ser'en·dip'i·tous adj. —ser'en·dip'i·tous·ly adv.

WORD HISTORY: We are indebted to the English author Horace Walpole for coining the word serendipity. In one of his 3,000 or more letters, on which his literary reputation primarily rests, and specifically in a letter of January 28, 1754, Walpole says that “this discovery, indeed, is almost of that kind which I call Serendipity, a very expressive word.” Perhaps the word itself came to him by serendipity. Walpole formed the word on an old name for Sri Lanka, Serendip. He explained that this name was part of the title of “a silly fairy tale, called The Three Princes of Serendip: as their highnesses traveled, they were always making discoveries, by accidents and sagacity, of things which they were not in quest of... One of the most remarkable instances of this accidental sagacity (for you must observe that no discovery of a thing you are looking for, comes under this description) was of my Lord Shaftsbury [Anthony Ashley Cooper], who happening to dine at Lord Chancellor Clarendon’s [Edward Hyde], found out the marriage of the Duke of York [later James II] and Mrs. Hyde [Anne Hyde, Clarendon’s daughter], by the respect with which her mother [Frances Aylesbury Hyde] treated her at table.”

se·rene (sə-rēn′) adj. 1. Unaffected by disturbance; calm and unruffled. See Synonyms at calm. 2. Unclouded; fair: serene skies and a bright blue sea. 3. Often Serene. Used as a title and form of address for certain members of royalty: Her Serene Highness; His Serene Highness. [Middle English, from Latin serēnus, serene, clear.] —se·rene′ly adv. —se·rene′ness n.

Ser-en-get-i Plain (sēr′ən-gēt′ē plān) An area of northern Tanzania bordering on Kenya and Lake Victoria. It is noted for its extensive wildlife preserve.

se·ren·i·ty (sə-rēn′ī-tē) n. The state or quality of being serene; tranquillity. See Synonyms at equanimity.

serf (sûrf) n. 1. A member of a servile, feudal class of people in Europe, bound to the land and owned by a lord. 2. A person in servitude. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin servus, slave.] —serf′dom n.

serge (sûrj) n. A twilled cloth of worsted or worsted and wool, often used for suits. [Middle English sarge, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin sārica*, from Latin sērica (vestis), silken (clothing), feminine of sēricus, silken, from Greek sērikos, of the Seres, silken, from Sēres, a people of Eastern Asia.]

ser·geant (sār′jənt) n. Abbr. Sgt. 1. a. Any of several ranks of noncommissioned officers in the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps. b. One who holds any of these ranks. 2. a. The rank of police officer next below a captain, lieutenant, or inspector. b. A police officer holding this rank. 3. See sergeant at arms. [Middle English sergeaunte, a common soldier, from Old French sergent, from Medieval Latin serviēns, servient-, servant, soldier, from Late Latin, public official, from Latin, present participle of servīre, to serve, from servus, slave.] —ser′gean·cy, ser′geant·ship′ n.

sergeant at arms (sär'jənt ät ärmz) n. pl. sergeants at arms. An officer appointed to keep order within an organization, such as a legislative, judicial, or social body. Also called sergeant sergeant first class (sär'jənt fûrst kläs) n. pl. sergeants first class. Abbr.

SFC 1. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Army that is above staff sergeant and below master sergeant. 2. One who holds this rank.

sergeant fish (sär'jənt fîsh) n. 1. See cobia. 2. See snook¹.

sergeant major (sär'jənt māj'jər) n. pl. sergeants major or sergeant majors. 1. Abbr. Sgt.Maj., SM a. Used as a title for a noncommissioned officer serving as chief administrative assistant of a headquarters unit of the U.S. Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps. b. One who holds this title. 2. Chiefly British. A noncommissioned officer of the highest rank. 3. A small damselfish (Abudefduf saxatilis) of warm seas, having a flattened body with dark vertical stripes. In this sense, also called cow pilot se-ri-al (sîr'ē-əl) adj. Abbr. ser. 1. Of, forming, or arranged in a series.

2. a. Published or produced in installments, as a novel or television drama.

b. Relating to such publication or production. 3. Music. Relating to or based on a 12-tone row. 4. Computer Science. a. Of or relating to the sequential transmission of all the bits of a byte over one wire: a serial port; a serial printer. b. Of or relating to the sequential performance of multiple operations: serial processing.

— n. Abbr. ser. A literary or dramatic work published or produced in installments. —se'ri-al-ly adv.

se-ri-al-ism (sîr'ē-əl-îz'əm) n. Music. 1. Serial compositions. 2. The theory or composition of serial music. —se'ri-al-ist n.

se-ri-al-ize (sîr'ē-əl-îz') v. tr. se-ri-al-ized, se-ri-al-iz-ing, se-ri-al-iz-es. To write or publish in serial form. —se'ri-al-i-za'tion (-əl-î-zā'shən) n.

serial killer (sîr'ē-əl kîl'ər) n. A person who attacks and slays more than three victims one by one during a relatively short period of time. Also called serial murderer —serial killing n.

serial number (sîr'ē-əl nŭm'bər) n. A number that is one of a series and is used for identification, as of a machine, weapon, or motor vehicle.

se-ri-ate (sîr'ē-āt', -ÿt) adj. Arranged or occurring in a series or in rows. —se'ri-ate'ly adv.

se-ri-a-tim (sîr'ē-ā'tîm, -ät'îm) adv. One after another; in a series. [Medieval Latin seriātim, from Latin seriēs, series. See SERIES.]

se-ri-ceous (sî-rîsh'əs) adj. 1. Silky. 2. Botany. Covered with soft, silky hairs. [Latin sēriceus, silken, alteration of sēricus. See SERGE.]

ser-i-cin (sĕr'î-sîn) n. A viscous, gelatinous protein that forms on the surface of raw-silk fibers. [Latin sēricus, silken; see SERGE + -IN.]

ser-ic-te-ri-um (sĕr'îk-tîr'ē-əm) n. pl. ser-ic-te-ri-a (-tîr'ē-ə). The silk-producing gland or glands of an insect, especially a silkworm. [New Latin sēric- ērium, from Greek sērikon, silk, from neuter of sērikos, silken, from Sēres, a people of East Asia.]

ser·i·e·ma (sēr'ē-ē'mə) n. Either of two cranelike birds (Cariama cristata or Chunga burmeisteri) of southern South America, having a tuftlike crest at the base of the bill and living mostly on land where they feed on snakes, worms, and insects. [Spanish, from Tupi sariema.]

se·ries (sîr'ēz) *n. pl. series. Abbr. ser. 1. A number of objects or events arranged or coming one after the other in succession. 2. Chemistry & Physics. A group of objects related by linearly varying successive differences in form or configuration: a radioactive decay series; the paraffin alkane series. 3. Mathematics. The sum of a sequentially ordered finite or infinite set of terms. 4. Geology. A group of rock formations closely related in time of origin and distinct as a group from other formations. 5. Grammar. A succession of coordinate elements in a sentence. 6. a. A succession of usually continuously numbered issues or volumes of a publication, published with related authors or subjects and similar formats. b. A succession of regularly aired television programs, each one of which is complete in and of itself. 7. a. Sports. A number of games played one after the other by the same opposing teams. b. Baseball. The World Series. 8. Linguistics. A set of vowels or diphthongs related by ablaut, as in sing, sang, sung, and song.
—idiom. in series. In an arrangement that forms a series. [Latin seriēs, from serere, to join. See ser-2 in Appendix.]*

SYNONYMS: series, succession, progression, sequence, chain, train, string. These nouns denote a number of things placed or occurring one after the other. Series refers to like, related, or identical things arranged or occurring in order: a series of days; a series of facts. A succession is a series whose elements follow each other, generally in order of time and without interruption: a succession of failures. A progression is a series that reveals a definite pattern of advance: a geometric progression. In a sequence things follow one another in chronological or numerical order or in an order that indicates a causal or logical relationship or a recurrent pattern: a natural sequence of ideas. Chain suggests a series of things that are closely linked or connected: the chain of command; a chain of proof. Train can apply to a procession of people, animals, or vehicles or to a sequence of ideas or events: a train of mourners; my train of thought. A string is a continuous series or succession of similar or uniform elements likened to objects threaded on a long cord: a string of islands; a string of questions.

USAGE NOTE: Series is both a singular and a plural form. When it has the singular sense of “one set,” it takes a singular verb, even when series is followed by of and a plural noun: A series of lectures is scheduled. When it has the plural sense of “one or more sets,” it takes a plural verb: Two series of lectures are scheduled: one for experts and one for laypeople.

series circuit (sîr'ēz sūr'kīt) n. An electric circuit connected so that current passes through each circuit element in turn without branching.

se-ries-wound (sîr'ēz-wound') adj. Electricity. Of, relating to, or being a motor or dynamo in which the armature circuit and the field circuit are connected in series with the external circuit.

ser·if (sēr'if) n. Printing. A fine line finishing off the main strokes of a letter, as at the top and bottom of M. [Perhaps from Dutch schreef, line, from Middle Dutch scrēve, from scriven, to write, from Latin scribere. See skribh- in Appendix.]

ser·i·graph (sēr'ī-grāf') n. A print made by the silk-screen process. [Latin sēricum, silk, neuter of sēricus, silken; see SERGE + -GRAPH.] —se·rig'ra·pher (sə-rīg'rə-fər) n. —se·rig'ra·phy (-fē) n.

ser·in (sēr'in) n. Any of several Old World finches of the genus Serinus having yellowish plumage, especially a European species (S. serinus) closely related to the canary. [French, from Old French, perhaps from Old Provençal serena, a kind of bird, from Late Latin sīrēna, from Latin sīrēn, from Greek seirēn.]

ser·ine (sēr'ēn') n. An amino acid, $\text{CH}_2\text{OHCH}(\text{NH}_2)\text{COOH}$, that is a common constituent of many proteins. [SER(ICIN) + -INE².]

se·ri·o·com·ic (sîr'ē-ō-kōm'ik) adj. Both serious and comic. [SERIO(US) + COMIC.] —se'ri·o·com'i·cal·ly adv.

se·ri·ous (sîr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Grave in quality or manner: gave me a serious look. 2. a. Carried out in earnest: engaged in serious drinking; made a serious attempt to learn how to ski backward; serious study of Italian. b. Deeply interested or involved: a serious card player. c. Designed for and addressing grave and earnest tastes: serious art; serious music. d. Not trifling or jesting: I'm serious: we expect you to complete the assignment on time. She has posed a serious question that deserves a thoughtful response. e. Of such character or quality as to appeal to the expert, the connoisseur, or the sophisticate: "They cost us serious money... but delivered a unique feature" (Frederick C. Mish). "Serious power requires presence in a political House" (William Safire). "Every serious kitchen needs at least one pepper-mill" (Washington Post). 3. Concerned with important rather than trivial matters: a serious student of history. 4. a. Being of such import as to cause anxiety: serious injuries; a serious turn of events. b. Too complex to be easily answered or solved: raised some serious objections to the proposal. [Middle English, from Old French serieux, from Late Latin sēriōsus, from Latin sērius.] —se'ri·ous·ly adv. —se'ri·ous·ness n.

SYNONYMS: serious, sober, grave, solemn, earnest, sedate, staid. These adjectives are compared as they refer to the manner, appearance, disposition, or acts of persons and mean absorbed or marked by absorption in thought, pressing concerns, or significant work. Serious implies a concern with responsibility and work as opposed to play: Serious students of music must familiarize themselves with the literature and idiom of all the important composers. Sober emphasizes circumspection and self-restraint: “a sober thoughtful man” (Anthony Trollope). “My sober mind was no longer intoxicated by the fumes of politics” (Edward Gibbon). Grave suggests the dignity and somberness associated with weighty matters: “The soldier... of today is... a quiet, grave man, busied in charts, exact in sums, master of the art of tactics” (Walter Bagehot). Solemn often adds to grave the suggestion of impressiveness: The judge’s tone was solemn as he pronounced sentence on the convicted murderer. Earnest implies sincerity and intensity of purpose: Both sides in the dispute showed an earnest desire to reach an equitable solution. Sedate implies a composed, dignified manner: “One of those calm, quiet, sedate natures, to whom the temptations of turbulent nerves or vehement passions are things utterly incomprehensible” (Harriet Beecher Stowe). Staid emphasizes dignity and an often strait-laced observance of propriety: “a grave and staid God-fearing man” (Tennyson).

ser·jeant (sär’jənt) n. Chiefly British. Variant of sergeant (n., sense 2).

Ser·kin (sûr’kĭn), Rudolf. 1903-1991. Czechoslovakian-born American pianist known for his interpretations of the works of Austrian and German composers of the classical and romantic periods.

ser·mon (sûr’mən) n. Abbr. ser. 1. A religious discourse delivered as part of a church service. 2. An often lengthy and tedious speech of reproof or exhortation. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sermō, sermōn-, discourse. See ser-² in Appendix.] —ser·mon’ic (-mŏn’ik), ser·mon’i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj.

ser·mon·ette (sûr’mə-nĕt’) n. A short sermon.

ser·mon·ize (sûr’mə-nĭz’) v. ser·mon·ized, ser·mon·iz·ing, ser·mon·iz·es. — v. tr. To deliver a sermon to (someone). — v. intr. To deliver or speak as though delivering a sermon. —ser’mon·iz’er n.

Ser·mon on the Mount (sûr’mən ŏn thĕ mount) n. In the New Testament, a discourse of Jesus delivered on a Galilee mountainside.

sero- pref. Serum: serotherapy. [From SERUM.]

se·ro·con·ver·sion (sĭr’ō-kən-vûr’zhən, -shən) n. Development of antibodies in blood serum as a result of infection or immunization.

se·ro·di·ag·no·sis (sĭr’ō-dĭ’æg-nŏ’sĭs) n. pl. se·ro·di·ag·no·ses (-sĕz). Diagnosis of disease based on reactions in the blood serum of the body.

—se’ro·di’ag·nos’tic (-nŏs’tĭk) adj.

se·rol·o·gy (sĭ-rŏl’ə-jĕ) n. pl. se·rol·o·gies. 1. The science that deals with the properties and reactions of serums, especially blood serum. 2. The characteristics of a disease or an organism shown by study of blood serums: the serology of acquired immune deficiency syndrome; the serology of mammals. —se’ro·log’ic (sîr'ə-lōj'ik), se'ro·log'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. —se'ro·log'i·cal·ly adv.

—se·rol'o·gist n.

se·ro·neg·a·tive (sîr'ō-nĕg'ə-tĭv) adj. Showing a negative reaction to a test on blood serum for a disease, especially syphilis or AIDS.

se·ro·pos·i·tive (sîr'ō-pōz'ī-tĭv) adj. Showing a positive reaction to a test on blood serum for a disease; exhibiting seroconversion. —se'ro·pos'i·tiv/i·ty n.

se·ro·pu·ru·lent (sîr'ō-pyōōr'ə-lənt, -pyōōr'yə-) adj. Consisting of serum and pus.

se·ro·sa (sĭ-rō'sə, -zə) *n. pl. se·ro·sas or se·ro·sae (-sē, -zē). 1. A serous membrane, especially one that lines the pericardial, pleural, and peritoneal cavities, enclosing their contents. 2. The chorion of a bird or reptile embryo. [New Latin serōsa, feminine of serōsus, serous, from Latin serum, serum.] —se·ro'sal (-zəl) *adj.

se·ro·si·tis (sîr'ō-sī'tĭs) n. Inflammation of a serous membrane.

se·ro·ther·a·py (sîr'ō-thĕr'ə-pĕ) n. pl. se·ro·ther·a·pies. Treatment of disease by administration of a serum obtained from an immunized animal.

—se'ro·ther'a·pist n.

se·rot·i·nal (sĭ-rōt'n-əl, sĕr'ə-tĭ'nəl) adj. Serotinous.

ser·o·tine (sĕr'ə-tĭn, -tĭn') n. Any of a widely distributed genus (Eptesicus) of usually small brown bats, especially E. serotinus, of Europe and Asia. [From New Latin sērōtinus, species name, from Latin, coming late (from its habit of appearing late in the evening). See SEROTINOUS.]

se·rot·i·nous (sĭ-rōt'n-əs, sĕr'ə-tĭ'nəs) adj. Biology & Botany. Late in developing or blooming. [Latin sērōtinus, coming late, from sērō, at a late hour, from sĕrus, late.]

se·ro·to·ner·gic (sĕr'ə-tn-ŭr'jĭk) also se·ro·to·ni·ner·gic (-tō'nə-nŭr'jĭk) adj. Activated by or capable of liberating serotonin, especially in transmitting nerve impulses: serotonergic neurons; serotonergic drugs. [SEROTON(IN) + -ergic (as in CHOLINERGIC).]

se·ro·to·nin (sĕr'ə-tō'nĭn, sĭr'-) n. An organic compound, C₁₀H₁₂N₂O, formed from tryptophan and found in animal and human tissue, especially the brain, blood serum, and gastric mucous membranes, and active in vasoconstriction, stimulation of the smooth muscles, transmission of impulses between nerve cells, and regulation of cyclic body processes. [SERO- + TON(E) + -IN.]

se·ro·type (sĭr'ə-tĭp', sĕr'-) n. A group of closely related microorganisms distinguished by a characteristic set of antigens. — v. tr. se·ro·typed, se·ro·typ·ing, se·ro·types. To classify according to serotype; assign to a particular serotype.

se·rous (sĭr'əs) adj. Containing, secreting, or resembling serum.

serous fluid (sĭr'əs flōō'ĭd) n. Any of various body fluids resembling serum, especially lymph.

serous membrane (sîr'əs mēm'brān') n. A thin membrane lining a closed body cavity and moistened with a serous fluid.

se-row (sə-rō') n. Any of several goat antelopes of the genus Capricornis, of mountainous regions of eastern Asia, having short horns and a dark coat. [Origin unknown.]

Serpens (sûr'pənz, -pənz') n. A constellation in the equatorial region of the northern sky, made up of two parts, Serpens Cauda, the “tail,” and Serpens Caput, the “head,” both near Hercules and Ophiuchus. [Latin Serpēns, from serpēns, serpent. See SERPENT.]

ser-pent (sûr'pənt) n. 1. A reptile of the order Serpentes; a snake. 2. Often Serpent. Satan. 3. A subtle, sly, or treacherous person. 4. A firework that writhes while burning. 5. Music. A deep-voiced wind instrument of serpentine shape, used principally in the 18th century, about 2.5 meters (8 feet) in length and made of brass or wood. 6. Serpent. Serpens. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin serpēns, serpent- from present participle of serpere, to creep.]

ser-pen-tar-i-um (sûr'pən-târ'ē-əm) n. pl. ser-pen-tar-i-ums or ser-pen-tar-i-a (-ē-ə). A place where snakes are kept for study or display.

ser-pen-tine (sûr'pən-tēn', -tīn') adj. 1. Of or resembling a serpent, as in form or movement; sinuous. 2. Subtly sly and tempting. — n. (-tēn') Any of a group of greenish, brownish, or spotted minerals, $Mg_3Si_2O_5(OH)_4$, used as a source of magnesium and asbestos, and in architecture as a decorative stone. [Middle English, from Old French serpentin, from Late Latin serpentīnus, from Latin serpēns, serpent-, serpent. See SERPENT.]

serpent star (sûr'pənt stār) n. A brittle star.

ser-pi-go (sər-pī'gō) n. Archaic. A spreading skin eruption or disease, such as ringworm. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin serpīgō, from Latin serpere, to creep.] — ser-pig'i-nous (sər-pij'ə-nəs) adj.

Ser-pu-khov (sər-pōō'kəf, syər'pōō-KHəf) A city of western Russia on the Oka River south of Moscow. Founded as a fortified outpost, it is now an important textile and manufacturing center. Population, 142,000.

Ser-ra (sēr'ə), Junípero. Originally Miguel José Serra. Known as “the Apostle of California.” 1713-1784. Spanish missionary who founded nine Franciscan missions in California (1769-1782).

Serra da Es-tre-la (sēr'ə də ɛs-trəl'ə, ɛsh-, sēr'ə) A mountain range of central Portugal including the highest elevation, 1,994.4 m (6,539 ft), in the country.

ser-ran-id (sə-răn'īd, sēr'ə-nīd) n. Any of various fishes of the family Serranidae such as the grouper. [From New Latin Serranidae, family name, from Latin serra, saw, sawfish.]

ser-rate (sēr'āt') adj. 1. Having or forming a row of small, sharp, projections resembling the teeth of a saw: serrate teeth; a serrate talon. 2. Having a saw-toothed edge or margin notched with toothlike projections: serrate leaves. — v.

tr. ser·rat·ed, ser·rat·ing, ser·rates. To make serrate or saw-toothed; jag the edge of. [Latin serrātus, saw-shaped, from serra, saw.]

ser·rat·ed (sĕr'ā'tīd) adj. Notched like the edge of a saw; saw-toothed; serrate.

ser·ra·tion (sə-rā'shən, sĕ-) n. 1. The state of being serrate. 2. A series or set of teeth or notches. 3. A single tooth or notch in a serrate edge.

ser·ried (sĕr'ēd) adj. Pressed or crowded together, especially in rows: troops in serried ranks. [Past participle of obsolete serry, to close ranks, from French serré, past participle of serrer, to crowd, fasten. See SEAR².] —ser'ried·ly adv.

ser·ru·late (sĕr'yə-līt, -lāt', sĕr'ə-) also ser·ru·lat·ed (-lā'tīd) adj. Having a minutely serrate margin, as in a leaflet of the rose. [New Latin serrulātus, from Latin serrula, diminutive of serra, saw.]

Ser·to·ri·us (sər-tōr'ē-əs, -tōr'-), Quintus. 123?-72 B.C. Roman general who ruled much of Spain in defiance of the Roman Senate.

ser·tu·lar·i·an (sūr'chə-lār'ē-ən, sūr'tl-ār'-) n. Any of various colonial hydroids of the genus Sertularia, having stalkless polyps arranged in pairs along a long, branching stem. [From New Latin Sertularia, genus name, from Latin sertula, diminutive of serta, garland from feminine past participle of serere, to join. See ser² in Appendix.]

se·rum (sīr'əm) n. pl. se·rums or se·ra (sīr'ə). 1. The clear yellowish fluid obtained upon separating whole blood into its solid and liquid components. Also called blood serum 2. Blood serum from the tissues of immunized animals, containing antibodies and used to transfer immunity to another individual.

3. Watery fluid from animal tissue, such as that found in edema. 4. Whey. [Latin, whey, serum.]

serum albumin (sīr'əm əl-byō'mīn) n. A protein fraction of serum involved in maintaining osmotic pressure of the blood and used as a substitute for plasma in the treatment of shock.

serum globulin (sīr'əm glōb'yə-līn) n. A protein fraction of serum composed chiefly of antibodies.

serum hepatitis (sīr'əm hĕp'ə-tī'tīs) n. See hepatitis B.

serum sickness (sīr'əm sīk'nīs) n. A hypersensitive reaction to the administration of a foreign serum, characterized by fever, swelling, skin rash, and enlargement of the lymph nodes.

serv. abbr. 1. Servant. 2. Service.

ser·val (sūr'vəl, sər-vāl') n. A long-legged wildcat (Felis serval) of Africa, having a tawny coat with black spots and large erect ears without tufts. [French, from Portuguese (lobo) cerval, deerlike (wolf), lynx, from Late Latin cervālis, from Latin cervus, deer. See ker¹ in Appendix.]

ser·vant (sūr'vənt) n. Abbr. serv. 1. One who is privately employed to perform domestic services. 2. One who is publicly employed to perform services, as for a government. 3. One who expresses submission, recognition, or debt to another:

your obedient servant. [Middle English, from Old French, from present participle of servir, to serve. See SERVE.]

serve (sûrv) v. served, serv-ing, serves. — v. tr. 1. a. To work for. b. To be a servant to. 2. a. To prepare and offer (food, for example): serve tea. b. To place food before (someone); wait on: served the guests a wonderful dinner. 3. a. To provide goods and services for (customers): a hotel that has served tourists at the same location for 30 years. b. To supply (goods or services) to customers. See Usage Note at service. 4. To assist (the celebrant) during Mass. 5. To be of assistance to or promote the interests of; aid: “Both major parties today seek to serve the national interest” (John F. Kennedy). 6. To spend or complete (time): served four terms in Congress. 7. To fight or undergo military service for: served her country for five years in the navy. 8. To give homage and obedience to: served God. 9. To act toward (another) in a specified way; requite: She has served me ill, and only that. 10. To copulate with. Used of male animals. 11. To meet the needs or requirements of; satisfy: serve the purpose. 12. Law. a. To deliver or present (a writ or summons). b. To present such a writ to. 13. Sports. To put (a ball or shuttlecock) in play, as in tennis, badminton, or jai alai. 14. To bind or whip (a rope) with fine cord or wire. — v. intr. 1. To be employed as a servant. 2. To do a term of duty: serve in the U.S. Air Force; serve on a jury. 3. To act in a particular capacity: serve as a clerk. 4. To be of service or use; function: Let this incident serve as a reminder to future generations. 5. To meet requirements or needs; satisfy: a device that will serve well. 6. To wait on tables: serve at luncheon. 7. Sports. To put a ball or shuttlecock into play, as in court games. 8. To assist the celebrant during Mass. — n. Sports. The right, manner, or act of serving in many court games. — idiom. serve (someone) right. To be deserved under the circumstances: Punish him; it will serve him right for what he has done to you. [Middle English serven, from Old French servir, from Latin servīre, from servus, slave.]

serv-er (sûr'vər) n. 1. a. One who serves food and drink. b. Something, such as a tray, that is used in serving food and drink. 2. An attendant to the celebrant at Mass. 3. Sports. The player who serves, as in court games. 4. Computer Science. A computer or program that controls a central repository of data that can be downloaded and manipulated in some manner by a client.

Ser-ve-tus (sər-vē'təs), Michael. Originally Miguel Serveto. 1511-1553. Spanish-born theologian and physician who described the circulation of blood. His denial of the doctrine of the Trinity led to his execution for heresy.

ser-vi-bar (sûr'vī-bär') n. See minibar. [Probably SERVI(CE) + BAR¹.]

serv-ice (sûr'vīs) n. Abbr. serv., svc 1. a. Employment in duties or work for another, especially for a government. b. A government branch or department and its employees: the diplomatic service. 2. a. The armed forces of a nation. b. A branch of the armed forces of a nation. 3. a. Work or duties performed for a superior. b. The occupation or duties of a servant. 4. a. Work done for others as an occupation or a business: provides full catering service. b. A department or branch of a hospital staff that provides specified patient care: the anesthesiology service; the chest service. 5. Installation, maintenance, or repairs provided or guaranteed by a dealer or manufacturer. 6. A facility providing the public with the use of something, such as water or transportation. 7. a. Acts of devotion to God; witness. b. A religious rite. 8. An act of assistance or benefit to another or others; a favor. 9. a. The serving of food or the manner in which it is served. b. A set of dishes or utensils: a silver tea service. 10. Sports. The act, manner, or right of serving in many court games; a serve. 11. Copulation with a female. 12. Law. The serving of a writ or summons. 13. The material, such as cord, used in binding or wrapping rope. — v. tr. serv-iced, serv-ic-ing, serv-ic-es. Abbr. serv. 1. To make fit for use; adjust, repair, or maintain: service a car. 2. To provide services to. 3. To make interest payments on (a debt). 4. To copulate with. — adj. Abbr. serv. 1. Of or relating to the armed forces of a country. 2. Intended for use in supplying or serving: a service elevator; the service entrance. 3. Offering repairs or maintenance: a service guarantee; a road service area. 4. Offering services to the public in response to need or demand: a service industry. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin servitium, slavery, from servus, slave.]

USAGE NOTE: Aside from specialized senses in finance (service a debt) and animal breeding (service a mare), service is used principally in the sense “to repair or maintain”: service the electric dishwasher. In the sense “to supply goods or services to,” serve is the most frequent or only choice: One radio network serves three states.

Ser-vice (sûr'vîs), Robert William. 1874–1958. British-born Canadian writer of poetry and novels about life in the Yukon, including the ballad “The Shooting of Dan McGrew” (1907).

serv-ice·a·ble (sûr'vî-sə-bəl) adj. 1. Ready for service; usable: serviceable equipment. 2. Able to give long service; durable: a heavy, serviceable fabric. —serv'ice·a·bil'i·ty, serv'ice·a·ble·ness n. —serv'ice·a·bly adv.

serv-ice·ber·ry (sûr'vîs-běr'ē) n. The shadbush or one of its fruit. [SERVICE (TREE) + BERRY.]

service break (sûr'vîs brāk) n. Sports. A game won on an opponent's serve, as in tennis.

service cap (sûr'vîs kăp) n. A flat-topped military cap with a visor.

service charge (sûr'vîs chărz) n. An additional charge for a service for which there is already a basic fee.

service line (sûr'vīs līn) n. Sports. A boundary line, as in tennis or handball, that must not be overstepped in serving.

serv·ice·man (sûr'vīs-măn', -mən) n. 1. A man who is a member of the armed forces. 2. Also service man. A man whose work is the maintenance and repair of equipment.

service mark (sûr'vīs märke) n. Abbr. SM A mark used in the sale or advertising of services to identify the services and distinguish them from the services of others.

serv·ice·per·son (sûr'vīs-pûr'sən) n. pl. serv·ice·per·sons or serv·ice·peo·ple (-pē'pəl). 1. A person who is a member of the armed forces. 2. Also service person. A person whose work is the maintenance and repair of equipment.

service road (sûr'vīs rōd) n. A local road that runs parallel to an expressway or interstate highway and that provides access to the property bordering it. Also called frontage road service station (sûr'vīs stā'shən) n. 1. A retail establishment at which motor vehicles are refueled, serviced, and sometimes repaired. Also called filling station, gas station. 2. A business or branch of a business where services, especially repairs, can be obtained.

service stripe (sûr'vīs strīp) n. 1. A stripe worn on an enlisted person's sleeve to indicate three years' service in the army or four years' service in the navy, for example. 2. A stripe worn on the sleeve of the uniform of a bus driver, for example, to indicate years of seniority.

service tree (sûr'vīs trē) n. Either of two Mediterranean trees (Sorbus domestica or S. torminalis) having clusters of white flowers, saw-toothed leaves, and edible brownish fruit. [From Middle English serve, pl. of serve, the service tree, from Old English syrfe, from Vulgar Latin sorbea*, from Latin sorbus.]

serv·ice·wom·an (sûr'vīs-woōm'ən) n. 1. A woman who is a member of the armed forces. 2. Also service woman. A woman whose work is the maintenance and repair of equipment.

ser·vi·ette (sûr'vē-ēt') n. Chiefly British. A table napkin. [French, from Old French serviete, perhaps from servir, to serve. See SERVE.]

ser·vile (sûr'vəl, -vīl') adj. 1. Abjectly submissive; slavish. 2. a. Of or suitable to a slave or servant: servile tasks such as floor scrubbing and barn work. b. Of or relating to servitude or forced labor. [Middle English, from Latin servilis, from servus, slave.] —ser'vile·ly adv. —ser'vile·ness, ser·vil'i·ty (sər-vīl'ī-tē) n.

serv·ing (sûr'vīng) n. 1. The act of one that serves. 2. An individual portion or helping of food or drink.

ser·vi·tor (sûr'vī-tər, -tôr') n. One that performs the duties of a servant to another; an attendant. [Middle English servitour, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin servitor, from servire, to serve. See SERVE.] —ser'vi·tor·ship' n.

ser-vi-tude (sûr'vī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. 1. a. A state of subjection to an owner or a master. b. Lack of personal freedom, as to act as one chooses. 2. Forced labor imposed as a punishment for crime: penal servitude in labor camps. 3. Law. A right that grants use of another's property. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin servitūdō, from Latin servus, slave.]

SYNONYMS: servitude, bondage, slavery. These nouns signify a state of subjection to an owner or a master. Servitude sometimes refers broadly to the lack of freedom to act or live as one chooses, but it often implies the performance of involuntary labor or service for a master: “The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged... on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude” (U.S. Constitution, 15th Amendment). Bondage emphasizes being bound to the service of another with virtually no hope of freedom: “even compassionating those who hold in bondage their fellow men, not knowing what they do” (John Quincy Adams). To be held in slavery is to be owned bodily by the person or persons one serves and to be treated as his or her property: “I have borne thirteen children and seen them most all sold off into slavery” (Sojourner Truth).

ser-vo (sûr'vō) n. pl. ser-vos. 1. A servomechanism. 2. A servomotor.

ser-vo-mech-a-nism (sûr'vō-mĕk'ə-nĭz'əm) n. 1. A feedback system that consists of a sensing element, an amplifier, and a servomotor, used in the automatic control of a mechanical device. 2. A self-regulating feedback system or mechanism: “We do not need to know in detail how the minute chemical servomechanisms of the muscles operate in order to move our arms” (Harper's).

[SERVO(MOTOR) + MECHANISM.]

ser-vo-mo-tor (sûr'vō-mō'tər) n. A motor that controls the action of the mechanical device in a servomechanism. [French servomoteur : Latin servus, slave + French moteur, motor (from Old French, from Latin mōtor, that which sets in motion); see MOTOR.]

SES abbr. Socioeconomic status.

ses-a-me (sĕs'ə-mē) n. 1. A tropical Asian plant (Sesamum indicum) bearing small, flat seeds used as food and as a source of oil. 2. The seed of this plant. Also called *til*¹ [Middle English sisamie, from Latin sēsamum, from Greek sēsamē, sēsamon, of Semitic origin; akin to Akkadian šamaššamu.]

ses-a-moid (sĕs'ə-moid') adj. Of or designating any of certain small modular bones or cartilages that develop in a tendon or in the capsule of a joint. — n. A sesamoid bone or cartilage. [Greek sēsamoeidēs, shaped like a sesame seed : sēsamon, sēsamē, sesame; see SESAME + -oeidēs, -oid.] — ses'a-moid' n.

sesqui- pref. One and a half: sesquicentennial. [Latin sēsqui- : sēm̄is, a half; see sēmi- in Appendix + -que, and; see k^we in Appendix.]

ses·qui·cen·ten·ni·al (sēs'kwī-sĕn-tĕn'ĕ-əl) adj. Of or relating to a period of 150 years. — n. A 150th anniversary or its celebration.

ses·quip·e·dal (sĕ-skwĭp'ĭ-dl) adj. Sesquipedalian. [Latin sĕsquipĕdālĭs, of a foot and a half in length : sĕsqui-, sesqui- + pĕs, ped-, foot; see ped- in Appendix.]

ses·qui·pe·da·lian (sēs'kwĭ-pĭ-dāl'yən) n. A long word. — adj. 1. Given to the use of long words. 2. Long and ponderous; polysyllabic.

sess. abbr. Session.

ses·sile (sĕs'ĭl', -əl) adj. 1. Botany. Stalkless and attached directly at the base: sessile leaves. 2. Zoology. Permanently attached or fixed; not free-moving: a sessile barnacle. [Latin sessĭlis, low, of sitting, from sessus, past participle of sedĕre, to sit. See sed- in Appendix.] — ses·sil'ĭ·ty (sĕ-sĭl'ĭ-tĕ) n.

ses·sion (sĕsh'ən) n. Abbr. sess. 1. a. A meeting of a legislative or judicial body for the purpose of transacting business. b. A series of such meetings. c. The term or duration of time that is taken by such a series of meetings. 2. The part of a year or of a day during which a school holds classes. 3. An assembly of people for a common purpose or because of a common interest: a gossip session. 4. Law. A court of criminal jurisdiction in the United States: the court of sessions. 5. A period of time devoted to a specific activity. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sessiō, sessiōn-, act of sitting, from sessus, past participle of sedĕre, to sit. See sed- in Appendix.] — ses'sion·al adj. — ses'sion·al·ly adv.

Ses·sions (sĕsh'ənz), Roger Huntington. 1896-1985. American composer. An influential promoter of 20th-century music, he wrote polyphonic symphonies, instrumental works, and operas, such as Montezuma (1962).

ses·terce (sĕs'tŭrs') n. A silver or bronze coin of ancient Rome equivalent to one fourth of a denarius. [Latin sĕstertius, a coin worth two and a half asses : sĕmis, half; see sĕmi- in Appendix + tertius, third; see trei- in Appendix.]

ses·ter·tium (sĕ-stŭr'shəm, -shĕ-əm) n. pl. ses·ter·tia (-shə, -shĕ-ə). A monetary unit of ancient Rome equivalent to 1,000 sesterces. [Latin (mille) sĕstertium, (a thousand) sesterces, genitive pl. of sĕstertius, sesterce. See SESTERCE.]

ses·tet (sĕ-stĕt') n. 1. A group of six lines of poetry, especially the last six lines of a Petrarchan sonnet. 2. A poem or stanza containing six lines. [Italian sestetto, from sesto, sixth, from Latin sextus. See s(w)eks in Appendix.]

ses·ti·na (sĕ-stĕ'nə) n. A verse form first used by the Provençal troubadours, consisting of six six-line stanzas and a three-line envoy. The end words of the first stanza are repeated in varied order as end words in the other stanzas and also recur in the envoy. [Italian, from sesto, sixth, from Latin sextus. See s(w)eks in Appendix.]

Ses·tos (sĕs'təs, -tös) An ancient town of European Turkey at the narrowest point of the Dardanelles. In 481 B.C. Xerxes built a bridge of boats here to cross the Hellespont and invade Greece. Sestos is also the site of the legendary tale of Hero and Leander.

Ses-to San Gio-van-ni (sēs'tō sǎn' jô-vă'nē, sǎn') A city of northern Italy, an industrial suburb of Milan. Population, 94,738.

set¹ (sĕt) v. set, set-ting, sets. — v. tr. 1. To put in a specified position; place: set a book on a table. 2. To put into a specified state: set the prisoner at liberty. 3. a. To put into a stable position: set the fence post into a bed of concrete. b. To fix firmly or in an immobile manner: He set his jaw and concentrated on flying the plane through the storm. 4. To restore to a proper and normal state when dislocated or broken: set a broken arm. 5. a. To adjust for proper functioning. b. To adjust (a saw) by deflecting the teeth. c. Nautical. To spread open to the wind: set the sails. 6. To adjust according to a standard. 7. To adjust (an instrument) to a specific point or calibration: set an alarm clock. 8. To arrange properly for use: set a place for a dinner guest; set a table. 9. To apply equipment, such as curlers and clips, to (hair) in order to style. 10. Printing. a. To arrange (type) into words and sentences preparatory to printing; compose. b. To transpose into type. 11. Music. a. To compose (music) to fit a given text. b. To write (words) to fit a given melodic line. 12. To arrange scenery on (a theater stage). 13. To prescribe the unfolding of (a scene) in a specific place: a play that is set in Venice. 14. To prescribe or establish: set a precedent. 15. To prescribe as a time for: set June 6 as the day of the invasion. 16. To detail or assign (someone) to a particular duty, service, or station: set the child to cleaning the closets; set guards around the perimeter. 17. To incite to hostile action: a war that set families against one another. 18. a. To establish as the highest level of performance: set a world aviation record. b. To establish as a model: A parent must set a good example for the children. 19. a. To put in a mounting; mount: set an emerald in a pendant. b. To apply jewels to; stud: a tiara that was set with diamonds. 20. To cause to sit. 21. a. To put (a hen) on eggs for the purpose of hatching them. b. To put (eggs) beneath a hen or in an incubator. 22. Sports. To position (oneself) in such a way as to be ready to start running a race. 23. a. To value or regard something at the rate of: She sets a great deal by good nutrition. b. To fix at a given amount: The judge set bail for the defendant at $50,000. c. To make as an estimate of worth: We set a high value on human life. 24. To point to the location of (game) by holding a fixed attitude. Used of a hunting dog. 25. Botany. To produce, as after pollination: set seed. 26. a. To prepare (a trap) for catching prey. b. To fix (a hook) firmly into a fish's jaw. — v. intr. 1. To disappear below the horizon: The sun set at seven that evening. 2. To diminish or decline; wane. 3. To sit on eggs. Used of fowl. 4. a. To become fixed; harden. See Synonyms at coagulate. b. To become permanent. Used of dye. 5. To become whole; knit. Used of a broken bone. 6. Botany. To mature or develop, as after pollination. 7. Non-Standard. To sit: "If Emmett drives, I could set up front" (Bobbie Ann Mason). 8. To position oneself preparatory to an action, such as running a race. — adj.

1. Fixed or established by agreement: a set time for the launching. 2. Established by convention: followed set procedures for filing a grievance. 3. Established deliberately; intentional: Our set purpose is to win the conflict. 4. Fixed and rigid: “His bearded face already has a set, hollow look” (Conor Cruise O’Brien). 5. Unwilling or very reluctant to change: He is set in his ways. 6. a. Intent and determined: “He is dead set against rushing abroad to build a plant” (Fortune). b. Ready: We are set to leave early tomorrow morning. — n. 1. a. The act or process of setting. b. The condition resulting from setting. 2. The manner in which something is positioned: the set of her cap. 3. A permanent firming or hardening of a substance, as by cooling. 4. The deflection of the teeth of a saw. 5. a. The carriage or bearing of a part of the body. b. A particular psychological state, usually that of anticipation or preparedness: “The mental set of an audience is crucial to his performance” (Psychology Today). 6. A descent below the horizon. 7. The direction or course of wind or water. 8. A seedling, slip, or cutting that is ready for planting. 9. The act of arranging hair by waving and curling it. — phrasal verbs. set about. To begin or start: set about solving the problem. set apart. 2. To reserve for a specific use. 3. To make noticeable: character traits that set her apart. set aside. 4. To separate and reserve for a special purpose. 5. To discard or reject. 6. To declare invalid; annul or overrule: The court has set aside the conviction. set at. To attack or assail: The dogs set at the fox. set back. 8. To slow down the progress of; hinder. 9. Informal. To cost: That coat set me back $1,000. set by. To reserve for future use: It is wise to set food and money by in case of a future emergency. set down. 11. To cause to sit; seat: Set the baby down here. 12. To put in writing; record: We set down the facts. 13. a. To regard; consider: Just set him down as a sneak. b. To assign to a cause; attribute: Let’s set the error down to inexperience. 14. To land (an aircraft): The pilot set the plane down hard. set forth. 15. To present for consideration; propose: set forth a sound plan. 16. To express in words: She has set forth her ideas. set forward. To begin a journey. set in. 18. To insert: set in the sleeve of a gown. 19. To begin to happen or be apparent: “Evening was setting in as I took the road over Mountain Top” (Charles Siebert). 20. To move toward the shore. Used of wind or water. set off. 21. a. To give rise to; cause to occur: set off a chemical reaction. b. To cause to explode: set off a bomb. 22. To indicate as being different; distinguish: features setting him off from the crowd. 23. To direct attention to by contrast; accentuate: set off a passage with italics. 24. To start on a journey: set off for Europe. set out. 25. To begin an earnest attempt; undertake: He set out to understand why the plan had failed. 26. To lay out systematically and graphically: set out a terrace. 27. To display for exhibition or sale. 28. To plant: set out seedlings. 29. To start a journey: She set out at dawn for town. set to. 30. To begin working energetically; start in. 31. To begin fighting. set up. 32. To place in an upright position. 33. a. To elevate; raise. b. To raise in authority or power; invest with power: They set the general up as a dictator. c. To put (oneself) forward as; claim to be: He has set himself up as an authority on the English language. d. To assemble and erect: set up a new machine. 34. To establish; found: set up a charity. 35. To cause: They set up howls of protest over new taxes. 36. To establish in business by providing capital, equipment, or other backing. 37. Informal. a. To treat (someone) to drinks. b. To pay for (drinks). 38. Informal. To stimulate or exhilarate: a victory that really set the team up. 39. To lay plans for: set up a kidnapping. 40. Informal. To put (someone else) into a compromising situation by deceit or trickery: Swindlers have set me up. set upon. To attack violently: Guards set dogs upon the escaping prisoners. —idioms. set fire to. To cause to ignite and burn. set foot in. To enter. set foot on. To step on. set in motion. To give impetus to: The indictment set the judicial process in motion. set (one's) heart on. To be determined to do something. set (one's) sights on. To have as a goal: She set her sights on medical school. set on fire. 7. To cause to ignite and burn. 8. To cause to become excited: The music set the audience on fire. set sail. Nautical. To begin a voyage on water. set (someone) straight. To correct (someone) by providing full and accurate information. set store by. To regard as valuable or worthwhile. set the pace. 12. To go at a speed that other competitors attempt to match or surpass. 13. To behave or perform in a way that others try to emulate. set the stage for. To provide the underlying basis for: saber rattling that set the stage for war. set up housekeeping. To establish a household. set up shop. To establish one's business operations. [Middle English setten, from Old English settan. See sed- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Originally set meant “to cause (something) to sit,” so that it is now in most cases a transitive verb: She sets the book on the table. He sets the table. Sit is generally an intransitive verb: He sits at the table. There are some exceptions: The sun sets (not sits). A hen sets (or sits) on her eggs.

set² (sĕt) n. 1. A group of things of the same kind that belong together and are so used: a chess set. 2. A group of persons sharing a common interest: the high-school set. See Synonyms at circle. 3. A group of books or periodicals published as a unit. 4. a. A number of couples required for participation in a square dance. b. The movements constituting a square dance. 5. a. The scenery constructed for a theatrical performance. b. The entire enclosure in which a movie is filmed; the sound stage. 6. Music. a. A session of music, typically dance music, played before an intermission. b. The music so played. 7. The collective receiving apparatus assembled to operate a radio or television. 8. Mathematics. A collection of distinct elements having specific common properties: a set of positive integers. 9. a. Sports. A group of tennis games constituting one division or unit of a match. b. Football. An offensive formation. [Middle English sette, from Old French, from Medieval Latin secta, retinue, from Latin, faction. See SECT.] se·ta (sē'tə) n. pl. se·tae (-tē). Biology. 1. A stiff hair, bristle, or bristlelike process or part on an organism. 2. Botany. The stalk of a moss capsule. [New Latin sēta, from Latin saeta, bristle.] —se'tal (sēt'l) adj.

se·ta·ceous (sī-tā'shəs) adj. 1. Having or consisting of bristles; bristly: a setaceous moth. 2. Resembling bristles or a bristle: setaceous whiskers. [SET(A) + -ACEOUS.] —se·ta'ceous·ly adv.

se·tae (sē'tē) n. Plural of seta.

set·a·side (sēt'ə-sīd') n. 1. Something, such as land or a certain percentage of profits, that is set aside for a specific purpose. 2. A federal program requiring that a certain percentage of government funds and contracts be reserved for businesses owned by women and members of minority groups.

set·back (sēt'băk') n. 1. An unanticipated or sudden check in progress; a change from better to worse. 2. a. A steplike recession in a wall. b. Any of a series of such recessions in the rise of a tall building. 3. An automatically timed setting of a thermostat to a lower temperature, as in the home at night.

set back (sēt băk) n. Football. An offensive back who lines up behind the quarterback.

set chisel (sēt chīz'əl) n. A chisel with a cutting edge on a tapered shaft.

se·ten·ant or se ten·ant (sə-těn'ənt, sēt'n-ăn', sə-tə-năn') n. A block of commemorative stamps printed together on the same sheet but differing in design, color, value, or overprint. [French : se, reflexive pron. + tenant, present participle of tenir, to hold.] —se·ten'ant adj.

Seth (sēth) In the Old Testament, the third son of Adam and Eve.

se·tif·er·ous (sī-tif'ər-əs) adj. Having setae or bristles; setaceous: setiferous antennae.

se·ti·form (sē'tə-fôrm') adj. Shaped like a seta or bristle.

se·tig·er·ous (sī-tīj'ər-əs) adj. Setiferous. [From Latin sētiger : sēta, bristle + -ger (from gerere, to bear).]

set·in (sēt'in') adj. 1. Made or placed as a part of another unit or structure: a set-in stereo cabinet. 2. Made separately and stitched into the main part: a dress with set-in sleeves. — n. Material, as for a book, that is inserted; an insert.

set·line (sēt'līn') n. A long fishing line towed by a boat and supporting many smaller lines bearing baited hooks. Also called trawl, trawl line, trotline.

set·off (sēt'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. Something, such as a decoration, that sets off something else by contrast. 2. Something that offsets or compensates for something else; a counterbalance. 3. a. A counterclaim. b. Settlement of a debt by a debtor's establishing such a claim against a creditor. 4. Architecture. A flat projection, as from a wall; a ledge. 5. Printing. See offset (n., sense 10a).

Se-ton (sēt'n), Saint Elizabeth Ann Bayley. Known as "Mother Seton." 1774-1821. American religious leader. A widowed mother of five, she converted to Catholicism (1805), opened a parochial school in Maryland, and founded a religious order, the Sisters of Charity (1809). She was the first native-born American to be canonized (1975).

se-tose (sē'tōs') adj. Bristly; setaceous.

set-out (sēt'out') n. 1. A start or beginning; an outset. 2. a. An arrangement or a display. b. An array of food, as on a buffet table; a spread. 3. An entertaining event, such as a party.

set piece (sēt pēs) n. 1. A realistic piece of stage scenery constructed to stand by itself. 2. An often brilliantly executed artistic or literary work characterized by a formal pattern. 3. a. A carefully planned and executed military operation. b. A situation, an activity, or a speech planned beforehand and carried out according to a prescribed pattern or formula.

set point (sēt point) n. Sports. 1. A situation in which the set will be won by the player who scores the next point in a net game such as tennis. 2. The point so scored.

set-screw (sēt'skrō') n. 1. A screw, often without a head, used to hold two parts together. 2. A screw used to regulate the tension of a spring.

Se-tswa-na (sēt-swä'nə) also Sech-ua-na (sēch-wä'-) n. See Tswana (n., sense 2).

set-tee (sĕ-tē') n. 1. A long wooden bench with a back. 2. A small or medium-sized sofa. [Perhaps alteration of SETTLE, bench.]

set-ter (sēt'ər) n. 1. One that sets: a setter of printing type; a setter of rabbit traps. 2. Any of several breeds of longhaired hunting dogs originally trained to indicate the presence of game by crouching in a set position.

set theory (sēt thĕ'ə-rĕ) n. Mathematics. The study of the properties of sets.

set-ting (sēt'ing) n. 1. The position, direction, or way in which something, such as an automatic control, is set. 2. a. The context and environment in which a situation is set; the background. b. The time, place, and circumstances in which a narrative, drama, or film takes place. 3. The scenery constructed for a theatrical performance or movie production. 4. Music. A composition written or arranged to fit a text, such as a poetical work. 5. A mounting, as for a jewel. 6. A place setting. 7. A set of eggs in a hen's nest.

set-tle (sēt'l) v. set-tled, set-ting, set-tles. — v. tr. 1. To put into order; arrange or fix definitely as desired. 2. To put firmly into a desired position or place; establish. 3. a. To establish as a resident or residents: settled her family in Ohio. b. To establish residence in; colonize: Pioneers settled the West. c. To establish in a residence, business, or profession. 4. To restore calmness or comfort to. 5. a. To cause to sink, become compact, or come to rest. b. To cause (a liquid) to become clear by forming a sediment. 6. To subdue or make orderly. 7. To establish on a permanent basis; stabilize. 8. a. To make compensation for (a claim). b. To pay (a debt). 9. To conclude (a dispute, for example) by a final decision. 10. To decide (a lawsuit) by mutual agreement of the involved parties without court action. 11. Law. To secure or assign (property or title) by legal action. — v. intr. 1. To discontinue moving and come to rest in one place. 2. To move downward; sink or descend, especially gradually: Darkness settled over the fields. Dust settled in the road. 3. a. To become clear by the sinking of suspended particles. Used of liquids. b. To be separated from a solution or mixture as a sediment. c. To become compact by sinking, as sediment when stirred up. 4. a. To establish one's residence: settled in Canada. b. To become established or localized: The cold settled in my chest. 5. To reach a decision; determine: We finally settled on a solution to the problem. See Synonyms at decide. 6. a. To provide compensation for a claim. b. To pay a debt. — n. A long wooden bench with a high back, often including storage space beneath the seat. —phrasal verbs. settle down. 1. To begin living a stable and orderly life: He settled down as a farmer with a family. 2. To become less nervous or restless. settle for. To accept in spite of incomplete satisfaction: had to settle for a lower wage than the one requested. [Middle English setlen, to seat, from Old English setlan, from setl, seat. See sed- in Appendix.] —set'tle-a-ble adj.

set-tle-ment (sĕt'l-mĕnt) n. 1. The act or process of settling.

2. a. Establishment, as of a person in a business or of people in a new region.

b. A newly colonized region. 3. A small community. 4. An arrangement, adjustment, or other understanding reached, as in financial or business proceedings: a divorce settlement. 5. Law. a. Transfer of property to provide for the future needs of a person. b. Property thus transferred. 6. A center providing community services in an underprivileged area. In this sense, also called settlement house set-tler (sĕt'lĕr) n. 1. One who settles in a new region. 2. One who settles or decides something.

set-tings (sĕt'lĭngz) pl.n. Sediment; dregs.

set-tlor (sĕt'lĕr) n. Law. One that makes a business or financial settlement or a settlement of property.

set-to (sĕt'tō) n. pl. set-tos. A brief, usually heated conflict or argument.

Se-tú-bal (sə-tō'bəl) A city of southwest Portugal southeast of Lisbon on the Bay of Setúbal, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. Setúbal is a port and processing center with a shipbuilding industry. Population, 77,885.

set-up (sĕt'ŭp) n. 1. The way in which something is constituted, arranged, or planned. 2. The gathering and organization of the equipment needed for an operation, a procedure, or a task. 3. a. Physical makeup; physique. b. Body posture or carriage; militarily erect bearing. 4. a. Often setups. Informal. The collective ingredients, such as ice, mixers, and glasses, necessary for serving various alcoholic drinks. b. A table setting, as in a restaurant. 5. A camera position, as for a particular shot in a scene being filmed. 6. Slang. a. A contest prearranged to result in an easy or faked victory. b. An endeavor intentionally made easy. c. A deceptive scheme, such as a fraud or hoax. 7. A plan or strategy for a projected course of action.

Seu·rat (sə-rä', soe-), Georges Pierre. 1859-1891. French painter. A founder of neoimpressionism, he developed pointillism, the technique used in his masterpiece Sunday Afternoon on the Island of La Grande Jatte (1886).

Seuss (soos), Doctor. See Theodor Seuss Geisel.

Se·vas·to·pol (sə-väs'tə-pōl', səv'ə-stō'pəl, syī-və-) Formerly Se·bas·to·pol (sə-bäs'tə-pōl'). A city of southern Ukraine in the Crimea on the Black Sea west of Yalta. Founded on the site of an ancient Greek colony, it became Russia's principal Black Sea naval base after the late 18th century. The city resisted lengthy sieges during the Crimean War and World War II. Population, 341,000.

sev·en (səv'ən) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 6 + 1. 2. The seventh in a set or sequence. [Middle English, from Old English seofon. See septm in Appendix.] —sev'en adj. & pron.

Sev·en Hills of Rome (səv'ən hīlz ūf rōm) The hills upon which the ancient city of Rome was built, including the Palatine (traditional site of the founding of the city) and the Aventine, Caelian, Capitoline, Esquiline, Quirinal, and Viminal hills.

Seven Isles (səv'ən īlz) See Sept Îles.

seven seas also Seven Seas (səv'ən sēz) pl.n. All the oceans of the world.

sev·en·teen (səv'ən-tēn') n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 16 + 1. 2. The 17th in a set or sequence. [Middle English seventene, from Old English seofontīne. See septm in Appendix.] —sev'en·teen' adj. & pron.

sev·en·teenth (səv'ən-tēnth') n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 17 in a series. 2. One of 17 equal parts. —sev'en·teenth' adv. & adj.

sev·en·teen·year locust (səv'ən-tēn'yīr' lō'kəst) n. See periodical cicada.

sev·enth (səv'ənth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number seven in a series. 2. One of seven equal parts. 3. Music. An interval encompassing seven diatonic degrees. [Middle English, alteration of sefende, from Old English seofunda, from seofon, seven. See SEVEN.] —sev'enth adv. & adj.

Sev·enth Avenue (səv'ənth əv'ə-nōō') Known as "Fashion Avenue." A thoroughfare in New York City on Manhattan Island. It has long been considered the center of the garment and fashion industry in the United States.

Sev·enth-day Adventist (səv'ənth-dā' əd'vən'-tīst) n. A member of a sect of Adventism distinguished chiefly for its observance of the Sabbath on Saturday.

seventh heaven (sĕv'ənth həv'ən) n. 1. A state of great joy and satisfaction.

2. The farthest of the concentric spheres containing the stars and constituting the dwelling place of God and the angels in the Muslim and cabalist systems.

sev-enth-inn-ing stretch (sĕv'ənth-ɪn'ɪŋ strĕch) n. Baseball. A juncture in a game, usually after six and one-half innings of play, when the fans get out of their seats to stretch their legs.

sev-en-ti-eth (sĕv'ən-tē-ith) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 70 in a series. 2. One of 70 equal parts. —sev/en-ti-eth adv. & adj.

sev-en-ty (sĕv'ən-tē) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 7×10 . 2. seventies. Often Seventies. a. The decade from 70 to 79 in a century. b. A decade or the numbers from 70 to 79: They became grandparents in their seventies. The temperature hovered in the seventies. [Middle English, from Old English hundseofontig. See septm in Appendix.] —sev/en-ty adj. & pron.

sev-en-up (sĕv'ən-ŭp') n. Games. A card game requiring seven points to win. Also called *pitch*²

Seven Wonders of the World (sĕv'ən wŭn'dərz ŭv thē wŭrld) In ancient times, the pyramids of Egypt; the Hanging Gardens of Babylon; Phidias's statue of Zeus at Olympia; the temple of Artemis at Ephesus; the tomb, or mausoleum, of King Mausolus at Halicarnassus; the Colossus of Rhodes; and either the Pharos, or lighthouse, at Alexandria or the walls of Babylon. The list of manmade wonders was first compiled by a Hellenistic traveler in the second century B.C.

sev-er (sĕv'ər) v. sev-ered, sev-er-ing, sev-ers. — v. tr. 1. To set or keep apart; divide or separate. 2. To cut off (a part) from a whole. 3. To break up (a relationship, for example); dissolve. See Synonyms at separate. — v. intr.

1. To become cut or broken apart. 2. To become separated or divided from each other. [Middle English severen, from Anglo-Norman severer, from Vulgar Latin sēparāre*, from Latin sēparāre. See SEPARATE.]

sev-er-a-ble (sĕv'ər-ə-bəl, sĕv'rə-) adj. Capable of being severed or separated; separable into legally distinct rights or obligations, as a contract.

—sev'er-a-bil-i-ty n.

sev-er-al (sĕv'ər-əl, sĕv'rəl) adj. 1. Being of a number more than two or three but not many: several miles away. 2. Single; distinct: "Pshaw! said I, with an air of carelessness, three several times" (Laurence Sterne). 3. Respectively different; various: They parted and went their several ways. See Synonyms at distinct. 4. Law. Relating separately to each party of a bond or note. — pron. (used with a pl. verb). An indefinite but small number; some or a few: Several of the workers went home sick. [Middle English, separate, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin sēparālis, sēperālis, from Latin sēpar, from sēparāre, to separate. See SEPARATE.]

—sev'er-al-ly adv.

sev-er-al-fold (sĕv'ər-əl-fōld', sĕv'rəl-) adj. 1. Having several parts or members. 2. Being several times as much or as many. —sev'er-al-fold' adv.

sev-er-al-ty (sĕv'ər-əl-tē, sĕv'rəl-) n. pl. sev-er-al-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being separate and distinct. 2. Law. a. A separate and individual right to possession or ownership that is not shared with any other person. b. Land, property, or an estate owned in severalty. c. The quality or condition of being held or owned in severalty.

sev-er-ance (sĕv'ər-əns, sĕv'rəns) n. 1. a. The act or process of severing. b. The condition of being severed. 2. Separation; partition.

severance pay (sĕv'ər-əns pā) n. A sum of money usually based on length of employment for which an employee is eligible upon termination.

severance tax (sĕv'ər-əns tāks) n. A tax imposed by a state on the extraction of natural resources, such as oil, coal, or gas, that will be used in other states.

se-vere (sə-vîr') adj. se-ver-er, se-ver-est. 1. Unsparing or harsh, as in treatment of others; strict. 2. Marked by or requiring strict adherence to rigorous standards or high principles. 3. Austere or dour; forbidding: spoke in a severe voice. 4. Extremely plain in substance or style: a severe black dress. 5. Causing sharp discomfort or distress; extremely violent or intense: severe pain; a severe storm. 6. Very serious; grave or grievous: severe mental illness. 7. Extremely difficult to perform or accomplish; trying: a severe test of our loyalty. [Latin sevĕrus, serious, strict. See wĕro- in Appendix.] —se-vere'ly adv. —se-vere'ness n.

SYNONYMS: severe, stern, austere, ascetic, strict. These adjectives mean unsparing and exacting with respect to discipline or control. Severe implies adherence to rigorous standards or high principles; the term often suggests the imposition of harsh conditions: “Praise or blame has but a momentary effect on the man whose love of beauty in the abstract makes him a severe critic on his own works” (John Keats). Stern suggests unyielding disposition, uncompromising resolution, or forbidding appearance or nature: “thought her husband a man fatally stern and implacable” (George Meredith). Austere connotes sternness, qualities such as aloofness or lack of feeling or sympathy, and often rigid morality: Austere officers demand meticulous conformity with military regulations. Ascetic suggests self-discipline and self-denial and often renunciation of worldly pleasures for spiritual improvement: “Be systematically ascetic... do... something for no other reason than that you would rather not do it” (William James). Strict means requiring or showing stringent observance of obligations, rules, or standards: “He could not be severe nor even passably strict” (W.H. Hudson).

severe com-bined immunodeficiency (sə-vîr' kəm-bīnd' ĭm'yə-nō-dī-fīsh'ən-sē) n. Abbr. SCID A usually fatal congenital disorder of the immune system in which the body is unable to produce enough B cells and T cells to resist infection.

se-ver-i-ty (sə-vēr'ī-tē) n. pl. se-ver-i-ties. 1. The state or quality of being severe. 2. The act or an instance of severe behavior, especially punishment.

Sev-ern (sěv'ərən) A community of north-central Maryland, a suburb of Baltimore. Population, 24,499.

Se-ver-na Park (sə-vûr'nə pàrk) An unincorporated community of central Maryland on the Severn River, an inlet of Chesapeake Bay. The city is mainly residential. Population 25,879.

Se-ver-na-ya Zem-lya (sěv'ər-nə-yä' zěm'lē-ä', -lyä', syĭ-vyĭr-) An archipelago of north-central Russia in the Arctic Ocean north of the Taimyr Peninsula. Discovered in 1913, the group comprises three major islands and several smaller ones.

Severn River (sěv'ərən rĭv'ər) 1. A river of northwest Ontario, Canada, flowing about 676 km (420 mi) northeast to Hudson Bay. 2. A river of southwest Great Britain rising in central Wales and flowing about 338 km (210 mi) in a curve through western England. It empties into Bristol Channel through a long estuary.

Se-ve-rod-vinsk (sěv'ər-əd-vĭnsk', syĭ-vyĭ-rəd-) A city of northwest Russia on an arm of the White Sea west of Arkhangelsk. It is a timber-shipping port. Population, 230,000.

Se-ve-rus (sə-vîr'əs), Lucius Septimus. A.D. 146-211. Emperor of Rome (193-211) who created a military monarchy and ruled as a despot.

se-vi-che (sə-vē'chā, sě-) n. Variant of ceviche.

Se-vier (sə-vîr'), John. 1745-1815. American Revolutionary soldier and politician. He led the settlers who defeated the Loyalists in the Battle of King's Mountain (1780) and later served as the first governor of Tennessee (1796-1801 and 1803-1809).

Sevier River (sə-vîr' rĭv'ər) A river, about 451 km (280 mi) long, of west-central Utah flowing north then southwest through the Sevier Desert. It empties into Sevier Lake, a saline lake with no outlet.

Sé-vi-gné (sā-vēn-yā'), Marquise de Title of Marie de Rabutin-Chantal. 1626-1696. French letter writer whose prolific correspondence depicts aristocratic life in the age of Louis XIV.

Se-ville (sə-vĭl') A city of southwest Spain on the Guadalquivir River north-northeast of Cádiz. Settled in ancient times, it was an important settlement under the Romans, Vandals, and Visigoths and later under Ferdinand III of Castile, who made it his royal residence in 1248. The city especially prospered after the discovery of the New World and served as the chief port of colonial trade until the early 18th century. Population, 672,435.

Seville orange (sə-vĭl' ôr'ĭnj) n. See sour orange. [After Seville.]

Sè-vres (sěv'rə) n. A fine French porcelain, often elaborately decorated. [After Sèvres, a city of north-central France.]

sev·ru·ga (sə-vrōō'gə) n. 1. A sturgeon (Acipenser stellatus) of the Caspian Sea, whose small gray roe is used for caviar. 2. Caviar made from the roe of the sevruqa. [Russian.]

sew (sō) v. sewed, sewn (sōn) or sewed, sew·ing, sews. — v. tr. 1. To make, repair, or fasten by stitching, as with a needle and thread or a sewing machine: sew a dress; sew on a button. 2. To furnish with stitches for the purpose of closing, fastening, or attaching: sew an incision closed. — v. intr. To work with a needle and thread or with a sewing machine. — phrasal verb. sew up. Informal. 1. To complete successfully: Our team has sewn up the championship. 2. To gain complete control of; monopolize. 3. To make sure of: campaign strategists who were trying to sew up the election results. [Middle English sewen, from Old English seowian. See syū- in Appendix.] — sew/a·ble adj.

sew·age (sōō'ij) n. Liquid and solid waste carried off in sewers or drains. [Perhaps sew, sewer (from Middle English, short for Anglo-Norman sewere); see SEWER¹ + -AGE.]

Sew·all (sōō'əl), Samuel. 1652-1730. English-born American jurist who presided over the witchcraft trials at Salem, Massachusetts (1692).

Sew·ard (sōō'ərd), William Henry. 1801-1872. American politician who as U.S. secretary of state (1861-1869) arranged the purchase of Alaska from Russia (1867), a transaction long known as “Seward’s Folly.”

Seward Peninsula (sōō'ərd pə-nīn'syə-lə) A peninsula of western Alaska projecting into the Bering Sea just below the Arctic Circle.

Sew·ell (sōō'əl), Anna. 1820-1878. British writer of the children’s classic Black Beauty (1877).

se·wel·lel (sə-wəl'əl) n. A small, thick-bodied rodent (Aplodontia rufa) of the Pacific coast of North America, having tiny eyes and small ears and usually found in communal burrows dug in the banks of streams. Also called mountain beaver [Chinook šwalál, robe of sewellel skins.]

sew·er¹ (sōō'ər) n. An artificial, usually underground conduit for carrying off sewage or rainwater. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman sewere, from Vulgar Latin exaquāria* : Latin ex-, ex- + Latin aquāria, feminine of aquārius, pertaining to water (from aqua, water); see ak^w-ā- in Appendix.]

sew·er² (sōō'ər) n. A medieval servant who supervised the serving of meals. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman asseour, from asseer, to seat guests, from Latin assidēre, to sit down : ad-, ad- + sedēre, to sit; see sed- in Appendix.]

sew·er³ (sō'ər) n. One that sews: a sewer of fine clothing.

sew·er·age (sōō'ər-ij) n. 1. A system of sewers. 2. Removal of waste materials by means of a sewer system. 3. Sewage.

sew·ing (sō'ing) n. 1. The act, occupation, or hobby of one who sews. 2. The article on which one is working with needle and thread; needlework.

sewing circle (sō'ing sūr'kəl) n. A group of people, especially women, who meet regularly for the purpose of sewing, often for charitable causes.

sewing machine (sō'ing mə-shēn') n. A machine for sewing, often having additional attachments for special stitching.

sewn (sōn) v. A past participle of sew.

sex (sěks) n. 1. a. The property or quality by which organisms are classified as female or male on the basis of their reproductive organs and functions. b. Either of the two divisions, designated female and male, of this classification.

2. Females or males considered as a group. 3. The condition or character of being female or male; the physiological, functional, and psychological differences that distinguish the female and the male. See Usage Note at gender. 4. The sexual urge or instinct as it manifests itself in behavior. 5. Sexual intercourse.

6. The genitalia. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: sex education; sex crimes. — v. tr. sexed, sex-ing, sex-es. 1. To determine the sex of (an organism, especially a hatching chicken). 2. Slang. a. To arouse sexually. Often used with up. b. To increase the appeal or attractiveness of. Often used with up. [Middle English, from Latin sexus.]

sex- pref. Six: sexpartite. [Latin, from sex, six. See s(w)eks in Appendix.]

sex-a-ge-nar-i-an (sěk'sə-jə-nâr'ē-ən) n. A person who is 60 years old or between the ages of 60 and 70. — adj. 1. Being 60 years old or between the ages of 60 and 70. 2. Of or relating to a sexagenarian. [From Latin sexāgēnārius, sexagenary. See SEXAGENARY.]

sex-ag-e-nar-y (sěk-sāj'ə-nēr'ē) adj. 1. Relating to or proceeding by sixties. 2. Sexagenarian. — n. pl. sex-ag-e-nar-ies. A sexagenarian. [Latin sexāgēnārius, from sexāgēnī, sixty each, from sexāgintā, sixty : sex, six; see SEX- + gintā, ten times; see dekṃ in Appendix.]

Sex-a-ges-i-ma (sěk'sə-jēs'ə-mə, -jā'zə-) n. The second Sunday before Lent. [Late Latin sexāgēsima (diēs), sixtieth (day), from feminine of Latin sexāgēsimus, sixtieth, from sexāgintā, sixty. See SEXAGENARY.]

sex-a-ges-i-mal (sěk'sə-jēs'ə-məl) adj. Of, relating to, or based on the number 60. [From Latin sexāgēsimus, sixtieth. See SEXAGESIMA.]

sex appeal (sěks ə-pēl') n. 1. Physical attractiveness or personal qualities that arouse others sexually. 2. Slang. General appeal; power to interest or attract.

sex cell (sěks sěl) n. A germ cell or gamete.

sex-cen-te-nar-y (sěk-sěn'tə-nēr'ē, sěk'sěn-těn'ə-rē) adj. Relating to 600 or to a 600-year period. — n. pl. sex-cen-te-nar-ies. A 600th anniversary or its commemoration. [From Latin sexcentēnī, six hundred each : sex, six; see SEX- + centēnī, a hundred each (from centum, hundred); see dekṃ in Appendix.]

sex change (sěks chānj) n. The modification of a person's biological sex characteristics, by surgery and hormone treatment, to approximate those of the opposite sex.

sex chromatin (sěks krō'mə-tĭn) n. Genetics. See Barr body.

sex chromosome (sěks krō'mə-sōm') n. Either of a pair of chromosomes, usually designated X or Y, in the germ cells of most animals and some plants, that combine to determine the sex and sex-linked characteristics of an individual, with XX resulting in a female and XY in a male.

sex-duc-tion (sěks-dŭk'shən) n. The process by which genetic material is transferred from one bacterium to another by a sex factor. [SEX + (TRANS)DUCTION.]

sex-en-ni-al (sěk-sĕn'ē-əl) adj. 1. Occurring every six years. 2. Relating to or lasting six years. — n. An event that occurs every six years. [From Latin sexennium, of six years : sex, six; see SEX + annus, year; see at- in Appendix.]

—sex-en'ni-al-ly adv.

sex factor (sěks fāk'tər) n. 1. A bacterial plasmid that enables one bacterium to donate its genetic material to another bacterium by conjugation, resulting in genetic recombination. Also called fertility factor, f factor. 2. A gene or chromosome that determines sex.

sex gland (sěks gländ) n. A testis or an ovary; a gonad.

sex hormone (sěks hōr'mōn') n. Any of various hormones, such as estrogen and androgen, affecting the growth or function of the reproductive organs, behavior, and development of secondary sex characteristics.

sex hygiene (sěks hī'jĕn') n. The branch of hygiene that is concerned with healthy sexual practices.

sex-ism (sěk'sĭz'əm) n. 1. Discrimination based on gender, especially discrimination against women. 2. Attitudes, conditions, or behaviors that promote stereotyping of social roles based on gender. —sex'ist adj. & n.

sex kitten (sěks kit'n) n. Informal. A young woman considered to have sex appeal.

sex-less (sěks'lis) adj. 1. Lacking sexual characteristics; neuter. 2. Lacking in sexual interest or activity: a sexless marriage. —sex'less-ly adv. —sex'-less-ness n.

sex-lim-it-ed (sěks'lĭm'ĭ-tĭd) adj. 1. Occurring or appearing only in one sex. Used of a genetic character or phenotype. 2. Having a sex-limited character or phenotype.

sex linkage (sěks lĭng'kĭj) n. The condition in which a gene responsible for a specific trait is located on a sex chromosome, resulting in sexually dependent inheritance of the trait.

sex-linked (sěks'lĭngkt') adj. 1. Carried by a sex chromosome, especially an X chromosome. Used of genes. 2. Sexually determined. Used especially of inherited traits.

sex object (sěks ōb'jĭkt) n. A person regarded primarily as the focus of sexual attraction.

sex·ol·o·gy (sĕk-sŏl'ə-jē) n. The study of human sexual behavior.

—sex'ol·og'ic (sĕk'sə-lŏj'ik), sex'ol·og'i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —sex·ol'o·gist n.

sex·par·tite (sĕks-pär'tit') adj. Composed of or divided into six parts, as a groined vault.

sex·ploi·ta·tion (sĕk'sploi-tā'shən) n. Informal. Exploitative use of explicit sexual material in the media and especially in movies. [SEX + (EX)PLOITATION.]

sex·pot (sĕks'pŏt') n. Informal. A woman considered to have sex appeal.

sex ratio (sĕks rā'shō) n. The proportion of males to females in a given population, usually expressed as the number of males per 100 females.

sex symbol (sĕks sĭm'bəl) n. A person, especially an entertainer or a celebrity, who is widely acknowledged and appreciated for having sex appeal.

sext also Sext (sĕkst) n. Ecclesiastical. 1. The fourth of the seven canonical hours. 2. The time of day set aside for this service, usually the sixth hour, or noon. [Middle English sexte, from Late Latin sexta, from Latin sexta (hōra), sixth (hour), feminine of sextus, sixth. See s(w)eks in Appendix.]

Sex·tans (sĕks'tənz) n. A constellation in the equatorial region of the sky near Leo and Hydra. Also called Sextant [New Latin sextāns, sextant. See SEXTANT.]

sex·tant (sĕk'stənt) n. 1. A navigational instrument containing a graduated 60-degree arc, used for measuring the altitudes of celestial bodies. 2. Sextant. See Sextans. [New Latin sextāns, sextant-, from Latin, sixth part (so called because the instrument's arc is a sixth of a circle), from sextus, sixth. See s(w)eks in Appendix.]

sex·tet (sĕk-stĕt') n. 1. Music. a. A group composed of six vocalists or musicians. b. A composition written for six performers. 2. A group of six persons or things. [Alteration of SESTET.]

sex therapy (sĕks thĕr'ə-pē) n. The treatment of sexual dysfunction, such as impotence or frigidity, by methods involving counseling, psychotherapy, or behavior modification. —sex therapist n.

sex·tile (sĕk'stĭl', -stəl) adj. Of or relating to the position of two celestial bodies when they are 60° apart. [Latin sextĭlis, one sixth, from sextus, sixth. See s(w)eks in Appendix.]

sex·til·lion (sĕk-stĭl'yən) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 10²¹. 2. Chiefly British. The cardinal number written 10³⁶. [French : Latin sextus, sixth; see SEX-TILE + French -illion (as in million, million, from Old French milĭon); see MIL-LION.] —sex·til'lion adj. & pron.

sex·til·lionth (sĕk-stĭl'yənθ) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number sextillion in a series. 2. One of sextillion equal parts. —sex·til'lionth adv. & adj.

sex·to·dec·i·mo (sĕk'stō-dĕs'ə-mō') n. pl. sex·to·dec·i·mos. Printing.

1. The page size of a book composed of printer's sheets folded into 16 leaves or 32 pages. 2. A book composed of sextodecimo pages. Also called sixteenmo [Latin sextōdecimō, ablative of sextusdecimus, one sixteenth : sextus, sixth; see s(w)eks in Appendix + decimus, tenth (from decem, ten); see dekṃ in Appendix.]

sex·ton (sĕk'stən) n. An employee or officer of a church who is responsible for the care and upkeep of church property and sometimes for ringing bells and digging graves. [Middle English sextein, from Anglo-Latin sextānus, probably from Medieval Latin secristānus, sacristan, variant of sacristānus. See SACRISTAN.]

Sex·ton (sĕk'stən), Anne. 1928-1974. American poet whose works, including the collections Live or Die (1966) and The Death Notebooks (1974), document her struggle with mental illness and her search for faith.

sexton beetle (sĕk'stən bĕt'l) n. See burying beetle.

sex·tu·ple (sĕk-stōō'pəl, -styōō'-, -stŭp'əl, sĕk'stŭp'əl) v. tr. intr. sex·tu·pled, sex·tu·pling, sex·tu·ples. To multiply or be multiplied by six. — adj.

1. Containing or consisting of six parts. 2. Larger or greater by six parts multiplied by six. 3. Music. Having six beats to the measure. — n. A number six times larger than another. [Probably Latin sextus; see SEXTILE + -uple (as in QUIN-TUPLE).] — sex·tu·ply adv.

sex·tup·let (sĕk-stŭp'līt, -stōō'plīt, -styōō'-, sĕk'stŭp'līt) n. 1. One of six offspring born in a single birth. 2. A group of six similar persons or things; a sextet. [SEXTU(PLE) + (TRI)PLET.]

sex·tu·pli·cate (sĕk-stōō'plī-kīt, -styōō'-, -stŭp'li-) adj. Six times as many or as much. — *v. tr. sex·tu·pli·cat·ed, sex·tu·pli·cat·ing, sex·tu·pli·cates (-kāt'). 1. To make six times as great; multiply by six. 2. To make six copies of. — n. 1. One of six similar things. 2. A set of six identical copies. [SEXTU(PLE) + (DU)PLICATE.] — sex·tu·pli·cate·ly adv. — sex·tu·pli·ca'tion *n.

sex·u·al (sĕk'shōō-əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, involving, or characteristic of sex, sexuality, the sexes, or the sex organs and their functions. 2. Implying or symbolizing erotic desires or activity. 3. Of, relating to, or involving the union of male and female gametes: sexual reproduction. [Late Latin sexuālis, from Latin sexus, sex.] — sex·u·al·ly adv.

sexual assault (sĕk'shōō-əl ə-sōlt') n. Law. Indecent conduct of a man toward another man, a woman, or a child or of a woman toward a child, accompanied by the threat or danger of physical suffering or injury or inducing fear, shame, humiliation, and mental anguish.

sexual harassment (sĕk'shōō-əl hăř'əs-mənt) n. Unwanted and offensive sexual advances or sexually derogatory or discriminatory remarks, as those made by an employer to an employee.

sexual intercourse (sĕk'shōō-əl ɪn'tər-kōrs') n. 1. Coitus between human beings. 2. Sexual union between human beings involving genital contact other than vaginal penetration by the penis.

sex·u·al·i·ty (sĕk'shōō-ăl'i-tē) n. 1. The condition of being characterized and distinguished by sex. 2. Concern with or interest in sexual activity. 3. Sexual character or potency.

sex·u·al·ize (sĕk'shōō-əl-īz') v. tr. sex·u·al·ized, sex·u·al·iz·ing, sex·u·al·iz·es. To make sexual in character or quality: “the thesis that one can sexualize life completely without ever bumping into responsibility” (Stephen Koch).
—sex'·u·al·i·za'tion (-əl-ī-zā'shən) n.

sexually trans·mit·ted disease (trāns-mīt'īd trāns-mīt'īd dī-zēz', trānz-) n. Abbr. STD Any of various diseases, including chancroid, chlamydia, gonorrhea, and syphilis, that are usually contracted through sexual intercourse or other intimate sexual contact.

sexual orientation (sĕk'shōō-əl ôr'ē-ĕn-tā'shən) n. The direction of one's sexual interest toward members of the same, opposite, or both sexes.

sexual relations (sĕk'shōō-əl rī-lā'shənz) pl.n. 1. Sexual intercourse.
2. Sexual activity between individuals.

sexual selection (sĕk'shōō-əl sī-lĕk'shən) n. Selection driven by the competition for mates, considered an adjunct to natural selection.

sex·y (sĕk'sē) adj. sex·i·er, sex·i·est. 1. Arousing or tending to arouse sexual desire or interest. 2. Slang. Highly appealing or interesting; attractive: “The recruiting brochures are getting sexier” (Jack R. Wentworth). —sex'i·ly adv.
—sex'i·ness n.

Sey·chelles (sā-shĕl', -shĕlz') An island country in the western Indian Ocean north of Madagascar. Discovered by the Portuguese in the early 1500's, the islands were claimed by the French in the mid-1700's but were taken by the British in 1794. The Seychelles were a crown colony from 1903 until 1976, when the country gained its independence. Victoria, on Mahé Island, is the capital. Population, 64,718.

Sey·fert galaxy (sē'fərt gäl'ək-sē, sī'-) n. A spiral galaxy with a small, compact, bright nucleus that exhibits variable light intensity and radio-wave emission. [After Carl K. Seyfert (1911-1960), American astronomer.]

Sey·mour (sē'môr', -môr') A city of southeast Indiana south-southeast of Indianapolis. It is a manufacturing and shipping center. Population, 15,576.

Sey·mour (sē'môr', -môr'), Jane. 1509?-1537. Queen of England (1536-1537) as the third wife of Henry VIII. She died after giving birth to Henry's heir, Edward VI.

sf or SF abbr. Science fiction.

SF abbr. 1. Baseball. Sacrifice fly. 2. Accounting. Sinking fund.

sf. abbr. Music. Sforzando.

SFC abbr. Sergeant first class.

sfer-ics also spher-ics (sfîr'îks, sfēr'-) n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. The study of atmospheric, especially using electronic detectors. 2. See atmospherics (n., sense 1). [Shortening and alteration of ATMOSPHERICS.]

Sfor-za (sfôrt'sə, sfôr'tsä) Family of Milanese political leaders, including Francesco (1401-1466), a captain of mercenaries who declared himself duke of Milan (1450). His son Ludovico (1451?-1508) was duke of Milan (1481-1499) and a patron of Leonardo da Vinci.

Sfor-za (sfôrt'sə, sfôr'tsä), Count Carlo. 1873-1952. Italian diplomat who was a severe critic of Mussolini's rise to power.

sfor-zan-do (sfôrt-sän'dō) also for-zan-do (fôrt-sän'dō) adv. & adj. Abbr. sf., sfz. Music. Suddenly and strongly accented. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. pl. sfor-zan-dos or sfor-zan-di (-dē). A sforzando tone or chord. [Italian, gerund of sforzare, to use force : s-, intensive pref. (from Latin ex-); see EX- + forzare, to force (from Vulgar Latin fortiāre*, from Latin fortis, strong); see FOR-TIS.] — sfor-zan'do adv.

S.F.S.R. abbr. Soviet Federated Socialist Republic.

sfu-ma-to (sfōō-mä'tō) n. The blurring or softening of sharp outlines in painting by subtle and gradual blending of one tone into another. [Italian, from past participle of sfumare, to evaporate, fade out : s-, from (from Latin ex-); see EX- + fumare, to smoke (from Latin fumāre).]

sfz. abbr. Music. Sforzando.

sg abbr. Specific gravity.

Sg abbr. Bible. Song of Songs.

SG abbr. 1. Senior grade. 2. Surgeon General.

S.G. or SG abbr. Solicitor general.

sgd. abbr. Signed.

SGML (ēs'jē-ēm-ël') n. Computer Science. A text formatting language that is widely used for large databases and multiple media projects, particularly well-suited for works that involve intensive cross-referencing and indexing. [S(TANDARD) G(ENERALIZED) M(ARKUP) L(ANGUAGE).]

sgraf-fi-to (skră-fē'tō, zgră-) n. pl. sgraf-fi-ti (-tē). 1. Decoration produced on pottery or ceramic by scratching through a surface of plaster or glazing to reveal a different color underneath. 2. Ware decorated in this manner. [Italian, past participle of sgraffire, to scratch, from sgraffio, a scratch, from sgraffiare, to scratch, from Old Italian : s-, intensive pref.; see SFORZANDO + graffiare, to scratch; see GRAFFITO.]

's Gra-ven-ha-ge (skră'vən-hä'gə, skhră'vən-hä'KHƏ) See The Hague.

Sgt. abbr. Sergeant.

Sgt. Maj. abbr. Sergeant major.

sh (sh) interj. Used to urge silence.

sh. abbr. 1. Share. 2. Sheet.

Shaan·xi (shän/'shē') also Shen·si (shēn/'sē') A province of east-central China crossed by the Wei He. One of the earliest cultural and political centers of China, the province is densely populated and highly industrialized. Xi'an is the capital. Population, 30,020,000.

Sha·ba (shä/'bə) Formerly Ka·tan·ga (kə-täng'/gə, -täng'/-). A region of south-east Zaire bordering on Zambia. It proclaimed itself the republic of Katanga in 1960 and seceded from Congo (now Zaire). The insurrection was put down in 1963 with the aid of United Nations troops.

Sha'·ban also Shaa·ban (shə-bän', shä-, shô-) n. The eighth month of the year in the Muslim calendar. See Table at calendar. [Arabic ša'bān.]

Shab·bat (shə-bät', shä'bəs) n. Judaism. The Sabbath. [Hebrew šabbāt, sabbath.]

shab·by (shäb'ē) adj. shab·bi·er, shab·bi·est. 1. Wearing threadbare clothing. 2. a. Showing signs of wear and tear; threadbare or worn-out: shabby furniture. b. Dilapidated or deteriorated in condition, especially through neglect; seedy: a shabby little park. 3. a. Despicable; mean: a shabby trick. b. Not generous or just; unfair: shabby treatment. c. Of mediocre or substandard quality: a shabby performance. [From obsolete shab, scab, from Middle English shab, from Old English sceabb.] —shab'bi·ly adv. —shab'bi·ness n.

Sha·bu·oth (shə-vōō'ōt', -əs, shä'vōō-ōt') n. Variant of Shavuot.

sha·bu·sha·bu (shä'bōō-shä'bōō) n. A Japanese dish consisting of a simmering pot of broth, vegetables, and noodles in which thin-sliced beef or sometimes chicken is quickly cooked at table and then dipped into a flavorful sauce. [Japanese, imitative of bubbling water.]

shack (shäk) n. A small, crudely built cabin; a shanty. — v. intr. shack·ed, shack·ing, shacks. To live or dwell: farm hands shacking in bunkhouses. —idiom. shack up. Slang. 1. To sleep together or live in sexual intimacy without being married. 2. To live, room, or stay at a place: I'm shacking up with my cousin till I find a place of my own. [Possibly from American Spanish jacal, from Nahuatl xacalli, adobe hut : xāmitl, adobe + calli, house, hut.]

shack·le (shäk'əl) n. 1. A metal fastening, usually one of a pair, for encircling and confining the ankle or wrist of a prisoner or captive; a fetter or manacle. 2. A hobble for an animal. 3. Any of several devices, such as a clevis, used to fasten or couple. 4. A restraint or check to action or progress. Often used in the plural: economic shackles that precluded further investment. — v. tr. shack·led, shack·ling, shack·les. 1. To confine with shackles; fetter. 2. To fasten or connect with a shackle. 3. To restrict, confine, or hamper. See Synonyms at hamper¹. [Middle English shackel, from Old English sceacel, fetter.] —shack·ler n.

Shack·le·ton (shāk'əl-tən), Sir Ernest Henry. 1874-1922. British explorer who led a number of expeditions to the Antarctic and wrote Heart of the Antarctic (1909).

shack·o (shāk'ō, shā'kō, shä'-) n. Variant of shako.

shad (shād) n. pl. shad or shads. Any of several food fishes of the genus Alosa, especially the North American species A. sapidissima, related to the herrings but atypical in swimming up streams from marine waters to spawn. [Middle English *shad, from Old English sceadd.]

shad·ber·ry (shād'bēr'ē) n. The fruit of the shadbush.

shad·blow (shād'blō') n. See shadbush.

shad·bush (shād'bōōsh') n. Any of various North American shrubs or trees of the genus Amelanchier, having white flowers, edible blue-black or purplish fruit, and smooth, gray, striped twigs. Also called Juneberry, shadblow.

shad·dock (shād'ək) n. 1. A tropical southeast Asian tree (Citrus maxima) closely related to the grapefruit and having very large fruit with thick rinds and coarse-grained pulp. 2. The edible yellow, pear-shaped fruit of the shaddock. Also called pomelo, pompelmous, pumelo. [After Captain Shaddock, 17th-century English ship commander.]

shade (shād) n. 1. Light diminished in intensity as a result of the interception of the rays; partial darkness. 2. An area or a space of partial darkness. 3. Cover or shelter provided by interception by an object of the sun or its rays. 4. Any of various devices used to reduce or screen light or heat. 5. shades. Slang. Sunglasses. 6. Relative obscurity. 7. shades. Dark shadows gathering at dusk: "The shades of night are falling fast" (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow). 8. The part of a picture or photograph depicting darkness or shadow. 9. The degree to which a color is mixed with black or is decreasingly illuminated; gradation of darkness. 10. A slight difference or variation; a nuance: shades of meaning. 11. A small amount; a trace: detected a shade of bitterness in her remarks. 12. A disembodied spirit; a ghost. 13. shades. A present reminder of a person or situation in the past: shades of my high-school days. — v. shad·ed, shad·ing, shades. — v. tr.

1. To screen from light or heat. 2. To obscure or darken. 3. To cause shade in or on. 4. a. To represent degrees of shade or shadow in: shade a drawing. b. To produce (gradations of light or color) in a drawing or picture. 5. To change or vary by slight degrees: shade the meaning. 6. To make a slight reduction in: shade prices. — v. intr. To pass from one quality, color, or thing to another by very slight changes or degrees. [Middle English, from Old English sceadu.]

—shad'er n.

SYNONYMS: shade, penumbra, shadow, umbra, umbrage. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "an area of comparative darkness resulting from the blocking of light rays": sitting in the shade; Earth's penumbra; in the shadow of the curtains; the umbra beyond the footlights; sheltered in the umbrage of a rain forest.

See also Synonyms at nuance shade tree (shād trē) n. A tree planted chiefly to provide shade from sunlight.

shad-fly (shād'flī') n. See mayfly.

shad-ing (shā'dīng) n. 1. A screening against light or heat. 2. The lines or other marks used to fill in outlines of a sketch, an engraving, or a painting to represent gradations of color or darkness. 3. A small variation, gradation, or difference.

sha-doof also sha-duf (shā-dōof') n. A device consisting of a long suspended pole weighted at one end and having a bucket at the other end, used in the Near East and especially Egypt for raising water, as for the irrigation of land. [Arabic šādūf.]

shad-ow (shād'ō) n. 1. An area that is not or is only partially irradiated or illuminated because of the interception of radiation by an opaque object between the area and the source of radiation. 2. The rough image cast by an object blocking rays of illumination. See Synonyms at shade. 3. An imperfect imitation or copy. 4. shadows. The darkness following sunset. 5. a. A feeling of gloom or unhappiness. b. A cause of gloom or unhappiness. 6. A shaded area in a picture or photograph. 7. A mirrored image or reflection. 8. A phantom; a ghost.

9. a. One, such as a detective or spy, that follows or trails another. b. A constant companion. 10. A faint indication; a premonition. 11. A vestige or remnant.

12. An insignificant portion or amount; a trace: beyond a shadow of a doubt.

13. Shelter; protection. — v. shad-owed, shad-ow-ing, shad-ows. — v. tr. 1. To cast a shadow on; shade. 2. To make gloomy or dark; cloud. 3. To represent vaguely, mysteriously, or prophetically. 4. To darken in a painting or drawing; shade in. 5. To follow, especially in secret; trail. — v. intr. 1. To change by gradual degrees. 2. To become clouded over as if with shadows: Her face shadowed with sorrow.

— adj. Not having official status: a shadow government of exiled leaders; a shadow cabinet. [Middle English, from Old English sceaduwe, oblique case of sceadu, shade, shadow.] — shad'ow-er n.

shad-ow-box (shād'ō-bōks') v. intr. shad-ow-boxed, shad-ow-box-ing, shad-ow-box-es. To spar with an imaginary opponent, as for exercise or training purposes. — shad'ow-box'ing n.

shadow box (shād'ō bōks) n. A shallow, framed, rectangular box usually with a glass front that is used for holding and protecting items on display.

shadow dance (shād'ō dāns) n. A dance presented by casting shadows of dancers on a screen.

shad-ow-graph (shād'ō-grāf') n. 1. An image produced by casting a shadow on a screen. 2. See shadow play. 3. See radiograph.

shadow play (shăd'ō plā) n. A play presented by casting shadows of puppets or actors on a screen. Also called shadowgraph, shadow show.

shad·ow·y (shăd'ō-ē) adj. shad·ow·i·er, shad·ow·i·est. 1. Relating to or resembling a shadow. 2. Full of or dark with shadow. See Synonyms at dark. 3. Lacking distinctness; faint. 4. Lacking substance; unsubstantial.

—shad'ow·i·ly adv. —shad'ow·i·ness n.

Shad·rach (shăd'rāk) In the Old Testament, a young man who with Abednego and Meshach emerged unharmed from the fiery furnace of Babylon.

sha·duf (shă-dōōf') n. Variant of shadoof.

Shad·well (shăd'wəl, -wĕl'), Thomas. 1642?-1692. English writer of plays and poetry who was appointed poet laureate in 1688.

shad·y (shă'dē) adj. shad·i·er, shad·i·est. 1. Full of shade; shaded. 2. Casting shade: a shady grove. 3. Quiet, dark, or concealed; hidden. 4. Of dubious character or honesty; questionable. See Synonyms at dark. —shad'i·ly adv.

—shad'i·ness n.

shaft (shăft) n. 1. a. The long, narrow stem or body of a spear or an arrow. b. A spear or an arrow. 2. a. A projectile suggestive of a spear or an arrow in appearance or configuration. b. Informal. A scornfully satirical comment; a barb. c. Slang. Harsh, unfair treatment. Often used with the: The president of the airline really gave the unions the shaft. 3. A ray or beam of light. 4. The handle of any of various tools or implements. 5. The main axis of a feather, especially its distal portion. 6. Anatomy. a. The midsection of a long bone; diaphysis. b. The section of a hair projecting from the surface of the body. 7. Architecture. a. A column or an obelisk. b. The section of a column between the capital and the base. 8. One of two parallel poles between which an animal is harnessed to a vehicle. 9. A long, generally cylindrical bar, especially one that rotates and transmits power, as the drive shaft of an engine. 10. A long, narrow, often vertical passage sunk into the earth, as for mining ore; a tunnel. 11. A vertical passage housing an elevator. 12. A duct or conduit for the passage of air, as for ventilation or heating. — v. tr. shaft·ed, shaft·ing, shafts. 1. To equip with a shaft. 2. Slang. To treat in a harsh, unfair way: "He had been shafted by the press quite a bit" (Frank Deford). [Middle English, from Old English scaft.]

Shaftes·bur·y (shăfts'bĕr'ē, -bə-rē), First Earl of Title of Anthony Ashley Cooper. 1621-1683. English politician. Originally a Royalist, he later opposed Charles II in the English Civil War and is considered the founder of the Whig Party.

shaft·ing (shăf'tīng) n. 1. A system of shafts, as in a mechanical device, for transmitting motion or power. 2. Material from which shafts are made. 3. Slang. An instance of harsh or unfair treatment: got a shafting when they bought that house.

- shag¹ (shäg) n. 1. A tangle or mass, especially of rough, matted hair. 2. a. A coarse long nap, as on a woolen cloth. b. Cloth having such a nap. 3. A rug with a thick, rough pile. 4. Coarse shredded tobacco. — v. tr. shagged, shag-ging, shags. 1. To make shaggy; roughen. 2. a. To chase and bring back; fetch. b. Baseball. To chase and catch (fly balls) in practice. [Middle English shagge*, from Old English sceacga, matted hair.]
- shag² (shäg) n. A dance step of the 1930's consisting of a hop on each foot in turn. — v. intr. shagged, shag-ging, shags. To perform or execute this dance. [Origin unknown.]
- shag³ (shäg) n. Either of two marine birds (Phalacrocorax aristotelis or P. punctatus) of Europe and North Africa, related to the cormorant. [Perhaps from its shaggy crest.]
- shag-bark (shäg'bärk') n. An eastern North American hickory tree (Carya ovata) having shaggy bark, pinnately compound leaves, and hard-shelled nuts with edible seeds. Also called shellbark
- shag-gy (shäg'ē) adj. shag-gi-er, shag-gi-est. 1. Having, covered with, or resembling long rough hair or wool. 2. Bushy and matted: shaggy hair. 3. Having a rough nap or surface, as a textile. 4. Poorly groomed; unkempt. 5. Marked by a lack of order or clarity in thinking, planning, or performance. —shag'gi-ly adv. —shag'gi-ness n.
- shaggy cap (shäg'ē kăp) n. See shaggymane.
- shag-gy-dog story (shäg'ē-dôg' stô'r'ē, -dôg') n. Informal. A long, drawn-out anecdote ending with an absurd or anticlimactic punch line.
- shag-gy-mane also shag-gy mane (shäg'ē-män') n. An edible inky cap mushroom (Coprinus comatus) having shaggy scales covering the cap. Also called shaggy cap
- sha-green (shə-grēn') n. 1. The rough hide of a shark or ray, covered with numerous bony denticles and used as an abrasive and as leather. 2. An untanned leather with a granular surface that is often dyed green. [French chagrin, sagrin, from Turkish sağrı, crupper, leather.] —sha-green' adj.
- shah (shä) n. Used formerly as a title for the hereditary monarch of Iran. [Persian shāh, king, from Old Persian khshāyathiya-.] —shah'dom n.
- Sha-hap-ti-an (shä-hăp'tē-ən) n. Variant of Sahaptian.
- Sha-hap-tin (shä-hăp'tin) n. Variant of Sahaptin.
- Shah Ja-han (shä' jə-hän'), 1592-1666. Mogul emperor of India (1628-1658) whose reign ushered in the golden age of Mogul art and architecture. The Taj Mahal was built at his request as a memorial to his favorite wife.
- Shahn (shän), Benjamin. Known as "Ben." 1898-1969. Lithuanian-born American artist whose works, such as The Passion of Sacco and Vanzetti (1931-1932), reflect social and political themes.

shai-tan (shī-tän', shā-) n. 1. Often Shaitan. Islam. The Devil; Satan. 2. An evil spirit; a fiend. [Arabic šayṭān, from Hebrew šāṭān. See SATAN.]

shake (shāk) v. shook (shōök), shak-en (shā'kən), shak-ing, shakes. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move to and fro with jerky movements. 2. To cause to quiver, tremble, vibrate, or rock. 3. To cause to lose stability or waver: a crisis that shook my deepest beliefs. 4. To remove or dislodge by jerky movements: shook the dust from the cushions. 5. a. To bring to a specified condition by or as if by shaking: “It is not easy to shake one’s heart free of the impression” (John Middleton Murry). b. Slang. To get rid of: couldn’t shake the man who was following us. 6. To disturb or agitate; unnerve: She was shaken by the news of the disaster. 7. To brandish or wave, especially in anger: shake one’s fist. 8. To clasp (hands) in greeting or leave-taking or as a sign of agreement. 9. Music. To trill (a note). 10. Games. To rattle and mix (dice) before casting. — v. intr. 1. To move to and fro in short, irregular, often jerky movements. 2. To tremble, as from cold or in anger. 3. To be unsteady; totter or waver. 4. To move something vigorously up and down or from side to side, as in mixing. 5. Music. To trill. 6. To shake hands: Let’s shake on it. — n. 1. The act of shaking. 2. A trembling or quivering movement. 3. Informal. An earthquake. 4. a. A fissure in rock. b. A crack in timber caused by wind or frost. 5. Informal. A moment or an instant; a trice: I’ll do it in a shake. 6. Music. A trill. 7. a. See milk shake (n., sense 1). b. A beverage in which the ingredients are mixed by shaking. 8. A rough shingle used to cover rustic buildings, such as barns: cedar shakes. 9. shakes. Informal. Uncontrollable trembling, as in a person who is cold, frightened, feverish, or ill. Often used with the: was suffering from a bad case of the shakes. 10. Slang. A bargain or deal: getting a fair shake. — phrasal verbs. shake down. 1. Slang. To extort money from. 2. Slang. To make a thorough search of: shook down the prisoners’ cells for hidden weapons. 3. To subject (a new ship or aircraft) to shakedown testing. 4. To become acclimated or accustomed, as to a new environment or a new job. shake off. To free oneself of; get rid of: We shook off our fears. shake up. 6. To upset by or as if by a physical jolt or shock: was badly shaken up by the accident. 7. To subject to a drastic rearrangement or reorganization: new management bent on shaking up the company. — idioms. give (someone) the shake. Slang. To escape from or get rid of: We managed to give our pursuers the shake. no great shakes. Slang. Unexceptional; ordinary: “stepping in between the victim and the bully, even when the victim happens to be no great shakes” (Louis Auchincloss). shake a leg. Informal. 3. To dance. 4. To move quickly; hurry up. shake (another’s) tree. Slang. To arouse to action or reaction; disturb: “[He] so shook Hollywood’s tree that... all manner of... people called me unsolicited to itemize his mistakes or praise his courage” (Tina Brown). shake a stick at. Slang. To point out, designate, or name: “All of a sudden there came into being a vast conservative infrastructure: think-tanks... and more foundations than you could shake a stick at” (National Review). [Middle English shaken, from Old English sceacan.] —shak’ a-ble, shake’ a-ble adj.

SYNONYMS: shake, tremble, quake, quiver, shiver, shudder. These verbs mean to manifest involuntary vibratory movement. Shake is the most general: The child’s small body shook with weeping. The floor shook when she walked across the room. Tremble implies quick, rather slight movement, as from excitement, weakness, or anger: I could feel the youngster’s hand tremble in mine. The apple blossoms trembled in the wind. Quake refers to more violent movement, as that caused by shock or upheaval: I was so terrified that my legs began to quake. Quiver suggests a slight, rapid, tremulous movement: “Her lip quivered like that of a child about to cry” (Booth Tarkington). Shiver involves rapid, rather slight trembling, as of a person experiencing chill: “as I in hoary winter night stood shivering in the snow” (Robert Southwell). Shudder applies chiefly to convulsive shaking caused by fear, horror, or revulsion: “She starts like one that spies an adder /... The fear whereof doth make him shake and shudder” (Shakespeare). See also Synonyms at agitate dismay shake-down (shāk’doun’) n. 1. Slang. Extortion of money, as by blackmail. 2. Slang. A thorough search of a place or person. 3. A period of appraisal followed by adjustments to improve efficiency or functioning. — adj. Serving to test the performance of a ship or an aircraft and to familiarize the crew with operation of the craft: a shakedown cruise; a shakedown flight.

WORD HISTORY: In 1969 a majority of the members of the American Heritage Dictionary Usage Panel felt that the noun shakedown in the sense “extortion” and the related phrasal verb shake down were acceptable in writing, though both are now labeled slang. It would seem that certain usages take a while to attain respectability because of the company they keep. Shake and the verb phrase shake out of already meant “to steal” in Middle English. This usage of shake is still found in the 19th and 20th centuries. Both shake and shake out of in the sense “to steal” are clearly related to shake down, which is first recorded in 1872, shake down being glossed “to extort money from individuals.” This is a slang usage, probably occurring, as had the verb shake, largely in contexts having to do with criminal or corrupt behavior. As our Panel realized, the verb and the later noun shakedown (first recorded in 1902 in the United States) have now moved from the lingo of criminals, loan sharks, and politicians into wider currency.

shak-en (shā’kən) v. Past participle of shake.

shake-out (shāk’out’) n. 1. The elimination of competing businesses or products in a particular field. 2. A decline in the values of certain securities that usually results in a depressed stock market.

shak·er (shā'kər) n. 1. a. One that shakes: a shaker of long-held beliefs and traditions. b. One that impels, encourages, or supervises action. 2. a. A container used for shaking: salt and pepper shakers. b. A container used to mix or blend by shaking: a cocktail shaker. 3. Shaker. A member of a Christian group originating in England in 1747, practicing communal living and observing celibacy. — adj. also Shaker Relating to or constituting a style produced by Shakers that is distinctively simple, unornamented, functional, and finely crafted: Shaker furniture.

Shaker Heights (shā'kər hīts) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. It is named after a Shaker community that existed here from 1822 to 1889. Population, 30,831.

Shake-speare (shāk'spîr), William. 1564-1616. English playwright and poet whose body of works is considered the greatest in English literature. His plays, many of which were performed at the Globe Theatre in London, include historical works, such as Richard II, comedies, including Much Ado about Nothing and As You Like It, and tragedies, such as Hamlet, Othello, and King Lear. He also composed 154 sonnets. The earliest collected edition of his plays, the First Folio, contained 36 plays and was published posthumously (1623). —Shake-spear'e-an, Shake-spear'i-an adj. & n.

Shake-spear·e·an·a or Shake-spear·i·an·a (shāk-spîr'ē-ăn'ə, -ä'nə) n. A collection of items by or relating to Shakespeare.

Shakespearean sonnet (shāk-spîr'ē-ən sŏn'it) n. The sonnet form perfected by Shakespeare, composed of three quatrains and a terminal couplet in iambic pentameter with the rhyme pattern abab cdcd efef gg. Also called Elizabethan sonnet, English sonnet.

Shake-spear·i·an·a (shāk-spîr'ē-ăn'ə, -ä'nə) n. Variant of Shakespeareana.

shake-up (shāk'ŭp') n. A thorough, often drastic reorganization, as of the personnel in a business or government.

Shakh·ty (shāk'tē, shākH'-) A city of southwest Russia northeast of Rostov. It is an industrial city in an anthracite-mining region. Population, 221,000.

shak·ing palsy (shā'kĩŋ pŏl'zē) n. See Parkinson's disease.

shak·o also shack·o (shāk'ŏ, shā'kŏ, shä'-) n. pl. shak·os or shak·oes. A stiff, cylindrical military dress hat with a metal plate in front, a short visor, and a plume. [French schako, from Hungarian csákó, from csákós (süveg), pointed (cap), from csák, peak, perhaps from Middle High German zacke, tack, nail.]

Shak·ta (shāk'tə, säk'-) n. Hinduism. One who worships Shakti. [Sanskrit śaktaḥ, from śaktiḥ, Shakti. See SHAKTI.] —Shak'tism n. —Shak'tist n.

Shak·ti (shŭk'tē, shäk'-) n. Hinduism. 1. The active, manifest power that creates the universe. 2. The consort of the male expression of the divine, especially of the god Shiva. [Sanskrit śaktiḥ, from śaknoti, he is strong.]

shak·y (shā'kē) adj. shak·i·er, shak·i·est. 1. Trembling or quivering; tremulous: a shaky voice. 2. Lacking soundness or sturdiness, as of construction: a shaky table. 3. a. Not to be depended on; precarious: a shaky alliance. b. Wavering in firmness: a shaky belief. c. Open to question or doubt: shaky evidence. —shak'i·ly adv. —shak'i·ness n.

shale (shāl) n. A fissile rock composed of layers of claylike, fine-grained sediments. [Probably from Middle English, shell, from Old English scealu. See skel-¹ in Appendix.] —shal'ey adj.

shale oil (shāl oil) n. A crude oil that is obtained from oil shale by heating and distillation.

shall (shāl) v. aux. past tense should (shōod). 1. Used before a verb in the infinitive to show: a. Something that will take place or exist in the future: We shall arrive tomorrow. b. Something, such as an order, a promise, a requirement, or an obligation: You shall leave now. He shall answer for his misdeeds. The penalty shall not exceed two years in prison. c. The will to do something or have something take place: I shall go out if I feel like it. d. Something that is inevitable: That day shall come. 2. Archaic. a. To be able to. b. To have to; must. [Middle English shal, from Old English sceal. See skel-² in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The traditional rules for using shall and will prescribe a highly complicated pattern of use in which the meanings of the forms change according to the person of the subject. In the first person, shall is used to indicate simple futurity: I shall (not will) have to buy another ticket. In the second and third persons, the same sense of futurity is expressed by will: The comet will (not shall) return in 87 years. You will (not shall) probably encounter some heavy seas when you round the point. The use of will in the first person and of shall in the second and third may express determination, promise, obligation, or permission, depending on the context. Thus I will leave tomorrow indicates that the speaker is determined to leave; You and she shall leave tomorrow is likely to be interpreted as a command. The sentence You shall have your money expresses a promise (“I will see that you get your money”), whereas You will have your money makes a simple prediction. • Such, at least, are the traditional rules. But the distinction has never taken firm root outside of what H.W. Fowler described as “the English of the English” (as opposed to that of the Scots and Irish), and even there it has always been subject to variation. Despite the efforts of generations of American schoolteachers, the distinction is largely alien to the modern American idiom. In America will is used to express most of the senses reserved for shall in English usage, and shall itself is restricted to first person interrogative proposals, as in Shall we go? and to certain fixed expressions, such as We shall overcome. Shall is also used in formal style to express an explicit obligation, as in Applicants shall provide a proof of residence, though this sense is also expressed by must or should. In speech the disinction that the English signal by the choice of shall or will may be rendered by stressing the auxiliary, as in I will leave tomorrow (“I intend to leave”); by choosing another auxiliary, such as must or have to; or by using an adverb such as certainly.

• Many earlier American writers observed the traditional distinction between shall and will, and some continue to do so. The practice cannot be called incorrect, though it may strike American ears as somewhat mannered. But the distinction is difficult for those who do not come by it natively, and Americans who essay a shall in an unfamiliar context run considerable risk of getting it wrong, and so of being caught out in that most embarrassing of linguistic gaffes, the bungled Anglicism. See Usage Note at should.

shal·loon (shə-lōn', shă-) n. A lightweight wool or worsted twill fabric, used chiefly for coat linings. [French chalon, after Châlons-sur-Marne.]

shal·lop (shäl'əp) n. Nautical. A small open boat fitted with oars or sails, or both, and used primarily in shallow waters. [French chaloupe, from Dutch sloop, sloop; see SLOOP, or perhaps from obsolete French chaloppe, nutshell (from Old French eschalope, from escale, eschale, shell, husk); see SCALE¹.]

shal·lot (shə-löt', shäl'ət) n. 1. A type of onion with long, pointed, pear-shaped, aggregated bulbs. 2. The mild-flavored bulb of this plant, used in cookery. Also called eschalot [Obsolete French eschalotte, from Old French eschaloigne, from Vulgar Latin escalōnia*. See SCALLION.]

shal·low (shäl'ō) adj. shal·low·er, shal·low·est. 1. Measuring little from bottom to top or surface; lacking physical depth. 2. Lacking depth of intellect, emotion, or knowledge: “This is a shallow parody of America” (Lloyd Rose). See Synonyms at superficial. 3. Marked by insufficient inhalation of air; weak: shallow respirations. — n. A part of a body of water of little depth; a shoal. Often used in the plural: abandoned the boat in the shallows. — v. tr. intr.

shal·lowed, shal·low·ing, shal·lows. To make or become shallow. [Middle English shalowe.] — shal'low·ly adv. — shal'low·ness n.

shal·lu (shäl'ōo) n. A variety of sorghum native to and widely cultivated in India and Africa. [Marathi ślū.]

sha·lom (shä-lōm', shə-) interj. Used as a traditional Jewish greeting or farewell. [Hebrew šālôm, peace.]

sha·lom a·lei·chem (shō'ləm ə-lä'kHəm, -kəm, shä-lōm' ä-lä-kHēm') interj. Used as a traditional Jewish greeting or farewell. [Hebrew šālôm 'alêkem, peace be with you.]

shalt (shält) v. aux. Archaic. A second person singular present tense of shall.

sham (shäm) n. 1. Something false or empty that is purported to be genuine; a spurious imitation. 2. The quality of deceitfulness; empty pretense. 3. One who assumes a false character; an impostor: “He a man! Hell! He was a hollow sham!” (Joseph Conrad). 4. A decorative cover made to simulate an article of household linen and used over or in place of it: a pillow sham. — adj. Not genuine; fake: sham diamonds; sham modesty. — v. shammed, sham-ming, shams. — v. tr. To put on the false appearance of; feign: “shamming insanity to get his tormentors to leave him alone” (John Wain). — v. intr. To assume a false appearance or character; dissemble. [Perhaps dialectal variant of SHAME.] — sham’mer n.

sha-man (shä’män, shā’-) n. A member of certain tribal societies who acts as a medium between the visible world and an invisible spirit world and who practices magic or sorcery for purposes of healing, divination, and control over natural events. [Russian, from Tungus šaman, Buddhist monk, shaman, from Tocharian samāne, from Prakrit samaṇa, from Sanskrit śramaṇaḥ, from śramaḥ, religious exercise.] — sha-man’ic (shə-män’ik) adj.

sha-man-ism (shä’mə-nīz’əm, shā’-) n. 1. The animistic religion of certain peoples of northern Asia in which mediation between the visible and spirit worlds is effected by shamans. 2. A similar religion or set of beliefs, especially among certain Native American peoples. — sha’man-ist n. — sha’man-is’tic adj.

Sha-mash (shä’mäsh’) n. Mythology. The sun god of Assyro-Babylonian religion, worshiped as the author of justice and compassion. [Akkadian šamaš, sun.]

sham-ble (shäm’bəl) v. intr. sham-bled, sham-bling, sham-bles. To walk in an awkward, lazy, or unsteady manner, shuffling the feet. — n. A shuffling gait. [Probably from obsolete shamble, awkward, ungainly, from Middle English schamil, butcher’s table. See SHAMBLES.]

sham-bles (shäm’bəlz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. a. A scene or condition of complete disorder or ruin: “The economy was in a shambles” (W. Bruce Lincoln). b. Great clutter or jumble; a total mess: made dinner and left the kitchen a shambles. 2. a. A place or scene of bloodshed or carnage. b. A scene or condition of great devastation. 3. A slaughterhouse. 4. Archaic. A meat market or butcher shop. [From Middle English shamel, shambil, place where meat is butchered and sold, from Old English sceamol, table, from Latin scabillum, scamillum, diminutive of scamnum, bench, stool.]

USAGE NOTE: The original sense of shambles to denote a meat market is by now so obscure in American usage that it must be counted the height of pedantry to insist, as a few critics continue to do, that the word should be used metaphorically only to refer to a scene of carnage.

WORD HISTORY: Leaving the place a shambles is not considered desirable, but it is better than it might once have been. The history of the word begins innocently enough with the Latin word scamnum, “a stool or bench serving as a seat, step, or support for the feet, for example.” The diminutive scamillum, “low stool,” was borrowed by speakers of Old English as sceamol, “stool, bench, table.” Old English sceamol became Middle English shamel, which developed the specific sense in the singular and plural of “a place where meat is butchered and sold.” The Middle English compound shamelhouse meant “slaughterhouse,” a sense that the plural shambles developed (first recorded in 1548) along with the figurative sense “a place or scene of bloodshed” (first recorded in 1593). Our current, much more generalized meanings, such as “a scene or condition of disorder,” are first recorded as of 1926. Although in the 1969 edition of the American Heritage Dictionary we recorded the fact that there was some objection to this sense, 85 percent of our Usage Panel found it acceptable in writing. It is indeed difficult to imagine most users of American English giving the word any other meaning.

sham·bol·ic (shām-bōl'ik) adj. Chiefly British. Disorderly, chaotic, or undisciplined in procedure, behavior, or manner: “Its oil equipment industries are located in rebellious provinces, its transportation system is in a shambolic state, and its currency is virtually worthless” (London Sunday Times). [Probably from alteration of SHAMBLES.] —sham·bol'i·cal·ly adv.

shame (shām) n. 1. a. A painful emotion caused by a strong sense of guilt, embarrassment, unworthiness, or disgrace. b. Capacity for such a feeling: Have you no shame? 2. One that brings dishonor, disgrace, or condemnation. 3. A condition of disgrace or dishonor; ignominy. See Synonyms at disgrace. 4. A great disappointment. — v. tr. shamed, sham-ing, shames. 1. To cause to feel shame; put to shame. 2. To bring dishonor or disgrace on. 3. To disgrace by surpassing. 4. To force by making ashamed: He was shamed into making an apology. —idiom. put to shame. 1. To fill with shame; disgrace. 2. To outdo thoroughly; surpass: Your productivity has put the rest of us to shame. [Middle English, from Old English sceamu.]

shame-faced (shām'fāst') adj. 1. Indicative of shame; ashamed: a shame-faced explanation. 2. Extremely modest or shy; bashful. [Alteration of obsolete shamefast, bashful, ashamed, from Middle English, from Old English sceamfæst: sceamu, shame + fæst, fixed; see FAST¹.] —shame'fac'ed·ly (-fā'sid-lē) adv.
—shame'fac'ed-ness n.

shame·ful (shām'fəl) adj. 1. a. Causing shame; disgraceful. b. Giving offense; indecent. 2. Archaic. Full of shame; ashamed. —shame'ful·ly adv.
—shame'ful-ness n.

shame-less (shām'lis) adj. 1. Feeling no shame; impervious to disgrace. 2. Marked by a lack of shame: a shameless lie. —shame'less·ly adv.
—shame'less-ness n.

SYNONYMS: shameless, brazen, barefaced, brash, impudent, unblushing. These adjectives apply to people and personal behavior that are in defiance of social or moral proprieties and are marked by a bold lack of shame. Shameless implies a lack of modesty, sense of decency, or regard for the rights or feelings of others: a shameless liar; a shameless accusation. Brazen suggests flagrant, insolent audacity:

a brazen impostor; brazen arrogance. Barefaced specifies undisguised brazenness: a barefaced hypocrite; a barefaced lie. Brash stresses impetuosity, lack of tact, and often crass indifference to consequences or to considerations of decency: A brash newcomer disputed the age-old rules for admission to the club. Impudent suggests offensive boldness or effrontery: an impudent student; an impudent misrepresentation. Unblushing implies an inappropriate lack of shame or embarrassment: an unblushing apologist for fascism; unblushing obsequiousness.

sham·mes (shä'məs) n. pl. sham·mo·sim (shä-mô'sim). Judaism. 1. A sexton in a synagogue. 2. The candle used to light the other eight candles of a Hanukkah menorah. [Yiddish shames, from Hebrew šammāš.]

sham·my (shäm'ē) n. Variant of chamois (n., sense 2).

sham·poo (shäm-pōō') n. pl. sham·pooos. 1. Any of various liquid or cream preparations of soap or detergent used to wash the hair and scalp. 2. Any of various cleaning agents for rugs, upholstery, or cars. 3. The act or process of washing or cleaning with shampoo. — v. tr. intr. sham·pooed, sham·poo·ing, sham·pooos. To wash or undergo washing with shampoo. [From Hindi cāpō, imperative of cāpnā, to press.] — sham·poo'er n.

sham·rock (shäm'rök') n. Any of several plants, such as a clover or wood sorrel, having compound leaves with three small leaflets, considered the national emblem of Ireland. [Irish Gaelic seamróg, diminutive of seamar, clover, from Middle Irish semar.]

sha·mus (shä'məs, shā'-) n. Slang. 1. A police officer. 2. A private detective. [Perhaps alteration of SHAMMES.]

Shan (shän, shän) n. pl. Shan or Shans. 1. A member of any of a group of tribes inhabiting the hills and plateaus of northeast Burma and adjacent parts of China, Laos, and Thailand. 2. The Tai language of the Shan. — adj. Of or relating to the Shan or their language or culture.

Shan·dong (shän'dông') also Shan·tung (shän'tüŋ', shän'töŋg') A province of eastern China bordered by the Gulf of Bo Hai and the Yellow Sea. The eastern part of the province forms the Shandong Peninsula. Settled since very early times, it became a province under the Ming dynasty. Jinan is the capital. Population, 76,950,000.

shan·dy (shän'dē) n. pl. shan·dies. 1. Shandygaff. 2. A drink made of beer and lemonade.

shan·dy·gaff (shän'dē-găf') n. A drink made of beer or ale mixed with ginger beer, ginger ale, or lemonade. [Origin unknown.]

Shang (shäng) A Chinese dynasty (traditionally dated 1766-1122 B.C.) whose capital was present-day Anyang. The dynasty's reign was marked by a highly developed social structure, advanced writing, and the use of bronze.

shang-hai (shǎng-hī', shǎng'hī') v. tr. shang-haied, shang-hai-ing, shang-hais. 1. To kidnap (a man) for compulsory service aboard a ship, especially after drugging him. 2. To induce or compel (someone) to do something, especially by fraud or force: We were shanghaied into buying worthless securities. [After Shanghai¹, from the former custom of kidnapping sailors to man ships going to China.] —shang-hai'er n.

Shang-hai¹ (shǎng-hī', shǎng'(-)) A city of eastern China at the mouth of the Yangtze River (Chang Jiang) southeast of Nanjing. The largest city in the country, Shanghai was opened to foreign trade by the Treaty of Nanking (1842) and quickly prospered. France, Great Britain, and the United States all held large concessions in the city until the early 20th century. Population, 6,980,000. The municipality of Shanghai is administered as a separate governmental unit. Population, 12,170,000.

Shang-hai² (shǎng-hī') n. See Cochin China². [After Shanghai¹.]

Shan-gri-la (shǎng'grī-lä') n. 1. An imaginary, remote paradise on earth; utopia. 2. A distant and secluded hideaway, usually of great beauty and peacefulness. [After Shangri-La, the imaginary land in the novel Lost Horizon by James Hilton.]

shank (shǎngk) n. 1. a. The part of the human leg between the knee and ankle. b. A corresponding part in other vertebrates. 2. a. The whole leg of a human being. b. A leg or leglike part. 3. A cut of meat from the leg of a steer, calf, sheep, or lamb. 4. The long, narrow part of a nail or pin. 5. A stem, stalk, or similar part. 6. Nautical. The stem of an anchor. 7. The long shaft of a fishhook. 8. The part of a tobacco pipe between the bowl and stem. 9. The shaft of a key. 10. The narrow section of the handle of a spoon. 11. a. The narrow part of the sole of a shoe under the instep. b. A piece of material, such as metal, that is used to reinforce or shape this part of a shoe. 12. A projection, such as a ring, on the back of a button by which it is sewn to cloth. 13. a. See tang¹ (n., sense 5). b. The part of a tool, such as a drill, that connects the functioning head to the handle. 14. a. The latter or remaining part, especially of a period of time. b. The early or primary part of a period of time: the shank of the evening. — v. tr. shanked, shank-ing, shanks. Sports. To hit (a golf ball) with the heel of the club, causing the ball to veer in the wrong direction. [Middle English shanke, from Old English sceanca.] —shanked adj.

Shan-kar (shǎn'kär, shǎng'-), Ravi. Born 1920. Indian-born musician and composer who popularized classical Indian music in the West.

shank-piece (shǎngk'pēs') n. An arch support inserted into the shank of a shoe.

Shan-non (shǎn'ən) A river, about 386 km (240 mi) long, rising in north-central Ireland and flowing generally south and west to the Atlantic Ocean through a long, deep estuary.

Shan-si (shän'sē') See Shanxi.

shan't (shänt, shänt) Shall not.

shan-tey (shän'tē) n. Music. Variant of chantey.

Shan-tou (shän'tou') also Swa-tow (swä'tou') A city of southeast China on the South China Sea east-northeast of Hong Kong. It is a trade and industrial center with shipbuilding facilities. Population, 400,000.

shan-tung (shän-tüŋ') n. 1. A heavy fabric with a rough, nubby surface, made of spun wild silk. 2. A rayon or cotton fabric that is imitative of this silk fabric. [After Shantung (Shandong), China.]

Shan-tung (shän'tüŋ', shän'töŋ') See Shandong.

shan-ty¹ (shän'tē) n. pl. shan-ties. A roughly built, often ramshackle cabin; a shack. [Probably from Canadian French chantier, hut in a lumber camp, from French, timberyard, from Old French, gantry, from Latin canthērius, rafter, nag, from Greek kanthēlios, pack ass.]

shan-ty² (shän'tē) n. Music. Variant of chantey.

shan-ty-town (shän'tē-toun') n. A town or a section of a town consisting chiefly of shacks.

Shan-xi (shän'shē') also Shan-si (-sē') A province of northeast China bordered on the north by a section of the Great Wall. In the Chinese-Japanese War (1937-1945) it was a center of guerrilla warfare. Taiyuan is the capital. Population, 26,270,000.

shape (shāp) n. 1. a. The characteristic surface configuration of a thing; an outline or a contour. See Synonyms at form. b. Something distinguished from its surroundings by its outline. 2. The contour of a person's body; the figure. 3. a. A definite, distinctive form: "The bomb gave the shape of life, outer and inner, an irreversible charge; a sense of fatefulness would now lie on all things" (Alfred Kazin). b. A desirable form: a fabric that holds its shape. 4. A form or condition in which something may exist or appear; embodiment: a god in the shape of a swan. 5. Assumed or false appearance; guise. 6. A ghostly form; a phantom. 7. Something, such as a mold or pattern, used to give or determine form. 8. The proper condition of something necessary for action, effectiveness, or use: an athlete in excellent shape. — v. shaped, shap-ing, shapes. — v. tr. 1. To give a particular form to; create. 2. To cause to conform to a particular form or pattern; adapt to fit. 3. a. To plan to bring about the realization or accomplishment of; devise. b. To embody in a definite form: shaped a folk legend into a full-scale opera. 4. a. To adapt to a particular use or purpose; adjust. b. To direct the course of: "He shaped history as well as being shaped by it" (Robert J. Samuelson). — v. intr. 1. To come to pass; happen. 2. To take on a definite shape or form. Often used with up or into. — phrasal verb. shape up.

1. Informal. To turn out; develop. 2. To improve so as to meet a standard: Either shape up or ship out. [Middle English, from Old English gesceap, a creation.]

—shap/a·ble, shape/a·ble adj. —shaped adj. —shap'er n.

SHAPE abbr. Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe.

shape-less (shāp'lis) adj. 1. Lacking a definite shape. 2. Lacking symmetrical or attractive form; not shapely. —shape/less-ly adv. —shape/less-ness n.

SYNONYMS: shapeless, amorphous, formless, unformed, unshaped. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “having no distinct shape”: a mass of shapeless slag; an amorphous cloud of insects; an aggregate of formless particles; an unformed personality; unshaped dough.

ANTONYM: shapely shape-ly (shāp'lē) adj. shape-li·er, shape-li·est. 1. Having a distinct shape. 2. Having a pleasing shape. —shape/li-ness n.

shap·en (shā'pən) v. Archaic. A past participle of shape. — adj. Having a definite, specified shape. Often used in combination: an ill-shapen vase.

shape-up or shape-up (shāp'üp') n. An assembled group of dock workers from which the day's work crew is chosen by a representative of the union.

Sha·pir·o (shə-pîr'ō), Karl Jay. Born 1913. American poet and critic known for his early poems concerning World War II and his later works in free verse.

Shap·ley (shāp'lē), Harlow. 1885-1972. American astronomer noted for his work in cosmology, spectroscopy, and photometry.

shard (shärd) also sherd (shûrd) n. 1. A piece of broken pottery, especially one found in an archaeological dig; a potsherd. 2. a. A fragment of a brittle substance, as of glass or metal. b. A small piece or part: “shards of intense emotional relationships that once existed” (Maggie Scarf). 3. Zoology. a. A tough sheath or covering, such as a shell, scale, or plate. b. The elytron or outer wing covering of a beetle. [Middle English sherd, from Old English sceard, cut, notch. See sker¹ in Appendix.]

share¹ (shâr) n. 1. A part or portion belonging to, distributed to, contributed by, or owed by a person or group. 2. An equitable portion: do one's share of the work. 3. Abbr. sh., shr. Any of the equal parts into which the capital stock of a corporation or company is divided. — v. shared, shar·ing, shares. — v. tr. 1. To divide and parcel out in shares; apportion. 2. To participate in, use, enjoy, or experience jointly with another or others. 3. To accord a share in (something) to another or others: shared her chocolate bar with a friend. — v. intr. To have a share or part: shared in the profits. — idiom. go shares. To be concerned or partake equally or jointly, as in a business venture. [Middle English, from Old English scearu, division. See sker¹ in Appendix.] —share/a·ble, shar/a·ble adj. —shar'er n.

SYNONYMS: share, participate, partake. These verbs refer to acquiring, having, using, being involved in, or experiencing something jointly with another or others. Share applies both to giving and to receiving partial possession, use, or enjoyment: “Share my harvest and my home” (Thomas Hood). “You English gentlefolk do not let us share your griefs; you keep them to yourselves” (John Galsworthy). It can also refer to possession, use, or enjoyment in common by a group: “Their wives and families shared their lot” (George Bancroft). The manufacturer and the dealer shared in the expense of advertising. Participate implies taking part in something, such as an activity, together with another or others: “if we had been allowed to participate in the vital processes of America’s national growth” (Richard Wright). Partake often refers to having or taking a portion of something, such as food; it can also mean to have part of the quality, nature, or character of something: “partake of many gifts of fortune and power that I was never born to” (Joseph Addison); “an inarticulate noise partaking of a groan and a grunt” (Joseph Conrad).

share² (shâr) n. A plowshare. [Middle English, from Old English scēar. See sker¹ in Appendix.]

share·crop (shâr/kröp') v. share·cropped, share·crop·ping, share·crops.
— v. intr. To work as a sharecropper. — v. tr. To work (land) or grow (crops) as a sharecropper.

share·crop·per (shâr/kröp'ər) n. A tenant farmer who gives a share of the crops raised to the landlord in lieu of rent.

share·hold·er (shâr'höl'dər) n. One that owns or holds a share or shares of stock; a stockholder. Also called shareowner —share'hold'ing n.

share·own·er (shâr'ō'nər) n. See shareholder.

Sha·ri (shä'rē) also Cha·ri (shä'rē, shä-rē') A river of north-central Africa rising in the Central African Republic and flowing about 2,253 km (1,400 mi) northwest through southern Chad to Lake Chad.

sha·ri'·a or sha·ri·a also sha·ri'·ah (shä-rē'ä) n. Islam. The code of law based on the Koran. [Arabic šar'īya, lawfulness, from šar'ī, lawful, from aš-šar', Revelation, Islamic law.]

sha·rif (shə-rēf') n. Variant of sherif.

shark (shärk) n. 1. Any of numerous chiefly marine carnivorous fishes of the class Chondrichthyes (subclass Elasmobranchii), which are sometimes large and voracious and have a streamlined, torpedolike body, five to seven gill openings on each side of the head, a large oil-filled liver, a cartilaginous skeleton, and tough skin covered with small toothlike scales. 2. a. A person regarded as ruthless, greedy, or dishonest. b. A vicious usurer. 3. Slang. A person unusually skilled in a particular activity: a card shark. — v. sharked, shark·ing, sharks. — v.

tr. Archaic. To obtain by deceitful means. — v. intr. To practice or live by fraud and trickery. [Origin unknown.]

shark-skin (shärk'skīn') n. 1. The skin of a shark. 2. Leather made from the skin of a shark. 3. A rayon and acetate fabric having a smooth, somewhat shiny surface.

shark sucker (shärk sük'ər) n. See remora.

Shar-on (shär'ən) A city of western Pennsylvania on the Ohio border north-northwest of Pittsburgh. It is an industrial center. Population, 17,493.

Sharon, Plain of. A fertile plain of western Israel extending along the Mediterranean coast south of Haifa.

sharp (shärp) adj. sharp-er, sharp-est. 1. Having a thin edge or a fine point suitable for or capable of cutting or piercing. 2. a. Having clear form and detail: a sharp photographic image. b. Terminating in an edge or a point: sharp, angular cliffs; a sharp nose. c. Clearly and distinctly set forth: sharp contrasts in behavior. 3. Abrupt or acute: a sharp drop; a sharp turn. 4. a. Intellectually penetrating; astute. b. Marked by keenness and accuracy of perception: sharp hearing. 5. Crafty or deceitful, as in business dealings: sharp selling practices. 6. Vigilant; alert: kept a sharp lookout for shoplifters. 7. a. Briskly or keenly cold and cutting: a sharp wind. b. Harsh or biting in tone or character: sharp criticism. 8. Fierce or impetuous; violent: a sharp temper; a sharp assault. 9. Intense; severe: a sharp pain. 10. a. Sudden and shrill: a sharp whistle. b. Sudden and brilliant or dazzling: a sharp flash of lightning. 11. Strongly affecting the senses of smell and taste: a sharp, pungent odor; a sharp cheese. 12. Composed of hard, angular particles: sharp sand. 13. Music. a. Raised in pitch by a semitone. b. Being above the proper pitch. c. Having the key signature in sharps. 14. Linguistics. Voiceless. Used of a consonant. 15. Informal. Attractive or stylish: a sharp jacket. — adv. 1. In a sharp manner: hit me sharp on the brow. 2. Punctually; exactly: at three o'clock sharp. 3. Music. Above the true or proper pitch. — n. 1. Music. a. A note or tone raised one semitone above its normal pitch. b. A sign (#) indicating this. 2. A slender sewing needle with a very fine point. 3. Informal. a. An expert. b. A shrewd cheater; a sharper. — v. sharped, sharp-ing, sharps. Music. — v. tr. To raise in pitch by a semitone. — v. intr. To play or sing above the proper pitch. [Middle English sharp, from Old English scearp, slope. See sker¹ in Appendix.] —sharp/ly adv. —sharp/ness n.

SYNONYMS: sharp, keen, acute. These adjectives all apply literally to fine edges, points, or tips: a sharp knife; a keen blade; a leaf with an acute end. Figuratively they indicate mental alertness and clarity of comprehension. Sharp suggests quickness and astuteness: “a young man of sharp and active intellect” (John Henry Newman). Keen implies clear-headedness and acuity: Women with keen intelligent minds are making inroads in formerly male-dominated occupations. Acute suggests penetrating perception or discernment: an acute observer of politics and politicians.

See also Synonyms at fashionable

Sharpe (shärp), William Forsyth. Born 1934. American economist. He shared a 1990 Nobel Prize for contributions to financial economics.

sharp-en (shär'pən) v. tr. intr. sharp-ened, sharp-en-ing, sharp-ens. To make or become sharp or sharper. —sharp'en-er n.

sharp-er (shär'pər) n. One that deals dishonestly with others, especially a cheating gambler.

sharp-eyed (shärp'id') adj. 1. Having keen eyesight. 2. Keenly perceptive or observant; alert.

sharp-ie (shär'pē) n. pl. sharp-ies. 1. Nautical. A long, narrow, flatbottomed fishing boat having a centerboard and one or two masts, each rigged with a triangular sail. 2. a. An alert, quick-witted person. b. A sharper. [From SHARP.]

sharp-nosed (shärp'nōzd') adj. 1. Having a thin, pointed nose or snout. 2. Having a keen sense of smell.

Sharps-burg (shärps'bûrg') A town of northern Maryland west of Frederick. It is the site of the Civil War Battle of Antietam (September 16-17, 1862), in which Union forces repulsed Gen. Robert E. Lee's troops. The engagement, also known as the Battle of Sharpsburg, was one of the bloodiest of the war, with heavy losses on both sides.

sharp-shinned hawk (shärp'shīnd' hōk) n. A small North American hawk (Accipiter striatus) that has short, rounded wings and a long tail, and preys on other birds.

sharp-shoot-er (shärp'shōō'tər) n. 1. One who is highly proficient at shooting. 2. a. The second military grade of proficiency in the use of rifles and other small arms. b. One who holds this grade of proficiency.

sharp-shoot-ing (shärp'shōō'tīng) n. 1. High proficiency in shooting firearms. 2. Accurate, often unexpected verbal or written attack.

sharp-sight-ed (shärp'sī'tīd) adj. 1. Having keen eyesight. 2. Keenly perceptive or alert. —sharp'-sight/ed-ly adv. —sharp'-sight/ed-ness n.

sharp-tail (shärp'tāl') n. The sharp-tailed grouse.

sharp-tailed grouse (shärp'täld' grous) n. A grouse (Pediacetes phasianellus) of the northwest United States and Canada, having a short pointed tail, a pale color, and dark V-shaped breast markings.

sharp-tailed sparrow (shärp'täld' spär'ō) n. A North American sparrow (Ammodramus caudacuta) with sharp-pointed tail feathers, often found about salt marshes.

sharp-tongued (shärp'tüngd') adj. Harsh, critical, or sarcastic in speech.

sharp-wit-ted (shärp'wīt'id) adj. Having or exhibiting keenly perceptive intellect. —sharp'-wit/ted-ness n.

shash·lik or shash·lick (shāsh·lik', shāsh'lik) n. A dish consisting of marinated cubes of lamb or beef grilled or roasted on a spit, often with slices of eggplant, onion, and tomato; shish kebab. [Russian shashlyk, of Turkish origin.]

Shas·ta (shäs'tə), Mount. A volcanic peak, 4,319.4 m (14,162 ft) high, of the Cascade Range in northern California. Discovered in 1827, it has hot sulfurous springs near the summit.

Shasta daisy (shäs'tə dā'zē) n. A hybrid daisy derived from Chrysanthemum maximum and C. lacustre, having large white daisylike flower heads. [After, Mount. Shasta.] shat (shät) v. Obscene. A past tense and a past participle of shit.

Shatt al Ar·ab or Shatt-al-Ar·ab (shät' äġ ä'r'äb, shät') A river channel, about 193 km (120 mi) long, of southeast Iraq formed by the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers and flowing southeast to the Persian Gulf. The Shatt al Arab forms part of the Iraq-Iran border, and navigation rights to the channel have long been disputed by the two countries.

shat·ter (shät'tər) v. shat·tered, shat·ter·ing, shat·ters. — v. tr. 1. To cause to break or burst suddenly into pieces, as with a violent blow. 2. a. To damage seriously; disable: His health was shattered by the disease. b. To cause the destruction or ruin of; destroy: The outcome of the conflict shattered our dreams of peace and prosperity. — v. intr. To break into pieces; smash or burst. See Synonyms at break. — n. 1. a. The act of shattering. b. The condition of being shattered. 2. Often shatters. A splintered or fragmented condition: a rare piece of porcelain now in shatters. [Middle English shateren, from Old English sceaterian*, to scatter.] — shat'ter·ing·ly adv.

shatter cone (shät'tər kōn) n. A conical fragment of rock that is formed from the high pressure in volcanism or meteorite impact and has striations radiating from the apex.

shat·ter·proof (shät'tər-prōof') adj. Resistant to shattering: shatterproof goggles.

shatterproof glass (shät'tər-prōof' gläs) n. See safety glass (n., sense 1).

Shav·a·no Peak (shäv'ə-nō pēk) A mountain, 4,339.8 m (14,229 ft) high, in the Sawatch Range of the Rocky Mountains in central Colorado.

shave (shāv) v. shaved, shaved or shav·en (shā'vən), shav·ing, shaves. — v. tr. 1. a. To remove the beard or other body hair from, with a razor or shaver. b. To cut (the beard, for example) at the surface of the skin with a razor or shaver. 2. To crop, trim, or mow closely: shave a meadow. 3. a. To remove thin slices from: shave a board. b. To cut or scrape into thin slices; shred: shave chocolate. 4. To come close to or graze in passing. See Synonyms at brush¹. 5. a. To purchase (a note) at a reduction greater than the legal or customary rate. b. To cut (a price) by a slight margin. — v. intr. To remove beard or hair with a razor or shaver. — n. 1. The act, process, or result of shaving. 2. A thin slice or scraping; a shaving. 3. Any of various tools used for shaving. [Middle English shaven, to scrape, from Old English sceafan.]

shav·er (shā'vər) n. 1. a. One who shaves. b. A device, especially an electric razor, that is used in shaving. 2. Informal. A small child, especially a boy.

Sha·vi·an (shā'vĕ-ən) adj. Of, relating to, or characteristic of George Bernard Shaw or his works: Shavian wit. — n. An admirer or a disciple of George Bernard Shaw. [From Shavius, pseudo-Latin form of the name Shaw.]

shav·ing (shā'vĭŋ) n. 1. A thin slice or sliver, as of wood or metal, that is shaved off. 2. The act of one that shaves.

Sha·vu·ot also Sha·bu·oth (shə-vōō'ōt', -əs, shā'vōōt-ōt') n. Judaism. A feast held on the sixth and seventh days of Sivan in commemoration of the revelation of the Law on Mount Sinai and the celebration of the wheat festival in ancient times. Also called Pentecost [Hebrew šābū'ōt, from šābūā', week.]

Shaw (shô), Anna Howard. 1847-1919. British-born American physician and reformer who was president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association (1904-1915).

Shaw (shô), George Bernard. 1856-1950. Irish-born British playwright. A founder of the Fabian Society, he wrote plays of iconoclastic social criticism, including Arms and the Man (1894), Pygmalion (1913), and Saint Joan (1923). He won the 1925 Nobel Prize for literature.

Shaw (shô), Henry Wheeler. Pen name Josh Billings. 1818-1885. American humorist noted for his essays on rural life, characterized by intentional misspellings and published annually in the Farmers' Allminax (1869-1880).

Sha·win·i·gan (shə-wĭn'ĭ-gən) A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the St. Maurice River northwest of Trois Rivières. Its hydroelectric station supplies power for the city's pulp and paper mills and other processing plants. Population, 23,011.

shawl (shôl) n. A square or oblong piece of cloth worn as a covering for the head, neck, and shoulders. — v. tr. shawled, shawl-ing, shawls. To cover with or as if with such a piece of cloth. [Ultimately from Persian shāl.]

shawm (shôm) n. Music. Any of various early double-reed wind instruments, forerunners of the modern oboe. [Middle English shalmie, from Old French chalemie, alteration of chalemel, from Late Latin calamellus, diminutive of Latin calamus, reed, from Greek kalamos.]

Shawn (shôn), Ted. 1891-1972. American dancer and choreographer noted for his partnership with Ruth Saint Denis. Together they founded the Denishawn Dance School (1915), for which he choreographed works based on Native American themes.

Shaw·nee¹ (shô-nĕ') n. pl. Shawnee or Shaw-nees. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting parts of the Cumberland and central Ohio valleys, with present-day populations in Oklahoma. The Shawnee figured prominently in the resistance to white settlement of the Ohio Valley in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. b. A member of this tribe. 2. The Algonquian language of the Shawnee. [Back-formation from obsolete Shawnese, from Shawnee shaawanooki, those of the south, Shawnee.]

Shaw·nee² (shô-nē', shô'nē) 1. A city of northeast Kansas, a suburb of Kansas City. Population, 29,653. 2. A city of central Oklahoma on the North Canadian River east-southeast of Oklahoma City. The city boomed after the discovery of oil in the 1920's and is now a trade and shipping center for an agricultural region. Population, 26,017.

Shawnee cake (shô-nē' kāk) n. New England. See johnnycake. See Regional note at johnnycake.

Shaw·wal (shə-wäl') n. The tenth month of the year in the Muslim calendar. See Table at calendar. [Arabic šawwāl.]

shay (shā) n. Informal. A chaise. [Back-formation from CHAISE (taken as pl.)]

Shays (shāz), Daniel. 1747?-1825. American Revolutionary soldier and insurrectionist who with a band of armed men raided a government arsenal in Springfield, Massachusetts, to protest the state legislature's indifference to the economic plight of farmers (1787). The raid, known as Shays's Rebellion, was quashed by militia.

she (shē) pron. 1. a. Used to refer to the woman or girl previously mentioned or implied. See Usage Note at I¹. b. Used to refer to a female animal. 2. Used in place of it to refer to certain inanimate things, such as ships and nations, traditionally perceived as female: "The sea is mother-death and she is a mighty female" (Anne Sexton). — n. A female animal or person: Is the cat a she? [Middle English she, probably alteration of Old English sēo, feminine demonstrative pron.. See so- in Appendix.]

s/he (shē'ər-hē', shē'hē') pron. Used as a gender-neutral alternative to he or she.

shea butter (shē bŭt'ər, shā) n. A whitish or yellowish fat obtained from the seeds of the shea tree, used as food and for making soap and candles.

sheaf (shēf) n. pl. sheaves (shēvz). 1. A bundle of cut stalks of grain or similar plants bound with straw or twine. 2. A collection of items held or bound together: a sheaf of printouts. 3. An archer's quiver. — v. tr. sheafed, sheaf-ing, sheafs. To gather and bind into a bundle. [Middle English sheef, from Old English scēaf.]

shear (shîr) v. sheared, sheared or shorn (shôrn, shôrn), shear-ing, shears. — v. tr. 1. To remove (fleece or hair) by cutting or clipping. 2. To remove the hair or fleece from. 3. To cut with or as if with shears: shearing a hedge. 4. To divest or deprive as if by cutting: The prisoners were shorn of their dignity. — v. intr. 1. To use a cutting tool such as shears. 2. To move or proceed by or as if by cutting: shear through the wheat. 3. Physics. To become deformed by forces tending to produce a shearing strain. — n. 1. a. A pair of scissors.

Often used in the plural. b. Any of various implements or machines that cut with a scissorlike action. Often used in the plural. 2. The act, process, or result of shearing. 3. Something cut off by shearing. 4. The act, process, or fact of shearing. Used to indicate a sheep's age: a two-shear ram. 5. Also sheers (shîrz). (used with a sing. or pl. verb). An apparatus used to lift heavy weights, consisting of two or more spars joined at the top and spread at the base, the tackle being suspended from the top. 6. Physics. a. An applied force or system of forces that tends to produce a shearing strain. Also called shearing stress, shear stress. b. A shearing strain. [Middle English scheren, from Old English sceran. N., from Middle English shere from Old English scēar. See sker⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—shear'er n.

sheared (shîrd) adj. Shaped or finished by shearing, especially cut or trimmed to a uniform length: a sheared fur coat.

Shear·er (shîr'ər), Moira. Born 1926. British ballerina best known for her role in the ballet film The Red Shoes (1948).

shear·ing strain (shîr'ing strān) n. Physics. A condition in or deformation of an elastic body caused by forces that tend to produce an opposite but parallel sliding motion of the body's planes.

shearing stress (shîr'ing strēs) n. Physics. See shear (n., sense 6a).

shear·ling (shîr'ling) n. 1. A year-old sheep that has been sheared once.

2. The skin of a shearling or of a newly sheared sheep or lamb, tanned and with the wool on.

shear stress (shîr strēs) n. Physics. See shear (n., sense 6a).

shear·wa·ter (shîr'wô'tər, -wôt'ər) n. Any of various oceanic birds of the genus Puffinus, having a short, hooked bill with tube-shaped nostrils and long, slender wings that appear to shear the water as the bird flies along the surface.

sheat·fish (shēt'fish') n. pl. sheatfish or sheat·fish·es. A very large freshwater catfish (Silurus glanis) of central and eastern Europe and western Asia.

[Alteration of obsolete sheathfish : SHEATH (translation of German Scheide, sheathfish) + FISH.]

sheath (shēth) n. pl. sheaths (shēthz, shēths). 1. a. A case for a blade, as of a sword. b. Any of various similar coverings. 2. Biology. An enveloping tubular structure, such as the base of a grass leaf that surrounds the stem or the tissue that encloses a muscle or nerve fiber. 3. A close-fitting dress. — v. tr. sheathed, sheath·ing, sheaths (shēthz, shēths). To encase or cover with or as if with a sheath; sheathe. [Middle English shethe, from Old English scēath. See skei- in Appendix.]

sheath·bill (shēth'bīl') n. Either of two pigeonlike shore birds (Chionia alba or C. minor) of Antarctic regions, having white plumage and a horny covering on the base of the bill.

sheathe (shēth) v. tr. sheathed, sheath·ing, sheathes. 1. To insert into or provide with a sheath. 2. To retract (a claw) into a sheath. 3. To enclose with a protective covering; encase. [Middle English shethen, from shethe, sheath. See SHEATH.] —sheath'er n.

sheath·ing (shē'thīng) n. 1. A layer of boards or of other wood or fiber materials applied to the outer studs, joists, and rafters of a building to strengthen the structure and serve as a base for an exterior weatherproof cladding. 2. Nautical. An exterior covering on the underwater part of a ship's hull that protects it against marine growths. 3. The act of providing sheathing.

sheath knife (shēth nīf) n. A knife that has a fixed blade and fits into a sheath.

shea tree (shē trē, shā) n. A tropical African tree (Butyrospermum parkii) having oily seeds that yield shea butter. [Mandingo (Bambara) si.]

sheave¹ (shēv) v. tr. sheaved, sheav·ing, sheaves. To collect and bind into a sheaf. [From SHEAF.]

sheave² (shēv, shīv) n. A wheel or disk with a grooved rim, especially one used as a pulley. [Middle English sheve. See skei- in Appendix.]

sheaves (shēvz) n. Plural of sheaf.

She·ba (shē'bə) An ancient country of southern Arabia comprising present-day Yemen. Its people colonized Ethiopia in the tenth century B.C. and were known for their wealth and commercial prosperity. In the Old Testament, the queen of Sheba made a celebrated visit to King Solomon.

she·bang (shə-bāng') n. Slang. A situation, an organization, a contrivance, or a set of facts or things: organized and ran the whole shebang. [Origin unknown.]

She·bat (shə-bät', -vät') n. Variant of Shevat.

she·been (shə-bēn') n. An unlicensed drinking establishment, especially in Ireland, Scotland, and South Africa. [Irish Gaelic séibín, measure of grain, grain tax, bad ale, diminutive of séibe, mug, bottle.]

She·bel·le or She·be·li (shə-bā'lē) A river, about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) long, of northeast Africa rising in central Ethiopia and flowing southeast into Somalia then southwest in a course parallel to the Indian Ocean coastline. It disappears in a swampland in southern Somalia.

She·boy·gan (shə-boi'gən) A city of eastern Wisconsin on Lake Michigan north of Milwaukee. Founded c. 1835 on the site of a fur-trading post established in 1795, it is a shipping and manufacturing center. Population, 49,676.

shed¹ (shēd) v. shed, shed·ding, sheds. — v. tr. 1. To cause to pour forth: shed tears. 2. To diffuse or radiate; send forth or impart: shed light. 3. To repel without allowing penetration: A duck's feathers shed water. 4. a. To lose by natural process: a snake shedding its skin. b. To rid oneself of (something not wanted or needed): I shed 25 pounds as a result of my new diet. — v. intr. 1. To lose a natural growth or covering by natural process. 2. To pour forth, fall off, or drop out: All the leaves have shed. — n. 1. Something that sheds, especially an elevation in the earth's surface from which water flows in two directions; a watershed.

2. Something that has been shed. — idiom. shed blood. To take life, especially with violence; kill. [Middle English sheden, to separate, shed, from Old English scēadan, to divide. See skei- in Appendix.]

shed² (shĕd) n. 1. A small structure, either freestanding or attached to a larger structure, serving for storage or shelter. 2. A large low structure often open on all sides. [Alteration of Middle English shadde, perhaps variant of shade, shade. See SHADE.]

she'd (shĕd) 1. She had. 2. She would.

shed·der (shĕd'ər) n. One that sheds, as a longhaired animal or a molting snake.

shed dormer (shĕd dōr'mər) n. Architecture. A dormer having a roof that slopes in the same direction as the roof in which the dormer is located.

she-dev-il (shĕ'dĕv'əl) n. A woman regarded as cruel or malicious.

shed·row (shĕd'rō') n. A row or double row of horse barns at a racetrack, having a separate stall for each horse and fronting a walkway.

Shee·ler (shĕ'lər), Charles. 1883-1965. American painter and photographer of architectural and industrial forms. His works include Upper Deck (1929).

sheen (shĕn) n. 1. Glistening brightness; luster: the sheen of old satin in candlelight. 2. Splendid attire. 3. A glossy surface given to textiles. [From Middle English shene, beautiful, from Old English sciēne. See keu- in Appendix.]

Sheen (shĕn), Fulton John. 1895-1979. American Roman Catholic prelate known for his radio and television broadcasts, his support of prayer in public schools, and his opposition to Communism and birth control.

shee·ny¹ (shĕ'nĕ) adj. Lustrous; glistening.

shee·ny² (shĕ'nĕ) n. pl. shee·nies. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Jew. [Origin unknown.]

sheep (shĕp) n. pl. sheep. 1. Any of various usually horned ruminant mammals of the genus Ovis in the family Bovidae, especially the domesticated species O. aries, raised in many breeds for wool, edible flesh, or skin. 2. Leather made from the skin of one of these animals. 3. a. A person regarded as timid, weak, or submissive. b. One who is easily swayed or led. [Middle English, from Old English scēap.]

sheep·ber·ry (shĕp'bĕr'ē) n. Either of two eastern North American shrubs or trees (Viburnum lentago or V. prunifolium) having clusters of white flowers and edible blue-black berries. Also called nannyberry sheep·cote (shĕp'kōt', -kōt') n. Chiefly British. A sheepfold.

sheep dip also sheep·dip (shĕp'dĭp') n. Any of various preparations of liquid disinfectant into which sheep are dipped to destroy parasites and to clean their wool, especially before shearing.

sheep-dog also sheep dog (shēp'dôg', -dög') n. A dog trained to guard and herd sheep. Also called shepherd dog sheep-fold (shēp'fôld') n. A pen for sheep.

sheep-herd-er (shēp'hûr'dər) n. A person who herds sheep, especially on an open range; a shepherd. —sheep/herd'ing n.

sheep-ish (shē'pîsh) adj. 1. Embarrassed, as by consciousness of a fault: a sheepish grin. 2. Meek or stupid. —sheep'ish-ly adv. —sheep'ish-ness n.

sheep ked (shēp kĕd) n. See sheep tick. [Origin unknown.]

sheep laurel (shēp lôr'əl) n. An eastern North American evergreen shrub (Kalmia angustifolia) having flowers with rose-pink or crimson bell-shaped corollas, and poisonous leaves. Also called lambkill sheep's eyes (shēps īz) pl.n. Shyly amorous glances.

sheep-shank (shēp'shāngk') n. A knot used to shorten a line.

sheeps-head (shēps'hĕd') n. 1. A food fish (Archosargus probatocephalus) of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts of the United States, having dark, vertical markings. 2. A freshwater drum (Aplodinotus grunniens) commonly found from the Great Lakes to Texas. 3. A redfish (Semicossyphus pulcher) of the Gulf of California, caught commercially or as a game fish.

sheep-shear-ing (shēp'shîr'ing) n. 1. The act of shearing sheep. 2. a. The time or season when sheep are sheared. b. Festivities held at this time.

—sheep/shear'er n.

sheep-skin (shēp'skîn') n. 1. The skin of a sheep either tanned with the fleece left on or in the form of leather or parchment. 2. Informal. A diploma. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: sheepskin rugs; sheepskin coats.

sheep tick (shēp tĭk) n. A wingless, louselike fly (Melophagus ovinus) that is parasitic to sheep, causing skin irritations that result in loss of wool. Also called sheep ked sheer¹ (shîr) v. intr. tr. sheered, sheer-ing, sheers. To swerve or cause to swerve from a course. — n. 1. A swerving or deviating course. 2. Nautical. a. The upward curve or amount of upward curve of the longitudinal lines of a ship's hull as viewed from the side. b. The position in which a ship is placed to enable it to keep clear of a single bow anchor. [Probably partly from Low German scheren, to move to and from: said of boats, and partly from Dutch scheren, to withdraw; see sker-¹ in Appendix.]

sheer² (shîr) adj. sheer-er, sheer-est. 1. Thin, fine, and transparent: sheer curtains; sheer chiffon. See Synonyms at airy. 2. a. Completely such, without qualification or exception: sheer stupidity; sheer happiness. b. Free from admixture or adulterants; unmixed: sheer alcohol. See Synonyms at pure. c. Considered or operating apart from anything else: got the job through sheer persistence. 3. Almost perpendicular; steep: sheer rock cliffs. See Synonyms at steep¹. — adv. 1. Almost perpendicularly. 2. Completely; altogether. [Obsolete shere, thin, clear, partly from Middle English shir, bright, clear (from Old English scīr), and partly from Middle English skir, bright, clean (from Old Norse skærr).] —sheer'ly* adv. —sheer'ness* n.

sheers (shîrz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Variant of shear (n., sense 5).

sheet¹ (shēt) n. Abbr. sh., sht. 1. A broad rectangular piece of fabric serving as a basic article of bedding. 2. a. A broad, thin, usually rectangular mass or piece of material, such as paper, metal, glass, or plywood. b. A flat or very shallow, usually rectangular pan used for baking. 3. A broad, flat, continuous surface or expanse: a sheet of ice. 4. A moving expanse: a sheet of flames. 5. A newspaper, especially a tabloid. 6. Geology. A broad, relatively thin deposit or layer of igneous or sedimentary rock. 7. A large block of stamps printed by a single impression of a plate before the individual stamps have been separated. — v.

sheet-ed, sheet-ing, sheets. — v. tr. 1. To cover with, wrap in, or provide with a sheet. 2. To make into sheets. — v. intr. To flow or fall in a sheet: rain sheeting against the windshield. — adj. Being in the form of a sheet: sheet aluminum. [Middle English shete, cloth, from Old English scēte. See skeud- in Appendix.]

sheet² (shēt) Nautical. n. 1. A rope or chain attached to one or both of the lower corners of a sail, serving to move or extend it. 2. sheets. The spaces at either end of an open boat in front of and behind the seats. — v. intr.

sheet-ed, sheet-ing, sheets. To extend in a certain direction. Used of the sheets of a sail. —idiom. three sheets to the wind (or three sheets in the wind). Informal. Intoxicated; drunk. [Middle English shete, from Old English scēat(line), sheet (line), from scēata, corner of a sail. See skeud- in Appendix.]

sheet anchor (shēt äng'kär) n. 1. Nautical. A large extra anchor intended for use in an emergency. 2. A source of aid in time of emergency or danger.

sheet bend (shēt bënd) n. Nautical. A knot in which one rope or piece of yarn is made fast to the bight of another.

sheet glass (shēt gläs) n. Glass drawn from a molten bath into a thin sheet of film, commonly used to make windows.

sheet-ing (shē'tīng) n. 1. Material, such as metal or cloth, used to make sheets or a sheet. 2. The act or process of providing with or forming into sheets.

sheet lightning (shēt līt'nīng) n. Lightning that appears as a broad, sheetlike illumination of parts of a thundercloud, caused by the reflection of a lightning flash.

sheet metal (shēt mēt'l) n. Metal that has been rolled into a sheet having a thickness between foil and plate. —sheet'-met'al (shēt'mēt'l) adj.

sheet music (shēt myōō'zīk) n. Music. Compositions printed on unbound sheets of paper.

Sheet-rock (shēt'rōk') A trademark used for plasterboard. This trademark often occurs in print in lowercase: "The instrument has three scales of sensitivity calibrated for detection of moisture in most building materials such as... sheetrock" (Mechanical Engineering). "[It] is excellent for installing lights, installing ceiling tile, taping sheetrock... and other jobs" (Engineering News-Record). It also occurs as a verb: "We're going to sheetrock the ceiling" (New York Times).

Sheffield (shĕf'ĕld') A borough of north-central England east of Manchester. The highly industrialized city has long specialized in the production of cutlery and steel. Population, 547,600.

she-getz (shā'gĭts) n. pl. shkotz-im (shkôt'sĭm). Offensive. A non-Jewish boy or young man. [Yiddish sheygets, from Hebrew šeqeš, blemish.]

sheik also sheikh (shĕk, shāk) n. 1. Islam. a. A religious official. b. A leader of an Arab family or village. c. Used as a form of address for such an official or leader. 2. sheik. Slang. A romantically alluring man. [Arabic šayḥ, old man, chief, from šāḥa, to be old.]

shei-ka also shei-kha (shā'kā, -KHä) n. Islam. A sheik's wife. [Arabic šayḥa, old woman, matron, feminine of šayḥ, old man, sheik. See SHEIK.]

sheik-dom also sheikh-dom (shĕk'dəm, shāk'-) n. The area ruled by a sheik.

sheikh (shĕk, shāk) n. Islam. Variant of sheik. shei-kha (shā'kā, -KHä) n. Islam. Variant of sheika.

shei-la (shĕ'lə) n. Australian. A girl or young woman. [From the personal name Sheila.] shek-el (shĕk'əl) n. 1. A basic unit of currency in Israel. See Table at currency.

2. a. Any of several ancient units of weight, especially a Hebrew unit equal to about a half ounce. b. A gold or silver coin equal in weight to one of these units, especially the chief silver coin of the ancient Hebrews. 3. Slang. a. A coin.

b. shekels. Money. [Hebrew šeqel, from šāqal, to weigh, from Canaanite tql.]

She-ki-nah (shĭ-kĕ'nə, -KHĕ'-, -kĭ'-) n. Judaism. A visible manifestation of the divine presence as described in Jewish theology. [Hebrew šĕkĭnâ, from šākan, to dwell.]

Shel-by (shĕl'bĕ) A city of southwest North Carolina west of Charlotte. It is a textile and processing center in an agricultural region. Population, 15,310.

shel-drake (shĕl'drāk') n. 1. Any of various large Old World ducks of the genus Tadorna, especially T. tadorna, having predominantly black and white plumage. Also called shelduck 2. See merganser. [Middle English sheldrake: sheld, variegated; see skel-¹ in Appendix + drake, drake.]

shel-duck (shĕl'dŭk') n. See sheldrake (n., sense 1). [SHEL(DRAKE) + DUCK¹.]

shelf (shĕlf) n. pl. shelves (shĕlvz). 1. a. A flat, usually rectangular structure composed of a rigid material, such as wood, glass, or metal, fixed at right angles to a wall or other vertical surface and used to hold or store objects. b. The contents or capacity of such a structure. c. Something, such as a projecting ledge of rock or a balcony, that resembles such a structure. 2. A reef, sandbar, or shoal. 3. Bedrock. —idioms. off the shelf. Available from merchandise in stock; not custom-made. on the shelf. 2. In a state of disuse. 3. a. Unemployed. b. Out of circulation. c. Retired. [Middle English, probably from Middle Low German schelf. See skel-¹ in Appendix.] —shelf'ful' (-fōol') n.

shelf fungus (shĕlf fŭng'gəs) n. See bracket fungus.

shelf ice (shĕlf īs) n. An extension of glacial ice into coastal waters that is in contact with the bottom near the shore but not toward the outer edge of the shelf.

shelf life (shĕlf līf) n. The length of time a product may be stored, as on a supermarket shelf, without deteriorating.

Shel·i·kof Strait (shĕl'ī-kōf' strāt) A strait of southern Alaska between the Alaska Peninsula and Kodiak and Afognak islands. Cook Inlet is at its northern end.

shell (shĕl) n. 1. a. The usually hard outer covering that encases certain organisms, such as mollusks, insects, and turtles; the carapace. b. A similar outer covering on an egg, a fruit, or a nut. c. The material that constitutes such a covering. 2. Something resembling or having the form of a shell, especially: a. An external, usually hard, protective or enclosing case or cover. b. A framework or an exterior, as of a building. c. A thin layer of pastry. d. The external part of the ear. 3. Nautical. a. The hull of a ship. b. A long, narrow racing boat propelled by rowers. 4. A small glass for beer. 5. a. A projectile or piece of ammunition, especially the hollow tube containing explosives used to propel such a projectile. b. A metal or cardboard case containing the charge, primer, and shot fired from a shotgun. 6. An attitude or a manner adopted to mask one's true feelings. 7. Physics. a. Any of the set of hypothetical spherical surfaces centered on the nucleus of an atom that contain the orbitals of electrons having the same principal quantum number. b. An analogous pattern of protons and neutrons within a nucleus. 8. a. A usually sleeveless and collarless, typically knit blouse. b. The outermost layer of a lined garment such as a coat or jacket: a parka with a waterproof shell. 9. Computer Science. A program that works with the operating system as a command processor, used to enter commands and initiate their execution. — v. shelled, shell-ing, shells. — v. tr. 1. a. To remove the shell of; shuck: shell oysters. b. To remove from a shell: shell peas. 2. To separate the kernels of (corn) from the cob. 3. To fire shells at; bombard. 4. a. To defeat decisively. b. Baseball. To hit the pitches of (a pitcher) hard and with regularity: shelled the pitcher for eight runs in the first inning. — v. intr. 1. To shed or become free of a shell. 2. To look for or collect shells, as on a seashore: spent the day shelling on Cape Cod. —phrasal verb. shell out. Informal. To hand over; pay: had to shell out $500 in car repairs. [Middle English, from Old English scell. See skel-¹ in Appendix.] —shell adj. —shell'er n.

she'll (shĕl) 1. She will. 2. She shall.

shel·lac also shel·lack (shə-lăk') n. pl. shel·lacs also shel·lacks. 1. A purified lac in the form of thin yellow or orange flakes, often bleached white and widely used in varnishes, paints, inks, sealants, and formerly in phonograph records.

2. A thin varnish made by dissolving this substance in denatured alcohol, used to finish wood. 3. An old phonograph record containing this substance, typically played at 78 rpm. — v. tr. shel·lacked, shel·lack·ing, shel·lacs.

1. To coat or finish with shellac. 2. Slang. a. To strike repeatedly and severely; batter. b. To defeat decisively. [SHEL(L) + LAC (translation of French laque en écailles, lac in thin plates).]

shell·back (shĕl'băk') n. Nautical. 1. A sailor who has crossed the equator.

2. A veteran sailor.

shell·bark (shĕl'bărk') n. 1. See shagbark. 2. An eastern North American hickory (Carya laciniosa) having shaggy bark, pinnately compound leaves, and large, compressed, globose, reddish or yellow nuts.

shell bean (shĕl bĕn) n. Any of various beans cultivated for their edible seeds rather than their pods.

Shel·ley (shĕl'ĕ), Mary Godwin Wollstonecraft. 1797-1851. British writer best known for the Gothic novel Frankenstein, or the Modern Prometheus (1818). She married Percy Bysshe Shelley in 1816.

Shel·ley (shĕl'ĕ), Percy Bysshe. 1792-1822. British romantic poet whose works include "Ode to the West Wind" (1819), "To a Skylark" (1820), the lyric drama Prometheus Unbound (1820), and "Adonais" (1821), an elegy to John Keats.

shell·fire (shĕl'fir') n. The shooting or exploding of artillery shells.

shell·fish (shĕl'fish') n. pl. shellfish or shell·fish·es. An aquatic animal, such as a mollusk or crustacean, that has a shell or shell-like exoskeleton.

—shell·fish·ing n.

shell·fish·er·y (shĕl'fish'ə-rĕ) n. pl. shell·fish·er·ies. 1. The industry or occupation of catching, processing, or selling shellfish. 2. A fishing ground for shellfish.

shell·flow·er (shĕl'flou'ər) n. 1. A tall eastern Mediterranean plant (Molluccella laevis) having flowers with a tiny corolla and a large, green, bell-shaped calyx that enlarges considerably in the fruit. 2. A tall tropical Asian plant (Alpinia zerumbet) having fragrant, showy, funnel-shaped, variously colored flowers.

shell game (shĕl gām) n. 1. Games. A game, usually involving gambling, in which a person hides a small object underneath one of three nutshells, thimbles, or cups, then shuffles them about on a flat surface while spectators try to guess the final location of the object. Also called thimberig. 2. A fraud or deception perpetrated by shifting conspicuous things to hide something else.

shell jacket (shĕl jăk'ĭt) n. See mess jacket.

shell parakeet (shĕl păr'ə-kĕt') n. See budgerigar.

shell pink (shĕl pĭngk) n. Color. A pinkish white to strong yellowish pink, including grayish and light yellowish pinks. —shell'-pink' (shĕl'pĭngk') adj.

shell-proof (shĕl'prōōf') adj. Designed or constructed to withstand shellfire.

shell shock (shĕl shōk) n. 1. Any of various acute, often hysterical neuroses originating in trauma suffered under fire in modern warfare. 2. Combat fatigue.

shell-shocked or shell-shocked (shĕl'shōkt') adj. 1. Suffering from shell shock. 2. Stunned, distressed, or exhausted from a prolonged trauma or an unexpected difficulty.

Shel-ta (shĕl'tə) n. A secret jargon used by Gypsies in Great Britain and Ireland, based on systematic inversion or alteration of the initial consonants of Gaelic words. [From Shelta Sheldrū, perhaps alteration of Irish Gaelic béarla, language, English, from Old Irish bétrae, language, from bél, mouth.]

shel-ter (shĕl'tər) n. 1. a. Something that provides cover or protection, as from the weather. b. A refuge; a haven. c. An establishment that provides temporary housing for homeless people. 2. The state of being covered or protected. — v. shel-tered, shel-ter-ing, shel-ters. — v. tr. 1. To provide cover or protection for. 2. To invest (income) to protect it from taxation. — v. intr. To take cover; find refuge. [Perhaps from Middle English sheltron, tight battle formation, from Old English scildtruma : scield, shield; see SHIELD + truma, troop; see deru- in Appendix.] —shel'ter-er n. —shel'ter-less adj.

SYNONYMS: shelter, cover, retreat, refuge, asylum, sanctuary. These nouns refer to places affording protection, as from danger, or to the state of being protected. Shelter usually implies a covered or enclosed area that protects temporarily, as from injury or attack: A cold frame provides shelter for the seedlings. “And the dead tree gives no shelter” (T.S. Eliot). Cover suggests something, as bushes, that conceals: The army mounted the invasion under cover of darkness. Retreat applies chiefly to a secluded place to which one retires for meditation, peace, or privacy: Their cabin in the woods served as a retreat from the pressures of business. Refuge suggests a place of escape from pursuit or from difficulties that beset one: “vagrants and criminals, who make this wild country a refuge from justice” (Sir Walter Scott). “The great advantage of a hotel is that it’s a refuge from home life” (George Bernard Shaw). Asylum adds to refuge the idea of legal protection against a pursuer or of immunity from arrest: “O! receive the fugitive and prepare in time an asylum for mankind” (Thomas Paine). Sanctuary denotes a sacred or inviolable place of refuge: Some of the political refugees found sanctuary in a monastery.

shel-ter-belt (shĕl'tər-bĕlt') n. A barrier of trees and shrubs that protects against the wind and reduces erosion.

shel·tered workshop (shĕl'tərd wŭrk'shŏp') n. A workplace that provides a supportive environment where physically or mentally challenged persons can acquire job skills and vocational experience.

shelter tent (shĕl'tər tĕnt) n. A small tent usually pitched by securing together two or more pieces of waterproof material. Also called pup tent shel·tie also shel·ty (shĕl'tē) n. pl. shel·ties. Informal. 1. A Shetland pony.

2. A Shetland sheepdog. [Probably from Old Norse Hjalti, Shetlander, from Hjaltland, Shetland Islands.]

Shel·ton (shĕl'tən) A city of southwest Connecticut on the Housatonic River north-northeast of Bridgeport. Settled in 1697, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 35,418.

shelve (shĕlv) v. shelved, shelv·ing, shelves. — v. tr. 1. To place or arrange on a shelf. 2. To put away as though on a shelf; put aside: “As usual, Dixon shelved this question” (Kingsley Amis). See Synonyms at defer¹. 3. To cause to retire from service; dismiss. 4. To furnish or outfit with shelves. — v. intr. To slope gradually; incline. [Back-formation from shelves, pl. of SHELF.] —shelv'er n.

shelves (shĕlvz) n. Plural of shelf.

shelv·ing (shĕl'vīng) n. 1. Shelves considered as a group. 2. Material for shelves. 3. An incline; a slope.

Shem (shĕm) In the Old Testament, the eldest son of Noah and the brother of Japheth and Ham.

Shen·an·do·ah Valley (shĕn'ən-dŏ'ə vāl'ē) A valley of northern Virginia between the Allegheny Mountains and the Blue Ridge. Drained by the Shenandoah River, about 241 km (150 mi) long, the valley was first explored in the early 1700's and was an important gateway to the frontier.

she·nan·i·gan (shə-năn'ī-gən) n. Informal. 1. a. A deceitful trick; an underhand act. b. Often shenanigans. Remarks intended to deceive; deceit. 2. a. A playful or mischievous act; a prank. b. Often shenanigans. Mischief; prankishness. [Origin unknown.]

Shen·si (shĕn'sē') See Shaanxi.

Shen·stone (shĕn'stən, -stŏn'), William. 1714-1763. British poet known especially for The Schoolmistress (1742).

Shen·yang (shŭn'yāng') Formerly Muk·den (mŏok'dən, -dĕn', mŏok'-). A city of northeast China east-northeast of Beijing. The capital of Liaoning province, it was the site of the so-called Mukden, or Manchurian, Incident (1931), in which the Japanese army used an explosion on the railroad north of the city as a pretext to occupy Manchuria. Population, 3,250,000.

She·ol (shĕ'ōl', shĕ-ōl') n. Bible. The underworld of the Old Testament, where the dead dwelt in darkness. [Hebrew šĕ'ōl.]

Shep-ard (shĕp'ərd), Alan Bartlett, Jr. Born 1923. American astronaut who on a 15-minute flight on May 5, 1961, became the first American in space. He also commanded the Apollo 14 mission to the moon (1971).

shep-herd (shĕp'ərd) n. 1. One who herds, guards, and tends sheep. 2. One who cares for and guides a group of people, as a minister or teacher. — v. tr. shep-herd-ed, shep-herd-ing, shep-herds. To herd, guard, tend, or guide as or in the manner of a shepherd. See Synonyms at guide. [Middle English shep-herde, from Old English scēaphierde: scēap, sheep + hierde, herdsman.]

shepherd dog (shĕp'ərd dōg) n. See sheepdog.

shep-herd-ess (shĕp'ər-dīs) n. A girl or woman who herds, guards, and tends sheep.

shep-herd's pie (shĕp'ərdz pī) n. A meat pie baked in a crust of mashed potatoes.

shepherd's purse (shĕp'ərdz pûrs) n. A common Eurasian weed (Capsella bursa-pastoris) having small white flowers and flat, heart-shaped or triangular fruit. [From its pouchlike pods.]

Sher-a-ton (shĕr'ə-tŋ) adj. Of or relating to a style of English furniture that originated about 1800, characterized by simple designs, straight lines, thin legs, and classical ornamentation. [After Thomas SHERATON.]

Sheraton, Thomas. 1751-1806. British furniture designer known for his graceful neoclassical designs and his published manuals, including The Cabinet-Maker and Upholsterer's Drawing Book (1791-1794).

sher-bet (shûr'bĭt) n. 1. Also sher-bert (-bûrt'). A frozen dessert made primarily of fruit juice, sugar, and water, and also containing milk, egg white, or gelatin. 2. Chiefly British. A beverage made of sweetened diluted fruit juice. 3. Also sherbert. Australian. An alcoholic beverage, especially beer. [Ottoman Turkish, sweet fruit drink, from Persian sharbat, from Arabic šarbah, drink, from šariba, to drink.]

WORD HISTORY: The word sherbet has been in the English language for several centuries (first recorded in 1603) but not as a name for what one normally thinks of as sherbet. The word came into English from Ottoman Turkish sherbet or Persian sharbat, both going back to Arabic šarbah, “drink.” The Turkish and Persian words referred to a beverage of sweetened, diluted fruit juice that was popular in the Middle East and imitated in Europe. Eventually in Europe sherbet came to refer to a carbonated drink. Because the original Middle Eastern drink contained fruit and was often cooled with snow, sherbet was applied to the frozen dessert (first recorded in 1891). It is thus distinguished slightly from sorbet, which can also mean “a fruit-flavored ice served between courses of a meal.” Sorbet (first recorded in English in 1585) goes back through French (sorbet) and then Italian (sorbetto) to the same Turkish sherbet that gave us sherbet.

Sher·brooke (shûr'brōok') A city of southern Quebec, Canada, on the St. François River east of Montreal. It is a trade and manufacturing center. Population, 74,075.

sherd (shûrd) n. Variant of shard.

Sher·i·dan (shĕr'i-dn) A city of north-central Wyoming near the Montana border north-northwest of Casper. It is a trade center and transportation hub. Population, 15,146.

Sher·i·dan (shĕr'i-dn), Philip Henry. 1831-1888. American Union general who was active in the Chattanooga (1863) and Wilderness (1864) campaigns and routed Confederate forces at the Battle of Five Forks (1865).

Sher·i·dan (shĕr'i-dn), Richard Brinsley. 1751-1816. British playwright and politician known for his satirical comedies of manners, including The Rivals (1775), which features the catachrestic character Mrs. Malaprop.

she·rif also sha·rif (shə-rĕf') n. 1. A descendant of the prophet Mohammed through his daughter Fatima. 2. The chief magistrate of Mecca in Ottoman times. 3. A Moroccan prince or ruler. [Arabic šarīf, noble, from šarafa, to be highborn.]

sher·iff (shĕr'if) n. 1. The chief law enforcement officer for the courts in a U.S. county. 2. An officer of a county or an administrative region in England, Northern Ireland, and Scotland, charged mainly with judicial duties. [Middle English, the representative of royal authority in a shire, from Old English scīrgerēfa : scīr, shire + gerēfa, reeve.]

Sher·man (shûr'mən) A city of northeast Texas near the Oklahoma border north of Dallas. Settled as a way station on a stagecoach route, it is now a highway and rail junction with varied industries. Population, 31,601.

Sher·man (shûr'mən), James Schoolcraft. 1855-1912. Vice President of the United States (1909-1912) under William Howard Taft. He died in office.

Sher·man (shûr'mən), John. 1823-1900. American politician. A U.S. senator from Ohio (1861-1877 and 1881-1897), he wrote and sponsored the Sherman Antitrust Act (1890).

Sherman, Mount. A peak, 4,281 m (14,036 ft) high, in the Park Range of the Rocky Mountains in central Colorado.

Sher·man (shûr'mən), Roger. 1721-1793. American Revolutionary patriot and politician who was a signer of the Declaration of Independence (1776), the Articles of Confederation (1781), and the U.S. Constitution (1787).

Sher·man (shûr'mən), William Tecumseh. 1820-1891. American Union general. Appointed commander of all Union troops in the West (1864), he captured Atlanta (1864) and led a destructive March to the Sea, which effectively cut the Confederacy in two.

she-root (shə-rōōt') n. Variant of cheroot.

Sher-pa (shûr'pə) n. pl. Sherpa or Sher-pas. A member of a people of Tibetan descent living on the southern side of the Himalaya Mountains in Nepal and Sikkim, noted for their ability at mountaineering.

Sher-riff (shēr'rif), Robert Cedric. 1896-1975. British writer known primarily for his plays, including Journey's End (1929).

Sher-ring-ton (shēr'ring-tən), Sir Charles Scott. 1857-1952. British physiologist. He shared a 1932 Nobel Prize for major advances in the understanding of the nervous and muscular systems.

sher-ry (shēr'ē) n. pl. sher-ries. 1. A fortified Spanish wine ranging from very dry to sweet and from amber to brown. 2. A similar wine made elsewhere.

[Alteration of sherris (taken as pl.), after Xeres (Jerez), Spain.]

's Her-to-gen-bosch (sēr'tō-gən-bôs', -KHƏN-) A city of south-central Netherlands north-northwest of Eindhoven. Chartered c. 1185, it was a fortress city until 1874. Population, 89,059.

Sher-wood (shûr'wōōd'), Robert Emmet. 1896-1955. American playwright whose works include Idiot's Delight (1936), Abe Lincoln in Illinois (1938), and There Shall Be No Night (1940), each of which won a Pulitzer Prize.

Sherwood Forest (shûr'wōōd' fôr'ist) A former royal forest of central England famed as the site of the legendary exploits of Robin Hood and his followers.

Sherwood Park (shûr'wōōd' pärk) A city of central Alberta, Canada, a suburb of Edmonton. Population, 29,285.

Shet-land (shět'lænd) n. 1. A fine yarn made from the wool of sheep raised in the Shetland Islands and used for knitting and weaving. 2. A garment, especially a sweater, made of this yarn. [After the Shetland (Islands).]

Shetland Islands (shět'lænd ī'lændz) An archipelago of northern Scotland in the Atlantic Ocean northeast of the Orkney Islands. The islands were occupied by Norse invaders and colonists after the late ninth century and were annexed by Scotland in 1472.

Shetland pony (shět'lænd pō'nē) n. A small, compactly built pony of a breed originating in the Shetland Islands, having a long thick mane and tail.

Shetland sheepdog (shět'lænd shēp'dôg') n. A herding dog of a breed developed in the Shetland Islands, having a rough coat and resembling a small collie.

She-vat (shə-vät', shvät) also She-bat (shə-bät', -vät') n. The fifth month of the year in the Jewish calendar. See Table at calendar. [Hebrew šēbāt.]

Shev-chen-ko (shěf-chěng'kō), Taras Grigoryevich. 1814-1861. Ukrainian poet who is considered the father of modern Ukrainian literature.

shew (shō) v. Archaic. Variant of show.

shew-bread (shō'brəd') n. Archaic. Variant of showbread.

Shey·enne (shī-ĕn', -ăn') A river, about 523 km (325 mi) long, rising in central North Dakota and flowing east, south, and northeast to the Red River of the North above Fargo.

shf or SHF abbr. Superhigh frequency.

Shi·ah or Shi·a also Shi·'ah or Shi·'a (shē'ə) Islam. n. 1. (used with a pl. verb). The Shiites. 2. (used with a sing. verb). A Shiite. — adj. Shiite. [Arabic šī'ah, following, sect, from Syriac sī'ā, company, band.]

shi·at·su (shē-ăt'sō) n. A form of therapeutic massage in which pressure is applied with the thumbs and palms to those areas of the body used in acupuncture. Also called acupressure [Short for Japanese shiatsuryōhō : shi, finger + atsu-, pressure + ryōhō, treatment.]

shib·ah (shĭv'ə) n. Judaism. Variant of shiva.

shib·bo·leth (shĭb'ə-lĭth, -lēth') n. 1. A word or pronunciation that distinguishes people of one group or class from those of another. 2. a. A word or phrase identified with a particular group or cause; a catchword. b. A commonplace saying or idea. 3. A custom or practice that betrays one as an outsider. [Ultimately from Hebrew šibbōlet, torrent of water, from the use of this word to distinguish one tribe from another, who pronounced it sibbōleth (Judges 12:4-6).]

Shi·de·ha·ra (shē'də-hăr'ə, shē'dě-hă'ră), Baron Kijuro. 1872-1951. Japanese diplomat closely identified with Japan's peaceful foreign policy of the 1920's. He was the first premier of Japan after World War II (1945-1946).

shied¹ (shĭd) v. Past tense and past participle of shy¹.

shied² (shĭd) v. Past tense and past participle of shy².

shield (shēld) n. 1. A broad piece of armor made of rigid material and strapped to the arm or carried in the hand for protection against hurled or thrust weapons. 2. A person or thing that provides protection. 3. A protective device or structure, as: a. A steel sheet attached to an artillery piece to protect gunners from small-arms fire and shrapnel. b. Physics. A wall or housing of concrete or lead built around a nuclear reactor to prevent the escape of radiation.

c. Electronics. A structure or arrangement of metal plates or mesh designed to protect a piece of electronic equipment from electrostatic or magnetic interference. d. A pad worn, as at the armpits, to protect a garment from perspiration.

4. Zoology. A protective plate or similar hard outer covering; a scute or scutellum.

5. Something that resembles a shield, as: a. An escutcheon. b. A decorative emblem that often serves to identify an organization or a government. c. A police officer's badge. 6. Geology. A large lowland area, the geologic nucleus of a continent, whose bedrock consists of igneous and metamorphic rocks that are usually Precambrian in age: the Canadian Shield. — v. shield·ed, shield·ing, shields. — v. tr. 1. To protect or defend with or as if with a shield; guard. See Synonyms at defend. 2. To cover up; conceal. — v. intr. To act or serve as a shield or safeguard. [Middle English sheld, from Old English scield. See skel-¹ in Appendix.] —shield'er n.

shield law (shēld lô) n. A law that protects journalists from being compelled to reveal confidential sources of information.

Shield of David (shēld ūv dā'vīd) n. See Magen David.

shiel-ing (shē'ling, -līn) n. Chiefly British. 1. A shepherd's hut. 2. A mountain pasture used in the summer. [From Scots shiel, hut, from Middle English shele, possibly from Old English scēla*, probably of Scandinavian origin. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

shier (shī'ēr) adj. A comparative of shy¹.

shies¹ (shīz) v. Third person singular present tense of shy¹. — n. Plural of shy¹.

shies² (shīz) v. Third person singular present tense of shy². — n. Plural of shy².

shiest (shī'īst) adj. A superlative of shy¹.

shift (shīft) v. shift-ed, shift-ing, shifts. — v. tr. 1. To exchange (one thing) for another of the same class: shifted assignments among the students. 2. To move or transfer from one place or position to another. 3. To alter (position or place). 4. To change (gears), as in an automobile. 5. Linguistics. To alter phonetically as part of a systematic historical change. — v. intr. 1. To change position, direction, place, or form. 2. a. To provide for one's own needs; get along: "See me safe up: for my coming down, I can shift for myself" (Thomas More). b. To get along by tricky or evasive means. 3. To change gears, as when driving an automobile. 4. Linguistics. To be altered as part of a systematic historical change. Used of speech sounds. 5. To select uppercase characters by depressing a key on a typewriter or computer keyboard. — n. 1. A change from one person or configuration to another; a substitution. 2. a. A group of workers that relieve another on a regular schedule. b. The working period of such a group: worked the night shift. 3. a. A means to an end; an expedient. b. A stratagem; a trick. 4. A change in direction: a shift in the wind. 5. A change in attitude, judgment, or emphasis. 6. A change in position, as: a. Music. A change of the position of the hand in playing the violin or a similar instrument. b. Football. A rearrangement of players from one formation to another just prior to the snap of the ball. c. Baseball. A rearrangement of one or more fielders for improved defense against a particular hitter. d. Geology. See fault (n., sense 3). e. Computer Science. Movement of characters in a register to the left or right. 7. Physics. A change in wavelength, causing a movement of a spectral band or line. 8. Linguistics. a. A systematic change of the phonetic or phonemic structure of a language. b. Functional shift. 9. a. A loosely fitting dress that hangs straight from the shoulder; a chemise. b. A woman's undergarment; a slip or chemise. [Middle English shiften, from Old English sciftan, to arrange, divide.] —shift'er n.

shift key (shĭft kē) n. A key on a typewriter or computer keyboard that, when depressed, changes letters from lowercase to uppercase.

shift-less (shĭft'lis) adj. 1. a. Lacking ambition or purpose; lazy: a shiftless student. b. Characterized by a lack of ambition or energy: studied in a shiftless way.

2. Lacking resourcefulness or efficiency; incompetent. [SHIFT, expedient + -LESS.] —shift/less-ly adv. —shift/less-ness n.

shift-y (shĭf'tē) adj. shift-i-er, shift-i-est. 1. Having, displaying, or suggestive of deceitful character; evasive or untrustworthy. 2. Distinguished by frequent changes in direction: shifty winds. 3. Able to accomplish what is needed; resourceful. —shift/i-ly adv. —shift/i-ness n.

shi-gel-la (shĭ-gĕl'ə) n. pl. shi-gel-lae (-gĕl'ē) also shi-gel-las. Any of various nonmotile, rod-shaped bacteria of the genus Shigella, which includes some species that cause dysentery. [New Latin Shigella, genus name, after Kiyoshi Shiga (1870-1957), Japanese bacteriologist.]

shig-el-lo-sis (shĭg'ə-lō'sĭs) n. pl. shig-el-lo-ses (-sēz). Dysentery caused by any of various species of shigellae, occurring most frequently in areas where poor sanitation and malnutrition are prevalent and commonly affecting children and infants.

Shi-ge-mit-su (shĕ'gə-mĭt'sōō, shĕ'gĕ-mĕ'tsōō), Mamoru. 1887-1957. Japanese diplomat who signed the surrender to the Allies, which formally ended World War II (September 2, 1945).

Shih-kia-chwang (shœ'kyä'chwäng') See Shijiazhuang.

Shih Tzu (shĕ' dzōō') n. A small dog of a breed originally developed in Tibet, having a long thick coat, short legs, a broad head with a short square muzzle, and a tail that curls over the back. [Chinese (Mandarin) shī zi (gōu), lion (dog), Shih Tzu.]

Shi-ism also Shi-'ism (shĕ'iz'əm) n. Islam. The religion or doctrines of the Shiites.

shi-i-ta-ke (shĕ-tä'kē, shĕ'ē-tä'kĕ) n. pl. shiitake. An edible eastern Asian mushroom (Lentinus edodes) having an aromatic, fleshy, golden or dark brown to blackish cap and an inedible, tough stipe. Also called Chinese black mushroom, golden oak mushroom, Oriental black mushroom. [Japanese : shi, oak + take, mushroom.]

Shi-ite also Shi-'ite (shĕ'īt') Islam. n. A member of the branch of Islam that regards Ali and his descendants as the legitimate successors to Mohammed and rejects the first three caliphs. — adj. Of or relating to the Shiites or their branch of Islam. —Shi-it'ic (-it'ik) adj.

Shi-jia-zhuang (shœ'jyä'jwäng') also Shih-kia-chwang (-kyä'chwäng') A city of northeast China southwest of Beijing. An industrial center, it is the capital of Hebei province. Population, 1,127,800.

shi·ka·ri (shĭ-kär'ē, -kär'ē) n. pl. shi·ka·ris. 1. A big-game hunter. 2. A guide for big-game hunting. [Hindi shikārī, from Persian, from shikār, hunting, from Middle Persian shkār.]

Shi·ko·ku (shē-kô'kōō, shē'kô-kōō') An island of southern Japan between southwest Honshu and eastern Kyushu. It was held by various feudal families from early times until c. 1600.

shik·sa also shik·se (shĭk'sə) n. Offensive. Used as a disparaging term for a non-Jewish girl or woman. [Yiddish shikse.]

shill (shĭl) Slang. n. One who poses as a satisfied customer or an enthusiastic gambler to dupe bystanders into participating in a swindle. — v. shilled, shill·ing, shills. — v. intr. To act as a shill. — v. tr. 1. To act as a shill for (a deceitful enterprise). 2. To lure (a person) into a swindle. [Perhaps short for shillaber.]

shil·le·lagh also shil·la·lah (shə-lā'lē, -lə) n. A cudgel of oak, blackthorn, or other hardwood. [After Shillelagh, a village of east-central Ireland.]

shil·ling (shĭl'ing) n. 1. Abbr. s. A coin used in the United Kingdom, worth one twentieth of a pound, 5 new pence, or 12 old pence prior to 1971. 2. A basic unit of currency in Kenya, Somalia, Tanzania, and Uganda. See Table at currency. 3. Printing. A virgule. [Middle English, from Old English scilling.]

Shil·luk (shĭ-lōōk') n. pl. Shilluk or Shil·luks. 1. A member of a people inhabiting the western bank of the Nile River in southern Sudan. 2. The Nilotic language of the Shilluk.

shil·ly·shal·ly (shĭl'ē-shāl'ē) v. intr. shil·ly·shal·lied (-lēd), shil·ly·shal·ly·ing, shil·ly·shal·lies (-lēz). 1. To procrastinate. 2. To be unable to come to a decision; vacillate. 3. To spend time on insignificant things; dawdle. — adj. Hesitant; vacillating. — n. pl. shil·ly·shal·lies. Procrastination; hesitation. — adv. In a hesitant manner; irresolutely. [Reduplication of the question shall I?.] — shil'ly·shal'li·er n.

Shi·loh (shĭ'lō) 1. An ancient village of central Palestine northwest of the Dead Sea. In the Old Testament, it was a meeting place and sanctuary for the Israelites and the site of a tabernacle where the Ark of the Covenant was kept until its capture by the Philistines. 2. A locality in southwest Tennessee east of Memphis. The Civil War Battle of Shiloh (April 6-7, 1862) ended in the withdrawal of Confederate troops but claimed more than 10,000 casualties on both the Union and Confederate sides.

shim (shĭm) n. A thin, often tapered piece of material, such as wood, stone, or metal, used to fill gaps, make something level, or adjust something to fit properly. — v. tr. shimmed, shim·ming, shims. To fill in, level, or adjust by using shims or a shim. [Origin unknown.]

Shi-mi-zu (shē-mē'zōō, shē'mē-zōō') A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, on Suruga Bay southwest of Yokohama. It is a port and processing center. Population, 242,166.

shim-mer (shīm'ər) v. intr. shim-mered, shim-mer-ing, shim-mers. 1. To shine with a subdued, flickering light. See Synonyms at flash. 2. To appear as a wavering or flickering image, as in a reflection on water or through heat waves in air. — n. A flickering or tremulous light; a glimmer. [Middle English shimeren, from Old English scimerian.] —shim/mer-ing-ly adv. —shim/mer-y adj.

shim-my (shīm'ē) n. pl. shim-mies. 1. Abnormal vibration or wobbling, as of the wheels of an automobile. 2. A dance popular in the 1920's, characterized by rapid shaking of the body. 3. A chemise. — v. intr. shim-mied, shim-my-ing, shim-mies. 1. To vibrate or wobble abnormally. 2. To shake the body in or as if in dancing the shimmy. [Perhaps from alteration of CHEMISE.]

Shi-mo-no-se-ki (shīm'ə-nō-sēk'ē, shē'mô-nô-) A city of extreme southwest Honshu, Japan, on Korea Strait. The treaty ending the Sino-Japanese War was signed here on April 17, 1895. Population, 269,167.

shin¹ (shĭn) n. 1. a. The front part of the leg below the knee and above the ankle. b. The shinbone. 2. The lower foreleg in beef cattle. Used of cuts of meat. — v. shinned, shin-ning, shins. — v. tr. 1. To climb (a rope or pole, for example) by gripping and pulling alternately with the hands and legs. 2. To kick or hit in the shins. — v. intr. 1. To climb something by shinning it. 2. To move quickly on foot. [Middle English shine, from Old English scinu. See skei- in Appendix.]

shin² (shēn, shĭn) n. The 22nd letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew šĭn, variant of šen, tooth (from the shape of the letter).]

Shi-nar (shī'nər, -när') An ancient country on the lower courses of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers.

shin-bone (shĭn'bōn') n. See tibia (n., sense 1).

shin-dig (shĭn'dĭg') n. 1. A festive party, often with dancing. Also called shindy. 2. See shindy (n., sense 1). [Probably alteration of SHINDY.]

shin-dy (shĭn'dē) n. pl. shin-dies. 1. A commotion; an uproar. Also called shindig. 2. See shindig (n., sense 1). [Perhaps alteration of SHINNY.¹] shine (shīn) v. shone (shōn) or shined, shin-ing, shines. — v. intr. 1. To emit light. 2. To reflect light; glint or glisten. 3. To distinguish oneself in an activity or a field; excel. 4. To be immediately apparent: Delight shone in her eyes. — v. tr. 1. To aim or cast the beam or glow of (a light). 2. past tense and past participle shined. To make glossy or bright by polishing. — n. 1. Brightness from a source of light; radiance. 2. Brightness from reflected light; luster. 3. A shoeshine. 4. Excellence in quality or appearance; splendor. 5. Fair weather: rain or shine. 6. shines. Informal. Pranks or tricks. 7. Slang. Whiskey; moonshine. 8. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Black person.

—idiom. take a shine to. Informal. To like spontaneously. [Middle English shinen, from Old English scīnan.]

shin-er (shī'nər) n. 1. One that shines, as a star, jewel, or coin. 2. Slang. A black eye: got a real shiner from stumbling into the door. 3. a. Any of numerous small, often silvery North American freshwater fishes of the family Cyprinidae, especially one of the genus Notropis. b. Any of various other small silvery fishes.

shin-gle¹ (shĭng'gəl) n. 1. A thin oblong piece of material, such as wood or slate, that is laid in overlapping rows to cover the roof or sides of a house or other building. 2. Informal. A small signboard, as one indicating a professional office: She has to take the bar exam before she can hang out her shingle. 3. A woman's close-cropped haircut. — v. tr. shin-gled, shin-gling, shin-gles. 1. To cover (a roof or building) with shingles. 2. To cut (hair) short and close to the head. [Middle English, from Old English scindel, scingal, from Late Latin scindula, alteration of Latin scandula (influenced by scindere, to split).] —shin'gler n.

shin-gle² (shĭng'gəl) n. 1. Beach gravel consisting of large smooth pebbles unmixed with finer material. 2. A stretch of shore or beach covered with such gravel. [Middle English.] —shin'gly adj.

shin-gles (shĭng'gəlz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). An acute viral infection characterized by inflammation of the sensory ganglia of certain spinal or cranial nerves and the eruption of vesicles along the affected nerve path. It usually strikes only one side of the body and is often accompanied by severe neuralgia. Also called herpes zoster [Middle English, alteration (influenced by Old French cengles, pl. of cengle, shingles, from Medieval Latin cingulus, and by Old French senгле, single, chingle, belt from Latin cingulum), of Medieval Latin cingulus (translation of Greek zōstēr, girdle, shingles), variant of Latin cingulum, girdle (from the fact that the inflammation often extends around the middle of the body), from cingere, to gird. See kenk- in Appendix.]

shin-leaf (shĭn'lēf') n. Any of various Eurasian and North American woodland perennial herbs of the genera Moneses and Pyrola, especially P. elliptica, having a basal cluster of elliptic to oblong leaves and white to pink flowers. [Probably from the use of its leaves in plasters for sore legs.]

shin-ny¹ also shin-ney (shĭn'ē) n. pl. shin-nies also shin-neys. Sports.

1. Field hockey that is played informally with curved sticks and a ball, can, or similar object. 2. The curved stick used in this game. [Probably from the phrase shin ye, a cry used in the game.]

shin-ny² (shĭn'ē) v. intr. shin-nied (-nēd), shin-ny-ing, shin-nies (-nēz). To climb by shinning. [Alteration of SHIN¹.]

shin-plas-ter (shĭn'plās'tər) n. 1. A piece of paper money issued privately and devalued by inadequate security or by inflation. 2. A piece of paper money of small denomination issued by the government, especially one issued by the U.S.

government from 1862 to 1878. [From its resemblance to paper used in plasters for sore legs.]

shin splints also shin-splints (shĭn'splĭnts') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Any of various painful conditions of the shins caused by inflammation of the surrounding muscles, frequently occurring among joggers and runners.

Shin-to (shĭn'tō) n. A religion native to Japan, characterized by veneration of nature spirits and ancestors and by a lack of formal dogma. [Japanese shintō : shin, gods (from Chinese shén) + dō, the Way of Taoism (from Chinese dào).]

—Shin'to adj. —Shin'to-ism n. —Shin'to-ist adj., n. —Shin'to-is'tic adj.

shin-y (shĭ'nē) adj. shin-i-er, shin-i-est. 1. Radiating light; bright. 2. Bright from reflected light; glistening. 3. Having a sheen from being rubbed or worn smooth. —shin'i-ness n.

ship (shĭp) n. 1. Nautical. a. A vessel of considerable size for deep-water navigation. b. A sailing vessel having three or more square-rigged masts. 2. An aircraft or a spacecraft. 3. The crew of one of these vessels. 4. One's fortune: When my ship comes in, I'll move to a better apartment. — v. shipped, ship-ping, ships.

— v. tr. 1. Nautical. To place or receive on board a ship. 2. To cause to be transported by or as if by ship; send. See Synonyms at send¹. 3. To hire (a person) for work on a ship. 4. Nautical. To take in (water) over the side of a ship. — v. intr. Nautical. 1. To go aboard a ship; embark. 2. To travel by ship. 3. To hire oneself out or enlist for service on a ship. —phrasal verb. ship out.

1. Nautical. To accept a position on board a ship and serve as a crew member: shipped out on a tanker. 2. To leave, as for a distant place: troops shipping out to the Far East. 3. To send, as to a distant place. 4. Informal. To quit, resign from, or otherwise vacate a position: Shape up or ship out. —idiom. tight ship. A well-managed and efficient business, household, or organization: We run a tight ship. [Middle English, from Old English scip.]

-ship suff. 1. a. Quality, state, or condition: scholarship. b. Something that shows or possesses a quality, state, or condition: courtship. 2. Rank, status, or office: professorship. 3. Art, skill, or craft: penmanship. 4. A collective body: readership. [Middle English, from Old English -scipe.]

ship biscuit (shĭp bĭs'kĭt) n. See hardtack.

ship-board (shĭp'bōrd', -bōrd') n. 1. Nautical. The condition of being aboard a ship: on shipboard. 2. Archaic. The side of a ship. — adj. Nautical. Existing or occurring on board a ship: a shipboard fire.

ship-borne (shĭp'bōrn', -bōrn') adj. Nautical. Transported by ship.

ship-build-ing (shĭp'bĭl'dĭng) n. The art or business of designing and constructing ships. —ship/build'er n.

ship canal (shĭp kə-nāl') n. A canal wide and deep enough to serve ships. Also called shipway ship fever (shĭp fē'vər) n. See typhus.

ship fitter (shĭp fit'ər) n. 1. One who positions the structural pieces of a ship for riveting and welding. 2. A sailor in the U.S. Navy who does sheet-metal work and plumbing on board a ship.

ship-lap (shĭp'lăp') n. Wooden siding rabbeted so that the edge of one board overlaps the one next to it in a flush joint. —ship/lapped' adj.

ship-load (shĭp'lōd') n. The amount a ship can carry.

ship-man (shĭp'mən) n. Nautical. 1. A sailor. 2. A shipmaster.

ship-mas-ter (shĭp'măs'tər) n. Nautical. The officer in command of a merchant ship.

ship-mate (shĭp'māt') n. Nautical. A sailor serving on the same ship as another; a fellow sailor.

ship-ment (shĭp'mənt) n. Abbr. shpt. 1. The act or an instance of shipping goods. 2. A quantity of goods or cargo that are shipped together.

ship money (shĭp mŭn'ē) n. A tax once levied on English maritime towns and shires to provide ships for war.

ship of the line (shĭp ŭv thē lĭn) n. pl. ships of the line. Nautical. A warship large enough to take a position in the line of battle.

ship-per (shĭp'ər) n. One that consigns or receives goods for transportation.

ship-ping (shĭp'ĭng) n. 1. The act or business of transporting goods. 2. The body of ships belonging to one port, industry, or country, often referred to in aggregate tonnage. 3. Passage or transport on a ship.

shipping clerk (shĭp'ĭng klŭrk) n. One who is employed to prepare, pack, receive, or record shipments of goods.

shipping fever (shĭp'ĭng fē'vər) n. Any of various diseases contracted by cattle or other animals during shipping or similarly stressful events, especially one caused by bacteria of the genus Pasteurella, characterized by fever and coughing.

ship-rigged (shĭp'rigd') adj. Nautical. Rigged with three or more masts and square sails.

ship-shape (shĭp'shāp') adj. Marked by meticulous order and neatness; tidy. See Synonyms at neat¹. [Short for obsolete shipshapen, arranged as a ship should be : SHIP + shapen, past participle of SHAPE.] —ship/shape' adv.

ship-side (shĭp'sīd') n. Nautical. The area of a dock adjacent to a ship.

ship's papers (shĭps pā'pərz) pl.n. Nautical. The documents, such as the ship's license, logbook, or bills of lading, that a ship must carry under international law and that must be shown on inspection.

ship-way (shĭp'wā') n. 1. The structure supporting a ship during construction or in dry dock. 2. See ship canal.

ship-worm (shĭp'wŭrm') n. Any of various wormlike marine mollusks of the genera Teredo and Bankia, having rudimentary bivalve shells with which they bore into wood, especially the submerged timbers of ships and wharves, often doing extensive damage.

ship-wreck (shĭp'vēk') n. 1. Nautical. a. The destruction of a ship, as by storm or collision. b. The remains of a wrecked ship. 2. A complete failure or ruin.

— v. tr. ship-wrecked, ship-wreck-ing, ship-wrecks. 1. Nautical. a. To cause (a ship) to be destroyed, as by storm or collision. b. To cause (a passenger or sailor on a ship) to suffer shipwreck. 2. To ruin utterly.

ship-wright (shĭp'vrīt') n. One that builds or repairs ships.

ship-yard (shĭp'yārd') n. A yard where ships are built or repaired.

Shi-ras (shī'rās), George. 1832-1924. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1892-1903).

Shi-raz (shē-rāz') A city of southwest-central Iran south-southeast of Tehran. It has long been an important commercial center noted for its carpets and metal-work. The ruins of ancient Persepolis are nearby. Population, 800,000.

shire (shīr) n. 1. A former administrative division of Great Britain, equivalent to a county. 2. Often Shire. A Shire horse. [Middle English, from Old English scīr, official charge, administrative district.]

Shire horse (shīr hōrs) n. A large, powerful draft horse of a breed originating in central England, having long hair that grows from the knee and hock.

Shir-er (shīr'ēr), William Lawrence. 1904-1993. American journalist and historian known for his vivid radio broadcasts from Berlin at the outset of World War II and for the popular history The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich (1960).

shire town (shīr toun) n. Chiefly British. See county town.

shirk (shŭrk) v. shirked, shirk-ing, shirks. — v. tr. To avoid or neglect (a duty or responsibility). — v. intr. To avoid work or duty. [Perhaps from German Schurke, scoundrel; akin to Old High German fiurscurgo, demon : fiur, fire + scurigen, to stir up.] — shirk'er n.

Shir-ley (shŭr'lē), James. 1596-1666. English playwright known for his comedies of manners, such as The Lady of Pleasure (1635).

Shir-ley (shŭr'lē), William. 1694-1771. British colonial administrator who was governor of Massachusetts (1741-1749 and 1753-1756) and commanded British forces in the French and Indian War.

Shirley poppy (shŭr'lē pŏp'ē) n. A variety of the corn poppy having scarlet, pink, or salmon flowers. [After Shirley, district of Croydon in southeast England.]

shirr (shŭr) v. tr. shirred, shirr-ing, shirrs. 1. To gather (cloth) into decorative rows by parallel stitching. 2. To cook (unshelled eggs) by baking until set. [Origin unknown.]

shirt (shŭrt) n. 1. A garment for the upper part of the body, typically having a collar, sleeves, and a front opening. 2. An undershirt. 3. A nightshirt. — idioms. keep (one's) shirt on. Slang. To remain calm or patient: The plane doesn't land for another hour, so keep your shirt on. lose (one's) shirt. Slang. To lose everything one has or owns. the shirt off (one's) back. Slang. The maximum one is able to give or lose: The only thing those swindlers didn't take was the shirt off my back. [Middle English shirte, from Old English scyrte, skirt. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

shirt-dress also shirt-dress (shûrt'drēs') n. A dress tailored like a shirt with a collar and buttons down the front. Also called shirtwaist shirt-ing (shûr'tĩng) n. Fabric suitable for making shirts.

shirt-sleeve (shûrt'slĕv') n. 1. The sleeve of a shirt. 2. shirtsleeves. The state of wearing no coat, jacket, or other outer garment over one's shirt: dined in shirtsleeves; balmy weather that had them down to their shirtsleeves. — adj. 1. Also shirt-sleeved (-slĕvd'). Dressed without a coat: shirtsleeve spectators; a shirtsleeved orchestra. 2. Also shirtsleeves. Calling for the removal of a coat or jacket; not requiring a coat or jacket for comfort: shirtsleeve weather; a shirtsleeves picnic. 3. Also shirtsleeves. Marked by informality or straightforwardness: shirtsleeve politics; a shirtsleeves conference.

shirt-tail (shûrt'tāl') n. 1. The part of a shirt that extends below the waist, especially in the back. 2. A brief addition at the end of a newspaper article. — adj. 1. Very young: shirttail kids. 2. Of little value; inadequate or small: a shirttail cabin in the woods.

shirt-waist (shûrt'wäst') n. 1. A woman's blouse or bodice styled like a tailored shirt. 2. See shirtdress.

shirt-y (shûr'tē) adj. shirt-i-er, shirt-i-est. Chiefly British. Ill-tempered; angry: "He saw how shirty she was about it" (P.G. Wodehouse). [Probably from to get someone's shirt out, to annoy,, or to keep one's shirt on, to keep from being annoyed.]

shish ke-bab also shish ke-bob or shish ka-bob (shĭsh' kə-bōb') n. A dish consisting of pieces of seasoned meat and sometimes vegetables roasted on skewers and served with condiments. [Armenian shish kabab, from Turkish şiş kebap : şiş, skewer + kebab, roast meat.]

shit (shĭt) Obscene. v. shit also shat (shăt), shit-ting, shits. — v. intr. To defecate. — v. tr. 1. To defecate in. 2. To tease or try to deceive. — n.

1. Excrement. 2. The act or an instance of defecating. 3. shits. Diarrhea. Used with the. 4. a. Something considered disgusting, of poor quality, foolish, or otherwise totally unacceptable. b. A person regarded as mean or contemptible. 5. A narcotic or an intoxicant, such as marijuana or heroin. 6. Things; items. 7. Foolishness; nonsense. 8. Trouble or difficulty. — interj. Used to express surprise, anger, or extreme displeasure. — phrasal verb. shit on. To treat with malice or extreme disrespect. — idioms. get (one's) shit together. To get organized; put one's affairs or possessions in order. give a shit. To care the least bit. no shit. 3. Used to express disbelief. 4. Used to express scornful acknowledgment of the obvious. up shit creek (without a paddle). In dire circumstances with no hope of help. when the shit hits the fan. When the situation goes awry; when trouble starts. [Middle English shiten, from Old English scītan*. See skei- in Appendix.]

shit-faced (shīt'fāst') adj. Obscene. Intoxicated; drunk.

shit-head (shīt'hēd') n. Obscene. 1. A person regarded as inept or foolish. 2. A person regarded as objectionable or contemptible.

shit-less (shīt'lis) adj. Obscene. Extremely frightened. [From the reflex of involuntary defecation that can result from extreme terror.]

shit-list also shit list (shīt'list') n. Obscene. A list of persons who are strongly disapproved of.

shit-tah (shīt'ə) n. A tree, probably a species of acacia, that was a source of a wood mentioned frequently in the Bible. [Hebrew šittā.]

shit-tim-wood (shīt'im-wōod') n. 1. The wood of the shittah, used to make the ark of the Hebrew tabernacle. 2. Either of two deciduous eastern North American trees or shrubs (Bumelia lanuginosa or B. lycioides) having very hard wood and black, fleshy fruit. [Hebrew šittīm, pl. of šittā, shittah + WOOD¹.]

shit-ty (shīt'ē) adj. shit-ti-er, shit-ti-est. Obscene. 1. Of very poor quality; highly inferior. 2. Contemptible; despicable. 3. Unfortunate; unpleasant. 4. Being in a state of discomfort or unhappiness; miserable. 5. Incompetent; inept. 6. Trivial; insignificant.

shiv (shīv) n. Slang. A knife, razor, or other sharp or pointed implement, especially one used as a weapon. [Probably Romany chiv, blade.]

shiv-a also shiv-ah or shib-ah (shīv'ə) n. Judaism. A seven-day period of formal mourning observed after the funeral of a close relative. [Yiddish shive, from Hebrew šib'ā, seven.]

Shi-va (shē'və) also Si-va (shē'və, sē'-) n. Hinduism. One of the principal Hindu deities, worshiped as the destroyer and restorer of worlds and in numerous other complementary forms. Shiva is often conceived as a member of the triad also including Brahma and Vishnu. [Sanskrit śivaḥ, from śiva-, auspicious, dear. See kei¹ in Appendix.] —Shi/va-ism, Si/va-ism n. —Shi/va-ist, Si/va-ist n.

shiv-ah (shīv'ə) n. Judaism. Variant of shiva.

shiv-a-ree (shīv'ə-rē', shīv'ə-rē') n. Midwestern U.S. & Western U.S. A noisy mock serenade for newlyweds. Also called charivariRegional., bellingRegional., horningRegional., serenade. [Alteration of CHARIVARI.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Shivaree is the most common American regional form of charivari, a French word meaning “a noisy mock serenade for newlyweds” and probably deriving in turn from a Late Latin word meaning “headache.” The term, most likely borrowed from French traders and settlers along the Mississippi River, was well established in the United States by 1805; an account dating from that year describes a shivaree in New Orleans: “The house is mobbed by thousands of the people of the town, vociferating and shouting with loud acclaim... many [are] in disguises and masks; and all have some kind of discordant and noisy music, such as old kettles, and shovels, and tongs.... All civil authority and rule seems laid aside" (John F. Watson). The word shivaree is especially common along and west of the Mississippi River, giving it an unusual north-south dialect boundary (most dialect boundaries run east-west in the United States). Alva L. Davis and Raven I. McDavid, Jr., call shivaree "one of the most widely distributed folk terms borrowed by American English from any European language." Some regional equivalents are belling, used in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Ohio; horning, from upstate New York, Rhode Island, and western New England; and serenade, a term used chiefly in the South Atlantic states.

Shive·ly (shīv'lē) A city of northern Kentucky, a residential suburb of Louisville. Population, 15,535.

shiv·er¹ (shīv'ər) v. shiv·ered, shiv·er·ing, shiv·ers. — v. intr. 1. To shake with or as if with cold; tremble. See Synonyms at shake. 2. To quiver or vibrate, as by the force of the wind. — v. tr. Nautical. To cause (a sail) to flutter by sailing too close to the wind. — n. 1. An instance of shivering or trembling. 2. shivers. An attack of shivering. Used with the. [Middle English chiveren, shiv·eren.]

shiv·er² (shīv'ər) v. shiv·ered, shiv·er·ing, shiv·ers. — v. intr. To break into fragments or splinters; shatter. — v. tr. To cause to break suddenly into fragments or splinters. See Synonyms at break. — n. A fragment or splinter. [Middle English shiveren, from shivere, splinter. See skei- in Appendix.]

shiv·er·y¹ (shīv'ə-rē) adj. 1. Trembling, as from cold or fear. 2. Causing shivers; chilling.

shiv·er·y² (shīv'ə-rē) adj. Easily broken; brittle.

Shi·zu·o·ka (shē'zōō-ō'kā) A city of east-central Honshu, Japan, on Suruga Bay southwest of Yokohama. It is a port and processing center. Population, 468,362.

Shko·dër (shkō'dər) A city of northwest Albania on Lake Scutari. It was under Turkish rule from 1479 to 1913. Population, 71,200.

shkotz·im (shkôt'sim) n. Offensive. Plural of shegetz.

shle·miel (shlə-mēl') n. Slang. Variant of schlemiel.

shlep (shlěp) v. & n. Slang. Variant of schlep.

shlock (shlök) n. & adj. Variant of schlock.

shmear (shmîr) n. Slang. Variant of schmeer.

shmuck (shmück) n. Slang. Variant of schmuck.

shoal¹ (shōl) n. 1. A shallow place in a body of water. 2. A sandy elevation of the bottom of a body of water, constituting a hazard to navigation; a sandbank or sandbar. — v. shoaled, shoal·ing, shoals. — v. intr. To become shallow: The river shoals suddenly here from eight to two fathoms. — v. tr. 1. To make shallow: The approach to the harbor was shoaled in the storm. 2. To come or sail into a shallower part of. — adj. Having little depth; shallow. [Middle English shold, shallow, shallows, from Old English sceald, shallow.]

shoal² (shōl) n. 1. A large group; a crowd. 2. A large school of fish or other marine animals. — v. intr. shoaled, shoal-ing, shoals. To come together in large numbers; throng. [Probably Middle Low German, or Middle Dutch schōle; see skel-¹ in Appendix.]

shoat also shote (shōt) n. A young pig just after weaning. [Middle English shote, perhaps of Middle Low German origin.]

shock¹ (shök) n. 1. a. A violent collision or impact; a heavy blow. See Synonyms at collision. b. The effect of such a collision or blow. 2. a. Something that jars the mind or emotions as if with a violent, unexpected blow. b. The disturbance of function, equilibrium, or mental faculties caused by such a blow; violent agitation. 3. A severe offense to one's sense of propriety or decency; an outrage. 4. A generally temporary state of massive physiological reaction to severe physical or emotional trauma, usually characterized by marked loss of blood pressure and depression of vital processes. 5. The sensation and muscular spasm caused by an electric current passing through the body or a body part. 6. A sudden economic disturbance, such as a rise in the price of a commodity. 7. A shock absorber. — v. shocked, shock-ing, shocks. — v. tr. 1. To strike with great surprise and emotional disturbance. 2. To strike with disgust; offend. 3. To induce a state of physical shock in (a person). 4. To subject (an animal or a person) to an electric shock. — v. intr. To come into contact violently, as in battle; collide. [French choc, from choquer, to collide with, from Old French chuquier, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

shock² (shök) n. 1. A number of sheaves of grain stacked upright in a field for drying. 2. A thick, heavy mass: a shock of white hair. — v. tr. shocked, shock-ing, shocks. To gather (grain) into shocks. [Middle English shok.]

shock absorber (shök əb-sōrb'ər) n. A device used to absorb mechanical shocks, as a hydraulic or pneumatic piston used to dampen the jarring sustained in a moving motor vehicle.

shock-er (shök'ər) n. One that startles, shocks, or horrifies, as a sensational story or novel.

shock-ing (shök'ing) adj. 1. Highly disturbing emotionally. 2. Highly offensive; indecent or distasteful. 3. Very vivid or intense in tone: shocking pink. —shock'ing-ly adv.

Shock-ley (shök'lē), William Bradford. 1910-1989. British-born American physicist. He shared a 1956 Nobel Prize for the development of the electronic transistor.

shock-proof (shök'prōof') adj. Constructed or designed to withstand blows or jarring.

shock therapy (shök thēr'ə-pē) n. Any of various treatments for mental disorders, such as major depression or schizophrenia, in which a convulsion or brief coma is induced by administering a drug or passing an electric current through the brain. Also called shock treatment shock troops (shök trōops) pl.n. Soldiers specially chosen, trained, and armed to lead an attack. [Translation of German Stosstruppen : Stoss, shock + Truppen, pl. of Truppe, troop.]

shock wave (shök wāv) n. 1. A large-amplitude compression wave, as that produced by an explosion or by supersonic motion of a body in a medium. 2. A violent disruption, disturbance, or reaction: Shock waves of revolution shattered the government.

shod (shöd) v. Past tense and a past participle of shoe.

shod·den (shöd'n) v. A past participle of shoe.

shod·dy (shöd'ē) adj. shod·di·er, shod·di·est. 1. Made of or containing inferior material. 2. a. Of poor quality or craft. b. Rundown; shabby. 3. Dishonest or reprehensible: shoddy business practices. 4. Conspicuously and cheaply imitative. — n. pl. shod·dies. 1. a. Woolen yarn made from scraps or used clothing, with some new wool added. b. Cloth made from or containing such yarn. 2. Something of inferior quality; a cheap imitation. [Origin unknown.]
—shod·di·ly adv. —shod·di·ness n.

shoe (shō) n. 1. A durable covering for the human foot, made of leather or similar material with a rigid sole and heel, usually extending no higher than the ankle. 2. A horseshoe. 3. A part or device that is located at the base of something or that functions as a protective covering, as: a. A strip of metal fitted onto the bottom of a sled runner. b. The base for the supports of the superstructure of a bridge. c. The ferrule on the end of a cane. d. The casing of a pneumatic tire. 4. A device that retards or stops the motion of an object, as the part of a brake that presses against the wheel or drum. 5. The sliding contact plate on an electric train or streetcar that conducts electricity from the third rail. 6. A chute, as for conveying grain from a hopper. 7. Games. A case from which playing cards are dealt one at a time. 8. shoes. Informal. a. Position; status: You would understand my decision if you put yourself in my shoes. b. Plight: I wouldn't want to be in her shoes. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: shoe polish; a shoe shop. — v. tr. shod (shöd), shod or shod·den (shöd'n), shoe·ing, shoes. 1. To furnish or fit with a shoe or shoes. 2. To cover with a wooden or metal guard to protect against wear. —idioms. the shoe is on the other foot. Informal. The circumstances have been reversed; an unequal relationship has been inverted. wait for the other shoe to drop. Slang. To defer action or decision until another matter is finished or resolved. [Middle English, from Old English scōh.]

- shoe-bill (shōō'bīl') n. A tall wading bird (Balaeniceps rex) native to swampy regions of eastern tropical Africa, having slaty plumage, long black legs, a stubby neck, and a large shoelike bill with a hook on the upper mandible.
- shoe boil (shōō boil) n. A growth over the elbow of a horse, caused by repeated bruising by the hoof or the rough floor when lying down and leading to lameness.
- shoe-box (shōō'bōks') n. 1. An oblong box, usually made of cardboard, for holding a pair of shoes. 2. Something resembling or suggestive of such a box, as a plain, rectangular building or a cramped room or dwelling.
- shoe-horn (shōō'hōrn') n. A smooth, curved implement, often of plastic or metal, inserted at the heel to help put on a shoe. — v. tr. shoe-horned, shoe-horn-ing, shoe-horns. To squeeze into or as if into an insufficient space: The usher shoehorned us into the back of the crowded theater.
- shoe-lace (shōō'lās') n. A string or cord used for lacing and fastening shoes. Also called shoestring
- shoe-mak-er (shōō'mā'kər) n. One that makes or repairs shoes. — shoe'-mak'ing n.
- Shoe-ma-ker (shōō'mā'kər), William Lee. Known as "Willie." Born 1931. American jockey who before his retirement in 1990 won more races than any other rider in horseracing history.
- shoe-pac also shoe-pack (shōō'pāk') n. A heavy, warm, waterproof laced boot. [Alteration (influenced by SHOE), of pidgin Delaware seppock, shoe, shoes, from Unami Delaware chípahko, shoes.]
- shoe-shine (shōō'shīn') n. 1. A shiny finish put on a pair of shoes by brushing and buffing with polish. 2. The act or an instance of putting a shiny finish on shoes.
- shoe-string (shōō'strīng') n. 1. See shoelace. 2. A small sum of money; capital that is barely adequate: a company that started on a shoestring. — adj. 1. Long and slender: shoestring potatoes. 2. Marked by or consisting of a small amount of money: a shoestring budget.
- shoestring catch (shōō'strīng' kăch) n. Sports. A running catch made near the ground.
- shoe-tree (shōō'trē') n. A form made of wood, metal, or other inflexible material inserted into a shoe to stretch it or preserve its shape.
- sho-far (shō'fār', -fər) n. pl. sho-fars or sho-froth (shō-frōt', -frōs'). Judaism. A trumpet made of a ram's horn, blown by the ancient Hebrews during religious ceremonies and as a signal in battle, now sounded in the synagogue during Rosh Hashanah and at the end of Yom Kippur. [Hebrew šōpār, ram's horn, sho-far.]
- sho-gi (shō'gē) n. Games. A Japanese game similar to chess that is played on a board with 81 squares, each side having 20 pieces. [Japanese shogi, from Chinese

(Mandarin) jiàng qí: jiàng, commander in chief, chief chess piece + qí, board game, such as chess.]

sho·gun (shō'gən) n. The hereditary commander of the Japanese army who until 1867 exercised absolute rule under the nominal leadership of the emperor. [Japanese shōgun, general.]

sho·gun·ate (shō'gə-nīt, -nāt') n. The government, rule, or office of a shogun.

sho·ji (shō'jē) n. pl. shoji or sho·jis. A translucent screen consisting of a wooden frame covered in rice paper, used as a sliding door or partition in a Japanese house. [Japanese shōji.]

Sho·la·pur (shō'lə-pōor') A city of west-central India on the Deccan Peninsula east-southeast of Bombay. It is a trade and textile-manufacturing center. Population, 511,103.

Sholes (shōlz), Christopher Latham. 1819-1890. American inventor who was awarded a patent for the typewriter (1868).

Sho·lo·khov (shô'lə-kôf', -KHəf), Mikhail Aleksandrovich. 1905-1984.

Russian writer whose four-part novel And Quiet Flows the Don (1928-1940) concerns the effect of World War I and the Russian Revolution on Cossack life. He won the 1965 Nobel Prize for literature.

shone (shōn) v. A past tense and a past participle of shine.

shoo (shō) interj. Used to frighten away animals or birds. — v. tr. shoed, shoo·ing, shoos. To drive or frighten away by or as if by crying "shoo."

shoo·fly (shō'flī') n. 1. A child's rocker having the seat built between two flat sides cut in the shape of an animal. 2. Slang. An undercover police officer who checks on the honesty and performance of other police officers.

shoofly pie (shō'flī' pī) n. A pie with a filling of molasses and brown sugar. [So called because one will supposedly have to shoo away the flies attracted to the sweet filling.]

shoo·fly plant (shō'flī' plānt) n. See apple of Peru.

shoo·in (shō'in') n. Informal. 1. A sure winner. 2. One that has a sure chance of being chosen, as for a job or other position.

shook¹ (shōok) n. A set of parts for assembling a barrel or packing box. [Probably from shook cask, variant of shaken cask, cask broken down for shipment, from shaken, dismantled and packed for transport, past participle of SHAKE, to scatter, shed.]

shook² (shōok) v. Past tense of shake.

shook·up (shōok-ŭp') adj. Slang. Emotionally upset or excited; shaken.

shoon (shōon) n. Archaic. A plural of shoe.

shoot (shōot) v. shot (shöt), shoot·ing, shoots. — v. tr. 1. a. To hit, wound, or kill with a missile fired from a weapon. b. To remove or destroy by firing or projecting a missile: shot out the window. c. To make (a hole, for example) by firing a weapon. 2. To fire or let fly (a missile) from a weapon. 3. a. To discharge (a weapon). b. To detonate or cause to explode: shot off a firecracker.

4. To inject (a drug, for example) with a hypodermic syringe. 5. To throw out or release (a fishing line, for example). 6. a. To send forth suddenly, intensely, or swiftly: The burning building shot sparks onto the adjacent roof. He shot an angry look at me. b. To emit (a ray or rays of light or another form of energy). c. To utter (sounds or words) forcefully, rapidly, or suddenly: She shot a retort to the insult. d. Slang. To give, send, or hand quickly: Shoot me that stapler.

7. Informal. To spend, use up, or waste: They shot their savings on a new boat.

8. To pass over or through swiftly: shooting the rapids. 9. To cover (country) in hunting for game. 10. To record on film: shot the scene in one take. 11. To cause to project or protrude; extend: shot out her arm to prevent the bottle from falling.

12. To begin to grow or produce; put forth. 13. To pour, empty out, or discharge down or as if down a chute: shot gravel into the hole. 14. Sports & Games. a. To throw or propel (a ball, marble, or other projectile in a game) in a specific direction or toward the objective. b. To accomplish (the objective) of a game involving projectiles; score (a point, basket, stroke, or goal). c. To play (a game involving projectiles or dice, such as golf, craps, or pool). d. To attain (a given score) in golf. e. To throw (the dice or a given score) in craps. 15. To slide (the bolt of a lock) into or out of its fastening. 16. To plane (the edge of a board) straight. 17. To variegate (colored cloth) by interweaving weft threads of a different color. 18. To measure the altitude of with a sextant or other instrument: shot the star. — v. intr. 1. To discharge a missile from a weapon. 2. To discharge or fire; go off. 3. a. To gush or spurt: Water shot out of the geyser. b. To appear suddenly: The sun shot through a break in the clouds. 4. To move swiftly; dart. 5. To be felt moving or as if moving in the body: Pain shot through my lower leg. 6. To protrude; project: The headland shoots far out into the sea. 7. To engage in hunting or the firing of weapons, especially for sport: is shooting in Scotland during the fall. 8. To put forth new growth; germinate. 9. a. To take pictures. b. To begin filming a scene in a movie. 10. Sports & Games. To propel a ball or other object toward the goal or in a specific direction or manner. 11. Games. To throw dice. 12. Slang. To begin talking. Often used in the imperative: I know you have something to tell me, so shoot! 13. To slide into or out of a fastening. Used of the bolt of a lock. — n. 1. The motion or movement of something that is propelled, driven, or discharged. 2. a. The young growth arising from a germinating seed; a sprout. b. A bud, young leaf, or other new growth on a plant. 3. A narrow, swift, or turbulent section of a stream. 4. a. The act of discharging a weapon or letting fly a missile. b. Informal. The launching of a rocket or similar missile. 5. a. An organized shooting activity, such as a skeet tournament or hunt. b. A round of shots in a contest with firearms. 6. a. A photographic assignment or session. b. A cinematographic session. 7. The distance a shot travels; the range. 8. Nautical. The interval between strokes in rowing. 9. A sharp twinge or spasm of pain. 10. An inclined channel for moving something; a chute. 11. A body of ore in a vein. — interj. Used to express surprise, mild annoyance, or disappointment. —phrasal verbs. shoot down.

1. To bring down (an aircraft, for example) by hitting and damaging with gunfire or a missile. 2. Informal. To ruin the aspirations of; disappoint. 3. Informal.

a. To put an end to; defeat: shot down the proposal. b. To expose as false; discredit: shot down his theory. shoot for (or shoot at). Informal. To strive or aim for; have as a goal. shoot up. 5. Informal. To grow or get taller rapidly. 6. To increase dramatically in amount. 7. To riddle with bullets. 8. To damage or terrorize (a town, for example) by intense or random gunfire. 9. Slang. To inject a drug with a hypodermic syringe. —idioms. shoot from the hip. Slang. To act or speak on a matter without forethought. shoot off (one's) mouth (or shoot off (one's) face). Slang. 2. To speak indiscreetly. 3. To brag; boast.

shoot (one's) bolt. Slang. To do all within one's power; exhaust all of one's resources or capabilities. shoot straight. To talk or deal honestly. shoot the bull. Slang. To spend time talking; talk idly. shoot the works. Informal. To expend all of one's efforts or capital. [Middle English shoten, from Old English scēotan. See skeud- in Appendix.] —shoot'er n.

shoot-down (shōōt'doun') n. 1. Destruction of a flying aircraft by a missile attack or gunfire. 2. An instance of such destruction.

shoot-em-up (shōōt'əm-ŭp') n. Informal. An entertainment, such as a movie or television show, featuring gunfire and violence.

shoot-ing gallery (shōō'tīng gäl'ə-rē) n. 1. An enclosed target range for practice or competition with firearms. 2. Slang. A place where illegal drugs may be obtained, prepared, and taken by injection, often with equipment provided on the premises.

shooting iron (shōō'tīng ī'ərn) n. Slang. A firearm, especially a handgun.

shooting script (shōō'tīng skript) n. The final version of a movie or television script with the scenes arranged in sequence as they are to be filmed or taped.

shooting star (shōō'tīng stār) n. 1. See meteor. 2. Any of several North American perennial herbs of the genus Dodecatheon, having nodding flowers with reflexed petals.

shooting stick (shōō'tīng stīk) n. A stick resembling a cane, pointed at one end with a folding seat at the other, typically used by spectators at outdoor sporting events.

shoot-out also shoot-out (shōōt'out') n. 1. a. A gunfight. b. A battle between military forces. c. Slang. A dispute or conflict to settle a disagreement: The marriage ended in a legal shootout. 2. Sports. a. A high-scoring period or game. b. A means of resolving a tie after overtime in a soccer game, in which five players from each side alternately take individual shots on goal.

shoot-the-chute also chute-the-chute (shōōt'thə-shōōt') n. An amusement ride consisting of a steep slide often with a pool of water at the end.

shoot-up (shōōt'üp') n. Slang. 1. The act or an instance of shooting up a drug. 2. A gunfight; a shootout.

shop (shöp) n. 1. Also shoppe. A small retail store or a specialty department in a large store. 2. An atelier; a studio. 3. A place for manufacturing or repairing goods or machinery. 4. A commercial or industrial establishment: a printing shop. 5. A business establishment; an office or a center of activity. 6. A home workshop. 7. a. A schoolroom fitted with machinery and tools for instruction in industrial arts. b. The industrial arts as a technical science or course of study.

— v. shopped, shop-ping, shops. — v. intr. 1. To visit stores in search of merchandise or bargains. 2. To look for something with the intention of acquiring it. — v. tr. To visit or buy from (a particular store). — phrasal verb.

shop around. 1. To go from store to store in search of merchandise or bargains. 2. To look for something, such as a better job. 3. To offer (a large block of common stock, for example) for sale to various parties: “[The company] is now actively being shopped around, with a prospectus in circulation” (Marianne Yen).

— idiom. talk shop. To talk about one’s work. [Middle English shoppe, from Old English sceoppa, treasure house.]

shop-keep-er (shöp'kē'pər) n. One who owns or manages a shop.

shop-lift (shöp'lift') v. shop-lift-ed, shop-lift-ing, shop-lifts. — v. intr.

To steal merchandise from a store that is open for business. — v. tr. To steal (articles or an article) from a store that is open for business. — shop'lift'er n.

— shop'lift'ing n.

shoppe (shöp) n. Variant of shop (n., sense 1).

shop-per (shöp'ər) n. 1. One who visits stores in search of merchandise or bargains. 2. A commercial agent who compares the merchandise and prices of competing merchants. 3. A commercial employee who fills mail or telephone orders. 4. A newspaper containing advertisements and some local news, usually distributed free.

shop-ping bag (shöp'ing bæg) n. A strong bag with handles for carrying a shopper’s purchases.

shop-ping-bag lady (shöp'ing-bæg' lā'dē) n. Slang. A bag lady.

shopping center (shöp'ing sən'tər) n. A group of stores and often restaurants and other businesses having a common parking lot.

shopping mall (shöp'ing môl) n. 1. An urban shopping area limited to pedestrians. 2. A shopping center with stores and businesses facing a system of enclosed walkways for pedestrians.

shop steward (shöp stōō'ərd) n. A union member elected to represent coworkers in dealings with management.

shop-talk (shöp'tôk') n. 1. Talk or conversation concerning one's work or business. 2. The jargon used in a specific business or field.

shop-worn (shöp'wôrn', -wôrn') adj. 1. Tarnished, frayed, faded, or otherwise defective from being on display in a store. 2. Worn-out, as from overuse; trite: shopworn anecdotes. See Synonyms at trite.

sho-ran (shôr'ăn', shôr'-) n. A relatively short-range navigation system by which a ship or an aircraft can determine its position with high precision by measuring the times required for a radar signal to reach and return from each of two ground stations of known position. [sho(rt)-ra(nge) n(avigation).] shore¹ (shôr, shôr) n. 1. The land along the edge of an ocean, a sea, a lake, or a river; a coast. 2. Often shores. Land; country: far from our native shores. 3. Land as opposed to water: a sailor with an assignment on shore. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: shore dwellings; shore erosion. [Middle English shore, from Old English scora. See sker¹ in Appendix.]

shore² (shôr, shôr) v. tr. shored, shor-ing, shores. To support by or as if by a prop: shored up the sagging floors; shored up the peace initiative. — n. A beam or timber propped against a structure to provide support. [Middle English shoren, from shore, prop, probably from Middle Low German schôre, barrier, or Middle Dutch scôre, prop.]

shore³ (shôr, shôr) v. Archaic. A past tense of shear.

shore bird also shore-bird (shôr'bûrd', shôr'-) n. Any of various birds, such as the sandpiper, plover, or snipe, that frequent the shores of coastal or inland waters.

shore bug (shôr bûg) n. Any of numerous small predatory insects of the family Saldidae, found along the shores of streams and other bodies of water where they sometimes dig burrows.

shore crab (shôr krăb) n. Any of numerous crabs, such as the spider crab of the United States or the common edible crab Carcinus maenas, usually found along seashores.

shore dinner (shôr dîn'ər) n. A meal consisting of seafood.

shore fly (shôr flī) n. Any of numerous minute black flies of the family Ephydriidae, living in damp or marshy places.

shore-front (shôr'frünt', shôr'-) n. Land situated on the edge of a body of water. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: shorefront erosion; shorefront cottages.

shore leave (shôr lēv) n. Leave of absence granted to a sailor to go ashore.

shore-line (shôr'līn', shôr'-) n. The edge of a body of water.

shore patrol (shôr pə-trôl') n. Abbr. SP A detail of the U.S. Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard serving as military police ashore.

Shore-view (shôr'vyōō', shôr'-) A city of eastern Minnesota, a residential suburb of St. Paul. Population, 24,587.

shore-ward (shôr'wârd, shôr'-) adv. & adj. Toward, to, or on the shore.

—shore'wards (-wârdz) adv.

shoring (shôr'ing, shôr'-) n. 1. The act or operation of propping with shores.

2. A system of supporting shores.

shorn (shôrn, shôrn) v. A past participle of shear.

short (shôrt) adj. short-er, short-est. 1. Having little length; not long.

2. Having little height; not tall. 3. Extending not far or not far enough: a short toss. 4. a. Lasting a brief time: a short holiday. b. Appearing to pass quickly: finished the job in a few short months. 5. Not lengthy; succinct: short and to the point. 6. a. Rudely brief; abrupt. b. Easily provoked; irascible. 7. Inadequate; insufficient: oil in short supply; were short on experience. 8. Lacking in length or amount: a board that is short two inches. 9. Lacking in breadth or scope: a short view of the problem. 10. Deficient in retentiveness: a short memory. 11. a. Not owning the stocks or commodities one is selling in anticipation of a fall in prices.

b. Of or relating to a short sale. 12. a. Containing a large amount of shortening; flaky: a short pie crust. b. Not ductile; brittle: short iron. 13. a. Linguistics. Of, relating to, or being a speech sound of relatively brief duration, as the first vowel sound in the Latin word mâlus, "evil," as compared with the same or a similar sound of relatively long duration, as the first vowel sound in the Latin word mâlus, "apple tree." b. Grammar. Of, relating to, or being a pronunciation of vowel sounds, as the pronunciation (ă) in pat, (ĕ) in pet, (ĭ) in pit, (ô) in pot, (ŭ) in putt, and (oŏ) in put. c. Historically descended from a vowel of brief duration.

14. a. Unstressed; unaccented. Used of a syllable in accentual prosody. b. Being of relatively brief duration. Used of a syllable in quantitative prosody. 15. Slang. Close to the end of a tour of military duty. — adv. 1. Abruptly; quickly: stop short. 2. In a rude or curt manner. 3. At a point before a given limit or goal: a missile that landed short of the target. 4. At a disadvantage: We were caught short by the sudden storm. 5. Without owning what one is selling: selling a commodity short. — n. 1. Something short, as: a. Linguistics. A briefly articulated speech sound or syllable. b. A brief film; a short subject. c. A size of clothing less long than the average for that size. d. shorts. Short trousers extending to the knee or above. e. shorts. Men's undershorts. 2. a. A short sale. b. One that sells short.

3. shorts. A byproduct of wheat processing that consists of germ bran and coarse meal or flour. 4. shorts. Clippings or trimmings that remain as byproducts in various manufacturing processes, often used to make an inferior variety of the product. 5. a. A short circuit. b. A malfunction caused by a short circuit. 6. Baseball. A shortstop. — v. short-ed, short-ing, shorts. — v. tr. 1. To cause a short circuit in. 2. Informal. To give (one) less than one is entitled to; shortchange. 3. a. To sell (a stock that one does not own) in anticipation of making a profit when its price falls; make a short sale. b. To sell unowned stock in (the stock market) in anticipation of making a profit when prices fall. — v.

intr. To short-circuit. —idioms. for short. As an abbreviation: He's called Ed for short. in short. In summary; briefly. short for. An abbreviation of: Ed is short for Edward. short of. 4. Having an inadequate supply of: We're short of cash. 5. Less than: Nothing short of her best effort was required to make the team. 6. Other than; without resorting to: Short of yelling at him, I had no other way to catch his attention. 7. Not quite willing to undertake or do; just this side of: She stopped short of throwing out the old photo. the short end of the stick. The worst side of an unequal deal. [Middle English, from Old English sceort, scort. See sker-¹ in Appendix.] —short'ness n.

short account (shôrt ə-kount') n. 1. The account of one that sells short. 2. See short interest.

short-age (shôr'tij) n. A deficiency in amount; an insufficiency.

short-billed marsh wren (shôrt'bîld' mārsh rĕn) n. A small brownish wren (Cistothorus platensis) of eastern North America, living in shallow sedge marshes and damp grassy meadows.

short-bread (shôrt'brĕd') n. A cookie made of flour, sugar, and much butter or other shortening.

short-cake (shôrt'kāk') n. 1. A dessert consisting of a crisp, light cake served with fruit and topped with cream. 2. The cake made for this dessert.

short-change (shôrt'chānj') v. tr. short-changed, short-chang-ing, short-chang-es. 1. To give (someone) less change than is due in a transaction. 2. Informal. To treat unfairly or deceitfully; cheat: "a deceitful cook who skimps on ingredients and shortchanges guests" (Jacques Pepin). —short'chang'er n.

short circuit (shôrt sūr'kît) n. A low-resistance connection accidentally established between two points in an electric circuit.

short-cir-cuit (shôrt'sūr'kît) v. short-cir-cuit-ed, short-cir-cuit-ing, short-cir-cuits. — v. tr. 1. To cause to have a short circuit. 2. Informal. To hamper the progress of; impede. 3. To bypass. — v. intr. To become affected with a short circuit.

short-com-ing (shôrt'kŭm'ĭng) n. A deficiency; a flaw.

short covering (shôrt kŭv'ər-ĭng) n. The buying of securities, stocks, or commodities in order to close out a short sale.

short-cut (shôrt'kŭt') n. 1. A more direct route than the customary one. 2. A means of saving time or effort. [From CUT, direct route.] —short'cut' v.

short-day (shôrt'dā') adj. Of, relating to, or being a plant that flowers only after exposure to light periods shorter than a certain critical length, as in early spring or fall.

short division (shôrt dĭ-vĭzh'ən) n. Mathematics. The process of dividing one number by another without writing down all the steps, especially when the divisor is a single digit.

short-en (shôr'tn) v. short-ened, short-en-ing, short-ens. — v. tr. 1. To make short or shorter. 2. Nautical. To take in (a sail) so that less canvas is exposed to the wind. 3. To reduce in force, efficacy, or intensity. 4. To add shortening to (dough) so as to make flaky. — v. intr. To become short or shorter. —short'en-er n.

SYNONYMS: shorten, abbreviate, abridge, curtail, truncate. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to diminish the length, duration, or extent of by or as if by cutting”: smoking that will shorten her life; abbreviated the speech; abridging the rights of citizens; curtailed their visit; truncated the conversation.

ANTONYM: lengthen

short-ened form (shôr'tnd fôrm) n. Linguistics. An abbreviated form of a polysyllabic word, as auto for automobile.

short-en-ing (shôr'tn-ĭng, shôrt'nĭng) n. 1. A fat, such as butter or lard, used to make cake or pastry light or flaky. 2. A shortened form of something, as a word. 3. The act of one that shortens. 4. The act or process of becoming shorter.

short-fall (shôrt'fôl') n. 1. A failure to attain a specified amount or level; a shortage. 2. The amount by which a supply falls short of expectation, need, or demand.

short fuse (shôrt fyôoz) n. Slang. A quick temper.

short-hair (shôrt'hâr') n. Either of two breeds of shorthaired cats, characterized by a slender muscular body, large head, broad muzzle, and large round eyes.

short-haired (shôrt'hârd') adj. Having a coat of short hair. Used of animals.

short-hand (shôrt'händ') n. 1. A system of rapid handwriting employing symbols to represent words, phrases, and letters. 2. A system, a form, or an instance of abbreviated or formulaic reference: “The classical error is to regard a scientific law as only a shorthand for its instances” (Jacob Bronowski).

short-hand-ed (shôrt'hănd'ĭd) adj. Lacking the usual or necessary number of workers, employees, players, or assistants.

short-horn (shôrt'hôrn') n. Any of a breed of beef or dairy cattle that originated in northern England, having short, curved horns or no horns and usually red, white, or roan in color. Also called *Durham*² short-horned grasshopper (shôrt'hôrnd' grăsh'höp'ər) n. A grasshopper of the family Locustidae (or Acrididae), including the locusts that swarm over large areas destroying vegetation.

short hundredweight (shôrt hŭn'drĭd-wăt') n. See hundredweight (n., sense 1).

shor-ti-a (shôr'tē-ə) n. Any of various eastern North American and Asian evergreen stemless herbs of the genus Shortia, having glossy basal leaves and white, pink, or blue nodding flowers on long stalks. [New Latin, genus name, after Charles Wilkins Short (1794-1863), American physician and botanist.]

short-ie (shôrt'ē) n. & adj. Variant of shorty.

short interest (shôrt ÿn'trĭst) n. The total number of stocks, securities, or commodity shares in an account or in the market generally that have been sold short and not yet repurchased. Also called short account, short position.

short-leaf pine (shôrt'lĕf' pĭn) n. A pine tree (Pinus echinata) common in the southeast United States, having dark bluish-green leaves grouped in fascicles of two. Also called yellow pine short-list also short-list (shôrt'lĭst') n. A list of preferable items or candidates that have been selected for final consideration, as in making an award or filling a position.

short-list (shôrt'lĭst') v. tr. short--list-ed, short--list-ing, short--lists. To include (a candidate for a job, for example) on a shortlist.

short-lived (shôrt'lĭvd', -lĭvd') adj. Living or lasting only a short time; ephemeral.

USAGE NOTE: The pronunciation (-lĭvd) is etymologically correct since the compound is derived from the noun life, rather than from the verb live. But the pronunciation (-lĭvd) is by now so common that it cannot be considered an error. In the most recent survey 43 percent of the Usage Panel preferred (-lĭvd), 39 percent preferred (-lĭvd), and 18 percent found both pronunciations equally acceptable.

short-ly (shôrt'lĕ) adv. 1. In a short time; soon. 2. In a few words; concisely. 3. In an abrupt manner; curtly.

short-nosed cattle louse (shôrt'nôzd' kăt'l lous) n. A sucking louse (Haematopinus eurysternus) that is parasitic on cattle.

short order (shôrt ôr'dər) n. An order of food prepared and served quickly, as in a diner. —short'-or'der (shôrt'ôr'dər) adj.

short position (shôrt pə-zĭsh'ən) n. 1. A short sale that has not yet been covered. 2. See short interest.

short-range (shôrt'rānj') adj. 1. Designed for or limited to short distances: a short-range airliner. 2. Of or relating to the near future: short-range goals.

short ribs (shôrt rĭbz) pl.n. The rib ends of beef between the rib roast and the plate.

short sale (shôrt sāl) n. The sale of a security that one does not own but has borrowed in anticipation of making a profit by paying for it after its price has fallen.

short shrift (shôrt shrĭft) n. 1. Summary, careless treatment; scant attention: These annoying memos will get short shrift from the boss. 2. Quick work. 3. a. A short respite, as from death. b. The brief time before execution granted a condemned prisoner for confession and absolution.

short sight (shôrt sīt) n. See myopia (n., sense 1).

short-sight-ed (shôrt/'sī/'tīd) adj. 1. Nearsighted; myopic. 2. Lacking foresight. —short/sight/ed-ly adv. —short/sight/ed-ness n.

short-spoken (shôrt/'spō/'kən) adj. Given to shortness or abruptness in manner or speech; curt.

short-stop (shôrt/'stöp') n. Baseball. 1. The field position between second and third base. 2. The infielder who occupies this position.

short story (shôrt stôr/'ē) n. A short piece of prose fiction, having few characters and aiming at unity of effect.

short subject (shôrt sŭb/'jīkt) n. A brief film often shown before a feature-length film.

short-tailed shrew (shôrt/'tāld/'shrō) n. Any of various shrews of the genus Blarina and related genera, found in North America and eastern Asia, having much shorter tails and standing higher than the common shrew.

short-tem-pered (shôrt/'tēm/'pərd) adj. Easily or quickly moved to anger; irascible.

short-term (shôrt/'tŭrm') adj. 1. Involving or lasting a relatively brief time. 2. a. Payable or reaching maturity within a relatively brief time, such as a year: a short-term loan. b. Acquired over a relatively brief time: short-term capital gains.

short ton (shôrt tŭn) n. Abbr. s.t. See ton (n., sense 1).

short-wave (shôrt/'wāv') adj. 1. Having a wavelength of approximately 20 to 200 meters. 2. Capable of receiving or transmitting at wavelengths of approximately 20 to 200 meters: a shortwave radio.

short wave (shôrt wāv) n. Abbr. sw An electromagnetic wave with a wavelength of approximately 200 meters or less, especially a radio wave in the 20 to 200 meter range.

short-wind-ed (shôrt/'wīn/'dīd) adj. 1. Breathing with quick, labored breaths. 2. Likely to have difficulty in breathing, especially from exertion. 3. Brief and succinct. 4. Choppy; disconnected.

short-y also short-ie (shôr/'tē) Informal. n. pl. short-ies. 1. A person short in stature. 2. A thing of less than average size, length, extension, or duration. — adj. Of less than average size or length: shorty gloves; a shortie nightgown.

Sho-sho-ne also Sho-sho-ni (shō-shō/'nē) n. pl. Shoshone or Sho-sho-nes also Shoshoni or Sho-sho-nis. 1. A Native American people comprising three divisions, specifically: a. A group inhabiting parts of Idaho, northern Utah, eastern Oregon, and western Montana, now mostly in southeast Idaho. Also called *Northern Shoshone, Snake*¹. b. A group inhabiting the Great Basin area of Idaho, Utah, and Nevada south to Death Valley, California, now mostly in Nevada. Also called Western Shoshone c. A group inhabiting the Wind River valley of western Wyoming. Also called Eastern Shoshone, Wind River Shoshone. 2. A member of this people or any of its divisions. 3. Any of the languages of the Shoshone people. [Probably from Eastern Shoshone band name.] —Sho-sho'ne-an adj.

Shoshone Falls (shō-shō'nē fōlz) A waterfall, 64.7 m (212 ft) high, in the Snake River of southern Idaho.

Shoshone River (shō-shō'nē rīv'ər) A river, about 193 km (120 mi) long, of northwest Wyoming flowing northeast to the Bighorn River.

Shos-ta-ko-vich (shōs'tə-kō'vich, -kō'-, shə-stə-), Dimitri. 1906-1975. Russian composer. Considered among the greatest composers of the 20th century, he is particularly known for his 15 symphonies and also wrote chamber music, concertos, operas, and ballets.

shot¹ (shōt) n. 1. The firing or discharge of a weapon, such as a gun. 2. The distance over which something is shot; the range. 3. a. An attempt to hit a target with a projectile: His shot at the bear missed by inches. b. An attempt to reach a target with a rocket: a moon shot. 4. a. Sports. An attempt to score in a game, as in soccer or hockey. b. Baseball. A home run. 5. Sports & Games. a. The flight or path of a projectile in a game. b. A stroke in a game, as in golf or billiards. 6. A pointed or critical remark. 7. Informal. a. An attempt; a try: took a shot at losing weight. b. A guess. c. An opportunity: gave him a fair shot at the part in the play. d. A chance at odds; something to bet on: The horse was a four-to-one shot. 8. a. A solid projectile designed to be discharged from a firearm or cannon. b. pl. shot. Such projectiles considered as a group. c. pl. shot. Tiny lead or steel pellets, especially ones used in a shotgun cartridge. d. One of these pellets. 9. Sports. The heavy metal ball that is put for distance in the shot put. 10. One who shoots in a particular way: a good shot with the rifle and the bow. 11. a. A charge of explosives used in blasting mine shafts. b. A detonation of an explosive charge. 12. a. A photographic view or exposure: got a good shot of that last model. b. A developed photographic image. c. A single cinematic view or take. 13. a. A hypodermic injection. b. A small amount given or applied at one time: a shot of oxygen. 14. A drink, especially a jigger of liquor. 15. An amount to be paid, as for drinks; a bill. 16. Nautical. A length of chain equal to 15 fathoms (90 feet) in the United States and 122 fathoms (75 feet) in Great Britain. — v. tr. shot-ted, shot-ting, shots. To load or weight with shot. —idioms. like a shot. Very quickly. shot in the arm. Informal. Something that boosts one's spirits. shot in the dark. Informal. 3. A wild, unsubstantiated guess. 4. An attempt that has little chance of succeeding. [Middle English, from Old English sceot, scot. See skeud- in Appendix.]

shot² (shōt) v. Past tense and past participle of shoot. — adj. 1. a. Of changeable or variegated color; iridescent. b. Streaked or flecked with or as if with yarn of a different color: a blue suit shot with purple; a forest glade that was shot with sunlight. c. Interspersed or permeated with a distinctive quality: Her apology was shot with irony. 2. Informal. Worn-out; ruined.

shot clock (shōt klōk) n. Basketball. A device that indicates how many seconds a team has to take a shot or else lose possession of the ball.

shote (shōt) n. Variant of shoot.

shot-gun (shōt'gŭn') n. 1. A smoothbore gun that fires shot over short ranges. Also called scattergun 2. Football. An offensive formation, used especially for passing, in which the quarterback receives the snap several yards behind the line of scrimmage. 3. New Orleans. A house whose architecture is characterized by several rooms joined in a straight line from the front to the back: "Shotguns [are] so named because a shotgun fired through the front door of these long, narrow homes could pass straight through the house and out the back door without hitting any barriers" (Melissa O. Fryauf). See Regional note at beignet.

shotgun marriage (shōt'gŭn' măr'ij) n. A marriage that is forced or necessitated because of pregnancy. Also called shotgun wedding shot hole (shōt hōl) n. 1. A drilled hole in which an explosive charge is placed before detonation. 2. A hole made in wood by an insect.

shot put (shōt pōt) n. Sports. 1. An athletic event in which contestants attempt to put a heavy metal ball as far as possible. 2. The standard ball used in this competition. —shot'-put'ter (shōt'pōt'ər) n. —shot'-put'ting n.

shott (shōt) n. Variant of chott.

shot-ten (shōt'n) adj. Having recently spawned and thus being less desirable as food. Used of fish, especially herring. [Middle English shoten, past participle of shoten, to shoot. See SHOOT.]

should (shōd) v. aux. Past tense of shall. 1. Used to express obligation or duty: You should send her a note. 2. Used to express probability or expectation: They should arrive at noon. 3. Used to express conditionality or contingency: If she should fall, then so would I. 4. Used to moderate the directness or bluntness of a statement: I should think he would like to go.

USAGE NOTE: Like the rules governing the use of shall and will on which they are based, the traditional rules governing the use of should and would are largely ignored in modern American practice. Either should or would can now be used in the first person to express conditional futurity: If I had known that, I would (or somewhat more formally, should) have answered differently. But in the second and third persons only would is used: If he had known that, he would (not should) have answered differently. Would cannot always be substituted for should, however. Should is used in all three persons in a conditional clause: if I (or you or he) should decide to go. Should is also used in all three persons to express duty or obligation (the equivalent of ought to): I (or you or he) should go. On the other hand, would is used to express volition or promise: I agreed that I would do it. Either would or should is possible as an auxiliary with like, be inclined, be glad, prefer, and related verbs: I would (or should) like to call your attention to an oversight. Here would was acceptable on all levels to a large majority of the Usage Panel in an earlier survey and is more common in American usage than should. • Should have is sometimes incorrectly written should of by writers who have mistaken the source of the spoken contraction should've. See Usage Note at if. See Usage Note at rather. See Usage Note at shall.

shoul·der (shōl'dər) n. 1. a. The joint connecting the arm with the torso. b. The part of the human body between the neck and upper arm. 2. a. The joint of a vertebrate animal that connects the forelimb to the trunk. b. The part of an animal near this joint. c. The part of a bird's wing between the wrist and the trunk. 3. Often shoulders. The area of the back from one shoulder to the other. 4. A cut of meat including the joint of the foreleg and adjacent parts. 5. The portion of a garment that covers the shoulder. 6. An angled or sloping part, as: a. The angle between the face and flank of a bastion in a fortification. b. The area between the body and neck of a bottle or vase. 7. The area of an item or object that serves as an abutment or surrounds a projection, as: a. The end surface of a board from which a tenon projects. b. Printing. The flat surface on the body of type that extends beyond the letter or character. 8. The edge or border running on either side of a roadway. — v. shoul·dered, shoul·der·ing, shoul·ders. — v. tr. 1. To carry or place (a burden, for example) on the shoulders. 2. To take on; assume: shouldered the blame for his friends. 3. To push or apply force to, with or as if with the shoulder. 4. To make (one's way) by or as if by shoving obstacles with one's shoulders. — v. intr. 1. To push with the shoulders. 2. To make one's way by or as if by shoving obstacles with one's shoulders. — idioms. put (one's) shoulder to the wheel. To apply oneself vigorously; make a concentrated effort. shoulder to shoulder. 2. In close proximity; side by side. 3. In close cooperation. straight from the shoulder. 4. Delivered directly from the shoulder. Used of a punch. 5. Honestly; candidly. [Middle English shulder, from Old English sculdor.]

shoulder bag (shōl'dər bæg) n. An often large handbag carried by a strap that is looped over the shoulder.

shoulder belt (shōl'dər bēlt) n. See shoulder harness.

shoulder blade (shōl'dər blād) n. See scapula.

shoulder board (shōl'dər bōrd) n. One of a pair of oblong pieces of stiffened cloth worn on each shoulder of a military uniform and carrying insignia identifying the wearer's rank. Also called shoulder mark shoulder girdle (shōl'dər gûr'dl) n. The pectoral girdle, especially of a human being.

shoulder harness (shōl'dər här'nīs) n. A safety belt used with a seat belt in a vehicle and worn diagonally across the chest and over the shoulder. Also called shoulder belt shoulder holster (shōl'dər hōl'stər) n. A leather holster hung from the shoulder and usually worn underneath the arm, allowing a handgun to be concealed underneath a coat.

shoulder knot (shōl'dər nōt) n. 1. Either of two detachable braided cords worn on each shoulder of the full-dress uniform of a commissioned officer.

2. An ornamental knot of ribbon or lace formerly worn on the shoulder.

shoulder mark (shōl'dər märk) n. See shoulder board.

shoulder patch (shōl'dər päch) n. A cloth patch bearing identifying markings, worn on the upper portion of the sleeve of a uniform.

shoulder strap (shōl'dər sträp) n. 1. A strap, usually one of a pair, supporting a garment from the shoulder. 2. A strap worn across the shoulder to support an item, such as a bag.

should·est (shoöd'ĭst) or shouldst (shöödst) v. aux. Archaic. A second person singular past tense of shall.

should·n't (shööd'nt) Should not.

shouldst (shöödst) v. aux. Variant of shouldest.

shout (shout) n. A loud cry. — v. tr. intr. shout·ed, shout·ing, shouts. To say with or utter a shout. — phrasal verb. shout down. To overwhelm or silence by shouting loudly. [Middle English shoute, perhaps from Old Norse skūta, a taunt.] — shout'er n.

SYNONYMS: shout, bawl, bellow, holler, howl, roar, whoop, yell. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to say with or make a loud, strong cry”: fans shouting their approval; bawling out orders; bellowing with rage; hollered a warning; howling with pain; a crowd roaring its disapproval; children whooping at play; troops yelling as they attacked.

shout·ing distance (shou'tĭng dĭs'təns) n. A short distance: lived within shouting distance of each other.

shove (shŭv) v. shoved, shov·ing, shoves. — v. tr. 1. To push forward or along. 2. To push rudely or roughly. See Synonyms at push. — v. intr. To push someone or something with force. — n. The act of shoving; a push.

— phrasal verb. shove off. 1. To push (a boat) away from shore in leaving.

2. Informal. To leave. [Middle English shoven, from Old English scūfan.]

— shov'er n.

shov·el (shŭv'əl) n. 1. A tool with a handle and a broad scoop or blade for digging and moving material, such as dirt or snow. 2. A large mechanical device or vehicle for heavy digging or excavation. 3. The amount that a shovel can hold; a shovelful: One shovel of dirt. — v. shov-eled also shov-elled, shov-el-ing also shov-el-ling, shov-els also shov-els. — v. tr. 1. To move or remove with a shovel. 2. To make with a shovel: shoveled a path through the snow. 3. To convey or throw in a rough or hasty way, as if with a shovel: He shoveled the food into his mouth. 4. To clear or excavate with or as if with a shovel: shoveling off the driveway after the snowstorm; shovels out the hall closet once a year. — v. intr. To dig or work with a shovel. [Middle English, from Old English scofl.]

shov-el-er also shov-el-ler (shŭv'ə-lər, shŭv'lər) n. 1. One that shovels: a shoveler of snow; a fast shoveler. 2. A widely distributed duck (Anas clypeata) that lives chiefly in marshes and has a long, broad bill fringed with bristles, which it uses to strain food from mud and water.

shov-el-ful (shŭv'əl-fŏl') n. The amount that a shovel can hold.

shovel hat (shŭv'əl hät) n. A stiff, broad-brimmed, low-crowned hat, turned up at the sides and projecting in front, worn by some English clergymen.

shov-el-head (shŭv'əl-hĕd') n. A small hammerhead shark (Sphyrna tiburo), the head of which looks like a rounded spade, that is found in shallow waters of the Atlantic and Pacific.

shov-el-ler (shŭv'ə-lər, shŭv'lər) n. Variant of shoveler.

shov-el-nose (shŭv'əl-nōz') n. A sturgeon (Scaphirhynchus platyrhynchus) of the Mississippi River, having a broad flat snout. Also called hackleback, shovel-nosed sturgeon.

shov-el-nosed (shŭv'əl-nōzd') adj. Having a broad, flattened snout, bill, or head.

shovel-nosed sturgeon (shŭv'əl-nōzd' stŭr'jən) n. See shovel-nose.

show (shō) v. showed, shown (shōn) or showed, show-ing, shows. — v. tr. 1. a. To cause or allow to be seen; display. b. To display for sale, in exhibition, or in competition: showed her most recent paintings. 2. To conduct; guide: showed them to the table. 3. To direct one's attention to; point out: show them the biggest squash in the garden. 4. To manifest (an emotion or a condition, for example); reveal: showed displeasure at his remark; a carpet that shows wear. 5. To permit access to (a house, for example) when offering for sale or rent. 6. To reveal (oneself) as in one's behavior or condition: The old boat showed itself to be seaworthy. 7. To indicate; register: The altimeter showed that the plane was descending. 8. a. To demonstrate by reasoning or procedure: showed that the hypothesis was wrong; a film that showed how to tune a piano. b. To demonstrate to by reasoning or procedure; inform or prove to: showed him how to fix the camera; showed her that it could really happen. 9. To grant; bestow: showed no mercy to the traitors. 10. Law. To plead; allege: show cause. — v. intr. 1. To be or become visible or evident. 2. Slang. To make an appearance; show up: didn't show for her appointment. 3. a. To be exhibited publicly: What's showing at the movie theater tonight? b. To give a performance or present an exhibition.

4. Sports. To finish third or better in a horserace or dog race. — n. 1. A display; a manifestation: made a show of strength. 2. a. A trace or an indication, as of oil in a well. b. The discharge of bloody mucus from the vagina indicating the start of labor. c. The first discharge of blood in menstruation. 3. A false appearance; a pretense: only a show of kindness. 4. a. A striking appearance or display; a spectacle. b. A pompous or ostentatious display. 5. Display or outward appearance: This antique tea service is just for show. His smile was for show. 6. a. A public exhibition or entertainment. b. A radio or television program. c. A movie. d. A theatrical troupe or company. 7. Informal. An affair or undertaking: ran the whole show. 8. Sports. Third place at the finish, as in a horserace. — phrasal verbs. show off. To display or behave in an ostentatious or conspicuous way. show up. 2. To be clearly visible. 3. To put in an appearance; arrive. 4. To expose or reveal the true character or nature of: showed their efforts up as a waste of time. 5. Informal. To surpass, as in ability or intelligence. — idioms. get the show on the road. Slang. To get started. show (one's) hand. 2. Games. To display one's cards with faces up. 3. To state one's intentions or reveal one's resources, especially when previously hidden. show (one's) heels. To depart from quickly; flee. show (someone) a good time. To occupy (someone) with amusing things; entertain. [Middle English sheuen, shouen, from Old English scēawian, to look at, display. See keu- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: show, display, expose, parade, exhibit, flaunt. These verbs mean to present something to view. Show is the most general: The jeweler showed the necklace to the customer. “She hated to show her feelings” (John Galsworthy). Display often suggests an attempt to present something to best advantage: The dealer spread the rug out to display the pattern. “Few ‘letters home’ of successful men or women display the graces of modesty and self-forgetfulness” (H.G. Wells). Expose usually involves uncovering something or bringing it out from concealment: The excavation exposed a staggering number of Bronze Age artifacts. The term can often imply revelation of something better left concealed: His comment exposed his insensitivity. Parade usually suggests a pretentious or boastful presentation: “He early discovered that, by parading his unhappiness before the multitude, he produced an immense sensation” (Macaulay). Exhibit implies open presentation that invites inspection: “The works of art, by being publicly exhibited and offered for sale, are becoming articles of trade” (Prince Albert). Flaunt implies an unabashed, prideful, often arrogant display: “Every great hostelry flaunted the flag of some foreign potentate” (John Dos Passos). See also Synonyms at appear show-and-tell or show and tell (shō'ən-tĕl') n. 1. An educational activity in which a child displays an object to the class and talks about it. 2. A public presentation or display.

show bill (shō bĭl) n. An advertising poster.

show biz (shō bĭz) n. Slang. Show business. —show/-biz', show/biz'

(shō'biz') adj.

show·boat (shō'bōt') n. 1. Nautical. A river steamboat having a troupe of performers and a theater aboard for performances on the river. 2. One who seeks attention by ostentatious behavior; a showoff. — v. intr. show·boat·ed, show·boat·ing, show·boats. To show off.

show·bread (shō'brēd') n. The 12 loaves of blessed unleavened bread placed every Sabbath in the sanctuary of the Tabernacle as an offering by the Hebrew priests of ancient Israel. [Translation of German Schaubrot (Schau, sight, show + Brot, bread), translation of Greek artoi enōpioi (artoi, pl. of artos, loaf of bread + enōpioi, pl. of enōpios, facing), translation of Hebrew leḥem pānîm (leḥem, bread + pānîm, divine presence).]

show business (shō bĭz'nĭs) n. The entertainment industry.

show·case (shō'kās') n. 1. A display case or cabinet, as in a store or museum. 2. A setting in which someone or something may be displayed, especially to advantage. — v. tr. show·cased, show·cas·ing, show·cas·es. Usage Problem. To display prominently, especially to advantage.

USAGE NOTE: In theatrical language a showcase is a production designed to display usually unknown performers, and the verb showcase is used to refer to the act of exposure, whether of new talent—“His productions showcased black singers but didn’t cut them in on the lucrative action” (James Wolcott)—or of established stars—“[The producer] has crafted backgrounds which perfectly showcase [the singer’s] vocals and driving rhythm guitar” (Elijah Wald). Like other show business jargon, such as the verb use of premiere, this usage is properly exempt from criticism; we expect from P.T. Barnum a measure of exaggeration and grammatical license that we might not accept in other kinds of linguistic commerce. But since its inception in the 1940’s, the verb has acquired a wider pattern of use. It is applied to the exposure of athletes and to the display of products: “Recruiters promise a proud young man that he’ll be a starter and a star, showcased for the pro scouts” (Pete Axthelm). “In the financial services section, stock-trading desks had been set up showcasing [the company’s] computers” (Boston Globe). “Other recent first ladies also showcased American clothing” (Paula Span). “The South Koreans... hope the Olympics will... showcase their country’s breathtaking economic progress” (Nancy Cooper). These uses clearly preserve the metaphoric sense of a showcase in which a commodity is displayed to advantage. But other uses of the verb take it further from its original sense. It is used to mean simply “to hold up to admiration,” even when the object is not something that can be hired or purchased: “I feel great because Project Excellence is going to honor, to showcase, these youngsters who have risen above ridicule, hung in against myriad handicaps, and shown that they can be the best” (Carl T. Rowan). Still more opaque is use of the verb to mean simply “to expose to public view,” even when its object is neither admirable nor desirable: “The Democrats were going to showcase all the wretchedness and decay and insolvency as a symbol of Republican not-so-benign neglect” (Chicago Tribune). In this sense the verb is sometimes applied even to unintended exposure: “But his news conference showcased once again his propensity for self-inflicted wounds” (Newsweek). In these last two usages the verb no longer has any connection to the idea of a showcase, nor does it retain any hint of its theatrical character. The development of the verb nicely exemplifies the process whereby metaphors are eviscerated after death.

show-down (shō'doun') n. 1. An event, especially a confrontation, that forces an issue to a conclusion. 2. Games. The laying down of the players' cards face up to determine the winner of the pot in poker.

show-er¹ (shou'ər) n. 1. A brief fall of precipitation, such as rain, hail, or sleet. 2. A fall of a group of objects, especially from the sky: a meteor shower; a shower of leaves. 3. An abundant flow; an outpouring: a shower of praise. 4. A party held to honor and present gifts to someone: a bridal shower. 5. a. A bath in which the water is sprayed on the bather in fine streams from a showerhead, usually secured overhead: take a shower. b. The stall or tub in which such a bath is taken. — v. show-ered, show-er-ing, show-ers. — v. tr. 1. To pour down in a shower: showered confetti on the parade. 2. To cover with or as if with a shower. 3. To bestow abundantly or liberally. See Synonyms at barrage². — v. intr. 1. To fall or pour down in or as if in a shower. 2. To wash oneself in a shower. [Middle English shour, from Old English scūr.] — show'er-y adj.

show-er² (shō'ər) n. One that shows: a shower of thoroughbred horses; a shower of great affection.

show-er bath (shou'ər bāth) n. A shower: After a shower bath you will feel refreshed.

show-er-head (shou'ər-hĕd') n. A perforated nozzle for spraying water on a bather taking a shower.

show-girl (shō'gûrl') n. A woman, typically attired in an elaborately decorated costume, who performs in a musical or theatrical production.

show-ing (shō'ing) n. 1. The act of presenting or displaying. 2. Performance, as in a competition or test of skill: a poor showing. 3. A presentation of evidence, facts, or figures.

show-man (shō'mən) n. 1. A theatrical producer. 2. A man who has a flair for dramatic or ostentatious behavior. — show'man-ship' n.

shown (shōn) v. A past participle of show.

show-off (shō'ōf', -ōf') n. 1. The act of showing off. 2. One who shows off.

show·piece (shō'pēs') n. Something exhibited, especially as an outstanding example of its kind.

show place also show·place (shō'plās') n. 1. A place, such as a house or an estate, that is viewed and frequented for its beauty or historical noteworthiness. 2. A beautiful or ornate place.

show room (shō rōom) n. A large room in which merchandise is displayed.

show·stop·per (shō'stöp'ər) n. Informal. 1. A performance or performer that evokes so much applause from the audience that the show is temporarily interrupted. 2. A particularly arresting person or thing, especially one that draws attention away from others or brings a course of action to a halt. —show's-top'ping adj.

show·time or show time (shō'tīm') n. 1. The time at which an entertainment, such as the showing of a movie, is scheduled to start. 2. Slang. The time at which an activity is to begin.

show·y (shō'ē) adj. show·i·er, show·i·est. 1. Making an imposing or aesthetically pleasing display; striking: showy flowers. 2. Displaying brilliance and virtuosity of ability or performance: a showy violin solo. 3. Marked by or prone to ostentatious, often tasteless display; flashy. —show'i·ly adv. —show'i·ness n.

SYNONYMS: showy, flamboyant, ostentatious, pretentious, splashy. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “marked by striking, often excessively conspicuous display”: a cheap, showy rhinestone bracelet; an entertainer's flamboyant personality; an ostentatious sable coat; a pretentious scholarly edition; a splashy advertising campaign.

shp or s.hp. abbr. Shaft horsepower.

shpt. abbr. Shipment.

shr. abbr. Share.

shrank (shrängk) v. A past tense of shrink.

shrap·nel (shräp'nəl) n. pl. shrapnel. 1. a. An artillery shell containing metal balls fused to explode in the air above enemy troops. b. The metal balls in such a weapon. 2. Shell fragments from a high-explosive shell. [After Henry Shrapnel (1761-1842), British army officer.]

WORD HISTORY: Henry Shrapnel received no compensation for the invention named after him other than having his name live on in connection with it. This deadly artillery shell, invented by Shrapnel, a British artillery officer, in his spare time and at his own expense, was given its first test in South America during the British seizure of part of Suriname (1799-1802), but shrapnel came into its own during the Peninsular War (1808-1814) between Great Britain, Spanish guerrillas, Portugal, and Napoleonic France. Shrapnel's shell was first officially called the spherical case shot, but it seems that early on it was called the shrapnel shell as well (first recorded in 1806), and this was the name eventually adopted by the British army. The word shrapnel came to be used by itself as a collective noun, and even though the shrapnel shell is no longer used, people have for some time (first recorded in 1940) called the fragments from a shell, mine, or bomb shrapnel, thus ensuring the continued existence, if not the immortality, of Henry Shrapnel's name.

shred (shrĕd) n. 1. A long, irregular strip cut or torn off. 2. A small amount; a particle: not a shred of evidence. — v. tr. shred·ded or shred, shred·ding, shreds. To cut or tear into shreds. [Middle English shrede, from Old English scrĕade.] —shred'der n.

Shreve·port (shrĕv'pōrt', -pōrt') A city of northwest Louisiana on the Red River near the Texas border. Founded in the 1830's, it grew rapidly after the discovery of oil in the region (1906). Population, 198,525.

shrew (shrō) n. 1. Any of various small, chiefly insectivorous mammals of the family Soricidae, resembling a mouse but having a long, pointed snout and small eyes and ears. Also called shrewmouse 2. A woman with a violent, scolding, or nagging temperament; a scold. [Middle English shrewe, villian, from Old English scrĕawa, shrewmouse.]

shrewd (shrōd) adj. shrewd·er, shrewd·est. 1. Characterized by keen awareness, sharp intelligence, and often a sense of the practical. 2. Disposed to artful and cunning practices; tricky. 3. Sharp; penetrating: a shrewd wind. [Middle English shrewed, wicked, from shrew, rascal. See SHREW.] —shrewd'ly adv.

SYNONYMS: shrewd, sagacious, astute, perspicacious. These adjectives mean having or showing keen awareness, sound judgment, and often resourcefulness, especially in practical matters. Shrewd suggests a sharp intelligence, hardheadedness, and often an intuitive grasp of practical considerations: "He was too shrewd to go along with them upon a road which could lead only to their overthrow" (J.A. Froude). Sagacious connotes prudence, circumspection, discernment, and far-sightedness: "He was observant and thoughtful, and given to asking sagacious questions" (John Galt). Astute suggests shrewdness, canniness, and an immunity to being misled: An astute tenant always reads the small print in a lease. Perspicacious implies penetration and clear-sightedness: She is much too perspicacious to be taken in by such a spurious argument. See also Synonyms at clever shrewd·ness (shrōd'nīs) n. 1. The quality of being shrewd. 2. An aggregation of apes. See Synonyms at flock¹.

shrew-ish (shrōō'ish) adj. Ill-tempered; nagging. —shrew'ish-ly adv.

—shrew'ish-ness n.

shrew mole (shrōō mōl) n. Any of several shrewlike moles of the family Talpidae, especially Neurotrichus gibbsii of western North America, Uropsilus soricipes of central Asia, and Urotrichus talpoides of Japan.

shrew-mouse (shrōō'mous') n. See shrew (n., sense 1).

Shrews-bur-y (shrōōz'bēr'ē, -bə-rē) 1. A municipal borough of western England on the Severn River west-northwest of Birmingham. An ancient Saxon and Norman stronghold, it is now a transportation hub with varied industries. Population, 60,400. 2. A town of central Massachusetts, a manufacturing suburb of Worcester. Population, 24,146.

shriek (shrēk) n. 1. A shrill, often frantic cry. 2. A sound suggestive of such a cry. — v. shrieked, shriek-ing, shrieks. — v. intr. 1. To utter a shriek. 2. To make a sound similar to a shriek. — v. tr. To utter with a shriek. See Synonyms at screech. [Middle English skriken, shriken, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skrækja.] —shriek'er n.

shrie-val (shrē'vəl) adj. Of or relating to a sheriff. [From obsolete shrieve, variant of SHERIFF.] —shrie'val-ty n.

shrift (shrīft) n. Archaic. 1. The act of shriving. 2. Confession to a priest. 3. Absolution given by a priest. [Middle English, from Old English scrift, from Latin scrīptum, something written, from neuter past participle of scrībere, to write. See SHRIVE.]

shrike (shrik) n. Any of various carnivorous oscine birds of the family Laniidae, having a screeching call and a strong hooked bill with a toothlike projection and often impaling its prey on sharp-pointed thorns or barbs of wire fencing. [Probably from Middle English shrik*, from Old English scrīc, thrush.]

shrill (shrīl) adj. shrill-er, shrill-est. 1. High-pitched and piercing in tone or sound: the shrill wail of a siren. 2. Producing a sharp, high-pitched tone or sound: a shrill fife. 3. Sharp or keen to the senses; harshly vivid: shrill colors. — v. shrilled, shrill-ing, shrills. — v. tr. To utter in a shrill manner; scream. — v. intr. To produce a shrill cry or sound. [Middle English shrille.] —shrill'-ness n. —shrill'ly adv.

shrimp (shrimp) n. pl. shrimp or shrimps. 1. a. Any of various small, chiefly marine decapod crustaceans of the suborder Natantia, many species of which are edible, having a compressed or elongated body with a well-developed abdomen, long legs and antennae, and a long spinelike projection of the carapace. b. Any of various similar crustaceans, such as certain isopods and amphipods. 2. Slang. a. A person regarded as unimportant. b. A person who is small in stature. — v. intr. shrimped, shrimp-ing, shrimps. To fish for shrimp. [Middle English shrimpe, possibly of Low German origin.] —shrimp'er n.

shrimp-fish (shrĭmp'fĭsh') n. pl. shrimpfish or shrimp-fish-es. Any of various small, slender tropical marine fishes of the family Centriscidae, related to the sea horses and pipefish.

shrine (shrĭn) n. 1. A container or receptacle for sacred relics; a reliquary.

2. a. The tomb of a venerated person, such as a saint. b. A place at which devotion is paid to a venerated person. 3. A site hallowed by a venerated object or its associations: Independence Hall, shrine of American liberty. — v. tr. shrined, shrin-ing, shrines. To enshrine. [Middle English, from Old English scrĭn, box, from Latin scrĭnium, case for books or papers.]

Shrin-er (shrĭ'nər) n. A member of a U.S. secret fraternal order that is not Masonic but that admits only Knights Templars and 32nd-degree Masons as members. [After the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, their fraternal order.]

shrink (shrĭngk) v. shrank (shrängk) or shrunk (shrŭngk), shrunk or shrunk-en (shrŭng'kən), shrink-ing, shrinks. — v. intr. 1. To become constricted from heat, moisture, or cold. See Synonyms at contract. 2. To become reduced in amount or value; dwindle: His savings quickly shrank. 3. To draw back instinctively, as from something alarming; recoil. See Synonyms at recoil. 4. To show reluctance; hesitate: shrink from making such a sacrifice. — v. tr. To cause to shrink. — n. 1. a. The act of shrinking. b. The degree to which something shrinks; shrinkage. 2. Slang. A psychiatrist. [Middle English shrinken, to wither, shrivel up, from Old English scrincan. See sker⁻² in Appendix.]

—shrink'a-ble adj. —shrink'er n.

shrink-age (shrĭng'kĭj) n. 1. The process of shrinking. 2. The amount or proportion by which something shrinks. 3. A reduction in value; depreciation. 4. The total weight loss sustained by livestock in shipment to a market. 5. Loss of merchandise, especially through theft.

shrink-ing violet (shrĭng'kĭng vĭ'ə-lĭt) n. Informal. A shy or retiring person.

shrink-wrap (shrĭngk'răp') n. A protective wrapping for articles of merchandise consisting of a clear plastic film that is wound about the articles and then shrunk by heat to form a sealed, tight-fitting package. Also called shrink package — v. tr. shrink--wrapped, shrink--wrap-ping, shrink--wraps. To wrap (an article of merchandise) in protective clear plastic film.

shrive (shrĭv) v. shrove (shrōv) or shrived, shriv-en (shrĭv'ən) or shrived, shriv-ing, shrives. — v. tr. 1. To hear the confession of and give absolution to (a penitent). 2. To obtain absolution for (oneself) by confessing and doing penance. — v. intr. Archaic. 1. To make or go to confession. 2. To hear confessions. [Middle English shriven, from Old English scrĭfan, from Latin scrĭbere, to write. See skrĭbh- in Appendix.] —shriv'er n.

shriv-el (shrĭv'əl) v. intr. tr. shriv-eled or shriv-elled, shriv-el-ing or shriv-el-ling, shriv-els or shriv-els. 1. To become or make shrunken and wrinkled, often by drying: Leaves die, fall, and shrivel. The heat shriveled the unwatered seedlings. 2. To lose or cause to lose vitality or intensity: My enthusiasm shriveled as the project wore on. Inflation shriveled the buying power of the dollar. 3. To become or make much less or smaller; dwindle. [Origin unknown.]

shriv·en (shrĭv'ən) v. A past participle of shrive.

Shropshire¹ (shröp'shîr', -shər) A historical region of western England on the Welsh border. It was part of the kingdom of Mercia during Anglo-Saxon times.

Shropshire² (shröp'shîr', -shər, -shîr') n. A large, hornless, black-faced sheep of a breed developed in Shropshire and raised for meat and wool.

shroud (shroud) n. 1. A cloth used to wrap a body for burial; a winding sheet.

2. Something that conceals, protects, or screens: under a shroud of fog.

3. a. Nautical. One of a set of ropes or wire cables stretched from the masthead to the sides of a vessel to support the mast. b. A similar supporting line for a smokestack or comparable structure. c. One of the ropes connecting the harness and the canopy of a parachute. — v. shroud·ed, shroud·ing, shrouds. —

v. tr. 1. To wrap (a corpse) in burial clothing. 2. To shut off from sight; screen.

See Synonyms at block. 3. Archaic. To shelter; protect. — v. intr. Archaic. To take cover; find shelter. [Middle English, garment, from Old English scrūd.]

shrove (shrōv) v. A past tense of shrive.

Shrove Monday (shrōv mūn'dē) n. The Monday before Ash Wednesday.

Shrove Sunday (shrōv sūn'dē) n. The Sunday before Ash Wednesday.

Shrove-tide (shrōv'tīd') n. The three days, Shrove Sunday, Shrove Monday, and Shrove Tuesday, preceding Ash Wednesday. [Middle English shroftide : shrof-, shriving (from shriven, to shrive); see SHRIVE + tid, time; see TIDE¹.]

Shrove Tuesday (shrōv tōoz'dē) n. The day before Ash Wednesday.

shrub¹ (shrüb) n. A woody plant of relatively low height, having several stems arising from the base and lacking a single trunk; a bush. [Middle English shrubbe, from Old English scrybb. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

shrub² (shrüb) n. A beverage made from fruit juice, sugar, and a liquor such as rum or brandy. [From Arabic šurb, a drink, from šariba, to drink.]

shrub·ber·y (shrüb'ə-rē) n. pl. shrub·ber·ies. A group or planting of shrubs.

shrub·by (shrüb'ē) adj. shrub·bi·er, shrub·bi·est. 1. Consisting of, planted with, or covered with shrubs. 2. Of or resembling a shrub. — shrub'bi·ness n.

shrug (shrüg) v. shrugged, shrug·ging, shrugs. — v. tr. To raise (the shoulders), especially as a gesture of doubt, disdain, or indifference. — v. intr. To raise the shoulders, especially as a gesture of doubt, disdain, or indifference.

— n. 1. An expressive gesture of raising the shoulders. 2. A woman's short jacket or sweater open down the front. — phrasal verb. shrug off. 1. To minimize the importance of: shrugged off the defeat and talked about tonight's game.

2. To get rid of: shrug off a burden. 3. To wriggle out of (clothing). [Middle English shruggen.]

shrunk (shrŭngk) v. A past tense and a past participle of shrink.

shrunk-en (shrŭng'kən) v. A past participle of shrink.

sht. abbr. Sheet.

shtetl (shtët'l, shtät'l) n. A small Eastern European Jewish community of former times. [Yiddish, from Middle High German stetel, diminutive of stat, town, from Old High German, place. See stā- in Appendix.]

shtick also schtick or shtik (shtik) n. Slang. 1. A characteristic attribute, talent, or trait that is helpful in securing recognition or attention: tried a new shtick in restaurant design. 2. An entertainment routine or gimmick. [Yiddish shtik, piece, routine, from Middle High German stücke, piece, from Old High German stukki, crust, fragment.]

Shu·bert (shōō'bərt), Lee. 1873?-1953. American producer and theatrical manager. With his brothers Sam (1876-1905) and Jacob (1880-1963) he formed a chain of theaters in a number of cities, most notably the Shubert Theater (opened 1913) in New York City.

Shu·bra al Khay·mah (shōō-brä'äl kī-mä', -mäKH') A city of northeast Egypt, an industrial suburb of Cairo. Population, 515,500.

shuck (shŭk) n. 1. a. A husk, pod, or shell, as of an ear of corn, a pea, or a hickory nut. b. The shell of an oyster or a clam. 2. Informal. Something worthless. Often used in the plural: an issue that didn't amount to shucks. — v. tr.

shucked, shuck-ing, shucks. 1. To remove the husk or shell from.

2. Informal. To cast off: shucked their coats and cooled off; a city trying to shuck a sooty image. — interj. also shucks (shŭks) Used to express mild disappointment, disgust, or annoyance. [Origin unknown.] —shuck'er n.

shud·der (shŭd'ər) v. intr. shud·dered, shud·der-ing, shud·ders. 1. To shiver convulsively, as from fear or revulsion. See Synonyms at shake. 2. To vibrate; quiver: The airplane shuddered in the turbulence. — n. A convulsive shiver, as from fear or revulsion; a tremor. [Middle English shodderen, perhaps of Middle Dutch or Middle Low German origin.] —shud'der-ing-ly adv.

shuf·fle (shŭf'lə) v. shuf·fled, shuf·fling, shuf·files. — v. tr. 1. To slide (the feet) along the floor or ground while walking. 2. To move (something) from one place to another; transfer or shift. 3. To put aside or under cover quickly; shunt: shuffled the bill under a pile of junk mail. 4. To mix together; jumble. 5. Games. To mix together (playing cards, tiles, or dominoes) so as to make a random order of arrangement. — v. intr. 1. To move with short sliding steps, without or barely lifting the feet: The crowd shuffled out of the theater. 2. To dance casually with sliding and tapping steps. 3. To move about from place to place; shift: shuffled around looking for work. 4. To act in a shifty or deceitful manner; equivocate. 5. Games. To mix playing cards, tiles, or dominoes together so as to make their order random. — n. 1. A short sliding step or movement, or a walk characterized by such steps. 2. A dance in which the feet slide along or move close to the floor. 3. An evasive or deceitful action; an equivocation. 4. A confused mixture; a jumble. 5. Games. a. An act of shuffling cards, dominoes, or tiles. b. A player's right or turn to do this. [Middle English shovelen, probably of Middle Dutch or Middle Low German origin.] —shuf'fler n.

shuf·fle·board (shŭf'əl-bôrd', -bôrd') n. Games. 1. A game in which disks are slid with a pronged cue along a smooth, level surface toward one of two usually triangular targets painted on the surface and divided into numbered scoring areas. 2. A surface on which this game is played. [Alteration of obsolete shoveboard: SHOVE + BOARD.]

shul (shoöl, shoöl) n. Judaism. A synagogue. [Yiddish, from Middle High German schuol, school, from Old High German scuola, from Latin scola. See SCHOOL¹.]

Shu·men (shōō'mĕn') A city of northeast Bulgaria west of Varna. Founded in 927, the city was strategically important during the Russo-Turkish Wars of the 18th and 19th centuries. Population, 107,000.

shun (shŭn) v. tr. shunned, shun·ning, shuns. To avoid deliberately; keep away from. See Synonyms at escape. [Middle English shunnen, from Old English scunian, to abhor.] —shun'ner n.

shun·pike (shŭn'pĭk') n. A side road taken to avoid the tolls or traffic of a turnpike. — v. intr. shun·piked, shun·pik·ing, shun·pikes. To travel on side roads, avoiding turnpikes. —shun'pik'er n.

shunt (shŭnt) n. 1. The act or process of turning aside or moving to an alternate course. 2. A railroad switch. 3. Electricity. A low-resistance connection between two points in an electric circuit that forms an alternative path for a portion of the current. Also called bypass. 4. Medicine. A passage between two natural body channels, such as blood vessels, especially one created surgically to divert or permit flow from one pathway or region to another; a bypass. — v. shunt·ed, shunt·ing, shunts. — v. tr. 1. To turn or move aside or onto another course: shunting traffic around an accident. 2. To evade by putting aside or ignoring: urgent problems that society can no longer shunt aside. 3. To switch (a train or car) from one track to another. 4. Electricity. To provide or divert (current) by means of a shunt. — v. intr. 1. To move or turn aside. 2. Electricity. To become diverted by means of a shunt. Used of a circuit. [Middle English shunten, to flinch.] —shunt'er n.

shush (shŭsh) interj. Used to express a demand for silence. — v. tr. shushed, shush·ing, shush·es. To demand silence from by saying "shush": "Simon shushed him quickly as though he had spoken too loudly in church" (William Golding).

shut (shŭt) v. shut, shut-ting, shuts. — v. tr. 1. To move (a door or lid, for example) so as to block passage through an opening. 2. To block entrance to or exit from; close: shut a corridor. 3. To fasten with a lock, catch, or latch. 4. To confine in or as if in a closed space: shut them in a cage. 5. To exclude from or as if from a closed space: shut the cats out of the house. 6. To cause to stop operating: shut down a restaurant; a school that was shut for the vacation. — v. intr. 1. To move or become moved so as to block passage; close: a door that shuts by itself. 2. To stop operating, especially automatically: The electricity shuts off at midnight. — n. 1. The act or time of shutting. 2. The line of connection between welded pieces of metal. — phrasal verbs. shut off. 1. To stop the flow or passage of; cut off: shut off the hot water by closing a valve. 2. To close off; isolate: loners who shut themselves off from the community. shut out. Sports. To prevent (an opponent) from scoring any runs or points. shut up. 4. To cause (someone) to stop speaking; silence. 5. To stop speaking. — idiom. shut (one's) eyes to. To refuse to consider or acknowledge: administrators who shut their eyes to pervasive corruption. [Middle English shutten, from Old English scytan. See skeud- in Appendix.]

shut-down (shŭt'doun') n. A cessation of operations or activity, as at a factory.

Shute (shōot), Nevil. Pen name of Nevil Shute Norway. 1899-1960. British writer whose novels include A Town Like Alice (1950) and On the Beach (1957), both set in Australia.

shut-eye (shŭt'ī') n. Slang. Sleep.

shut-in (shŭt'in') n. A person confined indoors by illness or disability. — adj. (shŭt-ĭn') 1. Confined to a home or hospital, as by illness. 2. Disposed to avoid social contact; excessively withdrawn or introverted.

shut-off (shŭt'ɔf', -ɔf') n. 1. A device that shuts something off. 2. A stoppage; a cessation.

shut-out (shŭt'out') n. 1. See lockout. 2. Sports. A game in which one side does not score.

shut-ter (shŭt'ər) n. 1. One that shuts, as: a. A hinged cover or screen for a window, usually fitted with louvers. b. A mechanical device of a camera that controls the duration of a photographic exposure, as by opening and closing to allow light coming through the lens to expose a plate or film. 2. shutters.

Music. The movable louvers on a pipe organ, controlled by pedals, that open and close the swell box. — v. tr. shut-tered, shut-ter-ing, shut-ters. 1. To furnish or close with shutters: locked the doors and shuttered the windows. 2. To cause to cease operations; close down: shuttered the store for the holiday.

shut-ter-bug (shŭt'ər-bŭg') n. Informal. An enthusiastic amateur photographer.

shut-tle (shŭt'1) n. 1. A device used in weaving to carry the woof thread back and forth between the warp threads. 2. A device for holding the thread in tatting and netting and in a sewing machine. 3. a. Regular travel back and forth over an established, often short route by a vehicle. b. A vehicle used in such travel: took the shuttle across town. c. A route used by a vehicle in such travel: the Washington-New York air shuttle. 4. A space shuttle. 5. Travel between disputing parties by a diplomatic intermediary. — v. shut-tled, shut-tling, shut-tles. — v. intr. To go, move, or travel back and forth by or as if by a shuttle: business people who shuttle between European capitals. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move back and forth frequently. 2. To transport by or as if by a shuttle: shuttle a scientific payload to an orbiting space station. [Middle English shutille, from Old English scytel, dart. See skeud- in Appendix.] — shut'tler n.

shut-tle-cock (shŭt'1-kök') n. Sports. A small rounded piece of cork or rubber with a conical crown of feathers or plastic, used in badminton. Also called bird, birdie. — v. tr. shut-tle-cocked, shut-tle-cock-ing, shut-tle-cocks. To throw or send back and forth like a shuttlecock.

shut-tle-craft (shŭt'1-kräft') n. A reusable space vehicle for transporting astronauts or material back and forth; a space shuttle.

shuttle diplomacy (shŭt'1 dī-plō'mə-sē) n. Diplomatic negotiations conducted by an official intermediary who travels frequently between the nations involved. — shuttle diplomat n.

shy¹ (shī) adj. shy-er (shī'ər) or shy-er, shy-est (shī'ɪst) or shy-est. 1. Easily startled; timid. 2. a. Drawing back from contact or familiarity with others; retiring or reserved. b. Marked by reserve or diffidence: a shy glance. 3. Distrustful; wary: shy of strangers. 4. Not having paid an amount due, as one's ante in poker. 5. Short; lacking: Eleven is one shy of a dozen. — v. intr. shied (shīd), shy-ing, shies (shīz). 1. To move suddenly, as if startled; start. 2. To draw back, as from fear or caution; recoil. — n. pl. shies (shīz). A sudden movement, as from fright; a start. [Middle English shei, from Old English scēoh.] — shy'er n. — shy'ly adv. — shy'ness n.

SYNONYMS: shy, bashful, diffident, modest, coy, demure. These adjectives mean not forward but marked by a retiring nature, reticence, or a reserve of manner. One who is shy draws back from others, either because of a withdrawn nature or out of timidity: "The poor man was shy and hated society" (George Bernard Shaw). Bashful suggests self-consciousness or awkwardness in the presence of others: "I never laughed, being bashful./Lowering my head, I looked at the wall" (Ezra Pound). Diffident implies lack of self-confidence: He was too diffident to express his opinion. Modest is associated with an unassertive nature, absence of vanity, and freedom from pretension: Despite her fame she remained the modest, unassuming person she had been as a student. Coy usually implies feigned, often flirtatious shyness: “yielded with coy submission” (John Milton). Demure often denotes an affected shyness or modesty: “I really don’t know how to write a check,” she said, with a demure sidelong glance.

shy² (shī) v. shied (shīd), shy-ing, shies (shīz). — v. tr. To throw (something) with a swift motion; fling. — v. intr. To throw something with a swift motion. — n. pl. shies (shīz). 1. A quick throw; a fling. 2. Informal. A gibe; a sneer. 3. Informal. An attempt; a try. [Perhaps from SHY¹.]

shy-lock (shī'lōk') n. 1. A ruthless moneylender; a loan shark. 2. Shylock. The ruthless usurer in Shakespeare’s play The Merchant of Venice. — v. intr. shy-locked, shy-lock-ing, shy-locks. To lend money at exorbitant interest rates.

shy-ster (shī'stər) n. Slang. An unethical, unscrupulous practitioner, especially of law. [Probably alteration of German Scheisser, son of a bitch, bastard, from scheissen, to defecate, from Middle High German schīzen, from Old High German skīzzan. See skei- in Appendix.] —shy/ster-ism n.

WORD HISTORY: The origin of shyster was not known for certain until recently. According to one etymology, shyster comes from the surname of one Scheuster, a disreputable and almost certainly nonexistent mid-19th-century attorney. In his book Human Words, a collection of words formed from the names of people, Robert Hendrickson says that Dr. Henry Bosley Woolf and others “list the New York advocate as a possible source.” But the actual etymology, according to Gerald L. Cohen, a student of the word, is less flattering. According to this etymology, the word is derived from the German term scheisser, meaning literally “one who defecates,” from the verb scheissen, “to defecate,” with the English suffix -ster, “one who does,” substituted for the German suffix -er, meaning the same thing. Scheisser, which is chiefly a pejorative term, is the German equivalent of our English terms bastard and son of a bitch. Scheisser is generally thought to have been borrowed directly into English as the word shicer, which, among other things, is an Australian English term for an unproductive mine or claim, a sense that is also recorded for the word shyster.

si (sē) n. Music. Ti. [Italian, from Medieval Latin. See GAMUT.]

Si The symbol for the element silicon.

SI abbr. French. Système International [d’Unités] (International System [of Units]).

si-a-bon (sē'ə-bən) n. The hybrid offspring of a male gibbon and a female siamang. [SIA(MANG) + (GIB)BON.]

si-al (sī'āl') n. Rock rich in silicon and aluminum forming the upper layer of the earth’s crust beneath all continental landmasses. [SI(LICON) + AL(UMINUM).]

si·a·lad·en·i·tis (sī'ə-lăd'n-ī'tīs) n. Inflammation of a salivary gland. [Greek sialon, saliva + ADENITIS.]

si·al·a·gogue (sī-ăl'ə-gôg', -gôg') n. A drug or other agent that increases the flow of saliva. [Greek sialon, saliva + -AGOGUE.] —si'al·a·gog'ic (sī'ə-lə-gôj'ik) adj.

si·al·ic acid (sī-ăl'ik əs'īd) n. Any of a group of amino carbohydrates that are components of mucoproteins and glycoproteins, especially in animal tissue and blood cells. [Greek sialon, saliva + -IC.]

Si·al·kot (sē-ăl'kô't') A city of northeast Pakistan north of Lahore. It is a trade and processing center. Population, 252,000.

si·a·lo·mu·cin (sī'ə-lō-myōō'sīn, sī-ăl'ō-) n. A mucin containing sialic acid. [Greek sialon, saliva + MUCIN.]

si·al·or·rhe·a also si·al·or·rhe·a (sī-ăl'ə-rē'ə) n. An excessive secretion of saliva. [Greek sialon, saliva + -RRHEA.]

Si·am (sī-ăm') See Thailand.

si·a·mang (sē'ə-măng', sē-ăm'əng) n. A large black gibbon (Symphalangus syndactylus or Hylobates syndactylus) of Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula, having an inflatable throat sac and a web of skin joining the second and third toes. [Malay.]

Si·a·mese (sī'ə-mēz', -mēs') adj. 1. Of or relating to Siam; Thai. 2. Closely connected or very similar; twin. 3. siamese. Of or being a Y-shaped dual connection between two pipes or hoses and a larger pipe or hose. — n. pl.

Siamese. 1. A native or inhabitant of Siam; a Thai. 2. The Thai language. [After Siam (Thailand).]

Siamese cat (sī'ə-mēz' kăt) n. A shorthaired cat of a breed developed in the Far East, having blue eyes and a pale fawn or gray coat with darker ears, face, tail, and feet.

Siamese fighting fish (sī'ə-mēz' fī'tīng fīsh) n. A small, often brightly colored, aggressive freshwater fish (Betta splendens) native to Malaysia and Thailand that has large fins and tail and is popular in home aquariums.

Siamese twin (sī'ə-mēz' twīn) n. Either of a pair of identical twins born with their bodies joined at some point, a result of the incomplete division of the ovum from which the twins developed. [After Chang and Eng (1811-1874), joined Chinese twins born in Siam (Thailand).]

Si·an (sē'ăn', shē'-) See Xi'an.

Siang Kiang (syăng' kyăng', shyăng') See Xiang Jiang.

Siang-tan (syăng'tăn', shyăng'-) See Xiangtan.

Šiau·liai (shyou'lyī') A city of northern Lithuania northwest of Vilnius. Under the control of the Polish crown from 1589 until 1772, it passed to Russia in 1795. Population, 134,000.

sib (sīb) n. 1. a. A blood relation; a relative. b. A person's relatives considered as a group; kinfolk. 2. A brother or sister; a sibling. 3. Anthropology. A kinship group consisting of two or more lineages considered as being related, as by common descent from a mythic ancestor. — adj. Related by blood; kindred. [Middle English sibbe, from Old English sibb. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

Sib. abbr. 1. Siberia. 2. Siberian.

Si-be-li-us (sī-bā'lē-əs, -bāl'yəs), Jean. 1865-1957. Finnish composer whose romantic, nationalistic works include the symphonic poems Finlandia (1899) and Valse Triste (1903).

Si-be-ri-a¹ (sī-bīr'ē-ə) Abbr. Sib. A region central and eastern Russia stretching from the Ural Mountains to the Pacific Ocean. The extensive area was annexed by Russia in stages during the 16th and 17th centuries. Used as a place of exile for political prisoners since the early 17th century, it was settled by Russians after the construction of the Trans-Siberian Railroad (completed in 1905) and developed for its mineral resources after World War II. —Si-be'ri-an adj. & n.

Si-be-ri-a² (sī-bīr'ē-ə) n. A remote, undesirable locale: “found herself not at the State House but exiled to the Registry of Motor Vehicles—the Siberia of state government” (Howie Carr).

Siberian husky (sī-bīr'ē-ən hūs'kē) n. See husky³ (n., sense 1).

sib-i-lant (sīb'ə-lənt) Linguistics. adj. Of, characterized by, or producing a hissing sound like that of (s) or (sh): the sibilant consonants; a sibilant bird call. — n. A sibilant speech sound, such as English (s), (sh), (z), or (zh). [Latin sībilāns, sībilant- present participle of sībilāre, to hiss.] —sib'i-lance, sib'i-lan-cy n. —sib'i-lant-ly adv.

sib-i-late (sīb'ə-lāt') v. intr. tr. sib-i-lat-ed, sib-i-lat-ing, sib-i-lates. To utter or pronounce with a hissing sound. [Latin sībilāre, sībilāt-, to hiss.] —sib'i-la-tion n.

Si-biu (sē-byō') A city of central Romania northwest of Bucharest. Settled in the 12th century by German colonists from Saxony, it was destroyed by Tartars in 1241. The rebuilt city came under Austrian control in 1699. Population, 172,117.

Sib-ley (sīb'lē), Hiram. 1807-1888. American business executive. As president of Western Union Telegraph Company (1856-1869) he established the first transcontinental telegraph line (1861).

sib-ling (sīb'lɪŋ) n. One of two or more individuals having one or both parents in common; a brother or sister. [Middle English, from Old English, from sibb, kinsman. See SIB.] sibling species (sīb'lɪŋ spē'shēz) n. Any of two or more related species that are morphologically nearly identical but are incapable of producing fertile hybrids.

Si-bu-yan Sea (sē'bō-yän' sē) A sea in the central Philippines bordered by southern Luzon, Mindoro, and the Visayan Islands.

sib·yl (sīb'əl) n. 1. One of a number of women regarded as oracles or prophets by the ancient Greeks and Romans. 2. A woman prophet. [Middle English sibile, from Old French, from Latin Sibylla, from Greek Sibulla.]

sib·yl·line (sīb'ə-līn', -lēn') also si·byl·ic or si·byl·lic (sī-bīl'ik) adj.

1. Coming from, characteristic of, or relating to a sibyl. 2. Prophetic; oracular.

sic¹ (sik) adv. Thus; so. Used in written texts to indicate that a surprising or paradoxical word, phrase, or fact is not a mistake and is to be read as it stands. [Latin sic. See so- in Appendix.]

sic² also sick (sik) v. tr. sicced also sicked, sic·cing also sick·ing, sics also sicks. 1. To set upon; attack. 2. To urge or incite to hostile action; set: sicced the dogs on the intruders. [Dialectal variant of SEEK.]

Sic. abbr. 1. Sicilian. 2. Sicily.

sic·ca·tive (sik'ə-tiv) n. A substance added to paints and some medicines to promote drying; a drier. [Late Latin siccātīvus, drying, from Latin siccātus, past participle of siccāre, to dry, from siccus, dry.]

Si·chuan also Sze·chwan or Sze·chuan (sěch'wän') A province of south-central China. Settled by non-Chinese peoples, it was incorporated into the empire (c. third century A.D.) by the Qin dynasty. Chengdu is the capital. Population, 101,800,000.

Si·ci·ly (sī'ə-lē) Abbr. Sic. An island of southern Italy in the Mediterranean Sea west of the southern end of the Italian peninsula. It was colonized from the 8th century B.C. by Greeks, who displaced the earlier Phoenician settlers. The next conquerors were Carthaginians, who in turn were conquered by Romans in the 3rd century B.C. After a succession of other rulers the island came under the control of the Normans in the 11th century A.D. and formed the nucleus of the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies, consisting of Sicily and southern Italy. The island continued to change hands until a later kingdom was conquered by Giuseppe Garibaldi in 1860 and became part of unified Italy. —Si·cil'ian (sī-sīl'yən) adj. & n.

sick¹ (sik) adj. sick·er, sick·est. 1. a. Suffering from or affected with a physical illness; ailing. b. Of or for sick persons: sick wards. c. Nauseated.

2. a. Mentally ill or disturbed. b. Unwholesome; morbid: a sick joke.

3. Defective; unsound: a sick economy. 4. a. Deeply distressed; upset: sick with worry. b. Disgusted; revolted. c. Weary; tired: sick of it all. d. Pining; longing: sick for his native land.

5. a. In need of repairs: a sick ship. b. Constituting an unhealthy environment for those working or residing within: a sick office building. 6. Unable to produce a profitable yield of crops: sick soil. —idiom. sick and tired. Thoroughly weary, discouraged, or bored. [Middle English, from Old English sēoc.]

sick² (sik) v. Variant of sic².

sick-bay (sɪk' bā') n. 1. The hospital and dispensary of a ship. 2. A place where the sick or injured are treated.

sick-bed (sɪk' bɛd') n. A sick person's bed.

sick building syndrome (sɪk bɪl' dɪŋ sɪn' drōm') n. A syndrome made up of a variety of ailments, such as headaches or breathing difficulties, that is possibly caused by such things as chemicals given off by carpets or malfunctioning ventilation systems.

sick call (sɪk kôl) n. 1. A daily lineup of military personnel requiring medical attention. 2. A signal announcing the time for such a lineup.

sick-en (sɪk' ən) v. tr. intr. sick-ened, sick-en-ing, sick-ens. To make or become sick. See Synonyms at disgust. —sick'en-er n.

sick-en-ing (sɪk' ə-nɪŋ) adj. 1. Revolting or disgusting; loathsome: a sickening stench. 2. Causing sickness. —sick'en-ing-ly adv.

sick headache (sɪk hɛd' āk') n. 1. A headache accompanied by nausea. 2. A migraine.

sick-ie (sɪk' ē) n. Slang. One who is mentally or emotionally deranged or perverted.

sick-ish (sɪk' ɪʃ) adj. 1. Somewhat sick. 2. Somewhat nauseated. 3. Somewhat revolting or nauseating. —sick'ish-ly adv. —sick'ish-ness n.

sick-le (sɪk' əl) n. 1. An implement having a semicircular blade attached to a short handle, used for cutting grain or tall grass. 2. The cutting mechanism of a reaper or mower. — v. sick-led, sick-ling, sick-les. — v. tr. 1. To cut with a sickle. 2. To deform (a red blood cell) into an abnormal crescent shape. — v. intr. To assume an abnormal crescent shape. Used of red blood cells. [Middle English sikel, from Old English sicol, from Vulgar Latin sicila*, from Latin sēcula. See sek- in Appendix.]

sick leave (sɪk lēv) n. Paid absence from work allowed an employee because of sickness.

sick-le-bill (sɪk' əl-bɪl') n. Any of several birds having long sharply curved bills, as Falcula palliata, a passerine bird of Madagascar, and Hemignathus procerus, a Hawaiian honeycreeper.

sickle cell (sɪk' əl sɛl) n. An abnormal, crescent-shaped red blood cell that results from a single change in the amino acid sequence of the cell's hemoglobin, which causes the cell to contort, especially under low-oxygen conditions.

sickle cell anemia (sɪk' əl sɛl ə-nē'mē-ə) n. A chronic, usually fatal anemia marked by crescent-shaped red blood cells, occurring almost exclusively in Black people of Africa or of African descent, and characterized by episodic pain in the joints, fever, leg ulcers, and jaundice. The disease is caused by a recessive gene. Also called sickle cell disease sickle cell trait (sɪk'əl səl trāt) n. A hereditary condition, usually harmless and without symptoms, in which an individual carries only one gene for sickle cell anemia.

sickle feather (sɪk'əl fēth'ər) n. Any of the long, curving feathers in the tail of a rooster.

sick·le·mi·a (sɪk'ə-lē'mē-ə) n. Sickle cell anemia or sickle cell trait.

Sick·les (sɪk'əlz), Daniel Edgar. 1825-1914. American Union general and politician who helped acquire the site of Central Park for New York City.

sick list (sɪk list) n. A list of sick personnel.

sick·ly (sɪk'lē) adj. sick·li·er, sick·li·est. 1. Prone to sickness. 2. Of, caused by, or associated with sickness: a sickly pallor. 3. Conducive to sickness: a sickly climate. 4. Causing nausea; nauseating. 5. Lacking vigor or strength; feeble or weak: a sickly handshake. — v. tr. sick·lied, sick·ly·ing, sick·lies. To make sickly: "Timidity... sicklies the whole cast of thought in action" (Henry Adams). —sick·li·ness n. —sick·ly, sick·li·ly adv.

sick·ness (sɪk'nɪs) n. 1. The condition of being sick; illness. 2. A disease; a malady. 3. Nausea. 4. A defective or unsound condition.

sick·o (sɪk'ō) n. pl. sick·os. Slang. One who is mentally or emotionally deranged or perverted. [From SICK¹.]

sick·out (sɪk'out') n. An organized job action in which employees absent themselves from work on the pretext of illness.

sick pay (sɪk pā) n. Wages paid to an employee who is absent because of illness.

sick·room (sɪk'rōom', -rōom') n. A room occupied by a sick person.

sic pas·sim (sɪk pās'ɪm) adv. Thus everywhere. Used to indicate that a term or an idea is to be found throughout a text. [Latin sīc passim : sīc, thus + passim, everywhere.]

Si·cy·on (sɪsh'ē-ōn', sɪs'-) An ancient city of southern Greece in the northeast Peloponnesus near the Gulf of Corinth. It reached the height of its power under the tyrant Cleisthenes in the sixth century B.C.

Sid·dons (sɪd'nz), Sarah. 1755-1831. British actress known for her Shakespearean roles, especially Lady Macbeth.

sid·dur (sɪd'ər, -ōr') n. pl. sid·du·rim (sɪ-dōr'ɪm, sɪ'dō-ɹɪm'). Judaism. A prayer book containing prayers for the various days of the year. [Hebrew siddûr, arrangement, from siddēr, to arrange.]

side (sɪd) n. 1. Mathematics. a. A line bounding a plane figure. b. A surface bounding a solid figure. 2. A surface of an object, especially a surface joining a top and bottom: the four sides of a box. 3. A surface of an object that extends more or less perpendicularly from an observer standing in front: the side of the ship. 4. Either of the two surfaces of a flat object: the front side of a piece of paper; the two sides of a record. 5. a. The part within an object or area to the left or right of the observer or of its vertical axis. b. The left or right half of the trunk of a human or animal body: always sleeps on his side; a side of beef. 6. a. The space immediately next to someone: stood at her father's side. b. The space immediately next to something. Often used in combination: courtside; dockside. 7. One of two or more contrasted parts or places within an area, identified by its location with respect to a center: the north side of the park. 8. An area separated from another area by an intervening feature, such as a line or barrier: on this side of the Atlantic; the district on the other side of the railroad tracks. 9. a. One of two or more opposing individuals, groups, teams, or sets of opinions. b. One of the positions maintained in a dispute or debate. 10. A distinct aspect: the shy side of his personality. See Synonyms at phase. 11. Line of descent: my aunt on my mother's side. 12. Chiefly British. Affected superiority; arrogance. — adj.

1. Located on a side: a side door. 2. From or to one side; oblique: a side view. 3. Minor; incidental: a side interest. 4. In addition to the main part; supplementary: a side benefit. — v. sid·ed, sid·ing, sides. — v. tr. 1. To provide sides or siding for: side a frame house with aluminum. 2. To be positioned next to: a couch that is sided by low tables. 3. To be in agreement with; support. — v. intr. To align oneself in a disagreement: sided with the conservatives in Congress; siding against the bill. — idioms. on the side. 1. In addition to the main portion: coleslaw on the side. 2. In addition to the main occupation or activity: did some consulting work on the side. side by side. Next to each other; close together. this side of. Informal. Verging on; short of: shady deals that were just this side of criminal. [Middle English, from Old English sīde.] side-arm (sīd'ärm') adj. Sports. Thrown with or marked by a sideways motion of the arm between shoulder and hip height and relatively parallel to the ground: a sidearm baseball pitch. — side/arm' adv.

side arm (sīd ärm) n. A small weapon, such as a pistol, carried at the side or waist.

side-band also side band (sīd'bänd') n. Either of the two bands of frequencies, one just above and one just below a carrier frequency, that result from modulation of a carrier wave.

side-bar (sīd'bär') n. 1. A short, often boxed auxiliary news story that is printed alongside a longer article and that typically presents additional, contrasting, or late-breaking news. 2. Law. A conference between a judge and the attorneys of a case being tried, held outside of the jury's range of hearing.

side-board (sīd'bôrd', -bôrd') n. 1. A piece of dining room furniture having drawers and shelves for linens and tableware. 2. A board that forms a side or part of a side: the sideboards of a skating rink.

side-burns (sīd'bûrnz') pl.n. Growths of hair down the sides of a man's face in front of the ears, especially when worn with the rest of the beard shaved off.

[Alteration of BURNSIDES.]

side-car (sīd'kär') n. 1. A one-wheeled car for a single passenger, attached to the side of a motorcycle. 2. A cocktail combining brandy, an orange-flavored liqueur, and lemon juice.

side chair (sīd châr) n. A straight-backed chair without arms, usually part of a dining room set.

sid-ed (sī'dĭd) adj. Having sides usually of a specified number or kind. Often used in combination: many-sided; marble-sided. —sid'ed-ness n.

side dish (sīd dĭsh) n. A dish served as an accompaniment to the main course.

side drum (sīd drŭm) n. Music. See snare drum.

side effect (sīd ĭ-fĕkt') n. A peripheral or secondary effect, especially an undesirable secondary effect of a drug or therapy.

side-glance (sīd'glāns') n. 1. A glance cast to the side. 2. An indirect or brief reference; an allusion.

side-kick (sīd'kĭk') n. Slang. A close companion or comrade.

side-light (sīd'līt') n. 1. A light coming from the side. 2. Nautical. Either of two lights, red to port, green to starboard, shown by ships at night. 3. A piece of incidental or contrasting information.

side-line (sīd'lĭn') n. 1. Sports. a. A line along either of the two sides of a playing court or field, marking its limits. b. sidelines. The space outside such limits, occupied by spectators and inactive players. 2. sidelines. The position or point of view of those who observe rather than participate in an activity: the political sidelines. 3. A subsidiary line of merchandise. 4. An activity pursued in addition to one's regular occupation. — v. tr. side-lined, side-lin-ing, side-lines.

Informal. To remove or keep from active participation.

side-lin-er (sīd'lĭ'nĕr) n. One that remains on the sidelines; a nonparticipant.

side-ling (sīd'lĭng) adj. 1. Directed to one side; oblique. 2. Sloping; inclined. — adv. Obliquely; sideways.

side-long (sīd'lông', -lŏng') adj. 1. Directed to one side; sideways: a sidelong glance. 2. So as to slant; sloping. — adv. 1. On or toward the side; sideways. 2. In an oblique manner. [Alteration of SIDELING.]

side-man (sīd'măn') n. Music. A member of a jazz band who is not the leader or a featured soloist.

side-piece (sīd'pĕs') n. A part forming the side of something else: a chair with curved sidepieces.

sider- pref. Variant of sidero-.

si-de-re-al (sī-dĭr'ĕ-əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or concerned with the stars or constellations; stellar. 2. Measured or determined by means of the apparent daily motion of the stars: sidereal time. [From Latin sīdereus, from sīdus, sīder-, constellation, star.]

sidereal day (sī-dîr'ē-əl dā) n. The time required for a complete rotation of the earth in reference to any star or to the vernal equinox at the meridian, equal to 23 hours, 56 minutes, 4.09 seconds in units of mean solar time.

sidereal hour (sī-dîr'ē-əl our) n. A 24th part of a sidereal day.

sidereal month (sī-dîr'ē-əl mūnth) n. The average period of revolution of the moon around the earth in reference to a fixed star, equal to 27 days, 7 hours, 43 minutes in units of mean solar time.

sidereal time (sī-dîr'ē-əl tīm) n. Time based on the rotation of the earth with reference to the background of stars.

sidereal year (sī-dîr'ē-əl yâr) n. The time required for one complete revolution of the earth about the sun, relative to the fixed stars, or 365 days, 6 hours, 9 minutes, 9.54 seconds in units of mean solar time.

sid·er·ite (sĭd'ə-rīt') n. 1. An ore of iron, FeCO₃. 2. A meteorite consisting mainly of iron and nickel. —sid'er-it'ic (-ə-rīt'ik) adj.

sidero- or sider- pref. Iron: siderolite. [Greek sidēro-, from sidēros, iron.]

sid·er·o·chrome (sĭd'ər-ə-krōm') n. Any of various chemical compounds that transport iron across cell membranes, as in bacteria.

sid·er·o·cyte (sĭd'ər-ə-sīt') n. A red blood cell containing granules of iron that are not part of the cell's hemoglobin.

sid·er·o·lite (sĭd'ər-ə-līt') n. A meteorite composed of a mixed mass of iron and stone.

sid·er·o·sis (sĭd'ə-rō'sĭs) n. Chronic inflammation of the lungs caused by excessive inhalation of dust containing iron salts or particles.

side·sad·dle (sĭd'săd'l) n. A saddle designed so that the rider sits with both legs on one side of the horse. — adv. On a sidesaddle.

side·show (sĭd'shō') n. 1. A small show offered in addition to the main attraction, as at a circus. 2. A diversion or spectacle that is incidental to a larger set of circumstances or a bigger issue of concern: "Administrations with little room to maneuver at home have historically looked for sideshows abroad" (Joan Didion).

side·slip (sĭd'slĭp') v. intr. side·slipped, side·slip·ping, side·slips. 1. To slip or skid to one side. 2. Sports. To slide sideways and downward in skiing. 3. To fly sideways and downward in an airplane along the lateral axis to reduce altitude without gaining speed or as the result of banking too deeply. —side'slip' n.

side·spin (sĭd'spĭn') n. A rotary motion that spins a ball horizontally.

side·split·ting (sĭd'splĭt'ĭng) adj. 1. Convulsively hearty; uproarious. Used of laughter. 2. Causing convulsive laughter; extremely funny: a sidesplitting comedy. —side'split'ting·ly adv.

side·step (sĭd'stĕp') v. side·stepped, side·step·ping, side·steps. — v. intr. 1. To step aside: sidestepped to make way for the runner. 2. To dodge an issue or a responsibility. — v. tr. 1. To step out of the way of. 2. To evade; skirt: side-step a difficult question. —side'step'per n.

side step (sīd stĕp) n. A step to one side, as in boxing or dancing.

side-strad-dle hop (sīd'strād'l hŏp) n. Sports. A jumping jack.

side-stream smoke (sīd'strēm' smŏk) n. The stream of smoke from the burning end of a cigar, cigarette, or pipe.

side-stroke (sīd'strŏk') Sports. n. A swimming stroke in which a person swims on one side and thrusts the arms forward and downward alternately while performing a scissors kick. — v. intr. side-stroked, side-strok-ing, side-strokes. To swim with a sidestroke. — side'strok'er n.

side-swipe (sīd'swīp') v. tr. side-swiped, side-swip-ing, side-swipes. To strike along the side in passing. — n. 1. A glancing blow on or along the side. 2. An incidental critical remark; a gibe. — side'swip'er n.

side-track (sīd'trāk') v. side-tracked, side-track-ing, side-tracks. — v. tr. 1. To divert from a main issue or course: I was sidetracked from my work by an unexpected visitor. 2. To delay or block the progress of deliberately: “a bill that would sidetrack food irradiation in this country” (Alexis Beck). 3. To switch from a main railroad track to a siding. — v. intr. 1. To deviate from a main issue or course. 2. To run into a siding. — n. A railroad siding.

side-walk (sīd'wŏk') n. A paved walkway along the side of a street. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a sidewalk fruit stand; sidewalk chalk artists.

sidewalk superintendent (sīd'wŏk' sŏŏ'pər-ĭn-tĕn'dənt) n. Slang. A pedestrian who stops to watch construction or demolition work.

side-wall (sīd'wŏl') n. 1. A wall that forms the side of something. 2. A side surface of an automobile tire, between the edge of the tread and the wheel rim.

side-ward (sīd'wərd) adv. & adj. Toward or at one side. — side'wards (-wərdz) adv.

side-ways (sīd'wāz') also side-way (-wā') adv. & adj. 1. Toward one side: took a step sideways; a sideways glance. 2. From one side: a painting lit sideways; sideways pressure. 3. With the side forward: turned sideways to show the profile; a sideways view.

side-wheel (sīd'hwĕl', -wĕl') adj. Nautical. Of, relating to, or being a steamboat with a paddle wheel on each side.

side-wheel-er (sīd'hwĕ'lər, -wĕ'-) n. Nautical. A side-wheel steamboat.

side-whisk-ers (sīd'hwĭs'kərz, -wĭs'-) pl.n. Whiskers worn usually long on the sides of a man's face.

side-wind-er (sīd'wĭn'dər) n. 1. A small rattlesnake (Crotalus cerastes) of the southwest United States and Mexico that moves by a distinctive lateral looping motion of its body and has two hornlike scaly projections above its eyes. 2. A powerful swinging punch delivered from the side.

side-wise (sīd'wĭz') adv. & adj. Sideways.

Si-di-bel-Ab-bès (sē'dē-běl-ə-bēs') A city of northwest Algeria south of Oran. It was the headquarters of the French Foreign Legion until 1962. Population, 112,988.

sid-ing (sī'dĩng) n. 1. Material, such as boards or shingles, used for surfacing the outside walls of a frame building. 2. A short section of railroad track connected by switches with a main track.

si-dle (sīd'l) v. si-dled, si-dling, si-dles. — v. intr. 1. To move sideways: sidled through the narrow doorway. 2. To advance in an unobtrusive, furtive, or coy way: swindlers who sidle up to tourists. — v. tr. To cause to move sideways: We sidled the canoe to the riverbank. — n. 1. An unobtrusive, furtive, or coy advance. 2. A sideways movement. [Back-formation from SIDELING.] — si-dling-ly adv.

Sid-ley (sīd'lē), Mount. A mountain, 4,183.7 m (13,717 ft) high, of Marie Byrd Land in Antarctica. It was discovered by Robert E. Byrd in 1934.

Sid-ney (sīd'nē) A city of west-central Ohio west-northwest of Columbus. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 18,710.

Sid-ney (sīd'nē), Sir Philip. 1554-1586. English poet, soldier, and politician. His most important works are the sonnet sequence Astrophel and Stella and the collection of pastoral idylls Arcadia, both published posthumously.

Si-don (sīd'n) An ancient city of Phoenicia on the Mediterranean Sea in present-day southwest Lebanon. Founded in the third millennium B.C., it was an important trade center known for its glassware and purple dyes.

Sid-ra (sīd'rə), Gulf of. An inlet of the Mediterranean Sea off northern Libya west of Benghazi.

SIDS abbr. Sudden infant death syndrome.

Sieg-bahn (sēg'bän'), Kai Manne Börje. Born 1918. Swedish physicist. He shared a 1981 Nobel Prize for developing technologies to study complex forms of matter.

Sieg-bahn (sēg'bän'), Karl Manne Georg. 1886-1978. Swedish physicist. He won a 1924 Nobel Prize for investigations in x-ray spectroscopy.

siege (sēj) n. 1. The surrounding and blockading of a city, town, or fortress by an army attempting to capture it. 2. A prolonged period, as of illness: a siege of asthma. 3. Obsolete. A seat, especially a throne. — v. tr. sieged, sieg-ing, sieg-es. To subject to a siege; besiege. See Synonyms at besiege. [Middle English sege, from Old French, seat, from Vulgar Latin sedicum*, from sedicāre*, to sit, from Latin sedēre. See sed- in Appendix.]

Sie-gen (zē'gən) A city of west-central Germany east of Cologne. The birthplace of the painter Rubens, it is today heavily industrialized. Population, 107,774.

Siege Perilous (sēj pēr'ə-ləs) n. In Arthurian legend, a seat at King Arthur's Round Table kept for the knight destined to find the Holy Grail and fatal for any other occupant.

Sieg-fried (sēg'frēd', sīg'-) n. The warrior hero of the Nibelungenlied and other Germanic medieval epics, whose story is essentially that of his Norse prototype Sigurd. [German, from Middle High German Sifrit, from Old High German Sigifrith : sigu, victory; see segh- in Appendix + fridu, peace; see pri- in Appendix.]

siemens (sē'mənz) n. pl. siemens. Abbr. S, s A unit of electrical conductance in the International System, equal to one ampere per volt. [After Ernst Werner von SIEMENS.]

Sie-mens (sē'mənz, zē'-), Ernst Werner von. 1816-1892. German engineer who made notable improvements to telegraphic and electrical apparatus. His brother Karl Wilhelm, later Sir Charles William Siemens (1823-1883), invented a regenerative steam engine and designed a steamship for laying long-distance cables.

Si-en-a (sē-ēn'ə, syē'nä) A city of west-central Italy south of Florence. Founded by Etruscans, it became independent in the 12th century and gradually evolved into a wealthy city known especially for its leadership of the Sienese school of art (13th-14th centuries). Population, 61,888. —Si'e-nese' (-nēz', -nēs') adj. & n.

Sien-kie-wicz (shēn-kyā'vich, -kyē'-), Henryk. 1846-1916. Polish writer. Although he is most widely known for his historical novel Quo Vadis? (1896), his critical reputation rests on his works of Polish history, including With Fire and Sword (1883). Sienkiewicz won the 1905 Nobel Prize for literature.

si-en-na (sē-ēn'ə) n. 1. A special clay containing iron and manganese oxides, used as a pigment for oil and watercolor painting. 2. Color. a. Raw sienna.

b. Burnt sienna. [Short for terra-sienna, from Italian terra di Sienna, earth of Siena, after Siena.] si-er-o-zem (sī-ēr'ə-zēm', sē-ēr'ə-zhôm') n. Any of a group of soils found in cool to temperate arid regions that is brownish gray at the surface with a lighter layer below and is based in a carbonate or hardpan layer. [Russian serozem : seryĭ, gray + Old Russian zemĭ, earth; see dhghem- in Appendix.]

si-er-ra (sē-ēr'ə) n. 1. A rugged range of mountains having an irregular or jagged profile. See Usage Note at redundancy. 2. a. A Spanish mackerel (Scomberomorus sierra) of the Pacific coast of tropical America. b. See cero. [Spanish, saw, sierra, from Latin serra, saw.] —si-er'ran adj.

WORD HISTORY: Perhaps in formal contexts it is wise after mentioning a mountain range such as the Sierra Nevada to refer to it next as the Sierras rather than the Sierra Mountains, since mountains is inherent in sierra. Nonetheless, many Californians and Nevadans in particular will be very familiar with phrases such as the Sierra Mountains. Such phrases are used because to a non-Spanish speaker sierra does not necessarily have a meaning, unless one is familiar with the English word sierra, “a rugged range of mountains having an irregular profile,” borrowed from Spanish. In Spanish sierra originally meant “saw” and so was aptly applied to a range of hills or mountains rising in peaks that suggested the teeth of a saw. It comes from Latin serra, “saw,” to which can also be traced our word serrated.

Si·er·ra Blan·ca Peak (sē-ēr'ə bläng'kə pēk) A mountain, 3,660.9 m (12,003 ft) high, in the Sacramento Mountains of south-central New Mexico. It is the highest elevation in the range.

Sierra Le·one (sē-ēr'ə lē-ōn', -ō'nē) A country of western Africa on the Atlantic coast. First visited by the Portuguese in the 1460's, the region became a British protectorate in 1896 and achieved independence in 1961. Freetown is the capital and the largest city. Population, 3,381,000.

Si·er·ra Ma·dre del Sur (sē-ēr'ə mā'drā dēl sōōr', syēr'ä mä'thrē) A mountain range of southern Mexico along the Pacific coast.

Sierra Madre Oc·ci·den·tal (sē-ēr'ə mā'drā ök'sī-dēn'təl, ök'sē-thēn-täl') A mountain range of northwest Mexico running parallel to the Pacific coastline and adjoining the Mexican plateau. It extends for about 1,609 km (1,000 mi) southward from the border of Arizona.

Sierra Madre Or·ien·tal (sē-ēr'ə mā'drā ôr'ē-ēn-täl', ô-ryēn-) A mountain range of northeast Mexico rising as barren hills south of the Rio Grande and roughly paralleling the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

Si·er·ra Ne·va·da (sē-ēr'ə nə-väd'ə, -vädə) 1. (also syēr'ä nē-vä'thä) A mountain range of southern Spain along the Mediterranean coast east of Granada. It rises to 3,480.4 m (11,411 ft) at Mulhacén. 2. A mountain range of eastern California extending about 644 km (400 mi) between the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys and the Nevada border. Mount Whitney, 4,420.7 m (14,494 ft), is the highest elevation.

Sierra Vis·ta (sē-ēr'ə vīs'tə) A city of southeast Arizona southeast of Tucson near the Mexican border. It is in a cattle-raising and mining region. Population, 32,983.

si·es·ta (sē-ēs'tə) n. A rest or nap after the midday meal. [Spanish, from Latin sexta (hōra), sixth (hour), midday, feminine of sextus, sixth. See SEXT.]

sieve (siv) n. A utensil of wire mesh or closely perforated metal, used for straining, sifting, ricing, or puréeing. — v. sieved, siev·ing, sieves. — v. tr. To pass through a sieve. — v. intr. To use a sieve; sift. [Middle English sive, from Old English sife.]

sieve plate (siv plāt) n. Botany. The perforated end wall of a sieve tube cell.

sieve tube (siv tōob) n. Botany. A series of cells joined end to end, forming a tube through which nutrients are conducted in flowering plants and brown algae.

Sie-yès (syě-yès'), Emmanuel Joseph. 1748-1836. French politician who wrote What is the Third Estate? (1789), a pamphlet that fueled antiaristocratic feeling. Sieyès later took part in the coup that brought Napoleon I to power (1799) and went into exile (1815-1830) after Napoleon's fall.

sift (sift) v. sift-ed, sift-ing, sifts. — v. tr. 1. To put (flour, for example) through a sieve or other straining device in order to separate the fine from the coarse particles. 2. To distinguish as if separating with a sieve: sifted the candidates for the job. 3. To apply by scattering with or as if with a sieve: sift sugar on a dessert. 4. To examine and sort carefully: sift the evidence. — v. intr. 1. To make use of a sieve. 2. To pass through or as if through a sieve: a meal that sifts easily. 3. To make a careful examination: sifted through back issues of the magazine. [Middle English siften, from Old English siftan.] —sift'er n.

sig. abbr. 1. Signal. 2. Signature. 3. Often Sig.. Signor; signore.

Sig. abbr. 1. Latin. Signa (mark or label it). 2. Medicine. Signature. 3. Latin. Signetur (let it be marked or labeled).

sigh (sī) v. sighed, sigh-ing, sighs. — v. intr. 1. a. To exhale audibly in a long, deep breath, as in weariness or relief. b. To emit a similar sound: willows sighing in the wind. 2. To feel longing or grief; yearn: sighing for their lost youth. — v. tr. 1. To express with or as if with an audible exhalation. 2. Archaic. To lament. — n. The act or sound of sighing. [Middle English sighen, probably back-formation from sighte, past tense of siken, to sigh, from Old English sīcan.] —sigh'er n.

sight (sīt) n. 1. The ability to see. 2. The act or fact of seeing: hoping for a sight of land; caught sight of a rare bird. 3. Field of vision. 4. The foreseeable future; prospect: no solution in sight. 5. Something seen; a view. 6. Something worth seeing; a spectacle: the sights of London. 7. Informal. Something unsightly: Your hair is a sight. 8. a. A device used to assist aim by guiding the eye, as on a firearm or surveying instrument. b. An aim or observation taken with such a device. 9. An opportunity to observe or inspect. 10. Upper Southern U.S. A large number or quantity: A sight of people were there. — v. sight-ed, sight-ing, sights. — v. tr. 1. To perceive with the eyes; get sight of: sighted land after 40 days at sea. 2. To observe through a sight or an optical instrument: sight a target. 3. To adjust the sights of (a rifle, for example). 4. To take aim with (a firearm). — v. intr. 1. To direct one's gaze; look carefully. 2. To take aim: sighted along the barrel of the gun. —idioms. on sight. Immediately upon being seen: threatened to shoot looters on sight. out of sight. Slang. Remarkable; incredible: The graduation party was out of sight. sight for sore eyes. Informal. One whom it is a relief or joy to see. sight unseen. Without seeing the object in question: bought the horse sight unseen. [Middle English, from Old English siht, gesiht, something seen. See sek^{w-2} in Appendix.]

sight draft (sīt drāft) n. Abbr. SD A draft or bill that is payable on demand or upon presentation. Also called demand draft sight-ed (sīt'tīd) adj. 1. Having the ability to see. 2. Having eyesight of a specified kind. Often used in combination: keen-sighted. —sight/ed-ness n.

sight gag (sīt gäg) n. A comic bit or effect that depends on sight rather than words.

sight-ing (sīt'tīng) n. The act of catching sight of something, especially something unusual or searched for: a sighting of a whale in the harbor; a reported sighting of a UFO.

sight-less (sīt'lis) adj. 1. Unable to see with the eyes; blind. 2. Invisible. —sight/less-ly adv. —sight/less-ness n.

sight-line also sight line (sīt'līn') n. A line of sight, especially one between a spectator and the spectacle in a theater or stadium.

sight-ly (sīt'lē) adj. sight-li-er, sight-li-est. 1. Pleasing to see; visually appealing. 2. Affording a fine view; scenic. —sight/li-ness n.

sight-read (sīt'rēd') v. sight--read (-rēd'), sight--read-ing, sight--reads. — v. tr. To read or perform (music, for example) without preparation or prior acquaintance. — v. intr. To read or perform something on sight without preparation or prior acquaintance. —sight/-read'er n.

sight rhyme (sīt rīm) n. See eye rhyme.

sight-see (sīt'sē') v. intr. sight-saw (-sô'), sight-seen (-sēn'), sight-see-ing, sight-sees. To tour sights of interest. —sight/se'er n.

sight-see-ing (sīt'sē'ing) n. The act or pastime of visiting sights of interest. — adj. Used or engaged in sightseeing: a sightseeing bus; a sightseeing tour.

sig-il (sīj'əl, sīg'il) n. 1. A seal; a signet. 2. A sign or an image considered magical. [Latin sigillum, diminutive of signum, sign. See SIGN.]

Sig-is-mund (sīg'is-mənd), 1368-1437. Holy Roman emperor (1433-1437) and king of Hungary (1387-1437) and Bohemia (1419-1437). He helped end the Great Schism (1378-1417) by convening the Council of Constance (1414-1418).

sig-ma (sīg'mə) n. 1. The 18th letter of the Greek alphabet. 2. A sigma factor. 3. A sigma hyperon. [Greek, of Phoenician origin; akin to Hebrew sāmek, samekh.] —sig/mate' (-māt') adj.

sigma factor (sīg'mə fāk'tər) n. A protein component of RNA polymerase that determines the specific site on DNA where transcription begins.

sigma hyperon (sīg'mə hī'pə-rōn') n. Any of three unstable subatomic particles in the baryon family, having a mass of 2,328 to 2,343 times that of the electron and a positive, neutral, or negative electric charge.

sig·moid (sĭg'moid') also sig·moi·dal (sĭg-moid'l) adj. 1. Having the shape of the letter S. 2. Of or relating to the sigmoid flexure of the colon. [Greek sigmoeidēs: sigma, sigma; see SIGMA + -oidēs, -oid.]

sigmoid flexure (sĭg'moid' flĕk'shər) n. An S-shaped section of the colon between the descending section and the rectum. Also called sigmoid colon sig·moid·o·scope (sĭg-moi'də-skōp') n. A tubular instrument for visual examination of the sigmoid flexure. —sig·moid'·o·scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj.

—sig'moid·os'co·py (sĭg'moi-dōs'kə-pē) n.

sign (sĭn) n. 1. Something that suggests the presence or existence of a fact, condition, or quality. 2. a. An act or a gesture used to convey an idea, a desire, information, or a command: gave the go-ahead sign. b. Sign language. 3. a. A displayed structure bearing lettering or symbols, used to identify or advertise a place of business: a motel with a flashing neon sign outside. b. A posted notice bearing a designation, direction, or command: an EXIT sign above a door; a traffic sign. 4. A conventional figure or device that stands for a word, a phrase, or an operation; a symbol, as in mathematics or in musical notation. 5. pl. sign. An indicator, such as a dropping or footprint, of the trail of an animal: looking for deer sign. 6. A trace or vestige: no sign of life. 7. A portentous incident or event; a presage: took the eclipse as a sign from God. 8. A body manifestation that serves to indicate the presence of malfunction or disease. 9. One of the 12 divisions of the zodiac, each named for a constellation and represented by a symbol. — v.

signed, sign-ing, signs. — v. tr. 1. To affix one's signature to. 2. To write (one's signature). 3. To approve or ratify (a document) by affixing a signature, seal, or other mark: sign a bill into law. 4. To hire or engage by obtaining a signature on a contract: signed a rookie pitcher for next season; sign up actors for a tour. 5. To relinquish or transfer title to by signature: signed away all her claims to the estate. 6. To provide with a sign or signs: sign a new highway. 7. To communicate with a sign or by sign language: signed his approval; sign instructions to a hearing-impaired teammate. 8. To consecrate with the sign of the cross. — v. intr.

1. To make a sign or signs; signal. 2. To use sign language. 3. To write one's signature. —phrasal verbs. sign in. To record the arrival of (another or oneself) by signing a register. sign off. 2. To announce the end of a communication; conclude. 3. To stop transmission after identifying the broadcasting station. 4. Informal. To express approval formally or conclusively: got the Congress to sign off on the tax proposal. sign on. 5. Informal. To enlist oneself, especially as an employee: "Retired politicians often sign on with top-dollar law firms" (New York Times). 6. To start transmission with an identification of the broadcasting station. sign out. To record the departure of (another or oneself) by signing a register. sign up. To agree to be a participant or recipient by signing one's name; enlist: signed up for military service; signing up for a pottery course.

[Middle English signe, from Old French, from Latin signum. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.] —sign'er n.

SYNONYMS: sign, badge, mark, token, symptom, note. These nouns are compared as they denote an outward indication of the existence or presence of something not immediately evident. Sign is the most general: A high forehead is thought to be a sign of intelligence. “The exile of Gaveston was the sign of the barons’ triumph” (John R. Green). “The V sign is the symbol of the unconquerable will of the occupied territories” (Winston S. Churchill). Badge usually refers to something that is worn as an insignia of membership, is an emblem of achievement, or is a characteristic sign: The sheriff’s badge was shaped like a star. “Sweet mercy is nobility’s true badge” (Shakespeare). Mark can refer to a visible trace or impression (a laundry mark) or to an indication of a distinctive trait or characteristic: Intolerance is the mark of a bigot. The term can also denote a lasting effect, as of an experience: Poverty had left its mark. Token usually refers to evidence or proof of something intangible: sent flowers as a token of her affection. Symptom suggests outward evidence of a process or condition, especially an adverse condition: “dying of a hundred good symptoms” (Alexander Pope); “the gale having rather increased than shown any symptoms of abating” (Frederick Marryat). Note applies to the sign of a particular quality or feature: “the eternal note of sadness” (Matthew Arnold). See also Synonyms at gesture sign-age (sī'nij) n. 1. Signs considered as a group. 2. The design or use of signs and symbols.

Si-gnac (sēn-yäk'), Paul. 1863-1935. French neoimpressionist painter. He painted mainly landscapes and marine views, such as Port of St. Tropez (1916), and often employed pointillist techniques.

sig-nal (sĭg'nəl) n. Abbr. sig. 1. a. An indicator, such as a gesture or colored light, that serves as a means of communication. See Synonyms at gesture. b. A message communicated by such means. 2. Something that incites action: The peace treaty was the signal for mass celebrations. 3. Electronics. An impulse or a fluctuating electric quantity, such as voltage, current, or electric field strength, whose variations represent coded information. 4. The sound, image, or message transmitted or received in telegraphy, telephony, radio, television, or radar. — adj. Notably out of the ordinary: a signal feat. See Synonyms at noticeable. — v. sig-naled or sig-nalled, sig-nal-ing or sig-nal-ling, sig-nals or sig-nals. — v. tr. 1. To make a signal to: I signaled the driver to proceed. 2. To relate or make known by signals: They have signaled their willingness to negotiate. — v. intr. To make a signal or signals. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin signāle, from neuter of Late Latin signālis, of a sign, from Latin signum, sign. See SIGN.] —sig'nal-er, sig'nal-ler n.

sig·nal·ize (sĭg'nə-līz') v. tr. sig·nal·ized, sig·nal·iz·ing, sig·nal·iz·es. 1. To make remarkable or conspicuous: a life signaled by high accomplishments. 2. To point out particularly. — sig'nal·i·za'tion (-nə-lī-zā'shən) n.

sig·nal·ly (sĭg'nə-lē) adv. To a conspicuous degree; notably.

sig·nal·ment (sĭg'nəl-mənt) n. A detailed description of a person's appearance, as for police files. [French signalement, from signaler, to mark out, from signal, signal. See SIGNAL.]

sig·na·to·ry (sĭg'nə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj. Bound by signed agreement: the signatory parties to a contract. — n. pl. sig·na·to·ries. One that has signed a treaty or other document. [Latin signātōrius, from signātus, past participle of signāre, to mark, from signum, sign. See SIGN.]

sig·na·ture (sĭg'nə-chər) n. 1. Abbr. sig. One's name as written by oneself. 2. The act of signing one's name. 3. A distinctive mark, characteristic, or sound indicating identity: A surprise ending is the signature of an O. Henry short story. 4. Abbr. Sig., S. Medicine. The part of a physician's prescription containing directions to the patient. 5. Music. a. A sign used to indicate key. b. A sign used to indicate tempo. 6. Printing. a. A letter, number, or symbol placed at the bottom of the first page on each sheet of printed pages of a book as a guide to the proper sequence of the sheets in binding. b. A large sheet printed with four or a multiple of four pages that when folded becomes a section of the book. [French, from Old French, from Medieval Latin signātūra, from Latin signātus, past participle of signāre, to mark, from signum, sign. See SIGN.] sign·board (sĭn'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A board bearing a sign.

sig·net (sĭg'nĭt) n. 1. A seal, especially one used officially to mark documents. 2. The impression made with such a seal. — v. tr. sig·net·ed, sig·net·ing, sig·nets. To mark or endorse with a signet. [Middle English, from Old French, diminutive of signe, sign. See SIGN.]

signet ring (sĭg'nĭt rĭng) n. A finger ring bearing an engraved signet. Also called seal ring sig·nif·i·cance (sĭg-nĭf'ĭ-kəns) also sig·nif·i·can·cy (-kən-sē) n. 1. The state or quality of being significant. See Synonyms at importance. 2. A meaning that is expressed. 3. A covert or implied meaning. See Synonyms at meaning.

significance level (sĭg-nĭf'ĭ-kəns lēv'əl) n. Statistics. See level of significance.

sig·nif·i·cant (sĭg-nĭf'ĭ-kənt) adj. 1. Having or expressing a meaning; meaningful. 2. Having or expressing a covert meaning; suggestive: a significant glance. See Synonyms at expressive. 3. Having or likely to have a major effect; important: a significant change in the tax laws. 4. Fairly large in amount or quantity: significant casualties; no significant opposition. 5. Statistics. Of or relating to observations or occurrences that are too closely correlated to be attributed to chance and therefore indicate a systematic relationship. [Latin significāns, signifi- cant- present participle of significāre, to signify. See SIGNIFY.] —sig-nif/i-cant-ly adv.

significant digits (sĭg-nĭf'ĭ-kənt dĭj'ĭts) pl.n. Mathematics. The digits of the decimal form of a number beginning with the leftmost nonzero digit and extending to the right to include all digits warranted by the accuracy of measuring devices used to obtain the numbers. Also called significant figures significant other (sĭg-nĭf'ĭ-kənt ŭth'ər) n. 1. A person, such as a spouse or lover, with whom one shares a long-term sexual relationship. 2. A person, such as a family member or close friend, who is important or influential in one's life: "The most important variable in successful smoking cessation is the support of significant others in the new nonsmoker's life" (Carolyn Reuben).

sig-ni-fi-ca-tion (sĭg'nə-fĭ-kā'shən) n. 1. The established meaning of a word. See Synonyms at meaning. 2. The act of signifying; indication.

sig-nif-i-ca-tive (sĭg-nĭf'ĭ-kā'tĭv) adj. 1. Tending to signify or indicate; indicative. 2. Having meaning; significant. —sig-nif/i-ca'tive-ness n.

sig-ni-fy (sĭg'nə-fĭ') v. sig-ni-fied, sig-ni-fy-ing, sig-ni-fies. — v. tr. 1. To denote; mean. See Synonyms at mean¹. 2. To make known, as with a sign or word: signify one's intent. — v. intr. 1. To have meaning or importance. See Synonyms at count¹. 2. Slang. To exchange humorous insults in a verbal game. [Middle English signifien, from Old French signifier, from Latin significāre : signum, sign; see SIGN + -ficāre, -fy.] —sig'ni-fi'a-ble adj. —sig'ni-fi'er n.

si-gnior (sēn-yôr', -yôr') n. Variant of signor.

si-gnio-ry (sēn'yə-rē) n. Variant of signory.

sign language (sĭn lăng'gwĭj) n. 1. A language that uses manual movements to convey grammatical structure and meaning. 2. A method of communication, as between speakers of different languages, that uses hand movements and other gestures.

sign manual (sĭn măn'yōō-əl) n. pl. signs manual. A signature, especially that of a monarch at the top of a royal decree.

sign of the cross (sĭn ŭv thē krôs) n. A gesture describing the form of a cross, made in token of faith in Jesus or as an invocation of God's blessing.

si-gnor also si-gnior (sēn-yôr', -yôr') n. pl. si-gno-ri (sēn-yôr'ē, -yôr'ē) also si-gniors or si-gnors. Abbr. S., Sig., sig. Used as a courtesy title for a man in an Italian-speaking area, equivalent to Mr. [Italian, variant of signore. See SIGNORE.]

si-gno-ra (sēn-yôr'ə, -yôr'ə, -yô'rä) n. pl. si-gno-re (sēn-yôr'ā, -yôr'ā, -yô'rë) or si-gno-ras. Used as a courtesy title for a married woman in an Italian-speaking area, equivalent to Mrs. [Italian, feminine of signore, signore. See SIGNORE.]

si-gno-re (sēn-yôr'ā, -yôr'ā, -yô'rë) n. pl. si-gno-ri (sēn-yô'rë, -yôr'ë). Abbr. S., Sig., sig. Used as a form of polite address for a man in an Italian-speaking area. [Italian, from Medieval Latin senior, lord, from Latin, elder. See SENIOR.]

Si·gno·rel·li (sē'nyô-rĕl'lē), Luca. 1445?-1523. Italian painter known for his mastery of the human figure. His works include the frescoes The Preaching of the Anti-Christ and The Last Judgment (both 1500-1504).

si·gno·ri (sĕn-yô'rĕ, -yôr'ē) n. 1. A plural of signor. 2. A plural of signore.

si·gno·ri·na (sĕn'yə-rĕ'nə, -yô-rĕ'nä) n. pl. si·gno·ri·ne (-nā, -nĕ) or si·gno·ri·nas. Used as a courtesy title for an unmarried woman in an Italian-speaking area, equivalent to Miss. [Italian, diminutive of signora, signora. See SIGNORA.]

si·gno·ry or si·gnio·ry (sĕn'yə-rĕ) n. pl. si·gno·ries. See seigniory. [Middle English signorie, from Old French seigneurie, from seigneur, seignior. See SEIGNIOR.]

sign·post (sĭn'pōst') n. 1. A post supporting a sign that has information or directions. 2. An indication, a sign, or a guide.

Sigs·bee (sĭgz'bē), Charles Dwight. 1845-1923. American naval officer who commanded the U.S.S. Maine when it was blown up in Havana harbor (February 15, 1898).

Sig·urd (sĭg'ərd) n. Mythology. A warrior hero in Norse myth who wins an accursed hoard of gold, awakens Brynhild from her enchanted sleep, marries a princess, and is slain through Brynhild's jealous contrivance.

Si·gurds·son (sĭg'ərd-sən, -ærth-sôn'), Jón. 1811-1879. Icelandic politician and scholar who secured a constitution for his country from Denmark (1874).

Si·ha·nouk (sē'hə-nōök'), Prince Norodom. Born 1922. Cambodian politician who served as prime minister (1955-1957) and became head of state in 1960. Sihanouk was deposed in 1970 and briefly returned to power (1975-1976) during the Pol Pot regime.

Si·ha·sa·pa (sə-hä'sə-pə) n. pl. Sahasapa or Si·ha·sa·pas. 1. A Native American people constituting a subdivision of the Teton Sioux. 2. A member of this people. Also called Blackfoot, Blackfoot Sioux.

si·ka (sē'kə) n. A medium-sized deer (Cervus nippon) native to Japan and China but naturalized in Europe and other countries, having a small head, compact body, and mostly spotted reddish or chestnut coat. Several of its subspecies are endangered in the wild. [Japanese shika, deer.]

Sikes·ton (sĭk'stən) A city of southeast Missouri west-southwest of Cairo, Illinois. It is a trade and processing center. Population, 17,641.

Sikh (sĕk) n. An adherent of Sikhism. — adj. Of or relating to the Sikhs or to Sikhism. [Hindi, from Sanskrit śiṣyaḥ, disciple, from śikṣati, he wishes to learn, desiderative of śaknoti, is able.]

Sikh·ism (sĕk'iz'əm) n. The doctrines and practices of a monotheistic religion founded in northern India in the 16th century and combining elements of Hinduism and Islam.

Si Kiang (sē' kyäng', shē') See Xi Jiang.

Sik·kim (sɪkˈkɪm) A region and former kingdom of northeast India in the eastern Himalaya Mountains between Nepal and Bhutan. Long isolated from the outside world, Sikkim was virtually a dependency of Tibet until the 19th century, when it came under British protection. The protectorate passed to India in 1949 and became an integral part of that country in 1975.

Si·kor·sky (sɪˈkɔrˈskē), Igor Ivan. 1889-1972. Russian-born American aviation pioneer. He designed (1939) the first successful American helicopter.

si·lage (sɪˈlɪj) n. Fodder prepared by storing and fermenting green forage plants in a silo. [Short for ENSILAGE.]

sil·ane (sɪlˈānʹ) n. Any of a group of silicon hydrides having the general formula SiH₄ that are analogous to the paraffin hydrocarbons. [SIL(ICON) + (METH)ANE.]

sild (sɪld) n. pl. sild or silds. A young herring other than a sprat that is processed as a sardine in Norway. [Norwegian, and Danish from Old Norse sild, herring.]

si·lence (sɪˈləns) n. 1. The condition or quality of being or keeping still and silent. 2. The absence of sound; stillness. 3. A period of time without speech or noise. 4. Refusal or failure to speak out. — v. tr. si·lenced, si·lenc·ing, si·lenc·es. 1. To make silent or bring to silence: silenced the crowd with a gesture. 2. To curtail the expression of; suppress: silencing all criticism; silenced their opponents. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin silentium, from silēns, silent- present participle of silēre, to be silent.]

si·lenc·er (sɪˈlən-sər) n. One that silences, especially a device attached to the muzzle of a firearm to muffle the sound of firing.

si·le·ni (sɪˈlēˈnɪ) n. Greek Mythology. Plural of silenus.

si·lent (sɪˈlənt) adj. 1. Marked by absence of noise or sound; still. 2. Not inclined to speak; not talkative. 3. Unable to speak. 4. Refraining from speech: Do be silent. 5. Not voiced or expressed; unspoken: a silent curse; silent consent. 6. Inactive; quiescent: a silent volcano. 7. Linguistics. Having no phonetic value; unpronounced: the silent b in subtle. 8. Having no spoken dialogue and usually no soundtrack. Used of a film. — n. A silent movie. [Latin silēns, silent- present participle of silēre, to be silent.] —siˈlent·ly adv. —siˈlent·ness n.

SYNONYMS: silent, reticent, reserved, taciturn, secretive, uncommunicative, tightlipped. These adjectives describe people who are sparing with speech. Silent often implies a habitual disinclination to speak or to speak out: “the great silent majority” (Richard M. Nixon). The term may also mean refraining from speech, as out of fear or confusion: “He must be warned prior to any questioning that he has the right to remain silent” (Earl Warren). Reticent suggests a tendency to keep one’s thoughts, feelings, and personal affairs to oneself: “She had been shy and reticent with me, and now... she was telling me aloud the secrets of her inmost heart” (W.H. Hudson). Reserved suggests aloofness and reticence: “a reserved man, whose inner life was intense and sufficient to him” (Arnold Bennett). Taciturn implies unsociableness and a tendency to speak only when it is absolutely necessary: “At the Council board he was taciturn; and in the House of Lords he never opened his lips” (Macaulay). Secretive implies a lack of openness about or even concealment of matters that could in all conscience be discussed: too secretive to disclose her vacation plans. Uncommunicative suggests a disposition to withhold opinions, feelings, or knowledge from others: Her uncle was a silent, uncommunicative Yankee farmer. Tightlipped strongly implies a steadfast unwillingness to divulge information being sought: The general remained tightlipped when reporters asked him about the rumored invasion. See also Synonyms at still¹ silent butler (sī'lənt büt'lər) n. A small receptacle with a handle and hinged cover, used for collecting ashes and crumbs.

silent partner (sī'lənt pärt'nər) n. One that makes financial investments in a business enterprise but does not participate in its management.

silent treatment (sī'lənt trēt'mənt) n. Informal. Maintenance of aloof silence toward another as an expression of one's anger or disapproval: The rest of the class gave the tattletale the silent treatment.

si-le-nus (sī-lē'nəs) n. pl. si-le-ni (-nī). Greek Mythology. Any of the minor woodland deities and companions of Dionysus, depicted on Greek vases as men with the tails, ears, and hoofs of horses. [Latin silēnus, from Greek silēnos, from Silēnos, Silenus.]

Si-le-nus (sī-lē'nəs) n. Greek Mythology. A satyr, usually depicted as drunken and jolly, in the entourage of Dionysus. [Latin, from Greek Silēnos.]

si-le-sia (sī-lē'zhə, -shə, sī-) n. A sturdy twilled cotton fabric used for linings and pockets. [After Silesia.]

Si-le-sia (sī-lē'zhə, -shə, sī-) A region of central Europe primarily in southwest Poland and northern Czech Republic. Settled by Slavic peoples c. A.D. 500, the region was long contested by various states and principalities. After World War I Silesia was partitioned among Germany, Poland, and Czechoslovakia. Much of the Czechoslovakian section passed to Germany and Poland after the signing of the Munich Pact in 1938. Germany occupied Polish Silesia from 1939 to 1945, and after World War II Poland annexed most of German Silesia. Upper Silesia, in southern Poland, is an important industrialized area. —Si-le'sian adj. & n.

si-lex (sī'lēks') n. 1. Silica. 2. Finely ground tripoli used as an inert paint filler. [Latin, hard stone, flint.]

sil-hou-ette (sīl'ōō-ēt') n. 1. A drawing consisting of the outline of something, especially a human profile, filled in with a solid color. 2. An outline that appears dark against a light background. See Synonyms at outline. — v. tr.

sil-hou-et-ted, sil-hou-et-ting, sil-hou-ettes. To cause to be seen as a silhouette; outline: Figures were silhouetted against the setting sun. [French, after Étienne de Silhouette (1709-1767), French finance minister.]

silic- pref. Variant of silici-.

sil-i-ca (sĭl'ī-kə) n. A white or colorless crystalline compound, SiO_2 , occurring abundantly as quartz, sand, flint, agate, and many other minerals and used to manufacture a wide variety of materials, especially glass and concrete. [New Latin, from Latin silex, silic-, hard stone, flint.]

silica gel (sĭl'ī-kə jĕl) n. Amorphous silica that resembles white sand and is used as a drying and dehumidifying agent, as a catalyst and catalyst carrier, as an anticaking agent in cosmetics, and in chromatography.

sil-i-cate (sĭl'ī-kāt', -kĭt) n. 1. Any of numerous compounds containing silicon, oxygen, and one or more metals; a salt of silicic acid. 2. Any of a large group of minerals, forming over 90 percent of the earth's crust, that consist of SiO_2 or SiO_4 groupings combined with one or more metals and sometimes hydrogen.

si-li-ceous (sĭ-lĭsh'əs) adj. Containing, resembling, relating to, or consisting of silica. [Latin siliceus, of flint, from silex, silic-, flint.]

silici- or silic- pref. 1. Silicon: silicate. 2. Silica: silicify. [From SILICON, and SILICA.]

si-lic-ic (sĭ-lĭs'ĭk) adj. Relating to, resembling, containing, or derived from silica or silicon.

silicic acid (sĭ-lĭs'ĭk əs'ĭd) n. A jellylike substance, $\text{SiO}_2 \cdot n\text{H}_2\text{O}$, produced when sodium silicate solution is acidified.

sil-i-cide (sĭl'ī-sĭd') n. A compound of silicon with another element or radical.

sil-i-cif-er-ous (sĭl'ī-sĭf'ər-əs) adj. Bearing, producing, or in partial combination with silica.

si-lic-i-fy (sĭ-lĭs'ə-fĭ') v. si-lic-i-fied, si-lic-i-fy-ing, si-lic-i-fies. — v. tr. To convert into or impregnate with silica. — v. intr. To become converted into or impregnated with silica. — si-lic'i-fi-ca'tion (-fĭ-kā'shən) n.

sil-i-cle (sĭl'ī-kəl) n. Botany. A short silique usually having a length less than three times its width. [Latin silicula, diminutive of siliqua, seed pod.]

sil-i-con (sĭl'ī-kən, -kŏn') n. Symbol Si A nonmetallic element occurring extensively in the earth's crust in silica and silicates, having both an amorphous and a crystalline allotrope, and used doped or in combination with other materials in glass, semiconducting devices, concrete, brick, refractories, pottery, and silicones. Atomic number 14; atomic weight 28.086; melting point $1,410^\circ\text{C}$; boiling point $2,355^\circ\text{C}$; specific gravity 2.33; valence 4. [From SILICA.]

silicon carbide (sĭl'ī-kən kār'bĭd') n. A bluish-black crystalline compound, SiC , one of the hardest known substances, used as an abrasive and heat-refractory material and in single crystals as semiconductors, especially in high-temperature applications.

silicon dioxide (sĭl'ī-kən dī-ŏk'sĭd) n. Silica.

sil-i-cone (sĭl'ī-kŏn') n. Any of a group of semi-inorganic polymers based on the structural unit R_2SiO , where R is an organic group, characterized by wide-range thermal stability, high lubricity, extreme water repellence, and physiological inertness and used in adhesives, lubricants, protective coatings, paints, electrical insulation, synthetic rubber, and prosthetic replacements for bodily parts.

Sil-i-con Valley (sĭl'ĭ-kən vāl'ē, -kŏn') A region of western California south-east of San Francisco known for its high-technology design and manufacturing industries.

sil-i-co-sis (sĭl'ĭ-kō'sĭs) n. A disease of the lungs caused by continued inhalation of the dust of siliceous minerals and characterized by progressive fibrosis and a chronic shortness of breath. —sil'i-cot'ic (-kŏt'ĭk) adj.

si-lique (sĭ-lēk') n. A dry, dehiscent, elongated fruit, characteristic of the mustard family, having two valves that fall away leaving a central partition. [French, from Old French, from Latin siliqua, seed pod.] —sil'i-quous (sĭl'ĭ-kwəs), sil'i-quose' (-kwōs') adj.

silk (sĭlk) n. 1. a. A fine, lustrous fiber composed mainly of fibroin and produced by certain insect larvae to form cocoons, especially the strong, elastic, fibrous secretion of silkworms used to make thread and fabric. b. Thread or fabric made from this fiber. c. A garment made from this fabric. 2. silks. Sports. The brightly colored identifying garments of a jockey or harness driver. 3. A silky, filamentous material, such as the webbing spun by certain spiders or the styles forming a tuft on an ear of corn. — adj. Composed of or similar to the fiber or the fabric silk. — v. intr. silked, silk-ing, silks. To develop silk. Used of corn. [Middle English, from Old English sioloc, probably of Slavic origin, ultimately from Chinese.] silk cotton (sĭlk kŏt'n) n. A silky fiber, such as kapok, attached to the seeds of certain trees.

silk-cot-ton tree (sĭlk'kŏt'n trē) n. 1. A spiny, deciduous, North American tree (Ceiba pentandra) having palmately compound leaves and cultivated for its leathery fruit that contain the silklike fiber kapok. 2. Either of two trees (Bombax ceiba or Cochlospermum religiosum) having seeds surrounded by silky hairs.

silk-en (sĭl'kən) adj. 1. Made of silk. 2. Resembling silk in texture or appearance; smooth and lustrous. See Synonyms at sleek. 3. Delicately pleasing or caressing in effect: a silken voice. 4. Luxurious.

silk gland (sĭlk gländ) n. Any of the glands in silk-spinning insects and spiders that secrete a protein liquid that hardens into silk on exposure to air.

silk hat (sĭlk häť) n. A man's silk-covered top hat.

silk oak (sĭlk ōk) n. An Australian evergreen tree (Grevillea robusta) having divided, fernlike leaves and showy, one-sided clusters of orange flowers.

Silk Road (sĭlk rōd) An ancient trade route between China and the Mediterranean Sea extending some 6,440 km (4,000 mi) and linking China with the Roman Empire. Marco Polo followed the route on his journey to Cathay.

silk-screen also silk-screen (sĭlk'skrĕn') n. 1. A stencil method of printmaking in which a design is imposed on a screen of silk or other fine mesh, with blank areas coated with an impermeable substance, and ink is forced through the mesh onto the printing surface. Also called screen-printing, silk-screen process. 2. A print made by this method. —silk'-screen' v.

silk stocking (sĭlk stŏk'ĭng) n. A wealthy, aristocratic, or elegantly dressed person.

silk-stock-ing (sĭlk'stŏk'ĭng) adj. Wealthy; aristocratic: a silk-stocking district; silk-stocking prep schools.

silk tree (sĭlk trĕ) n. An Asian tree (Albizia julibrissin) having pinnately compound leaves and heads of pinkish flowers with many long filaments. Also called mimosa silk-weed (sĭlk'wĕd') n. See milkweed.

silk-worm (sĭlk'wŭrm') n. Any of various caterpillars that produce silk cocoons, especially the larva of a moth (Bombyx mori) native to Asia that spins a cocoon of fine, strong, lustrous fiber that is the source of commercial silk.

silkworm moth (sĭlk'wŭrm' mŏth) n. Any of the moths, chiefly of the family Bombycidae, whose larvae produce silk cocoons.

silk-y (sĭl'kĕ) adj. silk-i-er, silk-i-est. 1. Resembling silk; lustrous. See Synonyms at sleek. 2. Made of silk; silken. 3. Covered with or characterized by fine, soft hairs or feathers: a silky chick. 4. Ingratiating; seductive: spoke with silky plausibility. —silk'i-ly adv. —silk'i-ness n.

silky terrier (sĭl'kĕ tĕr'ĕ-ər) n. A toy terrier of a breed developed from a cross between the Australian terrier and the Yorkshire terrier, characterized by long, silky, bluish-gray hair, tan markings, and erect ears.

sill (sĭl) n. 1. The horizontal member that bears the upright portion of a frame, especially the horizontal member that forms the base of a window. 2. Geology. An approximately horizontal sheet of igneous rock intruded between older rock beds. [Middle English sille, from Old English syll, threshold.]

Sill (sĭl), Mount. A peak, 4,316.7 m (14,153 ft) high, in the Sierra Nevada of east-central California.

sil-la-bub (sĭl'ə-bŭb') n. Variant of syllabub.

Sil-lan-pää (sĭl'ən-pǎ'), Frans Eemil. 1888-1964. Finnish writer whose novels include Meek Heritage (1919) and The Maid Silja (1931). He won the 1939 Nobel Prize for literature.

Sil-li-man (sĭl'ə-mən), Benjamin. 1779-1864. American chemist and educator who founded (1818) the American Journal of Science and Arts.

Sills (sĭlz), Beverly. Born 1929. American operatic soprano and manager who joined the New York City Opera in 1953 and was its general director from 1980 to 1989.

sil·ly (sīl'ē) adj. sil·li·er, sil·li·est. 1. Exhibiting a lack of wisdom or good sense; foolish. See Synonyms at foolish. 2. Lacking seriousness or responsibility; frivolous: indulged in silly word play; silly pet names for each other.
3. Semiconscious; dazed: knocked silly by the impact. [Middle English seli, silli, blessed, innocent, hapless, from Old English gesælig, blessed.] —sil'li·ly (sīl'ə-lē) adv. —sil/li·ness n.

si·lo (sī'lō) n. pl. si·los. 1. a. A tall cylindrical structure, usually beside a barn, in which fodder is stored. b. A pit dug for the same purpose. 2. An underground shelter for a missile, usually equipped to launch the missile or to raise it into a launching position. — v. tr. si·loed, si·lo·ing, si·los. To store in a silo. [Spanish.]

Si·lo·ne (sī-lō'nē, sē-lō'nē), Ignazio. 1900-1978. Italian novelist whose best-known works, Bread and Wine (1937) and The Seed Beneath the Snow (1941), were written while he was in exile from the Fascist regime in Italy.

si·lox·ane (sī-lōk'sān', sī-) n. Any of a class of organic or inorganic chemical compounds of silicon, oxygen, and usually carbon and hydrogen, based on the structural unit R₂SiO, where R is an alkyl group, usually methyl. [SIL(ICON) + OX(YGEN) + (METH)ANE.]

silt (sīlt) n. A sedimentary material consisting of very fine particles intermediate in size between sand and clay. — v. silt·ed, silt·ing, silts. — v. intr. To become filled with silt: an old channel that silted up. — v. tr. To fill, cover, or obstruct with silt: River sediments gradually silted the harbor. [Middle English cylte, probably of Scandinavian origin. See sal- in Appendix.] —silt·a'tion n. —silt'y adj.

silt·stone (sīlt'stōn') n. A fine-grained rock of consolidated silt.

Sil·u·res (sīl'yə-rēz') pl.n. A people described by Tacitus as occupying southeast Wales at the time of the Roman invasion. [Latin.]

Si·lu·ri·an (sī-lōr'ē-ən, sī-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the Silures or their culture. 2. Geology. Of, belonging to, or being the geologic time, system of rocks, or sedimentary deposits of the third period of the Paleozoic Era, characterized by the development of early invertebrate land animals and land plants. — n. Geology. The Silurian Period or its system of deposits. [From SILURES (so called because the Silures lived in the part of Wales where the rocks were first identified).]

si·lu·rid (sī-lōr'īd, sī-) adj. Of or belonging to the family Siluridae, which includes various freshwater catfishes of Europe and Asia, typically having a short dorsal fin and a long anal fin. — n. A silurid fish. [From New Latin Siluridae, family name, from Latin silūrus, a large freshwater fish, from Greek silouros, sheatfish. See ors- in Appendix.]

sil·va also syl·va (sīl'və) n. pl. sil·vas or sil·vae (-vē). 1. The trees or forests of a region. 2. A written work on the trees or forests of a region. [Latin, forest.]

sil·van (sīl'vən) adj. & n. Variant of sylvan.

Sil·va·nus also Syl·va·nus (sĭl'vā'nəs) n. Roman Mythology. A god of forests, fields, and herding.

sil·ver (sĭl'vər) n. 1. Symbol Ag A lustrous white, ductile, malleable metallic element, occurring both uncombined and in ores such as argentite, having the highest thermal and electrical conductivity of the metals. It is highly valued for jewelry, tableware, and other ornamental use and is widely used in coinage, photography, dental and soldering alloys, electrical contacts, and printed circuits. Atomic number 47; atomic weight 107.868; melting point 960.8°C; boiling point 2,212°C; specific gravity 10.50; valence 1, 2. 2. This metallic element as a commodity or medium of exchange. 3. Coins made of this metallic element.

4. a. Domestic articles, such as tableware, made of or plated with silver.

b. Tableware, especially eating and serving utensils, made of steel or another metal. 5. Color. A lustrous medium gray. 6. A silver salt, especially silver nitrate, used to sensitize paper. — adj. 1. Made of or containing silver: a silver bowl; silver ore. 2. Resembling silver, especially in having a lustrous shine; silvery.

3. Color. Of a lustrous medium gray: silver hair. 4. Having a soft, clear, resonant sound. 5. Eloquent; persuasive: a silver voice. 6. Favoring the adoption of silver as a standard of currency: the silver plank of the 1896 Democratic platform. 7. Of or constituting a 25th anniversary. — v. sil·vered, sil·ver·ing, sil·vers. — v.

tr. 1. To cover, plate, or adorn with silver or a similar lustrous substance. 2. To give a silver color to. 3. To coat (photographic paper) with a film of silver nitrate or other silver salt. — v. intr. To become silvery. [Middle English, from Old English siolfor, seolfor, probably ultimately from Akkadian šarpu, refined silver, from šarāpu, to smelt, refine.]

silver age (sĭl'vər āj) n. A period of history secondary in achievement to that of a golden age.

sil·ver·back (sĭl'vər-bāk) n. A mature male gorilla having silvery white hair across the back.

sil·ver·bell tree (sĭl'vər-bĕl' trē) n. Any of several trees or shrubs of the genus Halesia, especially H. carolina, of the southeast United States, having drooping, bell-shaped white flowers and dry, oblong, four-winged fruit.

sil·ver·ber·ry (sĭl'vər-bĕr'ē) n. 1. A northeast North American shrub (Elaeagnus commutata) having silvery flowers, leaves, and berries. 2. See oleaster.

silver bromide (sĭl'vər brō'mĭd') n. A pale yellow crystalline compound, AgBr, that turns black on exposure to light and is used as the light-sensitive component on ordinary photographic film and plates.

silver certificate (sĭl'vər sər-tĭf'i-kĭt) n. A bill formerly issued as legal tender by the U.S. government in representation of deposited silver bullion.

silver chloride (sĭl'vər klōr'ĭd') n. A white granular powder, AgCl, that turns dark on exposure to light and is used in photographic emulsions, photometry, and silver plating.

silver cord (sĭl'vər kôrd) n. The emotional bond between a mother and her offspring. [After The Silver Cord, a play by Sidney Coe Howard.]

silver dollar (sĭl'vər dŏl'ər) n. Botany. 1. See honesty (n., sense 4). 2. A spineless, hemispherical cactus (Astrophytum asterias) native to Texas and northern Mexico, having large yellow flowers.

sil-ver-eye (sĭl'vər-ī') n. See white-eye.

sil-ver-fish (sĭl'vər-fĭsh') n. pl. silverfish or sil-ver-fish-es. 1. Any of various fishes having silvery scales, such as a tarpon or silverside. 2. A small silvery or gray bristletail (Lepisma saccharina) that feeds on the starchy material in book-bindings, wallpaper, clothing, and food, often causing extensive damage.

silver fox (sĭl'vər fŏks) n. 1. A red fox of the melanistic form, having black fur tipped with white. 2. The fur of a silver fox, especially as an article of clothing.

silver hake (sĭl'vər hāk) n. A marine food fish (Merluccius bilinearis) with silvery scales, common in American Atlantic coastal waters.

silver iodide (sĭl'vər ĩ'ə-dĭd') n. A pale yellow, odorless powder, AgI, that darkens on exposure to light and is used in photographic emulsions, rainmaking, and medicine, especially as an antiseptic.

silver lining (sĭl'vər lĭ'nĭng) n. A hopeful or comforting prospect in the midst of difficulty. [From the proverb "Every cloud has a silver lining".]

silver maple (sĭl'vər mǎ'pəl) n. 1. A North American deciduous tree (Acer saccharinum) having palmately dissected leaves that are silvery below and light green above. 2. The hard, brittle wood of this tree.

sil-vern (sĭl'vərn) adj. 1. Composed of silver. 2. Resembling silver; silvery. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by silver, silver), of Old English silfren, from siolfor. See SILVER.]

silver nitrate (sĭl'vər nĭ'trāt') n. A poisonous colorless crystalline compound, AgNO₃, that becomes grayish black when exposed to light in the presence of organic matter and is used in manufacturing photographic film, silvering mirrors, dyeing hair, plating silver, and in medicine as a cautery and an antiseptic.

silver perch (sĭl'vər pŭrch) n. Any of various silvery fishes, such as the white crappie, resembling perch. Also called mademoiselle silver plate (sĭl'vər plāt) n. 1. A coating or plating of silver. 2. Tableware, such as flatware or hollowware, made of or coated with silver.

sil-ver-plate (sĭl'vər-plāt') v. tr. sil-ver-plat-ed, sil-ver-plat-ing, sil-ver-plates. To coat (an object) with a thin layer of silver, especially by electroplating.

sil-ver-point (sĭl'vər-point') n. 1. A technique of drawing on specially prepared paper with a silver-tipped instrument. 2. A drawing made by use of this technique.

silver protein (sĭl'vər prŏ'tĕn') n. A colloidal preparation of silver oxide and protein, usually gelatin or albumin, used as an antibacterial agent.

sil-ver-rod (sĭl'vər-rōd') n. An eastern North American plant (Solidago bicolor) related to the goldenrods but having white rather than yellow flower heads.

silver salmon (sĭl'vər sām'ən) n. See coho salmon.

silver screen (sĭl'vər skrĕn) n. See screen (n., sense 6). [From a type of movie screen covered with silver-colored metallic paint.]

sil-ver-side (sĭl'vər-sĭd') also sil-ver-sides (-sĭdz') n. Any of various chiefly marine fishes of the family Atherinidae, characteristically having a broad silvery band along each side and including the grunion.

sil-ver-smith (sĭl'vər-smĭth') n. One that makes, repairs, or replates articles of silver.

silver spoon (sĭl'vər spōon) n. Inherited wealth. [From the proverb “born with a silver spoon in one’s mouth”.]

Sil-ver Spring (sĭl'vər sprĭng) An unincorporated community of west-central Maryland, a residential suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 76,046.

silver standard (sĭl'vər stān'dərd) n. A monetary standard under which a specified quantity of silver constitutes the basic unit of currency.

Silver Star (sĭl'vər stār) n. A U.S. military decoration awarded for gallantry in action.

sil-ver-tip (sĭl'vər-tĭp') n. See grizzly bear.

sil-ver-tongued (sĭl'vər-tŭngd') adj. Having or exhibiting the power of fluent and persuasive speech; eloquent.

sil-ver-ware (sĭl'vər-wār') n. 1. Hollowware and flatware made of or plated with silver. 2. Metal eating and serving utensils.

sil-ver-weed (sĭl'vər-wĕd') n. A low-growing, stoloniferous plant (Potentilla anserina) having yellow flowers and rosettes of pinnate leaves that are silvery beneath. Also called goose grass sil-ver-work (sĭl'vər-wŭrk') n. Decorative work done in silver.

sil-ver-y (sĭl'və-rĕ) adj. 1. Containing or coated with silver. 2. Resembling silver in color or luster: “A fountain threw high its silvery water” (Harriet Beecher Stowe). 3. Having a clear, softly resonant sound: a silvery laugh.

—sil'ver-i-ness n.

sil-vex (sĭl'vĕks') n. A solid, toxic, selective herbicide, C₉H₇O₃Cl₃, used primarily against woody plants. [Probably Latin silva, forest + EX(TERMINATOR).]

sil-vi-chem-i-cal (sĭl'vĭ-kĕm'ĭ-kəl) n. Any of various chemicals derived from wood. [Latin silva, forest + CHEMICAL.]

sil-vic-o-lous (sĭl'vĭk'ə-ləs) adj. Growing in or inhabiting woodlands. [From Latin silvicola, inhabitant of the forest : silva, forest + colere, to dwell, till; see k^wel-1 in Appendix.]

sil-vi-cul-ture (sĭl'vĭ-kŭl'chər) n. The care and cultivation of forest trees; forestry. [Latin silva, forest + CULTURE.] —sil'vi-cul'tur-al adj. —sil'vi-cul'tur-al-ly adv. —sil'vi-cul'tur-ist n.

si·ma (sī'mə) n. The lower layer of the earth's outer crust that underlies the sial and is rich in silica, iron, and magnesium. [SI(LICA) + MA(GNESIUM).]

Sim·chat To·rah (sēm-KHāt' tō-rā') also Sim·chas To·rah (sīm'KHəs tōr'ə, tōr'ə) n. Judaism. A festival celebrating the Law of Moses and the completion of the year's cycle and subsequent new beginning, observed on the 23rd day of Tishri. [Hebrew simhat tôrâ, rejoicing over the Law, Simchas Torah : simhat, inflectional form of simhâ, joy, merriment (from sāmah, to rejoice) + tôrâ, torah.]

Sim·coe (sīm'kō), Lake. A lake of southeast Ontario, Canada, between Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario. It is a popular resort area.

Si·me·non (sē-mə-nŌN'), Georges Joseph Christian. 1903-1989. Belgian-born French writer known especially for his detective novels featuring Inspector Maigret, including The Strange Case of Peter the Left (1931) and Maigret's Memoirs (1950).

Sim·e·on¹ (sīm'ē-ən) In the Old Testament, a son of Jacob and Leah and the forebear of one of the tribes of Israel.

Sim·e·on² (sīm'ē-ən) In the New Testament, the devout Jew who proclaimed the Nunc Dimittis while holding the infant Jesus in his arms.

Simeon Sty·li·tes (sīm'ē-ən stī-lī'tēz), Saint. A.D. 390?-459. Syrian Christian ascetic. The first of the "pillar-dwelling" ascetics, he spent 30 years atop a column.

Sim·fer·o·pol (sīm'fə-rō'pəl, syīm-fyə-rō'-) A city of southern Ukraine in the southern Crimea northeast of Sevastopol. Originally settled by Scythians, it was annexed by Russia in 1784. Population, 331,000.

sim·i·an (sīm'ē-ən) adj. Relating to, characteristic of, or resembling an ape or a monkey. — n. An ape or a monkey. [From Latin sīmia, ape, probably from sīmus, snub-nosed, from Greek simos.]

sim·i·lar (sīm'ə-lər) adj. 1. Related in appearance or nature; alike though not identical. 2. Mathematics. Having corresponding angles equal and corresponding line segments proportional. Used of geometric figures: similar triangles. [French similaire, from Latin similis, like. See sem-¹ in Appendix.] — sim·i·lar·ly adv.

sim·i·lar·i·ty (sīm'ə-lăr'ī-tē) n. pl. sim·i·lar·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being similar; resemblance. See Synonyms at likeness. 2. A corresponding aspect or feature; equivalence: a similarity of writing styles.

sim·i·le (sīm'ə-lē) n. A figure of speech in which two essentially unlike things are compared, often in a phrase introduced by like or as, as in "How like the winter hath my absence been" or "So are you to my thoughts as food to life" (Shakespeare). [Middle English, from Latin, from neuter of similis, like. See SIMILAR.]

si·mil·i·tude (sī-mil'ī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. 1. Similarity; resemblance. See Synonyms at likeness. 2. a. One closely resembling another; a counterpart. b. A perceptible likeness. 3. Archaic. A simile, an allegory, or a parable. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin similitūdō, from similis, like. See SIMILAR.]

Si-mi Valley (sē'mē vāl'ē, sīm'ē) A city of southern California, a manufacturing suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 100,217.

Sim-men-tal also Sim-men-thal (zīm'an-täl') n. Any of a Swiss breed of large, muscular cattle, having a reddish body and a white face and raised for meat and milk. [After Simmental, a valley of the Simme River in southwest-central Switzerland.]

sim-mer (sīm'ər) v. intr. sim-mered, sim-mer-ing, sim-mers. 1. To be cooked gently or remain just at or below the boiling point. 2. a. To be filled with pent-up emotion; seethe. b. To be in a state of gentle ferment: thoughts simmering in the back of her mind. — v. tr. 1. To cook (food) gently in a liquid just at or below the boiling point. 2. To keep (a liquid) near or just below the boiling point. See Synonyms at boil¹. — n. The state or process of simmering. — phrasal verb. simmer down. To become calm after excitement or anger. [Alteration of Middle English simpire, to simmer, probably of imitative origin.]

Simms (sīms), William Gilmore. 1806-1870. American writer noted especially for his historical novels, including Guy Rivers (1834) and Beauchampe (1842).

sim-nel (sīm'nəl) n. Chiefly British. 1. A crisp bread made of fine wheat flour. 2. A rich fruitcake sometimes covered with almond paste and traditionally eaten at mid-Lent, Easter, and Christmas. [Middle English, from Old French siminel, from Medieval Latin siminellus, ultimately from Latin simila, fine flour, probably of Semitic origin.]

si-mo-le-on (sī-mō'lē-ən) n. Slang. A dollar. [Origin unknown.]

Si-mon (sī'mən), First Viscount Title of John Allesbrook Simon. 1873-1954. British politician who served as home secretary (1915-1916 and 1935-1937), foreign secretary (1931-1935), Chancellor of the Exchequer (1937-1940), and Lord Chancellor (1940-1945).

Si-mon (sē-mōn'), Claude Eugene Henri. Born 1913. French writer who was a proponent of the antinovel. He won the 1985 Nobel Prize for literature.

Si-mon (sī'mən), Herbert Alexander. Born 1916. American economist. He won a 1978 Nobel Prize for his research into the decision-making process within economic organizations.

Si-mon (sī'mən), Neil. Born 1927. American playwright whose lighthearted comedies of middle-class life include The Odd Couple (1965) and Plaza Suite (1968).

si-mo-ni-ac (sī-mō'nē-āk', sī-) n. One who practices simony. — si-mo'ni-ac', si'mo-ni'a-cal (sī'mə-nī'ə-kəl, sīm'ə-) adj. — si'mo-ni'a-cal-ly adv.

Si-mon-i-des of Ce-os (sī-mōn'i-dēz ūf sē'ös), 556?-468? B.C. Greek lyric poet who is known especially for his elegies in honor of the slain warriors at Marathon and Thermopylae.

Simon Le-gree (sī'mən lə-grē') n. A brutal taskmaster. [After Simon Legree, a cruel slave dealer in the novel Uncle Tom's Cabin by Harriet Beecher Stowe.]

Si·mo·nov (sē'mə-nŏf, -nŏf, syē'mə-nəf), Konstantin Mikhailovich. 1915-1979. Soviet writer who produced emotional war poetry during World War II and wrote the novel Days and Nights (1943-1944).

si·mon·pure (sī'mən-pyŏŕ') adj. 1. Genuinely and thoroughly pure.

2. Superficially or hypocritically virtuous. [From the phrase the real Simon Pure, after Simon Pure, a character in A Bold Stroke for a Wife, a play by Susannah Centlivre (1669-1723).]

si·mo·ny (sī'mə-nē, sĭm'ə-) n. The buying or selling of ecclesiastical pardons, offices, or emoluments. [Middle English simonie, from Old French, from Late Latin simōnia, after Simon Magus, a sorcerer who tried to buy spiritual powers from the Apostle Peter (Acts 8:9-24).] —si'mo·nist n.

Simon Ze·lo·tes (sī'mən zē-lŏ'tēz) or Simon the Ca·naan·ite (kā'nə-nīt'), First century A.D. In the New Testament, one of the 12 Apostles. Although nothing certain is known of his life, he is thought to have been a member of the Zealots.

si·moom (sĭ-mŏŏm') also si·moon (-mŏŏn') n. A strong, hot, sand-laden wind of the Sahara and Arabian deserts: "Stephen's heart had withered up like a flower of the desert that feels the simoom coming from afar" (James Joyce). Also called samiel [Arabic samūm, poisonous, simoom, from samma, to poison, from Aramaic sammā, drug, poison.]

simp (sĭmp) n. Slang. One who is regarded as simple or foolish.

sim·pa·ti·co (sĭm-pä'tĭ-kŏ', -pät'ĭ-) adj. 1. Of like mind or temperament; compatible. 2. Having attractive qualities; pleasing. [Italian simpatico (from simpatia, sympathy), or Spanish simpático (from simpatía, sympathy) both from Latin sympathia. See SYMPATHY.]

sim·per (sĭm'pər) v. sim·pered, sim·per·ing, sim·pers. — v. intr. To smile in a silly, self-conscious, often coy manner. — v. tr. To utter or express with a silly, self-conscious, often coy smile: simpered a lame excuse. — n. A silly, self-conscious, often coy smile. See Synonyms at smile. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] —sim'per·er n. —sim'per·ing·ly adv.

sim·ple (sĭm'pəl) adj. sim·pler, sim·plest. 1. Having or composed of only one thing, element, or part. See Synonyms at pure. 2. Not involved or complicated; easy: a simple task. See Synonyms at easy. 3. Being without additions or modifications; mere: a simple "yes" or "no." 4. Having little or no ornamentation; not embellished or adorned: a simple dress. 5. Not elaborate, elegant, or luxurious. See Synonyms at plain. 6. Unassuming or unpretentious; not affected.

7. a. Having or manifesting little sense or intelligence. b. Uneducated; ignorant.

c. Unworldly or unsophisticated. See Synonyms at naive. 8. Not guileful or deceitful; sincere. 9. Humble or lowly in condition or rank: a simple woodcutter.

10. Ordinary or common: a simple head cold. 11. a. Being a fundamental or rudimentary element; basic. b. Not important or significant; trivial.

12. Biology. Having no divisions or branches; not compound: a simple leaf; a simple eye or lens. 13. Music. Being without figuration or elaboration: a simple tone. — n. 1. A single component of a complex, especially one that is unanalyzable. 2. A fool; a simpleton. 3. A person of humble birth or condition. 4. A medicinal plant or the medicine obtained from it. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin simplus; see sem-¹ in Appendix, and from simplex; see SIMPLEX.] —sim'ple-ness n.

simple closed curve (sĭm'pəl klōzd kŭrv) n. Mathematics. A curve, such as a circle, that is closed and does not intersect itself. Also called Jordan curve simple equation (sĭm'pəl ɪ-kwā'zhən) n. Mathematics. A linear equation.

simple fraction (sĭm'pəl frāk'shən) n. Mathematics. A fraction in which both the numerator and the denominator are whole numbers.

simple fracture (sĭm'pəl frāk'chər) n. A bone fracture that causes little or no damage to the surrounding soft tissues.

simple fruit (sĭm'pəl frōōt) n. A fruit, such as a pea pod, an orange, or a tomato, that develops from a single pistil.

simple harmonic motion (sĭm'pəl hār-mōn'ik mō'shən) n. Physics. See harmonic motion.

simple interest (sĭm'pəl ɪn'trɪst) n. Interest paid only on the original principal, not on the interest accrued.

simple machine (sĭm'pəl mə-shēn') n. A simple device, such as a lever, a pulley, or an inclined plane; a machine.

simple microscope (sĭm'pəl mī'krə-skōp') n. A microscope having one lens or lens system, such as a magnifying glass or hand lens.

sim-ple-mind-ed or sim-ple-mind-ed (sĭm'pəl-mĭn'dɪd) adj. 1. Lacking in subtlety or sophistication; artless or naive: a simple-minded horror movie; simple-minded generalizations. 2. Stupid or silly; foolish. 3. Mentally impaired.

—sim'ple-mind'ed-ly adv. —sim'ple-mind'ed-ness n.

simple pendulum (sĭm'pəl pĕn'jə-ləm) n. See pendulum (n., sense 1).

simple protein (sĭm'pəl prō'tĕn') n. A protein, such as a globulin or histone, that yields only amino acids upon hydrolysis.

simple sentence (sĭm'pəl sĕn'təns) n. A sentence having no coordinate or subordinate clauses, as The cat purred.

Sim-ple Si-mon (sĭm'pəl sī'mən) n. A foolish fellow; a simpleton. [After Simple Simon, a character in a nursery rhyme.]

simple sugar (sĭm'pəl shōōg'ər) n. See monosaccharide.

sim-ple-ton (sĭm'pəl-tən) n. A person who is felt to be deficient in judgment, good sense, or intelligence; a fool. [SIMPLE + -ton as in surnames such as Chester-ton.]

sim-plex (sĭm'plĕks') adj. 1. Consisting of or marked by only one part or element. 2. Of or relating to a telecommunications system in which only one message can be sent in either direction at one time. — n. pl. sim·plex·es or sim·plic·es (-plī-sēz'). 1. Mathematics. A Euclidean geometric spatial element having the minimum number of boundary points, such as a line segment in one-dimensional space, a triangle in two-dimensional space, or a tetrahedron in three-dimensional space. 2. Linguistics. A word that has no affixes and is not part of a compound; a simple word. [Latin simplex, simple. See sem⁻¹ in Appendix.]

sim·plic·i·ty (sīm-plīs'ī-tē) n. pl. sim·plic·i·ties. 1. The property, condition, or quality of being simple or uncombined. 2. Absence of luxury or showiness; plainness. 3. Absence of affectation or pretense. 4. a. Lack of sophistication or subtlety; naiveté. b. Lack of good sense or intelligence; foolishness. 5. a. Clarity of expression. b. Austerity in embellishment. [Middle English simplicite, from Old French, from Latin simplicitās, from simplex, simplic-, simple. See sem⁻¹ in Appendix.]

sim·pli·fy (sīm'plə-fī') v. tr. sim·pli·fied, sim·pli·fy·ing, sim·pli·fies. To make simple or simpler, as: a. To reduce in complexity or extent. b. To reduce to fundamental parts. c. To make easier to understand. [French simplifier, from Old French, from Medieval Latin simplificāre: Latin simplus, simple; see SIMPLE + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] — sim'pli·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. — sim'pli·fi'er n.

sim·plism (sīm'plīz'əm) n. The tendency to oversimplify an issue or a problem by ignoring complexities or complications. [French simplisme, from simple, simple, from Old French. See SIMPLE.] — sim·plis'tic (sīm-plīs'tīk) adj. — sim·plis'ti·cal·ly adv.

Sim·plon Pass (sīm'plōn' pās, sān-plōn') A pass, 2,010 m (6,590 ft) high, between the Lepontine and Pennine Alps in southern Switzerland. A nearby railroad tunnel system, 19.8 km (12.3 mi) long, extends southeastward into Italy.

sim·ply (sīm'plē) adv. 1. a. In a plain and unadorned way: dresses simply. b. In an unambiguous way; clearly: explained the concept simply. 2. Not wisely or sensibly; foolishly. 3. Merely; only: It is simply a matter of time. 4. Absolutely; altogether: simply delicious. 5. Frankly; candidly: You are, quite simply, the best candidate for the job.

simply connected (sīm'plē kə-nēk'tīd) adj. Mathematics. Of, being, or characterized by a surface that is divided into two separate parts by every simple closed curve within it.

Simp·son (sīmp'sən), Sir James Young. 1811-1870. Scottish physician who pioneered the use of ether and chloroform in obstetrics (1847).

Simp·son (sīmp'sən), O(renthal) J(ames). Born 1947. American athlete who was the first professional football player to rush more than 2,000 yards in a season.

Simpson Desert (sīmp'sən dēz'ərt) A desert region of central Australia. The barren, uninhabited area was first crossed in 1939.

Sims (sĩmz), William Sowden. 1858-1936. American naval officer who commanded U.S. naval forces in Europe during World War I and later cowrote Victory at Sea (1920), for which he won a Pulitzer Prize.

Sims·bur·y (sĩmz/bě'r'ē, -bə-rē) A town of northern Connecticut northwest of Hartford. Incorporated in 1670, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 22,023.

sim·u·la·cra (sĩm'yə-lā'krə, -lāk'rə) n. Plural of simulacrum.

sim·u·la·cre (sĩm'yə-lā'kər, -lāk'ər) n. Archaic. A simulacrum. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin simulācrum. See SIMULACRUM.]

sim·u·la·crum (sĩm'yə-lā'krəm, -lāk'rəm) n. pl. sim·u·la·cra (-lā'krə, -lāk'rə). 1. An image or a representation. 2. An unreal or vague semblance. [Latin simulācrum from simulāre, to simulate; see SIMULATE + -crum, n. suff.]

sim·u·lar (sĩm'yə-lər, -lär') Archaic. n. One that simulates; a pretender. — adj. Simulated; sham. [From Latin simulāre, to simulate. See SIMULATE.]

sim·u·late (sĩm'yə-lāt') v. tr. sim·u·lat·ed, sim·u·lat·ing, sim·u·lates.

1. a. To have or take on the appearance, form, or sound of; imitate. b. To make in imitation of or as a substitute for. See Synonyms at imitate. 2. To make a pretense of; feign: simulate interest. See Synonyms at pretend. 3. To create a representation or model of (a physical system or particular situation, for example). [Latin simulāre, simulāt-, from similis, like. See SIMILAR.] —sim'u·la'tive adj.

sim·u·lat·ed (sĩm'yə-lā'tid) adj. Made in resemblance of or as a substitute for another. See Synonyms at artificial.

sim·u·la·tion (sĩm'yə-lā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of simulating. 2. An imitation; a sham. 3. Assumption of a false appearance. 4. a. Imitation or representation, as of a potential situation or in experimental testing.

b. Representation of the operation or features of one process or system through the use of another: computer simulation of an in-flight emergency.

sim·u·la·tor (sĩm'yə-lā'tər) n. One that simulates, especially an apparatus that generates test conditions approximating actual or operational conditions.

si·mul·cast (sĩ'məl-kăst', sĩm'əl-) v. si·mul·cast·ed, si·mul·cast·ing, si·mul·casts. — v. intr. To broadcast simultaneously by FM and AM radio or by radio and television. — v. tr. To broadcast (a program) by simulcasting. — n. A broadcast so transmitted. [SIMUL(TANEOUS) + (BROAD)CAST.]

si·mu·li·um (sə-myōō'lē-əm) n. Any of a genus (Simulium) of black flies, several species of which transmit the parasitic filarial worms that cause onchocerciasis. [New Latin Simulium, type genus, from Latin simulāre, to simulate. See SIMULATE.]

si·mul·ta·ne·ous (sĩ'məl-tā'nē-əs, sĩm'əl-) adj. 1. Happening, existing, or done at the same time. See Synonyms at contemporary. 2. Mathematics. Containing variables for which there are values that can satisfy all the equations: simultaneous equations. [Latin simul, at the same time; see sem¹ in Appendix +

English -taneous as in INSTANTANEOUS.] —si'mul-ta'ne-ous-ly adv.

—si'mul-ta'ne-ous-ness, si'mul-ta-ne'i-ty (-tə-nē'ī-tē, -nā'-) n.

sin¹ (sɪn) n. 1. A transgression of a religious or moral law, especially when deliberate. 2. Theology. a. Deliberate disobedience to the known will of God. b. A condition of estrangement from God resulting from such disobedience.

3. Something regarded as being shameful, deplorable, or utterly wrong. See Synonyms at offense. — v. intr. sinned, sin-ning, sins. 1. To violate a religious or moral law. 2. To commit an offense or a violation. [Middle English sinne, from Old English synn. See es- in Appendix.]

sin² (sēn, sɪn) n. The 21st letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew šîn.]

sin³ abbr. Mathematics. Sine.

Si-nai (sī'nāī'), Mount. A mountain, about 2,288 m (7,500 ft) high, of the south-central Sinai Peninsula. It is thought to be the Old Testament peak on which Moses received the Ten Commandments.

Sinai Peninsula (sī'nāī' pə-nīn'syə-lə) A peninsula linking southwest Asia with northeast Africa at the northern end of the Red Sea between the Gulf of Suez and the Gulf of Aqaba. Israel occupied the peninsula in 1956 and from 1967 to 1982, when it was returned to Egyptian control under the terms of the Camp David Accords (1978) and an Egyptian-Israeli treaty (1979).

sin-an-thro-pus (sī-năn'thrə-pəs, sī-, sī'năn-thrō'pəs, sɪn'ăn-) n. See Peking man. [New Latin Sinanthropus, former genus name : SINO- + Greek anthrōpos, human being.]

sin-a-pism (sɪn'ə-pɪz'əm) n. See mustard plaster. [French sinapisme, from Late Latin sināpismus, from Greek sinapismos, use of a mustard plaster, from sinapizein, to apply a mustard plaster, from sinapi, mustard.]

Si-na-tra (sə-nā'trə), Francis Albert. Known as “Frank.” Born 1915. American singer and actor known for his mellifluous voice. His film credits include From Here to Eternity (1953), for which he won an Academy Award.

since (sɪns) adv. 1. From then until now or between then and now: They left town and haven't been here since. 2. Before now; ago: a name long since forgotten. 3. After some point in the past; at a subsequent time: My friend has since married and moved to California. — prep. 1. Continuously from: They have been friends since childhood. 2. Intermittently from: She's been skiing since childhood. — conj. 1. During the period subsequent to the time when: He hasn't been home since he graduated. 2. Continuously from the time when: They have been friends ever since they were in grade school. 3. Inasmuch as; because: Since you're not interested, I won't tell you about it. [Middle English sinnes, contraction of sithenes : sithen, since (from Old English siththan : sīth, after + than variant of thām, dative of thæt, that); see THAT + -es, adv. suff.; see *-s*³.]

Sin-ce-le-jo (sɪn'sə-lē'hō, -sē-) A town of northwest Colombia south of Cartagena. It is a trade and processing center. Population, 118,559.

sin·cere (sĭn-sĭr') adj. sin·cer·er, sin·cer·est. 1. Not feigned or affected; genuine: sincere indignation. 2. Being without hypocrisy or pretense; true: a sincere friend. 3. Archaic. Pure; unadulterated. [Latin sincĕrus. See ker-² in Appendix.] —sin·cere/ly adv. —sin·cere/ness n.

SYNONYMS: sincere, unaffected, unfeigned, wholehearted, hearty, heartfelt. These adjectives mean genuine, honest, and devoid of hypocrisy or pretense. Sincere implies freedom from sham, misrepresentation, dissimulation, or duplicity: “A friend is a person with whom I may be sincere. Before him, I may think aloud” (Ralph Waldo Emerson). Unaffected and unfeigned especially suggest freedom from dissembling: Many Americans viewed the war in Vietnam with unaffected revulsion. Their hosts received them with unfeigned pleasure. Wholehearted implies genuineness of feeling and unconditional commitment or unstinting devotion: The senator’s party gave its wholehearted support to her presidential candidacy. Hearty suggests exuberant, unrestrained warmth of feeling openly expressed: sent hearty greetings; received hearty thanks. Heartfelt stresses depth and earnestness of feeling: heartfelt condolences; heartfelt joy.

sin·cer·i·ty (sĭn-sĕr'i-tē) n. The quality or condition of being sincere; genuineness, honesty, and freedom from duplicity.

sin·ci·put (sĭn'sĕ-pət) n. pl. sin·ci·puts or sin·cip·i·ta (sĭn-sĭp'i-tə). 1. The upper half of the cranium, especially the anterior portion above and including the forehead. 2. The forehead. [Latin : sĕmi-, semi- + caput, head; see kaput- in Appendix.] —sin·cip·i·tal (-sĭp'i-tl) adj.

Sin·clair (sĭn-klār', sĭng-), Harry Ford. 1876-1956. American oil executive who served a nine-month prison sentence for his part in the Teapot Dome scandal (1923).

Sin·clair (sĭn-klār', sĭng-), May. 1865-1946. British writer whose best-known work is the novel The Divine Fire (1904), based on the life of Ernest Dowson.

Sin·clair (sĭn-klār', sĭng-), Upton Beall. 1878-1968. American writer and reformer. His concern with social justice is apparent in his novels, including The Jungle (1906) and Boston (1928).

Sind (sĭnd) A historical region of southern Pakistan along the lower Indus River. Inhabited since prehistoric times, it was held by Muslim dynasties from the 11th century until 1843, when it was annexed to British India. Sind became part of Pakistan in 1947.

Sin·del·fin·gen (zĭn'dl-fĭng'ən) A city of southwest Germany, an industrial suburb of Stuttgart. Population, 55,362.

Sin·dhi (sĭn'dē) n. pl. Sindhi or Sin·dhis. 1. A member of a predominantly Muslim people of Sind. 2. The Indic language of Sind. — adj. Of or relating to Sind or its people, language, or culture. [Arabic sindīy, from Sind.]

sine (sīn) n. Abbr. sin Mathematics. 1. The ordinate of the endpoint of an arc of a unit circle centered at the origin of a Cartesian coordinate system, the arc being of length x and measured counterclockwise from the point (1, 0) if x is positive or clockwise if x is negative. 2. In a right triangle, the ratio of the length of the side opposite an acute angle to the length of the hypotenuse. [Medieval Latin sinus (mistranslation of Arabic jayb, sine, as if jayb, fold in a garment), from Latin, curve, fold.]

si-ne-cure (sī'nĭ-kyōōr', sĭn'ĭ-) n. 1. A position or an office that requires little or no work but provides a salary. 2. Archaic. An ecclesiastical benefice not attached to the spiritual duties of a parish. [From Medieval Latin (beneficium) sine cūrā, (benefice) without cure (of souls) : Latin sine, without + Latin cūrā, ablative of cūra, care; see CURE.] —si'ne-cur-ism n. —si'ne-cur'ist n.

sine curve (sīn kŭrv) n. Mathematics. The graph of the equation $y = \sin x$. Also called sinusoid si-ne di-e (sī'nĭ dī'ē, sĭn'ā dē'ā') adv. Abbr. s.d. Without a day specified for a future meeting; indefinitely: Parliament was dismissed sine die. [Medieval Latin : Latin sine, without + Latin diē, ablative of diēs, day.]

si-ne pro-le (sī'nĭ prō'lē, sĭn'ā) adv. Abbr. s.p. Law. Without offspring. [New Latin sine prōlē : Latin sine, without + Latin prōlē, ablative of prōlēs, offspring.]

si-ne qua non (sĭn'ĭ kwā nŏn', nŏn', sī'nĭ, kwā) n. An essential element or condition: “The perfect cake is the sine qua non of the carefully planned modern wedding” (J.M. Hilary). [Late Latin sine quā (causā) nŏn, without which (cause) not : Latin sine, without + Latin quā, ablative of quī, which, what, who + Latin causā, ablative of causa, cause + Latin nŏn, not.]

sin-ew (sĭn'yōō) n. 1. A tendon. 2. Vigorous strength; muscular power. 3. The source or mainstay of vitality and strength. Often used in the plural: “Good company and good discourse are the very sinews of virtue” (Izaak Walton). — v. tr.

sin-ewed, sin-ew-ing, sin-ews. To strengthen with or as if with sinews. [Middle English sinewe, from Old English, oblique form of seonu, sinu.]

sine wave (sīn wāv) n. Physics. A waveform with deviation that can be graphically expressed as the sine curve.

sin-ew-y (sĭn'yōō-ē) adj. 1. a. Consisting of or resembling sinews. b. Having many sinews; stringy and tough: a sinewy cut of beef. 2. Lean and muscular. See Synonyms at muscular. 3. Strong and vigorous: sinewy prose.

sin-fo-ni-a (sĭn-fō'nē-ə) n. Music. 1. An instrumental composition serving as an overture, as to an opera or a cantata, especially in the 18th century. 2. A symphonic composition. [Italian, from Latin symphōnia, group of musicians. See SYMPHONY.]

sin-fo-niet-ta (sĭn'fə-nyēt'ə, -fō-) n. Music. 1. A symphony that is shorter than usual or that calls for fewer than the usual number of instruments. 2. A small symphony orchestra, especially one consisting of stringed instruments only. [Italian, diminutive of sinfonia, sinfonia. See SINFONIA.]

sin·ful (sɪn'fəl) adj. Marked by or full of sin; wicked. —sin'ful-ly adv. —sin'-ful-ness n.

sing (sɪŋ) v. sang (sǎŋ) or sung (sʊŋ), sung, sing-ing, sings. — v. intr.
1. Music. a. To utter a series of words or sounds in musical tones. b. To vocalize songs or selections. c. To perform songs or selections as a trained or professional singer. d. To produce sounds when played: made the violin sing. 2. a. To make melodious sounds: birds singing outside the window. b. To give or have the effect of melody; lilt. 3. To make a high whining, humming, or whistling sound. 4. To be filled with a buzzing or ringing sound. 5. a. To proclaim or extol something in verse. b. To write poetry. 6. Slang. To give information or evidence against someone. — v. tr. 1. Music. a. To produce the musical sound of: sang a love song. b. To utter with musical inflections: She sang the message. c. To bring to a specified state by singing: sang the baby to sleep. 2. To intone or chant (parts of the Mass, for example). 3. To proclaim or extol, especially in verse: sang his praises. — n. Music. A gathering of people for group singing. —phrasal verb. sing out. To call out loudly. [Middle English singen, from Old English singan. See senɡ^wh- in Appendix.] —sing'a-ble adj.

sing. abbr. Grammar. Singular.

sing-a-long (sɪŋ'ə-lɔŋg', -lɔŋg') n. Music. 1. A casual gathering for group singing; a songfest. 2. A spontaneous group singing, as by an audience at a performance.

Sin-ga-pore (sɪŋ'gə-pôr', -pôr', sɪŋ'ə-) A country of southeast Asia comprising Singapore Island and adjacent smaller islands. The sparsely populated island of Singapore was ceded to the British East India Company in 1819, and the city was founded the same year by Sir Thomas Raffles. The British took complete control in 1824 and added Singapore to the newly formed Straits Settlements in 1826. Held by the Japanese from 1942 to 1945, Singapore became a crown colony in 1946, a self-governing state in 1959, part of the Federation of Malaysia in 1963, and fully independent in 1965. The city of Singapore is the capital. Population, 2,529,100. —Sin'ga-por'e-an adj. & n.

Singapore Strait (sɪŋ'gə-pôr' strāt) A strait off the southern end of the Malay Peninsula between Singapore Island and the Riau Archipelago. It connects the Strait of Malacca with the South China Sea.

singe (sɪŋj) v. tr. singed, singe-ing, sing-es. 1. To burn superficially; scorch. 2. To burn off the feathers or bristles of (a carcass of a bird or an animal) by subjecting briefly to flame. See Synonyms at burn¹. 3. To burn the ends of (hair, for example). 4. To burn the nap from (cloth) in manufacturing. — n. A slight or surface burn; a scorch. [Middle English sengen, from Old English sengan.]

sing-er¹ (sɪŋ'ər) n. 1. Music. One who sings, especially a trained or professional vocalist. 2. A poet. 3. A songbird.

sing-er² (sɪŋ'jər) n. One that sings.

Sing-er (sɪŋ'ər), Isaac Bashevis. 1904-1991. Polish-born American Yiddish writer who has published such collections as Gimpel the Fool (1957) and Passions (1975). He won the 1978 Nobel Prize for literature.

Sing-er (sɪŋ'ər), Isaac Merritt. 1811-1875. American inventor and manufacturer who patented (1851) a sewing machine capable of making continuous stitches.

Sin-gha-lese (sɪŋ'gə-lēz', -lēz') or Sin-ha-lese (sɪn'hə-) n. pl. Singhalese or Sinhalese. 1. A member of a people constituting the majority of the population of Sri Lanka. 2. The Indic language of the Singhalese that is the chief language of Sri Lanka. — adj. Of or relating to Sri Lanka, the Singhalese, or their language or culture. [Sanskrit Siṃhalam, Sri Lanka + -ESE.]

sin-gle (sɪŋ'gəl) adj. 1. Not accompanied by another or others; solitary.

2. a. Consisting of one part, aspect, or section: a single thickness; a single serving.

b. Having the same application for all; uniform: a single moral code for all.

c. Consisting of one in number: She had but a single thought, which was to escape.

3. Not divided; unbroken: a single slab of ice. 4. a. Separate from others; individual and distinct: Every single child will receive a gift. b. Having individual opponents; involving two individuals only: single combat. 5. a. Honest; undisguised: a single adoration. b. Wholly attentive: You must judge the contest with a single eye. 6. Designed to accommodate one person: a single bed.

7. a. Unmarried. b. Lacking a partner: a single parent. c. Relating to the unmarried state: enjoys the single life. d. Of or relating to celibacy. 8. Botany.

Having only one rank or row of petals: a single flower. — n. 1. One that is separate and individual. 2. An accommodation for one person, as in a hotel.

3. a. An unmarried person. b. singles. Unmarried persons considered as a group: a bar for singles. 4. A one-dollar bill. 5. A phonograph record, especially a forty-five, having one song on each side. 6. Baseball. A hit by which a batter reaches first base safely; a one-base hit. 7. Sports. a. A hit for one run in cricket. b. A golf match between two players. c. Often singles. A tennis or badminton match between two players. — v. sin-gled, sin-gling, sin-gles. — v. tr.

1. To choose or distinguish from others. Often used with out: We singled her out from the list of applicants. 2. Baseball. a. To cause (a base runner) to score or advance by making a one-base hit: singled him to second. b. To cause the scoring of (a run) by a one-base hit. — v. intr. Baseball. To make a single. [Middle English sengle, from Old French, from Latin singulus. See sem⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—sin'gle-ness n.

SYNONYMS: single, sole, unique, solitary, lone, separate. These adjectives are compared as they signify being one in number. What is single is not associated with, accompanied by, or combined with another or others: “means of destruction... in the employment of which no single nation can in fact have a monopoly” (Declaration on Atomic Energy). Sole implies being the only one in existence or the only one under consideration: “The sole wall decoration of his studio was a Japanese print” (Arnold Bennett). Unique in careful usage applies to what is the only one of its kind in existence: “The greatness of art is not to find what is common but what is unique” (Isaac Bashevis Singer). Solitary refers to what stands alone: “A solitary precedent... which has never been reexamined, cannot be conclusive” (Henry Clay). Lone applies to what stands apart from others: “It is the lone worker who makes the first advance in a subject: the details may be worked out by a team” (Alexander Fleming). Separate implies being single and disunited from all others under consideration: “Each separate dying ember wrought its ghost upon the floor” (Edgar Allan Poe).

single blind (sɪŋˈgəl blɪnd) n. A testing procedure in which the administrators do not tell the subjects if they are being given a test treatment or a control treatment in order to avoid accidental bias in the results. —sinˈgle-blindˈ (sɪŋˈgəl-blɪndˈ) adj.

single bond (sɪŋˈgəl bɒnd) n. A covalent bond in which one electron pair is shared by two atoms.

sin·gle·breast·ed (sɪŋˈgəl-brɛsˈtɪd) adj. Closing with a narrow overlap and fastened down the front with a single row of buttons: a single-breasted suit.

sin·gle·cell protein (sɪŋˈgəl-sɛlˈ prɔʊˈtɛnˈ) n. Abbr. SCP A protein extracted from bacterial or yeast cells grown in methanol or in various petroleum fractions and used as a substitute for fish and other protein-rich foods, especially in animal feeds, or as a food supplement in parts of the world where diets are deficient in protein.

single cross (sɪŋˈgəl krɒs) n. Genetics. The hybrid of two inbred lines. It can be represented as AB, the product of the cross A × B, where A and B represent inbred lines.

single entry (sɪŋˈgəl ɛnˈtrɛ) n. Accounting. A system of bookkeeping in which a business keeps only a single account showing amounts due and amounts owed.

sin·gle·fam·i·ly (sɪŋˈgəl-fəmˈə-lē, -fəmˈlē) adj. Relating to or being a dwelling designed for one family only: a single-family home; single-family occupancy.

single file (sɪŋˈgəl fɪl) n. A line of people, animals, or things standing or moving one behind the other. Also called Indian file —single file adv.

sin·gle·foot (sɪŋˈgəl-fʊtˈ) n. A rapid gait of a horse in which each foot strikes the ground separately; the rack. No longer in technical use. — v. intr.

sin-gle-foot-ed, sin-gle-foot-ing, sin-gle-foots. To go at the single-foot.

—sin'gle-foot'er n.

sin-gle-hand (sɪŋ'gəl-hænd') v. tr. sin-gle-hand-ed, sin-gle-hand-ing, sin-gle-hands. Nautical. To sail (a boat) without the help of others: “a business executive who single-hands her own small cruising cutter” (Tony Gibbs). —sin'gle-hand'er n.

sin-gle-hand-ed (sɪŋ'gəl-händ'dɪd) adj. 1. Working or done without help; unassisted. 2. Intended for use with one hand. 3. Having or using only one hand. — adv. In a single-handed manner. —sin'gle-hand'ed-ly adv.

—sin'gle-hand'ed-ness n.

sin-gle-heart-ed (sɪŋ'gəl-här'tɪd) adj. Sincere and dedicated. —sin'gle-heart'ed-ly adv. —sin'gle-heart'ed-ness n.

sin-gle-hood (sɪŋ'gəl-hōöd') n. The state of being unmarried.

sin-gle-is-sue (sɪŋ'gəl-ɪsh'ō) adj. Of, relating to, or concerned with only a single public, especially controversial, issue, to the exclusion of all other factors, concerns, facts, and issues: single-issue groups; single-issue politics.

single knot (sɪŋ'gəl nɒt) n. See overhand knot.

sin-gle-mind-ed (sɪŋ'gəl-mɪn'dɪd) adj. 1. Having one overriding purpose or goal: the single-minded pursuit of money. 2. Steadfast; resolute: He was single-minded in his determination to stop smoking. —sin'gle-mind'ed-ly adv.

—sin'gle-mind'ed-ness n.

sin-gle-phase (sɪŋ'gəl-fāz') adj. Producing, carrying, or powered by a single alternating voltage.

sin-gles bar (sɪŋ'gəlz bär) n. A bar patronized especially by unmarried men and women. Also called dating bar sin-gle-space (sɪŋ'gəl-spās') v. sin-gle-spaced, sin-gle-spac-ing, sin-gle-spac-es. Printing. — v. tr. To type or print (copy) without leaving a blank line between lines. — v. intr. To type or print copy without line spaces.

single standard (sɪŋ'gəl stän'dərd) n. A set of principles applying the same standard to everyone, especially a moral code regarding the sexual behavior of both men and women.

sin-gle-stick (sɪŋ'gəl-stɪk') n. 1. A one-handed fencing stick fitted with a hand guard. 2. The art, sport, or exercise of fencing with such a stick.

sin-gle-stick-er (sɪŋ'gəl-stɪk'ər) n. Nautical. A sailboat with one mast; a sloop.

sin-glet (sɪŋ'glɪt) n. 1. Chiefly British. A man's jersey undershirt. 2. Physics. A multiplet with a single member.

single tax (sɪŋ'gəl tæks) n. A system by which all revenue is derived from a tax on one thing, especially land.

sin-gle-ton (sɪŋ'gəl-tən) n. 1. Games. A playing card that is the only one of its suit in a player's hand. 2. a. An individual separated or distinguished from two or more of its group. b. An offspring born alone. [From the name Singleton (influenced by SINGLE).]

sin·gle·track (sɪŋ'gəl-træk') adj. 1. Having just one track. 2. Lacking mental range or flexibility; one-track: a single-track mind.

sin·gle·tree (sɪŋ'gəl-trē') n. See whiffletree. [Alteration (influenced by DOUBLETREE), of SWINGLETREE.]

sin·gle·wide (sɪŋ'gəl-wīd') n. A mobile home 14 feet (4.3 meters) in width, used as a permanent residence. —sin'gle-wide' adj.

sin·gly (sɪŋ'glē) adv. 1. Without the presence of others; alone. 2. Without the help of others; single-handed. 3. One by one; individually.

sing·song (sɪŋ'sɒŋ', -sɒŋ') n. 1. Verse characterized by mechanical regularity of rhythm and rhyme. 2. A monotonously rising and falling inflection of the voice. — adj. Monotonous in vocal inflection or rhythm. —sing'song'y adj.

sing·spiel (sɪŋ'spēl', zɪŋ'shpēl') n. An 18th-century German musical comedy featuring folk songs interspersed with dialogue. [German : singen, to sing (from Middle High German, from Old High German singan); see seng^wh- in Appendix + Spiel, play; see SPIEL.]

sin·gu·lar (sɪŋ'gyə-lər) adj. 1. Being only one; individual. 2. Being the only one of a kind; unique. 3. Being beyond what is ordinary or usual; remarkable. 4. Deviating from the usual or expected; odd. See Synonyms at strange. 5. Abbr. s., sing. Grammar. a. Of, relating to, or being a noun, pronoun, or adjective denoting a single person or thing or several entities considered as a single unit. b. Of, relating to, or being a verb expressing the action or state of a single subject. 6. Logic. Of or relating to the specific as distinguished from the general; individual. — n. Abbr. s., sing. Grammar. 1. The singular number or a form designating it. 2. A word having a singular number. [Middle English singular, from Old French, from Latin singulāris, from singulus, single. See SINGLE.] —sin'gu·lar·ly adv. —sin'gu·lar·ness n.

sin·gu·lar·i·ty (sɪŋ'gyə-lăr'ī-tē) n. pl. sin·gu·lar·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being singular. 2. A trait marking one as distinct from others; a peculiarity. 3. Something uncommon or unusual. 4. Astrophysics. A point in space-time at which gravitational forces cause matter to have infinite density and infinitesimal volume, and space and time to become infinitely distorted. 5. Mathematics. A point at which the derivative does not exist for a given function of a random variable but every neighborhood of which contains points for which the derivative exists. In this sense, also called singular point sin·gu·lar·ize (sɪŋ'gyə-lə-rīz') v. tr. sin·gu·lar·ized, sin·gu·lar·iz·ing, sin·gu·lar·iz·es. To make conspicuous; distinguish.

singular point (sɪŋ'gyə-lər point) n. Mathematics. See singularity (n., sense 5).

Sin·ha·lese (sɪn'hə-lēz', -lēz') n. & adj. Variant of Singhalese.

Si·ni·cism (sī'nī-sīz'əm, sɪn'ī-) n. A custom or trait peculiar to the Chinese. [From Sinic, Chinese, from Medieval Latin Sīnicus, Chinese, from Late Latin Sīnae, the Chinese. See SINO-.]

Si·ni·cize (sī'nī-sīz', sɪn'ī-) v. tr. Si·ni·cized, Si·ni·ciz·ing, Si·ni·ciz·es. To make Chinese in character or to change or modify by Chinese influence.

—Si'ni-ci·za'tion (-sī-zā'shən) n.

Si·ni·fy (sī'nī-fī', sɪn'ī-) v. tr. Si·ni·fied, Si·ni·fy·ing, Si·ni·fies. To Sinicize. [Late Latin Sīnae, the Chinese; see SINO- + -FY.] —Si'ni-fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

sin·is·ter (sɪn'ī-stər) adj. 1. Suggesting or threatening evil: a sinister smile.

2. Presaging trouble; ominous: sinister storm clouds. 3. Attended by or causing disaster or inauspicious circumstances. 4. On the left side; left. 5. Heraldry. Situated on or being the side of a shield on the wearer's left and the observer's right. [Middle English sinistre, unfavorable, from Old French, from Latin sinister, on the left, unlucky.] —sin'is-ter·ly adv. —sin'is-ter·ness n.

SYNONYMS: sinister, baleful, malign. These adjectives apply to what is indicative of or threatens great harm, disaster, or evil. Sinister usually implies impending or lurking danger that makes its presence felt by ominous signs or portents: “The Kremlin has sinister connotations... The aesthetic reality is otherwise” (Henry A. Kissinger). Baleful intensifies the sense of menace; it suggests a deadly, virulent, or poisonous quality: “The Florida eagles are slightly smaller than the others, but they have the same fierce, baleful look” (John Corry). Malign applies to what manifests an evil disposition, nature, influence, or intent: “The Devil... with jealous leer malign/Eyed them askance” (John Milton).

sin·is·tral (sɪn'ī-strəl, sɪ-nīs'trəl) adj. 1. Of or facing the left side. 2. Left-handed. 3. Zoology. Relating to or being a gastropod shell that has its aperture to the left when facing the observer with the apex upward. —sin'is-tral·ly adv.

sin·is·trorse (sɪn'ī-strôrs') adj. Growing upward in a spiral that turns from right to left: a sinistrorse vine. [Latin sinistrōrsus, turned toward the left, from sinistrōversus*: sinistrō, toward the left, from ablative of sinister, left + vorsus, past participle of vortere variant of vertere, to turn. See wer-² in Appendix.]

—sin'is-trorse·ly adv.

sin·is·trous (sɪn'ī-strəs, sɪ-nīs'trəs) adj. Archaic. Sinister; ill-omened.

—sin'is-trous·ly adv.

Si·nit·ic (sī-nīt'ik, sɪ-) n. The branch of Sino-Tibetan that comprises Chinese. [SIN(O)- + -itic as in SEMITIC.] —Si·nit'ic adj.

sink (sɪŋk) v. sank (sæŋk) or sunk (sʊŋk), sunk, sink·ing, sinks. — v. intr. 1. To descend to the bottom; submerge. 2. a. To fall or drop to a lower level, especially to go down slowly or in stages: The water in the lake sank several feet during the long, dry summer. b. To subside or settle gradually, as a massive or weighty structure. 3. To appear to move downward, as the sun or moon in setting. 4. To slope downward; incline. 5. To pass into a specified condition: She sank into a deep sleep. 6. a. To deteriorate in quality or condition: The patient is sinking fast. The family sank into a state of disgrace. b. To diminish, as in value. 7. To become weaker, quieter, or less forceful: His voice sank to a whisper. 8. a. To drop or fall slowly, as from weakness or fatigue: The exhausted runner sank to the ground. b. To feel great disappointment or discouragement: Her heart sank within her. 9. To seep or soak; penetrate: The water is sinking into the ground. 10. To make an impression; become felt or understood: The meaning finally sank in. — v. tr. 1. To cause to descend beneath a surface: sink a ship. 2. To cause to drop or lower: sank the bucket into the well. 3. To force into the ground: sink a piling. 4. To dig or drill (a mine or well) in the earth. 5. To occupy the full attention of; engross. 6. a. To make weaker, quieter, or less forceful. b. To reduce in quantity or worth. 7. To debase the nature of; degrade. 8. To bring to a low or ruined state; defeat or destroy. 9. To suppress or hide: He sank his arrogance and apologized. 10. Informal. To defeat, as in a game. 11. a. To invest: sink money into a new housing project. b. To invest without any prospect of return. 12. To pay off (a debt). 13. Sports. To get (a ball) into a hole or basket. — n. 1. A water basin fixed to a wall or floor and having a drainpipe and generally a piped supply of water. 2. A cesspool. 3. A sinkhole. 4. In thermodynamics, the part of a system from which heat, or more generally, energy is removed from the system. 5. A place regarded as wicked and corrupt. — idiom. sink or swim. Informal. To succeed or fail without alternative. [Middle English sinken, from Old English sincan.] — sink'a-ble adj.

sink-age (sɪŋ'kɪj) n. 1. The process, amount, or degree of sinking. 2. A sunken area; a depression.

sink-er (sɪŋ'kɛr) n. 1. One that sinks, as a weight used for sinking fishing lines or nets. 2. Slang. A doughnut. 3. Baseball. A sinkerball.

sink-er-ball (sɪŋ'kɛr-bɔl') n. Baseball. A pitched ball that sinks sharply as it reaches the plate; a sinker.

sink-hole (sɪŋk'hɔl') n. A natural depression in a land surface communicating with a subterranean passage, generally occurring in limestone regions and formed by solution or by collapse of a cavern roof.

Sin-kiang Ui-ghur or Sin-kiang Ui-gur (sɪn'kyäŋ' wɛ'gər, shɪn'jyäng') See Xinjiang Uyghur.

sink-ing fund (sɪŋ'kɪŋ fʌnd) n. Abbr. SF Accounting. A fund accumulated to pay off a corporate or public debt.

sin-ner (sɪn'ər) n. 1. One that sins or does wrong; a transgressor. 2. A scamp.

Sinn Fein (shĭn fān', fě'ĭn) n. An Irish political and cultural society founded about 1905 to promote political and economic independence from England, unification of Ireland, and a renewal of Irish culture. It now constitutes the political branch of the Irish Republican Army. [Irish Gaelic sinn féin : sinn, we (from Middle Irish, from Old Irish) + féin, self (from Middle Irish, from Old Irish); see s(w)e- in Appendix.] —Sinn Fein'er n. —Sinn' Fein'ism n.

Sino- pref. Chinese: Sinology. [From Late Latin Sīnae, the Chinese, from Greek Sinai, from Arabic Sīn, China, probably from Chinese Qin, the first dynasty (221-206 B.C.) under which China was united.]

si-no-a-tri-al (sī'nō-ā'trē-əl) adj. Of or relating to the sinoatrial node: a sinoatrial heart block. [SIN(US) + ATRIAL.]

sinoatrial node (sī'nō-ā'trē-əl nōd) n. A small mass of specialized cardiac muscle fibers located in the posterior wall of the right atrium of the heart that acts as a pacemaker by generating at regular intervals the electric impulses of the heartbeat. Also called sinoauricular node, sinus node.

si-no-au-ric-u-lar (sī'nō-ô-rĭk'yə-lər) adj. Sinoatrial. [SIN(US) + AURICULAR.]

sinoauricular node (sī'nō-ô-rĭk'yə-lər nōd) n. See sinoatrial node.

Si-no-logue also Sin-o-log (sī'nə-lŏg', -lŏg', sĭn'ə-) n. A student of or specialist in Sinology.

Si-nol-o-gy (sī-nŏl'ə-jē, sĭ-) n. The study of Chinese language, literature, or civilization. —Si'no-log'i-cal (sī'nə-lŏj'ĭ-kəl, sĭn'ə-) adj. —Si-nol'o-gist n.

Si-no-pe (sə-nŏ'pē) n. The satellite of Jupiter that is 17th in distance from the planet. [Latin Sinŏpē, woman said to have been unsuccessfully courted by Zeus, from Greek.]

Si-no-phile (sī'nə-fĭl', sĭn'ə-) n. One who admires China, its people, or its culture. —Si'no-phil'i-a (-fĭl'ē-ə) n.

Si-no-phobe (sī'nə-fŏb', sĭn'-) n. One who fears or dislikes China, its people, or its culture. —Si'no-pho'bi-a (-fŏ'bē-ə) n. —Si'no-pho'bic (-fŏ'bĭk) adj.

Si-no-Ti-bet-an (sī'nō-tĭ-bět'n, sĭn'ŏ-) n. A language family that includes the Sinitic and Tibeto-Burman branches. —Si'no-Ti-bet'an adj.

sin-se-mil-la (sĭn'sə-mē'yə, -mĭl'ə) n. A highly potent form of marijuana obtained from unpollinated female plants. [Spanish : sin, without (from Latin sine) + semilla, seed (from Old Spanish dialectal semilia, alteration of Late Latin sēminia, neuter pl. of sēminium, from sēmen); see SEMEN.]

sin tax (sĭn tāk) n. Informal. A tax on certain items, such as cigarettes and alcohol, that are regarded as neither necessities nor luxuries.

sin-ter (sĭn'tər) n. 1. Geology. A chemical sediment or crust, as of porous silica, deposited by a mineral spring. 2. A mass formed by sintering. — v. sin-tered, sin-ter-ing, sin-ters. — v. tr. To cause (metallic powder, for example) to form a coherent mass by heating without melting. — v. intr. To form a coherent mass by heating without melting. [German, from Middle High German, dross, metal slag, from Old High German.] —sin'ter-a-bil'i-ty n.

Sint-Ni-klaas (sɪnt-nē'kläs) A city of northwest Belgium west-southwest of Antwerp. It is a commercial, industrial, and transportation center. Population, 68,157.

sin·u·ate (sɪn'yōō-īt, -āt') v. intr. sin·u·at·ed, sin·u·at·ing, sin·u·ates. To bend or curve; wind in and out: a road that sinuates through the Alps. — adj. also sin·u·at·ed (-ā'tid) Having a wavy indented margin, as a leaf. [Latin sinuāre, sinuāt-, to bend, from sinus, curve.] —sin'u·ate·ly adv. —sin'u·a'tion n.

Sin-ui-ju (shɪn'wē-jōō') A city of western North Korea on Korea Bay at the mouth of the Yalu River. It is a port and railroad terminus connected by bridge with Dandong, China. Population, 300,000.

sin·u·os·i·ty (sɪn'yōō-ōs'ī-tē) n. pl. sin·u·os·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being sinuous. 2. A bending or curving shape or movement.

sin·u·ous (sɪn'yōō-əs) adj. 1. Characterized by many curves or turns; winding: a sinuous stream. 2. Characterized by supple and lithe movements: the sinuous grace of a dancer. 3. Not direct; devious. 4. Sinuate: a sinuous leaf. [From Latin sinuōsus, from sinus, curve.] —sin'u·ous·ly adv. —sin'u·ous·ness n.

si·nus (sī'nəs) n. 1. A depression or cavity formed by a bending or curving. 2. Anatomy. a. A dilated channel or receptacle containing chiefly venous blood. b. Any of various air-filled cavities in the bones of the skull, especially one communicating with the nostrils. 3. Pathology. A fistula leading from a pus-filled cavity. 4. Botany. A recess or an indentation between lobes of a leaf or corolla. [Middle English, hollow in the body, from Medieval Latin sinus, from Latin, curve, hollow.]

si·nus·i·tis (sī'nə-sī'tis) n. Inflammation of the sinuses or a sinus, especially in the nasal region.

sinus node (sī'nəs nōd) n. See sinoatrial node.

si·nu·soid (sī'nə-soid', -nyə-) n. 1. Mathematics. See sine curve. 2. Anatomy. Any of the venous cavities through which blood passes in various glands and organs, such as the adrenal gland and the liver. [Medieval Latin sinus, sine; see SINE + -OID.] —si'nu·soi'dal (-soid'l) adj. —si'nu·soi'dal·ly adv.

sinusoidal projection (sī'nə-soid'l prə-jěk'shən) n. A map projection in which areas are equal to corresponding areas on a globe, the parallels and the prime meridian being straight lines and the other meridians being increasingly curved outward from the prime meridian.

sinus ve·no·sus (sī'nəs vē-nō'səs) n. The first chamber in the heart of fish, amphibians, and reptiles, which receives blood from the veins and contracts to force the blood into the atrium. [New Latin sinus venōsus: Medieval Latin sinus, sinus + Latin vēnōsus, venous.]

Si-on (sī'ən) n. Variant of Zion².

Siou-an (sōō'ən) n. 1. A large North American Indian language family spoken from Lake Michigan to the Rocky Mountains and southward to Arkansas. 2. A member of a Siouan-speaking people. [SIOU(X) + -AN¹.] —Siou'an adj.

Sioux (sōō) n. pl. Sioux (sōō, sōōz). 1. a. A group of Native American peoples, also known as the Dakota, inhabiting the northern Great Plains from Minnesota to eastern Montana and from southern Saskatchewan to Nebraska. Present-day Sioux populations are located mainly in North and South Dakota. b. A member of any of these peoples. 2. Any of the Siouan languages of the Sioux peoples. [North American French, short for nadouéssioux, from Ottawa naadowesiwag.] —Sioux adj.

Sioux City (sōō sīt'ē) A city of northwest Iowa on the Missouri River near the South Dakota-Nebraska border. It is a shipping and processing center for an agricultural and livestock area. Population, 80,505.

Sioux Falls (sōō fôlz) A city of southeast South Dakota near the Minnesota border. First settled c. 1856, it was abandoned in 1862 and reestablished as a military post in 1865. It is now the largest city in the state. Population, 100,814.

sip (sĭp) v. sipped, sip-ping, sips. — v. tr. 1. To drink in small quantities. 2. To drink from in sips. — v. intr. To drink something in sips. — n. 1. The act of sipping. 2. A small quantity of liquid sipped. [Middle English sippen. See seuə⁻² in Appendix.] —sip'per n.

si-phon also sy-phon (sī'fən) n. 1. A pipe or tube fashioned or deployed in an inverted U shape and filled until atmospheric pressure is sufficient to force a liquid from a reservoir in one end of the tube over a barrier higher than the reservoir and out the other end. 2. Zoology. A tubular organ, especially of aquatic invertebrates such as squids or clams, by which water is taken in or expelled. — v. si-phoned, si-phon-ing, si-phons. — v. tr. To draw off or convey through or as if through a siphon. — v. intr. To pass through a siphon. [Middle English, from Latin siphō, siphōn-, from Greek siphōn.] —si'phon-al, si-phon'ic (sī-fŏn'ĭk) adj.

si-phon·o·phore (sī-fŏn'ə-fŏr', -fŏr', sī'fə-nə-) n. Any of various transparent, often subtly colored marine hydrozoans of the order Siphonophora, consisting of a floating or swimming colony of polyplike and medusalike individuals and including the Portuguese man-of-war. [From New Latin Siphonophora, order name : Greek siphō, siphōn-, tube + Greek -phora, neuter pl. of -phoros, -phore.] si-phon·o·stele (sī-fŏn'ə-stēl', sī'fə-nə-stē'lē) n. A type of stele in which the vascular cylinder surrounds a pith, as in the stem of the sunflower. [SIPHON + STELE.] —si-phon'o-ste'lic (-stē'lĭk) adj.

si-phun·cle (sī'fŭng'kəl) n. 1. A tubelike structure in the body of a shelled cephalopod, such as a nautilus, extending through each chamber of the shell.

2. A tubular organ on the abdomen of an aphid, from which a waxy fluid is secreted as a pheromone when the insect is attacked. In this sense, also called cornicle [Latin siphunculus, diminutive of siphō, siphōn-, siphon. See SIPHON.]

—si-phun/cu-lar (-kyə-lər), si-phun/cu-late (-līt) adj.

Sip-par (sī-pär′) n. An ancient city of northern Babylonia on the Euphrates River south-southwest of present-day Baghdad. In early times it was a religious center devoted to the worship of the sun god Shamash.

sip-pet (sĭp′ĭt) n. A small piece of toast or bread soaked in gravy or other liquid or used as a garnish. [From sip, alteration of SOP.]

Si-quei-ros (sĭ-kā′rōs), David Alfaro. 1896?-1974. Mexican mural painter whose works depict political protest and revolution. His best-known painting is the mural The March of Humanity (1968) in Mexico City.

sir (sûr) n. 1. Sir. Used as an honorific before the given name or the full name of baronets and knights. 2. Used as a form of polite address for a man: Don't forget your hat, sir. 3. Used as a salutation in a letter: Dear Sir or Madam. [Middle English, variant of sire. See SIRE.]

sir-dar (sûr′där′, sər-där′) n. A person of high rank, especially in India. [Hindi sardār, from Persian : sar, head; see ker¹ in Appendix + -dār, holder; see dher- in Appendix.]

sire (sīr) n. 1. A father. 2. Abbr. s. The male parent of an animal, especially a domesticated mammal such as a horse. 3. Archaic. A male ancestor; a forefather. 4. Archaic. A gentleman of rank. 5. Archaic. Used as a form of address for a superior, especially a king. — v. tr. sired, sir-ing, sires. To father; beget. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin seior*, from Latin senior, older, comparative of senex, old. See sen- in Appendix.]

sir-ee (sə-rē′) n. Informal. Variant of sirree.

si-ren (sī′rən) n. 1. a. A device in which compressed air or steam is driven against a rotating perforated disk to create a loud, often wailing sound as a signal or warning. b. An electronic device producing a similar sound as a signal or warning: a police car siren. 2. Any of several salamanders of the family Sirenidae, such as the mud eel, having an eellike body, permanent external gills, small forelegs, and no hind limbs. [French sirène, from Old French sereine, Siren, from Late Latin Sīrēna, from Latin Sīrēn, from Greek Seirēn.]

Si-ren (sī′rən) n. 1. Greek Mythology. One of a group of sea nymphs who by their sweet singing lured mariners to destruction on the rocks surrounding their island. 2. siren. A woman regarded as seductive and beautiful. [Middle English serein, from Old French sereine. See SIREN.]

si-re-ni-an (sī-rē′nē-ən) n. See sea cow. — adj. Of or belonging to the order of sea cows. [From New Latin Sīrēnia, order name, from Latin Sīrēn, Siren. See SIREN.]

siren song (sī'rən sŏng) n. An enticing plea or appeal, especially one that is deceptively alluring.

si-ri-a-sis (sī-rī'ə-sīs) n. See sunstroke. [Latin siriāsis, from Greek seiriasis, from seirian, to be hot, from Seirios, Sirius. See SIRIUS.]

Sir-i-us (sīr'ē-əs) n. A star in the constellation Canis Major, the brightest star in the sky, approximately 8.6 light-years distant from Earth. Also called Dog Star, Sothis. [Latin Sīrius, from Greek Seirios, from seirios, burning.]

sir-loin (sūr'loin') n. A cut of meat, especially of beef, from the upper part of the loin just in front of the round. [Middle English surloine, from Old French surlonge, ·surloigne : sur, above (from Latin super); see uper in Appendix + longe, loigne, loin; see LOIN.]

si-roc-co (sə-rŏk'ō) also sci-roc-co (shə-, sə-) n. pl. si-roc-cos. 1. A hot, humid south or southeast wind of southern Italy, Sicily, and the Mediterranean islands, originating in the Sahara Desert as a dry, dusty wind but becoming moist as it passes over the Mediterranean. 2. A hot or warm southerly wind, especially one moving toward a low barometric pressure center. [Italian scirocco, from Arabic šarq, east.]

Sí-ros (sē'rŏs') See Syros.

sir-rah (sīr'ə) n. Obsolete. Mister; fellow. Used as a contemptuous form of address. [Alteration of SIR.]

sir-ree also sir-ee (sə-rē') n. Informal. Sir. Used for emphasis after yes or no.

Sir Sand-ford (sər sǎn'fərd), Mount. A peak, 3,524.3 m (11,555 ft) high, in the Selkirk Mountains of southeast British Columbia, Canada. It is the highest elevation in the range.

sir-up (sīr'əp, sūr'-) n. Variant of syrup.

sir-up-y (sīr'ə-pē, sūr'-) adj. Variant of syrupy.

sir-vente (sīr-vǎnt', sər-věnt') also sir-ven-tes (sər-věnt'tis, -věnts') n. pl.

sir-ventes (-vǎnt', -věnts') also sir-vent-es (-věnt'təs). A form of lyric verse of the Provençal troubadours satirizing political figures, personal rivals, or social morals. [French, from Provençal sirventes, from Old Provençal, from sirvent, servant (the position of a lover towards his mistress), from Latin serviēns, servient- present participle of servīre, to serve, from servus, servant.]

Sir Wil-fred Lau-ri-er (sūr wīl'frīd lôr'ē-ā', lôr'-), Mount. A peak, 3,583.8 m (11,750 ft) high, in the Cariboo Mountains of southeast British Columbia, Canada. It is the highest elevation in the range.

sis (sīs) n. Informal. Sister.

si-sal (sī'səl) n. 1. A Mexican and Central American plant (Agave sisalana) widely cultivated for its large, sword-shaped leaves that yield stiff fibers used for cordage and rope. 2. The fiber of this plant or of other members of the genus Agave. [American Spanish, after Sisal, a town of southeast Mexico in the Yucatán.]

- sis·co·wet (sɪs'kə-wět') n. A fat, thick-bodied variety of the lake trout, found in the upper part of Lake Superior. [Short for Ojibwa pēmitēwiskawēt : pimitēw-, oil + iskawē, to have flesh of a specified type.]
- sis·kin (sɪs'kɪn) n. Any of several small finches, such as Carduelis spinus, a greenish-yellow finch of Eurasia related to the goldfinch, or the pine siskin of North America. [Obsolete Dutch sīskēn, from Middle Dutch, diminutive of sīs, from Middle Low German csītze, of Slavic origin.]
- Sis·ley (sɪs'lē, sɪz'-, sēs-lā'), Alfred. 1839-1899. British-born French impressionist painter noted for his outdoor scenes, including Boat During the Flood (1876).
- Sis·mon·di (sɪs-mŏn'dē, sēs-mŏN-dē'), Jean Charles Léonard Simon de. 1773-1842. Swiss historian and economist. He was one of the first to attack the classical economics of Adam Smith and argue for the regulation of competition.
- Sis·se·ton (sɪs'ī-tən) n. pl. Sisseton or Sis·se·tons. 1. A Native American people of the Santee branch of the Sioux. 2. A member of this people.
- sis·si·fied (sɪs'ə-fīd') adj. Of, relating to, or having the characteristics of a sissy; timid, cowardly, or effeminate.
- sis·sy (sɪs'ē) n. pl. sis·sies. 1. A boy or man regarded as effeminate. 2. A person regarded as timid or cowardly. 3. Informal. Sister. [Diminutive of SIS.]
—sis/si·ness, sis/sy·ness n. —sis/sy adj. —sis/sy·ish adj.
- sissy bar (sɪs'ē bär) n. Informal. A narrow bar shaped like an inverted U that is attached behind the seat of a motorcycle or bicycle and supports the operator or a passenger.
- sis·ter (sɪs'tər) n. Abbr. s. 1. a. A girl or woman having the same mother and father as another. b. A girl or woman having one parent in common with another; a half sister. c. The daughter of a person's stepparent by a previous marriage; a stepsister. 2. A girl or woman who shares a common ancestry, allegiance, character, or purpose with another or others, specifically: a. A kinswoman. b. A woman fellow member, as of a sorority. c. A fellow woman, friend, or companion. d. A soul sister. e. A woman who advocates, fosters, or takes part in the feminist movement. 3. Informal. Used as a form of address for a woman or girl. 4. Sister. Abbr. Sr. Ecclesiastical. a. A member of a religious order of women; a nun. b. Used as a form of address for such a woman, alone or followed by the woman's name. 5. Chiefly British. A nurse, especially the head nurse in a ward. 6. One identified as female and closely related to another: "the sisters Death and Night" (Walt Whitman). — adj. 1. Related by or as if by sisterhood; closely related: sister ships; sister cities. 2. Genetics. Of or being one of an identical pair: sister chromatids. [Middle English, partly from Old English sweostor, and from Old Norse systir; see swesor- in Appendix.]

sis·ter·hood (sĭs'tər-hōōd') n. 1. The state or relationship of being a sister or sisters. 2. The quality of being sisterly. 3. A society, especially a religious society, of women. 4. Association or unification of women in a common cause.

sis·ter·in·law (sĭs'tər-ĭn-lō') n. pl. sis·ters·in·law (sĭs'tərz-). 1. The sister of one's husband or wife. 2. The wife of one's brother. 3. The wife of the brother of one's spouse.

sis·ter·ly (sĭs'tər-lē) adj. Of, characteristic of, or befitting sisters or a sister. — adv. As a sister. — sis'ter·li·ness n.

Sis·tine (sĭs'tēn', sĭ-stēn') also Six·tine (sĭk'stēn', -stĭn') adj. 1. Of or relating to one of the popes named Sixtus, especially Sixtus IV (1414-1484; reigned 1471-1484). 2. Of or relating to the Sistine Chapel in the Vatican. [Italian sistino, from New Latin sixtinus, from Medieval Latin Sixtus, the name of several popes, from Latin Sextus, Roman praenomen, from sextus, sixth. See SEXT.]

sis·trum (sĭs'trəm) n. pl. sis·trums or sis·tra (-trə). Music. A percussion instrument of ancient Egypt consisting of metal rods or loops attached to a metal frame. [Middle English, from Latin sĭstrum, from Greek seistron, from seiein, to shake.]

Sis·y·phe·an (sĭs'ə-fē'an) adj. 1. Greek Mythology. Of or relating to Sisyphus. 2. Endlessly laborious or futile: "Their patients' lack of education and the high cost of medicine make health care a Sisyphelian task" (Frank Gibney, Jr.). [From Latin Sisyphēius, from Greek Sisupheios, from Sisuphos, Sisyphus.]

Sis·y·phus (sĭs'ə-fəs) n. Greek Mythology. A cruel king of Corinth condemned forever to roll a huge stone up a hill in Hades only to have it roll down again on nearing the top. [Latin Sisyphus, from Greek Sisuphos.]

sit (sĭt) v. sat (săt), sit·ting, sits. — v. intr. 1. To rest with the torso vertical and the body supported on the buttocks. 2. a. To rest with the hindquarters lowered onto a supporting surface. Used of animals. b. To perch. Used of birds. 3. To cover eggs for hatching; brood. 4. To be situated or located: a house that sits on a hill. 5. To lie or rest: Dishes were sitting on a shelf. See Usage Note at set¹. 6. To pose for an artist or a photographer. 7. a. To occupy a seat as a member of a body of officials: sit in Congress. b. To be in session. 8. To remain inactive or unused: Her expensive skis sat gathering dust. 9. To affect one with or as if with a burden; weigh: Official duties sat heavily upon the governor. 10. To fit, fall, or drape in a specified manner: The jacket sits perfectly on you. 11. To be agreeable to one; please: The idea didn't sit well with any of us. 12. Chiefly British. To take an examination, as for a degree. 13. To blow from a particular direction. Used of the wind. 14. To keep watch or take care of a child. — v. tr. 1. To cause to sit; seat: Sit yourself over there. 2. To keep one's seat on (an animal): She sits her horse well. 3. To sit on (eggs) for the purpose of hatching. 4. To provide seating accommodation for: a theater that sits 1,000 people. — n. 1. a. The act of sitting. b. A period of time spent sitting. 2. The way in which an article of clothing, such as a dress or jacket, fits. —phrasal verbs. sit down. To take a seat. sit in. 2. To attend or participate in as a visitor: sat in on the discussion. 3. To take part in a sit-in. sit on (or sit upon). 4. To confer about. 5. Informal. To suppress or repress: sat on the evidence. 6. Informal. To postpone action or resolution regarding. 7. Slang. To rebuke sharply; reprimand. sit out. 8. To stay until the end of. 9. To refrain from taking part in: sat out a dance. sit up. 10. To rise from lying down to a sitting position. 11. To sit with the spine erect. 12. To stay up later than the customary bedtime. 13. To become suddenly alert: The students sat up when he mentioned the test. —idioms. sit on (one's) hands. To fail to act. sit pretty. Informal. To be in a very favorable position. sit tight. Informal. To be patient and await the next move. [Middle English sitten, from Old English sittan. See sed- in Appendix.]

si-tar (sī-tār') n. Music. A stringed instrument of India made of seasoned gourds and teak and having a track of 20 metal frets with 6 or 7 main playing strings above and 13 sympathetic resonating strings below. [Hindi sītār, from Persian : si, three; see trei- in Appendix + tār, string; see ten- in Appendix.] —si-tar'ist n.

sit-a-tun-ga also sit-u-tun-ga (sīt'ə-tōōng'ə) n. A medium-sized antelope (Tragelaphus spekei) of central and eastern Africa, having splayed hooves adapted to swampy and aquatic habitats. [Of Bantu origin.]

sit-com also sit-com (sīt'kōm') n. Informal. A situation comedy.

sit-down (sīt'doun') n. 1. A work stoppage in which the workers refuse to leave their place of employment until their demands are considered or met. Also called sit-down strike, sit-in. 2. An obstruction of normal activity by the act of a large group sitting down in public to express a grievance or protest. 3. Informal. An act, instance, or period of sitting. 4. Informal. A meal for people seated at a table. — adj. 1. Performed or accomplished while sitting down: a sit-down discussion; a sit-down protest. 2. Intended for people seated at a table: a sit-down dinner for 12.

site (sīt) n. 1. The place where a structure or group of structures was, is, or is to be located: a good site for the school. 2. The place or setting of something: a historic site; a job site. 3. Computer Science. A computer or network of computers associated with a unique identifying number on the Internet and electronically accessible, as through a browser. — v. tr. sit-ed, sit-ing, sites. To situate or locate on a site: sited the power plant by the river. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin situs. See SITUS.]

site-spe-ci-fic (sīt'spī-sīf'ik) adj. Created, planned, or intended for a particular site: a site-specific sculpture; site-specific theater in the park.

sith (sīth) conj. Archaic. Since. [Middle English sithe, from Old English siththa, variant of siththan. See SINCE.] —sith adv. & prep.

sit-in (sīt'in') n. 1. See sit-down (n., sense 1). 2. An organized protest demonstration in which participants seat themselves in an appropriate place and refuse to move. 3. The act of occupying the seats or an area of a segregated establishment to protest racial discrimination.

Sit·ka (sīt'kə) A town of southeast Alaska on the western coast of Baranof Island. Founded by Aleksandr Baranov in 1799, it was the capital of Russian America and later the capital of Alaska from 1867 to 1906. Population, 8,588.

si·tol·o·gy (sī-tōl'ə-jē) n. See dietetics. [Greek sitos, food, grain + -LOGY.]

si-to-ma-ni-a (sī'tə-mā'nē-ə, -mān'yə) n. An abnormal craving for food. [Greek sitos, food, grain + -MANIA.]

si-to-pho-bi-a (sī'tə-fō'bē-ə) n. An abnormal aversion to food. [Greek sitos, food, grain + -PHOBIA.]

si-tos-ter-ol (sī-tōs'tə-rōl', -rōl', -rōl', sī-) n. Any of a group of sterols that occur in high concentrations in certain plants, such as yams, and are used in the synthesis of steroid hormones. [Greek sitos, food, grain + STEROL.]

sit-ter (sīt'ər) n. 1. One that sits, especially: a. A person who cares for young children when the parents are not home; a baby sitter. b. A person who poses or models, as for a portrait. 2. A brooding hen.

Sit-ter (sīt'ər), Willem de. 1872-1934. Dutch astronomer noted for his work on cosmology and relativity.

sit-ting (sīt'ing) n. 1. The act or position of one that sits. 2. A period during which one is seated and occupied with a single activity, such as posing for a portrait or reading a book. 3. A session, as of a legislature or court. 4. a. An act, a condition, or a period of brooding on eggs by a bird; incubation. b. The number of eggs under a brooding bird; a clutch. — adj. 1. Incubating a nest of eggs: a sitting hen. 2. Occupying an official position; incumbent. 3. a. Of or for sitting: a sitting posture; a sitting area in a bus station. b. Done or executed while sitting.

Sit-ting Bull (sīt'ing bōōl'), 1834?-1890. Hunkpapa Sioux leader who guided his people to victory against Gen. George A. Custer's cavalry at the Battle of the Little Bighorn (1876).

sitting duck (sīt'ing dük) n. Informal. An easy target or victim.

sitting room (sīt'ing rōōm) n. A living room.

sit-u-ate (sīch'ōō-āt') v. tr. sit-u·at-ed, sit-u·at-ing, sit-u·ates. 1. To place in a certain spot or position; locate. 2. To place under particular circumstances or in a given condition. — adj. (-īt, -āt') Archaic. Situated. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin situāre, situāt-, to place, from Latin situs, location. See tkei- in Appendix.]

sit-u-at-ed (sīch'ōō-ā'tīd) adj. 1. Having a place or location; located: a cabin nicely situated on a quiet riverbank. 2. Supplied with money: a family that has always been well situated.

sit-u-a-tion (sīch'ōō-ā'shən) n. 1. a. The way in which something is positioned vis-à-vis its surroundings. b. The place in which something is situated; a location. 2. Position or status with regard to conditions and circumstances.

3. The combination of circumstances at a given moment; a state of affairs. See Synonyms at state. 4. A critical, problematic, or striking set of circumstances. 5. A position of employment; a post. —sit' u·a'tion·al adj.

—sit' u·a'tion·al·ly adv.

situation comedy (sich'ōō-ā'shən kōm'ī-dē) n. A humorous radio or television series featuring the reactions of a regular cast of characters to unusual situations, such as misunderstandings or embarrassing coincidences; a sitcom.

situation ethics (sich'ōō-ā'shən ěth'īks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A system of ethics that evaluates acts in light of their situational context rather than by the application of moral absolutes.

sit-up (sit'ŭp') n. Sports. A physical exercise in which one uses the abdominal muscles to raise the torso from a supine to a sitting position and then lies back down again without moving the legs.

si-tus (sī'təs) n. pl. situs. Position, especially normal or original position, as of a body organ or part. [Latin. See tkei- in Appendix.]

situs in-ver-sus (sī'təs ĩn-vŭr'səs) n. A congenital condition in which the organs of the viscera are transposed through the sagittal plane so that the heart, for example, is on the right side of the body. [New Latin : Latin situs, location + Latin inversus, past participle of invertere, to invert.]

sit-u-tun-ga (sit'ə-tōŋg'ə) n. Variant of sitatunga.

Sit-well (sit'wĕl', -wəl) Family of British writers, including Dame Edith Sit-well (1887-1964), whose experimental poetry is collected in volumes such as Clowns' Houses (1918) and Music and Ceremonies (1963). Her brother Sir Osbert (1892-1969) is known especially for his five-volume autobiography (1944-1950). Their younger brother Sacheverell (1897-1988) wrote several volumes of poetry, including Agamemnon's Tomb (1972).

sitz bath (sĭts bāth, zĭts) n. 1. A bathtub shaped like a chair in which one bathes in a sitting position, immersing only the hips and buttocks. 2. A bath taken in such a tub especially for therapeutic reasons. [Partial translation of German Sitzbad : Sitz, act of sitting (from sitzen, to sit, from Middle High German, from Old High German sizzen); see sed- in Appendix + Bad, bath.]

sitz-krieg (sit'skrĕg', zĭt'-) n. Warfare marked by a lack of aggression or progress. [German Sitz, act of sitting (from sitzen, to sit, from Middle High German, from Old High German sizzen); see sed- in Appendix + German Krieg, war (from Middle High German krieg, from Old High German krĕg, stubbornness); see g^werə-¹ in Appendix.]

sitz-mark (sit'smärk', zĭt'-) n. Sports. A hollow made in the snow by a skier who has fallen backward. [Partial translation of German Sitzmarke : Sitz, act of sitting (from sitzen, to sit, from Middle High German, from Old High German sizzen); see sed- in Appendix + Marke, mark.]

Si-va (shĕ'və, sĕ'-) n. Hinduism. Variant of Shiva.

Si·van (siv'ən) n. The ninth month of the year in the Jewish calendar. See Table at calendar. [Hebrew sîwān, from Akkadian Simānu, the month Simanu.]

Si·vas (si-vās', sē-) A city of central Turkey east of Ankara. An important city of Asia Minor under the Romans, Byzantines, and Seljuk Turks, it was sacked by Tamerlane in 1400 and fell to the Ottoman Turks in the 15th century. Population, 172,864.

Si·vash Sea (si-vāsh' sē) A salt lagoon of southern Ukraine along the northeast coast of the Crimea.

Si·wa·lik Hills (si-wā'lik hīlz) A range of the southern Himalaya Mountains extending about 1,689 km (1,050 mi) from southwest Kashmir through northern India into southern Nepal. The hills are noted for their extensive fossil remains.

six (siks) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 5 + 1. 2. The sixth in a set or sequence. 3. Something having six parts, units, or members, especially a motor vehicle having six cylinders. —idiom. at sixes and sevens. In a state of confusion or disorder. [Middle English, from Old English. See s(w)eks in Appendix.] —six adj. & pron.

six-gun (siks'gūn') n. A six-chambered revolver.

Six Nations (siks nā'shənz) pl.n. The Iroquois confederacy after it was joined by the Tuscarora in 1722.

six-pack (siks'pāk') n. 1. Six units of a commodity, especially six cans or bottles of a beverage, such as beer, sold in a pack. 2. The contents of a six-pack.

six-pence (siks'pəns) n. Chiefly British. 1. A coin formerly used in Britain and worth six pennies. 2. The sum of six pennies.

six·pen·ny (siks'pən'ē, -pə-nē) adj. 1. Valued at, selling for, or worth sixpence. 2. Of little worth; paltry.

sixpenny nail (siks'pən'ē nāl) n. A nail 2 inches (5.1 centimeters) long.

six-shoot·er (siks'shōō'tər) n. Informal. A six-chambered revolver; a six-gun.

six·teen (sik-stēn') n. 1. The cardinal number equal to the sum of 15 + 1.

2. The 16th in a set or sequence. [Middle English sixtene, from Old English sixtȳne. See s(w)eks in Appendix.] —six·teen' adj. & pron.

six·teen·mo (sik-stēn'mō) n. pl. six·teen·mos. Printing. See sextodecimo.

six·teen·pen·ny nail (sik'stēn-pən'ē nāl) n. A nail 32 inches (9 centimeters) long.

six·teenth (sik-stēnth') n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 16 in a series. 2. One of 16 equal parts. —six·teenth' adv. & adj.

sixteenth note (sik-stēnth' nōt) n. Music. A note having one sixteenth the time value of a whole note.

sixth (siksth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number six in a series.

2. One of six equal parts. 3. Music. a. An interval of six degrees in a diatonic scale. b. A tone separated by this interval from a given tone. c. The harmonic combination of two tones separated by this interval. d. The sixth tone of a scale; the submediant. —sixth adv. & adj.

sixth sense (sɪksθ sɛns) n. A power of perception seemingly independent of the five senses; keen intuition.

six·ti·eth (sɪk'stē-ɪθ) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 60 in a series. 2. One of 60 equal parts. —six'ti·eth adv. & adj.

Six·tine (sɪk'stēn', -stīn') adj. Variant of Sistine.

six·ty (sɪks'tē) n. pl. six·ties. 1. The cardinal number equal to 6×10 .

2. sixties. a. Often Sixties. The decade from 60 to 69 in a century. b. A decade or the numbers from 60 to 69: They planned to retire in their sixties. The breeze kept the temperature in the sixties. [Middle English, from Old English sixtig. See s(w)eks in Appendix.] —six'ty adj. & pron.

six·ty·fourth note (sɪks'tē-fōrth' nōt, -fōrth') n. Music. A note having one sixty-fourth the time value of a whole note.

six·ty·nine (sɪks'tē-nīn') n. Vulgar Slang. Oral-genital sex between two people at the same time.

siz·a·ble also size·a·ble (sɪ'zə-bəl) adj. Of considerable size; fairly large.

—siz'a·ble·ness n. —siz'a·bly adv.

size¹ (sɪz) n. 1. The physical dimensions, proportions, magnitude, or extent of an object. 2. Any of a series of graduated categories of dimension whereby manufactured articles, such as shoes and clothing, are classified. 3. a. Considerable extent, amount, or dimensions: a debt of enormous size. b. Relative amount or number, as of population or contents: What size is Cleveland? 4. Character, value, or status with reference to relative importance or the capacity to meet given requirements: Try this proposal on for size. 5. The actual state of affairs: That's about the size of the situation. — v. tr. sized, siz·ing, siz·es. 1. To arrange, classify, or distribute according to size. 2. To make, cut, or shape to a required size. — adj. Sized. Often used in combination: bite-size appetizers; an economy-size package. —phrasal verb. size up. To make an estimate, an opinion, a judgment of: She sized up her opponent. [Middle English sise, from Old French, court session, law, short for assise. See ASSIZE.] —siz'er n.

size² (sɪz) n. Any of several gelatinous or glutinous substances usually made from glue, wax, or clay and used as a glaze or filler for porous materials such as paper, cloth, or wall surfaces. — v. tr. sized, siz·ing, siz·es. To treat or coat with size or a similar substance. [Middle English sise, probably from Old French, a setting. See SIZE¹.]

size·a·ble (sɪ'zə-bəl) adj. Variant of sizable.

sized (sɪzd) adj. Having a particular or specified size. Often used in combination: a medium-sized car; an average-sized house.

siz·ing (sɪ'zɪŋ) n. 1. A glaze or filler; size. 2. Treatment of a fabric or other surface with size.

siz-zle (sɪz'əl) v. intr. siz-zled, siz-zling, siz-zles. 1. To make the hissing sound characteristic of frying fat. 2. To seethe with anger or indignation. 3. To be very hot: a summer day that sizzled. — n. A hissing sound. [Perhaps frequentative of Middle English sissen, to hiss, of imitative origin.] —siz/zling-ly adv.

siz-zler (sɪz'lər) n. 1. One that sizzles. 2. Informal. A very hot day.

S.J. abbr. Society of Jesus.

Sjael-land (shəl'än') also Zea-land (zē'lænd) An island of eastern Denmark bounded by the Kattegat and the Baltic Sea. Separated from Sweden by the Öresund, it is the largest island of Denmark and the site of Copenhagen, the country's capital.

sjam-bok (shäm-bök', -bük') South African. n. A heavy whip, usually made of animal hide. — v. tr. sjam-boked, sjam-bok-ing, sjam-boks. To hit or beat with a sjambok. [Afrikaans, from Malay cambuk, whip, from Hindi cābuk, from Persian chābuk.]

S.J.D. abbr. Latin. Scientiae Juridicae Doctor (Doctor of Juridical Science).

Sjö-gren's syndrome (shō'grənz sɪn'drōm', shœ'-) n. A chronic inflammation of the lachrymal and salivary glands, often accompanied by rheumatoid arthritis and the presence of autoantibodies in the blood, occurring chiefly among women. [After Henrik Samuel Conrad Sjögren (born 1899), Swedish ophthalmologist.]

SK abbr. Saskatchewan.

sk. abbr. Sack.

Skag-er-rak also Skag-er-ak (skäg'ə-räk', skä'gə-räk') A broad strait between Norway and Denmark linking the North Sea and the Kattegat.

Skag-it (skäj'it) A river, about 241 km (150 mi) long, of southwest British Columbia, Canada, and northwest Washington flowing into Skagit Bay, an inlet of Puget Sound.

Skag-way (skäg'wā') A town of southeast Alaska at the head of the Lynn Canal north-northwest of Juneau. It was a boom town and the gateway to the Klondike during the Alaskan gold rush (1897-1898). Population, 692.

skald also scald (skôld, skäld) n. A medieval Scandinavian poet, especially one writing in the Viking age. [Old Norse skäld. See sek^{w-3} in Appendix.] —skald'ic adj.

Skander-beg or Scan-der-beg (skän'dər-bäg'), Originally George Kastrioti. 1405-1468. Albanian military leader who repelled numerous Turkish invasions, maintaining Albanian independence until his death.

Skane-at-e-les Lake (skän'ē-ät'ləs lāk, skän'-) A lake of central New York. It is one of the Finger Lakes.

skat (skät) n. Games. 1. A card game for three persons that is played with 32 cards, sevens through aces. 2. One of the combinations of cards occurring in this game. [German, from Italian scarto, a discarded card, from scartare, to reject : s-, out; see SFUMATO + carta, card (from Latin charta, paper made of papyrus); see CARD¹.]

skate¹ (skāt) n. Sports. 1. An ice skate. 2. A roller skate. 3. The act or a period of skating. — v. intr. skate·ed, skate·ing, skates. 1. To glide or move along on or as if on skates. 2. Informal. To act in an irresponsible or superficial manner. [From Dutch schaats, stilt, skate (taken as pl.), from Middle Dutch schaetse, from Old North French escache, stilt, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

skate² (skāt) n. Any of various rays of the genus Raja, having a flattened body and greatly expanded pectoral fins that extend around the head. [Middle English scate, from Old Norse skata.]

skate³ (skāt) n. 1. A fellow; a person. 2. A decrepit horse; a nag. [Perhaps alteration of dialectal skite, contemptible person, probably from dialectal skite, to defecate, from Middle English skiten, from Old Norse skīta. See skei- in Appendix.]

skate·board (skāt'bôrd', -bôrd') Sports. n. A short, narrow board having a set of four roller skate wheels mounted under it and usually ridden in a standing or crouching position. — v. intr. skate·board·ed, skate·board·ing, skate·boards. To ride on a skateboard. — skate'board'er n.

skate·er (skā'tər) n. 1. One who skates, as on ice. 2. See water strider.

skat·ole (skāt'ôl, -ôl) also skat·ol (-ôl, -ôl, -ôl) n. A white crystalline organic compound, C₉H₉N, having a strong fecal odor, found naturally in feces, beets, and coal tar and used as a fixative in the manufacture of perfume. [Greek skōr, skat-, dung; see sker-³ in Appendix + -OLE.]

Skaw (skô) A cape on the northern extremity of Jutland, Denmark, extending into the Skagerrak.

skean (skēn) n. A double-edged dagger formerly used in Ireland and Scotland. [Middle English skene, from Irish Gaelic scian, from Old Irish scian. See skei- in Appendix.]

Skeat (skēt), Walter William. 1835-1912. English philologist who wrote An Etymological Dictionary of the English Language (1879-1882) and began the systematic study of English place names.

ske·dad·dle (skī-dād'l) v. intr. ske·dad·dled, ske·dad·dling, ske·dad·dles. Informal. To leave hastily; flee. [Origin unknown.]

Skee·na (skē'nə) A river rising in western British Columbia, Canada, and flowing about 579 km (360 mi) generally south and west to the Pacific Ocean near Prince Rupert.

skeet (skēt) n. A form of trapshooting in which clay targets are thrown from traps to simulate birds in flight and are shot at from different stations. [Alteration of SHOOT.]

skee·ter (skē'tər) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. See mosquito. See Regional note at possum. [Shortening and alteration of MOSQUITO.]

skeeter hawk (skē'tər hōk) n. South Atlantic U.S. See dragonfly. See Regional note at dragonfly.

skeg (skĕg) n. Nautical. 1. A timber that connects the keel and the sternpost of a ship. 2. An arm extending to the rear of the keel to support the rudder and protect the propeller. 3. A series of timbers attached to the stern of a small boat, serving as a keel to keep the boat on course. [Dutch scheg, perhaps from Old Norse skegg, beard, beak of a ship.]

skein (skān) n. 1. a. A length of thread or yarn wound in a loose, elongated coil. b. Something suggesting the coil of a skein; a complex tangle: a twisted skein of lies. 2. A flock of geese or similar birds in flight. See Synonyms at flock¹. [Middle English skeine, from Old French escaigne.]

skel·e·tal (skĕl'ī-tl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, forming, or of the nature of a skeleton: the skeletal system. 2. Attached to or formed by a skeleton: skeletal muscles. —skel'e·tal·ly adv.

skel·e·ton (skĕl'ī-tn) n. 1. a. The internal structure composed of bone and cartilage that protects and supports the soft organs, tissues, and other parts of a vertebrate organism; endoskeleton. b. The hard external supporting and protecting structure in many invertebrates, such as mollusks and crustaceans, and certain vertebrates, such as turtles; exoskeleton. 2. A supporting structure or framework, as of a building. 3. An outline or a sketch. 4. Something reduced to its basic or minimal parts. 5. One that is very thin or emaciated. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a skeleton. 2. Reduced to the basic or minimal parts or members: a skeleton crew. 3. Computer Science. Of or relating to a set of incomplete instructions intended to be completed by a specialized program. —idiom. skeleton in (one's) closet. A source of shame or disgrace, as in a family, that is kept secret. [Greek skeleton (sōma), dried-up (body), neuter of skeletos, from skellesthai, to dry up.]

skel·e·ton·ize (skĕl'ī-tn-īz') v. tr. skel·e·ton·ized, skel·e·ton·iz·ing, skel·e·ton·iz·es. 1. To reduce to skeleton form: "Carnivorous beetles... can skeletonize a bat within hours" (Scientific American). 2. To outline or sketch briefly. 3. To reduce in size or number: skeletonize a hospital staff.

skeleton key (skĕl'ī-tn kē) n. A key with a large portion of the bit filed away so that it can open different locks. Also called passkey skell (skĕl) n. Slang. A homeless person who lives as a derelict. [Origin unknown.]

skel·lum (skĕl'əm) n. Scots. A rascal; a rogue. [Dutch schelm, from Low German, from Middle Low German.]

Skel·ton (skĕl'tən), John. 1460?-1529. English poet and scholar noted for his satires, including Speke Parrot (1521) and Colyn Cloute (1522).

skep (skĕp) n. A beehive, especially one of straw. [Middle English, basket, from Old Norse skeppa, a dry measure, and from Old English sceppe (from Old Norse skeppa).]

skep·tic also scep·tic (skĕp'tik) n. 1. One who instinctively or habitually doubts, questions, or disagrees with assertions or generally accepted conclusions. 2. One inclined to skepticism in religious matters. 3. Philosophy. a. Often Skeptic. An adherent of a school of skepticism. b. Skeptic. A member of an ancient Greek school of skepticism, especially that of Pyrrho of Elis (360?-272? B.C.). [Latin Scepticus, disciple of Pyrrho of Elis, from Greek Skeptikos, from skeptesthai, to examine. See spek- in Appendix.]

skep·ti·cal also scep·ti·cal (skĕp'ti-kəl) adj. 1. Marked by or given to doubt; questioning: a skeptical attitude; skeptical of political promises. 2. Relating to or characteristic of skeptics or skepticism. —skep'ti·cal·ly adv.

skep·ti·cism also scep·ti·cism (skĕp'ti-siz'əm) n. 1. A doubting or questioning attitude or state of mind; dubiety. See Synonyms at uncertainty.

2. Philosophy. The doctrine that absolute knowledge is impossible and that inquiry must be a process of doubting in order to acquire approximate or relative certainty. 3. Doubt or disbelief of religious tenets.

sker·ry (skĕr'ē) n. pl. sker·ries. A small rocky reef or island. [Scots, diminutive of Old Norse sker. See sker-¹ in Appendix.]

sketch (skĕch) n. 1. A hasty or undetailed drawing or painting often made as a preliminary study. 2. A brief, general account or presentation; an outline. 3. a. A brief, light, or informal literary composition, such as an essay or a short story. b. Music. A brief composition, especially for the piano. c. A short, often satirical scene or play in a revue or variety show; a skit. 4. Informal. An amusing person. — v. sketched, sketch·ing, sketch·es. — v. tr. To make a sketch of; outline. — v. intr. To make a sketch. [Dutch schets, from Italian schizzo, from schizzare, to splash, of imitative origin.] —sketch'er n.

sketch·book (skĕch'bōok') n. 1. A pad of paper used for sketching. Also called sketchpad 2. A book of literary sketches.

sketch·pad (skĕch'pād') n. See sketchbook (n., sense 1).

sketch·y (skĕch'ē) adj. sketch·i·er, sketch·i·est. 1. Resembling a sketch; giving only major points or parts. 2. a. Lacking in substance or completeness; incomplete. b. Slight; superficial. —sketch'i·ly adv. —sketch'i·ness n.

skew (skyōō) v. skewed, skew·ing, skews. — v. intr. 1. To take an oblique course or direction. 2. To look obliquely or sideways. — v. tr. 1. To turn or place at an angle. 2. To give a bias to; distort. — adj. 1. Placed or turned to one side; asymmetrical. 2. Distorted or biased in meaning or effect. 3. Having a part that diverges, as in gearing. 4. a. Mathematics. Neither parallel nor intersecting. Used of straight lines in space. b. Statistics. Not symmetrical about the mean. Used of distributions. — n. An oblique or slanting movement, position, or direction. [Middle English skewen, to escape, run sideways, from Old North French eskiuer, of Germanic origin.] —skew/ness n.

skew arch (skyōō ärch) n. Architecture. An arch having sides not at right angles to the face of its abutments.

skew-back (skyōō'bäck') n. Architecture. Either of two inset abutments sloped to support a segmental arch.

skew-bald (skyōō'bôld') adj. Having spots or patches of white on a coat of a color other than black: a skewbald horse. — n. A skewbald animal, especially a horse. [Middle English skeued, of mixed colors (probably from skeu, sky, cloud, of Scandinavian origin); see (s)keu- in Appendix + BALD.] skew-er (skyōō'ər) n. 1. A long metal or wooden pin used to secure or suspend food during cooking; a spit. 2. Any of various picks or rods having a function or shape similar to a skewer. — v. tr. skew-ered, skew-er-ing, skew-ers. To hold together or pierce with or as if with a skewer. [Middle English skuer, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

skew lines (skyōō līnz) pl.n. Mathematics. Straight lines that are not in the same plane and do not intersect.

ski (skē) n. pl. skis. 1. Sports. a. One of a pair of long flat runners of plastic, metal, or wood that curve upward in front and may be attached to a boot for gliding or traveling over snow. b. A waterski. 2. Something that is used as a runner on a vehicle: a helicopter with skis for landing on snow and ice. — v. skied, ski-ing, skis. — v. intr. To travel or glide on skis, especially as a sport. — v. tr. To travel or glide over on skis: ski a mountain slope. [Norwegian, from Old Norse skīdh, stick, snowshoe. See skei- in Appendix.] —ski/a-ble adj. —ski'er *n.

ski-a-gram (skī'ə-grām') n. 1. A picture or photograph made up of shadows or outlines. 2. See radiograph. [Greek skia, shadow + -GRAM.] ski-a-graph (skī'ə-grāf') n. See radiograph.

ski-ag-ra-phy (skī-äg'rə-fē) n. 1. The art or technique of making skiagrams. 2. See radiography. [Greek skiagraphia, painting in light and shade : skia, shadow + -graphia, -graphy.] ski-a-scope (skī'ə-skōp') n. See retinoscope. [Greek skia, shadow + -SCOPE.] ski-as-co-py (skī-ās'kə-pē) n. pl. ski-as-co-pies. See retinoscopy.

ski-bob (skē'bōb') n. Sports. A vehicle for gliding downhill over snow, consisting of two skis one behind the other on a metal frame, steering handlebars connected to the shorter forward ski, and a low seat attached to the longer rear ski for the rider who wears small skis for balance. —ski/bob-ber n. —ski/bob/bing n.

ski boot (skē bōōt) n. Sports. A stiff padded plastic or leather boot that is fastened to the foot with strong buckles or laces and locked into place in a ski binding.

skid (skīd) n. 1. The act of sliding or slipping over a surface, often sideways.

2. a. A plank, log, or timber, usually one of a pair, used as a support or as a track for sliding or rolling heavy objects. b. A pallet for loading or handling goods, especially one having solid sideboards and no bottom. c. One of several logs or timbers forming a skid road. 3. skids. Nautical. A wooden framework attached to the side of a ship to prevent damage, as when unloading. 4. A shoe or drag applying pressure to a wheel to brake a vehicle. 5. A runner in the landing gear of certain aircraft. 6. skids. Slang. A path to ruin or failure: His career hit the skids. Her life is now on the skids. — v. skid-ded, skid-ding, skids. — v. intr.

1. To slide sideways while moving because of loss of traction: The truck skidded on a patch of ice. See Synonyms at slide. 2. To slide without revolving: wheels skidding on oily pavement. 3. To move sideways in a turn because of insufficient banking. Used of an airplane. — v. tr. 1. To brake (a wheel) with a skid. 2. To haul on a skid or skids. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

skid-der (skīd'ər) n. 1. a. One that skids: a sports car that was a real skidder.

b. One that makes use of a skid. 2. A heavy, four-wheel tractor used to haul logs, especially over rugged terrain.

skid-dy (skīd'ē) adj. skid-di-er, skid-di-est. Liable to skid or cause skidding: a light, skiddy car; skiddy roads.

skid fin (skīd fīn) n. An upright auxiliary airfoil formerly placed above the upper wing in biplanes to increase lateral stability.

skid road (skīd rōd) n. 1. A track made of logs laid transversely about five feet apart that is used to haul logs to a loading platform or a mill. 2. Slang. Skid row.

skid row (skīd rō) n. Slang. A squalid district inhabited chiefly by derelicts and vagrants. [Alteration of SKID ROAD (from the fact that it once referred to a downtown area frequented by loggers).]

skied (skīd) v. Past tense and past participle of sky.

skies (skīz) n. Plural of sky. — v. Third person singular present tense of sky.

skiff (skīf) n. Nautical. A flatbottom open boat of shallow draft, having a pointed bow and a square stern and propelled by oars, sail, or motor. [Middle English skif, from Old French esquif, from Old Italian schifo, of Germanic origin.]

skif-fle (skīf'əl) n. Music. Jazz, folk, or country music played by performers who use unconventional instruments, such as kazoos, washboards, or jugs. [Origin unknown.]

ski-jor-ing (skē'jôr'ĭng, -jôr'-) n. Sports. A sport in which a skier is drawn over ice or snow by a horse or vehicle. [Norwegian skikjøring: ski, ski; see SKI + kjøring, driving (from kjøre, to drive, from Old Norse keyra).]

ski jump (skē jŭmp) Sports. n. 1. A jump or leap made by a skier. 2. A course or chute prepared for a ski jump. — v. intr. ski jumped, ski jump-ing, ski jumps. To execute a ski jump. — ski jumper n.

ski jumping (skē jŭm'pīng) n. Sports. A competitive event in which a skier jumps from a ski jump and is judged on both form and the distance jumped.

skil-ful (skīl'fəl) adj. Variant of skillful.

ski lift (skē lift) n. Sports. A power-driven conveyer, usually with attached tow bars, suspended chairs, or gondolas, used to carry skiers to the top of a trail or slope. Also called ski tow skill (skīl) n. 1. Proficiency, facility, or dexterity that is acquired or developed through training or experience. See Synonyms at ability. 2. a. An art, a trade, or a technique, particularly one requiring use of the hands or body. b. A developed talent or ability: writing skills. 3. Obsolete. A reason; a cause. [Middle English skil, from Old Norse, discernment. See skel¹ in Appendix.]

skilled (skīld) adj. 1. Having or showing skill; expert. See Synonyms at proficient. 2. Requiring specialized ability or training: a skilled trade.

skil-let (skīl'īt) n. 1. See frying pan. See Regional note at frying pan.

2. Chiefly British. A long-handled stewing pan or saucepan sometimes having legs. [Middle English skelet, from Old French escuelete, diminutive of escuele, plate, from Latin scutella, diminutive of scutra, platter.]

skil-ful also skil-ful (skīl'fəl) adj. 1. Possessing or exercising skill; expert. See Synonyms at proficient. 2. Characterized by, exhibiting, or requiring skill.

—skill/ful-ly adv. —skill/ful-ness n.

skim (skīm) v. skimmed, skim-ming, skims. — v. tr. 1. a. To remove floating matter from (a liquid). b. To remove (floating matter) from a liquid. c. To take away the choicest or most readily attainable contents or parts from. 2. To coat or cover with or as if with a thin layer, as of scum. 3. a. To throw so as to bounce or slide: skimming stones on the pond. b. To glide or pass quickly and lightly over. See Synonyms at brush¹. 4. To read or glance through (a book, for example) quickly or superficially. 5. Slang. To fail to declare part of (certain income, such as winnings) to avoid tax payment. — v. intr. 1. To move or pass swiftly and lightly over or near a surface; glide. 2. To give a quick and superficial reading, scrutiny, or consideration; glance: skimmed through the newspaper. 3. To become coated with a thin layer. 4. Slang. To fail to declare certain income to avoid tax payment. — n. 1. The act of skimming. 2. Something that has been skimmed. 3. A thin layer or film. 4. Slang. The profit gained by skimming. [Middle English skimmen, perhaps from Old French escumer, to remove scum, from escume, scum, of Germanic origin. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

ski mask (skē māsk) n. A knitted covering for the head and face, worn especially by skiers for protection from the cold.

skim-mer (skīm'ər) n. 1. One that skims, such as a large perforated spoon used in skimming liquids. 2. A light, usually straw hat with a stiff wide brim and a flat shallow crown. 3. a. Any of several chiefly coastal birds of the genus Rynchops, having long narrow wings and a long bill with a longer lower mandible for skimming the water's surface for food. b. A black skimmer.

skim milk (skīm mīlk) n. Milk from which the cream has been removed.

ski·mo·bile (skē'mō-bēl', -mə-) n. See snowmobile.

skimp (skīmp) v. skimped, skimp-ing, skimps. — v. tr. 1. To deal with hastily, carelessly, or with poor material: concentrated on reelection, skimping other matters. 2. To give inadequate funds to; be stingy with: misers who skimp their own children. — v. intr. To be stingy or very thrifty. — adj. Scanty; skimpy. [Obsolete skimp, scanty, perhaps from alteration of SCRIMP.]

skimp-y (skīm'pē) adj. skimp-i-er, skimp-i-est. 1. Inadequate, as in size or fullness, especially through economizing or stinting: a skimpy meal. See Synonyms at meager. 2. Unduly thrifty; niggardly. —skimp'i-ly adv. —skimp'i-ness n.

skin (skīn) n. 1. The membranous tissue forming the external covering or integument of an animal and consisting in vertebrates of the epidermis and dermis.

2. An animal pelt, especially the comparatively pliable pelt of a small or young animal: a tent made of goat skins. 3. A usually thin, closely adhering outer layer: the skin of a peach; a sausage skin; the skin of an aircraft. 4. A container for liquids that is made of animal skin. 5. Informal. One's life or physical survival: They lied to save their skins. — v. skinned, skin-ning, skins. — v. tr. 1. To remove skin from: skinned and gutted the rabbit. 2. To bruise, cut, or injure the skin or surface of: She skinned her knee. 3. To remove (an outer covering); peel off: skin off the thin bark. 4. To cover with or as if with skin: skin the framework of a canoe. 5. Slang. To fleece; swindle. — v. intr. 1. To become covered with or as if with skin: In January the pond skins over with ice. 2. To pass with little room to spare: We barely skinned by. — adj. Slang. Of, relating to, or depicting pornography: skin magazines. —idioms. by the skin of (one's) teeth. By the smallest margin. get under (one's) skin. 2. To irritate or stimulate; provoke. 3. To become an obsession. under the skin. Beneath the surface; fundamentally: enemies who are really brothers under the skin. [Middle English, from Old Norse skinn. See sek- in Appendix.] —skin'less adj.

skin-deep (skīn'dēp') adj. Superficial; shallow: skin-deep civility. — adv. In a shallow manner; superficially.

skin-dive (skīn'dīv') v. intr. skin--dived, skin--div-ing, skin--dives. Sports. To engage in skin diving.

skin diving (skīn dī'vīng) n. Sports. The sport of swimming under water with flippers and a face mask and usually with a snorkel rather than a portable air supply. —skin diver n.

skin effect (skīn ĭ-fēkt') n. The tendency of alternating current to flow near the surface of a conductor.

skin flick (skīn flīk) n. Slang. A pornographic film.

- skin-flint (skĭn'flĭnt') n. One who is very reluctant to spend money; a miser.
- skin game (skĭn gām) n. Slang. 1. A fraudulent gambling game. 2. A swindle.
- skin graft (skĭn grăft) n. A surgical graft of healthy skin from one part of the body to another or from one individual to another in order to replace damaged or lost skin.
- skin graft-ing (skĭn grăf'tĭng) n. The act or process of making a skin graft.
- skin-head (skĭn'hĕd') n. Slang. 1. A person with a shaven head. 2. A member of any of various groups of white British or American youths who shave their heads, gather at rock concerts and sports events, and sometimes participate in white-supremacist and anti-immigrant activities.
- skink (skĭngk) n. Any of numerous smooth, shiny lizards of the family Scincidae, having a cylindrical body and small or rudimentary legs and living chiefly in temperate and tropical regions. [Latin scincus, from Greek skinkos.]
- skinned (skĭnd) adj. Having skin of a specified kind. Often used in combination: fair-skinned; dark-skinned.
- skin-ner (skĭn'ər) n. 1. One that flays, dresses, or sells animal skins. 2. Western U.S. A mule driver.
- Skin-ner (skĭn'ər), B(urrhus) F(rederick). 1904-1990. American psychologist. A leading behaviorist, Skinner influenced the fields of psychology and education with his theories of stimulus-response behavior. His books include Walden Two (1961) and Beyond Freedom and Dignity (1971).
- Skin-ner (skĭn'ər), Cornelia Otis. 1901-1979. American actress and writer known for her one-woman shows, which she wrote and produced.
- Skin-ner (skĭn'ər), Otis. 1858-1942. American actor whose theater credits include Kismet (1911-1914), Blood and Sand (1921), and numerous Shakespearean productions.
- Skinner box (skĭn'ər bۆks) n. A soundproof, light-resistant box or cage used in laboratories to isolate an animal for experiments in operant conditioning and usually containing only a bar or lever to be pressed by the animal to gain a reward, such as food, or to avoid a painful stimulus, such as a shock. [After Burrhus Frederick SKINNER.]
- Skin-ner-i-an (skĭ-nĭr'ē-ən) adj. Of or relating to the behavioristic theories and methods of B.F. Skinner. — n. A follower of B.F. Skinner's theories or methods. — Skin'ner-ism (skĭn'ər-rĭz'əm) n.
- skin-ny (skĭn'ē) adj. skin-ni-er, skin-ni-est. 1. Very thin. See Synonyms at lean². 2. Of, relating to, or resembling skin. — n. Slang. Inside information; the real facts: People listen to the show in order to get the straight skinny.
—skin'ni-ness n.
- skin-ny-dip (skĭn'ē-dĭp') v. intr. skin-ny--dipped, skin-ny--dip-ping, skin-ny--dips. Informal. To swim in the nude. —skin'ny-dip'per n.
—skin-ny-dip-ping n.

skin patch (skīn păch) n. See transdermal patch.

skin-pop (skīn'pŏp') v. tr. skin--popped, skin--pop-ping, skin--pops.

Slang. To inject (a drug) beneath the skin rather than into a vein. —skin/-pop'ping n.

skin search (skīn sūrch) n. See strip search.

skin test (skīn tĕst) n. A test for detecting an allergy or infectious disease, performed by means of a patch test, a scratch test, or an intracutaneous injection of an allergen or extract of the disease-causing organism.

skin-tight (skīn'tīt') adj. Fitting closely or clinging to the skin.

skip (skīp) v. skipped, skip-ping, skips. — v. intr. 1. a. To move by hopping on one foot and then the other. b. To leap lightly about. 2. To bounce over or be deflected from a surface; skim or ricochet. 3. To pass from point to point, omitting or disregarding what intervenes: skipped through the list hurriedly; skipping over the dull passages in the novel. 4. To be promoted in school beyond the next regular class or grade. 5. Informal. To leave hastily; abscond: skipped out of town. 6. To misfire. Used of an engine. — v. tr. 1. To leap or jump lightly over: skip rope. 2. To pass over without mentioning; omit: skipped the minor details of the story. 3. To cause to bounce lightly over a surface; skim. 4. To be promoted beyond (the next grade or level). 5. Informal. To leave hastily: The fugitive skipped town. 6. Informal. To fail to attend: We skipped science class again. — n. 1. A leaping or jumping movement, especially a gait in which hops and steps alternate. 2. An act of passing over something; an omission. [Middle English skippen, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] —skip'pa-ble adj.

skip distance (skīp dīs'təns) n. The smallest separation between a transmitter and a receiver that permits radio signals of a specific frequency to travel from one to the other by reflection from the ionosphere.

skip-jack (skīp'jăk') n. pl. skipjack or skip-jacks. 1. Any of several marine food fishes of the genus Euthynnus, related to and resembling the tuna, especially an economically important striped species (E. pelamis) occurring in all tropical areas. 2. Any of various fishes, such as the bluefish, that habitually leap out of the water. 3. pl. skip-jacks. Nautical. A small sailboat having a bottom shaped like a flat V and vertical sides.

ski pole (skē pōl) n. Sports. A lightweight pole with a handgrip, sometimes a wrist strap, and a sharp point encircled slightly above by a disk, used in pairs by snow skiers.

skip-per¹ (skīp'ər) n. 1. Nautical. The master of a ship. 2. A coach, director, or other leader. — v. tr. skip-pered, skip-per-ing, skip-pers. To act as the skip-per of. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch, from scip, ship.]

skip-per² (skīp'ər) n. 1. One that skips: a student who was a notorious skipper of Friday classes. 2. Any of numerous butterflies of the families Hesperidae and Megathymidae, having a hairy mothlike body, hooked tips on the antennae, and a darting flight pattern. 3. Any of several marine fishes that often leap above water, especially the saury Cololabis saira of Pacific waters.

skirl (skûrl) v. skirled, skirl-ing, skirls. Music. — v. intr. To produce a high, shrill, wailing tone. Used of bagpipes. — v. tr. To play (a piece) on bagpipes. — n. 1. Music. The shrill sound made by the chanter pipe of bagpipes. 2. A shrill, wailing sound: “The skirl of a police whistle split the stillness” (Sax Rohmer). [Middle English skrillen, skirlen, probably of Scandinavian origin.]

skir-mish (skûr'mish) n. 1. A minor battle in war, as one between small forces or between large forces avoiding direct conflict. 2. A minor or preliminary conflict or dispute: a skirmish over the rules before the debate began. — v. intr.

skir-mished, skir-mish-ing, skir-mish-es. To engage in a minor battle or dispute. [Middle English skirmishe, alteration (influenced by Middle English skirmisshen, to brandish a weapon, from Old French eskermir, eskirmis-, to fight with a sword, fence), of skarmush, from Old French eskarmouch, from Old Italian scaramuccia, of Germanic origin. See sker⁻¹ in Appendix.] — skir'mish-er n.

Skí-ros also Sky-ros or Scy-ros (skī'rôs, skē'rôs) An island of eastern Greece in the Aegean Sea northeast of Euboea. Occupied by Athenians in the fifth century B.C., it is the largest of the Northern Sporades Islands.

skir-ret (skûr'it) n. An eastern Asian plant (Sium sisarum) having a cluster of tuberous, sweetish, edible roots. [Middle English skirwhit, alteration (influenced by skir, pure, bright; see sheer², and white, white); see WHITE, of Old French eschervi, probably from Arabic karawyā, caraway.]

skirt (skûrt) n. 1. The part of a garment, such as a dress or coat, that hangs freely from the waist down. 2. A garment hanging from the waist and worn by women and girls. 3. One of the leather flaps hanging from the side of a saddle. 4. The lower outer section of a rocket vehicle. 5. An outer edge; a border or margin: a base camp on the skirt of the mountain. 6. skirts. The edge, as of a town; the outskirts. 7. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a woman. — v.

skirt-ed, skirt-ing, skirts. — v. tr. 1. To lie along or form the edge of; border: the creek that skirts our property. 2. To pass around rather than across or through: changed their course to skirt the storm. 3. To pass close to; miss narrowly: The bullet skirted an artery. 4. To evade, as by circumlocution: skirted the controversial issue. — v. intr. To lie along, move along, or be an edge or a border. [Middle English, from Old Norse skyrta, shirt. See sker⁻¹ in Appendix.]

skirt steak (skûrt stāk) n. A boneless cut of beef from the lower part of the brisket.

ski run (skē rûn) n. Sports. A slope or trail for skiing.

skit (skit) n. 1. A short, usually comic dramatic performance or work; a theatrical sketch. 2. A short humorous or satirical piece of writing. [Origin unknown.]

ski touring (skē tōör'ing) n. Sports. Cross-country skiing for pleasure rather than competition. — ski tourer n.

ski tow (skē tō) n. Sports. 1. A ski lift in which skiers cling to a continuous rope as they are pulled up a slope. 2. See ski lift.

skit-ter (skīt'ər) v. skit-tered, skit-ter-ing, skit-ters. — v. intr. 1. To move rapidly along a surface, usually with frequent light contacts or changes of direction; skip or glide quickly: lizards that skitter away when approached. 2. To fish by drawing a lure or baited hook over the surface of the water with a skipping movement. — v. tr. To cause to skitter. [Probably frequentative of dialectal skite, to run rapidly, perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skjöta, to shoot. See SHOOT.]

skit-ter-y (skīt'ə-rē) adj. Moving quickly, restlessly, or irregularly; skittish.

skit-tish (skīt'ish) adj. 1. Moving quickly and lightly; lively. 2. Restlessly active or nervous; restive. 3. Undependably variable; mercurial or fickle. 4. Shy; bashful. [Middle English, perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skjöta, to shoot. See SHOOT.] — skit'tish-ly adv. — skit'tish-ness n.

skit-tle (skīt'l) n. Games. 1. skittles. (used with a sing. verb). A British form of ninepins, in which a wooden disk or ball is thrown to knock down the pins.

2. One of the pins used in skittles. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

skive (skīv) v. tr. skived, skiv-ing, skives. To cut thin layers off (leather or rubber, for example); pare. [Of Scandinavian origin. See skei- in Appendix.]

skiv-er (skī'vər) n. 1. One, such as a cutting tool, that skives. 2. A soft, thin leather split off the outside of sheepskin and used for bookbinding.

Skiv-vies (skīv'ēz) A trademark used for underwear. This trademark often occurs in lowercase in print: "The venerable white-underwear company... had dabbled in socks, sweats, and fashion skivvies" (Advertising Age). "About 500 yards away, on three destroyers snubbed up to the dock, men were clambering on the deck in their skivvies" (Smithsonian).

ski-wear (skē'wâr') n. Sports. Clothing appropriate for various types of skiing.

skoal (skōl) interj. Used as a drinking toast. [Danish, and Norwegian skaal, cup, skoal from Old Norse skāl, bowl, drinking vessel. See skel-¹ in Appendix.]

Ško-da (skō'də, shkô'dä), Emil von. 1839-1900. Czechoslovakian engineer and industrialist who founded (1866) Skoda Works, a famous artillery manufacturer.

Sko-kie (skō'kē) A village of northeast Illinois, an industrial suburb of Chicago. Population, 59,432.

Skop-je (skôp'yā', -yě) or Skop-lje (-lā', -lyě) The capital of Macedonia, in the north-central part on the Vardar River south-southeast of Belgrade. Dating from Roman times, it was under Turkish control from 1392 until 1913. Population, 406,400.

skosh (skōsh) n. Slang. A small amount; a bit: "This is a well-plotted, economical thriller. Although the beginning is a skosh slow, [the author] picks up the pace" (T. Jefferson Parker). [Japanese sukoshi.]

Skou-ras (skōōr'əs, skōō'räs), Spyros Panagiotis. 1893-1971. Greek-born American film executive. He was a founder (1935) and president (1942-1962) of Twentieth Century-Fox.

Skr. abbr. Sanskrit.

Skt. abbr. Sanskrit.

sku-a (skyōō'ə) n. 1. Any of several large predatory sea birds of the genus Catharacta related to the jaeger, especially the great skua. 2. Chiefly British. See jaeger (n., sense 1). [New Latin, alteration of Faroese skūvur*, from Old Norse skūfr, tassel, sea gull.]

skul-dug-ger-y (skül-düg'ə-rē) n. Variant of skullduggery.

skulk (skülk) v. intr. skulked, skulk-ing, skulks. 1. To lie in hiding, as out of cowardice or bad conscience; lurk. 2. To move about stealthily. 3. To evade work or obligation; shirk. — n. 1. One who hides, lurks, or practices evasion. 2. A congregation of vermin, especially foxes, or of thieves. See Synonyms at flock¹. [Middle English skulken, of Scandinavian origin.] —skulk'er n.

skull (skül) n. 1. The bony or cartilaginous framework of the head of vertebrates, made up of the bones of the braincase and face; cranium. 2. Informal. The head, regarded as the seat of thought or intelligence: Use your skull and solve the problem. 3. A death's-head. [Middle English skulle, probably of Scandinavian origin.]

skull and crossbones (skül ənd krōs'bōnz') n. pl. skulls and crossbones. A representation of a human skull above two long crossed bones, a symbol of death once used by pirates and now used as a warning label on poisons.

skull-cap (skül'kăp') n. 1. a. A light, close-fitting, brimless cap sometimes worn indoors. b. A yarmulke. 2. Any of various plants of the genus Scutellaria, having clusters of two-lipped flowers.

skul-dug-ger-y or skul-dug-ger-y (skül-düg'ə-rē) n. pl.

skul-dug-ger-ies. Crafty deception or trickery or an instance of it. [Probably alteration of Scots sculduddery, obscenity, fornication.]

skulled (sküld) adj. 1. Having or provided with a skull: skulled vertebrates. 2. Having a specified kind of skull. Often used in combination: broad-skulled.

skull session (skül sēsh'ən) n. 1. Informal. A meeting, as of executives or advisers, for discussing strategy or policy. 2. Sports. A meeting of the members of an athletic team for instruction in plays or strategy.

skunk (sküŋk) n. 1. a. Any of several small, mostly carnivorous New World mammals of the genus Mephitis and related genera, having a bushy tail and black fur with white markings and ejecting a foul-smelling oily liquid from glands near the anus when frightened or in danger. Also called polecat b. The glossy black and white fur of this mammal. 2. Slang. a. A person regarded as obnoxious or despicable. b. A person whose company is avoided. — v. tr. skunked, skunk-ing, skunks. Slang. 1. To defeat overwhelmingly, especially by keeping from scoring. 2. a. To cheat (someone). b. To fail to pay (an amount due). [Of Massachusetts origin.]

skunk bear (sküŋgk bâr) n. See wolverine (n., sense 1).

skunk cabbage (sküŋgk kăb'ij) n. 1. An ill-smelling, eastern North American swamp plant (Symplocarpus foetidus) having minute flowers enclosed in a mottled greenish or purplish spathe. 2. A western North American plant (Lysichitum americanum) having a bright yellow spathe with an inflated upper part.

skunk grape (sküŋgk grāp) n. See fox grape.

Skunk River (sküŋgk rīv'ər) A river, about 425 km (264 mi) long, rising in central Iowa and flowing generally southeast to the Mississippi River.

skunk-weed (sküŋgk'wēd') n. A dioecious, ill-smelling, dichotomously branched annual plant (Croton texensis) of the central and southwest United States.

skunk-works (sküŋgk'wûrks') pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Slang. A small, loosely structured corporate research and development unit or subsidiary formed to foster innovation. [After Big Barnsmell's Skonk Works, where the bootleg Kickapoo Joy Juice was brewed, in Al Capp's comic strip Li'l Abner.]

sky (skī) n. pl. skies (skīz). 1. The expanse of air over any given point on Earth; the upper atmosphere as seen from Earth's surface. 2. Often skies. The appearance of the upper atmosphere, especially with reference to weather: Threatening skies portend a storm. 3. The celestial regions; the heavens: stars in the southern sky. 4. The highest level or degree: reaching for the sky. — v. tr. skied (skīd), sky-ing, skies (skīz). 1. To hit or throw (a ball, for example) high in the air.

2. To hang (a painting, for example) high up on the wall, above the line of vision. [Middle English, from Old Norse ský, cloud. See (s)keu- in Appendix.]

sky blue (skī blōō) n. Color. A light to pale blue, from a light greenish to light purplish blue.

sky-box (skī'bōks') n. An elevated, usually enclosed compartment or suite containing box seats and typically entertainment facilities for special guests or important attendees at events held in a sports stadium.

sky-cap (skī'kăp') n. A porter who helps travelers with their luggage at an airport. [SKY + (RED)CAP.]

sky-dive (skī'dīv') v. intr. sky-dived, sky-div-ing, sky-dives. Sports. To jump and fall freely from an airplane, performing various maneuvers before pulling the ripcord of a parachute. —sky/div'er n. —sky/div'ing n.

Skye (skī), Isle of. An island of northwest Scotland in the Inner Hebrides. It is known for its rugged mountainous scenery.

Skye terrier (skī tēr'ē-ər) n. A small terrier of a breed native to the Isle of Skye, having a long low body, short legs, and shaggy hair.

sky-ey (skī'ē) adj. Of, from, or resembling the sky: "a sheet of skyey water" (John Updike).

sky-high (skī'hī') adv. 1. To a very high level: The garbage was piled sky-high.

2. In a lavish or enthusiastic manner: The critics praised the play sky-high. 3. In pieces or to pieces; apart: Sappers blew the bridge sky-high. — adj. 1. High up in the air: sky-high trees. 2. Exorbitantly high in cost or value: sky-high prices; sky-high stocks.

sky-hook or skyhook (skī'hōō') n. A helicopter whose fuselage is configured so as to be mounted with a steel line and hook used to lift and transport heavy objects.

sky-jack (skī'jāk') v. tr. sky-jacked, sky-jack-ing, sky-jacks. To subject (an aircraft) to air piracy. [SKY + (HI)JACK.] — sky/jack'er n. — sky/jack'ing n.

sky-lark (skī'lärk') n. An Old World lark (Alauda arvensis) having brownish plumage and noted for its singing while in flight. — v. intr. sky-larked, sky-lark-ing, sky-larks. To play actively and boisterously; frolic.

sky-light (skī'līt') n. An overhead window, as in a roof, admitting daylight.

sky-line (skī'līn') n. 1. The line along which the surface of the earth and the sky appear to meet; the horizon. 2. The outline of a group of buildings or a mountain range seen against the sky.

sky marshal (skī mār'shəl) n. An armed federal law-enforcement officer assigned to prevent and interdict air piracy and acts of terrorism involving commercial aircraft.

sky pilot (skī pī'lət) n. Slang. A member of the clergy, especially a military chaplain.

sky-rock-et (skī'rök'īt) n. A firework that ascends high into the air where it explodes in a brilliant cascade of flares and starlike sparks. — v. intr. tr.

sky-rock-et-ed, sky-rock-et-ing, sky-rock-ets. To rise or cause to rise rapidly and suddenly: Wheat prices skyrocketed. Discovery of oil here has skyrocketed land values.

Sky-ros (skī'rəs, skē'rôs) See Skíros.

sky-sail (skī'səl, -sāl') n. Nautical. A small square sail above the royal in a square-rigged vessel.

sky-scraper (skī'skrā'pər) n. A very tall building.

sky-walk (skī'wôk') n. An elevated, usually enclosed walkway between two buildings.

sky-ward (skī'wərd) adv. & adj. At or toward the sky. — sky/wards adv.

sky wave (skī wāv) n. A radio wave that travels upward.

sky-way (skī'wā') n. 1. A route regularly used by airplanes; an air lane. 2. An elevated highway.

sky-writ-ing (skī'rī'tīng) n. 1. The process of writing in the sky by releasing a visible vapor from an airplane. 2. The letters or words so formed.

— sky/writ'er n.

SL abbr. 1. Salvage loss. 2. Sea level. 3. Source language. 4. South latitude.

sl. abbr. 1. Slightly. 2. Slow.

s.l. abbr. Latin. Sine loco (without place of publication).

Sla (slä) See Salé.

slab¹ (släb) n. 1. A broad, flat, thick piece, as of cake, stone, or cheese. 2. An outside piece cut from a log when squaring it for lumber. 3. Baseball. The pitcher's rubber. — v. tr. slabbed, slab-bing, slabs. 1. To make or shape into slabs or a slab. 2. To cover or pave with slabs. 3. To dress (a log) by cutting slabs. [Middle English.]

slab² (släb) adj. Archaic. Viscid. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Danish slab, mud.]

slab-sid-ed (släb'si'did) adj. 1. Having flat sides. 2. Informal. Tall and slim; lanky.

slack¹ (släk) adj. slack-er, slack-est. 1. Moving slowly; sluggish: a slack pace. 2. Lacking in activity; not busy: a slack season for the travel business. 3. Not tense or taut; loose: a slack rope; slack muscles. See Synonyms at loose. 4. Lacking firmness; flaccid: a slack grip. 5. Lacking in diligence or due care or concern; negligent: a slack worker. See Synonyms at negligent. 6. Flowing or blowing with little speed: a slack current; slack winds. — v. slacked, slack-ing, slacks. — v. tr. 1. To make slower or looser; slacken. 2. To be careless or remiss in doing: slack one's duty. 3. To slake (lime). — v. intr. 1. To be or become slack. 2. To evade work; shirk. — n. 1. A loose part, as of a rope or sail. 2. A lack of tension; looseness. 3. A period of little activity; a lull. 4. a. A cessation of movement in a current of air or water. b. An area of still water. 5. Unused capacity: still some slack in the economy. 6. slacks. Casual trousers that are not part of a suit. — adv. In a slack manner: a banner hanging slack. — phrasal verb. slack off. To decrease in activity or intensity. [Middle English slak, from Old English slæc. See slæg- in Appendix.] — slack/ly adv. — slack/ness n.

slack² (släk) n. A mixture of coal fragments, coal dust, and dirt that remains after screening coal. [Middle English sleek.]

slack³ (släk) n. Chiefly British. 1. A small dell or hollow. 2. A bog; a morass. [Middle English slak, from Old Norse slakki.]

slack-baked (släk'bäkt) adj. Not fully baked or done; half-baked: slack-baked bread.

slack-en (släk'ən) v. tr. intr. slack-ened, slack-en-ing, slack-ens. 1. To make or become slower; slow down: The runners slackened their pace. Air speed slackened. 2. To make or become less tense, taut, or firm; loosen: I slackened the line to let the fish swim. The tension in the board room finally slackened. 3. To make or become less vigorous, intense, or severe; ease: slacken discipline; afraid that morale might slacken.

slack-er (släk'ər) n. One that shirks work or responsibility, especially one that tries to evade military service in wartime.

slack water (slāk wô'tər) n. 1. The period at high or low tide when there is no visible flow of water. 2. An area in a sea or river unaffected by currents; still water.

slag (släg) n. 1. The vitreous mass left as a residue by the smelting of metallic ore. 2. See scoria (n., sense 1). — v. tr. intr. slagged, slag-ging, slags. To change into slag or form slag. [Low German slagge, from Middle Low German.] — slag'gy adj.

slain (slān) v. Past participle of slay.

slake (slāk) v. slaked, slak-ing, slakes. — v. tr. 1. To satisfy (a craving); quench: slaked her thirst. 2. To lessen the force or activity of; moderate: slaking his anger. 3. To cool or refresh by wetting or moistening. 4. To combine (lime) chemically with water or moist air. — v. intr. To undergo a slaking process; crumble or disintegrate, as lime. [Middle English slaken, to abate, from Old English slacian, from slæc, slack, sluggish. See SLACK¹.]

slaked lime (slākt līm) n. See calcium hydroxide.

sla·lom (slä'ləm) Sports. n. 1. The act or sport of skiing in a zigzag course. 2. A race on skis or in vehicles along such a course, laid out with flag-marked poles. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a slalom course; the slalom event. — v. intr. sla-lomed, sla-lom-ing, sla-loms. To race in or as if in a slalom. [Norwegian slalåm : slad, sloping + låm, path.] — sla'lom·er, sla'lom·ist n.

slam¹ (släm) v. slammed, slam·ming, slams. — v. tr. 1. To shut with force and loud noise: slammed the door. 2. To put, throw, or otherwise forcefully move so as to produce a loud noise: slammed the book on the desk. 3. To hit or strike with great force. 4. Slang. To criticize harshly; censure forcefully. — v. intr. 1. To close or swing into place with force so as to produce a loud noise. 2. To hit something with force; crash: slammed into a truck. — n. 1. a. A forceful impact that makes a loud noise. b. A noise so produced. 2. An act of shutting forcefully and loudly: the slam of a door. 3. Slang. A harsh or devastating criticism. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse slambra, to strike at.]

slam² (släm) n. Games. The winning of all the tricks or all but one during the play of one hand in bridge and other whist-derived card games. [Origin unknown.]

slam-bang (släm'bäng') adv. & adj. Slang. 1. With force and much noise: drove slam-bang through the barricade; a slam-bang collision. 2. With heedless speed; slapdash. 3. With vigorous, relentless action and pace: a thriller that proceeds slam-bang to its conclusion; a slam-bang movie car chase.

slam danc-ing (släm dän'sing) n. A style of dancing, usually performed to punk rock, in which participants collide violently with one another. — slam dance v.

slam-dunk (slām'dʌŋk) n. or slam dunk 1. Basketball. A very dramatic, highly forceful dunk shot. 2. Slang. A forceful, dramatic move: "I ask [him] whether the slam dunk of the indictment was a spontaneous or planned bit of theater" (Ron Rosenbaum). — v. slam--dunked, slam--dunk-ing, slam--dunks. — v. intr. Basketball. To make a very dramatic, highly forceful dunk shot. — v. tr. 1. Basketball. To shoot (the ball) forcefully and dramatically into the basket. 2. Slang. To make a forceful, dramatic move against (another): "They've stopped slam-dunking each other and begun designing strategies with the... aim of moving those on welfare into decent jobs" (David L. Kirp).

slam-mer (slām'mər) n. Slang. A jail. [From SLAM¹.]

s.l.a.n. abbr. Latin. Sine loco, anno, vel nomine (without place, year, or name of publication).

slan-der (slän'dər) n. 1. Law. Oral communication of false statements injurious to a person's reputation. 2. A false and malicious statement or report about someone. — v. slan-dered, slan-der-ing, slan-ders. — v. tr. To communicate a slander about. See Synonyms at malign. — v. intr. To utter or spread slander. [Middle English slaundre, from Old French esclandre, alteration of escandale, from Latin scandalum, cause of offense, stumbling block. See SCANDAL.]

—slan'der-er n. —slan'der-ous adj. —slan'der-ous-ly adv.

slang (släng) n. 1. A kind of language occurring chiefly in casual and playful speech, made up typically of short-lived coinages and figures of speech that are deliberately used in place of standard terms for added raciness, humor, irreverence, or other effect. 2. Language peculiar to a group; argot or jargon: thieves' slang. — v. slanged, slang-ing, slangs. — v. intr. 1. To use slang. 2. To use angry and abusive language: persuaded the parties to quit slanging and come to the bargaining table. — v. tr. To attack with abusive language; vituperate. [Origin unknown.] —slang'i-ly adv. —slang'i-ness n. —slang'y adj.

slant (slänt) v. slant-ed, slant-ing, slants. — v. tr. 1. To give a direction other than perpendicular or horizontal to; make diagonal; cause to slope: She slants her letters from upper right to lower left. 2. To present so as to conform to a particular bias or appeal to a certain audience: The story was slanted in favor of the strikers. — v. intr. To have or go in a direction other than perpendicular or horizontal; slope. — n. 1. a. A line, plane, course, or direction that is other than perpendicular or horizontal; a slope. b. A sloping thing or piece of ground. 2. Printing. A virgule. 3. a. A personal point of view or opinion. b. A bias. 4. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for an Asian person. [Alteration of obsolete slent, from Middle English slenten, to fall aslant, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] —slant'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: slant, incline, lean, slope, tilt, tip. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to depart or cause to depart from true vertical or horizontal": rays of the setting sun slanting through the window; inclined her head toward the speaker; leaned against the railing; a sloping driveway; tilted her hat at a rakish angle; tipped his chair against the wall.

slant rhyme (slänt rīm) n. See off rhyme.

slant-ways (slänt'wāz') adv. Slantwise.

slant-wise (slänt'wīz') adv. At a slant or slope; obliquely. — adj. Slanting; oblique.

slap (släp) n. 1. a. A sharp blow made with the open hand or with a flat object; a smack. b. The sound of such a blow. 2. A sharp insult: a slap to one's pride. — v. slapped, slap-ping, slaps. — v. tr. 1. To strike with a flat object, such as the palm of the hand. 2. To cause to strike sharply and loudly: slapping the sticks together. 3. To put or place with a loud sharp sound: "He took a clipping from his wallet and slapped it on the bar" (Nathanael West). 4. To criticize or insult sharply. — v. intr. To strike or beat with the force and sound of a slap: waves slapping against the raft. — adv. Informal. Directly and with force. — phrasal verb. slap down. 1. To restrain or correct by means of a sharp blow or emphatic censure: "thought [he] was getting a little uppity and needed to be slapped down" (New York Times). 2. To put a sudden end to; suppress: slap down divisive criticism. — idiom. slap on the wrist. A nominal or token punishment.

[Middle English slappe.] — slap'per n.

slap-dash (släp'däsh') adj. Hasty and careless, as in execution: slapdash work. — adv. In a reckless, haphazard manner.

slap-hap-py (släp'häp'ē) adj. slap-hap-pi-er, slap-hap-pi-est. Slang.

1. Dazed, silly, or incoherent from or as if from blows to the head; punch-drunk.

2. Happy-go-lucky.

slap-jack (släp'jäk') n. 1. A pancake; a flapjack. 2. Games. A simple game of cards. [SLAP + (FLAP)JACK.]

slap shot (släp shöt) n. Sports. A fast-moving shot made in hockey with a full swinging stroke.

slap-stick (släp'stik') n. 1. A boisterous form of comedy marked by chases, collisions, and crude practical jokes. 2. A paddle designed to produce a loud whacking sound, formerly used by performers in farces.

WORD HISTORY: When we talk about slapstick, we probably do not think of two sticks slapping together, yet the word has its origin in a device that was made of two flat pieces of wood fastened at one end. This device made a loud sound if one struck someone with it, a much louder sound than a single piece would have made. Such a sound and such a blow were the stuff of comedy, albeit the comedy of farce and pantomime in which this device was originally used (the word is first recorded in 1896). Through its use with other nouns, such as comedy, slapstick developed an abstract sense that encompassed far more than its original literal meaning. Slapstick by itself (first recorded in 1926) could now refer to the whole genre of comedy in which the literal slapstick played a role.

slash (slăsh) v. slashed, slash-ing, slash-es. — v. tr. 1. To cut or form by cutting with forceful sweeping strokes: slash a path through the underbrush. 2. To lash with sweeping strokes. 3. To make a gash or gashes in. 4. To cut a slit or slits in, especially so as to reveal an underlying color: slash a sleeve. 5. To criticize sharply: The work of the composer has been slashed by the reviewers. 6. To reduce or curtail drastically: slash prices for a clearance sale. — v. intr. 1. To make forceful sweeping strokes with or as if with a sharp instrument. 2. To cut one's way with such strokes: We slashed through the dense jungle. — n. 1. A forceful sweeping stroke made with a sharp instrument. 2. A long cut or other opening made by such a stroke; a gash or slit. 3. A decorative slit in a fabric or garment. 4. Branches and other residue left on a forest floor after the cutting of timber. 5. Often slashes. Wet or swampy ground overgrown with bushes and trees. 6. Printing. A virgule. [Perhaps from obsolete French esclachier, to break, variant of esclater, from Old French, from esclat, splinter. See SLAT.] —slash'er n.

slash-ing (slăsh'ing) adj. 1. Bitingly critical or satiric: slashing wit. 2. Dashing; pelting: a slashing hailstorm. 3. Brilliant; intense: slashing colors.

—slash/ing-ly adv.

slash pine (slăsh pīn) n. A pine tree (Pinus elliotti) of swampy coastal areas of the southeast United States that yields pulp, rosin, timber, and turpentine.

slat (slăt) n. 1. A narrow strip of metal or wood, as in a Venetian blind. 2. A movable auxiliary airfoil running along the leading edge of the wing of an airplane. 3. slats. Slang. The ribs. — v. tr. slat-ted, slat-ting, slats. To provide or make with slats: slatting the back of a chair. [Middle English sclat, from Old French esclat, splinter, probably of Germanic origin.]

slatch (slăch) n. New England. 1. A momentary lull between breaking waves, favorable for launching a boat. 2. A lull in a high windstorm. [Variant of SLACK¹.]

REGIONAL NOTE: In New England a slatch can be a lull between breaking waves or a lull in a high windstorm. Its use is recorded as far back as the 17th century: “Whan it hath beene a sett of foule weather and that there comes an Interim... of faire weather... they call it a little Slatch of faire weather” (Nomenclator Navalis). Occurrence of the word in both its senses, formerly in Britain and now in New England, attests continuous use down through the centuries of the Old English word slæc, which is pronounced today as it was in Old English. Slæc is also the source of modern slack, the relationship of slatch and slack being evidenced in the use of slatch in 17th-century nautical parlance to denote the slack part of a rope or cable on a ship.

slate (slāt) n. 1. A fine-grained metamorphic rock that splits into thin, smooth-surfaced layers. 2. a. A piece of this rock cut for use as roofing or surfacing material or as a writing surface. b. A writing tablet made of a similar material. 3. A record of past performance or activity: starting with a clean slate. 4. A list of the candidates of a political party running for various offices. 5. Color. A dark or bluish gray to dark bluish or dark purplish gray. — adj. 1. Made of a fine-grained metamorphic rock: a slate roof. 2. Color. Of the color slate. — v. tr. slat-ed, slat-ing, slates. 1. To cover (a roof, for example) with slate. 2. To put on a list of candidates. 3. To schedule or designate: slated the art history lecture for Thursday afternoon. [Middle English slate, from Old French esclate, splinter, feminine of esclat. See SLAT.]

slate black (slāt blāk) n. Color. A purplish black. — slate'-black' (slāt'blāk') adj.

slate blue (slāt blōō) n. Color. A grayish blue to dark bluish gray. — slate'-blue' (slāt'blōō') adj.

slate-colored junco (slāt'kūl'ərd jūng'kō) n. A junco (Junco hyemalis) of eastern North America, having dark gray upper parts and a white abdomen.

slat-er (slā'tər) n. 1. One employed to lay slate surfaces, as on roofs. 2. Any of several small isopod crustaceans, such as the sow bug.

Sla-ter (slā'tər), Samuel. 1768-1835. British-born textile pioneer in America. He oversaw construction of the nation's first successful water-powered cotton mill (1790-1793).

slath-er (slāth'ər) v. tr. slath-ered, slath-er-ing, slath-ers. Informal. 1. To use or give great amounts of; lavish: slathered gifts and attention on their only child. 2. a. To spread thickly: slather onions on the steak. b. To cover with something; spread thickly: bagels slathered with cream cheese. — n. Slang. A great amount. Often used in the plural: slathers of jewels. [Origin unknown.]

slat-ing (slā'tīng) n. Slates for covering roofs, walls, or other surfaces.

slat-tern (slāt'ərn) n. An untidy, dirty woman. [Perhaps from dialectal slat-ter-ing, slovenly, present participle of dialectal slatter, to slop.]

slat-tern-ly (slāt'ərn-lē) adj. 1. Characteristic of or befitting a slattern.

2. Slovenly; untidy. — slat'tern-li-ness n.

slat-y (slā'tē) adj. slat-i-er, slat-i-est. 1. Composed of or resembling slate.

2. Having the color of slate.

slaugh-ter (slō'tər) n. 1. The killing of animals for food. 2. The killing of a large number of people; a massacre: "I could not give my name to aid the slaughter in this war, fought on both sides for grossly material ends" (Sylvia Pankhurst). — v. tr. slaugh-tered, slaugh-ter-ing, slaugh-ters. 1. To kill (animals) for food; butcher. 2. a. To kill (people) in large numbers; massacre. b. To kill in a violent or brutal manner. [Middle English, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse slātr, butchery.] —slaugh'ter-er n. —slaugh'ter-ous adj.

slaugh·ter·house (slô'tər-hous') n. 1. A place where animals are butchered.
2. A scene of massacre or carnage.

Slav (slāv) n. A member of one of the Slavic-speaking peoples of eastern Europe. [Middle English Sclave, from Medieval Latin Sclāvus, from Late Greek Sklabos, alteration of Old Slavic Slověninŭ.]

Slav. abbr. Slavic.

slave (slāv) n. 1. One bound in servitude as the property of a person or household. 2. One who is abjectly subservient to a specified person or influence: “I was still the slave of education and prejudice” (Edward Gibbon). 3. One who works extremely hard. 4. A machine or component controlled by another machine or component. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: slave labor; a slave cylinder. — v. intr. slaved, slav·ing, slaves. 1. To work very hard or doggedly; toil. 2. To trade in or transport slaves. [Middle English sclave, from Old French esclave, from Medieval Latin sclāvus, from Sclāvus, Slav (from the widespread enslavement of captured Slavs in the early Middle Ages). See SLAV.]

slave ant (slāv änt) n. An ant captured and raised as a worker by slave-making ants.

Slave Coast (slāv kōst) A region of western Africa bordering the Bight of Benin on the Gulf of Guinea. It was notorious as the exportation base for slaves from the 16th century to the early 19th century.

slave driver (slāv dri'vər) n. 1. An overseer of slaves at work. 2. A severely exacting employer or supervisor.

slave·hold·er (slāv'hōl'dər) n. One who owns or holds slaves.
—slave'hold'ing adj. & n.

slave·mak·ing ant (slāv'mā'king änt) n. Any of various species of ant, such as Formica sanguinea of Europe, that raid the nests of other ants and carry off the pupae in order to provide workers for their own colony.

slav·er¹ (slāv'ər) v. intr. slav·ered, slav·er·ing, slav·ers. 1. To slobber; drool. 2. To behave in an obsequious manner; fawn. See Synonyms at fawn¹. — n.
1. Saliva drooling from the mouth. 2. Senseless and effusive talk; drivel. [Middle English slaveren, probably from Old Norse slafra.]

slav·er² (slāv'ər) n. One, such as a person or ship, that is engaged in the trafficking of slaves.

Slave River (slāv rīv'ər) A river, about 499 km (310 mi) long, of west-central Canada flowing between Lake Athabasca in northeast Alberta and Great Slave Lake in the southern Northwest Territories. It forms the central section of the Mackenzie River system.

slav·er·y (slāv'və-rē, slāv'rē) n. pl. slav·er·ies. 1. The state of one bound in servitude as the property of a slaveholder or household. See Synonyms at servi- tude. 2. a. The practice of owning slaves. b. A mode of production in which slaves constitute the principal work force. 3. The condition of being subject or addicted to a specified influence. 4. A condition of hard work and subjection: wage slavery.

slave state (slāv stāt) n. 1. Any of the 15 states of the Union in which slavery was legal before the Civil War, including Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia. 2. A nation under totalitarian rule.

slave trade (slāv trād) n. Traffic in slaves.

slav·ey (slā'vē) n. pl. slav·eys. A household servant, especially an overworked one.

Slav·ic (slä'vīk) adj. Abbr. Slav. Of or relating to the Slavs or their languages. — n. Abbr. Slav. A branch of the Indo-European language family that includes Bulgarian, Belorussian, Czech, Macedonian, Polish, Russian, Serbo-Croatian, Slovak, Slovene, Ukrainian, and Wendish.

slav·ish (slä'vīsh) adj. 1. Of or characteristic of a slave or slavery; servile: Her slavish devotion to her job ruled her life. 2. Showing no originality; blindly imitative: a slavish copy of the original. —slav'ish·ly adv. —slav'ish·ness n.

slav·oc·ra·cy (slā-vōk'rə-sē) n. pl. slav·oc·ra·cies. A ruling group of slaveholders or advocates of slavery, as in the southern United States before 1865. —slav'o·crat' (slā'və-krät') n. —slav'o·crat'ic adj.

Sla·vo·ni·a (slə-vō'nē-ə, -vōn'yə) A historical region of northern Croatia between the Drava and Sava rivers. Originally part of the Roman province of Pannonia, it became a Slavic state in the seventh century and has long been allied with Croatia. —Sla·vo'ni·an adj. & n.

Sla·von·ic (slə-vōn'īk) n. Slavic. [From Medieval Latin Sclāvōnia, Slavic lands, from Sclāvus, Slav. See SLAV.] —Sla·von'ic adj.

Slav·o·phile (slä'və-fīl') also Slav·o·phil (-fīl) n. 1. An admirer of Slavic peoples or their culture. 2. A person advocating the supremacy of Slavic culture, especially over western European influences, as in 19th-century Russia.

—Sla·voph'i·lism (slə-vōf'ə-līz'əm) n.

Slav·yansk (slə-vyānsk') A city of eastern Ukraine southeast of Kharkov. Founded in 1676, it is a railroad junction and health resort. Population, 143,000.

slaw (slô) n. Coleslaw.

slay (slā) v. tr. slew (slōō), slain (slān), slay·ing, slays. 1. To kill violently.

2. Slang. To overwhelm, as with laughter or love: Those old jokes still slay me.

[Middle English slen, slayen, from Old English slēan.] —slay'er n.

SLBM abbr. Submarine-launched ballistic missile.

SLCM abbr. Submarine-launched cruise missile.

sld. abbr. 1. Sailed. 2. Sealed. 3. Sold.

SLE abbr. Systemic lupus erythematosus.

sleave (slēv) n. Archaic. A fine thread or skein of thread. [From Middle English *sleven, to disentangle, from Old English *slāefan, to cut, from slāf, past tense of slīfan, to split.]

sleaze (slēz) n. A sleazy condition, quality, or appearance: “His record of public service is untouched by any stain of shadiness or sleaze” (James J. Kilpatrick). [Back-formation from SLEAZY.]

slea-zy (slē'zē) adj. slea-zi-er, slea-zi-est. 1. a. Shabby, dirty, and vulgar; tawdry: “sleazy storefronts with torn industrial carpeting and dirt on the walls” (Seattle Weekly). b. Dishonest or corrupt; disreputable: Some sleazy characters hang around casinos. 2. Made of low-quality materials; cheap or shoddy. 3. Thin and loosely woven; flimsy: The coat has a sleazy lining. [Origin unknown.]
—slea'zi-ly adv. —slea'zi-ness n.

sled (slěd) n. 1. A vehicle mounted on runners, used for carrying people or loads over ice and snow; a sledge. 2. A light wooden frame on runners, used by children for coasting over snow or ice. — v. sled-ded, sled-ding, sleds. — v. tr. To carry on or convey by a sled. — v. intr. To ride or use a sled. [Middle English sledde, from Middle Dutch.] —sled'der n.

sled-ding (slěd'ing) n. 1. Use of a sled. 2. Conditions conducive to the use of a sled. 3. Informal. A specific kind of progress toward a goal; the going: “The bill... faces tough sledding in Congressional conference” (New York Times).

sled dog (slěd dôg) n. A dog, such as a husky, used to pull a dogsled, especially in Arctic regions.

sledge (slěj) n. A vehicle mounted on low runners drawn by work animals, such as horses or dogs, and used for transporting loads across ice, snow, and rough ground. — v. tr. intr. sledged, sledg-ing, sledg-es. To convey or travel on a sledge. [Dutch dialectal sleedse, perhaps diminutive of Dutch slede, sled, from Middle Dutch sledde.]

sledge-ham-mer (slěj'hăm'ər) n. A long heavy hammer, often wielded with both hands, used for driving wedges and posts and for other heavy work. — v. tr. sledge-ham-mered, sledge-ham-mer-ing, sledge-ham-mers. To strike with or as if with a sledgehammer. — adj. Ruthlessly severe; crushing: sledge-hammer prosecutorial tactics. [Middle English slegge, sledgehammer (from Old English slecg) + HAMMER.]

sleek (slěk) adj. sleek-er, sleek-est. 1. Smooth and lustrous as if polished; glossy: brushed her hair until it was sleek. 2. Well-groomed and neatly tailored. 3. Healthy or well-fed; thriving. 4. Polished or smooth in manner, especially in an unctuous way; slick. — v. tr. sleeked, sleek-ing, sleeks. 1. To make sleek; slick: sleeked his hair with pomade. 2. To gloss over; conceal. [Variant of SLICK.]
—sleek'ly adv. —sleek'ness n.

SYNONYMS: sleek, glossy, satiny, silken, silky, slick. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “having a smooth, gleaming surface”: sleek black fur; glossy auburn hair; satiny gardenia petals; silken butterfly wings; silky skin; slick seals and otters.

sleep (slēp) n. 1. a. A natural, periodic state of rest for the mind and body, in which the eyes usually close and consciousness is completely or partially lost, so that there is a decrease in bodily movement and responsiveness to external stimuli. During sleep the brain in human beings and other mammals undergoes a characteristic cycle of brain-wave activity that includes intervals of dreaming. b. A period of this form of rest. c. A state of inactivity resembling or suggesting sleep, unconsciousness, dormancy, hibernation, or death. 2. Botany. The folding together of leaflets or petals at night or in the absence of light. — v. sleep (slēpt), sleep·ing, sleeps. — v. intr. 1. To be in the state of sleep or to fall asleep. 2. To be in a condition resembling sleep. — v. tr. 1. To pass or get rid of by sleeping: slept away the day; went home to sleep off the headache. 2. To provide sleeping accommodations for: This tent sleeps three comfortably. — phrasal verbs. sleep around. Informal. To be sexually active with more than one partner. sleep in. 2. To sleep at one’s place of employment: a butler and a chauffeur who sleep in. 3. a. To oversleep: I missed the morning train because I slept in. b. To sleep late on purpose: After this week’s work, I will sleep in on Saturday. sleep out. 4. To sleep at one’s own home, not at one’s place of employment. 5. To sleep away from one’s home. sleep over. To spend the night as a guest in another’s home. sleep with. To have sexual relations with. — idiom. sleep on it. Informal. To consider something overnight before deciding. [Middle English slepe, from Old English slæp. See slēb- in Appendix.]

sleep apnea (slēp ăp’nē-ə) n. A temporary suspension of breathing occurring repeatedly during sleep that often affects overweight people or those having an obstruction in the breathing tract, an abnormally small throat opening, or a neurological disorder.

sleep·er (slē’pər) n. 1. One that sleeps: a heavy sleeper who was not wakened by the cat burglar. 2. A sleeping car. 3. Children’s pajamas, usually with legs that cover the feet. Often used in the plural. 4. a. One that achieves unexpected recognition or success, as a racehorse, a movie, or a marketed product. b. A spy or saboteur who is planted in an enemy country and who lives unobtrusively as a citizen of that country until activated into clandestine operations by a prearranged signal. 5. A horizontal structural member on or near the ground that supports weight. 6. Chiefly British. A railroad crosstie. 7. Any of various usually small marine and freshwater fishes of the family Eleotridae, related to the gobies but lacking a sucking disk and noted for their habit of lying immobile.

sleep-in (slēp'ɪn') adj. Living at one's place of employment: a sleep-in house-keeper.

sleeping bag (slē'pɪŋ bæg) n. A large, warmly lined, usually zippered bag for sleeping, especially outdoors.

sleeping car (slē'pɪŋ kār) n. A railroad car having accommodations for sleeping.

sleeping pill (slē'pɪŋ pɪl) n. A sedative or hypnotic drug, especially a barbiturate, in the form of a pill or capsule used to relieve insomnia.

sleeping sickness (slē'pɪŋ sɪk'nɪs) n. 1. An often fatal, endemic infectious disease of human beings and animals in tropical Africa, caused by either of two trypanosomes (Trypanosoma rhodesiense or T. gambiense) transmitted by the tsetse fly and characterized by fever, severe headache, and lymph node swelling in the early stages, followed by extreme weakness, sleepiness, and deep coma. Also called African sleeping sickness 2. See encephalitis lethargica.

sleep-learn-ing (slēp'lûr'nɪŋ) n. Instruction in a subject, such as a foreign language, during sleep, usually by means of recordings. Also called hypnopedia sleep-less (slēp'lɪs) adj. 1. a. Marked by a lack of sleep: a sleepless night.

b. Unable to sleep. 2. Always alert or active; never resting: a sleepless district of the city. —sleep/less-ly adv. —sleep/less-ness n.

sleep-o-ver (slēp'ō'vər) n. 1. An instance of spending the night as a guest at another's home. 2. An overnight guest.

sleep-walk (slēp'wôk') v. intr. sleep-walked, sleep-walk-ing, sleep-walks. To walk or perform other motor acts while asleep; somnambulate. [Back-formation from SLEEPWALKING.] —sleep/walk'er n.

sleep-walk-ing (slēp'wô'kɪŋ) n. The act or an instance of walking or performing another activity associated with wakefulness while asleep or in a sleeplike state. Also called noctambulism, somnambulism.

sleep-wear (slēp'wâr') n. Nightclothes.

sleep-y (slē'pē) adj. sleep-i-er, sleep-i-est. 1. a. Ready for or needing sleep.

b. Sluggish from sleep. 2. Inducing sleep. 3. Inactive; quiet: a sleepy rural town. —sleep/i-ly adv. —sleep/i-ness n.

sleep-y-head (slē'pē-hĕd') n. Informal. A sleepy person.

sleepy sickness (slē'pē sɪk'nɪs) n. See encephalitis lethargica.

sleet (slēt) n. 1. Precipitation consisting of generally transparent frozen or partially frozen raindrops. 2. A mixture of rain and snow or hail. 3. A thin icy coating that forms when rain or sleet freezes, as on trees or streets. — v. intr.

sleet-ed, sleet-ing, sleets. To shower sleet. [Middle English slete, from Old English slēte*.] —sleet/y adj.

sleeve (slēv) n. 1. A part of a garment that covers all or part of an arm. 2. A case into which an object or a device fits: a record sleeve. — v. tr. sleeved, sleeve-ing, sleeves. To furnish or fit with sleeves or a sleeve. —idiom. up (one's) sleeve. Hidden but ready to be used: I still have a few tricks up my sleeve.

[Middle English sleve, from Old English slēf. See sleubh- in Appendix.]

—sleeve'less adj.

sleeve coupling (slēv kŭp'ling) n. A thin steel cylinder joining the ends of two lengths of shafting or pipe.

sleeve dog (slēv dôg) n. A very small Pekingese, usually 15 centimeters (6 inches) or less in height.

sleigh (slā) n. A light vehicle mounted on runners and having one or more seats, usually drawn by a horse over snow or ice. — v. intr. sleighed, sleigh-ing, sleighs. To ride in or drive a sleigh. [Dutch slee, variant of slede, from Middle Dutch slēde.] —sleigh'er n.

sleight (slīt) n. 1. Deftness; dexterity. 2. A clever or skillful trick or deception; an artifice or a stratagem. [Middle English, alteration of sleahthe, from Old Norse slægðh, from slægr, sly.]

sleight of hand (slīt ūv händ) n. pl. sleights of hand. 1. A trick or set of tricks performed by a juggler or magician so quickly that the manner of execution cannot be observed; legerdemain. 2. Performance of conjuring tricks. 3. Skill in performing conjuring tricks.

slen·der (slēn'dər) adj. slen·der·er, slen·der·est. 1. a. Having little width in proportion to height or length; long and thin: a slender rod. b. Thin and delicate in build; gracefully slim: “She was slender as a willow shoot is slender—and equally graceful, equally erect” (Frank Norris). 2. Small in amount or extent; meager: slender wages; a slender chance of survival. [Middle English sclendre, splendre.]

—slen'der·ly adv. —slen'der·ness n.

slen·der·ize (slēn'də-rīz') v. tr. intr. slen·der·ized, slen·der·iz·ing, slen·der·iz·es. To make or become slender or more slender.

slender loris (slēn'dər lôr'is) n. A very small, tailless loris (Loris gracilis) of southern India and Sri Lanka, having large eyes with dark circles around them and very short fingers and toes.

slept (slēpt) v. Past tense and past participle of sleep.

sleuth (slōōth) n. 1. A detective. 2. See sleuthhound (n., sense 1). — v. sleuthed, sleuth·ing, sleuths. — v. tr. To track or follow. — v. intr. To act as a detective. [Short for SLEUTHHOUND.]

WORD HISTORY: To track down the history of the word sleuth requires a bit of etymological sleuthing in itself. The immediate ancestor of our word is the compound sleuthhound, “a dog, such as a bloodhound, used for tracking or pursuing.” This term took on a figurative sense, “tracker, pursuer,” which is closely related to the sense “detective.” From sleuthhound came the shortened form sleuth, recorded in the sense “detective” as early as 1872. The first part of the term sleuthhound means “track, path, trail,” and is first recorded in a Middle English work written probably around 1200. The Middle English word, which had the form sloth, with eu representing the Scots development of the Middle English (ō), was a borrowing of the Old Norse word slōdh, “a track or trail.”

sleuth-hound (slōōth/hound') n. 1. A dog used for tracking or pursuing, such as a bloodhound. Also called sleuth. 2. A detective. [Middle English sleuth, animal track (from Old Norse slōdh) + HOUND.]

slew¹ also slue (slōō) n. Informal. A large amount or number; a lot: a slew of unpaid bills. [Irish Gaelic shuagh, multitude, from Old Irish sluag.]

slew² (slōō) v. Past tense of slay.

slew³ (slōō) n. Variant of slough¹.

slew⁴ (slōō) v. & n. Variant of slue¹.

slice (slīs) n. 1. A thin, broad piece cut from a larger amount. 2. A portion or share: a slice of the profits. 3. a. A knife with a broad, thin, flexible blade, used for cutting and serving food. b. A similar implement for spreading printing ink. 4. Sports. a. A stroke that causes a ball to curve off course to the right or, if the player is left-handed, to the left. b. The course followed by such a ball. — v. sliced, slic-ing, slic-es. — v. tr. 1. To cut or divide into slices: slice a loaf of bread. 2. To cut from a larger piece: slice off a piece of salami. 3. To cut through or across with or as if with a knife: The harvester sliced the field. 4. To divide into portions or shares; parcel out. 5. To spread, work at, or clear away with a bladed tool such as a slice bar. 6. Sports. To hit (a ball) with a slice. — v. intr. 1. To move like a knife: The destroyer sliced through the water. 2. Sports. To hit a ball with a slice. [Middle English, splinter, from Old French eslice, from eslicier, to splinter, of Germanic origin.] — slice/a-ble adj. — slic'er n.

slice bar (slīs bār) n. An iron tool with a broad flat end, used to loosen and clear out clinkers from furnace grates.

slice of life (slīs ÷v lif) n. pl. slices of life. An episode of actual experience represented realistically and with little alteration in a dramatic, fictional, or reportorial work. — slice/-of-life' (slīs'÷v-lif') adj.

slick (slīk) adj. slick-er, slick-est. 1. Smooth, glossy, and slippery: sidewalks slick with ice. See Synonyms at sleek. 2. Deftly executed; adroit: “as slick as a sonnet, but as dull as ditch water” (Tallulah Bankhead). 3. Shrewd; wily. 4. Superficially attractive or plausible but lacking depth or soundness; glib: a slick writing style. See Synonyms at glib. — n. 1. A smooth or slippery surface or area. 2. a. A floating film of oil. b. A trail of floating material: a garbage slick. 3. An implement used to make a surface slick, especially a chisel used for smoothing and polishing. 4. Informal. A magazine, usually of large popular readership, printed on high-quality glossy paper. 5. A racing automobile tire with a smooth tread. 6. Slang. An unarmed military aircraft, such as a spotter plane or helicopter. — v. tr. slicked, slick-ing, slicks. 1. To make smooth, glossy, or oily. 2. Informal. To make neat, trim, or tidy: slicked themselves up for the camera. [Middle English slike, from Old English slice*. See lei- in Appendix.]

—slick/ly adv. —slick/ness n.

slick-en (slɪk'ən) v. tr. intr. slick-ened, slick-en-ing, slick-ens. To make or become slick. —slick/en-er n.

slick-en-side (slɪk'ən-sīd') n. A polished, striated rock surface caused by one rock mass sliding over another in a fault plane. [Dialectal slicken, glossy (alteration of SLICK) + SIDE.]

slick-er (slɪk'ər) n. 1. a. A long water-repellant coat usually made of oilskin. b. A raincoat made of a glossy or shiny material, such as plastic or rubber. 2. A tool for dressing hides. 3. Informal. A cheat; a swindler. 4. Informal. A person with stylish clothing and manners.

slid (slɪd) v. Past tense and past participle of slide.

slid-den (slɪd'n) v. Archaic. A past participle of slide.

slide (slɪd) v. slid (slɪd), slid-ing, slides. — v. intr. 1. To move over a surface while maintaining smooth, continuous contact. 2. To coast on a slippery surface, such as ice or snow. 3. To pass smoothly and quietly; glide: slid past the door without anyone noticing. 4. To go unattended or unacted upon: Let the matter slide. 5. To lose a secure footing or positioning; shift out of place; slip: slid on the ice and fell. 6. a. To move downward: Prices began to slide. b. To return to a less favorable or less worthy condition. 7. Baseball. To drop down and skid, usually feet first, into a base to avoid being put out. — v. tr. To cause to slide or slip. — n. 1. A sliding movement or action. 2. A smooth surface or track for sliding, usually inclined: a water slide. 3. A playground apparatus for children to slide on, typically consisting of a smooth chute mounted by means of a ladder. 4. A part that operates by sliding, as the U-shaped section of tube on a trombone that is moved to produce various tones. 5. An image on a transparent base for projection on a screen. 6. A small glass plate for mounting specimens to be examined under a microscope. 7. A fall of a mass of rock, earth, or snow down a slope; an avalanche or a landslide. 8. Music. a. A slight portamento used in violin playing, passing quickly from one note to another. b. An ornamentation consisting of two grace notes approaching the main note. [Middle English sliden, from Old English slīdan.]

SYNONYMS: slide, slip, glide, coast, skid, slither. These verbs mean to move smoothly and continuously over or as if over a slippery surface. Slide usually implies rapid, easy movement without loss of contact with the surface: coal sliding down a chute; "the drops sliding from a lifted oar" (Theodore Roethke). Slip can refer to smooth, easy, and quiet passage: "the jackals... slipping back to the hills" (Lord Dunsany). More often, however, the term is applied to accidental sliding resulting in loss of balance or foothold: slipped on a patch of ice and sprained his ankle. Glide refers to smooth, free-flowing, seemingly effortless movement: “four snakes gliding up and down a hollow” (Ralph Waldo Emerson). A submarine glided silently through the water. Coast applies especially to downward movement resulting from the effects of gravity or momentum: The driver turned off the engine and let the truck coast down the incline. Skid implies an uncontrolled, often sideways sliding caused by a lack of traction: The bus skidded on wet pavement. Slither can mean to slip and slide, as on an uneven surface, often with friction and noise: “The detached crystals slithered down the rock face for a moment and then made no further sound” (H.G. Wells). The word can also suggest the sinuous, gliding motion of a reptile: An iguana slithered across the path.

Sli-dell (slī-děŋ) A city of southeast Louisiana northeast of New Orleans. It is primarily residential. Population, 24,124.

slid-er (slī'dər) n. 1. One that slides: The snowy hill was filled with young sliders.

2. Baseball. A fast pitch that breaks in the same direction as a curve ball at the last moment.

slide rule (slīd rōol) n. A device consisting of two logarithmically scaled rules mounted to slide along each other so that multiplication, division, and other more complex computations are reduced to the mechanical equivalent of addition or subtraction.

slide valve (slīd vālv) n. A valve that slides back and forth over ports, especially one in the cylinder wall of a steam engine that permits the intake and outflow of steam to move the piston.

sliding scale (slī'dīŋ skāl) n. A scale in which indicated prices, taxes, or wages vary in accordance with another factor, as wages with the cost-of-living index or medical charges with a patient's income.

sli-er (slī'ər) adj. A comparative of sly.

sli-est (slī'ĭst) adj. A superlative of sly.

slight (slīt) adj. slight-er, slight-est. 1. Small in size, degree, or amount: a slight tilt; a slight surplus. 2. Lacking strength, substance, or solidity; frail: a slight foundation; slight evidence. 3. Of small importance or consideration; trifling: slight matters. 4. Small and slender in build or construction; delicate. — v. tr.

slight-ed, slight-ing, slights. 1. To treat as of small importance; make light of. 2. To treat with discourteous reserve or inattention. 3. To do negligently or thoughtlessly; scant. — n. 1. The act or an instance of slighting. 2. A deliberate discourtesy; a snub: “It is easier to recount grievances and slights than it is to set down a broad redress of such grievances and slights” (Elizabeth Kenny). [Middle English, slender, smooth, possibly of Scandinavian origin. See lei- in Appendix.]

—slight'ness n.

slight-ing (slī'tīŋ) adj. Conveying or constituting a slight; belittling: a slighting look. —slight'ing-ly adv.

slight-ly (slīt'lē) adv. 1. Abbr. sl. To a small degree or extent; somewhat.

2. Slenderly; delicately: slightly built.

Sli-go (slī'gō) A municipal borough of northern Ireland on Sligo Bay, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. There are megalithic ruins nearby. Population, 17,232.

slim (slīm) adj. slim-mer, slim-mest. 1. Small in girth or thickness in proportion to height or length; slender. 2. Small in quantity or amount; meager: slim chances of success. — v. intr. tr. slimmed, slim-ming, slims. 1. To become or make slim. 2. To lose or cause to lose weight, as by dieting or exercise. [Dutch, bad, sly, from Middle Dutch slimp, slim, bad, crooked.] —slim/ly adv.

—slim/mer n. —slim/ness n.

slime (slīm) n. 1. A thick, sticky, slippery substance. 2. A mucous substance secreted by certain animals, such as fish or slugs. 3. Vile or disgusting matter. — v. tr. slimed, slim-ing, slimes. 1. To smear with slime. 2. To remove slime from (fish to be canned, for example). [Middle English, from Old English slīm. See lei- in Appendix.]

slime mold (slīm mōld) n. 1. Any of various primitive organisms of the phylum Acrasiomycota, especially of the genus Dictyostelium, that grow on dung and decaying vegetation and have a life cycle characterized by a slimelike amoeboid stage and a multicellular reproductive stage. Also called cellular slime mold. 2. Any of various organisms of the phylum Myxomycota that grow on decaying vegetation and in moist soil and have a similar but more advanced life cycle. Also called myxomycote, plasmodial slime mold.

slim-nas-tics (slīm-nās'tiks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Physical exercises designed to facilitate weight loss. [SLIM + (GYM)NASTICS.]

slim-sy (slīm'zē) also slimp-sy (slīmp'sē) adj. slim-si-er, slim-si-est. Informal. Frail; flimsy. [Blend of SLIM, and FLIMSY.]

slim-y (slī'mē) adj. slim-i-er, slim-i-est. 1. Consisting of or resembling slime; viscous. 2. Covered with or exuding slime. 3. Vile; foul. —slim/i-ly adv.

—slim/i-ness n.

sling¹ (slīŋ) n. 1. a. A weapon consisting of a looped strap in which a stone is whirled and then let fly. b. A slingshot. 2. A looped rope, strap, or chain for supporting, cradling, or hoisting something, especially: a. A strap of a shoe that fits over the heel. b. A strap used to carry a rifle over the shoulder. c. Nautical. A rope or chain for supporting a yard. d. A band suspended from the neck to support an injured arm or hand. 3. The act of hurling a missile. — v. tr. slung (slūŋ), sling-ing, slings. 1. To hurl with or as if with a sling. See Synonyms at throw. 2. To place or carry in a sling. 3. To move by means of a sling; raise or lower in a sling: sling cargo into a hold. 4. To hang loosely or freely; let swing. [Middle English slinge.] —sling'er n.

sling² (slīŋ) n. A drink consisting of brandy, whiskey, or gin, sweetened and usually lemon-flavored. [Origin unknown.]

sling-shot (slɪŋgʹshŏtʹ) n. A Y-shaped stick having an elastic strap attached to the prongs, used for flinging small stones.

slink (slɪŋk) v. slunk (slʌŋk) also slinked, slink-ing, slinks. — v. intr. To move in a quiet, furtive manner; sneak: slunk away ashamed; a cat slinking through the grass toward its prey. — v. tr. To give birth to prematurely: The cow slinked its calf. — n. An animal, especially a calf, born prematurely. — adj. Born prematurely. [Middle English slinken, from Old English slican.]

—slinkʹing-ly adv.

slink-y (slɪŋgʹkē) adj. slink-i-er, slink-i-est. 1. Stealthy, furtive, and sneaking.

2. Informal. Graceful, sinuous, and sleek: wore a slinky outfit to the party.

—slinkʹi-ly adv. —slinkʹi-ness n.

slip¹ (slɪp) v. slipped, slip-ping, slips. — v. intr. 1. a. To move smoothly, easily, and quietly: slipped into bed. b. To move stealthily; steal. 2. To pass gradually, easily, or imperceptibly: “It is necessary to write, if the days are not to slip emptily by” (Vita Sackville-West). 3. a. To slide involuntarily and lose one’s balance or foothold. See Synonyms at slide. b. To slide out of place; shift position: The gear slipped. 4. To escape, as from a grasp, fastening, or restraint: slipped away from his pursuers. 5. To decline from a former or standard level; fall off.

6. To fall behind a scheduled production rate. 7. To fall into fault or error. —

v. tr. 1. To cause to move in a smooth, easy, or sliding motion: slipped the bolt into place. 2. To place or insert smoothly and quietly. 3. To put on or remove (clothing) easily or quickly: slip on a sweater; slipped off her shoes. 4. To get loose or free from; elude. 5. To bring forth (young) prematurely. Used of animals.

6. To unleash or free (a dog or hawk) to pursue game. 7. To release, loose, or unfasten: slip a knot. 8. To dislocate (a bone). 9. To pass (a knitting stitch) from one needle to another without knitting it. — n. 1. The act or an instance of slipping or sliding. 2. An accident or a mishap, especially a falling down.

3. a. An error in conduct or thinking; a mistake. b. A slight error or oversight, as in speech or writing: a slip of the tongue. 4. Nautical. a. A docking place for a ship between two piers. b. A slipway. 5. Nautical. The difference between a vessel’s actual speed through water and the speed at which the vessel would move if the screw were propelling against a solid.

6. a. A woman’s undergarment of dress length, suspended from shoulder straps. b. A half-slip. 7. A pillowcase.

8. Geology. a. A smooth crack at which rock strata have moved on each other.

b. A small fault. c. The relative displacement of formerly adjacent points on opposite sides of a fault. 9. The difference between optimal and actual output in a mechanical device. 10. Movement between two parts where none should exist, as between a pulley and a belt. 11. A sideways movement of an airplane when banked too far. —idioms. give (someone) the slip. Slang. To escape the pursuit of. let slip. To say inadvertently. slip one over on. Informal. To hoodwink; trick. [Middle English slippen, probably of Middle Low German or Middle Dutch origin. See lei- in Appendix.]

slip² (slĭp) n. 1. A part of a plant cut or broken off for grafting or planting; a scion or cutting. 2. A long, narrow piece; a strip. 3. A slender, youthful person: a slip of a child. 4. A small piece of paper, especially a small form, document, or receipt: a deposit slip; a sales slip. 5. A narrow pew in a church. — v. tr.

slipped, slip-ping, slips. To make a slip from (a plant or plant part). [Probably from Middle Low German, or Middle Dutch slippe.]

slip³ (slĭp) n. Thinned potter's clay used for decorating or coating ceramics. [Middle English, slime, from Old English slypa. See sleubh- in Appendix.]

SLIP abbr. Computer Science. Symmetric list processor.

slip-case (slĭp/'kās') n. A protective box with one open end or more, used for storing a book. —slip'cased' adj.

slip-cov-er (slĭp/'kŭv'ər) n. A fitted, removable cover of cloth or other material for a piece of upholstered furniture. — v. tr. slip-cov-ered, slip-cov-er-ing, slip-cov-ers. To provide with slipcovers or a slipcover.

slip-knot (slĭp/'nŏt') n. 1. A knot made with a loop so that it slips easily along the rope or cord around which it is tied. 2. A knot made so that it can readily be untied by pulling one free end. Also called running knot slip-on (slĭp/'ŏn', -ŏn') n. A garment easily donned or removed. —slip'-on' adj.

slip-o-ver (slĭp/'ŏ'vər) n. A garment, such as a sweater, designed to be put on or taken off over the head.

slip-page (slĭp/'ij) n. 1. The act or an instance of slipping, especially movement away from an original or secure place. 2. The amount or extent of slipping. 3. A decline in level, performance, or achievement. 4. Loss of motion or power because of slipping.

slipped disk (slĭpt dĭsk) n. Protrusion of a part of an intervertebral disk through the fibrocartilage, occurring usually in the lower lumbar region and often causing back pain or sciatica.

slip-per (slĭp'ər) n. A low shoe that can be slipped on and off easily and usually worn indoors. —slip'pered adj.

slipper flower (slĭp'ər flou'ər) n. See calceolaria.

slip-per-wort (slĭp'ər-wŭrt', -wŏrt') n. See calceolaria.

slip-per-y (slĭp'ər-rē) adj. slip-per-i-er, slip-per-i-est. 1. Causing or tending to cause sliding or slipping: a slippery sidewalk. 2. Tending to slip, as from one's grasp: a slippery bar of soap. 3. Not trustworthy; elusive or tricky: "How extraordinarily slippery a liar the camera is" (James Agee). [Alteration of obsolete slipper, from Middle English, from Old English slīpor. See lei- in Appendix.]

—slip'per-i-ness n.

slippery elm (slɪp'ə-rē ělm) n. 1. A deciduous eastern North American tree (Ulmus rubra) having hard wood and mucilaginous, aromatic inner bark formerly used medicinally. 2. The wood of this tree.

slippery slope (slɪp'ə-rē slōp) n. A tricky, precarious situation: “On the slippery slope of modernity, helped along by Rousseau and Nietzsche, man slid irresistibly toward the twentieth-century crisis of the West” (Gordon S. Wood).

slip ring (slɪp rɪŋ) n. A metal ring mounted on a rotating part of a machine to provide a continuous electrical connection through brushes on stationary contacts.

slip-sheet (slɪp'shēt') Printing. n. A blank sheet of paper slipped between newly printed sheets to prevent offsetting. — v. tr. slip--sheet-ed, slip-sheet-ing, slip--sheets. To insert blank sheets between (printed sheets).

slipshod (slɪp'shōd') adj. 1. Marked by carelessness; sloppy or slovenly. See Synonyms at sloppy. 2. Slovenly in appearance; shabby or seedy.

—slip'shod'di-ness n.

slip-slop (slɪp'slōp') n. 1. Trivial conversation or writing; twaddle. 2. Archaic. Unappetizing liquid or watery food; slops. [Reduplication of SLOP¹.]

slip-stitch (slɪp'stɪtʃ') n. A concealed stitch used for sewing together two layers of fabric, as with hems and facings, made by running the needle through the underside of the lesser piece and through a few threads of the main piece.

slip-stream (slɪp'strēm') n. 1. The turbulent flow of air driven backward by the propeller or propellers of an aircraft. Also called *race*² 2. The region of reduced air pressure and forward suction produced by and immediately behind a fast-moving ground vehicle. — v. intr. slip-streamed, slip-stream-ing, slip-streams. To drive or cycle in the slipstream of a vehicle ahead.

slip-up (slɪp'ʊp') n. An error; an oversight.

slip-ware (slɪp'wâr') n. Pottery coated or decorated with slip.

slip-way (slɪp'wā') n. Nautical. A sloping surface leading down to the water, on which ships are built or repaired.

slit (slɪt) n. A long, straight, narrow cut or opening. — v. tr. slit, slit-ting, slits. 1. To make a slit or slits in. 2. To cut lengthwise into strips; split. [Middle English slitte, from slitten, to split, from Old English slītan, to cut up.] —slit'ter n. —slit'ty adj.

slith-er (slɪθ'ər) v. slith-ered, slith-er-ing, slith-ers. — v. intr. 1. To slip and slide, as on a loose or uneven surface, often with friction and noise. 2. To glide or slide like a reptile. See Synonyms at slide. — v. tr. To cause to slither. — n. A slithering movement or gait. [Middle English slithren, variant of slid-dren, from Old English slidrian, frequentative of slīdan, to slide.] —slith'er-y adj.

slit trench (slɪt trɛnʃ) n. A narrow, shallow trench dug during combat for the protection of a single soldier or a small group of soldiers.

Sli-ven (sliv'ən) A city of east-central Bulgaria east of Sofia. Contested by Bulgaria and the Byzantine Empire in medieval times and by Russia and Turkey in the 19th century, it is now a textile center with varied industries. Population, 104,000.

sliv-er (sliv'ər) n. 1. A slender piece cut, split, or broken off; a splinter: slivers of broken glass. 2. A small narrow piece, portion, or plot: a sliver of land. 3. (also sliv'vər) A continuous strand of loose wool, flax, or cotton, ready for drawing and twisting. — v. tr. intr. sliv-ered, sliv-er-ing, sliv-ers. To split or become split into slivers. [Middle English slivere, from sliven, to split, from Old English slifan.]

sliv-o-vitz (sliv'ə-vīts) n. A dry colorless plum brandy. [Serbo-Croatian šljivovica, from šljiva, plum. See slī- in Appendix.]

Sloan (slōn), John French. 1871-1951. American painter whose scenes of urban life include Sunday, Women Drying Their Hair (1912) and Backyards, Greenwich Village (1914).

slob (slōb) n. Informal. A person regarded as slovenly, crude, or obnoxious. [Irish Gaelic slab, mud, from Old Irish, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish dialectal slabb, mud.] — slob'bish adj.

slob-ber (slōb'ər) v. slob-bered, slob-ber-ing, slob-bers. — v. intr. 1. To let saliva or liquid spill out from the mouth; drool. 2. To express sentiment or enthusiasm effusively or incoherently; gush. — v. tr. To wet or smear with or as if with saliva or liquid dribbled from the mouth. — n. 1. Saliva or liquid running from the mouth; drool. 2. Effusive or incoherent expression; drivel. [Middle English sloberen, perhaps of Low German origin.] — slob'ber-er n.

— slob'ber-y adj.

Slo-cum (slō'kəm), Henry Warner. 1827-1894. American army officer and politician who commanded part of the Union line at Gettysburg (1863) and later served as a U.S. representative from New York (1869-1873 and 1883-1885).

sloe (slō) n. 1. See blackthorn. 2. Either of two eastern North American plum trees or shrubs, Prunus alleghaniensis, having dark purple fruit, or P. americana, having yellow or red fruit. 3. The tart, plumlike fruit of either of these plants. [Middle English slo, from Old English slā. See slī- in Appendix.]

sloe-eyed (slō'īd') adj. Having slanted, dark eyes.

sloe gin (slō jīn) n. A liqueur having a gin base, flavored with fresh sloes.

slog (slɔg) v. slogged, slog-ging, slogs. — v. intr. 1. To walk or progress with a slow, heavy pace; plod: slog across the swamp; slogged through both volumes. 2. To work diligently for long hours: slogged away at Latin. — v. tr. 1. To make (one's way) with a slow, heavy pace against resistance. 2. To strike with heavy blows. — n. 1. A long, exhausting progress, march, or hike: a student's weary slog through Cicero; a slog through miles of jungle. 2. Long, hard work: an 18-hour slog in the hay fields. [Perhaps alteration of SLUG³.] — slog'ger n.

slo-gan (slō'gən) n. 1. A phrase expressing the aims or nature of an enterprise, an organization, or a candidate; a motto. 2. A phrase used repeatedly, as in advertising or promotion: “all the slogans and shibboleths coined out of the ideals of the peoples for the uses of imperialism” (Margaret Sanger). 3. A battle cry of a Scottish clan. [Alteration of Scots slogorne, battle cry, from Gaelic sluagh-ghairm : sluagh, host; see SLEW¹ + gairm, shout.]

slo-gan-eer (slō'gə-nîr') n. One that invents or uses slogans. — v. intr.

slo-gan-eered, slo-gan-eer-ing, slo-gan-eers. To invent or use slogans.

slo-gan-ize (slō'gə-nîz') v. tr. slo-gan-ized, slo-gan-iz-ing, slo-gan-iz-es.

To express as or in slogans or a slogan. — slo'gan-iz-er n.

sloop (slōop) n. Nautical. A single-masted, fore-and-aft-rigged sailing boat with a short standing bowsprit or none at all and a single headsail set from the forestay. [Dutch sloep, from Middle Dutch slūpen, to glide. See sleubh- in Appendix.]

sloop of war (slōop ūv wōr) n. pl. sloops of war. Nautical. A small, armed vessel larger than a gunboat, carrying guns on one deck only.

slop¹ (slōp) n. 1. Spilled or splashed liquid. 2. Soft mud or slush.

3. Unappetizing watery food or soup. 4. Often slops. Waste food used to feed pigs or other animals; swill. 5. Often slops. Mash remaining after alcohol distillation. 6. Often slops. Human excrement. 7. Repulsively effusive writing or speech; drivel. — v. slopped, slop-ping, slops. — v. intr. 1. To be spilled or splashed: Suds slopped over the rim of the washtub. 2. To spill over; overflow.

3. To walk heavily or messily in or as if in mud; plod: “He slopped along in broken slippers, hands in pockets, whistling” (Alan Sillitoe). 4. To express oneself effusively; gush. — v. tr. 1. To spill (liquid). 2. To spill liquid on. 3. To serve unappetizingly or clumsily; dish out. 4. To feed slops to (animals). [Middle English sloppe, a muddy place, perhaps from Old English sloppe*, dung, slime. See sleubh- in Appendix.]

slop² (slōp) n. 1. slops. Articles of clothing and bedding issued or sold to sailors. 2. slops. Short, full trousers worn in the 16th century. 3. A loose outer garment, such as a smock or overalls. 4. slops. Chiefly British. Cheap, ready-made garments. [Middle English sloppe, a kind of garment, from Old English -slop (in oferslop, surplice). See sleubh- in Appendix.]

slope (slōp) v. sloped, slop-ing, slopes. — v. intr. 1. To diverge from the vertical or horizontal; incline: a roof that slopes. See Synonyms at slant. 2. To move on a slant; ascend or descend: sloped down the trail. — v. tr. To cause to slope: sloped the path down the bank. — n. 1. An inclined line, surface, plane, position, or direction. 2. A stretch of ground forming a natural or artificial incline: ski slopes. 3. a. A deviation from the horizontal. b. The amount or degree of such deviation. 4. Mathematics. a. The rate at which an ordinate of a point of a line on a coordinate plane changes with respect to a change in the abscissa. b. The tangent of the angle of inclination of a line, or the slope of the tangent line for a curve or surface. 5. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for an Asian person. [Probably from Middle English aslope, sloping.] —slop'er n. —slop'ing-ly adv.

slo-pitch (slō'pĭch') n. Sports. Variant of slow-pitch.

slop-py (slöp'ē) adj. slop-pi-er, slop-pi-est. 1. Marked by a lack of neatness or order; untidy: a sloppy room. 2. Marked by a lack of care or precision; slipshod: sloppy use of language. 3. Informal. Oversentimental; gushy. 4. Of, resembling, or covered with slop; muddy or slushy: sloppy ground. 5. Watery and unappetizing: a sloppy stew. 6. Spotted or splashed with liquid. —slop'pi-ly adv. —slop'pi-ness n.

SYNONYMS: sloppy, slovenly, unkempt, slipshod. These adjectives apply to people, their appearance, their way of thinking, or their work and mean marked by an absence of due or proper care or attention. Sloppy evokes the idea of careless spilling, spotting, or splashing; it suggests slackness, untidiness, or diffuseness: a sloppy kitchen; sloppy dress. “I do not see how the sloppiest reasoner can evade that” (H.G. Wells). Slovenly implies habitual negligence and a lack of system or thoroughness: a slovenly appearance; a slovenly writer; slovenly inaccuracies. Unkempt stresses dishevelment resulting from a neglectful lack of proper maintenance: “an unwashed brow, an unkempt head of hair” (Sir Walter Scott). During the owners' absence the lawn became dreadfully unkempt. Slipshod suggests a relaxed indulgence toward imperfection, a casual inattention to detail, and a general absence of meticulousness: “the new owners' camp... a slipshod and slovenly affair, tent half stretched, dishes unwashed” (Jack London); “slipshod talk” (George Eliot).

sloppy joe or sloppy Joe (slöp'ē jō) n. A bun filled or covered with ground beef cooked in a spicy tomato sauce.

slop-work (slöp'wûrk') n. 1. a. The manufacture of inexpensive, low-quality, ready-to-wear clothes. b. Cheap ready-to-wear clothes. 2. Careless or hasty work.

slosh (slōsh) v. sloshed, slosh-ing, slosh-es. — v. tr. 1. To spill or splash (a liquid) copiously or clumsily: slosh paint on the floor. 2. To agitate in a liquid: slosh clothes in a solution of bleach and detergent. — v. intr. To splash, wade, or flounder in water or another liquid: sloshed through the creek. — n. 1. Slush. 2. The sound of splashing liquid. [Perhaps blend of SLOP¹, and SLUSH.] —slosh'y adj.

sloshed (slōst) adj. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk. [From past participle of SLOSH.]

slot¹ (slōt) n. 1. A narrow opening; a groove or slit: a slot for coins in a vending machine; a mail slot. 2. A gap between a main and an auxiliary airfoil to provide space for airflow and facilitate the smooth passage of air over the wing. 3. a. An assigned place in a sequence or schedule: a new time slot for a TV program. b. A position of employment in an organization or a hierarchy. 4. Computer Science.

A socket in a microcomputer that will accept a plug-in circuit board: expansion slots. — v. tr. slot·ted, slot·ting, slots. 1. To cut or make a slot or slots in.

2. To put into or assign to a slot. [Middle English, hollow of the breastbone, from Old French esclot.] slot² (slõt) n. The track or trail of an animal, especially a deer. [Obsolete French esclot, horse's hoofprint, from Old French, perhaps from Old Norse slōdh, track.]

slot car (slõt kär) n. Games. An electric toy racing car that fits into a slotted track and is controlled by a rheostat held by the operator.

sloth (slōth, slōth, slōth) n. 1. Aversion to work or exertion; laziness; indolence.

2. Any of various slow-moving, arboreal, edentate mammals of the family Bradyrodidae of South and Central America, having long hooklike claws by which they hang upside down from tree branches and feeding on leaves, buds, and fruits, especially: a. A member of the genus Bradypus, having three long-clawed toes on each forefoot. Also called *ai*¹, three-toed sloth. b. A member of the genus Choloepus, having two toes on each forefoot. Also called two-toed sloth, unau. 3. A company of bears. See Synonyms at flock¹. [Middle English slowth, from slow, slow. See SLOW.]

sloth bear (slōth bâr) n. A bear (Melursus ursinus) of India and Sri Lanka, having a long snout, long sticky tongue, and dark shaggy hair and feeding on plants and insects, especially termites and the larvae of bees.

sloth·ful (slōth'fəl, slōth'-, slōth'-) adj. Disinclined to work or exertion; lazy.

See Synonyms at lazy. —sloth'ful·ly adv. —sloth'ful·ness n.

slot machine (slõt mə-shēn') n. A vending or gambling machine operated by the insertion of coins into a slot.

slot racing (slõt rā'sīng) n. Games. The racing of slot cars. —slot racer n.

slouch (slouch) v. slouched, slouch·ing, slouch·es. — v. intr. 1. To sit, stand, or walk with an awkward, drooping, excessively relaxed posture. 2. To droop or hang carelessly, as a hat. — v. tr. To cause to droop; stoop. — n.

1. An awkward, drooping, excessively relaxed posture or gait. 2. Slang. An awkward, lazy, or inept person: good at chess and no slouch at bridge, either. [Origin unknown.] —slouch'i·ly adv. —slouch'i·ness n. —slouch'y adj.

slouch hat (slouch hät) n. A soft hat with a broad, flexible brim.

slough¹ (slōō, slou) also slew (slōō) n. 1. A depression or hollow, usually filled with deep mud or mire. 2. Also slue. A stagnant swamp, marsh, bog, or pond, especially as part of a bayou, an inlet, or a backwater. 3. A state of deep despair or moral degradation. [Middle English, from Old English slōh.] —slough'y adj.

slough² (slūf) n. 1. The dead outer skin shed by a reptile or an amphibian.

2. Medicine. A layer or mass of dead tissue separated from surrounding living tissue, as in a wound, a sore, or an inflammation. 3. An outer layer or covering that is shed. — v. sloughed, slough·ing, sloughs. — v. intr. 1. To be cast off or shed; come off. 2. To shed a slough. 3. Medicine. To separate from surrounding living tissue. Used of dead tissue. — v. tr. To discard as undesirable or unfavorable; get rid of: slough off former associates. [Middle English slughe.]

Slough (slou) A municipal borough of southeast England, a residential and industrial suburb of London. Population, 96,900.

Slo·vak (slō'vāk', -vāk') also Slo·va·ki·an (slō-vä'kē-ən, -vāk'ē-ən) n. 1. A member of a Slavic people living in Slovakia. 2. The Slavic language of the Slovaks. — adj. Of or relating to Slovakia or its people, language, or culture. [Slovak Slovák.]

Slo·vak·i·a (slō-vä'kē-ə, -vāk'ē-ə) A country of central Europe. Settled by Slavic peoples c. sixth century A.D., the region was generally under Hungarian rule from the tenth century until 1918, when it became part of Czechoslovakia. Slovakia became an independent republic in 1993. Bratislava is the capital and the largest city. Population, 4,991,168.

slov·en (slŭv'ən) n. One who is habitually careless in personal appearance or work. [Middle English slovein, perhaps from Middle Flemish sloovin, a scold, gossip, from Middle Low German slōven, to dress carelessly (; akin to Dutch sloof, untidy woman). See sleubh- in Appendix.]

Slo·vene (slō'vĕn') also Slo·ve·ni·an (slō-vĕ'nĕ-ən, -vĕn'yən) n. 1. A member of a Slavic people living in Slovenia. 2. The Slavic language of the Slovenes. — adj. Of or relating to Slovenia or its people, language, or culture. [German Slowene, from Slovene Slovĕnec, ultimately from Old Slavic Slovĕninŭ, Slav.]

Slo·ve·ni·a (slō-vĕ'nĕ-ə, -vĕn'yə) A republic of the northwest Balkan Peninsula. In ancient times Illyrian and Celtic peoples inhabited the area, which was ruled by Rome after the first century B.C. and settled by Slavs in the sixth century A.D. Slovenia came under Austrian control after 1335 and joined the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes (later Yugoslavia) in 1918. Slovenia declared its independence in June 1991. Ljubljana is the capital and the largest city. Population, 1,697,068.

slov·en·ly (slŭv'ən-lē) adj. 1. Untidy, as in dress or appearance. 2. Marked by negligence; slipshod. See Synonyms at sloppy. —slov'en-li·ness n.
—slov'en·ly adv.

slow (slō) adj. slow·er, slow·est. Abbr. sl. 1. a. Not moving or able to move quickly; proceeding at a low speed: a slow train; slow walkers. b. Marked by a retarded tempo: a slow waltz. 2. a. Taking or requiring a long time: the slow job of making bread. b. Taking more time than is usual: a slow worker; slow progress in the peace negotiations. 3. Registering a time or rate behind or below the correct one: a slow clock. 4. Lacking in promptness or willingness; not precipitate: They were slow to accept our invitation. 5. Characterized by a low volume of sales or transactions: Business was slow today. 6. Lacking liveliness or interest; boring: a slow party. 7. Not having or exhibiting intellectual or mental quickness: a slow learner. 8. Only moderately warm; low: a slow oven. — adv. slower, slowest. 1. So as to fall behind the correct time or rate: The watch runs slow. 2. At a low speed: Go slow! — v. slowed, slow-ing, slows. — v. tr. 1. To make slow or slower. 2. To delay; retard. — v. intr. To become slow or slower. [Middle English, from Old English slāw.] — slow/ly adv. — slow/ness n.

SYNONYMS: slow, dilatory, leisurely, laggard, deliberate. These adjectives mean taking more time than is usual or necessary. Slow is the least specific: slow speech; slow growth; a slow bus; a slow heartbeat; a slow but meticulous worker; slow to anger. Dilatory implies lack of promptness caused by delay, procrastination, or indifference: His credit suffered because he was dilatory in paying his bills. Leisurely suggests a relaxed lack of haste: We took a leisurely trip around Europe. Laggard implies hanging back or falling behind: “the horses’ laggard pace” (Rudyard Kipling). Deliberate suggests a lack of hurry traceable especially to caution, need, self-restraint, or careful consideration, as of consequences: She went about her work in a systematic and deliberate manner. See also Synonyms at delay stupid USAGE NOTE: Slow may sometimes be used instead of slowly when it comes after the verb: We drove the car slow. In formal writing slowly is generally preferred. Slow is often used in speech and informal writing, especially when brevity and forcefulness are sought: Drive slow! Slow is also the established idiomatic form with certain senses of common verbs: The watch runs slow. Take it slow.

slow burn (slō būrn) n. Slang. A gradually increasing sense or show of anger: did a slow burn while waiting three hours in the doctor’s office.

slow-down (slō’doun’) n. The act or process of slowing down; a slackening of pace: a production slowdown.

slow-foot-ed (slō’fōōt’id) adj. Proceeding at a tediously slow pace: a slow-footed story. — slow/-foot/ed-ness n.

slow infection (slō ĩn-fĕk’shən) n. An infection having a long incubation period, as that caused by a slow virus or by a prion.

slow loris (slō lôr’is) n. A large loris (Nycticebus coucang) of Indonesia, having a corpulent, almost tailless body and noted for its very slow, cautious movements.

slow match (slō măch) n. A match or fuse that burns slowly at a known rate and is used to set off explosives.

slow motion (slō mō’shən) n. A filmmaking technique in which the action as projected is slower than the original action. — slow/-mo’tion (slō’mō’shən) adj.

slow neutron (slō nōō’trŏn’) n. A neutron in thermal equilibrium with the surrounding medium, especially one produced by fission and slowed by a moderator. Also called thermal neutron slow-pitch also slo-pitch (slō'pīch') n. Sports. Softball in which there are ten players to a team and legal pitches must travel in an arc from three to ten feet high.

slow-poke (slō'pōk') n. Informal. One that moves, works, or acts slowly.

slow virus (slō vī'rəs) n. Any of a group of animal viruses that cause diseases having an unusually long incubation period, as Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease. Also called lentivirus slow virus disease (slō vī'rəs dī-zēz') n. A disease caused by a slow virus.

slow-wit-ted or slow-wit-ted (slō'wīt'īd) adj. Slow to comprehend.

—slow'-wit'ted-ly adv. —slow'-wit'ted-ness n.

slow-worm (slō'wūrm') n. A limbless lizard (Anguis fragilis) of Europe, western Asia, and northern Africa, having a smooth snakelike body and feeding chiefly on slugs. Also called blindworm [Alteration (influenced by slow), of Middle English slowurm, from Old English slāwyrm : slā-, earthworm, slowworm + wyrm, worm; see WORM.]

slloyd (slōid) n. A system of manual training developed in Sweden, based on the use of tools in woodworking. [Swedish slöjd, skill, skilled labor; akin to Old Norse slægðh, dexterity. See SLEIGHT.]

SLR abbr. Single-lens reflex camera. slub (slüb) v. tr. slubbed, slub-bing, slubs. To draw out and twist (a strand of silk or other textile fiber) in preparation for spinning. — n. 1. A soft, thick nub in yarn that is either an imperfection or purposely set for a desired effect. 2. A slightly twisted roll of fiber, as of silk or cotton. [Origin unknown.]

sludge (slŭj) n. 1. Semisolid material such as the type precipitated by sewage treatment. 2. Mud, mire, or ooze covering the ground or forming a deposit, as on a riverbed. 3. Finely broken or half-formed ice on a body of water, especially the sea. 4. An agglutination or aggregation of blood cells forming a semisolid mass that often impedes circulation. — v. intr. sludged, sludg-ing, sludg-es. To agglutinate or aggregate into a semisolid mass; form a sludge. Used of blood cells. [Perhaps alteration of dialectal slutch, mire.] —sludg'y adj.

slue¹ also slew (slōō) v. slued also slewed, slu-ing also slew-ing, slues also slews. — v. tr. 1. To turn (something) on an axis; rotate: slued the swivel chair around; sluing the boom of a crane. 2. To turn sharply; veer: braked and slued the car around. — v. intr. 1. To turn about an axis; pivot. 2. To turn or slide sideways or off course; skid. — n. 1. The act of sluing. 2. The position to which something has slued. [Origin unknown.]

slue² (slōō) n. Variant of slew¹.

slue³ (slōō) n. Variant of slough¹ (n., sense 2).

slug¹ (slŭg) n. 1. A round bullet larger than buckshot. 2. Informal. A shot of liquor. 3. A small metal disk for use in a vending or gambling machine, especially one used illegally. 4. A lump of metal or glass prepared for further processing.

5. Printing. a. A strip of type metal, less than type-high and thicker than a lead, used for spacing. b. A line of cast type in a single strip of metal. c. A compositor's type line of identifying marks or instructions, inserted temporarily in copy. 6. Physics. The unit of mass that is accelerated at the rate of one foot per second per second when acted on by a force of one pound weight. — v. tr. slugged, slug-ging, slugs. Printing. To add slugs to. [Perhaps from SLUG² (from its shape).]

slug² (slŭg) n. 1. Any of various small, snaillike, chiefly terrestrial gastropod mollusks of the genus Limax and related genera, having a slow-moving elongated body with no shell or only a flat rudimentary shell on or under the skin. 2. The smooth, soft larva of certain insects, such as the sawfly. 3. A slimy mass of aggregated amoeboid cells from which the sporophore of a cellular slime mold develops. 4. Informal. A sluggard. [Middle English slugge, sluggard, probably of Scandinavian origin.]

slug³ (slŭg) v. tr. slugged, slug-ging, slugs. To strike heavily, especially with the fist or a bat. — n. A hard, heavy blow, as with the fist or a baseball bat. [Possibly from SLUG¹.]

slug-a-bed (slŭg'ə-bĕd') n. One inclined to stay in bed out of laziness.

slug-fest (slŭg'fĕst') n. 1. Slang. A fight marked by an extended exchange of heavy blows. 2. Baseball. A game in which there are many hits and runs scored.

slug-gard (slŭg'ərd) n. A slothful person; an idler. — adj. Lazy. [Middle English sluggart, probably from sluggi, lazy, probably of Scandinavian origin.] — slug-gard-ly adj. — slug-gard-ness n.

slug-ger (slŭg'ər) n. 1. One that slugs, as a fighter who delivers hard, swinging punches. 2. Baseball. A batter who hits many extra-base hits.

slug-ging average (slŭg'ing əv'ər-ij) n. Baseball. A player's total number of bases reached on hits divided by official times at bat, expressed as a three-digit decimal and used as a measure of batting power. Also called slugging percentage slug-gish (slŭg'ish) adj. 1. Displaying little movement or activity; slow; inactive: a sluggish stream; sluggish growth. 2. Lacking alertness, vigor, or energy; inert or indolent. 3. Slow to perform or respond to stimulation. [Middle English, probably from slugge, lazy person. See SLUG².] — slug-gish-ly adv. — slug-gish-ness n.

sluice (slōōs) n. 1. a. An artificial channel for conducting water, with a valve or gate to regulate the flow: sluices connecting a reservoir with irrigated fields. b. A valve or gate used in such a channel; a floodgate: open sluices to flood a dry dock. Also called sluice gate 2. A body of water impounded behind a floodgate. 3. A sluiceway. 4. A long inclined trough, as for carrying logs or separating gold ore. — v. sluiced, sluic-ing, sluic-es. — v. tr. 1. To flood or drench with or as if with a flow of released water. 2. To wash with water flowing in a sluice: sluicing sediment for gold. 3. To draw off or let out by a sluice: sluice floodwater. 4. To send (logs, for example) down a sluice. — v. intr. To flow out from or as if from a sluice. [Middle English schuse, from Old French eschuse, from Late Latin exclūsa, from Latin, feminine past participle of exclūdere, to shut out. See EXCLUDE.]

sluice-way (slōōs'wā') n. An artificial channel, especially one for carrying off excess water.

slum (slŭm) n. A heavily populated urban area characterized by substandard housing and squalor. Often used in the plural. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: slum housing; slum districts. — v. intr. slummed, slum·ming, slums. To visit impoverished areas or squalid locales, especially out of curiosity or for amusement. [Origin unknown.] — slum'mer n. — slum'my adj.

slum·ber (slŭm'bər) v. slum·bered, slum·ber·ing, slum·bers. — v. intr. 1. To sleep. 2. To be dormant or quiescent. — v. tr. To pass (time) in sleep. — n. 1. Sleep. 2. A state of inactivity or dormancy. [Middle English slumeren, slumberen, frequentative of slumen, to doze, probably from slume, light sleep, from Old English slūma.] — slum'ber·er n. — slum'ber·ing·ly adv.

slum·ber·ous (slŭm'bər-əs) or slum·brous (-brəs) adj. 1. Sleepy; drowsy. 2. a. Suggestive of or resembling sleep: a slumberous torpor. b. Quiet; tranquil. 3. Causing or inducing sleep; soporific. — slum'ber·ous·ly adv. — slum'ber·ous·ness n.

slumber party (slŭm'bər pər'tē) n. An overnight party in which teenage girls wear nightgowns or pajamas, socialize, and sleep over.

slum·ber·y (slŭm'bə-rē) adj. Slumberous.

slum·gul·lion (slŭm-gŭl'yən) n. A watery meat stew. [Perhaps slum, muddy deposit in a mining sluice + dialectal gullion, mud (perhaps from Irish Gaelic goilín, pit).]

slum·lord (slŭm'lôrd') n. An owner of slum property, especially one that overcharges tenants and allows the property to deteriorate. [SLUM + (LAND)LORD.]

slump (slŭmp) v. intr. slumped, slump·ing, slumps. 1. To fall or sink heavily; collapse: She slumped, exhausted, onto the sofa. 2. To droop, as in sitting or standing; slouch. 3. To decline suddenly; fall off: Business slumped after the holidays. 4. a. To sink or settle, as into mud or slush. b. To slide down or spread out thickly, as mud or fresh concrete. — n. 1. The act or an instance of slumping. 2. A drooping or slouching posture: read defeat in the slump of his shoulders. 3. A sudden falling off or decline, as in activity, prices, or business: a stock market slump; a slump in farm prices. 4. An extended period of poor performance, especially in a sport or competitive activity: a slump in a batting average. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Norwegian slumpa, to slump.]

slung (slŭng) v. Past tense and past participle of sling¹.

slunk (slŭngk) v. A past tense and a past participle of slink.

slur (slûr) v. tr. slurred, slur-ring, slurs. 1. To pronounce indistinctly. 2. To speak slightly of; disparage. 3. To pass over lightly or carelessly; treat without due consideration. 4. Music. a. To glide over (a series of notes) smoothly without a break. b. To mark with a slur. 5. Printing. To blur or smear. — n. 1. A disparaging remark; an aspersion. 2. A slurred utterance or sound. 3. Music. a. A curved line connecting notes on a score to indicate that they are to be played or sung legato. b. A passage played or sung in this manner. 4. Printing. A smeared or blurred impression. [Probably from Middle English sloor, mud.]

slurb (slûrb) n. Informal. An unsightly suburban area marked by crowded or poorly built dwellings. [Perhaps SL(OVENLY) + (SUB)URB.]

slurp (slûrp) v. slurped, slurp-ing, slurps. — v. tr. To eat or drink noisily. — v. intr. To eat or drink something noisily. — n. 1. A loud sucking noise made in eating or drinking. 2. Slang. A mouthful of a liquid: took a slurp of grape juice. [Dutch slurpen.] slur-ry (slûr'ē) n. pl. slur-ries. A thin mixture of a liquid, especially water, and any of several finely divided substances, such as cement, plaster of Paris, or clay particles. [Middle English slori, perhaps from sloor, mud.]

slush (slûsh) n. 1. Partially melted snow or ice. 2. Soft mud; slop; mire. 3. Nautical. Grease or fat discarded from a ship's galley. 4. A greasy compound used as a lubricant for machinery. 5. Maudlin speech or writing; sentimental drivel. 6. A drink made of flavored syrup poured over crushed ice. 7. Informal. Unsolicited manuscripts submitted to a publisher. — v. slushed, slush-ing, slush-es. — v. tr. 1. To daub (machinery) with slush. 2. To fill (joints in masonry) with mortar. 3. Nautical. To wash down (a deck) by splashing with water. 4. To splash or soak with slush or mud. — v. intr. 1. To walk or proceed through slush. 2. To make a splashing or slushy sound. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Norwegian slask, sloppy weather.]

slush fund (slûsh fûnd) n. 1. A fund raised for undesignated purposes, especially: a. A fund raised by a group for corrupt practices, such as bribery or graft. b. A fund used by a group, as for entertainment. 2. Money formerly raised by the sale of garbage from a warship to buy small items of luxury for the crew.

slush-y (slûsh'ē) adj. slush-i-er, slush-i-est. 1. Consisting of, covered with, or full of slush. 2. Resembling slush, as in consistency. 3. Revoltingly sentimental; maudlin. See Synonyms at sentimental. —slush'i-ly adv. —slush'i-ness n.

slut (slût) n. 1. a. A woman considered sexually promiscuous. b. A prostitute. 2. A slovenly woman; a slattern. 3. A female dog. [Middle English slutte.] —slut'tish adj. —slut'tish-ly adv. —slut'tish-ness n.

SLV abbr. Standard launch vehicle.

sly (slī) adj. sli-er (slī'ər) also sly-er, sli-est (slī'ĕst) also sly-est. 1. Adept in craft or cunning. 2. Lacking or marked by a lack of candor. 3. Playfully mischievous; roguish. —idiom. on the sly. In a way intended to escape notice: took extra payments on the sly. [Middle English sleigh, from Old Norse slægr.] —sly'ly

adv. —sly'ness n.

SYNONYMS: sly, cunning, tricky, crafty, wily, foxy, artful, guileful. These adjectives mean disposed to or marked by indirection or deviousness in the gaining of an end. Sly usually implies surreptitiousness, secretiveness, and lack of candor: “You think he’s open and blunt—he’s as sly as a mink” (George W. Cable). Cunning stresses cleverness and ingenuity, often at the expense of moral principles: “Cunning men pass for wise” (Francis Bacon). Tricky emphasizes shiftiness, deception, and absence of scruples: Under the façade of morality and patriotism can be perceived the false and tricky political opportunist that he is. Crafty suggests mastery of devious and underhanded methods or schemes: Crafty plotters make the best intelligence agents. Wily suggests subterfuge or stratagem intended to entrap: Her father was a wily old attorney. Foxy implies cunning and craft and usually long experience in the use of trickery: The parvenu was much too foxy to let slip even a hint of his working-class background. Artful emphasizes adroitness in maneuvering to accomplish a purpose: She won the case by her artful manipulation of the jury’s emotions. Guileful suggests an insidious, often treacherous nature: “a guileful tournament organizer who manipulates and dehumanizes athletes” (Jeremiah Tax).

sly·boots (slī'bōōts') pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Informal. A sly person.

slype (slīp) n. Architecture. A covered passage, especially one between the transept and chapter house of a cathedral. [Perhaps akin to Dutch dialectal slijpe, secret path.]

Sm The symbol for the element samarium.

SM abbr. 1. Sergeant major. 2. Service mark. 3. Or S.M., Soldier’s Medal.
4. Stage manager. 5. Stationmaster.

sm. abbr. Small.

S.M. abbr. Latin. Scientiae Magister (Master of Science).

S-M or s-m abbr. Sodomasochism.

SMA abbr. Sergeant major of the army.

smack¹ (smăk) v. smacked, smack-ing, smacks. — v. tr. 1. To press together and open (the lips) quickly and noisily, as in eating or tasting. 2. To kiss noisily. 3. To strike sharply and with a loud noise. — v. intr. 1. To make or give a smack. 2. To collide sharply and noisily: The ball smacked against the side of the house. — n. 1. The loud, sharp sound of smacking. 2. A noisy kiss. 3. A sharp blow or slap. — adv. 1. With a smack: fell smack on her head. 2. Directly: “We were smack in the middle of another controversy about a public man’s personal life” (Ellen Goodman). [Perhaps of Middle Flemish origin, and or perhaps of imitative origin.]

smack² (smäk) n. 1. a. A distinctive flavor or taste. See Synonyms at taste.

b. A suggestion or trace. 2. A small amount; a smattering. — v. intr.

smacked, smack-ing, smacks. 1. To have a distinctive flavor or taste. Used with of. 2. To give an indication; be suggestive. Often used with of: “an agenda that does not smack of compromise” (Time). [Middle English, from Old English smæc.]

smack³ (smäk) n. Nautical. A sloop-rigged boat used chiefly in fishing, especially to transport the catch to market. [Dutch, or Low German smak from smakken, to fling, dash.]

smack⁴ (smäk) n. Slang. Heroin. [Probably variant of smeck, from Yiddish shmek, a sniff, smell, from shmekn, to sniff, smell, from Middle High German smecken, smacken, to smell, taste, from Old High German smac, smell, taste.]

smack-dab (smäk'däb') adv. Slang. Squarely; directly: stood smack-dab in the middle of the freeway. [SMACK¹ + DAB¹, with a sudden contact.]

smack-er (smäk'ər) n. 1. A loud kiss. 2. A resounding blow. 3. Slang. A dollar.

smack-ing (smäk'ɪŋ) adj. Brisk; vigorous; spanking: a smacking breeze.

small (smôl) adj. small-er, small-est. Abbr. s., sm. 1. Being below the average in size or magnitude. 2. Limited in importance or significance; trivial: a small matter. 3. Limited in degree or scope: small farm operations. 4. Lacking position, influence, or status; minor: “A crowd of small writers had vainly attempted to rival Addison” (Macaulay). 5. Unpretentious; modest: made a small living; helped the cause in my own small way. 6. Not fully grown; very young. 7. Narrow in outlook; petty: a small mind. 8. Having been belittled; humiliated: Their comments made me feel small. 9. Diluted; weak. Used of alcoholic beverages.

10. Lacking force or volume: a small voice. — adv. 1. In small pieces: Cut the meat up small. 2. Without loudness or forcefulness; softly. 3. In a small manner.

— n. 1. Something smaller than the rest: the small of the back. 2. smalls.

a. Small things considered as a group. b. Chiefly British. Small items of clothing.

[Middle English smal, from Old English smæl.] — small'ish adj. — small'ness n.

SYNONYMS: small, diminutive, little, miniature, minuscule, minute, petite, tiny, wee. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “being notably below the average in size or magnitude”: a small house; diminutive in stature; little hands; a miniature camera; a minuscule amount of rain; minute errors; a petite figure; tiny feet; a wee bit better.

ANTONYM: large

small arm (smôl ärm) n. A firearm that can be carried in the hand.

small beer (smôl bîr) n. 1. Weak or inferior beer. 2. Unimportant things; trivia. — adj. Trivial; unimportant.

small-bore (smôl'bôr', -bôr') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a firearm of .22 caliber. 2. Trivial or parochial in character: “the petty talking points... and small-bore scandals that regularly intrude on campaigns” (New Republic).

small calorie (smôl kăl'ə-rē) n. See calorie (n., sense 1).

small capital (smôl kăp'ĭ-tl) n. Abbr. sc, s.c. A letter having the form of a capital letter but smaller; for example: SMALL CAPITALS.

small change (smôl chānj) n. 1. Coins of low denomination. 2. Something of little value or significance.

small-claims court (smôl'klāmz' kôrt) n. Law. A special court established for simplified and efficient handling of small claims on debts.

small-clothes (smôl'klôthz', -klôz') pl.n. 1. Men's close-fitting knee breeches worn in the 18th century. 2. Chiefly British. Small items of clothing, such as underclothes or handkerchiefs.

small fry (smôl frī) n. 1. Small children. 2. Young or small fish. 3. Persons or things regarded as unimportant.

small hours (smôl ourz) pl.n. The early hours after midnight.

small intestine (smôl ĭn-tēs'tĭn) n. The narrow, winding, upper part of the intestine where digestion is completed and nutrients are absorbed by the blood. It extends from the pylorus to the cecum and consists of the duodenum, the jejunum, and the ileum.

small-mind-ed (smôl'mĭn'dĭd) adj. 1. Having a narrow or selfish attitude.

2. Characterized by pettiness or selfishness. —small'-mind'ed-ly adv.

—small'-mind'ed-ness n.

small-mouth bass (smôl'mouth' bäs) n. A North American freshwater food and game fish (Micropterus dolomieu) having a shorter upper jaw than the similar largemouth bass.

small potatoes (smôl pə-tā'tôz) pl.n. Informal. 1. A person or thing regarded as unimportant. 2. An insignificant amount or sum.

small-pox (smôl'pöks') n. An acute, highly infectious, often fatal disease caused by a poxvirus and characterized by high fever and aches with subsequent widespread eruption of pimples that blister, produce pus, and form pockmarks.

Also called variola

small print (smôl prĭnt) n. See fine print.

Smalls (smôlz), Robert. 1839-1915. American Union soldier and politician.

After being forced to serve in the Confederate Navy, he took command of a ship and delivered it to Union forces. Smalls subsequently became a captain (1863-1866) and the highest-ranking Black officer in the Union Navy. He later served as a U.S. representative from South Carolina (1875-1879 and 1881-1887).

small-scale (smôl'skāl') adj. 1. Limited in scope or extent; modest: a small-scale plan. 2. Created on a small scale: a small-scale model of the new city hall.

small talk (smôl tôk) n. Casual or trivial conversation.

small-time or small-time (smôl'tīm') adj. Informal. Insignificant or unimportant; minor: a smalltime actor. —small'tim'er n.

small time (smôl tīm) n. Informal. A modest or minor level of attainment in a competitive field: a critical success that took her from the small time all the way to Hollywood.

smalt (smôlt) n. A deep blue paint and ceramic pigment produced by pulverizing a glass made of silica, potash, and cobalt oxide. [French, from Italian smalto, enamel, glaze, of Germanic origin. See mel-¹ in Appendix.]

smalt-ite (smôl'tīt') also smalt-ine (smôl'tīn, -tēn') n. A white to silver-gray mineral, (Co,Ni)As₃, that is an important ore of cobalt.

smarm-y (smär'mē) adj. smarm-i-er, smarm-i-est. 1. Hypocritically, complacently, or effusively earnest; unctuous. See Synonyms at unctuous. 2. Sleek. [From smarm, to smear.] —smarm-i-ness n.

smart (smärt) adj. smart-er, smart-est. 1. a. Characterized by sharp, quick thought; bright. See Synonyms at intelligent. b. Amusingly clever; witty: a smart quip; a lively, smart conversation. c. Impertinent; insolent: That's enough of your smart talk. 2. Energetic or quick in movement: a smart pace. 3. Canny and shrewd in dealings with others: a smart business person. 4. Fashionable; elegant: a smart suit; a smart restaurant; the smart set. See Synonyms at fashionable.

5. a. Of, relating to, or being a highly automated device, especially one that imitates human intelligence: smart missiles. b. Computer Science. Having the capacity to perform operations independently of the computer. Used of a computer terminal. 6. New England & Southern U.S. Accomplished; talented: He's a right smart ball player. — v. intr. smart-ed, smart-ing, smarts. 1. a. To cause a sharp, usually superficial, stinging pain: The slap delivered to my face smarted.

b. To be the location of such a pain: The incision on my leg smarts. c. To feel such a pain. 2. To suffer acutely, as from mental distress, wounded feelings, or remorse: "No creature smarts so little as a fool" (Alexander Pope). 3. To suffer or pay a heavy penalty. — n. 1. Sharp mental or physical pain. See Synonyms at pain. 2. smarts. Slang. Intelligence; expertise: "Like courting the prettiest girl in school, the chase requires smarts" (Jackie MacMullan). —phrasal verb. smart off. Informal. To speak or act impertinently. —idiom. right smart. New England & Southern U.S. A lot; a considerable amount: He did right smart of the work himself. [Middle English, stinging, keen, alert, from Old English smeart, causing pain.] —smart'ly adv. —smart'ness n.

REGIONAL NOTE: Smart is a word that has digressed considerably from its original meaning of "stinging, sharp," as in a smart blow. The standard meaning of "clever, intelligent," probably picks up on the original semantic element of vigor or quick movement. Smart has taken on other senses as a regionalism. In New England and in the South smart can mean "accomplished, talented." The phrase right smart can even be used as a noun meaning “a considerable number or amount”: “We have read right smart of that book” (Catherine C. Hopley).

smart aleck (smärt ä'l'ik) n. Informal. 1. A person regarded as obnoxiously self-assertive. 2. An impudent person. [Perhaps after Aleck Hoag, 19th-century American confidence man and thief.] — smart'-al'eck (smärt'äl'ik), smart'-al'eck-y (-ĭ-kē) adj.

smart-ass (smärt'äs') n. Slang. A smart aleck. — smart'-ass' adj.

smart bomb (smärt böm) n. A bomb that can be guided by radio waves or a laser beam to its target.

smart card (smärt kărd) n. A plastic card resembling a credit card that contains a computer chip, which enables the holder to perform various operations, such as mathematical calculations, paying of bills, and the purchasing of goods and services.

smart-en (smär'tn) v. smart-ened, smart-en-ing, smart-ens. — v. tr.

1. To improve in appearance or stylishness; spruce up. 2. To make quicker: smartened the pace. — v. intr. To make oneself smart or smarter.

smart money (smärt mün'ē) n. 1. Games. Bets or a bet placed by experienced gamblers or those having privileged information. 2. Informal. a. Experienced, well-informed investors: Smart money is supporting the conservative presidential candidate. b. Investments made by people experienced and well informed in matters of finance. 3. Law. Compensation beyond the value of actual harm, awarded by a jury in cases of gross negligence or willful misconduct.

smart rock (smärt rök) n. A ground-based projectile that can be launched to destroy warheads or missiles.

smart-weed (smärt'wēd') n. Any of various marsh plants of the genus Polygonum, having sheathlike stipules and small, densely clustered pink, white, or green flowers.

smart-y (smär'tē) n. pl. smart-ies. Informal. 1. A smart aleck. 2. A quick-witted person.

smart-y-pants (smär'tē-pānts') pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Informal. A smart aleck.

smash (smăsh) v. smashed, smash-ing, smash-es. — v. tr. 1. To break (something) into pieces suddenly, noisily, and violently; shatter. See Synonyms at break. 2. a. To throw or dash (something) violently so as to shatter or crush. See Synonyms at crush. b. To strike with a heavy blow; batter. 3. Sports. To hit (a ball or shuttlecock) in a forceful overhand stroke. 4. To crush or destroy completely: smashed all resistance. — v. intr. 1. To strike or collide suddenly, noisily, and violently: The car smashed into a tree. 2. To break suddenly into pieces, as from a violent blow or collision. 3. Sports. To hit a ball or shuttlecock in a forceful overhand stroke. 4. To be crushed or destroyed. 5. To go bankrupt. — n.

1. a. The act or sound of smashing. b. The condition of having been smashed. 2. a. Total defeat or destruction; ruin. b. Financial failure; bankruptcy. 3. A collision or crash. 4. a. A drink made of mint, sugar, soda water, and alcoholic liquor, usually brandy. b. A soft drink made of crushed fruit. 5. Sports. A violent overhand stroke, as in tennis or badminton. 6. Informal. A resounding success: The play was a smash on Broadway. — adj. Informal. Of, relating to, or being a resounding success: a smash hit on Broadway. — adv. With a sudden, violent crash. [Probably of imitative origin.] — smash'er n.

smashed (smäsht) adj. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk.

smash-ing (smäsh'ing) adj. 1. Serving to smash: a smashing blow to the head. 2. Informal. Extraordinarily impressive or fine; wonderful: a smashing success.

— smash'ing-ly adv.

smash-up (smäsh'üp') n. 1. A total collapse or defeat. 2. A serious collision between vehicles; a wreck.

smat-ter (smät'tər) v. smat-tered, smat-ter-ing, smat-ters. — v. tr. 1. To speak (a language) without fluency: smatters Russian. 2. To study or approach superficially; dabble in. — v. intr. To prattle: smattered on about her vacation. — n. A smattering. [Middle English smateren, to make dirty, speak foolishly, chatter.] — smat'ter-er n.

smat-ter-ing (smät'tər-ing) n. 1. Superficial or piecemeal knowledge: “a smattering of everything, and a knowledge of nothing” (Charles Dickens). 2. A small, scattered amount or number: a smattering of raindrops.

smaze (smāz) n. A relatively dry atmospheric mixture of smoke and haze. [SM(OKE) + (H)AZE¹.]

smear (smîr) v. smear-ed, smear-ing, smears. — v. tr. 1. a. To spread or daub with a sticky, greasy, or dirty substance. b. To apply by spreading or daubing: smear-ed suntan lotion on my face and arms. 2. To stain by or as if by spreading or daubing with a sticky, greasy, or dirty substance. 3. To stain or attempt to destroy the reputation of; vilify: political enemies who smear-ed his name.

4. Slang. To defeat utterly; smash. — v. intr. To be or become stained or dirtied. — n. 1. A mark made by smearing; a spot or blot. 2. A substance to be spread on a surface. 3. Biology. A sample, as of blood or bacterial cells, spread on a slide for microscopic examination or on the surface of a culture medium. 4. An attempt to destroy a reputation; vilification or slander. [Middle English smeren, to anoint, from Old English smerian.]

smear-case (smîr'kās') n. Pennsylvania. See cottage cheese. See Regional note at gum band. [Pennsylvania Dutch Schmierkees, from German Schmierkäse, a kind of spreadable cheese : schmier-en, to smear (from Middle High German smirwen, from Old High German) + Käse, cheese (from Middle High German kaese, from Old High German kāsi, from Latin cāseus).]

smear test (smîr tĕst) n. See Pap smear.

smear word (smîr wûrd) n. An abusive or disparaging word or phrase directed against a person or group.

smear·y (smîr'ē) adj. smear·i·er, smear·i·est. 1. Having been smeared. 2. Tending to smear or soil. —smear'·i·ness n.

smeg·ma (smĕg'mə) n. A sebaceous secretion, especially the cheesy secretion that collects under the prepuce or around the clitoris. [Latin, detergent, from Greek smĕgma, from smĕkhein, to wash off.]

smell (smĕl) v. smelled or smelt (smĕlt), smell·ing, smells. — v. tr. 1. To perceive the scent of (something) by means of the olfactory nerves. 2. To sense the presence of by or as if by the olfactory nerves; detect or discover: We smelled trouble ahead. The select committee was supposed to smell out corruption in law enforcement. — v. intr. 1. To use the sense of smell; perceive the scent of something. 2. To have or emit an odor: "The breeze smelled exactly like Vouvray—flowery, with a hint of mothballs underneath" (Anne Tyler). 3. To be suggestive; have a touch of something: a cave that smells of terror. 4. To have or emit an unpleasant odor; stink: This closet smells. 5. To appear to be dishonest; suggest evil or corruption. — n. 1. The sense by which odors are perceived; the olfactory sense. 2. That quality of something that may be perceived by the olfactory sense. 3. The act or an instance of smelling. 4. A distinctive enveloping or characterizing quality; an aura or a trace: the smell of success. —idiom. smell a rat. Slang. To suspect that something is wrong. [Middle English smellen.]

SYNONYMS: smell, aroma, odor, scent. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "a quality that can be perceived by the olfactory sense": the smell of gas; the aroma of frying onions; hospital odors; the scent of pine needles.

smell·ing salts (smĕl'ing sôlts) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Any of various preparations of ammonium carbonate and perfume, sniffed as a restorative or stimulant especially to relieve faintness and headache.

smell·y (smĕl'ē) adj. smell·i·er, smell·i·est. Informal. Having a noticeable, usually unpleasant or offensive odor.

smelt¹ (smĕlt) v. smelt·ed, smelt·ing, smelts. — v. tr. To melt or fuse (ores) in order to separate the metallic constituents. — v. intr. To melt or fuse. Used of ores. [Dutch, or Low German smelten from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German; see mel-¹ in Appendix.]

smelt² (smĕlt) n. pl. smelts or smelt. Any of various small silvery marine and freshwater food fishes of the family Osmeridae, found in cold waters of the Northern Hemisphere, especially Osmerus mordax of North America and O. eperlanus of Europe. [Middle English, from Old English. See mel-¹ in Appendix.]

smelt³ (smĕlt) v. A past tense and a past participle of smell.

smelt·er (smĕl'tər) n. 1. a. An apparatus for smelting. b. Also smelt·er·y (smĕl'tə-rē). pl. smelt·er·ies. An establishment for smelting. 2. One who is engaged in the smelting industry.

Sme·ta·na (smĕt'n-ə, smĕ'tä-nä), Bedřich. 1824-1884. Czechoslovakian composer whose works include the opera The Bartered Bride (1866) and the cycle of tone poems My Country (1879).

Smeth·wick (smĕth'ik) A borough of central England, an industrial suburb of Birmingham. Population, 309,900.

smew (smyōō) n. A small Old World merganser (Mergus albellus), the male of which has white and black plumage and a white crest. [Origin unknown.]

Smi·bert (smī'bərt), John. 1688-1751. Scottish-born American painter known for his portraits of colonists and for designing Faneuil Hall in Boston (1742).

smid·gen also smid·geon or smid·gin (smij'ən) n. A very small quantity or portion; a bit or mite: “a smidgen of genius, a sliver of cutting truth” (John Simon). [Probably alteration of dialectal smitch, particle, perhaps ultimately from Middle English smite, perhaps from past participle of smiten, to smite. See SMITE.]

smi·lax (smī'läks') n. 1. See catbrier. 2. A slender vine (Asparagus asparagoides) that has glossy foliage and is popular as a floral decoration. [Latin smilax, bindweed, from Greek smilax.]

smile (smīl) n. 1. A facial expression characterized by an upward curving of the corners of the mouth and indicating pleasure, amusement, or derision. 2. A pleasant or favorable disposition or aspect. — v. smiled, smil·ing, smiles. — v. intr. 1. To have or form a smile. 2. a. To look with favor or approval: Fortune smiled on our efforts. b. To express cheerful acceptance or equanimity: We smiled at the bad weather and kept going. — v. tr. 1. To express with a smile: Grandmother smiled her consent. 2. To effect or accomplish with or as if with a smile. [From Middle English smilen, to smile, probably of Scandinavian origin. See smei- in Appendix.] —smil'er n. —smil'ey, smil'y adj. —smil'ing·ly adv. —smil'ing·ness n.

SYNONYMS: smile, grin, simper, smirk. These nouns denote facial expressions, as those indicating amusement, in which the mouth is curved upward slightly at the corners. Smile is the most general, since it can cover a wide range of feeling, from affection to malice: “She met his eye with her sweet hospitable smile” (Henry James). “Tom saw a smile of contempt pass over the young curate’s features” (Henry Kingsley). A grin is a broad smile that exposes the teeth; often it is a spontaneous expression of mirth, good humor, approval, or triumph: “And he owned with a grin,/That his favorite sin/Is pride that apes humility” (Robert Southey). A simper is a silly, self-conscious, often coy smile: The model looked at her reflection in the mirror with an idiotic simper. A smirk is an affected smile that often expresses an offensive smugness: The old libertine looked with a knowing smirk at the beautiful smi·lo·don (smī'lə-dŏn') n. Any of the large saber-toothed tigers of the genus Smilodon, widely distributed during the Pleistocene Epoch. [New Latin smilodōn : Greek smilē, knife + -ODON.]

smirch (smûrch) v. tr. smirched, smirch-ing, smirch-es. 1. To soil, stain, or dirty with or as if with a smearing agent: “their tough, hostile faces, smirched by the grime and rust” (Henry Roth). 2. To dishonor; defame. — n. Something, such as a blot, smear, or stain, that smirches. [Middle English smorchen.]

smirk (smûrk) v. intr. smirked, smirk-ing, smirks. To smile in an affected, often offensively self-satisfied manner. — n. An affected, often offensively self-satisfied smile. See Synonyms at smile. [Middle English smirken, from Old English smercian, to smile. See smei- in Appendix.] —smirk'er n.

—smirk'ing-ly, smirk'i-ly adv. —smirk'y adj.

smite (smīt) v. smote (smōt), smit-ten (smīt'n) or smote, smit-ing, smites. — v. tr. 1. a. To inflict a heavy blow on, with or as if with the hand, a tool, or a weapon. b. To drive or strike (a weapon, for example) forcefully onto or into something else. 2. To attack, damage, or destroy by or as if by blows. 3. a. To afflict: The population was smitten by the plague. b. To afflict retributively; chasten or chastise. 4. To affect sharply with great feeling: He was smitten by deep remorse. — v. intr. To deal a blow with or as if with the hand or a hand-held weapon. [Middle English smiten, from Old English smītan, to smear.]

—smit'er n.

smith (smīth) n. 1. A metalworker, especially one who works metal when it is hot and malleable. Often used in combination: a silversmith; a goldsmith. 2. A blacksmith. 3. One who makes or works at something specified. Often used in combination: a locksmith; a wordsmith. [Middle English, from Old English.]

Smith (smīth), Adam. 1723-1790. Scottish political economist and philosopher. His Wealth of Nations (1776) laid the foundations of classical free-market economic theory.

Smith (smīth), Alfred Emanuel. Known as “the Happy Warrior.” 1873-1944. American politician. He served as governor of New York (1919-1920 and 1923-1928) and was defeated in the 1928 presidential election by Herbert Hoover.

Smith (smīth), Bessie. 1894?-1937. American singer who became a leading jazz and blues singer in the 1920's and recorded with musicians such as Louis Armstrong and Benny Goodman.

Smith (smīth), Charles Henry. Pen name Bill Arp. 1826-1903. American writer known for his humorous articles and books, including Bill Arp, So Called (1866).

- Smith (smĭth), Gerritt. 1797-1874. American reformer and philanthropist who was active in the prohibition, woman suffrage, prison reform, and abolitionist movements.
- Smith (smĭth), Hamilton Othanel. Born 1931. American microbiologist. He shared a 1978 Nobel Prize for the discovery of restriction enzymes and their application to molecular genetics.
- Smith (smĭth), Hannah Whitall. 1832-1911. American evangelist, writer, and reformer who was a founder of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union (1874).
- Smith (smĭth), Ian. Born 1919. Zimbabwean politician who unilaterally declared independence from Great Britain for the former colony of Rhodesia in 1965.
- Smith (smĭth), Jedediah Strong. 1799-1831. American trader and explorer who opened a number of trade routes throughout the West.
- Smith (smĭth), John. 1580?-1631. English colonist, explorer, and writer whose maps and accounts of his explorations in Virginia and New England were invaluable to later explorers and colonists.
- Smith (smĭth), Joseph. 1805-1844. American religious leader. He founded (1830) the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and led his congregation westward from New York State to western Illinois, where he was murdered by an anti-Mormon mob.
- Smith (smĭth), Julia Evelina. 1792-1886. American suffragist. With her sister Abby Hadassah Smith (1797-1878) she became famous for refusing to pay taxes until she could vote.
- Smith (smĭth), Kathryn Elizabeth. Known as "Kate." 1909-1986. American singer noted especially for her rendition of Irving Berlin's "God Bless America," first performed in 1938.
- Smith (smĭth), Margaret Chase. Born 1897. American politician who served as a U.S. representative (1940-1949) and senator (1949-1973) from Maine.
- Smith (smĭth), Samuel. 1752-1839. American Revolutionary soldier and politician. He was a U.S. representative (1793-1803 and 1816-1822) and senator (1803-1815 and 1835-1838) from Maryland.
- Smith (smĭth), Sophia. 1796-1870. American educational philanthropist. Her fortune was bequeathed for the establishment of Smith College (opened 1875).
- Smith (smĭth), Sydney. 1771-1845. British religious leader and writer known for his witty polemics, especially his defense of the political emancipation of Catholics in England.
- Smith (smĭth), Walter Bedell. 1895-1961. American army officer who served as chief of staff to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower (1942-1946), ambassador to the Soviet Union (1946-1949), and director of the Central Intelligence Agency (1950-1953).

Smith (smĭth), Walter Wellesley. Known as “Red.” 1905-1982. American sportswriter. After 1954 he was the most widely syndicated columnist in the country.

smith·er·eens (smĭth'ə-rēnz') pl.n. Informal. Fragments or splintered pieces; bits: The fragile dish broke into smithereens. [From Irish Gaelic smidirġn, diminutive of smiodar, small fragment.]

smith·er·y (smĭth'ə-rē) n. pl. smith·er·ies. 1. The occupation or craft of a smith. 2. See smithy.

Smith·son (smĭth'sən), James. 1765-1829. British chemist, mineralogist, and philanthropist. His gift to the United States helped establish (1846) the Smithsonian Institution.

smith·son·ite (smĭth'sə-nĭt') n. A mineral, ZnCO₃, sometimes used as a source of zinc. [After James SMITHSON.]

Smith·town (smĭth'toun') A community of southeast New York on northern Long Island north of Islip. It is mainly residential. Population, 25,638.

smith·y (smĭth'ē, smĭth'ē) n. pl. smith·ies. A blacksmith's shop; a forge. Also called smithery [Middle English, from Old Norse smidhja.]

smit·ten (smĭt'n) v. A past participle of smite.

SMN abbr. Seaman.

smock (smŏk) n. A loose coatlike outer garment, often worn to protect the clothes while working. — v. tr. smocked, smock·ing, smocks. 1. To clothe in a smock. 2. To decorate (fabric) with smocking. [Middle English, woman's undergarment, from Old English smoc.]

smock·ing (smŏk'ing) n. Needlework decoration of small, regularly spaced gathers stitched into a honeycomb pattern.

smog (smŏg, smŏg) n. 1. Fog that has become mixed and polluted with smoke. 2. A form of air pollution produced when sunlight causes hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides from automotive emissions to combine in a photochemical reaction. [SM(OKE) + (F)OG¹.] —smog'gy adj. —smog'less adj.

WORD HISTORY: Smog is so much a part of modern, industrialized life that it is difficult to realize that at one time neither smog nor the word for it existed. The word, of course, followed the phenomenon perhaps by half a century, for air pollution was noticed during the Industrial Revolution. The word smog is first recorded in 1905 in a newspaper report of a meeting of the Public Health Congress. Dr. H.A. des Vœux gave a paper entitled “Fog and Smoke,” in which, in the words of the Daily Graphic of July 26, “he said it required no science to see that there was something produced in great cities which was not found in the country, and that was smoky fog, or what was known as ‘smog.’” The next day the Globe remarked that “Dr. des Vœux did a public service in coining a new word for the London fog.” Since Dr. des Vœux’s creation of this blend, much more has been learned about the composition of smog; unfortunately, it is still with us.

smoke (smōk) n. 1. The vaporous system made up of small particles of carbonaceous matter in the air, resulting mainly from the burning of organic material, such as wood or coal. 2. A suspension of fine solid or liquid particles in a gaseous medium. 3. A cloud of fine particles. 4. Something insubstantial, unreal, or transitory. 5. a. The act of smoking a form of tobacco: went out for a smoke. b. The duration of this act. 6. Informal. Tobacco in a form that can be smoked, especially a cigarette: money to buy smokes. 7. A substance used in warfare to produce a smoke screen. 8. Something used to conceal or obscure. 9. Color. A pale to grayish blue to bluish or dark gray. — v. smoked, smok-ing, smokes. — v. intr. 1. a. To draw in and exhale smoke from a cigarette, cigar, or pipe: It's forbidden to smoke here. b. To engage in smoking regularly or habitually: He smoked for years before stopping. 2. To emit smoke or a smokelike substance: chimneys smoking in the cold air. 3. To emit smoke excessively: The station wagon smoked even after the tune-up. 4. Slang. a. To go or proceed at high speed. b. To play or perform energetically: The band was really smoking in the second set. — v. tr. 1. a. To draw in and exhale the smoke of (tobacco, for example): I've never smoked a panatela. b. To do so regularly or habitually: I used to smoke filtered cigarettes. 2. To preserve (meat or fish) by exposure to the aromatic smoke of burning hardwood, usually after pickling in salt or brine.

3. a. To fumigate (a house, for example). b. To expose (animals, especially insects) to smoke in order to immobilize or drive away. 4. To expose (glass) to smoke in order to darken or change its color. 5. Slang. To kill; murder.

—phrasal verb. smoke out. 1. To force out of a place of hiding or concealment by or as if by the use of smoke. 2. To detect and bring to public view; expose or reveal: smoke out a scandal. [Middle English, from Old English smoca.] smoke bomb (smōk böm) n. A bomb designed to give out thick smoke upon exploding, used especially to mark a target or to create a smoke screen.

—smok'a-ble, smoke'a-ble adj.

smoke detector (smōk dĩ-těk'tər) n. An alarm device that automatically detects the presence of smoke.

smoke-filled room (smōk'fild' rōōm) n. 1. A room filled with smoke, especially tobacco smoke. 2. A place, especially a hotel room near a political or business convention, where a group of influential people gather to negotiate or make deals in private: Many party members were tired of having nominations decided in smoke-filled rooms.

smoke-house (smōk'hous') n. A structure in which meat or fish is cured with smoke.

smoke-jump-er (smōk'jüm'pər) n. A firefighter who drops by parachute into a forest fire.

- smoke-less (smōk'lis) adj. 1. Emitting or containing little or no smoke: smokeless factory stacks. 2. Free from the use of smoking tobacco or from the smoke generated by such use: a smokeless society; a smokeless office setting.
- smokeless powder (smōk'lis pou'dər) n. A relatively smoke-free propellant charge composed mainly of nitrocellulose, used in projectiles and small artillery rockets.
- smokeless tobacco (smōk'lis tə-bāk'ō) n. 1. Tobacco cut for chewing. 2. See snuff³ (n., sense 1a).
- smok·er (smō'kər) n. 1. One who smokes tobacco. 2. A device, such as a stove, that emits smoke. 3. A smoking car. 4. An informal social gathering for men.
- smok·er's cough (smō'kərz kōf) n. A rough, dry cough caused by excessive smoking of tobacco.
- smoke screen or smoke-screen (smōk'skrēn') n. 1. A mass of dense artificial smoke used to conceal military areas or operations from an enemy. 2. An action or a statement used to conceal actual plans or intentions.
- smoke-stack (smōk'stāk') n. A large chimney or vertical pipe through which combustion vapors, gases, and smoke are discharged. — adj. Of, relating to, or being firms, industries, or places involved in heavy manufacturing or in the processing of materials: smokestack industries such as steel and iron.
- smoke tree (smōk trē) n. Either of two deciduous plants, Cotinus obovatus, a tree of the southern United States, or C. coggygria, a shrub of Eurasia, having plumelike clusters of small yellowish flowers. [From the resemblance of the flower clusters to puffs of smoke.]
- Smok·ey (smō'kē) n. Slang. A law-enforcement officer on highway patrol. [From the resemblance of some state troopers' hats to that of Smokey the Bear, an animal who formerly warned against fires in U.S. Forest Service posters.]
- smok·ing (smō'kɪŋ) adj. 1. Engaging in the smoking of tobacco: smoking passengers. 2. Designated or reserved for smokers: the smoking section of a restaurant. 3. Of or relating to the use of tobacco: corporate smoking policies.
- smoking car (smō'kɪŋ kār) n. A railroad car in which smoking is allowed; a smoker.
- smoking gun (smō'kɪŋ gʌn) n. Informal. Something that serves as indisputable evidence or proof, especially of a crime: "There is no smoking gun or paper trail to [the CIA]" (Thomas Polgar).
- smoking jacket (smō'kɪŋ jāk'ɪt) n. A man's evening jacket, often made of a fine fabric, elaborately trimmed, and usually worn at home.
- smoking room (smō'kɪŋ rōm) n. A room, as in a hotel or private club, set aside for smokers.
- smok·ing-room (smō'kɪŋ-rōm', -rōm') adj. Marked by indecency; obscene: smoking-room humor.

smok·y (smō'kē) adj. smok·i·er, smok·i·est. 1. Emitting smoke in profuse volume: a smoky stove. 2. Mixed or filled with smoke: smoky corridors. 3. Resembling smoke: a smoky haze. 4. Discolored or soiled with or as if with smoke: "The smoky Sicilian afternoon sun tinged the green landscape with red" (Mario Puzo). 5. Tasting of smoke: smoky sausages. —smok'i·ly adv.
—smok'i·ness n.

Smok·y Hill River (smō'kē hīl rīv'ər) A river rising in eastern Colorado and flowing about 901 km (560 mi) eastward across central Kansas to join the Republican River and form the Kansas River.

smoky quartz (smō'kē kwôrts) n. A transparent or semitransparent brown or gray to nearly black variety of quartz, used as a gemstone. Also called clairngorm

Smoky River (smō'kē rīv'ər) A river, about 402 km (250 mi) long, of west-central Alberta, Canada, flowing generally northward to the Peace River.

smol·der also smoul·der (smōl'dər) v. intr. smol·dered, smol·der·ing, smol·ders. 1. To burn with little smoke and no flame. 2. To exist in a suppressed state: Revolution smoldered in the masses. 3. To show signs of repressed anger or hatred. — n. Thick smoke resulting from a slow fire. [Middle English smolderen, to suffocate, from smolder, smoke, probably alteration of smorther, from Old English smorian, to smoke.]

Smolensk (smō-lěnsk', smə-) A city of western Russia on the Dnieper River west-southwest of Moscow. First mentioned in the ninth century, it was burned by Napoleon's troops in 1812. Population, 331,000.

Smol·lett (smōl'it), Tobias George. 1721-1771. British writer known for his adventure novels, such as Roderick Random (1748) and Peregrine Pickle (1751).

smolt (smōlt) n. A young salmon at the stage intermediate between the parr and the grilse, when it becomes covered with silvery scales and first migrates from fresh water to the sea. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin smoltus, probably of Old English origin.]

smooch (smōoch) Slang. n. A kiss. — v. intr. smooched, smooch·ing, smooch·es. To kiss. [Alteration of English dialectal smouch, perhaps imitative of the sound of a kiss.]

smooth (smōoth) adj. smooth·er, smooth·est. 1. Having a surface free from irregularities, roughness, or projections; even. See Synonyms at level. 2. Having a fine texture: a smooth fabric. 3. Having an even consistency: a smooth pudding. 4. Having an even or gentle motion or movement: a smooth ride. 5. Having no obstructions or difficulties: a smooth operation. See Synonyms at easy. 6. Serene: a smooth temperament. 7. Bland: a smooth wine. 8. Ingratiously polite and agreeable. See Synonyms at suave. 9. Having no grossness or coarseness in dress or manner. — v. smoothed, smooth·ing, smoothes. — v. tr. 1. To make (something) even, level, or unwrinkled. 2. To rid of obstructions, hindrances, or difficulties. 3. To soothe or tranquilize; make calm. 4. To make less harsh or crude; refine. — v. intr. To become smooth.

— n. 1. The act of smoothing. 2. A smooth surface or part. [Middle English smothe, from Old English smōth.] —smooth'er n. —smooth'ly adv.

—smooth'ness n.

smooth-bore also smooth bore (smōōth'bôr', -bōr') adj. Having no rifling within the barrel. Used of a firearm. — n. A firearm having no rifling.

smooth breathing (smōōth brē'thĭng) n. 1. The symbol (ʹ) written over some initial vowels and diphthongs in ancient Greek to indicate that a word does not begin with the sound (h). 2. In ancient Greek, an initial vowel or diphthong not preceded by the sound (h).

smooth collie (smōōth kōl'ē) n. A collie similar to the rough collie but having a short, dense, flat coat.

smooth dogfish (smōōth dōg'fĭsh') n. Any of several dogfishes lacking a spine in front of the dorsal fin, especially a species (Mustelus canis) found abundantly on the American Atlantic coast and often used in classrooms for dissection and study.

smooth-en (smōō'thən) v. tr. intr. smooth-ened, smooth-en-ing, smooth-ens. To make or become smooth.

smooth fox terrier (smōōth fōks tēr'ē-ər) n. A small fox terrier of a breed developed in England, having a smooth white coat with patches of black or tan.

smooth hound (smōōth hound) n. Any dogfish of the genus Mustelus, especially a smooth dogfish (M. mustelus) of southern Europe, found occasionally in American Atlantic waters.

smooth-ie also smooth-y (smōō'thē) n. pl. smooth-ies. Slang. 1. A person regarded as being assured and artfully ingratiating in manner. 2. A smooth-tongued person.

smooth muscle (smōōth müs'əl) n. Muscle tissue that contracts without conscious control, having the form of thin layers or sheets made up of spindle-shaped, unstriated cells with single nuclei and found in the walls of the internal organs, such as the stomach, intestine, bladder, and blood vessels, excluding the heart.

smooth-tongued (smōōth'tŭngd') adj. Speaking or spoken in an artfully suave manner; ingratiating. See Synonyms at glib.

smooth-y (smōō'thē) n. Slang. Variant of smoothie.

smor-gas-bord (smôr'gæs-bōrd', -bōrd') n. 1. A buffet meal featuring a varied number of dishes. 2. A varied collection: “a smorgasbord of fashionable paranormal beliefs” (Martin Gardner). [Swedish smörgåsbord: smörgås, bread and butter (smör, butter from Old Norse + Swedish dialectal gås, lump of butter from Old Norse gās, goose); see GOSLING + bord, table (from Old Norse bordh).]

smote (smōt) v. Past tense and a past participle of smite.

smoth·er (smūth'ər) v. smoth·ered, smoth·er·ing, smoth·ers. — v. tr.
1. a. To suffocate (another). b. To deprive (a fire) of the oxygen necessary for combustion. 2. To conceal, suppress, or hide: Management smothered the true facts of the case. We smothered our indignation and pressed onward. 3. To cover (a foodstuff) thickly with another foodstuff: smother chicken in sauce. 4. To lavish a surfeit of a given emotion on (someone): The grandparents smothered the child with affection. — v. intr. 1. a. To suffocate. b. To be extinguished. 2. To be concealed or suppressed. 3. To be surfeited with an emotion. — n. Something, such as a dense cloud of smoke or dust, that smothers or tends to smother. [Middle English smotheren, from smother, dense smoke. See SMOLDER.]

smoth·er·y (smūth'ə-rē) adj. Upper Southern U.S. Confined. Used of a place: "Other places do seem so cramped up and smothery, but a raft don't" (Mark Twain).

smoul·der (smōl'dər) v. & n. Variant of smolder.

SMSA abbr. Standard metropolitan statistical area.

S.M.Sgt. or SMSGT abbr. Senior master sergeant.

smudge (smŭj) v. smudged, smudg·ing, smudg·es. — v. tr. 1. To make dirty, especially in one small area. 2. To smear or blur (something). 3. To fill (an orchard or another planted area) with dense smoke from a smudge pot in order to prevent damage from insects or frost. — v. intr. 1. To smear something as with dirt, soot, or ink. 2. To become smudged: Photo negatives smudge easily. — n. 1. A blotch or smear. 2. A smoky fire used as a protection against insects or frost. [Middle English smogen.] —smudg'i·ly adv. —smudg'i·ness n. —smudg'y adj.

smudge pot (smŭj pŏt) n. A receptacle in which oil or another smoky fuel is burned to protect an orchard from insects or frost.

smug (smŭg) adj. smug·ger, smug·gest. Exhibiting or feeling great or offensive satisfaction with oneself or with one's situation; self-righteously complacent: "the smug look of a toad breakfasting on fat marsh flies" (William Pearson). [Perhaps akin to Low German smuck, neat, from Middle Low German, from smucken, to adorn.] —smug'ly adv. —smug'ness n.

smug·gle (smŭg'əl) v. smug·gled, smug·gling, smug·gles. — v. tr. 1. To import or export without paying lawful customs charges or duties. 2. To bring in or take out illicitly or by stealth. — v. intr. To engage in smuggling. [Probably Low German smukkeln, smuggeln, or Middle Dutch smokkelen.] —smug'gler n.

smut (smüt) n. 1. a. A particle of dirt. b. A smudge made by soot, smoke, or dirt. 2. a. Obscenity in speech or writing. b. Pornography. 3. a. Any of various plant diseases, especially of cereal grasses, caused by parasitic fungi of the order Ustilaginales that form black, powdery masses of spores on the affected parts. b. A fungus causing such a disease. — v. smut·ted, smut·ting, smuts. — v. tr. 1. To blacken or smudge, as with smoke or grime. 2. To affect (a plant) with smut. 3. To free (grain, for example) from smut. 4. To make obscene. — v. intr. 1. To emit smut. 2. To be or become blackened or smudged. 3. To become affected with smut, as a plant. [From Middle English smotten, smutten, to defile.] —smut'ti-ly adv. —smut'ti-ness n. —smut'ty adj.

smutch (smüch) v. tr. smutched, smutch-ing, smutch-es. To soil or stain. — n. A stain or spot of dirt. [Perhaps alteration of SMUDGE.] —smutch'y adj.

Smuts (smüts, smœts), Jan Christiaan. 1870-1950. South African soldier and politician. He was a Boer commander in the South African War (1899-1902) and prime minister of the Union of South Africa (1919-1924 and 1939-1948).

SMV abbr. Slow-moving vehicle.

Smyrna (smûr'nə) 1. A city of northwest Georgia, a residential suburb of Atlanta. Population, 30,981. 2. See Izmir.

Smyth (smïth, smïth), Dame Ethel Mary. 1858-1944. British composer and writer whose March of the Women (1911) served as an anthem for the suffrage movement in England.

Sn The symbol for the element tin (n., sense 1). [From Late Latin stannum, tin. See STANNIC.]

s.n. abbr. Latin. Sine nomine (without name).

snack (snäk) n. 1. A hurried or light meal. 2. Food eaten between meals. — v. intr. snacked, snack-ing, snacks. To eat a hurried or light meal. [Middle English snak, variant of snacche, trap, bite, from snacchen, to snap. See SNATCH.] —snack'er n.

snack bar (snäk bär) n. A lunch counter or small restaurant where light meals are served.

snaf·fle (snäf'əl) n. A bit for a horse, consisting of two bars jointed at the center. — v. tr. snaf·fled, snaf·fling, snaf·fles. To put on or control with a snaffle. [Origin unknown.]

sna·fu (snä-fōō') Slang. n. pl. sna·fus. A chaotic or confused situation. — adj. In a state of confusion or chaos. — v. tr. sna·fued, sna·fu-ing, sna·fus. To make confused or chaotic. [s(ituation) n(ormal), a(ll) f(ucked) u(p).] snag (snäg) n. 1. A rough, sharp, or jagged protuberance, as: a. A tree or a part of a tree that protrudes above the surface in a body of water. Also called sawyer See Regional note at preacher. b. A snaggletooth. 2. A break, pull, or tear in fabric. 3. An unforeseen or hidden obstacle. See Synonyms at obstacle. 4. A short or imperfectly developed branch of a deer's antler. — v. snagged, snag-ging, snags. — v. tr. 1. To tear, break, hinder, or destroy by or as if by a snag: snagged a stocking on a splinter. 2. Informal. To catch unexpectedly and quickly: snagged a bargain. 3. To free of snags: snagged the river. 4. Missouri. To catch (fish): "We violate all speed limits... to catch the opening of the annual paddlefish snagging season" (John Hoey). — v. intr. To be damaged by a snag: His sweater snagged on a tree branch. [Of Scandinavian origin.] —snag'gy adj.

snag-gle-tooth (snäg'əl-tōōth') n. A tooth that is broken or not in alignment with the others. [From SNAG + TOOTH.] — snag-gle-toothed' adj.

snail (snāl) n. 1. Any of numerous aquatic or terrestrial mollusks of the class Gastropoda, typically having a spirally coiled shell, broad retractile foot, and distinct head. 2. A slow-moving, lazy, or sluggish person. [Middle English, from Old English snægl.]

snail bore (snāl bôr) n. A gastropod mollusk (Urosalpinx cinerea) that injures oysters by boring into their shells.

snail darter (snāl dār'tər) n. A small snail-eating darter (Percina tanasi) that formerly was found only in the Little Tennessee River. It was thought to have become extinct after construction of a dam, but later was discovered in several other Tennessee streams.

snail fever (snāl fē'vər) n. See schistosomiasis.

snail kite (snāl kīt) n. A kite (Rostrhamus sociabilis) of the warm parts of North and South America that usually travels in small flocks preying on snails.

snail-paced (snāl'pāst') adj. Moving with extreme slowness.

snake (snāk) n. 1. Any of numerous scaly, legless, sometimes venomous reptiles of the suborder Serpentes or Ophidia (order Squamata), having a long, tapering, cylindrical body and found in most tropical and temperate regions. 2. A treacherous person. Also called snake in the grass 3. A long, highly flexible metal wire or coil used for cleaning drains. Also called plumber's snake 4. Economics. A fixing of the value of currencies to each other within defined parameters, which when graphed visually shows these currencies remaining parallel in value to each other as a unit despite fluctuations with other currencies. — v. snaked, snak-ing, snakes. — v. tr. 1. To drag or pull lengthwise, especially to drag with a rope or chain. 2. To pull with quick jerks. 3. To move in a sinuous or gliding manner: tried to snake the rope along the ledge. — v. intr. To move with a sinuous motion: The river snakes through the valley. [Middle English, from Old English snaca.]

Snake¹ (snāk) n. pl. Snake or Snakes. See Shoshone (n., sense 1a).

Snake² (snāk) n. See Hydra (n., sense 2).

snake-bird (snāk'bûrd') n. See anhinga.

snake-bite (snāk'bīt') n. 1. The bite of a snake. 2. Poisoning resulting from the bite of a venomous snake.

snake charmer (snāk chär'mər) n. One who uses rhythmic music and body movements to control snakes.

snake dance (snāk dāns) n. 1. A ceremonial dance of the Hopi in which the dancers traditionally carry live snakes in their mouths. 2. A procession of people who join hands and move forward in a zigzag line.

snake doctor (snāk dōk'tər) n. 1. Chiefly Southern U.S. See dragonfly. See Regional note at dragonfly. 2. See hellgrammite.

snake eggplant (snāk ěg'plānt') n. A variety of eggplant having long, slender fruits that are curled at one end.

snake eyes (snāk ĭz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Games. A throw of two dice that turns up one spot on each.

snake feeder (snāk fē'dər) n. Midland U.S. See dragonfly. See Regional note at dragonfly.

snake fence (snāk fĕns) n. See worm fence.

snake·fish (snāk'fish') n. pl. snakefish or snake·fish·es. Any of several fishes having some resemblance to a snake, especially the lizardfish Trachinocephalus myops of the eastern Atlantic and western Pacific.

snake·head (snāk'hĕd') n. Botany. See turtlehead.

snake in the grass (snāk ĭn thĕ grās) n. pl. snakes in the grass. See snake (n., sense 2).

snake·mouth (snāk'mouth') n. A North American orchid (Pogonia ophioglossoides) having a solitary rose-purple flower with a fringed lip.

snake oil (snāk oil) n. 1. A worthless preparation fraudulently peddled as a cure for many ills. 2. Speech or writing intended to deceive; humbug.

snake pit (snāk pĭt) n. Slang. 1. A place of disorder and chaos. 2. A mental health facility.

snake plant (snāk plānt) n. A stemless plant (Sansevieria trifasciata) having narrow, rigid, often mottled leaves and widely cultivated as a houseplant.

Snake River (snāk rĭv'ər) A river of the northwest United States rising in northwest Wyoming and flowing about 1,670 km (1,038 mi) through southern Idaho, along the Oregon-Idaho and Idaho-Washington borders, and through southeast Washington to the Columbia River. Discovered in 1805 by the Lewis and Clark expedition, the river has spectacular deep gorges and is an important source of hydroelectric power.

snake·root (snāk'rōōt', -rōōt') n. Any of various plants, such as black cohosh, rattlesnake master, sanicle, or wild ginger, having roots reputed to cure snakebite.

snake·skin (snāk'skĭn') n. The skin of a snake, especially when prepared as leather.

snake·stone (snāk'stōn') n. 1. A small stone or piece of porous substance reputed to cure snakebite. 2. See whetstone.

snake·weed (snāk'wĕd') n. Any of various plants, such as bistort, reputed to have the power to cure snakebite.

snak·y (snā'kĕ) adj. snak·i·er, snak·i·est. 1. Relating to or characteristic of snakes. 2. Having the form or movement of a snake; serpentine. 3. Overrun with snakes. 4. Treacherous; sly. —snak'i·ly adv. —snak'i·ness n.

snap (snāp) v. snapped, snap·ping, snaps. — v. intr. 1. To make a brisk, sharp cracking sound: “Logs snapped in the grate” (James Fox). 2. To break suddenly with a brisk, sharp, cracking sound. 3. a. To give way abruptly under pressure or tension: With so many people crowding onto the platform, its supports snapped. b. To suffer a physical or mental breakdown, especially while under stress: feared that the troops would snap from constant fatigue. 4. To bring the jaws briskly together, often with a clicking sound; bite. 5. To snatch or grasp suddenly and with eagerness: snap at a chance to go to China. 6. To speak abruptly or sharply: snapped at the child. 7. To move swiftly and smartly: snap to attention. See Synonyms at jerk¹. 8. To flash or appear to flash light; sparkle: eyes that snapped with anger. 9. To open, close, or fit together with a click: The lock snapped shut. The jacket snaps in front. — v. tr. 1. To snatch at with or as if with the teeth; bite. 2. To pull apart or break with a snapping sound. 3. To utter abruptly or sharply: The sergeant snapped out a command. 4. a. To cause to emit a snapping sound: snap a whip. b. To close or latch with a snapping sound: snapped the purse shut. 5. To cause to move abruptly and smartly: “His head was snapped back by a sudden scream from the bed” (James Michener). 6. a. To take (a photograph). b. To photograph: snapped the governor as she was getting into her car. 7. Football. To center (a football); hike. — n. 1. A sudden, sharp cracking sound or the action producing such a sound. 2. A sudden breaking. 3. A clasp, catch, or other fastening device that operates with a snapping sound. 4. A sudden attempt to bite, snatch, or grasp. 5. a. The sound produced by rapid movement of a finger from the thumb tip to the base of the thumb. b. The act of producing this sound. 6. The sudden release of something held under pressure or tension. 7. A thin, crisp, usually circular cookie: a ginger snap. 8. a. Capacity to make a snapping sound; elasticity: This waistband has lost its snap.

b. Informal. Briskness, liveliness, or energy. 9. A brief spell of brisk, cold weather. 10. Something accomplished without effort. See Synonyms at breeze¹. 11. a. A snapshot. b. The taking of a snapshot. 12. A snap bean. 13. Football. The passing of a football from the center to a back that initiates each play. Also called hike — adj. 1. Made or done suddenly, with little or no preparation: a snap decision. 2. Fastening with a snap: snap pockets. 3. Informal. Simple; easy: a snap assignment. — adv. With a snap. — phrasal verbs. snap back. To recover quickly. snap up. To acquire quickly: snapped up the introductory offer. — idiom. snap out of it. Informal. To move quickly back to one’s normal condition from an undesirable condition, such as depression, grief, or self-pity. [Probably from Middle English snappe, a quick bite, probably from Middle Low German, or Middle Dutch snappen, to seize, snap.]

snap bean (snăp bēn) n. A string bean cultivated for its crisp, edible pods.

snap-brim (snăp’brīm’) n. A hat having a flexible brim, usually turned down in front and up at the back.

snap-drag-on (snăp’drăg’ən) n. Any of several plants of the genus Antirrhinum, especially the widely cultivated Mediterranean herb A. majus, having showy racemes of two-lipped, variously colored flowers. [From the imagined resemblance of the flowers to the mouth of a dragon.]

snapper (snăp'ər) n. 1. One that snaps. 2. pl. snapper or snappers. Any of numerous widely distributed marine fishes of the family Lutjanidae (or Lutjanidae), many of which are prized as food fishes, that are found chiefly in warm coastal waters of the Pacific and Atlantic. 3. A snapping turtle. 4. See schnapper.

snapping beetle (snăp'ŭng bēt'l) n. See click beetle.

snapping turtle (snăp'ŭng tūr'tl) n. Any of several large freshwater turtles of the family Chelydridae of North, Central, and northern South America, having a rough shell and powerful hooked jaws that close with a snap, especially the common North American species Chelydra serpentina and the alligator snapping turtle of the south-central United States.

snappy (snăp'ŭsh) adj. 1. Likely to snap or bite: a snappy mongrel.

2. Irritable and curt: a snappy tone of voice; a snappy debating partner.

—snappy adv. —snappiness n.

snappy (snăp'ē) adj. snappy, snappier, snappiest. 1. Informal. Lively or energetic; brisk. 2. Informal. Smart or chic. 3. Snappy: a snappy retort.

—snappily adv. —snappiness n.

snarl (snăp rōl) n. An aerial maneuver in which an aircraft is put through a sharp roll of 360° about its longitudinal axis.

snapsnap (snăp'shōt') v. tr. snapsnap (-shōt'), snapsnaping, snapsnaps. To take a snapshot of. —snapsnaper n.

snapsnap (snăp'shōt') n. 1. A photograph taken with a small hand-held camera. 2. An isolated observation: a sociopolitical snapshot of the electorate.

snare¹ (snâr) n. 1. A trapping device, often consisting of a noose, used for capturing birds and small mammals. 2. Something that serves to entangle the unwary. 3. A surgical instrument with a wire loop controlled by a mechanism in the handle, used to remove growths, such as tumors and polyps. — v. tr.

snared, snaring, snarers. To trap with or as if with a snare. See Synonyms at catch. [Middle English, from Old English snearu, and from Old Norse snara.]

—snarer n.

snare² (snâr) n. Music. 1. Any of the wires or cords stretched across the lower skin of a snare drum to increase reverberation. 2. A snare drum. [Probably from Dutch snaar, string, from Middle Dutch snāre.]

snare drum (snâr drŭm) n. Music. A small double-headed drum having one or more wires or cords stretched across the bottom head to increase reverberation.

Also called side drum snarl¹ (snărl) v. snarled, snarling, snarls. — v. intr. 1. To growl viciously while baring the teeth. 2. To speak angrily or threateningly. — v. tr. To utter with anger or hostility: snarled a retort. — n. 1. A vicious growl. 2. A vicious, hostile utterance. [Frequentative of obsolete snar, perhaps from Dutch, or Low German snarren, to rattle probably of imitative origin.] —snarl'er n.

—snarl'ing-ly adv. —snarl'y adj.

snarl² (snärl) n. 1. A tangled mass, as of hair or yarn. 2. A confused, complicated, or tangled situation; a predicament. — v. snarled, snarl-ing, snarls. — v. intr. To become tangled or confused. — v. tr. 1. To tangle or knot (hair, for example). 2. To confuse; complicate. [Middle English snarle, trap, probably diminutive of snare. See SNARE¹.] —snarl'er n. —snarl'y adj.

snatch (snäch) v. snatched, snatch-ing, snatch-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To grasp or seize hastily, eagerly, or suddenly. b. Sports. To raise (a weight) in one quick, uninterrupted motion from the floor to a position over the lifter's head. 2. To grasp or seize illicitly. — v. intr. To make grasping or seizing motions: snatched at the lamp cord. — n. 1. The act of snatching; a quick grasp or grab. 2. A brief period of time: "At the end we preferred to travel all night,/Sleeping in snatches" (T.S. Eliot). 3. A small amount; a bit or fragment: a snatch of dialogue. 4. Slang. A kidnapping. 5. Sports. A lift in weightlifting in which the weight is raised in one uninterrupted motion from the floor to a position over the lifter's head. [Middle English snacchen.] —snatch'er n.

snatch block (snäch blök) n. Nautical. A block that can be opened on one side to receive the looped part of a rope.

snatch-y (snäch'ē) adj. snatch-i-er, snatch-i-est. Occurring in snatches; intermittent: a snatchy conversation.

snaz-zy (snäz'ē) adj. snaz-zi-er, snaz-zi-est. Slang. Fashionable or flashy. [Origin unknown.] —snaz'zi-ness n.

SNCC abbr. Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

Snead (snēd), Samuel Jackson. Known as "Sam." Born 1912. American golfer who won three Professional Golfers' Association championships (1942, 1949, and 1951) and three Masters tournaments (1949, 1952, and 1954).

sneak (snēk) v. sneaked also snuck (snük), sneak-ing, sneaks. — v. intr. 1. To go or move in a quiet, stealthy way. 2. To behave in a cowardly or servile manner. — v. tr. To move, give, take, or put in a quiet, stealthy manner: sneak candy into one's mouth; sneaked a look at the grade sheet. — n. 1. A person regarded as stealthy, cowardly, or underhand. 2. An instance of sneaking; a quiet, stealthy movement. 3. Informal. A sneaker. — adj. 1. Carried out in a clandestine manner: sneak preparations for war. 2. Perpetrated without warning: a sneak attack by terrorists. [Probably akin to Middle English sniken, to creep, from Old English snīcan.]

USAGE NOTE: Snuck is an Americanism first introduced in the 19th century as a nonstandard regional variant of sneaked. But widespread use of snuck has become more common with every generation. It is now used by educated speakers in all regions, and there is some evidence to suggest that it is more frequent among younger speakers than sneaked is. Formal written English is naturally and properly more conservative than other varieties, of course, and here snuck still meets with much resistance. Many writers and editors have a lingering unease about the form, particularly if they recall its nonstandard origins. In fact, our consolidated citations, exhibiting almost 10,000 instances of sneaked and snuck, indicate that sneaked is preferred by a factor of 7 to 2. And 67 percent of the Usage Panel disapproves of snuck. Nevertheless, in recent years snuck has been quietly establishing itself in formal writing. An electronic search of a wide range of reputable publications turns up hundreds of citations for snuck, not just in sports writing but in news columns and commentary: “He ran up huge hotel bills and then snuck out without paying” (George Stade). “In the dressing room beforehand, while the NBC technician was making me up, Jesse Jackson snuck up behind me and began playfully powdering my face” (Bruce Babbitt). “Raisa Gorbachev snuck away yesterday afternoon for a 65-minute helter-skelter tour of San Francisco” (San Francisco Chronicle). “The Reagan administration snuck in some illegal military assistance before that” (New Republic). Our citation files also contain a number of occurrences of snuck in serious fiction: “He had snuck away from camp with a cabinmate” (Anne Tyler). “I ducked down behind the paperbacks and snuck out” (Garrison Keillor).

sneak·er (snē'kər) n. A sports shoe usually made of canvas and having soft rubber soles. Also called tennis shoe sneak·ing (snē'kɪŋ) adj. 1. Acting in a stealthy, furtive way. 2. Unavowed; secret. 3. Gradually growing or persistent: a sneaking hunch. —sneak'ing·ly adv.

sneak preview (snēk prē'vyōō') n. A single public showing of a movie before its general release.

sneak thief (snēk thēf) n. One who steals without breaking into buildings or using violence.

sneak·y (snē'kē) adj. sneak·i·er, sneak·i·est. Furtive; surreptitious. —sneak'i·ly adv. —sneak'i·ness n.

sneer (snîr) n. 1. A scornful facial expression characterized by a slight raising of one corner of the upper lip. 2. A contemptuous facial expression, sound, or statement. — v. sneered, sneer·ing, sneers. — v. tr. To utter with a sneer or in a sneering manner. — v. intr. 1. To assume a scornful, contemptuous, or derisive facial expression. 2. To speak in a scornful, contemptuous, or derisive manner. [From Middle English sneren, to mock, alteration of Old English fnāeran, to breathe heavily. See pneu- in Appendix.] —sneer'er n. —sneer'·ful, sneer'y adj. —sneer'ing·ly adv.

sneeze (snēz) v. intr. sneezed, sneez·ing, sneez·es. To expel air forcibly from the mouth and nose in an explosive, spasmodic involuntary action resulting chiefly from irritation of the nasal mucous membrane. — n. An instance or the sound of sneezing. — phrasal verb. sneeze at. Slang. To treat as unimportant: These deficits are nothing to sneeze at. [Middle English snesen, probably alteration (perhaps influenced by snorten, to snort,, and snoren, snore), of nesen, alteration of fnesen, from Old English fnēosan. See pneu- in Appendix.]

—sneez'er n. —sneez'y adj.

sneeze-weed (snēz'wēd') n. 1. Any of several New World herbs of the genus Helenium of the composite family, having yellow to red-purple rayed flower heads. 2. See sneezewort.

sneeze-wort (snēz'wŭrt', -wŏrt') n. A Eurasian herb (Achillea ptarmica) of the composite family, having aromatic, linear, finely serrate leaves and clusters of white flower heads grouped in corymbs. Also called sneezeweed Snef-fels (sněf'əlz), Mount. A peak, 4,315.8 m (14,150 ft) high, in the San Juan Mountains of southwest Colorado.

snell (sněl) n. A length of fine threadlike material, such as monofilament or gut, that connects a fishhook to a heavier line; a length of leader. [Origin unknown.]

Snell (sněl), George. Born 1903. American geneticist. He shared a 1980 Nobel Prize for discoveries concerning the relationship of cell structure to organ transplants and diseases.

Snel-len chart (sněl'ən chärt) n. A chart for testing visual acuity, usually consisting of letters, numbers, or pictures printed in lines of decreasing size which a patient is asked to read or identify at a fixed distance. [After Herman Snellen (1834-1908), Dutch ophthalmologist.]

Snellen test (sněl'ən tĕst) n. A test for visual acuity using a Snellen chart.

SNG abbr. 1. Substitute natural gas. 2. Synthetic natural gas.

snib (snīb) v. tr. snibbed, snib-bing, snibs. Chiefly British. To latch (a door or window): “[The] window is snibbed on the inner side” (Arthur Conan Doyle). [Origin unknown.]

snick (snĭk) v. snicked, snick-ing, snicks. — v. tr. 1. To cut with short strokes; snip: snicked off a corner of the material. 2. To make a small cut in; nick. 3. To cause (something) to click: I snicked the door shut. — v. intr. 1. To snip: snicked with the shears. 2. To make a nick or nicks. 3. To click: The latch snicked open. — n. 1. A cut made by snicking. 2. A clicking sound: “I heard a little snick and a flashlight came on” (Anthony Hyde). [Origin unknown.]

snick-er (snĭk'ər) v. intr. snick-ered, snick-er-ing, snick-ers. To utter a partly stifled laugh: “I have seen the eternal Footman hold my coat, and snicker” (T.S. Eliot). — n. A snide, slightly stifled laugh. [Perhaps imitative.] —snick-er-ing-ly adv.

snick-er-snee (snĭk'ər-snē') n. 1. A knife resembling a sword. 2. Archaic. The act of fighting with knives. [Alteration of obsolete stick or snee, to cut and thrust in fighting with a knife, from Dutch steken of snijden : steken, to stab (from Middle Dutch); see steig- in Appendix + of, or (from Middle Dutch) + snijden, to cut (from Middle Dutch sniden).]

snide (snīd) adj. snid-er, snid-est. Derogatory in a malicious, superior way; sarcastic. [Origin unknown.] —snide/ly adv. —snide/ness n.

sniff (snĭf) v. sniffed, sniff-ing, sniffs. — v. intr. 1. a. To inhale a short, audible breath through the nose, as in smelling something. b. To snuffle. 2. To use the sense of smell, as in savoring or investigating: sniffed at the jar to see what it held. 3. To regard something in a contemptuous or dismissive manner: The critics sniffed at the adaptation of the novel to film. 4. Informal. To pry; snoop: The reporters came sniffing around for more details. — v. tr. 1. To inhale forcibly through the nose: sniffed the cool morning air. 2. To smell, as in savoring or investigating: sniffed the lilacs; sniffed the breeze for traces of smoke. 3. To perceive or detect by or as if by sniffing: dogs that sniffed out the trail through the snow; sniffed trouble ahead. 4. To utter in a contemptuous or haughty manner: The countess sniffed her disapproval. — n. 1. An instance or the sound of sniffing. 2. Something sniffed or perceived by or as if by sniffing; a whiff: a sniff of perfume; a sniff of scandal. [Middle English sniffen, probably of Scandinavian origin.] —sniff/a-ble adj. —sniff'er n.

sniff dog (snĭf dôg) n. A dog specially trained to locate illicit drugs or explosives by using its sense of smell.

snif·fle (snĭf'əl) v. intr. snif-fled, snif-pling, snif-fles. 1. To breathe audibly through a runny or congested nose. 2. To weep or whimper lightly with spasmodic congestion of the nose. — n. 1. The act or sound of sniffing. 2. sniffles. A condition, such as a head cold, accompanied by congestion of the nose. Used with the. [Frequentative of SNIFF.] —snif'fler n. —snif'fly (snĭf'ə-lē, snĭf'lē) adj.

sniff-y (snĭf'ē) adj. sniff-i-er, sniff-i-est. Informal. Disposed to showing arrogance or contempt; haughty. —sniff/i-ly adv. —sniff/i-ness n.

snif-ter (snĭf'tər) n. 1. A pear-shaped goblet with a narrow top, used especially in serving brandy. 2. Slang. A small portion of liquor. [From Middle English snifteren, to sniff, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

snig-ger (snĭg'ər) n. A snicker. — v. intr. snig-gered, snig-ger-ing, snig-gers. To snicker. [Perhaps alteration of SNICKER.]

snip (snĭp) v. snipped, snip-ping, snips. — v. tr. To cut, clip, or separate (something) with short, quick strokes. — v. intr. To cut or clip with short, quick strokes. — n. 1. An instance of snipping or the sound produced by snipping. 2. a. A small cut made with scissors or shears. b. A small piece cut or clipped off. c. A bit or scrap: snips of information about the upcoming merger. 3. Informal. a. One that is small or slight in size or stature. b. A person regarded as impertinent or mischievous. 4. snips. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Hand shears used in cutting sheet metal. 5. Slang. Something easily accomplished. [Dutch, or Low German snippen.]

snipe (snīp) n. 1. pl. snipe or snipes. a. Any of various long-billed shore birds of the genus Gallinago or Capella, related to the woodcocks and sandpipers, especially the common, widely distributed species G. gallinago or C. gallinago. b. Any of various similar or related birds. 2. A shot, especially a gunshot, from a concealed place. — v. intr. sniped, snip-ing, snipes. 1. To shoot at individuals from a concealed place. 2. To shoot snipe. 3. To make malicious, underhand remarks or attacks. [Middle English, probably from Old Norse -snīpa, as in mýrisnīpa, marsh snipe.]

snipe-fish (snīp'fish') n. pl. snipefish or snipe-fish-es. Any of various small marine fishes of the family Macrorhamphosidae, found in tropical and temperate regions and characterized by a long snout and a very long spine extending from the dorsal fin backward toward the tail.

snip-er (snī'pər) n. 1. A skilled military shooter detailed to spot and pick off enemy soldiers from a concealed place. 2. One who shoots at other people from a concealed place.

snip-pet (snīp'īt) n. 1. A bit, scrap, or morsel: “sparkling black bass... strewn with snippets of coriander and basil” (Gael Greene). 2. Informal. A small or mischievous person.

snip-pet-y (snīp'ī-tē) adj. snip-pet-i-er, snip-pet-i-est. 1. Made up of snippets. 2. Informal. Snippy; impertinent.

snip-py (snīp'ē) adj. snip-pi-er, snip-pi-est. Informal. 1. Sharp-tongued; impertinent. 2. Occurring in pieces; fragmentary: a snippy account of the incident.

snit (snīt) n. Informal. A state of agitation or irritation. [Origin unknown.]

snitch (snīch) Slang. v. snitched, snitch-ing, snitch-es. — v. tr. To steal (something, usually something of little value); pilfer. See Synonyms at steal. — v. intr. To turn informer: He snitched on his comrades. — n. 1. A thief. 2. An informer. [Origin unknown.] — snitch'er n.

sniv-el (snīv'əl) v. intr. sniv-eled or sniv-elled, sniv-el-ing or sniv-el-ling, sniv-els or sniv-els. 1. To sniffle. 2. To complain or whine tearfully. 3. To run at the nose. — n. 1. The act of sniffing or sniveling. 2. Nasal mucus. [Middle English snivelen, from Old English snyflan*.] — sniv/el-er n.

snob (snōb) n. 1. One who overtly imitates, obsequiously admires, and offensively seeks to associate only with those one regards as one's superiors and who tends to rebuff or ignore altogether those one regards as one's inferiors: “A snob is someone who judges all things, from shoes and dinner parties to love and beauty, according to their social rating” (Tom Wolfe). 2. One who affects an offensive air of self-satisfied superiority in matters of taste or intellect. [Earlier snob, cobbler, lower-class person, person who aspires to social prominence.] — snob/by adj.

WORD HISTORY: Snobs look down at their inferiors, but at one time snobs looked up at their betters. The word snob, the ultimate origins of which are uncertain, is first found in 1781 in the sense “shoemaker, cobbler,” a regional and informal usage. The word is recorded around 1796 in a slang usage particular to Cambridge University, “a townsman as opposed to a gownsman.” Both senses may have fed into the sense first found in 1831, “a member of the ordinary or lower classes.” Along with this sense went another (1838), “a person without proper breeding or taste.” From these two senses arose the sense first recorded in 1848, “a person who looks up to his or her social betters and tries to copy or associate with them.” We can see how this sense could blend into the other familiar sense, “one who looks down on those considered inferior” (1911).

snob appeal (snɒb ə-pēl') n. Qualities that seem to substantiate social or intellectual pretensions.

snob-ber-y (snɒb'ə-rē) n. pl. snob-ber-ies. Snobbish behavior or an instance of it.

snob-bish (snɒb'ish) adj. Of, befitting, or resembling a snob; pretentious.

—snob'bish-ly adv. —snob'bish-ness n.

snob-bism (snɒb'iz'əm) n. Snobbery.

Sno-Cat (snō'căt') A trademark used for an automotive vehicle with tractor treads for traveling over snow.

snoek (snōök) n. pl. snoek or snoeks. A large, small-scaled marine food fish (Thyristes atun) of the family Gempylidae, widely distributed in the Southern Hemisphere. [Afrikaans, from Middle Dutch snoec.]

snol-ly-gos-ter (snɒl'ē-gös'tər) n. Slang. One, especially a politician, who is guided by personal advantage rather than by consistent, respectable principles. [Perhaps alteration of snallygaster, a mythical beast said to prey on poultry and children, perhaps from Pennsylvania Dutch schnelle geeschter: Middle High German snēl, quick (from Old High German) + Middle High German geist, spirit (from Old High German).]

snood (snōöd) n. 1. A small netlike cap worn by women to keep the hair in place. 2. A headband or fillet. — v. tr. snood-ed, snood-ing, snoods. To hold (the hair) in place with a snood. [Middle English snod, headband, from Old English snōd. See (s)nē- in Appendix.]

snook¹ (snōök, snōök) n. pl. snook or snooks. Any of several chiefly marine percoid fishes of the family Centropomidae, especially Centropomus undecimalis, a food and game fish of warm Atlantic waters. Also called sergeant fish [Dutch snoek, pike, from Middle Dutch snoec.]

snook² (snōök, snōök) n. A gesture of derision or defiance. —idiom. cock a snook. Chiefly British. To thumb one's nose: “[The clock] is set wrong and hung crooked, as if to cock a snook at the importance of time" (Kevin Crossley-Holland).

[Origin unknown.]

snook-er (snōök'ər) n. Games. Pocket billiards played with 15 red balls and 6 balls of other colors. — v. tr. snook-ered, snook-er-ing, snook-ers.

1. Slang. a. To lead (another) into a situation in which all possible choices are undesirable; trap. b. To fool; dupe: "Snookered by a lot of malarkey about drilling costs, a Texas jury... added $3 billion of punitive damages" (New Republic).

2. Games. To leave one's opponent in the game of snooker unable to take a direct shot without striking a ball out of the required order. [Origin unknown.]

snoop (snōōp) v. intr. snooped, snoop-ing, snoops. To pry into the private affairs of others, especially by prowling about. — n. One who snoops. [Dutch snoepen, to eat on the sly.] —snoop'er n.

snoop-y (snōō'pē) adj. snoop-i-er, snoop-i-est. Informal. Likely to snoop; nosy. See Synonyms at curious. —snoop'i-ly adv. —snoop'i-ness n.

snoot (snōōt) Informal. n. 1. A snout or nose. 2. A snob. — v. tr. snoot-ed, snoot-ing, snoots. To treat haughtily: a couple who were snooted by the head-waiter. [Dialectal variant of SNOUT.]

snoot-y (snōō'tē) adj. snoot-i-er, snoot-i-est. Informal. 1. Snobbishly aloof; haughty. 2. High-class; exclusive. —snoot'i-ly adv. —snoot'i-ness n.

snooze (snōōz) v. intr. snoozed, snooz-ing, snooz-es. To take a light nap; doze. — n. A brief light sleep. [Origin unknown.]

Sno-qual-mie Falls (snō-kwōl'mē fōlz) A waterfall, 82.4 m (270 ft) high, in the Snoqualmie River, about 113 km (70 mi) long, of west-central Washington.

snore (snôr, snōr) v. intr. snored, snor-ing, snores. To breathe during sleep with harsh, snorting noises caused by vibration of the soft palate. — n. 1. The act or an instance of snoring. 2. The noise so produced. [Middle English snoren, to snort, from fnoren, from Old English fnora, sneezing. See pneu- in Appendix.] —snor'er n.

snor-kel (snôr'kəl) n. 1. A breathing apparatus used by skin divers, consisting of a long tube held in the mouth. 2. A retractable vertical tube in a submarine that contains air-intake and exhaust pipes for the engines and for ventilation, permitting extended periods of submergence at periscope depth. — v. intr.

snor-keled, snor-kel-ing, snor-kels. To dive using a snorkel. [German Schnorchel, from dialectal, nose (from its resemblance in shape to a nose).]

—snor'kel-er n.

Snor-ri Stur-lu-son (snôr'ē stūr'lə-sən, snōr'ē stœr'lə-sōn), 1179-1241. Icelandic historian and chieftain whose works include Heimskringla, a series of sagas, and the Prose, or Younger, Edda.

snort (snôrt) n. 1. a. A rough, noisy sound made by breathing forcefully through the nostrils, as a horse or pig does. b. A similar sound: the snort of a steam engine. 2. Slang. a. A drink of liquor, especially when swallowed in one gulp. b. Cocaine or heroin, especially a small amount sniffed at one time. c. The liquor or drug so taken. — v. snort-ed, snort-ing, snorts. — v. intr.

1. a. To breathe noisily and forcefully through the nostrils. b. To make a sound resembling noisy inhalation: “The wind snorted across the Kansas plains” (Gail Sheehy). 2. To make an abrupt noise expressive of scorn, ridicule, or contempt.

3. Slang. To ingest a drug, such as cocaine or heroin, by sniffing. — v. tr. 1. To express by snorting: He snorted his disapproval. 2. Slang. To ingest by sniffing: snorted cocaine. [From Middle English snorten, to snort, from fnorten, variant of fnoren. See SNORE.] — snort'er n.

snot (snöt) n. Vulgar Slang. 1. Nasal mucus; phlegm. 2. A person regarded as annoying, arrogant, or impertinent. [Middle English, from Old English gesnot.] snot·ty (snöt'ē) adj. snot·ti·er, snot·ti·est. Vulgar Slang. 1. Dirtied with nasal mucus. 2. Impertinent; arrogant. — snot'ti·ly adv. — snot'ti·ness n.

snout (snout) n. 1. a. The projecting nose, jaws, or anterior facial part of an animal's head. b. A similar prolongation of the anterior portion of the head in certain insects, such as weevils; a rostrum. c. A spout or nozzle shaped like such a projection. 2. Slang. The human nose. [Middle English, probably of Old English origin.]

snout beetle (snout bēt'l) n. A weevil of the family Curculionidae, having the front of the head elongated to form a snout. Also called curculio snow (snō) n. 1. Frozen precipitation in the form of white or translucent hexagonal ice crystals that fall in soft, white flakes. 2. A falling of snow; a snowstorm.

3. Something resembling snow, as: a. The white specks on a television screen resulting from weak reception. b. Slang. Cocaine. c. Slang. Heroin. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: the snow season; snow removal.

— v. snowed, snow-ing, snows. — v. intr. To fall as or in snow. — v. tr.

1. To cover, shut off, or close off with snow: We were snowed in. 2. Slang. To overwhelm with insincere talk, especially with flattery. — phrasal verb. snow under. 1. To overwhelm: I was snowed under with work. 2. To defeat by a very large margin. [Middle English, from Old English snāw.]

Snow (snō), C(harles) P(ercy) Baron Snow of Leicester. 1905-1980. British writer and scientist who is known especially for his 11-volume series Strangers and Brothers (1940-1970).

snow·ball (snō'bôl') n. 1. a. A mass of soft, wet snow packed into a ball that can be thrown, as in play. b. Chiefly Southern U.S. A cup of crushed or shaved ice flavored with colored syrup. 2. Any of several plants having rounded clusters of white flowers, as the guelder rose and certain species of the arrowwood. — v.

snow·balled, snow·ball·ing, snow·balls. — v. intr. 1. To grow rapidly in significance, importance, or size: problems that snowballed by the hour. 2. To throw snowballs. — v. tr. 1. To cause to grow or increase rapidly. 2. To throw snowballs at.

snow·bell (snō'běl') n. Any of various shrubs or trees of the genus Styrax, especially S. japonicus and S. obassia of eastern Asia, having bell-shaped white flowers. Also called storax snow·ber·ry (snō'běr'ē) n. 1. Any of various shrubs of the genus Symphoricarpos, especially S. albus of North America, having small pinkish flowers and white berries. 2. Any of various tropical American shrubs or vines of the genus Chiococca, having white globular fruit and small yellow or white flowers clustered in lateral racemes.

Snow·belt also Snow Belt (snō'bělt') The northern and northeast United States.

snow·bird (snō'bûrd') n. 1. Any of several birds, such as the junco and the snow bunting, common in snowy regions. 2. Slang. One who moves from a cold to a warm place in the winter.

snow blindness (snō blīnd'nīs) n. A usually temporary loss of vision and inflammation of the conjunctiva and cornea, caused by exposure of the eyes to bright sunlight and ultraviolet rays reflected from snow or ice. —snow'-blind' (snō'blīnd'), snow'-blind'ed (-blīn'dīd) adj.

snow·blink (snō'blīngk') n. A white sky glow reflected from snow fields.

snow blower (snō blō'ər) n. See snow thrower.

snow·board (snō'bôrd', -bôrd') Sports. n. A board resembling a small surfboard and equipped with bindings, used for descending snow-covered slopes on one's feet but without ski poles. — v. intr. snow·board·ed, snow·board·ing, snow·boards. To use a snowboard. —snow'board'er n.

snow·bound (snō'bound') adj. Confined in one place by heavy snow.

snow bunting (snō būn'tīng) n. A finch (Plectrophenax nivalis) of northern regions, having predominantly white winter plumage. Also called snowflake snow·bush (snō'bōosh') also snow·brush (-brūsh') n. A spiny shrub (Ceanothus cordulatus) of California and Oregon, having large clusters of small white flowers.

snow·cap (snō'kăp') n. Snow covering a mountain peak, especially such snow existing year-round. —snow'capped' adj.

snow cone (snō kōn) n. A confection made of crushed ice and flavored syrup inserted into a paper cone and mounded on top.

Snow·don (snōd'n) A massif of northwest Wales. Rising to 1,085.8 m (3,560 ft), it is the highest elevation in Wales.

snow·drift (snō'drīft') n. A mass or bank of snow piled up by the wind.

snow·drop (snō'drōp') n. Any of several bulbous Eurasian plants of the genus Galanthus, having solitary, nodding white flowers that bloom in early spring.

snowdrop tree (snō'drōp' trē) n. The silverbell tree.

snow·fall (snō'fôl') n. 1. A fall of snow. 2. The amount of snow that falls during a given period or in a specified area.

snow fence (snō fěns) n. Temporary fencing composed of thin upright slats wired together, used to prevent snow from drifting onto walks or roads.

snow-flake (snō'flāk') n. 1. A single flake or crystal of snow. 2. Any of several bulbous European herbs of the genus Leucojum, having white or whitish flowers and fleshy fruit. 3. See snow bunting.

snow goose (snō gōōs) n. A North American wild goose (Chen caerulescens or Anser caerulescens) that breeds in Arctic regions, having a dusky gray color phase when young and a white plumage with black wingtips as an adult.

snow-in-sum-mer (snō'īn-sūm'ər) n. A woolly, white, mat-forming perennial herb (Cerastium tomentosum) native to Italy and widely cultivated in rock gardens for its showy white flowers with notched petals.

snow job (snō jōb) n. Slang. An effort to deceive, overwhelm, or persuade with insincere talk, especially flattery.

snow leopard (snō lěp'ərd) n. A large feline mammal (Panthera uncia) of the highlands of central Asia, having long, thick, whitish-gray fur with dark markings like those of a leopard. Also called *ounce*² snow line (snō līn) n. 1. The lower altitudinal boundary of a snow-covered area, especially of one that is perennially covered, such as the snowcap of a mountain. 2. The fluctuating latitudinal boundaries around the polar regions marking the extent of snow cover.

snow-mak-ing (snō'mā'kīng) n. Production of artificial snow in the form of granular ice particles for use on ski slopes.

snow-man (snō'măn') n. A figure of a person made from packed snow, usually formed by piling large snowballs on top of each other.

Snow-mass Mountain (snō'măs moun'tən) A peak, 4,298.1 m (14,092 ft) high, in the Elk Mountains of west-central Colorado.

snow-melt (snō'mělt') n. 1. The runoff from melting snow. 2. A period or season when such runoff occurs: streams that flood during snowmelt.

snow-mo-bile (snō'mō-bēl', -mə-) n. A small vehicle with skilike runners in front and tanklike treads, used for driving in or traveling on snow. Also called skimobile [SNOW + (AUTO)MOBILE.] —snow'mo-bil'er n. —snow'mo-bil'ing n.

snow mold (snō mōld) n. 1. A disease of grasses appearing as grayish-white or pinkish patches after heavy snow has melted and caused by fungi that thrive at low temperatures. 2. A fungus that causes this disease.

snow-on-the-moun-tain (snō'ōn-thə-moun'tən, -ōn-) n. A widely cultivated plant (Euphorbia marginata) of the central United States, having white-margined leaves and showy white bracts. Also called ghostweed snow pea (snō pē) n. 1. A variety of the common pea (Pisum sativum var. macrocarpon) in the pea family, having a soft, thick pod that lacks the fibrous inner lining present in the common pea. 2. The edible young pod of this plant.

Also called sugar pea snow pellet (snō pĕl'it) n. A small white ice particle that falls as precipitation and breaks apart easily when it lands on a surface. Often used in the plural. Also called graupel, soft hail.

snow plant (snō plānt) n. A fleshy saprophytic plant (Sarcodes sanguinea) of the mountains of western North America, having a scaly reddish stalk and scarlet flowers.

snow·plow (snō'plou') n. 1. A plowlike device or vehicle used to remove snow, especially from roads and railroad tracks. 2. Sports. A maneuver in snow skiing in which the tips of the skis are brought together in order to slow or stop progress. — v. intr. snow-plowed, snow-plow-ing, snow-plows. Sports. To perform a snowplow maneuver in skiing.

snow·shoe (snō'shōō') n. A racket-shaped frame containing interlaced leather strips that can be attached to the foot to facilitate walking on deep snow. — v. intr. snow-shoed, snow-shoe-ing, snow-shoes. To travel on snowshoes. —snow'sho'er n.

snowshoe rabbit (snō'shōō' rāb'it) n. A medium-sized hare (Lepus americanus) of northern North America, having large, heavily furred feet and fur that is white in winter and brown in summer. Also called snowshoe hare, varying hare.

snow·storm (snō'stōrm') n. A storm marked by heavy snowfall.

snow·suit (snō'sōōt') n. A child's zippered winter coverall.

snow thrower (snō thrō'ər) n. A machine that clears snow from a surface by scooping the snow and projecting it forcefully through a chute. Also called snow blower snow tire (snō tīr) n. A tire with a deep tread or studs to give added traction on snow-covered surfaces.

snow-white (snō'hwīt', -wīt') adj. Pure white; white as snow.

snow·y (snō'ē) adj. snow-i-er, snow-i-est. 1. a. Abounding in or covered with snow: a snowy day. b. Subject to snow: a snowy climate. 2. Resembling or suggesting snow, especially in whiteness: snowy linens. —snow'i-ly adv.

—snow'i-ness n.

snowy egret (snō'ē ē'grīt) n. A medium-sized egret (Egretta thula) with white plumage, black legs, and yellow feet, found in warm parts of the Western Hemisphere. It was once widely hunted for its white, lacelike aigrettes that grow during the breeding season.

snowy owl (snō'ē oul) n. A large diurnal owl (Nyctea scandiaca) of Arctic and subarctic regions, having snow-white plumage with dark markings.

snowy plover (snō'ē plūv'ər) n. A small plover (Charadrius alexandrinus) of the western United States and Mexico, generally yellowish gray above and snowy white below and on the sides of the head.

snub (snŭb) v. tr. snubbed, snub-bing, snubs. 1. To ignore or behave coldly toward; slight. 2. To dismiss, turn down, or frustrate the expectations of.

3. Nautical. a. To check the movement of (a rope or cable running out) by turning it quickly about a post. b. To secure (a vessel, for example) in this manner.

4. To stub out (a cigarette, for example). — n. 1. A deliberate slight or affront.

2. Nautical. A sudden checking, as of a rope or cable running out. — adj.

Unusually short: a snub nose. [Middle English snubben, to rebuke; akin to Old Norse snubba.] — snub'ber n.

snub-nosed (snŭb'nōzd') adj. 1. Having a short, turned-up nose. 2. Having an extremely short barrel: a snub-nosed pistol.

snuck (snŭk) v. Usage Problem. A past tense and a past participle of sneak. See Usage Note at sneak.

snuff¹ (snŭf) v. snuffed, snuff-ing, snuffs. — v. tr. 1. To inhale (something) audibly through the nose; sniff. 2. To sense or examine by smelling; sniff at. — v. intr. To sniff; inhale. — n. The act of snuffing or the sound produced by it; a snuffle. [Middle English snoffen, to snuff a candle, snuffle, probably from snoffe, snuff. See SNUFF².]

snuff² (snŭf) n. The charred portion of a candlewick. — v. tr. snuffed, snuff-ing, snuffs. 1. To extinguish: snuffed out the candles. 2. To put a sudden end to; destroy: lives that were snuffed out by car accidents. 3. To cut off the charred portion of (a candlewick). [Middle English snoffe, possibly of Low German origin.]

snuff³ (snŭf) n. 1. a. A preparation of finely pulverized tobacco that can be drawn up into the nostrils by inhaling. Also called smokeless tobacco b. The quantity of this tobacco that is inhaled at a single time; a pinch. 2. A powdery substance, such as a medicine, taken by inhaling. — v. intr. snuffed, snuff-ing, snuffs. To use or inhale snuff. — idiom. up to snuff. Informal. 1. Normal in health. 2. Up to standard; adequate. [Dutch snuf, short for snuftabak: Dutch snuffen, to sniff; see SNUFFLE + tabak, tobacco.]

snuff-box (snŭf'bŏks') n. A small, often decorated box with a hinged lid, used for carrying snuff.

snuff-er¹ (snŭf'ər) n. One who uses snuff.

snuff-er² (snŭf'ər) n. 1. a. A candlesnuffer. b. One who snuffs out candles. 2. snuffers. An instrument resembling a pair of shears that is used for cutting the snuff from or for extinguishing candles.

snuff film (snŭf film) n. Slang. A movie involving explicit pornography and culminating in the violent death of a participant in a sex act.

snuf-*fl*e (snŭf'əl) v. snuf-*fl*ed, snuf-*fl*ing, snuf-*fl*es. — v. intr. 1. To breathe noisily, as through a blocked nose. 2. To sniff. 3. To talk or sing nasally; whine. — v. tr. To utter in a snuffling tone. — n. 1. The act of snuffling or the sound produced by it. 2. snuffles. The sniffles. Used with the. [Probably from Dutch snuffelen, to sniff about, probably frequentative of snuffen, to sniff, from Middle Dutch snuiven.] —snuf'fler n. —snuf'fly adj.

snug¹ (snŭg) adj. snug-ger, snug-gest. 1. Comfortably sheltered; cozy.

2. Small but well arranged: a snug apartment. See Synonyms at comfortable.

3. a. Closely secured and well built; compact: a snug little sailboat. b. Close-fitting: a snug jacket. c. Nautical. Seaworthy. 4. a. Offering freedom from financial worry: a snug living. b. Safe; secure: a snug hideout. — v. snugged, snug-ging, snugs. — v. tr. To make snug or secure. — v. intr. To nestle; snuggle. —phrasal verb. snug down. Nautical. To prepare (a vessel) to weather a storm, as by taking in sail or securing movable gear. [Of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish snygg, neat, trim.] —snug, snug'ly adv. —snug'ness n.

snug² (snŭg) n. Chiefly British. A very small private room in a pub. [Short for SNUGGERY.]

snug-ger-y (snŭg'ə-rē) n. pl. snug-ger-ies. Chiefly British. A snug position or place.

snug-gle (snŭg'əl) v. snug-gled, snug-gling, snug-gles. — v. intr. 1. To lie or press close together; cuddle. 2. To curl up closely or comfortably; nestle: snuggled happily under the covers. — v. tr. To draw close or hold closely, as for comfort or in affection; hug. [Frequentative of SNUG¹.]

so¹ (sō) adv. 1. In the condition or manner expressed or indicated; thus: Hold the brush so. 2. To the amount or degree expressed or understood; to such an extent: She was so weary that she fell. 3. To a great extent; to such an evident degree: But the idea is so obvious. 4. Because of the reason given; consequently: She was weary and so fell. 5. Afterward; then: to the gas station and so home. 6. In the same way; likewise: You were on time and so was I. 7. Apparently; well, then. Used in expressing astonishment, disapproval, or sarcasm: So you think you've got troubles? 8. In truth; indeed: “You aren't right.” “I am so!” — adj. 1. True; factual: I wouldn't have told you this if it weren't so. 2. In good order: Everything on his desk must be exactly so. — conj. Usage Problem. 1. With the result or consequence that: He failed to appear, so we went on without him. 2. In order that: I stayed so I could see you. — pron. Such as has already been suggested or specified; the same: She became a loyal friend and remained so. — interj. Used to express surprise or comprehension: So! You've finished your work at last. —idioms. and so on (or and so forth). And similarly; and continuing in a like manner. so as to. In order to: Mail your package early so as to ensure its timely arrival. so that. 3. In order that: I stopped so that you could catch up. 4. With the result or consequence that. [Middle English, from Old English swā. See swō- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Many critics and grammarians have insisted that so must be followed by that in formal writing when used to introduce a clause giving the reason for or purpose of an action: He stayed so that he could see the second feature. But this rule is best regarded as a stylistic preference; in such clauses that is frequently omitted even by reputable writers in formal contexts, as in They will have to double up so (or so that) room can be found for the new arrivals. • Both so and so that are acceptably used to introduce clauses that state a result or consequence: The Bay Bridge was still closed, so (or so that) the drive from San Francisco to the Berkeley campus took an hour and a half. • So is frequently used in informal speech to string together the elements of a narrative. This practice should not be carried over into formal writing, where the absence of contextual information generally requires that connections be made more explicit. • Critics have sometimes objected to the use of so as an intensive meaning “to a great degree or extent,” as in We were so relieved to learn that the deadline had been extended. This usage is most common in informal contexts, perhaps because unlike the neutral very, it presumes that the listener or reader will be sympathetic with the speaker’s evaluation of the situation. (Thus one would be more apt to say It was so unfair of them not to invite you than to say It was so fortunate that I didn’t have to put up with your company.) For just this reason, the construction may occasionally be used to good effect in more formal contexts to invite the reader to take the point of view of the speaker or subject: The request seemed to her to be quite reasonable; it was so unfair of the manager to refuse. But in the absence of stylistic motive, this use of so should be reserved for familiar discourse. • New England speakers often use a negative form such as so didn’t where other varieties would use the positive so did, as in Sophie ate all her strawberries and so didn’t Amelia. Since this usage may confuse a speaker who has not previously encountered it, it is best avoided in writing. See Usage Note at as¹.

so² (sō) n. Music. Variant of sol¹.

so. or So. abbr. South; southern.

s.o. abbr. 1. Seller’s option. 2. Baseball. Strikeout.

soak (sōk) v. soaked, soak-ing, soaks. — v. tr. 1. a. To make thoroughly wet or saturated by or as if by placing in liquid. b. To immerse in liquid for a period of time. 2. To absorb (liquid, for example) through or as if through pores or interstices. 3. To remove (a stain, for example) by continued immersion: soaked out the grease spots. 4. Informal. To take in or accept mentally, especially eagerly and easily: soaked up the gossip. 5. Informal. a. To drink (alcoholic liquor), especially to excess. b. To make (a person) drunk. 6. Slang. To overcharge (a person). — v. intr. 1. To be immersed until thoroughly saturated. 2. To penetrate or permeate; seep: The speaker paused to let her words soak in. 3. Slang. To drink to excess. — n. 1. a. The act or process of soaking. b. The condition of being soaked. 2. Liquid in which something may be soaked.

3. Slang. A drunkard. [Middle English soken, from Old English socian. See seuə-² in Appendix.] —soak'er n.

soak-age (sō'kĭj) n. 1. a. The process of soaking. b. The condition of being soaked. 2. The amount of liquid that soaks into, through, or out of an object.

so-and-so (sō'ən-sō') n. pl. so-and--sos. 1. An unnamed or unspecified person or thing. 2. Informal. A son of a gun.

soap (sōp) n. 1. A cleansing agent, manufactured in bars, granules, flakes, or liquid form, made from a mixture of the sodium salts of various fatty acids of natural oils and fats. 2. A metallic salt of a fatty acid, as of aluminum or iron. 3. Slang. Money, especially that which is used for bribery. 4. Slang. A soap opera. — v. tr. soaped, soap-ing, soaps. 1. To treat or cover with or as if with soap.

2. a. Informal. To soft-soap; cajole. b. Slang. To bribe. —idiom. no soap. Slang. 1. Not possible or permissible. 2. Unsuccessful; futile. [Middle English sope, from Old English sāpe.]

soap-bark (sōp'bärk') n. 1. A Chilean evergreen tree (Quillaja saponaria) of the rose family, having bark used as soap and as a source of saponin. 2. The bark of this tree.

soap-ber-ry (sōp'bēr'ē) n. 1. a. Any of various chiefly tropical trees of the genus Sapindus, having pulpy fruit that lathers like soap. b. The fruit of any of these trees. 2. The buffalo berry.

soap-box (sōp'böks') n. 1. A carton in which soap is packed. 2. A temporary platform used while making an impromptu or nonofficial public speech. — v. intr. soap-boxed, soap-box-ing, soap-box-es. Informal. To engage in impromptu or nonofficial public speaking, often flamboyantly. —idiom. on (one's) soapbox. Speaking one's views passionately or self-importantly.

soap bubble (sōp būb'əl) n. 1. A bubble, especially a large one, formed from soapy water. 2. Something beautiful but transient, insubstantial, or illusory.

soap opera (sōp ɔp'ər-ə) n. A drama, typically performed as a serial on daytime television or radio, characterized by stock characters and situations, sentimentality, and melodrama. [From its originally having been sponsored by soap companies.]

soap plant (sōp plānt) n. 1. Any of several bulbous plants of the genus Chlorogalum, especially C. pomeridianum, of western North America, having small white flowers and bulbs formerly used as soap. 2. Any of various plants having parts used as soap.

soap-stone (sōp'stōn') n. A soft metamorphic rock composed mostly of the mineral talc. Also called steatite [From its smooth soapy feel.]

soap-suds (sōp'südz') pl.n. Suds from soapy water.

soap-wort (sōp'wûrt', -wôrt') n. See bouncing Bet. [From its yielding a soapy substance when the leaves are bruised.]

soap·y (sō'pē) adj. soap·i·er, soap·i·est. 1. Consisting of or containing soap: soapy water. 2. Covered with soap: soapy hands. 3. Resembling soap: a soapy consistency. 4. Slang. Unctuous; oily: soapy compliments. —soap'i·ly adv.
—soap'i·ness n.

soar (sôr, sôr) v. intr. soared, soar·ing, soars. 1. To rise, fly, or glide high and with little apparent effort. 2. To climb swiftly or powerfully. 3. To glide in an aircraft while maintaining altitude. 4. To ascend suddenly above the normal or usual level: Our spirits soared. See Synonyms at rise. — n. 1. The act of soaring. 2. The altitude or scope attained in soaring. [Middle English soren, from Old French essorer, from Vulgar Latin exaurāre*: Latin ex-, ex- + Latin aura, air (from Greek, breeze); see AURA.] —soar'er n. —soar'ing·ly adv.

soar·ing (sôr'ing, sôr'-) n. The act of gliding while maintaining altitude, especially the sport of flying a heavier-than-air craft by using ascending currents of air. — adj. Ascending to a level markedly higher than the usual: soaring fuel costs; the soaring spires of the cathedral.

so·a·ve (sō-ă'vā) n. A dry white Italian table wine. [Italian, from Latin suāvis, sweet, delightful. See swād- in Appendix.]

So·ay (soi, sô'ā) n. A small, brownish, short-tailed sheep (Ovis aries) of a breed that originated on the island of Soay in the Outer Hebrides.

sob (sōb) v. sobbed, sob·bing, sobs. — v. intr. 1. To weep aloud with convulsive gasping; cry uncontrollably. See Synonyms at cry. 2. To make a sound resembling that of loud weeping. — v. tr. 1. To utter with sobs. 2. To put or bring (oneself) into a specified condition by sobbing: sob oneself to sleep. — n. The act or sound of sobbing. [Middle English sobben, perhaps of Low German origin.] —sob'bing·ly adv.

SOB abbr. Vulgar. Son of a bitch.

so·ber (sō'bər) adj. so·ber·er, so·ber·est. 1. Habitually abstemious in the use of alcoholic liquors or drugs; temperate. 2. Not intoxicated or affected by the use of drugs. 3. Plain or subdued: sober attire. 4. Devoid of frivolity, excess, exaggeration, or speculative imagination; straightforward: gave a sober assessment of the situation. 5. Marked by seriousness, gravity, or solemnity of conduct or character. See Synonyms at serious. 6. Marked by circumspection and self-restraint. — v. tr. intr. so·bered, so·ber·ing, so·bers. To make or become sober. [Middle English, from Old French sobre, from Latin sōbrius. See s(w)e- in Appendix.] —so'ber·ly adv. —so'ber·ness n.

so·ber·sid·ed (sō'bər-sī'dīd) adj. Devoid of extreme qualities, such as exaggeration; sober. —so'ber·sid'ed·ness n.

so·ber·sides (sō'bər-sīdz') pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). A sober-sided person.

so·bri·e·ty (ə-brī'ī-tē, sō-) n. 1. Gravity in bearing, manner, or treatment. 2. Moderation in or abstinence from consumption of alcoholic liquor or use of drugs: “three years of drug-free sobriety” (Ron Rosenbaum). See Synonyms at abstinence. [Middle English sobriete, from Old French, from Latin sōbrietās, from sōbrius, sober. See SOBER.]

so-bri-quet (sō'brī-kā', -kēt', sō'brī-kā', kēt') also sou-bri-quet (sōō'brī-kā', -kēt', sōō'brī-kā', -kēt') n. 1. An affectionate or humorous nickname. 2. An assumed name. [French, from Old French soubriquet, chuck under the chin.]

sob sister (sōb sīs'tər) n. 1. A journalist, especially a woman, employed as a writer or an editor of sob stories. 2. A sentimental, ineffective person who seeks to do good.

sob story (sōb stōr'ē) n. 1. A tale of personal hardship or misfortune intended to arouse pity. 2. A maudlin plea given as an explanation or a rationalization.

soc. abbr. 1. Social. 2. Socialist. 3. Society.

so-ca (sō'kə) n. Music. A style of music, originating in the West Indies, that is a blend of soul and calypso. [SO(UL) + CA(LYPSO).]

soc-age (sōk'ij, sō'kij) n. Law. Feudal tenure of land by a tenant, in return for agricultural or other nonmilitary services or for payment of rent in money. [Middle English sokage, from soke, soke. See SOKE.] —soc'ag-er n.

so-called (sō'kōld') adj. 1. Commonly called: “new buildings... in so-called modern style” (Graham Greene). 2. Incorrectly or falsely termed: a so-called manager, unable to inspire a team effort.

USAGE NOTE: Quotation marks are not used to set off descriptions that follow expressions such as so-called and self-styled, which themselves relieve the writer of responsibility for the attribution: his so-called foolproof method (not “foolproof method”).

soc-cer (sōk'ər) n. Sports. A game played on a rectangular field with net goals at either end in which two teams of 11 players each maneuver a round ball mainly by kicking or butting or by using any part of the body except the arms and hands in attempts to score points. [Alteration of assoc., abbreviation of association football.]

So-chi (sō'chē, sō'chī) A city of extreme southwest Russia on the northeast shore of the Black Sea. It is a popular health resort. Population, 310,000.

so-cia-bil-i-ty (sō'shə-bīl'i-tē) n. pl. so-cia-bil-i-ties. 1. The disposition or quality of being sociable. 2. An instance of being sociable.

so-cia-ble (sō'shə-bəl) adj. 1. Fond of the company of others; gregarious. 2. Marked by or affording occasion for agreeable conversation and conviviality. See Synonyms at social. 3. Pleasant, friendly, and affable. See Synonyms at gracious. — n. A social. [French, from Latin sociābilis, from sociāre, to share, join, from socius, companion. See sek^w-1 in Appendix.] —so'cia-ble-ness n. —so'cia-bly adv.

so-cial (sō'shəl) adj. Abbr. soc. 1. a. Living together in communities. b. Of or relating to communal living. c. Of or relating to society. 2. Living together in organized groups or similar close aggregates: Ants are social insects. 3. Involving allies or members of a confederacy. 4. Of or relating to the upper classes. 5. a. Inclined to seek out or enjoy the company of others; sociable. b. Spent in or marked by friendly relations or companionship. c. Intended for convivial activities. 6. Of, relating to, or occupied with matters affecting human welfare: social problems; a social policy. — n. An informal social gathering, as of the members of a church congregation. [Middle English sociale, domestic, from Old French social, from Latin sociālis, of companionship, from socius, companion. See sek^{w-}1 in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: social, companionable, convivial, gregarious, sociable. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “inclined to, marked by, or passed in friendly companionship with others”: had a social cup of coffee; a companionable pet; a woman of convivial nature; a gregarious person who avoids solitude; a sociable conversation.

ANTONYM: antisocial

social climber (sō'shəl clī'mər) n. One who strives for acceptance in fashionable society.

social contract (sō'shəl kōn'trākt') n. An agreement among the members of an organized society or between the governed and the government defining and limiting the rights and duties of each.

social Darwinism (sō'shəl dār'wī-nīz'əm) n. The application of Darwinism to the study of human society, specifically a theory in sociology that individuals or groups achieve advantage over others as the result of genetic or biological superiority.

social democracy (sō'shəl dī-mōk'rə-sē) n. A political theory advocating the use of democratic means to achieve a gradual transition from capitalism to socialism. —social democrat n. —social democratic adj.

social disease (sō'shəl dī-zēz') n. 1. A sexually transmitted disease; a venereal disease. 2. A disease having its highest incidence among socioeconomic groups predisposed to it by a given set of adverse living or working conditions.

social engineering (sō'shəl ɛn'jə-nīr'ing) n. The practical application of sociological principles to particular social problems. —social engineer n.

social insurance (sō'shəl ɪn-shōr'əns) n. An insurance program carried out or mandated by a government to provide economic assistance to the unemployed, the elderly, or the disabled.

so-cial-ism (sō'shə-līz'əm) n. 1. a. A social system in which the means of producing and distributing goods are owned collectively and political power is exercised by the whole community. b. The theory or practice of those who support such a social system. 2. The building of the material base for communism under the dictatorship of the proletariat in Marxist-Leninist theory.

so·cial·ist (sō'shə-līst) n. Abbr. soc. 1. An advocate of socialism. 2. Often Socialist. A member of a political party or group that advocates socialism. — adj. 1. Of, promoting, or practicing socialism. 2. Socialist. Of, belonging to, or constituting a socialist party or political group.

so·cial·is·tic (sō'shə-līs'tik) adj. Of, advocating, or tending toward socialism. —so'cial-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

socialist realism (sō'shə-līst rē'ə-līz'əm) n. A Marxist aesthetic doctrine that seeks to promote the development of social consciousness through didactic use of literature, art, and music.

so·cial·ite (sō'shə-līt') n. One prominent in fashionable society.

so·ci·al·i·ty (sō'shē-ăl'ī-tē) n. pl. so·ci·al·i·ties. 1. a. The state or quality of being sociable; sociability. b. An instance of sociableness. 2. The tendency to form communities and societies.

so·cial·ize (sō'shə-līz') v. so·cial·ized, so·cial·iz·ing, so·cial·iz·es. — v. tr. 1. To place under government or group ownership or control. 2. To make fit for companionship with others; make sociable. 3. To convert or adapt to the needs of society. — v. intr. To take part in social activities. —so'cial-i-za'tion (-shə-lī-zā'shən) n. —so'cial-iz'er n.

so·cial·ized medicine (sō'shə-līzd' mēd'ī-sīn) n. A system for providing medical and hospital care for all at a nominal cost by means of government regulation of health services and subsidies derived from taxation.

so·cial·ly (sō'shə-lē) adv. 1. In a social way. 2. With regard to society: socially important. 3. By society: socially accepted behavior.

so·cial·mind·ed (sō'shəl-mīn'dīd) adj. Interested in social service or the welfare of society in general.

social psychiatry (sō'shəl sī-kī'ə-trē) n. The branch of psychiatry that deals with the relationship between social environment and mental illness. —social psychiatrist n.

social psychology (sō'shəl sī-kōl'ə-jē) n. The branch of human psychology that deals with the behavior of groups and the influence of social factors on the individual. —social psychologist n.

social register (sō'shəl rēj'ī-stər) n. A directory listing persons of social prominence in a community.

social science (sō'shəl sī'əns) n. 1. The study of human society and of individual relationships in and to society. 2. A scholarly or scientific discipline that deals with such study, generally regarded as including sociology, psychology, anthropology, economics, political science, and history. —social scientist n.

social secretary (sō'shəl sək'ri-tēr'ē) n. A personal secretary who handles social correspondence and appointments.

social security (sō'shəl sī-kyōōr'ī-tē) n. 1. A government program that provides economic assistance to persons faced with unemployment, disability, or agedness, financed by assessment of employers and employees. 2. The economic assistance provided by social security.

social service (sō'shəl sūr'vīs) n. 1. Organized efforts to advance human welfare; social work. 2. Often social services. Services, such as free school lunches, provided by a government for its disadvantaged citizens.

social studies (sō'shəl stüd'ēz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A course of study including geography, history, government, and sociology, taught in secondary and elementary schools.

social work (sō'shəl wûrk) n. Organized work intended to advance the social conditions of a community, and especially of the disadvantaged, by providing psychological counseling, guidance, and assistance, especially in the form of social services. —social worker n.

so-ci-e-tal (sə-sī'ī-tl) adj. Of or relating to the structure, organization, or functioning of society. —so-ci'e-tal-ly adv.

so-ci-e-ty (sə-sī'ī-tē) *n. pl. so-ci-e-ties. Abbr. soc., s., S. 1. a. The totality of social relationships among human beings. b. A group of human beings broadly distinguished from other groups by mutual interests, participation in characteristic relationships, shared institutions, and a common culture. c. The institutions and culture of a distinct self-perpetuating group. 2. An organization or association of persons engaged in a common profession, activity, or interest: a folklore society; a society of bird watchers. 3. a. The rich, privileged, and fashionable social class. b. The socially dominant members of a community.*

4. Companionship; company: enjoys the society of friends and family members.

5. Biology. A colony or community of organisms, usually of the same species: an insect society. [French société, from Old French, from Latin societās, fellowship, from socius, companion. See sek^w-1 in Appendix.]

So-ci-e-ty Islands (sə-sī'ī-tē ī'ləndz) An island group of French Polynesia in the southern Pacific Ocean east of Samoa. First visited by a Portuguese navigator in the early 17th century, the islands were named by Capt. James Cook in the 18th century and became a French protectorate in 1843.

Society of Friends (sə-sī'ī-tē ūv frëndz) n. A Christian denomination, founded in the mid-17th century in England, that rejects formal sacraments, a formal creed, a priesthood, and violence; the Quakers.

Society of Jesus (sə-sī'ī-tē ūv jē'zəs) n. Abbr. S.J. The Jesuits.

So-cin-i-an (sō-sīn'ē-ən) n. An adherent of a 16th-century Italian sect holding unitarian views, including denial of the divinity of Jesus. — adj. Of or relating to the Socinians or their doctrines. [New Latin Sociniānus, after Laelius SOCINUS and Faustus SOCINUS.] —So-cin/i-an-ism n.

So-ci-nus (sō-sī'nəs), Faustus. Originally Fausto Paolo Sozzini. 1539-1604. Italian theologian who based his anti-Trinitarian teachings on the doctrine formulated by his uncle Laelius Socinus (1525-1562), originally Lelio Francesco Maria Sozzini. Their system of Socinianism greatly influenced the development of Unitarian theology.

socio- pref. 1. Society: sociometry. 2. Social: socioeconomic. [French, from Latin socius, companion. See sek^w-1 in Appendix.]

so-ci-o-bi-ol-o-gy (sō'sē-ō-bī-ōl'ə-jē, -shē-) n. The study of the biological determinants of social behavior, based on the theory that such behavior is often genetically transmitted and subject to evolutionary processes.

—so'ci-o-bi'o-log'i-cal (-bī'ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj. —so'ci-o-bi-ol'o-gist n.

so-ci-o-cul-tur-al (sō'sē-ō-kūl'chər-əl, -shē-) adj. Of or involving both social and cultural factors. —so'ci-o-cul'tur-al-ly adv.

so-ci-o-ec-o-nom-ic (sō'sē-ō-ĕk'ə-nŏm'ik, -ē'kə-, -shē-) adj. Of or involving both social and economic factors.

so-ci-o-lin-guis-tics (sō'sē-ō-līng-gwīs'tiks, -shē-) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of language and linguistic behavior as influenced by social and cultural factors. —so'ci-o-lin'guist n. —so'ci-o-lin-guis'tic adj.

so-ci-ol-o-gy (sō'sē-ōl'ə-jē, -shē-) n. 1. The study of human social behavior, especially the study of the origins, organization, institutions, and development of human society. 2. Analysis of a social institution or societal segment as a self-contained entity or in relation to society as a whole. [French sociologie: socio-, socio- + -logie, study (from Greek -logia); see -LOGY.] —so'ci-o-log'ic (-ə-lōj'ik), so'ci-o-log'i-cal (-ī-kəl) adj. —so'ci-o-log'i-cal-ly adv.

—so'ci-ol'o-gist n.

so-ci-om-e-try (sō'sē-ŏm'ī-trē, -shē-) n. The quantitative study of interpersonal relationships in populations, especially the study and measurement of preferences.

so-ci-o-path (sō'sē-ə-pāth', -shē-) n. One who is affected with a personality disorder marked by aggressive, antisocial behavior. —so'ci-o-path'ic adj.

so-ci-o-po-li-ti-cal (sō'sē-ō-pə-līt'ī-kəl, -shē-) adj. Involving both social and political factors.

so-ci-o-psy-cho-log-i-cal (sō'sē-ō-sī'kə-lōj'ī-kəl, -shē-) adj. 1. Of or relating to social psychology. 2. Of, relating to, or combining social and psychological factors.

so-ci-o-re-lig-i-ous (sō'sē-ō-rī-līj'əs, -shē-) adj. Involving social and religious factors.

sock¹ (sŏk) n. 1. pl. socks or sox (sŏks). A short stocking reaching a point between the ankle and the knee. 2. Meteorology. A windsock. 3. a. A light shoe worn by comic actors in ancient Greek and Roman plays. b. Comic drama; comedy: “He... knew all niceties of the sock and buskin” (Byron). — v. tr. socked, sock-ing, socks. To provide with socks. — phrasal verbs. sock away. Informal. To put (money) away in a safe place for future use. sock in. To close to air traffic: fog that socked in the airport. [Middle English socke, from Old English socc, a kind of light shoe, from Latin soccus, possibly from Greek sunkhis, sukkhos, Phrygian shoe.]

sock² (sɒk) v. socked, sock-ing, socks. — v. tr. To hit or strike forcefully; punch. — v. intr. To deliver a blow. — n. A hard blow or punch. — idiom. sock it to (someone). Slang. To deliver a forceful comment, reprimand, or physical blow to someone else. [Origin unknown.]

sock-dol-a-ger also sock-dol-o-ger (sɒk-dɒlʹə-jər) n. Slang. 1. A conclusive blow or remark. 2. Something outstanding. [Origin unknown.]

sock-et (sɒkʹɪt) n. 1. An opening or a cavity into which an inserted part is designed to fit: a light-bulb socket. 2. Anatomy. a. The concave part of a joint that receives the end of a bone. b. A hollow or concavity into which a part, such as the eye, fits. — v. tr. sock-et-ed, sock-et-ing, sock-ets. To furnish with or insert into a socket. [Middle English socket, from Anglo-Norman, spearhead, diminutive of soc, plowshare, probably of Celtic origin. See sū- in Appendix.]

socket wrench (sɒkʹɪt rɛnʃ) n. A wrench with a usually interchangeable socket to fit over a nut or bolt.

sock-eye salmon (sɒkʹɪʹ sǎmʹən) n. A salmon (Oncorhynchus nerka) of northern Pacific coastal waters that is a commercially valuable food fish. Also called blueback salmon, red salmon. [By folk etymology from Halkomelem (a Central Coast Salish language) stháqəʹy.] sock-o (sɒkʹō) adj. Slang. Impressive and effective; excellent. [From SOCK².]

so-cle (sōʹkəl) n. Architecture. 1. A plain square block higher than a plinth, serving as a pedestal for sculpture, a vase, or a column. 2. A plain plinth supporting a wall. [French, from Italian zoccolo, wooden shoe, from Latin socculus, diminutive of soccus, a kind of light shoe. See SOCK¹.]

So-co-tra (sə-kōʹtrə) An island of Yemen in the Indian Ocean at the mouth of the Gulf of Aden. Known to the ancient Greeks, it came under British protection in 1886 and joined Southern Yemen (now Yemen) in 1967.

Soc-ra-tes (sɒkʹrə-tēzʹ), 470?-399 B.C. Greek philosopher who initiated a question-and-answer method of teaching as a means of achieving self-knowledge. His theories of virtue and justice have survived through the writings of Plato, his most important pupil. Socrates was tried for corrupting the minds of Athenian youth and subsequently put to death (399).

So-crat-ic (sə-krătʹɪk, sō-) adj. Of or relating to Socrates or the Socratic method: a Socratic approach to teaching.

Socratic irony (sə-krät'ik ī'rə-nē) n. Profession of ignorance and of willingness to learn as one interrogates another on the meaning of a term.

Socratic method (sə-krät'ik mēth'əd) n. Employment of Socratic irony in a philosophical discussion resulting either in a mutual confession of ignorance with a promise of further investigation or in the elicitation of a truth assumed to be innate in all rational beings.

sod¹ (söd) n. 1. A section of grass-covered surface soil held together by matted roots; turf. 2. The ground, especially when covered with grass. — v. tr.

sod-ded, sod-ding, sods. To cover with sod. [Middle English, from Middle Low German, or Middle Dutch sode.]

sod² (söd) Chiefly British. n. a. A sodomite. b. A person regarded as obnoxious or contemptible. c. A fellow; a guy: “Poor sod, he almost got lucky for once” (Jack Higgins). — v. tr. sod-ded, sod-ding, sods. To damn. Often used in the imperative with off. [Short for SODOMITE.]

so-da (sō'də) n. 1. a. Any of various forms of sodium carbonate. b. Chemically combined sodium. 2. a. Carbonated water. b. Northeastern U.S. See soft drink. See Regional note at tonic. 3. A refreshment made from carbonated water, ice cream, and usually a flavoring. 4. Games. The card turned face up at the beginning of faro. [Middle English sode, soda, saltwort, soda, from Old Italian soda, perhaps from Arabic suwwād, saltwort.]

soda ash (sō'də äsh) n. Sodium carbonate in powdery white form, used especially as an industrial chemical.

soda biscuit (sō'də bīs'kīt) n. 1. A breadlike biscuit leavened with baking soda. 2. See soda cracker.

soda cracker (sō'də kräk'ər) n. A thin, usually square cracker leavened slightly with baking soda. Also called soda biscuit soda fountain (sō'də foun'tən) n. 1. An apparatus with faucets for dispensing soda water. 2. A counter equipped for preparing and serving soft drinks, ice-cream dishes, or sandwiches. In this sense, also called Regional. spa See Regional note at spa.

soda jerk (sō'də jûrk) n. Informal. One who works at a soda fountain. [Short for soda jerker.]

soda lime (sō'də līm) n. A mixture of calcium oxide and sodium or potassium hydroxide, used as a drying agent and carbon dioxide absorbent.

so-da-list (söd'l-ist, sō-däl'ist) n. A member of a sodality.

so-da-lite (söd'l-īt') n. A blue-white vitreous mineral, Na₄Al₃Si₃O₁₂Cl, found in igneous rocks.

so-dal-i-ty (sō-däl'ī-tē) n. pl. so-dal-i-ties. 1. A society or an association, especially a devotional or charitable society for the laity in the Roman Catholic Church. 2. Fellowship. [French sodalité, from Old French, from Latin sodalitās, fellowship, from sodālis, companion. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

soda niter (sō'də nī'tər) n. See sodium nitrate.

soda pop (sō'də pɒp) n. See soft drink.

soda water (sō'də wô'tər) n. 1. a. Effervescent water, usually containing salts, charged under pressure with purified carbon dioxide gas, used as a beverage or mixer. Also called carbonated water, club soda, seltzer. b. See soft drink.

2. A solution of water, sodium bicarbonate, and acid.

sod·bus·ter (sɒd'bʊs'tər) n. Slang. A farmer.

sod·den (sɒd'n) adj. 1. Thoroughly soaked; saturated. 2. Soggy and heavy from improper cooking; doughy. 3. Expressionless, stupid, or dull, especially from drink. 4. Unimaginative; torpid. — v. sod-dened, sod-den-ing, sod-dens. — v. tr. intr. To make or become sodden. [Middle English soden, boiled, past participle of sethen, to boil. See SEETHE.] —sod'den-ly adv.

—sod'den-ness n.

Sod·dy (sɒd'ē), Frederick. 1877-1956. British chemist. He won a 1921 Nobel Prize for investigations into the origin and nature of isotopes.

Sö·der·blom (sœ'dər-blōm'), Nathan. 1866-1931. Swedish prelate and historian. He won the 1930 Nobel Peace Prize for his ecumenical activities.

Sö·der·täl·je (sœ'dər-təl'jə) A city of southeast Sweden, an industrial suburb of Stockholm. Population, 79,429.

so·di·um (sō'dē-əm) n. Symbol Na A soft, light, extremely malleable silver-white metallic element that reacts explosively with water, is naturally abundant in combined forms, especially in common salt, and is used in the production of a wide variety of industrially important compounds. Atomic number 11; atomic weight 22.99; melting point 97.8°C; boiling point 892°C; specific gravity 0.971; valence 1. [SOD(A) + -IUM.]

sodium alginate (sō'dē-əm əl'jə-nāt') n. A colorless or light yellow powdery or crystalline compound, $C_6H_7O_6Na$, used as a food thickener and stabilizer and in medicines, paint, and paper coating.

sodium ammonium phosphate (sō'dē-əm ə-mō'nē-əm fōs'fāt') n. A colorless, odorless crystalline compound, $NaNH_4HPO_4 \cdot 4H_2O$, used in the blow-pipe analysis of minerals.

sodium barbital (sō'dē-əm bär'bī-tôl') n. A white powder, $C_8H_{11}N_2NaO_3$, the soluble sodium salt of barbital, used as a hypnotic and sedative.

sodium benzoate (sō'dē-əm bĕn'zō-āt') n. The sodium salt of benzoic acid, $NaC_7H_5O_2$, used as a food preservative, an antiseptic, and an intermediate in dye manufacture and in the production of pharmaceuticals. Also called benzoate of soda sodium bicarbonate (sō'dē-əm bī-kär'bə-nāt') n. See baking soda.

sodium borate (sō'dē-əm bôr'āt') n. A crystalline compound, $Na_2B_4O_7 \cdot 10H_2O$, used in the manufacture of glass, detergents, and pharmaceuticals.

sodium carbonate (sō'dē-əm kār'bə-nāt') n. A white powdery compound, Na_2CO_3 , used in the manufacture of baking soda, sodium nitrate, glass, ceramics, detergents, and soap.

sodium chlorate (sō'dē-əm klôr'āt') n. A colorless crystalline compound, NaClO_3 , used as a bleaching and oxidizing agent and in explosives.

sodium chloride (sō'dē-əm klôr'id') n. A colorless or white crystalline compound, NaCl , used in the manufacture of chemicals and as a food preservative and seasoning.

sodium citrate (sō'dē-əm sīt'rāt') n. A white crystalline or granular compound, $\text{Na}_3\text{C}_6\text{H}_5\text{O}_7 \cdot 2\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used in photography and in medicine especially as an anticoagulant of blood stored for transfusion.

sodium cyanide (sō'dē-əm sī'ə-nīd') n. A poisonous white crystalline compound, NaCN , used in extracting gold and silver from ores and in dye manufacture.

sodium cyclamate (sō'dē-əm sī'klə-māt') n. An artificially prepared salt of cyclamic acid, $\text{C}_6\text{H}_{13}\text{NO}_3\text{SNa}$, formerly used as a low-calorie sweetener but now banned because of the possible carcinogenic effects of its metabolic products.

sodium dichromate (sō'dē-əm dī-krō'māt') n. A poisonous red-orange crystalline compound, $\text{Na}_2\text{Cr}_2\text{O}_7 \cdot 2\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used as an oxidizing agent.

sodium fluoride (sō'dē-əm flōr'id') n. A colorless crystalline salt, NaF , used in fluoridation of water, in treatment of tooth decay, and as an insecticide and a disinfectant.

sodium glu·ta·mate (sō'dē-əm glōō'tə-māt') n. Monosodium glutamate.

sodium hydrosulfite (sō'dē-əm hī'drə-sŭl'fīt') n. A yellowish powder, $\text{Na}_2\text{S}_2\text{O}_4$, used as a bleaching and reducing agent. Also called hydrosulfite, sodium hyposulfite.

sodium hydroxide (sō'dē-əm hī-drōk'sīd') n. A strongly alkaline compound, NaOH , used in the manufacture of chemicals and soaps and in petroleum refining. Also called caustic soda, lye.

sodium hypochlorite (sō'dē-əm hī'pə-klôr'īt') n. An unstable salt, NaOCl , usually stored in solution and used as a fungicide and an oxidizing bleach.

sodium hyposulfite (sō'dē-əm hī'pō-sŭl'fīt') n. 1. See sodium hydrosulfite. 2. See sodium thiosulfate.

sodium nitrate (sō'dē-əm nī'trāt') n. A white crystalline compound, NaNO_3 , used in solid rocket propellants, in the manufacture of explosives and glass and pottery enamel, and as fertilizer. Also called caliche, Chile saltpeter, saltpeter, soda niter.

sodium pentothal (sō'dē-əm pěn'tə-thôl') n. Thiopental sodium.

sodium perborate (sō'dē-əm pər-bôr'āt') n. A white odorless crystalline compound, $\text{NaBO}_2 \cdot \text{H}_2\text{O}_2 \cdot 3\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used as a mild alkaline oxidizing agent in dentifrices, as a topical antiseptic and deodorant, and as an industrial reagent.

sodium peroxide (sō'dē-əm pə-rōk'sid') n. A yellowish-white powder, Na_2O_2 , used industrially as an oxidizing and bleaching agent and medically as a germicide, an antiseptic, and a disinfectant.

sodium phosphate (sō'dē-əm fōs'fāt') n. Any of various sodium salts of phosphoric acid, especially NaH_2PO_4 , Na_2HPO_4 , and Na_3PO_4 , widely used in pharmaceutical manufacturing, medicine, and chemistry.

so-di-um-po-tas-si-um pump (sō'dē-əm-pə-tās'ē-əm pŭmp) n. A mechanism of active transport that moves potassium ions into and sodium ions out of a cell.

sodium propionate (sō'dē-əm prō'pē-ə-nāt') n. A clear crystalline compound, $\text{CH}_3\text{CH}_2\text{COONa}$, used as a fungicide and bactericide, especially to prevent food spoilage.

sodium silicate (sō'dē-əm sīl'ī-kāt') n. Any of various water-soluble silicate glass compounds used as a preservative for eggs, in plaster and cement, and in various purification and refining processes. Also called soluble glass, water glass.

sodium sulfate (sō'dē-əm sŭl'fāt') n. A white crystalline compound, Na_2SO_4 , used to manufacture paper, glass, dyes, and pharmaceuticals.

sodium sulfide (sō'dē-əm sŭl'fid') n. A hygroscopic yellow compound, Na_2S , used as a metal ore reagent and in photography, engraving, and printing.

sodium sulfite (sō'dē-əm sŭl'fīt') n. A white crystalline or powdered compound, Na_2SO_3 , used in preserving foods, silvering mirrors, developing photographs, and making dyes.

sodium thiosulfate (sō'dē-əm thī'ō-sŭl'fāt') n. A white, translucent crystalline compound, $\text{Na}_2\text{S}_2\text{O}_3 \cdot 5\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used as a photographic fixing agent and as a bleach. Also called *hypo*¹, hyposulfite, sodium hyposulfite.

so-di-um-va-por lamp (sō'dē-əm-vā'pər lămp) n. An electric lamp containing a small amount of sodium and neon gas, used in generating yellow light for lighting streets and highways.

Sod·om¹ (sōd'əm) A city of ancient Palestine possibly located south of the Dead Sea. In the Old Testament, it was destroyed along with Gomorrah because of its wickedness and depravity.

Sod·om² or sod·om (sōd'əm) n. A place well known for vice and corruption. [After Sodom¹.]

sod·om·ite (sōd'ə-mīt') n. One who engages in sodomy.

sod·om·ize (sōd'ə-mīz') v. tr. so·dom·ized, so·dom·iz·ing, so·dom·iz·es. To subject to an act of sodomy, especially forcibly.

sod·om·y (sōd'ə-mē) n. 1. Anal copulation of one male with another. 2. Anal or oral copulation with a member of the opposite sex. 3. Copulation with an animal. [Middle English sodomie, from Old French, from Sodome, Sodom, from Latin Sodoma, from Greek, from Hebrew s'dōm.]

so-ev-er (sō-ěv'ər) adv. At all; in any way: "Space to breathe, how short soever" (Ben Jonson).

SOF abbr. Sound on film.

so-fa (sō'fə) n. A long upholstered seat usually with a back and arms. [Turkish, from Arabic şuffah, carpet, divan.]

sofa bed (sō'fə bĕd) n. A sofa whose seat unfolds to form a bed.

so-far (sō'fär') n. A system for determining the position of survivors lost at sea by which an explosion is set off underwater, the time needed for the waves to reach three different locations is calculated, and the position of the explosion is ascertained by triangulation. [so(und) f(ixing) a(nd) r(anging).] so far as (sō fār āz) conj. Insofar as: So far as I am concerned, the project is over.

sof-fit (sōf'īt) n. The underside of a structural component, such as a beam, an arch, a staircase, or a cornice. [French soffite, from Italian soffitto, from Vulgar Latin suffictus*, past participle of suffigere, to fasten beneath. See SUFFIX.]

S. of Sol. abbr. Bible. Song of Solomon.

So-fi-a (sō'fē-ə, sō-fē'ə) The capital and largest city of Bulgaria, in the west-central part of the country. Originally a Thracian settlement, it passed over the centuries to Rome, Byzantium, two Bulgarian kingdoms, Ottoman Turkey, and Russia. In 1879 it became the capital of independent Bulgaria. Population, 1,102,100.

soft (sôft, sŏft) adj. soft-er, soft-est. 1. a. Easily molded, cut, or worked.

b. Yielding readily to pressure or weight. 2. Out of condition; flabby.

3. Smooth or fine to the touch: a soft fabric. 4. a. Not loud, harsh, or irritating:

a soft voice. b. Not brilliant or glaring; subdued: soft colors. 5. Not sharply drawn or delineated: soft charcoal shading; a scene filmed in soft focus. 6. Mild; balmy: a soft breeze. 7. a. Of a gentle disposition; tender. b. Affectionate: a soft glance. c. Attracted or emotionally involved: He has been soft on her for years.

d. Not stern; lenient. e. Lacking strength of character; weak. f. Informal. Simple; feeble. g. Gradually declining in trend; not firm: a soft economy; a soft com- puter market. 8. a. Informal. Easy: a soft job. b. Based on conciliation or negotiation rather than on threats or power plays: took a soft line toward their opponents. 9. Informal and entertaining without confronting difficult issues or hard facts: a soft story about a senator's private life. 10. Using or based on data that is not readily quantifiable or amenable to experimental verification or refu-tation: soft evidence; the soft sciences. 11. Of or relating to a paper currency as distinct from a hard currency backed by gold. 12. Having low dissolved mineral content. 13. Linguistics. a. Sibilant rather than guttural, as c in certain and g in gem. b. Voiced and weakly articulated: a soft consonant. c. Palatalized, as certain consonants in Slavic languages. 14. Unprotected against nuclear attack: soft missile launching sites; a soft target. — n. A soft object or part. — adv. In a soft manner; gently. [Middle English, pleasant, calm, from Old English sōfte.]

—soft/ly adv. —soft/ness n.

soft-ball (sôft'ból', sôft'-) n. Sports. 1. A variation of baseball played on a smaller diamond with a larger, softer ball that is pitched underhand. 2. The ball used in this game.

soft-boiled (sôft'boild', sôft'-) adj. 1. Boiled in the shell to a soft consistency. Used of an egg. 2. Informal. a. Softhearted; lenient. b. Sentimental.

soft-bound (sôft'bound', sôft'-) adj. Not bound between hard covers: soft-bound books.

soft chancre (sôft shäng'kær) n. See chancroid.

soft clam (sôft kläm) n. See soft-shell clam.

soft coal (sôft kōl) n. See bituminous coal.

soft-coat-ed wheaten terrier (sôft'kō'tid hwēt'n tēr'ē-ər, sôft'-) n. A medium-sized terrier of a breed that originated in Ireland, having a wheat-colored coat of soft, wavy hair.

soft-core (sôft'kôr', -kōr', sôft'-) adj. 1. Being less explicit than hard-core material in depicting or describing sexual activity: soft-core pornography.

2. Moderate: a soft-core sports fan.

soft-cover (sôft'küv'ər, sôft'-) adj. Not bound between hard covers: softcover books; a softcover edition.

soft drink (sôft drīngk) n. A nonalcoholic, flavored, carbonated beverage, usually commercially prepared and sold in bottles or cans. Regional. Also called cold drinkRegional., pop¹Regional., soda, soda pop, soda waterRegional., tonic. See Regional note at tonic.

soft drug (sôft drüg) n. A drug that is believed to be nonaddictive and less damaging to the health than a hard drug.

soft-en (sô'fən, sôf'ən) v. soft-ened, soft-en-ing, soft-ens. — v. tr. 1. To make soft or softer. 2. To undermine or reduce the strength, morale, or resistance of. 3. To make less harsh, strident, or critical: softened the last paragraph of the letter. — v. intr. To become soft or softer. —soft/en-er n.

soft-finned (sôft'find', sôft'-) adj. Having fins supported by flexible cartilaginous rays; not spiny-finned. Used of bony fishes.

soft goods (sôft gōodz) pl.n. See dry goods.

soft hail (sôft hāl) n. See snow pellet.

soft-head (sôft'hěd', sôft'-) n. A person regarded as foolish.

soft-head-ed (sôft'hěd'id, sôft'-) adj. Lacking judgment, realism, or firmness. —soft/head/ed-ly adv. —soft/head/ed-ness n.

soft-heart-ed (sôft'här'tid, sôft'-) adj. Easily moved; tender. —soft/heart/ed-ly adv. —soft/heart/ed-ness n.

soft-ie (sôf'tē, sôf'-) n. Variant of softy.

soft-land (sôft'länd', sôft'-) v. intr. tr. soft--land-ed, soft--land-ing, soft--lands. To make or cause to make a soft landing.

soft landing (sôft lăn'dĩng) n. The landing of a space vehicle on a celestial body or on Earth in such a way as to prevent damage or destruction of the vehicle.

soft-lin-er (sôft'lī'nər, sôft'-) n. One that takes a moderate or flexible approach, especially on a political issue.

soft news (sôft nōōz) n. News, as in a newspaper or television report, that does not deal with formal or serious topics and events. —soft'-news' (sôft'nōōz', -nyōōz', sôft'-) adj.

soft palate (sôft pāl'it) n. The movable fold, consisting of muscular fibers enclosed in mucous membrane, that is suspended from the rear of the hard palate and closes off the nasal cavity from the oral cavity during swallowing or sucking.

soft paste also soft-paste (sôft'pāst', sôft'-) n. Any of various ceramics containing frit and refined clay.

soft pedal (sôft pĕd'l) n. Music. A pedal used to mute tone, as on a piano.

soft-ped-al (sôft'pĕd'l, sôft'-) v. tr. soft-ped-aled or soft-ped-alled, soft-ped-al-ing or soft-ped-al-ling, soft-ped-als or soft-ped-als. 1. Music. To soften or mute the tone of by depressing the soft pedal. 2. Informal. To make less emphatic or obvious; play down: soft-pedal a potentially explosive issue.

soft rock (sôft rŏk) n. Music. A style of rock 'n' roll characterized by the predominance of melody and minimal use of electronic modulations.

soft roe (sôft rō) n. The spermatozoa or testes of a fish; milt.

soft sculpture (sôft skŭlp'chər) n. A sculpture made of pliant materials, such as cloth or foam rubber.

soft sell (sôft sĕl) n. Informal. A subtly persuasive, low-pressure method of selling or advertising.

soft-shell (sôft'shĕl', sôft'-) also soft-shelled (-shĕld') adj. Having a soft, brittle, or unhardened shell. Used of an aquatic animal. — n. A soft-shelled aquatic animal.

soft-shell clam (sôft'shĕl' klām) n. A common edible North American clam (Mya arenaria) having a thin, elongated shell, found especially along the Atlantic coast. Also called soft clam, steamer.

soft-shell crab (sôft'shĕl' krăb) n. A marine crab before its shell has hardened after molting, especially the edible species (Callinectes sapidus) of eastern North America in this stage.

soft-shelled (sôft'shĕld', sôft'-) adj. Variant of soft-shell.

soft-shelled turtle (sôft'shĕld' tŭr'tl) n. Any of various freshwater turtles of the family Trionychidae, having a flat carapace covered with leathery skin and fleshy, elongated snout.

soft-shoe (sôft'shōō', sôft'-) n. Tap dancing performed while wearing shoes without metal taps.

soft shoulder (sôft shôl'där) n. A border of soft earth running along the edge of a road.

soft soap (sôft sôp) n. 1. A fluid or semifluid soap. 2. Informal. Flattery; cajolery.

soft-soap (sôft'sôp', sôft'-) v. tr. soft--soaped, soft--soap-ing, soft-soaps. Informal. To flatter in order to gain something; cajole. —soft-soap'er n.

soft-spo-ken (sôft'spô'kən, sôft'-) adj. 1. Speaking with a soft or gentle voice: a soft-spoken instructor. 2. Smooth; ingratiating: a soft-spoken attempt at bribery.

soft spot (sôft spôt) n. 1. A tender or sentimental feeling. 2. A weak or vulnerable point: a soft spot in his defenses. 3. See fontanel.

soft-top (sôft'tôp') n. A car having a top constructed of cloth or a combination of metal and cloth. —soft'-top' adj.

soft touch (sôft tûch) n. One who is easily persuaded or taken advantage of.

soft-ware (sôft'wâr', sôft'-) n. Computer Science. The programs, routines, and symbolic languages that control the functioning of the hardware and direct its operation. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: software manufacturers; software sales.

soft water (sôft wô'tär) n. Water containing little or no dissolved salts of calcium or magnesium, especially water containing less than 85.5 parts per million of calcium carbonate.

soft-wood (sôft'wôod', sôft'-) n. 1. The wood of a coniferous tree. 2. A coniferous tree.

soft-y or soft-ie (sôf'tē, sôf'-) n. pl. soft-ies. Informal. 1. A person regarded as weak or sentimental. 2. A person who finds it difficult to punish or be strict.

SOG abbr. Special Operations Group.

sog-gy (sög'ē, sô'gē) adj. sog-gi-er, sog-gi-est. 1. Saturated or sodden with moisture; soaked: soggy clothes. 2. Lacking spirit; dull: a soggy bit of dialogue. 3. Humid; sultry: a soggy afternoon in August. [From dialectal sog, to be soaked (from Middle English soggon, soaked, probably of Scandinavian origin), or from dialectal sog, swamp.] —sog'gi-ly adv. —sog'gi-ness n.

Sog-na-fjord or Sog-ne Fjord (sông'nə-fyôr') An inlet of the Norwegian Sea in southwest Norway extending inland about 193 km (120 mi). It is the longest and deepest fjord in the country.

So-ho (sô'hô') 1. A district of central London, England. Inhabited in the 17th century mainly by immigrants, it is known today for its restaurants, theaters, and nightclubs. 2. Also So-Ho. A district of New York City on southwest Manhattan Island noted for its galleries, shops, restaurants, and artists' lofts. The area is south of Houston Street, hence the name.

soi-di-sant (swä'dē-zän') adj. Self-styled; so-called. [French : soi, oneself + disant, saying.]

soi-gné also soi-gnée (swän-yā') adj. 1. Showing sophisticated elegance; fashionable: a soigné little club. 2. Well-groomed; polished: The soigné duchess received her guests in the drawing room. [French, from Old French, past participle of soigner, to take care of, of Germanic origin.]

soil¹ (soil) n. 1. The top layer of the earth's surface, consisting of rock and mineral particles mixed with organic matter. 2. A particular kind of earth or ground: sandy soil. 3. Country; land: native soil. 4. The agricultural life: a woman of the soil. 5. A place or condition favorable to growth; a breeding ground. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, a piece of ground, from Latin solium, seat. See sed- in Appendix.]

soil² (soil) v. soiled, soil-ing, soils. — v. tr. 1. To make dirty, particularly on the surface. 2. To disgrace; tarnish: a reputation soiled by scandal. 3. To corrupt; defile. 4. To dirty with excrement. — v. intr. To become dirty, stained, or tarnished. — n. 1. a. The state of being soiled. b. A stain. 2. Filth, sewage, or refuse matter. 3. Manure, especially human excrement, used as fertilizer. [Middle English soilen, from Old French souiller, from Vulgar Latin suculāre* (from Late Latin suculus, diminutive of Latin sūs, pig); see sū- in Appendix, or from soil, pigsty, wallow (from Latin solium, seat); see SOIL¹.]

soil³ (soil) v. tr. soiled, soil-ing, soils. 1. To feed (livestock) with soilage. 2. To purge (livestock) by feeding with green food. [Origin unknown.]

soil-age (soi'līj) n. Green crops cut for feeding penned livestock.

soil pipe (soil pīp) n. A drainpipe that carries off wastes from a plumbing fixture, especially from a toilet.

soil-ure (soil'yər) n. 1. Soiling or the condition of being soiled. 2. A blot, stain, or smudge.

soi-ree also soi-rée (swä-rā') n. An evening party or reception. [French soirée, from Old French seree, from seir, evening, from Latin sērō, at a late hour, from sērus, late.]

Sois-sons (swä-sōn') A city of northern France northwest of Paris. An ancient Roman town, Soissons was long the scene of conflict, including Clovis I's defeat of the Roman legions (A.D. 486) and heavy bombardment during World Wars I and II. Population, 30,213.

so-journ (sō'jûrn', sō-jûrn') v. intr. so-journed, so-journ-ing, so-journs. To reside temporarily. See Synonyms at stay¹. — n. A temporary stay; a brief period of residence. [Middle English sojournen, from Old French sojorner, from Vulgar Latin subdiurnāre*: Latin sub-, sub- + Late Latin diurnum, day (from Latin, daily ration, from neuter of diurnus, daily, from diēs, day); see deiw- in Appendix.] — so'journ'er n.

soke (sōk) n. 1. In early English law, the right of local jurisdiction, generally one of the feudal rights of lordship. 2. The district over which soke jurisdiction was exercised. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin sōca, from Old English sōcn, act of seeking. See sāg- in Appendix.]

sol¹ (sōl) also so (sō) n. Music. The fifth tone of the diatonic scale in solfeggio. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin. See GAMUT.] sol² (sōl) n. An old French coin worth 12 deniers. [French, from Old French, from Late Latin solidus, solidus. See SOLIDUS.] sol³ (sōl) n. pl. so-les (sō'lās). A basic unit of currency in Peru. See Table at currency. [Spanish, sun (from the drawing on the coin), from Latin sōl, sun. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

sol⁴ (sōl, sōl) n. A colloidal solution. [From SOLUTION.]

Sol (sōl, sōl) n. The sun. [Middle English, from Latin sōl. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

sol. abbr. 1. Solicitor. 2. Soluble. 3. Solution.

so-la¹ (sō'lə) n. A plural of solum.

so-la² (sō'lə) adv. By oneself; alone. Used as a stage direction to a female character. [Italian, feminine of solo, solo. See SOLO.] sol-ace (sōl'is) n. 1. Comfort in sorrow, misfortune, or distress; consolation.

2. A source of comfort or consolation. — v. tr. sol-aced, sol-ac-ing, sol-ac-es. 1. To comfort, cheer, or console, as in trouble or sorrow. See Synonyms at comfort. 2. To allay or assuage: “They solaced their wretchedness, however, by duets after supper” (Jane Austen). [Middle English solas, from Old French, from Latin sōlācium, from sōlārī, to console.] — sol'ac-er n.

so-lan (sō'lən) n. See gannet. [Middle English soland: Old Norse sūla, pillar, gannet + Old Norse önd, duck.]

so-la-nine (sō'lə-nēn', -nĭn) also so-la-nin (-nĭn) n. A bitter poisonous alkaloid, C₄₅H₇₃NO₁₅, derived from potato sprouts, tomatoes, and nightshade and having narcotic properties formerly used to treat epilepsy. [French, from Latin sōlānum, nightshade, from sōl, sun. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

so-lar (sō'lər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or proceeding from the sun: solar rays.

2. Using or operated by energy derived from the sun: a solar heating system.

3. Determined or measured in reference to the sun: the solar year. [Middle English, from Latin sōlāris, from sōl, sun. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

solar battery (sō'lər băt'ə-rē) n. A system consisting of a large number of connected solar cells.

solar cell (sō'lər sēl) n. A semiconductor device that converts the energy of sunlight into electric energy. Also called photovoltaic cell solar constant (sō'lər kōn'stənt) n. The average density of solar radiation measured outside Earth's atmosphere and at Earth's mean distance from the sun, equal to 0.140 watt per square centimeter.

solar day (sō'lər dā) n. A mean solar day.

solar flare (sō'lər flār) n. A sudden eruption of hydrogen gas on the surface of the sun, usually associated with sunspots and accompanied by a burst of ultraviolet radiation that is often followed by a magnetic disturbance.

solar furnace (sō'lər fūr'nīs) n. A parabolic reflector that focuses solar radiation at a point to obtain temperatures as high as 4,000°C (7,200°F).

solar house (sō'lər hous) n. A house having large quantities of heat-absorbing material behind large glass areas, designed to use solar radiation for heating.

so-lar-i-a (sō-lār'ē-ə, sə-) n. A plural of solarium.

so-lar-im-e-ter (sō'lə-rīm'ī-tər) n. An instrument used to measure the flux of solar radiation through a surface.

so-lar-i-um (sō-lār'ē-əm, sə-) n. pl. so-lar-i-a (-ē-ə) or so-lar-i-ums. A room, gallery, or glassed-in porch exposed to the sun. [Latin sōlārium, terrace, flat housetop, from sōl, sun. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

so-lar-ize (sō'lə-rīz') v. so-lar-ized, so-lar-iz-ing, so-lar-iz-es. — v. tr. To affect by exposing to the sun's rays. — v. intr. To be overexposed. Used of photographic film. — so-lar-i-za'tion (-lər-ī-zā'shən) n.

solar month (sō'lər mūnth) n. One twelfth of a solar year, totaling 30 days 10 hours 29 minutes 3.8 seconds.

solar panel (sō'lər pǎn'əl) n. A group of connected solar cells.

solar plexus (sō'lər plēk'səs) n. 1. The large network of sympathetic nerves and ganglia located in the peritoneal cavity behind the stomach and having branching tracts that supply nerves to the abdominal viscera. 2. The pit of the stomach. [From its radially branching ganglia.]

solar system (sō'lər sīs'təm) n. The sun together with the nine planets and all other celestial bodies that orbit the sun.

solar wind (sō'lər wīnd) n. A stream of ionized particles ejected at high speeds from the surface of the sun.

solar year (sō'lər yîr) n. The period of time required for the earth to make one complete revolution around the sun, measured from one vernal equinox to the next and equal to 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 45.51 seconds. Also called astronomical year, tropical year.

so-la-ti-um (sō-lā'shē-əm) n. pl. so-la-ti-a (-shē-ə). Law. Compensation for injured feelings as distinct from financial loss or physical suffering. [Late Latin sōlācium, sōlātium, compensation, solace, from Latin. See SOLACE.]

sold (söld) v. Past tense and past participle of sell.

sol-dan (sōl'dən, sōl'-) also sou-dan (sōōd'n) n. A sultan in Egypt. [Middle English, from Old French, from Arabic sulṭān.]

sol-der (söd'ər) n. 1. Any of various fusible alloys, usually tin and lead, used to join metallic parts. 2. Something that joins or cements. — v. sol-dered, sol-der-ing, sol-ders. — v. tr. To serve as a bond between; join. — v. intr.

1. To unite or repair things with solder. 2. To be joined by or as if by solder. [Middle English soudur, from Old French soudure, soldure, from souder, soulder, to solder, from Latin solidāre, to make solid, from solidus, solid. See SOLID.]

—sol'der-er n.

sol-dier (sōl'jər) n. 1. One who serves in an army. 2. An enlisted person or a noncommissioned officer. 3. a. An active, loyal, and militant follower: a soldier in the environmental coalition. b. A trusted follower of an organized crime leader. 4. A sexually undeveloped form of certain ants and termites, having large heads and powerful jaws specialized to serve as fighting weapons. — v. intr.

sol-diered, sol-dier-ing, sol-diers. 1. To be or serve as a soldier. 2. To make a show of working in order to escape punishment. [Middle English soudier, mercenary, from Anglo-Norman soudeour, soldeier, and Old French soudoior, soudier both from Old French sol, soud, sou, from Late Latin solidum, soldum, pay, from solidus, solidus. See SOLIDUS.]

WORD HISTORY: Why do soldiers fight? One answer is hidden away in the word soldier itself. Its first recorded occurrence is found in a work composed around 1300, the word having come into Middle English (as soudier) from Old French soudoior and Anglo-Norman soudeour. The Old French word, first recorded in the 12th century, is derived from sol or soud, Old French forms of Modern French sou. There is no longer a French coin named sou, but the meaning of the word sou alerts us to the fact that money is involved. Indeed, Old French sol referred to a coin and also meant “pay,” and a soudoior was a man who fought for pay. This was a concept worth expressing in an era when many men were not paid for fighting but did it in service to a feudal superior. Thus soldier is parallel to the word mercenary, which goes back to Latin mercēnnārius, derived from merces, “pay,” and meaning “working for pay.” The word could also be used as a noun, one of whose senses was “a soldier of fortune.”

sol-dier-ly (sōl'jər-lē) adj. Of, relating to, or befitting a soldier.

soldier of fortune (sōl'jər ÷v fôr'chən) n. pl. soldiers of fortune. One who will serve in any army for personal gain or love of adventure.

sol-diers' home (sōl'jərz hōm) n. A government-funded institution for the care of armed forces veterans.

sol-dier-y (sōl'jə-rē) n. 1. Soldiers considered as a group. 2. The profession of soldiering.

sold-out (sōld'out') adj. Having all tickets or accommodations completely sold, especially ahead of time.

sole¹ (sōl) n. 1. The underside of the foot. 2. The underside of a shoe or boot, often excluding the heel. 3. The part on which something else rests while in a vertical position, especially: a. The bottom surface of a plow. b. Sports. The bottom surface of the head of a golf club. — v. tr. soled, sol-ing, soles. 1. To furnish (a shoe or boot) with a sole. 2. Sports. To put the sole of (a golf club) on the ground, as in preparing to make a stroke. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin solea, sandal, from solum, bottom, sole of the foot.]

sole² (sōl) adj. 1. Being the only one: the sole survivor of the crash. See Synonyms at single. 2. Of or relating to only one individual or group; exclusive: The court has the sole right to decide. 3. Law. Single; unmarried. [Middle English, alone, from Old French sol, from Latin sōlus. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

sole³ (sōl) n. pl. sole or soles. 1. Any of various chiefly marine flatfish of the family Soleidae, related to and resembling the flounders, especially any of several European species, such as Solea solea, valued as food fishes. 2. Any of various other flatfish, especially certain coastal flounders. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin solea, sandal, flatfish (from its shape). See SOLE¹.]

sol·e·cism (sōl'ĭ-sĭz'əm, sō'lĭ-) n. 1. A nonstandard usage or grammatical construction. 2. A violation of etiquette. 3. An impropriety, a mistake, or an incongruity. [Latin soloecismus, from Greek soloikismos, from soloikizein, to speak incorrectly, from soloikos, speaking incorrectly, after Soloi (Soli), an Athenian colony in Cilicia where a dialect regarded as substandard was spoken.] —sol'e-cist n. —sol'e-cis'tic adj.

So-le-dad (sō'lə-dād', sō'lě-thāth') A city of northern Colombia, a suburb of Barranquilla. Population, 156,846.

sole·ly (sōl'lē, sō'lē) adv. 1. Alone; singly: solely responsible. 2. Entirely; exclusively: did it solely for love.

sol·emn (sōl'əm) adj. 1. Deeply earnest, serious, and sober. 2. Somberly or gravely impressive. See Synonyms at serious. 3. Performed with full ceremony: a solemn High Mass. 4. Invoking the force of religion; sacred: a solemn vow. 5. Gloomy; somber. [Middle English solemne, from Old French, from Latin sollemnis, established, customary. See sol- in Appendix.] —sol'emn·ly adv. —sol'emn·ness n.

so·lem·ni·ty (sə-lēm'nĭ-tē) n. pl. so·lem·ni·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being solemn. 2. A solemn observance or proceeding.

sol·em·nize (sōl'əm-nĭz') v. tr. sol·em·nized, sol·em·niz·ing, sol·em·niz·es. 1. To celebrate or observe with dignity and gravity. See Synonyms at observe. 2. To perform with formal ceremony. 3. To make serious or grave. —sol'em·ni·za'tion (-nĭ-zā'shən) n.

so·le·no·don (sə-lē'nə-dŏn', -lĕn'ə-) n. A large ratlike insectivorous mammal of the family Solenodontidae, especially Solenodon paradoxus of Hispaniola and S. cubanus of Cuba, characterized by a long tubular snout and a long, stiff, scaly tail. [New Latin Sōlēnodŏn, type genus : Greek sōlĕn, pipe, channel + -odŏn, -odon.]

so·le·noid (sō'lə-noid') n. 1. A current-carrying coil of wire that acts like a magnet when a current passes through it. 2. An assembly used as a switch, consisting of a coil and a metal core free to slide along the coil axis under the influence of the magnetic field. [French solénoïde, from Greek sōlēnoeidēs, pipe-shaped : sōlēn, pipe + -oidēs, -oid.] —so'le·noi'dal (-noid'l) adj.

—so'le·noi'dal·ly adv.

So·lent (sō'lənt) A narrow channel between the Isle of Wight and the southern mainland of England. The Solent provides access to the port of Southampton.

sole·plate (sōl'plāt') n. The underside of a clothes iron.

sole·print (sōl'prɪnt') n. 1. A print of the sole of the foot. 2. A print of the sole of the foot made for identification, as of a newborn infant.

so·les (sō'lās) n. Plural of sol³.

so·le·us (sō'lē-əs) n. pl. so·le·i (-lē-ī'). A broad, flat muscle of the calf of the leg, situated under the gastrocnemius. [New Latin, from Latin solea, sandal. See SOLE¹.]

sol·fa (sōl-fä') Music. n. 1. The set of syllables do, re, mi, fa, sol, la, and ti, used to represent the tones of the scale. 2. Use of these syllables. — v. intr. tr. sol·faed, sol·fa·ing, sol·fas. To use the sol-fa syllables or sing using these syllables. [Italian solfa, from Medieval Latin : sol, note of the scale; see GAMUT + fa, note of the scale; see GAMUT.]

sol·fa·ta·ra (sōl'fə-tär'ə) n. A volcanic area that gives off sulfurous gases and steam. [Italian, from solfo, sulfur, from Latin sulfur.] —sol'fa·ta'ric adj.

sol·fège (sōl-fězh', sōl-) n. Music. Solfeggio. [French, from Italian solfeggio. See SOLFEGGIO.]

sol·feg·gio (sōl-fěj'ē-ō', -fěj'ō) n. pl. sol·feg·gi (-fěj'ē) or sol·feg·gios.

Music. 1. Use of the sol-fa syllables to note the tones of the scale; solmization.

2. A singing exercise in which the sol-fa syllables are used. [Italian, from solfa, sol-fa. See SOL-FA.]

sol·fe·ri·no (sōl'fə-rē'nō) n. Color. A moderate purplish red. [After Solferino, a village of northern Italy, from the discovery of a dye of this color in the same year that a battle was fought there (1859).]

so·lic·it (sə-lɪs'ɪt) v. so·lic·it·ed, so·lic·it·ing, so·lic·its. — v. tr. 1. To seek to obtain by persuasion, entreaty, or formal application: a candidate who solicited votes among the factory workers. 2. To petition persistently; importune: solicited the neighbors for donations. 3. To entice or incite to evil or illegal action. 4. To approach or accost (a person) with an offer of sexual services. — v. intr. 1. To make solicitation or petition for something desired. 2. To approach or accost someone with an offer of sexual services in return for payment. [Middle English soliciten, to disturb, from Old French solliciter, from Latin sollicitāre, from sollicitus, troubled. See SOLICITOUS.] —so·lic'i·ta'tion n.

so-lic-i-tor (sə-līs'ī-tər) n. Abbr. sol. 1. One that solicits, especially one that seeks trade or contributions. 2. The chief law officer of a city, town, or government department. 3. Chiefly British. An attorney who is not a member of the bar and who may be heard only in the lower courts. See Synonyms at lawyer.

solicitor general (sə-līs'ī-tər jən'ər-əl) n. pl. solicitors general. Abbr.

S.G., SG 1. A law officer assisting an attorney general. 2. The chief law officer in a state not having an attorney general.

so-lic-i-tous (sə-līs'ī-təs) adj. 1. a. Anxious or concerned: a solicitous parent. b. Expressing care or concern: made solicitous inquiries about our family. See Synonyms at thoughtful. 2. Full of desire; eager. 3. Marked by or given to anxious care and often hovering attentiveness. 4. Extremely careful; meticulous: solicitous in matters of behavior. [Latin sollicitus : sollus, entire; see sol- in Appendix + citus, past participle of ciĕre, to set in motion; see kei-² in Appendix.] —so-lic'i-tous-ly adv. —so-lic'i-tous-ness n.

so-lic-i-tude (sə-līs'ī-tōd', -tyōd') n. 1. The state of being solicitous; care or concern, as for the well-being of another. See Synonyms at anxiety. 2. Often solicitudes. A cause of anxiety or concern.

sol-id (sɒl'ɪd) adj. sol-id-er, sol-id-est. 1. a. Of definite shape and volume; not liquid or gaseous. b. Firm or compact in substance. See Synonyms at firm¹. 2. Not hollowed out: a solid block of wood. 3. Being the same substance or color throughout: solid gold. 4. Mathematics. Of or relating to three-dimensional geometric figures or bodies. 5. Having no gaps or breaks; continuous: a solid line of people. 6. Of good quality and substance: a solid foundation. 7. Substantial; hearty: a solid meal. 8. Sound; reliable: solid facts. 9. Financially sound. 10. Upstanding and dependable: a solid citizen. 11. Written without a hyphen or space. For example, the word software is a solid compound. 12. Printing. Having no leads between the lines. 13. Acting together; unanimous: a solid voting bloc. — n. 1. A substance having a definite shape and volume; one that is neither liquid nor gaseous. 2. Mathematics. A geometric figure having three dimensions. [Middle English solide, from Old French, from Latin solidus. See sol- in Appendix.] —sol'id-ly adv. —sol'id-ness n.

solid angle (sɒl'ɪd ɔŋ'gəl) n. Mathematics. An angle formed by three or more planes intersecting at a common point.

sol-i-dar-i-ty (sɒl'ɪ-dār'ɪ-tē) n. A union of interests, purposes, or sympathies among members of a group; fellowship of responsibilities and interests: "The perennial conflict between national egoism and international solidarity becomes more and more visible" (Isaac Deutscher). See Synonyms at unity. [French solidarité, from solidaire, interdependent, from Old French, in common, from Latin solidus, solid, whole. See SOLID.]

solid geometry (sɒl'ɪd jē-ōm'ɪ-trē) n. Mathematics. The branch of mathematics that deals with three-dimensional figures and surfaces.

sol·i·di (sɒl'ɪ-dī') n. Plural of solidus.

so·lid·i·fy (sə-lɪd'ə-fi') v. so·lid·i·fied, so·lid·i·fy·ing, so·lid·i·fies. — v. tr.

1. To make solid, compact, or hard. 2. To make strong or united. — v. intr. To become solid or united. — so·lid'·i·fi·ca'tion (-fɪ-kā'shən) n.

so·lid·i·ty (sə-lɪd'ɪ-tē) n. 1. The condition or property of being solid.

2. Soundness of mind, moral character, or finances.

solid of revolution (sɒl'ɪd ÷v rɛv'ə-lɔʊ'shən) n. Mathematics. A volume generated by the rotation of a plane figure about an axis in its plane.

solid propellant (sɒl'ɪd prə-pɛl'ənt) n. A rocket propellant in solid form, combining both fuel and oxidizer in the form of a compact, cohesive grain.

solid solution (sɒl'ɪd sə-lɔʊ'shən) n. A homogeneous crystalline structure in which one or more types of atoms or molecules may be partly substituted for the original atoms and molecules without changing the structure.

sol·id·state (sɒl'ɪd-stāt') adj. 1. Characteristic of or relating to the physical properties of solid materials, especially to the electromagnetic, thermodynamic, and structural properties of crystalline solids. 2. Based on or consisting chiefly or exclusively of semiconducting materials, components, and related devices.

sol·i·dus (sɒl'ɪ-dəs) n. pl. sol·i·di (-dī'). 1. A gold coin of the Roman Empire used in Europe until the 15th century. Also called bezant 2. Printing. A virgule; a slash. [Middle English, from Late Latin (nummus) solidus, a solid (sesterce), from Latin solidus, solid. See SOLID.]

So·li·hull (sɔ'li-hʌl') A borough of central England, a residential suburb of Birmingham. Population, 198,500.

so·lil·o·quize (sə-lɪl'ə-kwɪz') v. intr. tr. so·lil·o·quized, so·lil·o·quiz·ing, so·lil·o·quiz·es. To utter or put into the form of a soliloquy. — so·lil'·o·quist (-kwɪst), so·lil'·o·quiz'er (-kwɪ'zər) n.

so·lil·o·quy (sə-lɪl'ə-kwē) n. pl. so·lil·o·quies. 1. a. A dramatic or literary form of discourse in which a character reveals his or her thoughts when alone or unaware of the presence of other characters. b. A specific speech or piece of writing in this form of discourse. 2. The act of speaking to oneself. [Late Latin sōliloquium : Latin sōlus, alone; see s(w)e- in Appendix + Latin loquī, to speak; see talk^w- in Appendix.]

So·ling·en (zɔ'lɪŋ-ən) A city of west-central Germany east-southeast of Düsseldorf. Chartered in 1374, it is noted for its cutlery. Population, 158,418.

sol·ip·sism (sɒl'ɪp-sɪz'əm, sɔ'ɪp-) n. Philosophy. 1. The theory that the self is the only thing that can be known and verified. 2. The theory or view that the self is the only reality. [Latin sōlus, alone; see s(w)e- in Appendix + Latin ipse, self + -ISM.] — sol'ip·sist n. — sol'ip·sis'tic adj.

sol·i·taire (sɒl'ɪ-târ') n. 1. A gem, such as a diamond, that is set alone.

2. Games. Any of a number of card games played by one person. 3. Any of several thrushes of the genus Myadestes, found in North and Central America and noted for their beautiful song. [French, solitary, from Old French. See SOLITARY.]

sol-i-tar-y (söl'ī-tēr'ē) adj. 1. Existing, living, or going without others; alone: a solitary traveler. See Synonyms at alone. 2. Happening, done, or made alone: a solitary evening; solitary pursuits such as reading and sewing. 3. Remote from civilization; secluded: a solitary retreat. 4. Having no companions; lonesome or lonely. 5. Zoology. Living alone or in pairs only: solitary wasps; solitary sparrows. 6. Single and set apart from others: a solitary instance of cowardice. See Synonyms at single. — n. pl. sol-i-tar-ies. 1. A person who lives alone; a recluse. 2. Solitary confinement. [Middle English, from Old French solitaire, from Latin sōlitārius, from sōlitās, solitude, from sōlus, alone. See s(w)e- in Appendix.] — sol'i-tar'i-ly (-târ'ə-lē) adv. — sol'i-tar'i-ness n.

solitary confinement (söl'ī-tēr'ē kən-fīn'mənt) n. The confinement of a prisoner in isolation from all other prisoners.

sol-i-tude (söl'ī-tōōd', -tyōōd') n. 1. The state or quality of being alone or remote from others. 2. A lonely or secluded place. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sōlitūdō, from sōlus, alone. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: solitude, isolation, seclusion, retirement. These nouns denote the state of being alone. Solitude implies the absence of all others: “The worst solitude is to be destitute of sincere friendship” (Francis Bacon). “I love tranquil solitude” (Percy Bysshe Shelley). Isolation emphasizes total separation or detachment from others: “the isolation of Crusoe, depicted by Defoe’s genius” (Winston Churchill). “The beast and the monk, robbed of the isolation that is life to either, will die” (E.M. Forster). Seclusion suggests removal or a setting apart from others, though not necessarily complete inaccessibility; the term often connotes a withdrawal from social contact: “After the funeral the widow and family spent several days in seclusion. Retirement suggests a withdrawal from active life or to a retreat, as for serenity or privacy: “an elegant sufficiency, content,/Retirement, rural quiet, friendship, books” (James Thomson).

sol-i-tud-i-nar-i-an (söl'ī-tōōd'n-âr'ē-ən, -tyōōd'-) n. One leading a solitary or secluded life. [Latin sōlitūdō, sōlitūdin-, solitude; see SOLITUDE + -ARIAN.]

sol-ler-et (söl'ə-rēt') n. A steel shoe made of overlapping plates, forming a part of a medieval suit of armor. [French, from Old French, diminutive of soller, shoe, from Late Latin subtēlāris (calceus), (shoegear) for the sole of the foot, from sub-tēl, the hollow of the foot : Latin sub-, sub- + Latin talus, ankle; see TALUS¹.]

sol-mi-za-tion (söl'mī-zā'shən) n. Music. The act or a system of using syllables, such as do, re, and mi, to represent the tones of the scale. [French solmisation, from solmiser, to sol-fa : sol, note of the scale (from Medieval Latin); see GAMUT + mi, note of the scale (from Medieval Latin); see GAMUT.]

soln. abbr. Solution.

so-lo (sō'lō) n. pl. so-los. 1. Abbr. s. Music. A composition or passage for an individual voice or instrument, with or without accompaniment. 2. A performance by or intended for a single individual. 3. Games. Any of various card games in which one player singly opposes others. — adj. 1. Music. Composed, arranged for, or performed by a single voice or instrument. 2. Made or done by a single individual. — adv. Unaccompanied; alone: flew solo from Anchorage to Miami. — v. intr. so-loed, so-lo-ing, so-los. 1. To perform a solo. 2. To fly an airplane without a companion or an instructor, especially for the first time. [Italian, from Latin sōlus, alone. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

so-lo-ist (sō'lō-ist) n. One who performs a solo.

so-lo-is-tic (sō'lō-iz'tik) adj. Music. 1. Of, relating to, or containing a solo or soloist. 2. Having elements or qualities of or appropriate to a solo or a soloist: a passage requiring soloistic virtuosity; a balanced ensemble with no soloistic egos.

So-lo man (sō'lō mǎn) n. An extinct hominid primate (Homo soloensis) known from fossil remains of the late Pleistocene Epoch. [After the Solo River of central Java.]

Sol-o-mon (söl'ə-mən), fl. tenth century B.C. King of Israel famous for his wisdom and his architectural projects, including the Temple in Jerusalem.

Sol-o-mon-ic (söl'ə-mön'ik) adj. Exhibiting or requiring the exercise of great wisdom, especially in making difficult decisions: "The court also will have to make the Solomonic determination whether any age limit applies" (Tom Wicker).

Sol-o-mon Islands¹ (söl'ə-mən ī'ləndz) An island group of the western Pacific Ocean east of New Guinea. The volcanic islands, first visited by European explorers in the 1560's, were divided between Germany and Great Britain in the late 19th century. Australia assumed control of the northern islands in 1920. Today the northern Solomons are part of Papua New Guinea. The southern islands are an independent country.

Sol-o-mon Islands² (söl'ə-mən ī'ləndz) A country comprising the Solomon Islands southeast of Bougainville. A British protectorate after 1893, the islands achieved independence in 1978. Honiara, on Guadalcanal Island, is the capital. Population, 212,868.

Sol-o-mon's feather (söl'ə-mənz fēth'ər) n. See false Solomon's seal.

Sol-o-mon's plume (söl'ə-mənz plōm) n. See false Solomon's seal.

Sol-o-mon's seal (söl'ə-mənz sēl) n. 1. A six-pointed star or hexagram supposed to possess mystical powers. 2. Any of several plants of the genus Polygonatum, having paired, drooping, greenish or yellowish flowers.

Sol-o-mon's zigzag (söl'ə-mənz zīg'zäg') n. See false spikenard.

so-lon (sō'lən, -lōn') n. 1. A wise lawgiver. 2. A legislator. [After SOLON.]

So-lon (sō'lən, -lōn'), 638?-559? B.C. Athenian lawgiver and poet. His reforms preserved a class system based on wealth but ended privilege by birth.

so long (sō lōng) interj. Informal. Used to express good-bye.

so long as (sō lōng əz) conj. 1. During the time that; while. 2. Provided that.

Sol·ow (sō'lō), Robert Merton. Born 1924. American economist. He won a 1987 Nobel Prize for his economic models, which stress technological progress as a major factor in long-term growth.

sol·stice (sɒl'stɪs, sɒl'-, sɒl'-) n. 1. Astronomy. Either of two times of the year when the sun is at its greatest distance from the celestial equator. The summer solstice in the Northern Hemisphere occurs about June 21, when the sun is in the zenith at the tropic of Cancer; the winter solstice occurs about December 21, when the sun is over the tropic of Capricorn. The summer solstice is the longest day of the year and the winter solstice is the shortest. 2. A highest point or culmination. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sōlstitium : sōl, sun; see sāwel- in Appendix + -stitium, a stoppage; see stā- in Appendix.] —sol·sti'tial (-stɪsh'əl) adj.

Sol·ti (sɒl'tē, shōl'-), Sir Georg. Born 1912. Hungarian-born British conductor. He directed the Chicago Symphony Orchestra (1969-1979) and in 1979 became principal conductor and artistic director of the London Philharmonic. sol·u·bil·i·ty (sɒl'yə-bɪl'i-tē) n. pl. sol·u·bil·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being soluble. 2. The amount of a substance that can be dissolved in a given amount of solvent.

sol·u·bi·lize (sɒl'yə-bə-līz') v. tr. sol·u·bi·lized, sol·u·bi·liz·ing, sol·u·bi·liz·es. To make (substances such as fats and lipids) soluble in water by the action of a detergent or similar agent.

sol·u·ble (sɒl'yə-bəl) adj. Abbr. sol. 1. That can be dissolved, especially easily dissolved: soluble fats. 2. Possible to solve or explain: soluble mysteries. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin solūbilis, from Latin solvere, to loosen. See leu- in Appendix.] —sol·u·ble·ness n. —sol·u·bly adv.

soluble glass (sɒl'yə-bəl gläs) n. See sodium silicate.

soluble RNA (sɒl'yə-bəl ər'ɛn-ā') n. Abbr. sRNA Transfer RNA.

so·lum (sō'ləm) n. pl. so·la (-lə) or so·lums. The upper layers of a soil profile in which topsoil formation occurs. [Latin, base, ground.]

so·lus (sō'ləs) adv. & adj. By oneself; alone. Used as a stage direction to a male character. [Latin sōlus, alone. See SOLO.] sol·ute (sɒl'yoot, sō'loot) n. A substance dissolved in another substance, usually the component of a solution present in the lesser amount. — adj. Being in solution; dissolved. [From Middle English, loose, porous, from Latin solūtus, past participle of solvere, to loosen. See leu- in Appendix.]

so·lu·tion (sə-loō'shən) n. Abbr. sol., soln. 1. a. A homogeneous mixture of two or more substances, which may be solids, liquids, gases, or a combination of these. b. The process of forming such a mixture. 2. The state of being dissolved. 3. a. The method or process of solving a problem. b. The answer to or disposition of a problem. 4. Law. Payment or satisfaction of a claim or debt. 5. The act of separating or breaking up; dissolution. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin solūtiō, solūtiōn-, from solūtus, past participle of solvere, to loosen. See SOLUTE.]

So·lu·tre·an also So·lu·tri·an (sə-lōō'trē-ən) adj. Of or relating to the Old World Upper Paleolithic culture that succeeded the Aurignacian and was characterized by improved flint implements and stylized symbolic forms of art. [French solutréen, after Solutré-Pouilly, a village of east-central France.]

solv·a·ble (sɒl'və-bəl, sɒl'-) adj. Possible to solve: solvable problems; a solvable riddle. —solv'a·bil'i·ty, solv'a·ble·ness n.

sol·va·tion (sɒl-vā'shən, sɒl-) n. Any of a class of chemical reactions, such as the formation of hydrated copper sulfate in aqueous solution, in which solute and solvent molecules combine with relatively weak covalent bonds. [SOLV(ENT) + -ATION.]

Sol·vay (sɒl'vā, sɒl-vā'), Ernest. 1838-1922. Belgian chemist and industrialist who developed the Solvay process and established a number of factories for producing sodium carbonate.

Solvay process (sɒl'vā prɒs'ɛs') n. A process used to produce large quantities of sodium carbonate from sodium chloride, ammonia, and carbon dioxide. [After Ernest SOLVAY.]

solve (sɒlv, sɒlv) v. tr. solved, solv·ing, solves. 1. To find a solution to. 2. To work out a correct solution to (a problem). [Middle English solven, to loosen, from Latin solvere. See leu- in Appendix.] —solv'er n.

SYNONYMS: solve, decipher, resolve, unravel. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to clear up or explain something puzzling or unintelligible”: solve a riddle; can't decipher his handwriting; resolve a problem; unravel a mystery.

sol·vent (sɒl'vənt, sɒl'-) adj. 1. Capable of meeting financial obligations.

2. Chemistry. Capable of dissolving another substance. — n. 1. Chemistry. a. A substance in which another substance is dissolved, forming a solution. b. A substance, usually a liquid, capable of dissolving another substance. 2. Something that solves or explains. [French, from Latin solvēns, solvent- present participle of solvere, to loosen. See SOLVE.] —sol'ven·cy n.

sol·vol·y·sis (sɒl-vɒl'ɪ-sɪs, sɒl-) n. A chemical reaction in which the solute and solvent react to form a new compound. [SOLV(ENT) + -LYSIS.] —sol'vo·lyt'ic (-və-lɪt'ɪk) adj.

Sol·way Firth (sɒl'wā' fɪrth) An arm of the Irish Sea separating northwest England from southwest Scotland.

Sol·zhe·ni·tsyn (sɒl'zhə-nēt'sɪn, səl-zhə-nyē'tsɪn), Aleksandr Isayevich. Born 1918. Soviet writer and dissident whose works, including One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich (1962) and The Gulag Archipelago (1973-1975), exposed the brutality of the Soviet labor camp system. He was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature in 1970.

Som. abbr. Somalia.

so·ma (sō'mə) n. pl. so·ma·ta (-mə-tə) or so·mas. 1. The entire body of an organism, exclusive of the germ cells. 2. See cell body. 3. The body of an individual as contrasted with the mind or psyche. [New Latin sōma, from Greek, body. See teuə- in Appendix.]

So·ma·li (sō-mä'lē) n. pl. Somali or So·ma·lis. 1. A member of a Muslim people of Somalia and adjacent parts of Ethiopia, Kenya, and Djibouti. 2. The Cushitic language of the Somali and an official language of Somalia.

So·ma·li·a (sō-mä'lē-ə, -mä'l'yə) Abbr. Som. A country of extreme eastern Africa on the Gulf of Aden and the Indian Ocean. Arab and Persian traders first established outposts in the region between the seventh and tenth centuries. The present state was formed in 1960 from colonies previously held by Italy and Great Britain. Mogadishu is the capital and the largest city. Population, 3,645,000.

—So·ma·li·an adj. & n.

So·ma·li·land (sō-mä'lē-länd', sə-) A region of eastern Africa comprising present-day Somalia, Djibouti, and southeast Ethiopia. The area was a target of European colonization after the opening of the Suez Canal in 1869.

so many (sō mēn'ē) adj. 1. Forming an unspecified number: issued so many memos each week. 2. Forming a group: The troops fought like so many tigers.

so·ma·ta (sō'mə-tə) n. A plural of soma.

so·mat·ic (sō-mät'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or affecting the body, especially as distinguished from a body part, the mind, or the environment; corporeal or physical. See Synonyms at bodily. 2. Of or relating to the wall of the body cavity, especially as distinguished from the head, limbs, or viscera. 3. Of or relating to a somatic cell or the somatoplasm. [French somatique, from Greek sōmatikos, from sōma, sōmat-, body. See SOMA.] —so·mat·i·cal·ly adv.

somatic cell (sō-mät'ik sēl) n. Any cell of a plant or an animal other than a germ cell. Also called body cell somato- pref. 1. Body: somatology. 2. Soma: somatoplasm. [Greek sōmato-, from sōma, sōmat-, body. See teuə- in Appendix.]

so·mat·o·gen·ic (sō-mät'ə-jēn'ik, sō'mə-tə-) also so·mat·o·ge·net·ic (-jə-nēt'ik) adj. Of somatic origin; developing from the somatic cells.

so·ma·tol·o·gy (sō'mə-tōl'ə-jē) n. 1. The physiological and anatomical study of the body. 2. See physical anthropology. —so·ma·to·log·ic (sō'mə-tl-ōj'ik, sō-mät'l-), so·ma·to·log·i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. —so·ma·tol·o·gist n.

so·mat·o·me·din (sō-mät'ə-mēd'n, sō'mə-tə-) n. Any of a group of peptides produced by the liver upon stimulation by somatotropin that act directly on cartilage cells to stimulate skeletal growth. [Perhaps SOMATO(TROPIN) + (INTER)MED(IARY) + -IN.]

so-mat-o-plasm (sō-măt'ə-plāz'əm, sō'mə-tə-) n. 1. The entirety of specialized protoplasm, other than germ plasm, constituting the body. 2. The protoplasm of a somatic cell. —so'ma-to-plas'tic (sō'mə-tə-plās'tik) adj.

so-mat-o-pleure (sō-măt'ə-plōōr', sō'mə-tə-) n. A complex sheet of embryonic cells in craniate vertebrates, formed by association of part of the mesoderm with the ectoderm and developing as the internal body wall. [New Latin somatopleura : SOMATO- + Greek pleura, side.] —so-mat'o-pleu'ral (-plōōr'əl), so-mat'o-pleu'ric (-plōōr'ik) adj.

so-mat-o-sen-so-ry (sə-măt'ə-sĕn'sə-rē, sō'mə-tə-) adj. Of or relating to the perception of sensory stimuli from the skin and internal organs: the somatosensory area of the cerebral cortex.

so-mat-o-stat-in (sō-măt'ə-stăt'n, sō'mə-tə-) n. A polypeptide hormone produced chiefly by the hypothalamus that inhibits the secretion of various other hormones, such as somatotropin, glucagon, insulin, thyrotropin, and gastrin. [SOMATO(TROPIN) + -STAT + -IN.]

so-mat-o-ther-a-py (sō-măt'ə-thĕr'ə-pĕ, sō'mə-tə-) n. pl.

so-mat-o-ther-a-pies. Treatment of mental illness by physical means, such as drugs, shock therapy, or lobotomy.

so-mat-o-troph-in (sə-măt'ə-trō'fĭn, sō'mə-tə-) n. Variant of somatotropin.

so-mat-o-trop-ic hormone (sə-măt'ə-trōp'ik hōr'mōn', -trō'pik, sō'mə-tə-) n. See somatotropin.

so-mat-o-tro-pin (sə-măt'ə-trō'pĭn, sō'mə-tə-) also so-mat-o-tro-phin (-trō'fĭn) n. A polypeptide hormone secreted by the anterior lobe of the pituitary gland that promotes growth of the body, especially by stimulating the release of somatomedin, and that influences the metabolism of proteins, carbohydrates, and lipids. Also called growth hormone, somatotropic hormone. [SOMATO- + -TROP(IC) + -IN.]

so-mat-o-type (sō-măt'ə-tĭp', sō'mə-tə-) n. The structure or build of a person, especially to the extent to which it exhibits the characteristics of an ectomorph, an endomorph, or a mesomorph. —so-mat'o-ty'pic (-tĭp'ik) adj.

som-ber (sŏm'bər) adj. 1. a. Dark; gloomy. b. Dull or dark in color.

2. a. Melancholy; dismal: a somber mood. b. Serious; grave. [French sombre, from Old French, from sombrier*, to cast a shadow, from Late Latin subumbrāre, from Latin sub umbrā, in shadow : sub, sub- + umbrā, ablative of umbra, shadow.] —som'ber-ly adv. —som'ber-ness n.

som-bre (sŏm'bər) adj. Chiefly British. Variant of somber.

som-bre-ro (sŏm-brâr'ō, səm-) n. pl. som-bre-ros. A large straw or felt hat with a broad brim and tall crown, worn especially in Mexico and the American southwest. [Spanish, perhaps from sombra, shade, probably from sombrar, to shade, from Late Latin subumbrāre, to cast a shadow. See SOMBER.]

Som-bre-ro (söm-brâr'ō, səm-) An island of St. Christopher-Nevis in the Leeward Islands of the West Indies.

som-brous (söm'brəs) adj. Archaic. Somber in aspect or in character: “where... the sombrous pine/And yew-tree o'er the silver rocks decline” (William Wordsworth).

some (süm) adj. 1. Being an unspecified number or quantity: some people; some sugar. 2. Unknown or unspecified by name: Some man called. 3. Logic. Being part and perhaps all of a class. 4. Informal. Remarkable: She is some skier. — pron. 1. An indefinite or unspecified number or portion: We took some of the books to the auction. See Usage Note at every. 2. An indefinite additional quantity: did the assigned work and then some. — adv. 1. Approximately; about: Some 40 people attended the rally. 2. Informal. Somewhat: some tired. [Middle English, from Old English sum, a certain one. See sem⁻¹ in Appendix.]

-some¹ suff. Characterized by a specified quality, condition, or action: bothersome. [Middle English -som, from Old English -sum, -like. See sem⁻¹ in Appendix.]

-some² suff. A group of a specified number of members: threesome. [Middle English -sum, from Old English sum, some. See SOME.]

-some³ suff. 1. Body: centrosome. 2. Chromosome: monosome. [From Greek sōma, body. See teuə- in Appendix.]

some-bod-y (süm'böd'ē, -büd'ē, -bə-dē) pron. An unspecified or unknown person; someone. See Usage Note at he¹. — n. pl. some-bod-ies. Informal. A person of importance: “Obviously she was somebody—a real presence in the room” (Oleg Cassini).

some-day (süm'dā') adv. At an indefinite time in the future.

USAGE NOTE: Someday (adverb) and sometime express future time indefinitely. For example, We'll succeed someday. Come sometime. Let's meet sometime when your schedule permits. This sense can also be conveyed by some day and some time. The two-word forms are always used when some is an adjective modifying and specifying a more particular day or time (used as nouns): Come some day (not someday) soon. Choose some day (not someday) that is not so busy. See Usage Note at sometime.

some-how (süm'həu') adv. In a way not specified, understood, or known.

some-one (süm'wүн', -wən) pron. An unspecified or unknown person; somebody. — n. Informal. A somebody.

some-place (sŭm'plās') adv. & n. Somewhere: "I didn't care where I was from so long as it was someplace else" (Garrison Keillor). See Usage Note at every-place.

som-er-sault also sum-mer-sault (sŭm'ər-sôlt') n. 1. An acrobatic stunt in which the body rolls in a complete circle, heels over head. Also called somersetRegional., tumbleset. 2. A complete reversal, as of sympathies or opinions. — v. intr. som-er-sault-ed, som-er-sault-ing, som-er-saults. To execute a somersault. [Obsolete French sombresault, variant of sobresault, from Old Provençal sobresaut: sobre-, above (from Latin suprā); see uper in Appendix + saut, leap (from Latin saltus, from past participle of salīre, to leap); see sel- in Appendix.]

som-er-set also sum-mer-set (sŭm'ər-sĕt') n. See somersault (n., sense 1). — v. intr. som-er-set-ted, som-er-set-ting, som-er-sets. To perform a somersault. [Alteration of SOMERSAULT.]

Som-er-set (sŭm'ər-sĕt', -sĭt) 1. A town of southeast Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Fall River. Population, 17,655. 2. A community of central New Jersey, a suburb of New Brunswick. Population, 21,731.

Somerset Island (sŭm'ər-sĕt' i'lənd) An island of Northwest Territories, Canada, separated from Boothia Peninsula by a narrow strait.

Som-er-ville (sŭm'ər-vĭl') A city of eastern Massachusetts, a residential and industrial suburb of Boston. Population, 76,210.

Som-er-ville (sŭm'ər-vĭl'), Mary Fairfax Greig. 1780-1872. British mathematician and astronomer whose Physical Geography (1848) won her international acclaim. The first women's college at Oxford University was funded by and named after her.

so-mes-thet-ic (sō'mĕs-thĕt'ĭk) adj. Somatosensory. [som(a) + Greek aisthētikos, of sense perception; see AESTHETIC.]

some-thing (sŭm'thĭŋ) pron. 1. An undetermined or unspecified thing: "We're all recalling something, furtively seeking something" (Virginia Woolf).

2. One having essentially the same attributes, character, or essence as another: "Something of the Crusades [survives] in the modern traveler" (Anatole Broyard). — n. Informal. A remarkable or important thing or person: He thinks he is something in that uniform. — adv. 1. A little; somewhat: She looks something like her mother. 2. Informal. To an extreme degree: He drinks something fierce. — idioms. something else. Informal. One that is very special or quite remarkable: Her new film is something else. something of. To some extent: Our professor is something of an eccentric.

some-time (sŭm'tĭm') adv. 1. At an indefinite or unstated time: I'll meet you sometime this afternoon. 2. At an indefinite time in the future: Let's get together sometime. 3. Obsolete. Sometimes. 4. Archaic. Formerly. — adj. 1. Having been at some prior time; former: a sometime secretary. 2. Usage Problem. Occasional.

USAGE NOTE: Sometime as an adjective has been employed to mean “former” since the 15th century. It has come to be used in the 20th century with the meaning “occasional”: the team’s sometime star and sometime problem child. This latter use, however, is unacceptable to a majority of the Usage Panel. See Usage Note at someday.

some·times (sŭm’/tīmz’) adv. 1. At times; now and then. 2. Obsolete. At some previous time; formerly.

some·way (sŭm’/wā’) also some·ways (-wāz’) adv. In some way or another; somehow.

some·what (sŭm’/hwöt’, -wöt’, -hwüt’, -wüt’, -hwət, -wət) adv. To some extent or degree; rather. — pron. Something.

some·where (sŭm’/hwâr’, -wâr’) adv. 1. At, in, or to a place not specified or known: found it somewhere in the woods. 2. To a place or state of further development or progress: finally getting somewhere. 3. Approximately; roughly: somewhere about halfway through. — n. An unknown or unspecified place: “A big dog, a hound with a strain of mastiff from somewhere” (William Faulkner).

some·wheres (sŭm’/hwârz’, -wârz’) adv. Informal. Somewhere.

so·mite (sō’/mīt’) n. 1. Zoology. See metamere. 2. A segmental mass of mesoderm in the vertebrate embryo, occurring in pairs along the notochord and developing into muscles and vertebrae. [Greek sōma, body; see SOMA + -ITE¹.]

—so·mit’ic (sō-mīt’/īk) adj.

Somme (sŏm, sôm) A river, about 241 km (150 mi) long, of northern France flowing west and northwest to the English Channel. Tanks were first used in warfare during the devastating Battle of the Somme (1916).

som·me·lier (sŭm’/əl-yā’, sô’/mə-lyā’) n. A wine steward in a restaurant.

[French, from Old French, officer in charge of provisions, pack-animal driver, alteration of sommerier*, from sommier, beast of burden, from Vulgar Latin saumārius*. See SUMMER².]

somn- pref. Variant of somni-.

som·nam·bu·late (sŏm-nām’/byə-lāt’) v. intr. som·nam·bu·lat·ed, som·nam·bu·lat·ing, som·nam·bu·lates. To walk or perform another act while asleep or in a sleeplike condition. —som·nam’bu·lar (-lər) adj.

—som’nam·bu·la’tion n.

som·nam·bu·lism (sŏm-nām’/byə-līz’əm) n. See sleepwalking.

—som·nam’bu·list n. —som·nam’bu·lis’tic adj.

somni- or somn- pref. Sleep: somnambulate. [From Latin somnus, sleep. See swep- in Appendix.]

som·ni·fa·cient (sŏm’/nə-fā’shənt) adj. Tending to produce sleep; hypnotic.

—som’ni·fa’cient n.

som-nif-er-ous (sŏm-nĭf'ər-əs) also som-nif-ic (-nĭf'ĭk) adj. Inducing sleep; soporific. —som-nif'er-ous-ly adv.

som-nil-o-quy (sŏm-nĭl'ə-kwē) n. pl. som-nil-o-ques. The act or habit of talking in one's sleep. [SOMNI- + Latin loquī, to speak; see SOLILOQUY.]

—som-nil'o-quist n.

som-no-lence (sŏm'nə-ləns) n. A state of drowsiness; sleepiness.

som-no-lent (sŏm'nə-lənt) adj. 1. Drowsy; sleepy. 2. Inducing or tending to induce sleep; soporific. [Middle English sompnolent, from Old French, from Latin somnolentus : somnus, sleep; see swep- in Appendix + -olentus, abounding in.] —som'no-lent-ly adv.

So-mo-za De-bay-le (sə-mō'zə də-bī'lā, sŏ-mô'sä thĕ-vī'lĕ), Anastasio.

1925-1980. Nicaraguan politician who headed Nicaragua's army and took over the presidency in 1963. In 1979 Somoza was overthrown by the Sandinista National Liberation Front, and he was later assassinated in Paraguay.

so much (sŏ mŭch) adv. 1. In that degree; to that extent. Used with the comparative form of adjectives: If she wins the award, so much the better for the team. 2. In such a degree; to such an extent: The ideas of the candidates are so much alike that he could see no difference between them. — adj. 1. So great in quantity, degree, or extent: There's been so much rain the crops are rotting in the fields. 2. Equivalent or equal in quantity, degree, or extent: The report sounded like so much baloney. — pron. 1. An unspecified amount or degree: charged so much a yard. 2. Everything that can be said or done. Used to summarize or dismiss something: So much for the real story behind this sensational trial.

so much as (sŏ mŭch əz) adv. Used as an intensive to indicate something unexpected; even: He wouldn't so much as look at me.

son (sŭn) n. Abbr. s. 1. One's male child. 2. A male descendant. 3. A man considered as if in a relationship of child to parent: a son of the soil. 4. One personified or regarded as a male descendant. 5. Used as a familiar form of address for a young man. 6. Son. The second person of the Trinity. [Middle English, from Old English sunu. See seuə⁻¹ in Appendix.] —son'ly adj.

so-nance (sŏ'nəns) n. Sound.

so-nant (sŏ'nənt) Linguistics. adj. Voiced, as a speech sound. — n. 1. A voiced speech sound. 2. A syllabic consonant in Indo-European. [Latin sonāns, sonant- present participle of sonāre, to sound. See swen- in Appendix.]

so-nar (sŏ'när') n. 1. A system using transmitted and reflected underwater sound waves to detect and locate submerged objects or measure the distance to the floor of a body of water. 2. An apparatus, as one in a submarine, using sonar. 3. Echolocation. [so(und) na(vigation and) r(anging).] so-na-ta (sə-nä'tə) n. Music. A composition for one to four instruments, one of which is usually a keyboard instrument, usually consisting of three or four independent movements varying in key, mood, and tempo. [Italian, from feminine past participle of sonare, to sound, from Latin sonāre. See swen- in Appendix.]

sonata form (sə-nä'tə fôrm) n. Music. A form consisting of three sections, the exposition, development, and recapitulation, often followed by a coda.

son·a·ti·na (sɔn'ə-tē'nə) n. Music. A sonata having shorter movements than the typical sonata. [Italian, diminutive of sonata, sonata. See SONATA.]

Sond·heim (sönd'hīm'), Stephen. Born 1930. American composer and lyricist whose musicals include Gypsy (1959) and Sweeney Todd (1979).

sonē (sōn) n. A subjective unit of loudness, as perceived by a person with normal hearing, equal to the loudness of a pure tone having a frequency of 1,000 hertz at 40 decibels. [Latin sonus, a sound. See swen- in Appendix.]

son et lu·mière (sɔn' ə lüm-yâr') n. A theatrical entertainment presented at night in a historic, usually outdoor setting, using recorded sound, lighting, and other effects to relate the history of the place. [French : son, sound + et, and + lumière, light.]

song (sông, sǒng) n. 1. Music. a. A brief composition written or adapted for singing. b. The act or art of singing: broke into song. 2. A distinctive or characteristic sound made by an animal, such as a bird or an insect. 3. a. Poetry; verse. b. A lyric poem or ballad. —idiom. for a song. Informal. At a low price: bought the antique tray for a song. [Middle English, from Old English sang. See senġ^wh- in Appendix.]

Song also Sung (sǒng) A Chinese dynasty (960-1279). Under its rule China achieved one of its highest levels of culture and prosperity.

song and dance (sông ənd dāns) n. pl. song and dances or songs and dances. 1. A theatrical performance that combines singing and dancing. 2. Slang. a. An excessively elaborate effort to explain or justify. b. An elaborate story or explanation intended to deceive or mislead.

song·bird (sông'bûrd', sǒng'-) n. A bird, especially one of the suborder Oscines of passerine birds, having a melodious song or call.

Song Da (sông' dă') See Black River (sense 1).

song·fest (sông'fĕst', sǒng'-) n. A casual gathering for group singing.

song·ful (sông'fəl, sǒng'-) adj. Melodious; tuneful. —song'ful·ly adv. —song'ful·ness n.

Song·hai also Song·hay (sông'hī', sǒng-gī') An ancient empire of western Africa in present-day Mali. It was founded c. 700 by Berbers and reached the height of its power around 1500.

Song Hong (sông' hông') See Red River (sense 1).

Song·hua (sǒng'hwă') also Sun·ga·ri (sǒng'gə-rĕ') A river of northeast China rising near the North Korean border and flowing about 1,850 km (1,150 mi) northwest, east, and northeast to the Amur River.

Song of Solomon (sông ʊv söl'ə-mən, sông) n. Abbr. S. of Sol. Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Song of Songs (sông ʊv sôngz, sôngz) n. Abbr. Sg Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

song-smith (sông'smith', sông'-) n. Music. See songwriter.

song sparrow (sông spär'ō) n. A common North American sparrow (Melospiza melodia) having streaked brownish plumage and noted for its melodious song.

song-ster (sông'stər, sông'-) n. 1. Music. a. One who sings. b. See songwriter. 2. A songbird.

song-stress (sông'stris, sông'-) n. Music. 1. A woman who performs songs, especially ballads or popular songs. 2. A woman who writes songs.

song thrush (sông thrüş) n. An Old World songbird (Turdus philomelos) having brown upper plumage and a spotted breast. Also called mavis song-writ-er (sông'rī'tər, sông'-) n. Music. One who writes lyrics or tunes, or both, for songs. Also called songsmith, songster.

son-ic (sön'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to audible sound: a sonic wave. 2. Having a speed approaching or being that of sound in air, about 1,220 kilometers (760 miles) per hour at sea level. 3. Slang. Extremely exciting and fast-paced: a sonic lifestyle. [From Latin sonus, a sound. See swen- in Appendix.] —son'ic-al-ly adv.

sonic barrier (sön'ik bär'ē-ər) n. The sudden sharp increase in aerodynamic drag experienced by aircraft approaching the speed of sound. Also called sound barrier sonic boom (sön'ik bōm) n. An explosive sound caused by the shock wave preceding an aircraft traveling at or above the speed of sound.

son-in-law (sün'in-lô') n. pl. sons-in-law (sünz'-). The husband of one's daughter.

son-net (sön'it) n. 1. A 14-line verse form usually having one of several conventional rhyme schemes. 2. A poem in this form. [French, or Italian sonetto (French, from Italian) from Old Provençal sonet, diminutive of son, song, from Latin sonus, a sound. See swen- in Appendix.]

sonnet cycle (sön'it sī'kəl) n. See sonnet sequence.

son-net-er (sön'ī-tîr') n. 1. A composer of sonnets. 2. An inferior poet.

sonnet sequence (sön'it sē'kwəns) n. A group of sonnets having a single subject or controlling idea. Also called sonnet cycle son-ny (sün'ē) n. pl. son-nies. Used as a familiar form of address for a boy or young man. [Diminutive of SON.]

sono- pref. Sound: sonobuoy. [From Latin sonus, sound. See SONIC.]

so-no-buoy (sɒn'ə-bōō'ē, -boi') n. A buoy equipped with an acoustic receiver and a radio transmitter that emits radio signals when it detects underwater sounds.

son of a bitch (sʊn ʊv ā bɪtʃ) Vulgar. n. pl. sons of bitches. Abbr. SOB A person regarded as thoroughly mean or disagreeable. — interj. Used to express annoyance, disgust, disappointment, or amazement.

son of a gun (sʊn ʊv ā gʌn) Informal. n. pl. sons of guns. A person; a fellow: That son of a gun knows how to sell cars and sell them well. — interj. Used to express annoyance, disappointment, or surprise.

Son of God (sʊn ʊv gɒd) n. Jesus.

Son of Man (sʊn ʊv mæn) n. Jesus.

son-o-gram (sɒn'ə-grām', sō'nə-) n. An image, as of an unborn fetus or an internal body organ, produced by ultrasonography. Also called echogram, sonograph, ultrasonogram.

son-o-graph (sɒn'ə-gräf', sō'nə-) n. See sonogram. — so-nog'ra-pher (sə-nɒg'rə-fər) n. — son'o-graph'ic adj.

so-nog-ra-phy (sə-nɒg'rə-fē) n. Ultrasonography.

so-nom-e-ter (sə-nɒm'ɪ-tər) n. See audiometer.

so-no-rant (sə-nôr'ənt, -nôr'-, sɒn'ər-) n. Linguistics. A voiced consonant regarded as a syllabic sound, as the last sound in the word sudden. [SONOR(OUS) + -ANT.]

so-nor-i-ty (sə-nôr'ɪ-tē, -nôr'-) n. pl. so-nor-i-ties. 1. The quality or state of being sonorous; resonance. 2. A sound.

so-no-rous (sə-nôr'əs, -nôr'-, sɒn'ər-) adj. 1. Having or producing sound. 2. Having or producing a full, deep, or rich sound. 3. Impressive in style of speech: a sonorous oration. [From Latin sonōrus, from sonor, sound, from sonāre, to sound. See swen- in Appendix.] — so-no'rous-ly adv. — so-no'rous-ness n.

sons-in-law (sʊnz'ɪn-lô') n. Plural of son-in-law.

Son-tag (sɒn'täg'), Susan. Born 1933. American writer noted for her essays on contemporary culture, especially those contained in Against Interpretation (1966).

Soo Canals (sō kə-nälz') See Sault Sainte Marie Canals.

soo-chong (sō'chɒŋg', -shɒŋg') n. Variant of souchong.

Soo-chow (sō'chou', -jō') See Suzhou.

soon (sōn) adv. soon-er, soon-est. 1. In the near future; shortly. 2. Without hesitation; promptly: came as soon as possible. 3. Before the usual or appointed time; early. 4. With willingness; readily: I'd as soon leave right now. 5. Obsolete. Immediately. — idioms. no sooner than. As soon as: No sooner was the frost off the ground than the work began. sooner or later. At some time; eventually: Sooner or later you will have to face the facts. [Middle English sone, from Old English sōna, immediately.]

USAGE NOTE: No sooner, as a comparative adverb, should be followed by than not when, as in these typical examples: No sooner had she come than the maid knocked. I had no sooner left than she called.

soon·er (sōō'nər) n. Slang. 1. A person who settled homestead land in the western United States before it was officially made available, in order to have first choice of location. 2. Sooner. A native or resident of Oklahoma. [From SOON.]

Soong (sōōng) Chinese family including Charles Jones Soong (died 1927), a Methodist missionary, and his son T.V. Soong (1894-1971), who was premier of the Nationalist government (1944-1947). His sister Soong Ch'ing-ling (1892-1981) married Sun Yat-Sen, and their younger sister Soong Mei-ling (born c. 1897) married Chiang Kai-Shek.

soot (sōōt, sōōt) n. The fine black particles, chiefly composed of carbon, produced by incomplete combustion of coal, oil, wood, or other fuels. [Middle English, from Old English sōt. See sed- in Appendix.] —soot v.

sooth (sōōth) Archaic. adj. 1. Real; true. 2. Soft; smooth. — n. Truth; reality. [Middle English, from Old English sōth. See es- in Appendix.] —sooth'ly adv.

soothe (sōōth) v. soothed, sooth-ing, soothes. — v. tr. 1. To calm or placate. 2. To ease or relieve (pain, for example). — v. intr. To bring comfort, composure, or relief. [Middle English sothen, to verify, from Old English sōthian, from sōth, true. See es- in Appendix.] —sooth'er n.

sooth·fast (sōōth'fāst') adj. Archaic. 1. Truthful; honest. 2. True; real. [Middle English sothfast, from Old English sōthfæst: sōth, truth; see SOOTH + fæst, fixed, fast; see FAST¹.]

sooth·ing (sōō'thīng) adj. Tending to soothe. —sooth'ing-ly adv.
—sooth'ing-ness n.

sooth·say (sōōth'sā') v. intr. sooth-said (-sēd'), sooth-say-ing, sooth-says (-sēz'). To foretell future events; predict. [Back-formation from SOOTHSAYER.]

sooth·say·er (sōōth'sā'ər) n. One who claims to be able to foretell events or predict the future; a seer.

sooth·say·ing (sōōth'sā'īng) n. 1. The art or practice of foretelling events. 2. A prediction; a prophecy.

soot·y (sōōt'ē, sōō'tē) adj. soot-i-er, soot-i-est. 1. Covered with or as if with soot. 2. Of or producing soot. —soot'i-ness n.

sooty grouse (sōōt'ē grous) n. See blue grouse.

sooty mold (sōōt'ē mōld) n. 1. A blackish growth produced by fungi of the genus Capnodium, which grows in the droppings of aphids on plants. 2. Any of the fungi that produce such growth.

sooty shearwater (sōōt'ē shîr'wô'tər) n. A shearwater (Puffinus griseus) of the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, having sooty gray or brown plumage and dark bill and feet. Also called mutton-bird sooty tern (sōōt'ē tûrn) n. A tern (Sterna fuscata) found along most tropical coasts, having black plumage above and white below. Also called wide-awake sop (söp) v. sopped, sop-ping, sops. — v. tr. 1. To dip, soak, or drench in a liquid; saturate. 2. To take up by absorption: sop up water with a paper towel.

— v. intr. To be or become thoroughly soaked or saturated. — n. 1. A piece of food soaked or dipped in a liquid. 2. a. Something yielded to placate or soothe. b. A bribe. [From Middle English soppe, bread dipped in liquid, from Old English sopp-, in soppcuppe, cup for dipping bread in. See seuə-² in Appendix.]

SOP abbr. Standard operating procedure.

sop. abbr. Music. Soprano.

soph. abbr. Sophomore.

soph-ism (söf'iz'əm) n. 1. A plausible but fallacious argument. 2. Deceptive or fallacious argumentation. [Middle English sophime, sophisme, from Old French sophime, from Latin sophisma, from Greek, from sophizesthai, to be subtle, from sophos, clever, wise.]

soph-ist (söf'ist) n. 1. a. One skilled in elaborate and devious argumentation. b. A scholar or thinker. 2. Sophist. a. A Greek philosopher of pre-Socratic times who inquired about and speculated on theology, metaphysics, mathematics, and the natural and biological sciences. b. A professional philosopher and teacher, especially one belonging to a group of fifth-century B.C. Greek philosophers who specialized in dialectic, argumentation, and rhetoric and who were often known for their elaborate and specious arguments. [Middle English sophiste, from Latin sophista, from Greek sophistēs, from sophizesthai, to become wise, from sophos, clever.]

so-phis-tic (sə-fis'tik) or so-phis-ti-cal (-tī-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of sophists. 2. Apparently sound but really fallacious; specious: sophistic refutations. — so-phis'ti-cal-ly adv.

so-phis-ti-cate (sə-fis'tī-kāt') v. so-phis-ti-cat-ed, so-phis-ti-cat-ing, so-phis-ti-cates. — v. tr. 1. To cause to become less natural, especially to make less naive and more worldly. 2. To make impure; adulterate. See Synonyms at adulterate. 3. To make more complex or inclusive; refine. — v. intr. To use sophistry. — n. (-kīt) A sophisticated person. [Middle English sophisticaten, to adulterate, from Medieval Latin sophisticāre, sophisticāt-, from Latin sophisticus, sophistic, from Greek sophistikos, from sophistēs, sophist. See SOPHIST.]

— so-phis'ti-ca'tion n. — so-phis'ti-ca'tor n.

so-phis-ti-cat-ed (sə-fis'tī-kā'tid) adj. 1. Having acquired worldly knowledge or refinement; lacking natural simplicity or naiveté. 2. Very complex or complicated: the latest and most sophisticated technology. 3. Suitable for or appealing to the tastes of sophisticates: a sophisticated drama. —so·phis'ti·cat'ed·ly adv.

soph·is·try (sɒf'ī-strē) n. pl. soph·is·tries. 1. Plausible but fallacious argumentation. 2. A plausible but misleading or fallacious argument.

Soph·o·cles (sɒf'ə-klēz'), 496?-406 B.C. Greek dramatist. Together with Euripides and Aeschylus, he is considered one of the greatest dramatists of ancient Greece. His surviving plays include Ajax, Oedipus Rex, Antigone, and Oedipus at Colonus. —Soph'·o·cle'an adj.

soph·o·more (sɒf'ə-môr', -môr', sɒf'môr', -môr') n. Abbr. soph. 1. a. A second-year student in a U.S. college. b. A tenth-grade student in a U.S. high school. 2. A person in the second year of carrying out an endeavor. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: her sophomore year; a sophomore class. [Alteration (probably influenced by Greek sophos, wise, and mōros, dull), of sophumer, from obsolete sophom, sophism, dialectic exercise, variant of SOPHISM.]

soph·o·mor·ic (sɒf'ə-môr'ik, -môr'-, -môr'-) adj. 1. Of or characteristic of a sophomore. 2. Exhibiting great immaturity and lack of judgment: sophomoric behavior such as driving too fast in an attempt to show off.

—soph'·o·mor'i·cal·ly adv.

so·por (sɒ'pər, -pôr') n. A deep, lethargic, or unnatural sleep. [Latin. See swep- in Appendix.]

sop·o·rif·er·ous (sɒp'ə-rif'ər-əs, sɒ'pə-) adj. Inducing or tending to induce sleep; soporific. —sop'·o·rif'er·ous·ly adv. —sop'·o·rif'er·ous·ness n.

sop·o·rif·ic (sɒp'ə-rif'ik, sɒ'pə-) adj. 1. Inducing or tending to induce sleep. 2. Drowsy. — n. A drug or other substance that induces sleep; a hypnotic.

sop·ping (sɒp'ɪŋ) adj. Thoroughly soaked; drenched. — adv. Extremely; very: sopping wet.

sop·py (sɒp'ē) adj. sop·pi·er, sop·pi·est. 1. Soaked; sopping. 2. Rainy. 3. Sentimental; maudlin. See Synonyms at sentimental.

so·pra·ni·no (sɒ'prə-nē'nō, sɒ'p'rə-) n. pl. so·pra·ni·nos. Music. An instrument, such as a recorder, that is higher in pitch than the soprano of its family. [Italian, diminutive of soprano, soprano. See SOPRANO.]

so·pran·o (sə-prän'ō, -prä'nō) n. pl. so·pran·os. Abbr. s., S., sop. Music.

1. The highest singing voice of a woman or young boy. 2. A singer having such a voice. 3. A part written in the range of such a voice. 4. The tonal range characteristic of a soprano. 5. An instrument with this range. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a soprano balalaika; a soprano aria. [Italian, from sopra, above, from Latin suprā. See uper in Appendix.]

soprano clef (sə-prän'ō klēf) n. Music. The C clef positioned to indicate that the bottom line of a staff represents the pitch of middle C.

Sop-ron (shō'prōn') A city of northwest Hungary near the Austrian border.

Originally a Celtic settlement, it was a military outpost during Roman times and is one of the oldest cultural centers in Hungary. Population, 56,421.

so-ra (sôr'ə, sōr'ə) n. A North American rail (Porzana carolina) having grayish-brown plumage and a short stout bill, commonly found in freshwater bogs or swamps. [Origin unknown.]

sorb¹ (sôrb) v. tr. sorbed, sorb-ing, sorbs. To take up and hold, as by absorption or adsorption. [Back-formation from ADSORB, and ABSORB.] —sorb'a-bil'i-ty n. —sorb'a-ble adj. —sorb'ent adj. & n.

sorb² (sôrb) n. 1. Any of several Old World trees of the genus Sorbus in the rose family, as the service tree or the rowan. 2. The fruit of any of these plants. [French sorbe, sorb fruit, from Old French sourbe, from Vulgar Latin sorba*, from Latin sorbum.]

Sorb (sôrb) n. See Wend. [German Sorbe, perhaps variant of Serbe, Serb, from Serbian Serb.]

sor-be-fa-cient (sôr'bə-fā'shənt) adj. Promoting absorption. Used of a medicine or an agent. —sor'be-fa'cient n.

sor-bet (sôr'bĭt, sôr-bā') n. A frozen dessert similar to a frappé, usually made from fruit juice and having a mushy consistency. [French, from Ottoman Turkish sherbet, sweet fruit drink. See SHERBET.]

Sor-bi-an (sôr'bē-ən) n. 1. See Wend. 2. See Wendish. —Sor'bi-an adj.

sor-bic acid (sôr'bĭk äs'ĭd) n. A white crystalline solid, C₆H₈O₂, found in the berries of the mountain ash and also synthesized, used as a food preservative and fungicide. [From SORB².]

sor-bi-tol (sôr'bĭ-tôl', -tôl', -tôl') n. A white, sweetish, crystalline alcohol, C₆H₈(OH)₆, found in various berries and fruits or prepared synthetically, used as a flavoring agent, a sugar substitute for people with diabetes, and a moisturizer in cosmetics and other products. [SORB² + -IT(E)² + -OL¹.]

sor-bose (sôr'bôs') n. A white, sweetish crystalline sugar, C₆H₁₂O₆, used in the manufacture of ascorbic acid. [SORB(ITOL) + -OSE².]

sor-cer-er (sôr'sər-ər) n. One who practices sorcery; a wizard. [Middle English sorser, sorcerer, from Old French sorcier, from Vulgar Latin sortiārius*, from Latin sors, sort-, lot, fortune. See ser² in Appendix.]

sor-cer-ess (sôr'sər-ĭs) n. A woman who practices sorcery.

sor-cer-y (sôr'sə-rē) n. Use of supernatural power over others through the assistance of spirits; witchcraft. [Middle English sorcerie, from Old French, from sorcier, sorcerer. See SORCERER.] —sor'cer-ous adj. —sor'cer-ous-ly adv.

sord (sôrd) n. A flight of mallards. See Synonyms at flock¹. [Middle English sorde, from sorden, to rise up in flight, from Old French sordre, from Latin sur-gere, to rise.]

sor-did (sôr'dīd) adj. 1. Filthy or dirty; foul. 2. Depressingly squalid; wretched: sordid shantytowns. 3. Morally degraded: “The sordid details of his orgies stank under his very nostrils” (James Joyce). See Synonyms at mean². 4. Exceedingly mercenary; grasping. [Middle English sordide, festering, purulent, from Latin sordidus, dirty, from sordēre, to be dirty.] —sor'did-ly adv. —sor'did-ness n.

sor-di-no (sôr-dē'nō) n. pl. sor-di-ni (-nē). Music. A mute for an instrument. [Italian, from sordo, deaf, mute, from Latin surdus.]

sore (sôr, sōr) adj. sor-er, sor-est. 1. Painful to the touch; tender. 2. Feeling physical pain; hurting: sore all over. 3. Causing misery, sorrow, or distress; grievous: in sore need. 4. Causing embarrassment or irritation: a sore subject. 5. Full of distress; sorrowful. 6. Informal. Angry; offended. — n. 1. An open skin lesion, wound, or ulcer. 2. A source of pain, distress, or irritation. — v. tr. sored, sor-ing, sores. To mutilate the legs or feet of (a horse) in order to induce a particular gait in the animal. — adv. Archaic. Sorely. [Middle English, from Old English sār.] —sore'ness n.

so-re-di-um (sə-rē'dē-əm) n. pl. so-re-di-a (-dē-ə). A specialized asexual reproductive unit of lichens consisting of a mass of algal cells surrounded by fungal hyphae. [New Latin, diminutive of Greek sōros, heap. See SORUS.]

—so-re'di-al (-dē-əl) adj.

sore-head (sôr'hēd', sōr'-) n. Slang. One who is easily offended, annoyed, or angered.

So-rel (sə-rĕl', sô-) A city of southern Quebec, Canada, at the confluence of the St. Lawrence and Richelieu rivers. It was founded in 1672 on the site of Fort Richelieu, established in 1665. Population, 20,347.

So-rel (sô-rĕl'), Georges. 1847-1922. French political philosopher whose works advanced the revolutionary syndicalist movement. His most important book is Reflections on Violence (1908).

sore-ly (sôr'lē, sōr'-) adv. 1. Painfully; grievously. 2. Extremely; greatly: Their skills were sorely needed.

Sor-en-sen (sûr'ən-sən), Soren Peter Lauritz. 1868-1939. Danish chemist who devised the pH scale for measuring the acidity or alkalinity of solutions.

Sor-en-sen (sôr'ĭn-sən), Theodore Chaikin. Born 1928. American writer and public official who served as a special counsel to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson (1961-1964). Among his works are Decision-Making in the White House (1963) and The Kennedy Legacy (1969).

sore throat (sôr thrōt) n. Any of various inflammations of the tonsils, pharynx, or larynx characterized by pain in swallowing.

sor-gho (sôr'gō) n. Variant of sorgo.

sor-ghum (sôr'gəm) n. 1. An Old World grass (Sorghum bicolor), several varieties of which are widely cultivated as grain and forage or as a source of syrup.

2. Syrup made from the juice of this plant. [New Latin Sorghum, genus name, from Italian sorgo, a tall cereal grass, probably from Medieval Latin surgum, perhaps variant of Vulgar Latin syricum*, from neuter of Latin Syricus, Syrian, from Syria.] sor-go also sor-gho (sôr'gō) n. pl. sor-gos also sor-ghos. Any of various sorghums that are cultivated as a source of syrup. Also called sweet sorghum [Italian. See SORGHUM.]

so-ri (sôr'ī, sōr'ī) n. Plural of sorus.

sor-i-cine (sôr'ī-sīn', sōr'-) adj. Of, belonging to, or resembling the shrews. [Latin sōricīnus, from sōrex, sōric-, shrew.]

so-ri-tes (sə-rī'tēz, sō-) n. pl. sorites. Logic. A form of argument in which a series of incomplete syllogisms is so arranged that the predicate of each premise forms the subject of the next until the subject of the first is joined with the predicate of the last in the conclusion. [Latin sōrītēs, from Greek sōreitēs, from sōros, heap. See teuə- in Appendix.]

So-ro-ca-ba (sôr'ōō-kä'bä) A city of southern Brazil west of São Paulo. It is a commercial and industrial center. Population, 254,672.

Sor-o-kin (sə-rō'kīn, sō-), Pitirim Alexandrovich. 1889-1968. Russian-born American sociologist who founded the department of sociology at Harvard University (1930). His works include the four-volume Cultural Dynamics (1937-1941).

So-rol-la y Bas-ti-da (sə-rôl'yə ē bā-stē'də, -roi'ə, sō-rô'lyä ē bā-stē'thā), Joaquín. 1863-1923. Spanish impressionist painter known for his landscapes and beach scenes.

so-ro-ral (sə-rôr'al, -rôr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a sister; sisterly. [From Latin soror, sister. See swesor- in Appendix.]

so-ror-ate (sə-rôr'īt, -rôr'-) n. The custom of marriage of a man to his wife's sister or sisters, usually after the wife has died or proved sterile. [From Latin soror, sister. See SORORAL.]

so-ror-i-cide (sə-rôr'ī-sīd', -rôr'-) n. 1. The killing of one's sister. 2. One who kills one's own sister. [Latin soror, sister + -CIDE.] —so-ror'i-cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

so-ror-i-ty (sə-rôr'ī-tē, -rôr'-) n. pl. so-ror-i-ties. 1. A chiefly social organization of women students at a college or university, usually designated by Greek letters. 2. An association or a society of women. [Medieval Latin sorōritās, from Latin soror, sorōr-, sister. See swesor- in Appendix.]

sorp-tion (sôrp'shən) n. 1. The process of sorbing. 2. The state of being sorbed. [Back-formation from ABSORPTION, and ADSORPTION.] —sorp'tive adj.

sor-rel¹ (sôr'al, sōr'-) n. 1. Any of several plants of the genus Rumex, having acid-flavored leaves sometimes used as salad greens, especially R. acetosella, a widely naturalized Eurasian species. Also called *dock*⁴ 2. Any of various plants of the genus Oxalis, having usually compound leaves with three leaflets. [Middle English sorel, from Old French surele, from sur, sour, of Germanic origin.]

sor-rel² (sôr'əl, sör'-'-) n. 1. Color. A brownish orange to light brown. 2. A sorrel-colored horse or other animal. [From Middle English sorel, sorrel-colored, from Old French, from sor, red-brown, of Germanic origin.]

sorrel tree (sôr'əl trē) n. See sourwood.

Sor-ren-to (sə-rěn'tō, sôr-rěn'tô) A town of southern Italy on the Sorrento Peninsula, separating the Bay of Naples from the Gulf of Salerno. The city is a popular tourist center and summer resort. Population, 17,301.

sor-row (sör'ō, sôr'ō) n. 1. Mental suffering or pain caused by injury, loss, or despair. See Synonyms at regret. 2. A source or cause of sorrow; a misfortune. 3. Expression of sorrow; grieving. — v. intr. sor-rowed, sor-row-ing, sor-rows. To feel or express sorrow; grieve. See Synonyms at grieve. [Middle English sorwe, from Old English sorg.] —sor'row-er n.

sor-row-ful (sör'ō-fəl, -ə-fəl, sôr'-'-) adj. Affected with, marked by, causing, or expressing sorrow. See Synonyms at sad. —sor'row-ful-ly adv.

—sor'row-ful-ness n.

sor-ry (sör'ē, sôr'ē) adj. sor-ri-er, sor-ri-est. 1. Feeling or expressing sympathy, pity, or regret: I'm sorry I'm late. 2. Worthless or inferior; paltry: a sorry excuse. 3. Causing sorrow, grief, or misfortune; grievous: a sorry development. [Middle English sori, from Old English sārig, sad, from sār, sore.] —sor'ri-ly adv.

—sor'ri-ness n.

sort (sôrt) n. 1. A group of persons or things of the same general character; a kind. See Usage Note at kind². 2. Character or nature: books of all sorts. See Synonyms at type. 3. One that typifies a group or exemplifies a characteristic: The clerk is a decent sort. 4. A way of acting or behaving. 5. sorts. Printing. One of the characters in a font of type. — v. tr. sort-ed, sort-ing, sorts. 1. To arrange according to class, kind, or size; classify. See Synonyms at arrange. 2. To separate from others: sort out the wheat from the chaff. 3. To clarify by going over mentally: She tried to sort out her problems. —idioms. after a sort. In a haphazard or imperfect way: managed to paint the chair after a sort. of sorts (or of a sort). 2. Of a mediocre or inferior kind: a constitutional government of a sort. 3. Of one kind or another: knew many folktales of sorts. out of sorts. 4. Slightly ill. 5. Irritable; cross: The teacher is out of sorts this morning. sort of. Informal. Somewhat; rather: "Gambling and prostitution... have been prohibited, but only sort of" (George F. Will). [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sors, sort-, lot. See ser-² in Appendix.] —sort'a-ble adj. —sort'er n.

sort-a-tion (sôr-tā'shən) n. Sorting, especially when mechanized or automated: the sortation of baggage; sortation of parcels.

sor-tie (sôr'tē, sôr-tē') n. 1. a. An armed attack made from a place surrounded by enemy forces. b. The troops making such an attack. 2. A flight of a combat aircraft on a mission. — v. intr. sor-tied, sor-tie-ing, sor-ties. To go on a sortie. [French, from feminine past participle of sortir, to go out, from Old French.]

sorti·lege (sôr'tl-ij) n. 1. The act or practice of foretelling the future by drawing lots. 2. Sorcery; witchcraft. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin sortilegium, from sortilegus, diviner : Latin sors, sort-, lot; see ser-² in Appendix + Latin legere, to read; see leg- in Appendix.]

so·rus (sôr'əs, sôr'-) n. pl. so·ri (sôr'ī, sôr'ī). 1. A cluster of sporangia borne on the underside of a fern frond. 2. A reproductive structure in certain fungi and lichens. [New Latin sōrus, from Greek sōros, heap. See teuə- in Appendix.]

S O S (ěs'ō-ěs') n. 1. The letters represented by the Morse signal ••• - - - •••, used as an international distress signal, especially by ships and aircraft. 2. A call or signal for help.

So·sno·wicz (sös-nô'vyěts) A city of southern Poland, an industrial suburb of Katowice. Population, 255,000.

so·so (sō'sō') adj. Neither very good nor very bad; passable: a so-so performance; feeling so-so. — adv. Neither very well nor very poorly; passably: I swam so-so, but better than yesterday.

so·ste·nu·to (sô'stə-nōō'tō, sô'-) Music. adv. & adj. Beyond or being sustained beyond a note's full value. Used chiefly as a direction. — n. pl.

so·ste·nu·tos or so·ste·nu·ti (-tē). A sostenuto passage or movement. [Italian, past participle of sostenere, to sustain, from Latin sustinere. See SUSTAIN.]

sot (söt) n. A drunkard. [Middle English, fool, from Old English sott, from Old French sot.]

so·te·ri·ol·o·gy (sō-tîr'ē-ōl'ə-jē) n. The theological doctrine of salvation as effected by Jesus. [Greek sōtērion, deliverance (from sōtēr, savior, from saos, sōs, safe); see teuə- in Appendix + -LOGY.] — so·te·ri·o·log'ic (-ə-lŏj'ik), so·te·ri·o·log'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj.

Soth·ern (sŭth'ərn), Edward Hugh. 1859-1933. American actor noted for many Shakespearean roles opposite his wife, Julia Marlowe.

So·thic (sō'thik, sŏth'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or deriving from the name of Sothis. 2. Being the ancient Egyptian calendar year, consisting of 3654 days. 3. Being a cycle consisting of 1,460 years of 365 days in the ancient Egyptian calendar. [From Greek Sōthis, the star Sirius. See SOTHIS.]

So·this (sō'this) n. See SIRIUS. [Greek Sōthis, from Egyptian spdt.]

So·tho (sō'tō) n. 1. A group of closely related Bantu languages, including Tswana, spoken in southern Africa. 2. Any of these languages.

so·tol (sō'tōl') n. 1. Any of several tall woody plants of the genus Dasyliirion of the southwest United States and adjacent Mexico, having prickly-margined leaves and a large panicle of whitish unisexual flowers. 2. An alcoholic beverage produced from the trunks of these plants. [Perhaps from Spanish soto, thicket, woods, from Latin saltus, narrow pass, woodland.]

sot-ted (söt'īd) adj. Muddled or stupefied, especially with liquor; besotted.

—sot'ted-ly adv. —sot'ted-ness n.

sot-tish (söt'īsh) adj. 1. Stupefied from or as if from drink. 2. Tending to drink excessively; drunken. —sot'tish-ly adv. —sot'tish-ness n.

sot-to vo-ce (söt'ō vō'chē, sôt'tô vôt'chē) adv. & adj. 1. In soft tones, as not to be overheard; in an undertone: “There were aspersions cast, sotto voce, but knees quickly folded into curtsies when introductions were in order” (Barbara Lazear Ascher). 2. Music. In very soft tones. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian : sotto, under + voce, voice.]

sou (sō) n. Abbr. s. One of several coins formerly used in France, worth a small amount. [French, from Old French sol, from Late Latin solidus, solidus. See SOLIDUS.]

sou. or Sou. abbr. South; southern.

sou-a-ri nut (sō-är'ē nŭt) n. 1. A South American evergreen tree (Caryocar nuciferum) having opposite, trifoliolate leaves and drupes with nutlike stones containing seeds used as food and a source of cooking oil. 2. The nut of this tree. Also called butternut [French saouari, from Galibi sawarra.]

sou-bise (sō-bēz') n. A sauce made with onions or onion purée. [French, after Charles de Rohan, Prince de Soubise (1715-1787), French soldier.]

sou-brette (sō-brēt') n. 1. a. A saucy, coquettish, intriguing maidservant in comedies or comic opera. b. An actress or a singer taking such a part. 2. A young woman regarded as flirtatious or frivolous. [French, from Provençal soubreto, feminine of soubret, conceited, from soubra, to leave aside, from Old Provençal sobrar, to be excessive, from Latin superāre, from super, above. See uper in Appendix.]

sou-bri-quet (sō'brī-kā', -kēt', sō'brī-kā', -kēt') n. Variant of sobriquet.

sou-chong also soo-chong (sō'chōng', -shōng') n. Any of several varieties of black tea native to China and adjacent regions. [Chinese (Mandarin) xiǎo zhōng: xiǎo, small + zhōng, kind.]

sou-dan (sōd'n) n. Variant of soldan.

souf-flé (sō-flā') n. A light, fluffy baked dish made with egg yolks and beaten egg whites combined with various other ingredients and served as a main dish or sweetened as a dessert. [French, from past participle of souffler, to puff up, from Old French soffler, from Latin sufflāre: sub-, sub- + flāre, to blow; see bhlē- in Appendix.] —souf-flé' adj. —souf-fléd' adj.

Sou-fri-ère (sō'frē-ēr') A volcano, 1,234.6 m (4,048 ft) high, on St. Vincent Island in the Windward Islands of the West Indies. A violent eruption in 1902 killed more than 1,000 people.

sough (sŭf, sou) v. intr. soughed, sough-ing, soughs. To make a soft murmuring or rustling sound. — n. A soft murmuring or rustling sound, as of the wind or a gentle surf. [Middle English swowen, soughen, from Old English swōgan.]

sought (sôt) v. Past tense and past participle of seek.

souk (sōok, shōok) n. An open-air market, or a part of such a market, in an Arab city. [Arabic sūq.]

soul (sōl) n. 1. The animating and vital principle in human beings, credited with the faculties of thought, action, and emotion and often conceived as an immaterial entity. 2. The spiritual nature of human beings, regarded as immortal, separable from the body at death, and susceptible to happiness or misery in a future state. 3. The disembodied spirit of a dead human being; a shade. 4. Soul. Christian Science. God. 5. A human being: “the homes of some nine hundred souls” (Garrison Keillor). 6. The central or integral part; the vital core: “It saddens me that this network... may lose its soul, which is after all the quest for news” (Marvin Kalb). 7. A person considered as the perfect embodiment of an intangible quality; a personification: I am the very soul of discretion. 8. A person’s emotional or moral nature: “An actor is... often a soul which wishes to reveal itself to the world but dare not” (Alec Guinness). 9. A sense of ethnic pride among Black people and especially African-Americans, expressed in areas such as language, social customs, religion, and music. 10. A strong, deeply felt emotion conveyed by a speaker, a performer, or an artist. 11. Soul music. [Middle English, from Old English sāwol.] soul brother (sōl brūth’ər) n. Slang. A fellow Black man.

Sou·lé (sōō-lā’), Pierre. 1801-1870. French-born American politician. As U.S. minister to Spain (1853-1855) he helped draw up the Ostend Manifesto, a plan for the acquisition of Cuba from Spain.

soul food (sōl fōōd) n. Food, such as ham hocks and collard greens, traditionally eaten by southern American Black people.

soul·ful (sōl’fəl) adj. Full of or expressing deep feeling; profoundly emotional. —soul’ful·ly adv. —soul’ful·ness n.

soul kiss (sōl kīs) n. A kiss in which the tongue enters the partner’s mouth; a French kiss.

soul·less (sōl’līs) adj. Lacking sensitivity or the capacity for deep feeling. —soul’less·ly adv. —soul’less·ness n.

soul mate (sōl māt) n. One of two persons compatible with each other in disposition, point of view, or sensitivity.

soul music (sōl myōō’zīk) n. Music. Popular music developed by American Black people, combining elements of gospel music and rhythm and blues.

soul-search·ing (sōl’sūr’chīng) n. A penetrating examination of one’s motives, convictions, and attitudes.

soul sister (sōl sīs’tər) n. Slang. A fellow Black woman.

Soult (sōolt), Nicholas Jean de Dieu. 1769-1851. French military leader who served as marshal under Napoleon I.

sound¹ (sound) n. 1. a. Vibrations transmitted through an elastic material or a solid, liquid, or gas, with frequencies in the approximate range of 20 to 20,000 hertz, capable of being detected by human organs of hearing. b. Transmitted vibrations of any frequency. c. The sensation stimulated in the organs of hearing by such vibrations in the air or other medium. d. Such sensations considered as a group. 2. A distinctive noise: a hollow sound. 3. The distance over which something can be heard: within sound of my voice. 4. Linguistics. a. An articulation made by the vocal apparatus: a vowel sound; a speech sound. b. The distinctive character of such an articulation: The words bear and bare have the same sound. 5. A mental impression; an implication: didn't like the sound of the invitation. 6. Auditory material that is recorded, as for a movie. 7. Meaningless noise.

8. Music. A distinctive style, as of an orchestra or a singer. 9. Archaic. Rumor; report. — v. sound-ed, sound-ing, sounds. — v. intr. 1. a. To make or give forth a sound: The siren sounded. b. To be given forth as a sound: The fanfare sounded. 2. To present a particular impression: That argument sounds reasonable. — v. tr. 1. To cause to give forth or produce a sound: sounded the gong. 2. To summon, announce, or signal by a sound: sound a warning. 3. Linguistics. To articulate; pronounce: sound a vowel. 4. To make known; celebrate: “Nations unborn your mighty names shall sound” (Alexander Pope). 5. To examine (a body organ or part) by causing to emit sound; auscultate. — phrasal verb. sound off.

1. To express one's views vigorously: was always sounding off about higher taxes. 2. To count cadence when marching in military formation. [Middle English soun, from Old French son, from Latin sonus. See swen- in Appendix.]

sound² (sound) adj. sound-er, sound-est. 1. Free from defect, decay, or damage; in good condition. 2. Free from disease or injury. See Synonyms at healthy. 3. Having a firm basis; unshakable: a sound foundation. 4. Financially secure or safe: a sound economy. 5. a. Based on valid reasoning: a sound observation. See Synonyms at valid. b. Free from logical flaws: sound reasoning.

c. Logic. Of or relating to an argument in which all the premises are true and the conclusion follows from the premises. 6. Thorough; complete: a sound flogging. 7. Deep and unbroken; undisturbed: a sound sleep. 8. Free from moral defect; upright. 9. Worthy of confidence; trustworthy. 10. Marked by or showing common sense and good judgment; levelheaded: a sound approach to the problem.

11. Compatible with an accepted point of view; conservative. 12. Law. Legally valid. — adv. Thoroughly; deeply: sound asleep. [Middle English, from Old English gesund.] — sound'ly adv. — sound'ness n.

sound³ (sound) n. 1. Abbr. sd. A long, relatively wide body of water, larger than a strait or a channel, connecting larger bodies of water. 2. A long, wide ocean inlet. 3. The air bladder of a fish. [Middle English, from Old English sund, swimming, sea.]

sound⁴ (sound) v. sound-ed, sound-ing, sounds. — v. tr. 1. To measure the depth of (water), especially by means of a weighted line; fathom. 2. To try to learn the attitudes or opinions of: sounded out her feelings. 3. To probe (a body cavity) with a sound. — v. intr. 1. To measure depth. 2. To dive swiftly downward. Used of a whale or fish. 3. To look into a possibility; investigate. — n. An instrument used to examine or explore body cavities, as for foreign bodies or other abnormalities, or to dilate strictures in them. [Middle English sounden, from Old French sonder, from sonde, sounding line, probably of Germanic origin.] — sound/a-ble adj.

sound-a-like (sound'ə-lik') n. One that closely resembles another in sound, especially by imitation of voice or of musical style: an Enrico Caruso sound-alike.

sound barrier (sound bǎr'ē-ər) n. 1. See sonic barrier. 2. A set of tall wooden, plastic, or concrete barriers placed along a road or highway to muffle the sound of traffic.

sound bite (sound bīt) n. Slang. A very brief broadcast statement, as by a politician during a news report: "The box has been spitting forth maddening nine-second sound bites" (Mary McGrory).

sound-board (sound'bôrd', -bôrd') n. Music. See sounding board (n., sense 1).

sound box (sound bŏks) n. Music. A hollow chamber in the body of an instrument, such as a violin or a cello, that intensifies the resonance of the tone.

sound camera (sound kǎm'ər-ə) n. A movie camera equipped to record sound and visual image synchronously.

sound effects (sound ibreve/-fěkts') pl.n. Imitative sounds, as of thunder or an explosion, produced artificially for theatrical purposes, as for a film, play, or radio program.

sound-er¹ (soun'dər) n. One that makes a sound: a sounder of alarms.

sound-er² (soun'dər) n. One that sounds, especially a device for making soundings of the sea.

sound-er³ (soun'dər) n. A herd of wild boar. See Synonyms at flock¹. [Middle English, from Old French sondre, of Germanic origin.]

sound-ing¹ (soun'dĩng) n. 1. The act of one that sounds. 2. A probe of the environment for scientific observation. 3. a. A measured depth of water. b. Often soundings. Water shallow enough for depth measurements to be taken by a hand line.

sound-ing² (soun'dĩng) adj. 1. Emitting a full sound; resonant. 2. Noisy but with little significance.

sounding board (soun'dĩng bôrd) n. 1. Music. a. A thin board forming the upper portion of the resonant chamber in an instrument, such as a violin or piano, and serving to increase resonance. b. A structure placed behind or over a podium or platform to reflect music or a speaker's voice to an audience. Also called soundboard 2. A person or group whose reactions to an idea, opinion, or point of view will serve as a measure of its effectiveness or acceptability. 3. A device or means serving to spread or popularize an idea or a point of view.

sounding lead (soun/'dɪŋ lɛd) n. Nautical. The metal weight at the end of a sounding line.

sounding line (soun/'dɪŋ lɪn) n. Nautical. A line marked at intervals of fathoms and weighted at one end, used to determine the depth of water. Also called lead line sounding rocket (soun/'dɪŋ rɔk'ɪt) n. A rocket used to make observations anywhere within Earth's atmosphere.

sound-less (sound/'lɪs) adj. Having or making no sound. See Synonyms at still¹. —sound/less-ly adv. —sound/less-ness n.

sound-man (sound/'mɒn') n. One in charge of recording, transmitting, or amplifying sound or of producing sound effects, as for a television or radio broadcast.

sound pollution (sound pə-loʊ/'shən) n. See noise pollution.

sound-proof (sound/'pruʊf') adj. Not penetrable by audible sound. —sound/proof' v.

sound rang-ing (sound rān/'jɪŋ) n. A method for locating a source of sound, such as an enemy gun, by measuring the travel time of the sound wave to microphones at known positions.

sound stage also sound-stage (sound/'stəj') n. A room or studio that is usually soundproof, used for the production of movies.

sound-track also sound track (sound/'træk') n. 1. The narrow strip at one side of a movie film that carries the sound recording. 2. a. The music that accompanies a movie. b. A commercial phonograph record or tape of such music.

sound truck (sound trūk) n. A truck or other vehicle having one or more loudspeakers, usually situated on top, typically used for broadcasting political or commercial messages.

sound wave (sound wāv) n. A longitudinal pressure wave of audible or inaudible sound.

soup (soʊp) n. 1. A liquid food prepared from meat, fish, or vegetable stock combined with various other ingredients and often containing solid pieces.

2. Slang. Something having the appearance or a consistency suggestive of soup, especially: a. Dense fog. b. Nitroglycerine. 3. A chaotic or unfortunate situation.

—phrasal verb. soup up. Slang. To modify (something) so as to increase its capacity to perform or satisfy, especially to add horsepower or greater speed potential to (an engine or a vehicle): souped up the 1959 Ford; souping up old sound systems. —idiom. in the soup. Slang. Having difficulties; in trouble. [Middle English soupe, from Old French, of Germanic origin; see seuə-² in Appendix. Soup up from SOUP, material injected into a horse to make it run faster (influenced by SUPERCHARGE).]

soup-çon (sōōp-sōn', sōōp'sōn') n. A very small amount; a trace: not a soupçon of mercy. [French, from Old French sospeçon, suspicion, from Latin suspectiō, suspectiōn-, fear, from suspectus, past participle of susplicere, to suspect. See SUSPECT.]

soup du jour (sōōp' də zhōōr') n. pl. soups du jour. A soup featured by a restaurant on a given day. [French soupe du jour : soupe, soup + du, of the + jour, day.]

soup kitchen (sōōp kich'ən) n. A place where food is offered free or at very low cost to the needy.

soup-spoon (sōōp'spōōn') n. A spoon somewhat larger than a teaspoon, used for eating soup.

soup-y (sōō'pē) adj. soup-i-er, soup-i-est. 1. Having the appearance or consistency of soup. 2. Slang. Foggy: soupy weather. 3. Informal. Sentimental.

sour (sour) adj. sour-er, sour-est. 1. Having a taste characteristic of that produced by acids; sharp, tart, or tangy. 2. Made acid or rancid by fermentation. 3. Having the characteristics of fermentation or rancidity; tasting or smelling of decay. 4. a. Bad-tempered and morose; peevish: a sour temper. b. Displeased with something one formerly admired or liked; disenchanting: sour on ballet. 5. Not measuring up to the expected or usual ability or quality; bad. 6. Of or relating to excessively acid soil that is damaging to crops. 7. Containing excessive sulfur compounds. Used of gasoline. — n. 1. The sensation of sour taste, one of the four primary tastes. 2. Something sour. 3. A mixed drink made especially with whiskey, lemon or lime juice, sugar, and sometimes soda water. — v. tr. intr. soured, sour-ing, sours. 1. To make or become sour. 2. To make or become disagreeable, disillusioned, or disenchanting. [Middle English, from Old English sūr.] —sour'ish adj. —sour'ly adv. —sour'ness n.

SYNONYMS: sour, acid, acidulous, dry, tart. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “having a taste like that produced by an acid”: sour cider; acid, unripe grapes; an acidulous tomato; dry white wine; tart cherries.

sour-ball (sour'bōl') n. A round piece of hard, tart candy.

source (sōrs, sōrs) n. 1. The point at which something springs into being or from which it derives or is obtained. 2. The point of origin, such as a spring, of a stream or river. See Synonyms at origin. 3. One that causes, creates, or initiates; a maker. 4. One, such as a person or document, that supplies information: A reporter is only as reliable as his or her sources. 5. Physics. The point or part of a system where energy or mass is added to the system. — v. sourced, sourc-ing, sourc-es. — v. tr. 1. To specify the origin of (a communication); document: The report is thoroughly sourced. 2. To obtain (parts or materials) from another business, country, or locale for manufacture: They sourced the spoke nuts from our company. — v. intr. To obtain parts or materials from another business, country, or locale: They are sourcing from abroad in order to save money. [Middle English, from Old French source, from feminine past participle of sourdre, to rise, from Latin surgere. See SURGE.]

source book (sôrs böök) n. 1. A primary document, as of history, literature, or religion, on which secondary writings are based. 2. A collection of such documents.

source language (sôrs lǎng'gwĭj) n. Abbr. SL The language from which a translation is to be made.

sour cherry (sour chĕr'ē) n. 1. A deciduous shrub or small tree (Prunus cerasus) having white flowers and tart red fruit. 2. The edible fruit of this plant.

sour cream (sour krēm) n. 1. Cream that has soured naturally by the action of lactic-acid bacteria, used in baking certain breads and cakes. 2. A smooth, thick, artificially soured cream, widely used as an ingredient in soups, salads, and various meat dishes.

sour-dine (sōor-dĕn') n. Music. 1. An obsolete double-reed instrument with a soft tone. 2. A mute, especially one for a violin. 3. A stop on an organ producing a low, soft, muted tone. [French, from Italian sordina, feminine of sordino, a mute diminutive of sordo, deaf, mute, from Latin surdus.]

sour-dough (sour'dō') n. 1. Sour fermented dough used as leaven in making bread. 2. An early settler or prospector, especially in Alaska and northwest Canada.

sour grapes (sour grāps) pl.n. Denial of the desirability of something after one has found out that it cannot be reached or acquired: The losers' scorn for the award is pure sour grapes.

sour gum (sour gŭm) n. A deciduous tree (Nyssa sylvatica) of the eastern United States and Mexico, having glossy, somewhat leathery leaves and soft wood. Also called black gum, pepperidge.

Sou-ris (sōor'ĭs) A river, about 724 km (450 mi) long, rising in southern Saskatchewan, Canada, and flowing southeast in a great loop into northern North Dakota then north and northeast to the Assiniboine River in southwest Manitoba.

sour mash (sour māsh) n. 1. A mixture of new mash and mash from a preceding run used to distill certain malt whiskeys. 2. Whiskey so distilled.

sour orange (sour ôr'ĭnj) n. A spiny evergreen tree (Citrus aurantium) native to southern Vietnam and widely cultivated in warmer regions, having globose, reddish-orange, highly acidic fruit. Also called bigarade, bitter orange, Seville orange.

sour-puss (sour'pöös') n. Slang. A habitually gloomy or sullen person. [SOUR + PUSS².]

sour salt (sour sôlt) n. Crystals of citric acid used in cooking.

sour-sop (sour'söp') n. 1. A tropical American evergreen tree (Annona muricata) bearing spiny fruit with tart edible pulp. 2. The fruit of this tree.

sour-wood (sour'wööd') n. A deciduous tree (Oxydendrum arboreum) of the eastern United States, having drooping terminal panicles of small, white, urn-shaped flowers. Also called sorrel tree [So called from its sour-tasting leaves.]

Sou-sa (sōo'zə, -sə), John Philip. Known as "the March King." 1854-1932. American bandmaster and composer who wrote comic operas and marches such as Stars and Stripes Forever (1897).

sou-sa-phone (sōo'zə-fōn', -sə-) n. Music. A large brass wind instrument, similar in range to the tuba, having a flaring bell and a shape adapted to being carried in marching bands. [After John Philip SOUSA.]

souse¹ (sous) v. soused, sous-ing, sous-es. — v. tr. 1. To plunge into a liquid. 2. To make soaking wet; drench. See Synonyms at dip. 3. To steep in a mixture, as in pickling. 4. Slang. To make intoxicated. — v. intr. To become immersed or soaking wet. — n. 1. The act or process of sousing. 2. a. Food steeped in pickle, especially pork trimmings. b. The liquid used in pickling; brine. 3. Slang. a. A drunkard. b. A period of heavy drinking; a binge. [Middle English sousen, probably from Old French souser*, to pickle, from souz, sous, pickled meat, of Germanic origin. See sal- in Appendix.]

souse² (sous) v. soused, sous-ing, sous-es. Archaic. — v. tr. To pounce on; attack. — v. intr. To swoop down, as an attacking hawk does. — n. Obsolete. A swooping motion of attack. [From Middle English souse, swooping motion, alteration of sours, source, a rising. See SOURCE.]

sous-lik (süs'lik) n. Variant of suslik.

Sousse (sōos) also Su-sah or Su-sa (sōo'sə, -zə) A city of northeast Tunisia on an inlet of the Mediterranean Sea. Founded in ancient times by the Phoenicians, it was an important city under the Romans and Carthaginians and later under the Arabs (9th-11th centuries) and the French (19th-20th centuries). Population, 69,530.

sous vide (sōo vēd') n. The cooking of various ingredients in a plastic pouch. [French, in a vacuum, vacuum-packed : sous, under + vide, vacuum.] — sous-vide' (sōo-vēd') adj.

sou-tache (sōo-tăsh') n. A narrow flat braid in a herringbone pattern, used for trimming and embroidery. [French, from Hungarian sujtás.]

sou-tane (sōo-tăn' -tăn') n. A cassock, especially one that buttons up and down the front. [French, alteration (influenced by French sous, under), of obsolete sottane, from Italian sottana, from sotto, under, from Latin subtus, from sub. See upo in Appendix.]

Sou-ter (sōō'tər), David Hackett. Born 1939. American jurist who was appointed an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1990.

south (south) n. Abbr. S, S., s, s., so., So., sou., Sou. 1. a. The direction along a meridian 90° clockwise from east; the direction to the right of sunrise. b. The cardinal point on the mariner's compass 180° clockwise from due north and directly opposite north. 2. An area or a region lying in the south. 3. Often South. a. The southern part of the earth. b. The southern part of a region or country. 4. South. The southern part of the United States, especially the states that fought for the Confederacy in the Civil War. — adj. Abbr. S, S., s, s., so., So., sou., Sou. 1. To, toward, of, facing, or in the south. 2. Originating in or coming from the south: a hot south wind. — adv. Abbr. S, S., s, s., so., So., sou., Sou. In, from, or toward the south. [Middle English, from Old English sūth. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

South Af-ri-ca (south əf'rī-kə) Abbr. S.Afr., S.A. A country of southern Africa on the Atlantic and Indian oceans. First settled by the Dutch in the mid-17th century, the region passed to Great Britain in 1814 but was hotly contested by descendants of the Dutch settlers in the Boer War (1899-1902). The British and Boer colonies formed a union in 1910 and became a republic in 1961. Pretoria is the administrative capital; Cape Town, the legislative capital; and Bloemfontein, the judicial capital. Johannesburg is the largest city. Population, 24,208,140. —South Af-ri-can adj. & n.

South A-mer-i-ca (south ə-mēr'ī-kə) Abbr. S.A. A continent of the southern Western Hemisphere southeast of North America between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. It extends from the Caribbean Sea southward to Cape Horn. —South A-mer'i-can adj. & n.

South-amp-ton (south-hämp'tən, sou-thämp'-) 1. A borough of south-central England on an inlet of the English Channel opposite the Isle of Wight. Founded on the site of Roman and Saxon settlements, it has long been a major port, especially for passenger ships. Population, 208,800. 2. A village of southeast New York on the southeast coast of Long Island. It is primarily a summer resort. Population, 4,000.

South-amp-ton (south-hämp'tən, sou-thämp'-), Third Earl of Title of Henry Wriothesley. 1573-1624. English politician, soldier, and patron of Shakespeare as well as a number of other Elizabethan poets. Shakespeare's Venus and Adonis and Rape of Lucrece are dedicated to him.

Southampton Island (south-hämp'tən ī'lənd) An island of eastern Northwest Territories, Canada, at the entrance to Hudson Bay.

South At-lan-tic Ocean (south ət-län'tik ō'shən) The southern part of the Atlantic Ocean, extending southward from the equator to Antarctica.

South-a-ven (south'ā'vən) A community of extreme northwest Mississippi, a suburb of Memphis, Tennessee. Population, 17,949.

South Bend (south bĕnd) A city of northern Indiana near the Michigan border northwest of Fort Wayne. A fur-trading post was established here in 1820. Population, 105,511.

south-bound (south'bound') adj. Going toward the south.

South-bridge (south'brij') A town of south-central Massachusetts southwest of Worcester. Incorporated in 1816, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 17,816.

south by east (south bī ēst) n. Abbr. SbE The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due south and south-southeast, or 168°45' east of due north. — adv. & adj. Abbr. SbE Toward or from south by east.

south by west (south bī wĕst) n. Abbr. SbW The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due south and south-southwest, or 168°45' west of due north. — adv. & adj. Abbr. SbW Toward or from south by west.

South Car-o-li-na (south kă'r'ə-lī'nə) Abbr. SC, S.C. A state of the southeast United States bordering on the Atlantic Ocean. It was admitted as one of the original Thirteen Colonies in 1788. First visited by Spanish explorers in the early 1500's, the region was granted by Charles II of England to eight of his principal supporters in 1663. The territory was divided into the colonies of North Carolina and South Carolina in 1729. South Carolina was a leader in the movement for independence from Great Britain and was the first state to secede from the Union (1860), thus precipitating the Civil War. Columbia is the capital and the largest city. Population, 3,505,707. — South Car'o-lin'i-an (-līn'ē-ən) adj. & n.

South Central Niger-Congo (south sĕn'trəl nī'jər-kōng'gō) n. A branch of the Niger-Congo language family.

South Charles-ton (south chărl'stən) A city of west-central West Virginia, an industrial suburb of Charleston. Population, 15,968.

South Chi-na Sea (south chī'nə sē) An arm of the western Pacific Ocean bounded by southeast China, Taiwan, the Philippines, Borneo, and Vietnam.

South Da-ko-ta (south də-kō'tə) Abbr. SD, S.D., S.Dak. A state of the north-central United States. It was admitted as the 40th state in 1889. Acquired in the Louisiana Purchase, the region became part of the Dakota Territory in 1861 and was split off from North Dakota at the time it achieved statehood. Pierre is the capital and Sioux Falls the largest city. Population, 699,999. — South Da-ko'tan adj. & n.

South De-ca-tur (south dī-kā'tər) A community of northwest Georgia, a suburb of Atlanta. Population, 28,100.

South-down (south'doun') n. Any of a breed of small, hornless sheep of English origin, having short, dense, fine-textured wool. [After the South Downs.]

South Downs (south dounz) See Downs.

South Dum Dum (south dŭm' dŭm') A city of eastern India, a suburb of Calcutta. Population, 230,266.

south-east (south-ĕst', sou-ĕst') n. Abbr. SE 1. The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due south and due east, or 135° east of due north. 2. An area or a region lying in the southeast. 3. Southeast. A region of the southeast United States generally including Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, and Florida. — adj. Abbr. SE 1. To, toward, of, facing, or in the southeast. 2. Originating in or coming from the southeast: a southeast wind. — adv. Abbr. SE In, from, or toward the southeast. —south-east'ern adj.

Southeast A-sia (south-ĕst' ā'zhə, ā'shə) A region of Asia bounded roughly by the Indian subcontinent on the west, China on the north, and the Pacific Ocean on the east. It includes Indochina, the Malay Peninsula, and the Malay Archipelago. —Southeast A'sian adj. & n.

southeast by east (south-ĕst' bī ĕst) n. Abbr. SEbE The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between southeast and east-southeast, or 123°45' east of due north. — adv. & adj. Abbr. SEbE Toward or from southeast by east.

southeast by south (south-ĕst' bī south) n. Abbr. SEbS The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between southeast and south-southeast, or 146°15' east of due north. — adv. & adj. Abbr. SEbS Toward or from southeast by south.

south-east-er (south-ĕ'stər, sou-ĕ'-) n. A storm or gale blowing from the southeast.

south-east-er-ly (south-ĕ'stər-lē, sou-ĕ'-) adj. 1. Situated toward the southeast. 2. Coming or being from the southeast. —south-east'er-ly adv.

south-east-ward (south-ĕst'wərd, sou-ĕst'-) adv. & adj. Toward, to, or in the southeast. — n. A southeastward direction, point, or region. —south-east-ward-ly adv. , adj. —south-east'wards adv.

South El Mon-te (south ĕl mŏn'tē) A city of southern California, a suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 20,850.

South-end-on-Sea (sou'thĕnd-ŏn-sē', -ŏn-) A borough of southeast England at the mouth of the Thames River estuary. It is a manufacturing center and popular seaside resort. Population, 157,100.

south-er (sou'thər) n. A strong wind coming from the south.

south-er-ly (sŭth'ər-lē) adj. 1. Situated toward the south. 2. Coming or being from the south: southerly winds. — n. pl. south-er-lies. A storm or wind coming from the south. —south'er-ly adv.

south-ern (sŭth'ərn) adj. Abbr. S, S., s, s., so., So., sou., Sou. 1. Situated in, toward, or facing the south. 2. Coming from the south: southern breezes.

3. Native to or growing in the south. 4. Often Southern. Of, relating to, or characteristic of southern regions or the South. 5. Being south of the equator.

[Middle English southerne, from Old English sūtherne. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

—south'ern-ness' n.

Southern Alps (sŭth'ərən əlps) A mountain range of South Island, New Zealand, paralleling the western coast and rising to 3,766.4 m (12,349 ft).

Southern Bug (sŭth'ərən bōog, bōōk) See Bug (sense 2).

Southern Cross (sŭth'ərən krōs) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere near Centaurus and Musca. Also called CruX Southern Crown (sŭth'ərən kroun) n. See Corona Australis.

Southern Educated Standard (sŭth'ərən ɛj'ə-kā'tīd stān'dərd) n. See Received Pronunciation.

south·ern·er also South·ern·er (sŭth'ər-nər) n. A native or inhabitant of the south, especially the southern United States.

Southern Hemisphere (sŭth'ərən hĕm'ī-sfir') n. 1. The half of the earth south of the equator. 2. Astronomy. The half of the celestial sphere south of the celestial equator.

South·ern·ism (sŭth'ər-nīz'əm) n. 1. An expression or a pronunciation characteristic of the southern United States or southern England. 2. A trait, an attitude, or a practice characteristic of the South or southerners, especially in the United States.

southern lights (sŭth'ərən līts) pl.n. See aurora australis.

south·ern·most (sŭth'ərən-mōst') adj. Farthest south.

Southern Paiute (sŭth'ərən pī'yoōt') n. 1. See Paiute (n., sense 1b). 2. The Uto-Aztec language of the Southern Paiute.

Southern prickly ash (sŭth'ərən prīk'lē əsh) n. See Hercules' club (n., sense 2).

Southern Spor·a·des (sŭth'ərən spōr'ə-dēz', spō-rä'thĕs) See Sporades.

south·ern·wood (sŭth'ərən-wōōd') n. An aromatic southern European shrubby woody plant (Artemisia abrotanum) having finely divided grayish foliage and globose, nodding, creamy-white flower heads. Also called old man Southern Yem·en (sŭth'ərən yĕm'ən, yā'mən) A former country of southwest Asia on the Arabian Peninsula. A British protectorate from 1882 to 1914, it became fully independent in 1967 and united with North Yemen in 1990 to form the new country of Yemen.

South Eu·clid (south yoō'klīd) A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 23,866.

Sou·they (sou'thē, sŭth'ē), Robert. 1774-1843. British writer noted for his romantic poetry, criticism, and biographical works.

South Farm·ing·dale (south fār'mīng-dāl') An unincorporated community of southeast New York on Long Island east of New York City. It is mainly residential. Population, 20,500.

South-field (south/'fēld') A city of southeast Michigan, an industrial suburb of Detroit on the Rouge River. Population, 75,728.

South Frigid Zone (south frīj/'id zōn) See Frigid Zone.

South-gate (south/'gāt') A city of southeast Michigan, a residential suburb of Detroit. Population, 30,771.

South Gate (south gāt) A city of southern California, an industrial suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 86,284.

South Geor-gia (south jôr/'jə) A British-administered island in the southern Atlantic Ocean east of Cape Horn. A dependency of the Falkland Islands, it was claimed by Capt. James Cook in 1775.

South Had-ley (south hăd/'lē) A town of western Massachusetts on the Connecticut River north of Springfield. Mainly residential, it is the site of Mount Holyoke College (established 1837). Population, 16,685.

South Hol-land (south hōl/'ənd) A village of northeast Illinois, an industrial suburb of Chicago. Population, 22,105.

south-ing (sou/'thɪŋ) n. 1. The difference in latitude between two positions as a result of a movement to the south. 2. Progress toward the south.

South-ing-ton (sŭth/'ɪŋ-tən) A town of central Connecticut northeast of Waterbury. It has been a manufacturing center since the 1770's. Population, 38,518.

South Island (south ī/'lənd) An island of New Zealand southwest of North Island, from which it is separated by Cook Strait. It is the larger but less populous of the country's two principal islands.

South Kings-town (south kɪŋz/'toun') A town of southern Rhode Island south-southwest of Providence. It was a stronghold of the Narragansett during King Philip's War (1675-1676). Population, 20,414.

South Ko-re-a (south kə-'rē'ə, kô-, kō-) A country of eastern Asia at the southern end of the Korean peninsula. Part of the ancient country of Korea, it has been divided from North Korea since the end of the Korean War (1950-1953). Seoul is the capital and the largest city. Population, 39,951,000. —South Ko-re'an adj. & n.

South Lake Ta-hoe (south lāk tə/'hō) A city of eastern California on Lake Tahoe near the Nevada border. It is a year-round resort. Population, 21,586.

south-land or South-land (south/'lənd', -lənd) n. A region in the south of a country or an area. —south/'land-er n.

South Loup (south lōöp) A river, about 245 km (152 mi) long, of central Nebraska flowing east and southeast to unite with the North Loup and Middle Loup rivers and form the Loup River.

South Mi-am-i Heights (south mī-ăm/'ē hīts, -ăm'ə) A city of southeast Florida, a suburb of Miami. Population, 30,030.

South Mil-wau-kee (south mīl-wô'kē) A city of southeast Wisconsin, a manufacturing suburb of Milwaukee. Population, 20,958.

South Na-han-ni (south nə-hăn'ē) A river, about 563 km (350 mi) long, of southwest Northwest Territories, Canada, flowing to the Liard River.

South Or-ange (south ôr'īnj, ôr'-) A village of northeast New Jersey west of Newark. Mainly residential, it is the site of Seton Hall University (established 1856). Population, 16,390.

South Ork-ney Islands (south ôrk'nē ī'ləndz) A group of British-administered islands in the southern Atlantic Ocean southeast of Cape Horn. A dependency of the Falkland Islands, the island group was first visited by sealers in 1821.

South Pa-cif-ic Ocean (south pə-sīf'ik ô'shən) The southern part of the Pacific Ocean, extending southward from the equator to Antarctica.

South Pas-a-de-na (south päs'ə-dē'nə) A city of southern California, a mainly residential suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 23,936.

South Pass (south päs) A broad valley in southwest Wyoming at the southern end of the Wind River Range. It was a gateway for immigration to the Far West along the Oregon Trail.

south-paw (south'pô') n. Slang. A left-handed person, especially a left-handed baseball pitcher. [From the practice in baseball of arranging the diamond with the batter facing east to avoid the afternoon sun. A left-handed pitcher facing west would therefore have his pitching arm toward the south of the diamond.]

South Plain-field (south plān'fēld') A borough of northeast-central New Jersey southwest of Elizabeth. It is an industrial center. Population, 20,489.

South Platte River (south plăt rīv'ər) A river of central and northeast Colorado and west-central Nebraska flowing about 724 km (450 mi) eastward to the North Platte River to form the Platte River.

South Po-lar Region (south pō'lər rē'jən) See Polar Regions.

South Pole (south pōl) n. 1. a. The southern end of Earth's axis of rotation, a point in Antarctica. b. The celestial zenith of this terrestrial point. c. south pole. The southern end of the axis of rotation of a planet or other celestial body. 2. south pole. The south-seeking magnetic pole of a straight magnet.

South-port (south'pôrt', -pôrt') A borough of northwest England on Liverpool Bay north of Liverpool. It is a seaside resort with varied light industries. Population, 90,000.

South Port-land (south pôrt'lənd, pôrt'-) A city of southwest Maine, a residential suburb of Portland. Population, 23,163.

South River (south rīv'ər) The Delaware River. It was so named by Dutch explorers to distinguish it from the North River, an estuary of the Hudson River.

south-ron (sŭth'rən) n. 1. Often Southron. A person who lives in the south, especially an Englishman as called by a Scotsman. 2. A native or inhabitant of the American South. Used by the Confederates in the Civil War. — adj. Scots.

Southern. [Middle English, variant of southerne, southern. See SOUTHERN.]

South Saint Paul (south sānt pōl') A city of southeast Minnesota, an industrial suburb of St. Paul on the Mississippi River. Population, 20,197.

South Sand-wich Islands (south sänd'wīch' ī'ləndz, sän'-) A group of British-administered volcanic islands in the southern Atlantic Ocean east-southeast of Cape Horn. Formerly part of the Falkland Islands Dependency, the islands were discovered in 1775 and are now included in the British Antarctic Territory.

South San Fran-cis-co (south sän' frən-sīs'kō) A city of western California, an industrial suburb of San Francisco on San Francisco Bay. Population, 54,312.

South Sas-katch-e-wan River (south sǎ-skäch'ə-wān' rīv'ər, -wən) A river of Canada flowing about 885 km (550 mi) from southern Alberta to central Saskatchewan to join the North Saskatchewan River and form the Saskatchewan River.

South Sea Islands (south sē ī'ləndz) The islands of the southern Pacific Ocean, roughly coextensive with Oceania. — South Sea Is/land-er n.

South Seas (south sēz) The oceans south of the equator, especially the southern Pacific Ocean. The name South Sea, or El Mar del Sur, was originally used by Balboa for the entire Pacific Ocean (discovered in 1513).

South Shet-land Islands (south shēt'lənd ī'ləndz) An archipelago in the southern Atlantic Ocean off Antarctica. Formerly used as land bases by sealers and whalers, the islands are part of the British Antarctic Territory although they have also been claimed by Argentina and Chile.

South Shields (south shēldz) A borough of northeast England at the mouth of the Tyne River east of Newcastle. Founded in the 13th century, it is a major port and shipbuilding center. Population, 162,500.

south-south-east (south'south-ēst', sou'sou-ēst') n. Abbr. SSE The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between south and southeast, or 157°30' east of due north. — adj. Abbr. SSE To, toward, of, facing, or in the south-southeast. — adv. Abbr. SSE In, from, or toward the south-southeast.

south-south-west (south'south-wēst', sou'sou-wēst') n. Abbr. SSW The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due south and southwest, or 157°30' west of due north. — adj. Abbr. SSW To, toward, of, facing, or in the south-southwest. — adv. Abbr. SSW In, from, or toward the south-southwest.

South Tem-per-ate Zone (south tēm'pər-īt zōn, tēm'prīt) See Temperate Zone.

South Vi-et-nam (south vē-ēt'nām', -nām', vē'īt-, vyēt'-) A former country of southeast Asia. It existed from 1954, after the fall of the French at Dien Bien Phu, to 1975, when the South Vietnamese government collapsed at the end of the Vietnam War. It is now part of the country of Vietnam. —South south·ward (south'wərd, sūth'ərd) adv. & adj. Toward, to, or in the south.

Vi-et'nam·ese' (-nə-mēz', -mēs') adj. & n.

— n. A southward direction, point, or region. —south'ward·ly adv. , adj.

—south'wards adv.

South Wa-zir·i·stan (south wə-zîr'î-stän', -stän') See Waziristan.

south·west (south-wĕst', sou-wĕst') n. Abbr. SW 1. The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between due south and due west, or 135° west of due north. 2. An area or a region lying in the southwest. 3. Southwest. A region of the southwest United States generally including New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, California, and Nevada and sometimes Utah and Colorado. — adj. Abbr. SW 1.

To, toward, of, facing, or in the southwest. 2. Originating in or coming from the southwest: a southwest wind. — adv. Abbr. SW In, from, or toward the southwest. —south·west'ern adj.

South-West Af·ri·ca (south'wĕst äf'rî-kə) See Namibia.

southwest by south (south-wĕst' bî south) n. Abbr. SWbS The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between southwest and south-southwest, or 146°15' west of due north. — adv. & adj. Abbr. SWbS Toward or from southwest by south.

southwest by west (south-wĕst' bî wĕst) n. Abbr. SWbW The direction or point on the mariner's compass halfway between southwest and west-southwest, or 123°45' west of due north. — adv. & adj. Abbr. SWbW Toward or from southwest by west.

south·west·er (south-wĕs'tər, sou-wĕs'-) also sou'·west·er (sou-wĕs'-) n.

1. A storm or gale blowing from the southwest. 2. A waterproof hat of material such as plastic, oilskin, or canvas, with a broad brim behind to protect the neck.

south·west·er·ly (south-wĕs'tər-lē, sou-wĕs'-) adj. 1. Situated toward the southwest. 2. Coming or being from the southwest. —south·west'er·ly adv.

south·west·ward (south-wĕst'wərd, sou-wĕst'-) adv. & adj. Toward, to, or in the southwest. — n. A southwestward direction, point, or region.

—south·west'ward·ly adv. , adj. —south·west'wards adv.

South Whit·ti·er (south hwīt'ē-ər, wīt'-) A community of southern California, a suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 43,815.

South Wind·sor (south wīn'zər) A town of north-central Connecticut north-northeast of Hartford. It was set off from Windsor in 1845. Population, 22,090.

Sou·tine (sōo-tēn'), Chaim. 1893-1943. Lithuanian-born French expressionist painter whose works are often disturbing presentations of distorted figures and gruesome subjects. Among his paintings are Side of Beef (1925) and The Head Valet (1928).

sou·ve·nir (sōō'və-nîr', sōō'və-nîr') n. A token of remembrance; a memento. [French, from Old French, to recall, memory, from Latin subvenire, to come to mind : sub-, sub- + venire, to come; see g^wā- in Appendix.]

sou'·west·er (sou-wēs'tər) n. Variant of southwester.

sov·er·eign (söv'ər-ĭn, söv'rĭn) n. Abbr. sov. 1. One that exercises supreme, permanent authority, especially in a nation or other governmental unit, as: a. A king, queen, or other noble person who serves as chief of state; a ruler or monarch. b. A national governing council or committee. 2. A nation that governs territory outside its borders. 3. A gold coin formerly used in Great Britain. — adj. Abbr. sov. 1. Self-governing; independent: a sovereign state. 2. Having supreme rank or power: a sovereign prince. 3. Paramount; supreme: her sovereign virtue is compassion. 4. a. Of superlative strength or efficacy: a sovereign remedy. b. Unmitigated: sovereign contempt. [Middle English soverain, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin superānus*, from Latin super, above. See uper in Appendix.] — sov'er·eign·ly adv.

sov·er·eign·ty (söv'ər-ĭn-tē, söv'rĭn-) n. pl. sov·er·eign·ties. 1. Supremacy of authority or rule as exercised by a sovereign or sovereign state. 2. Royal rank, authority, or power. 3. Complete independence and self-government. 4. A territory existing as an independent state.

so·vi·et (sō'vĕ-ĕt', -ĭt, söv'ĕ-, sō'vĕ-ĕt') n. 1. One of the popularly elected legislative assemblies that existed at local, regional, and national levels in the former Soviet Union. 2. a. Soviet. A native or inhabitant of the former Soviet Union. b. Soviets. The government of the former Soviet Union. Used with the. — adj. 1. Often Soviet. Of or relating to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. 2. Of or relating to a soviet. [Russian sovét, council, soviet, from Old Russian sŭvětŭ. See ksun- in Appendix.]

so·vi·et·ize also So·vi·et·ize (sō'vĕ-ĭ-tīz', söv'ĕ-) v. tr. so·vi·et·ized, so·vi·et·iz·ing, so·vi·et·iz·es. 1. To cause to come under Soviet control. 2. To cause to conform to Soviet political, social, and cultural policy. — so'vi·et·i·za·tion (-ĭ-tĭ-zā'shən) n.

So·vi·et·ol·o·gy (sō'vĕ-ĭ-tōl'ə-jĕ, söv'ĕ-) n. Study of the Soviet Union, especially of its government. — So'vi·et·ol'o·gist n.

Soviet Union (sō'vĕ-ĕt' yōōn'yən) See Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

sov·khoz (söf-kôz', sôv-KHôz') n. A state-owned farm in the former Soviet Union that paid wages to its workers. [Russian, short for sovetskoe khozyaĭstvo, soviet farm.]

sow¹ (sō) v. sowed, sown (sōn) or sowed, sow·ing, sows. — v. tr. 1. To scatter (seed) over the ground for growing. 2. To impregnate (a growing medium) with seed. 3. To propagate; disseminate: sow rumors and dissension. 4. To strew or cover with something; spread thickly. — v. intr. To scatter seed for growing. [Middle English sowen, from Old English sāwan. See sē- in Appendix.] —sow'er n.

sow² (sou) n. 1. a. An adult female hog. b. The adult female of several other animals, such as the bear. 2. a. A channel that conducts molten iron to the molds in a pig bed. b. The mass of metal solidified in such a channel or mold. [Middle English, from Old English sugu, sū. See sū- in Appendix.]

sow-bel·ly (sou'bĕl'ē) n. Informal. Salt pork.

sow-bread (sou'brĕd') n. The cyclamen.

sow bug (sou būg) n. Any of various small terrestrial isopod crustaceans, chiefly of the genera Oniscus and Porcellio, commonly found under logs or stones and having an oval, segmented body. Also called wood louse [From its piglike shape.]

So-we-to (sə-wĕ'tō, -wā'-) A city of northeast South Africa southwest of Johannesburg. Comprised of a number of townships inhabited by Black South Africans, it has been a center of racial strife since the late 1970's. Population, 868,580.

sown (sōn) v. A past participle of sow¹.

sow thistle (sou thĭs'əl) n. Any of various plants of the genus Sonchus, especially S. oleraceus of Eurasia, having prickly leaves and rayed, yellow flower heads.

sox (sōks) n. A plural of sock¹ (n., sense 1).

soy (soi) n. 1. The soybean. 2. A salty brown liquid condiment made by fermenting soybeans in brine. [Dutch soja, soya, from Japanese shō-yu, from Chinese (Mandarin) jiàng yóu, soy sauce : jiàng, soy paste + yóu, sauce.]

soy·a (soi'ə) n. The soybean. [Dutch. See SOY.]

soy·bean (soi'bĕn') n. 1. A southeast Asian annual leguminous plant (Glycine max), widely cultivated for forage and soil improvement and for its nutritious seeds. 2. The seed of this plant.

So·yin·ka (shō-yĭng'kə), Wole. Born 1934. Nigerian writer known for his important contributions to the development of Nigerian theater and literature. His plays include A Dance of the Forests (1960) and A Play of Giants (1984). Soyinka won the 1986 Nobel Prize for literature.

soy·milk (soi'mĭlk') n. A milk substitute made from soybeans, often supplemented with vitamins.

SP abbr. 1. Self-propelled. 2. Shore patrol. 3. Single pole. 4. Specialist. 5. Submarine patrol.

sp. abbr. 1. Special. 2. Species. 3. Specific. 4. Specimen. 5. Spelling.

Sp. abbr. Spanish.

s.p. abbr. Law. Sine prole.

spa (spä) n. 1. A resort providing therapeutic baths. 2. A resort area having mineral springs. 3. A fashionable hotel or resort. 4. A health spa. 5. A tub for relaxation or invigoration, usually including a device for raising whirlpools in the water. 6. Eastern New England. See soda fountain (n., sense 2). [After Spa, a resort town of eastern Belgium.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The word spa, taken from the name of the famous mineral springs in Spa, Belgium, has become a common noun denoting any place with a medicinal or mineral spring. Less well known is its regional sense, “soda fountain,” probably an allusion to the carbonated or “mineral” water that is a staple ingredient of many soda fountain concoctions.

Spaak (späk), Paul Henri Charles. 1889-1972. Belgian politician who was the first president of the United Nations General Assembly (1946) and later served as the secretary-general of NATO (1957-1961).

Spaatz (späts), Carl. 1891-1974. American general who became chief of staff of the U.S. Air Force (1947) when it was established as a separate branch of the services.

space (späs) n. 1. a. Mathematics. A set of elements or points satisfying specified geometric postulates: non-Euclidean space. b. The infinite extension of the three-dimensional field in which all matter exists. 2. a. The expanse in which the solar system, stars, and galaxies exist; the universe. b. The region of this expanse beyond Earth’s atmosphere. 3. A blank or empty area: the spaces between words. 4. An area provided for a particular purpose: a parking space. 5. Reserved or available accommodation on a public transportation vehicle. 6. a. A period or interval of time. b. A little while: Let’s rest for a space. 7. Sufficient freedom from external pressure to develop or explore one’s needs, interests, and individuality: “The need for personal space inevitably asserts itself” (Maggie Scarf). 8. Music. One of the intervals between the lines of a staff. 9. Printing. One of the blank pieces of type or other means used for separating words or characters. 10. One of the intervals during the telegraphic transmission of a message when the key is open or not in contact. 11. Blank sections in printed material or broadcast time available for use by advertisers. — v. spaced, spac-ing, spac-es. — v. tr. 1. To organize or arrange with spaces between. 2. To separate or keep apart. 3. Slang. To stupefy or disorient from or as if from a drug. Often used with out: The antihistamine spaces me out so I can’t think clearly. — v. intr. Slang. To be or become stupefied or disoriented. Often used with out: I was supposed to meet her, but I spaced out and forgot. [Middle English, area, from Old French espace, from Latin spatium.] —spac’er n. space age also Space Age (späs äj) n. The period from 1957 through the present, in which spacecraft have been placed in orbit around Earth and sent to explore celestial bodies. —space’-age’ (späs’äj’) adj. space bar (späs bär) n. 1. A bar at the bottom of the keyboard of a typewriter that when pressed down introduces a blank horizontal space into the typewritten matter, as between words. 2. Computer Science. A bar with a similar position on the keyboard of a terminal, used to move the cursor or execute a function in a program.

space biology (spās bī-ōl'ə-jē) n. See exobiology.

space-borne (spās'bōrn', -bōrn') adj. Operating in or involving equipment operating in outer space: a spaceborne satellite.

space-bridge (spās'brīj') n. An international communication by television, transmitted by artificial satellite.

space cadet (spās kə-dět') n. Slang. One who shows difficulty in grasping reality or in responding appropriately to it; a spacy person: "the screwups and the space cadets—in other words, the fringe element" (Linda Ellerbee).

space capsule (spās kăp'səl) n. A vehicle or compartment of a vehicle designed to transport, protect, and support human beings or animals in outer space or at very high altitudes in Earth's atmosphere.

space charge (spās chārj) n. The excess of electrons or ions in a given volume.

space-craft (spās'krăft') n. pl. spacecraft. A vehicle intended to be launched into space. Also called spaceship spaced (spăst) adj. Slang. Spaced-out.

spaced-out (spăst'out') adj. Slang. Stupefied or disoriented from or as if from a drug.

space-far-ing (spās'fâr'ing) n. The launching of vehicles into outer space.
— adj. Engaged in the launching of vehicles into outer space: "efforts in planetary exploration... achieved in cooperation with other spacefaring nations" (Chet Raymo). —space'far'er n.

space flight (spās flīt) n. Flight beyond the atmosphere of Earth.

space heater (spās hē'tər) n. An appliance that warms a small area, such as one room, typically by radiant electric heat.

space lattice (spās lăt'is) n. See crystal lattice.

space-less (spās'lis) adj. Having no limits or boundaries.

space medicine (spās mēd'ī-sīn) n. The medical science that is concerned with the biological, physiological, and psychological effects of space flight on human beings.

space-port (spās'pōrt', -pōrt') n. An installation for sheltering, testing, maintaining, and launching spacecraft.

space probe (spās prōb) n. A spacecraft carrying instruments intended for use in exploration of the physical properties of outer space or celestial bodies other than Earth.

space science (spās sī'əns) n. 1. Any of several scientific disciplines, such as exobiology, that study phenomena occurring in the upper atmosphere, in space, or on celestial bodies other than Earth. 2. A discipline related to or dealing with the problems of space flight. —space scientist n.

space-ship or space ship (spās'shīp') n. See spacecraft.

space shuttle (spās shūt'l) n. A reusable spacecraft with wings for controlled descent in the atmosphere, designed to transport astronauts between Earth and an orbiting space station and also used to deploy and retrieve satellites.

space sickness (spās sīk'nīs) n. Motion sickness caused by sustained weightlessness during space flight, usually accompanied by disturbance of the inner ear.
—space/sick' (spās'sīk') adj.

space station (spās stā'shən) n. A large satellite equipped to support a human crew and designed to remain in orbit around Earth for an extended period and serve as a base for launching exploratory expeditions, conducting scientific research, repairing satellites, and performing other space-related activities.

space suit (spās sōt) n. A protective pressure suit designed to permit the wearer relatively free movement in space.

space-time (spās'tīm') n. Physics. The four-dimensional continuum of one temporal and three spatial coordinates in which any event or physical object is located.

space walk (spās wōk) n. An excursion by an astronaut outside a spacecraft in space; extravehicular activity. —space walk v. —space walker n.

space-ward (spās'wərd) adv. & adj. Toward, to, or in outer space.

space writer (spās rī'tər) n. A writer, such as a journalist, who is paid according to the amount of space his or her material occupies in print.

spacey (spā'sē) adj. Slang. Variant of spacy.

spaceial (spā'shəl) adj. Variant of spatial.

spacing (spā'sīng) n. 1. a. The act of arranging with intervening spaces.

b. The result of so arranging. c. A system of or allowance for intervals: the close spacing of the theater seats. 2. Spaces or a space, as in printed matter.

spacious (spā'shəs) adj. 1. Generous or large in area or extent; roomy. 2. Vast in range or scope: a spacious view. —spa'cious-ly adv. —spa'cious-ness n.

SYNONYMS: spacious, ample, capacious, commodious, roomy. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “having or affording a generous amount of space”: a spacious apartment; an ample kitchen; a capacious purse; a commodious harbor; roomy pockets.

Spack-le (spāk'əl) A trademark used for a powder to be mixed with water or a ready-to-use plastic paste designed to fill cracks and holes in plaster before painting or papering. This trademark often occurs in lowercase in print: “In the Sierra... the snow generally is the consistency of spackle” (San Francisco Chronicle). It also occurs as a verb in various contexts: “Two young men quietly spackled and whitewashed the walls... for an exhibition” (New York Times). “Support compensates, underpins, retrofits, translates, spackles, patches and reinforces” (Computer-world). The trademark has also generated a derivative noun: “Some professional spacklers can do this with a 5-inch knife” (Newsday).

spac·y or spac·ey (spā'sē) adj. spac·ier, spac·iest. Slang. 1. Stupefied or disoriented from or as if from drug use. 2. Eccentric; offbeat.

spade¹ (spād) n. 1. A sturdy digging tool having a thick handle and a heavy, flat blade that can be pressed into the ground with the foot. 2. Any of various similar digging or cutting tools. — v. tr. spad·ed, spad·ing, spades. To dig or cut with a spade. [Middle English, from Old English spadu.] —spad/er n.

spade² (spād) n. 1. Games. a. A black, leaf-shaped figure on certain playing cards. b. A playing card with this figure. c. Also spades. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The suit of cards represented by this figure. 2. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Black person. —idiom. in spades. To a considerable degree: They had financial trouble in spades. [Italian spade, pl. of spada, card suit, from Latin spatha, sword, broad-bladed stirrer, from Greek spathē, broad blade.]

spade-fish (spād'fish') n. pl. spadefish or spade-fish-es. Any of several marine food fishes of the family Ehippidae, especially Chaetodipterus faber, of the American Atlantic coastal waters, noted for its craving for shellfish. [From its shape.]

spade-foot toad (spād'fōot' tōd) n. Any of several toads of the family Pelobatidae, widely distributed over Europe, southern Asia, northern Africa, and North America, some of which are able to dig deep burrows easily by means of a horny projection on the side of the hind foot.

spade-work (spād'wŭrk') n. 1. Work requiring a spade. 2. Preparatory work necessary for a project or an activity.

spa·dix (spā'diks) n. pl. spa·di·ces (-dī-sēz'). Botany. A fleshy clublike spike bearing minute flowers, usually enclosed within a sheathlike spathe, characteristic of aroid plants, such as the calla and the jack-in-the-pulpit. [Latin spādix, broken-off palm branch, from Greek, from span, to stretch.]

spa·ghet·ti (spə-gět'ē) n. 1. A pasta made into long solid strings and cooked by boiling. 2. Electricity. A slender tube of insulating material that covers bare wire. [Italian, pl. diminutive of spago, cord.]

spa·ghet·ti·ni (späg'ī-tē'nē) n. A form of pasta that is thinner than spaghetti but not as thin as vermicelli. [Italian, diminutive of spaghetti, spaghetti. See SPAGHETTI.]

spaghetti Western (spə-gět'ē wēs'tərn) n. A low-budget Western film made by a European, especially an Italian, film company.

spa·gyr·ic (spə-gîr'ik) also spa·gyr·i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. Relating to or resembling alchemy; alchemical. [New Latin spagircus.]

Spain (spān) A country of southwest Europe comprising most of the Iberian Peninsula and the Balearic and Canary Islands. Inhabited since the Stone Age, the region was colonized by Phoenicians and Greeks and later ruled by Carthage and Rome (after 201 B.C.). Barbarians first invaded Spain in A.D. 409 but were supplanted by Moors from North Africa (711-719), who organized a kingdom known for its learning and splendor. The Moors were gradually displaced by small Christian states and were ousted from their last stronghold, Granada, in 1492. Ferdinand of Aragon and Isabella of Castile then became rulers of a united Spain, which became a world power through exploration and conquest. After the empire was lost in the 18th and 19th centuries, Spain experienced social and economic unrest that culminated in the Spanish Civil War (1936-1939) and the rise of Francisco Franco. Madrid is the capital and the largest city. Population, 38,872,389.

spake (spāk) v. Archaic. A past tense of speak.

Spal-ding (spôl'dĩng), Albert. 1888-1953. American composer and violinist whose compositions include a suite for orchestra and two violin concertos.

spall (spôl) n. A chip, fragment, or flake from a piece of stone or ore. — v. spalled, spalling, spalls. — v. tr. To break up into chips or fragments. — v. intr. To chip or crumble. [Middle English spalle.]

spal-la-tion (spô-lā'shən) n. A nuclear reaction in which many particles are ejected from an atomic nucleus by incident particles of sufficiently high energy.

Spam (späm) A trademark used for a canned meat product consisting primarily of chopped pork pressed into a loaf.

span¹ (spän) n. 1. The extent or measure of space between two points or extremities, as of a bridge or roof; the breadth. 2. The distance between the tips of the wings of an airplane. 3. The section between two intermediate supports of a bridge. 4. Something, such as a railroad trestle or bridge, that extends from one point to another. 5. The distance from the tip of the thumb to the tip of the little finger when the hand is fully extended, formerly used as a unit of measure equal to about nine inches (23 centimeters). 6. A period of time: a span of life. — v. tr. spanned, span-ning, spans. 1. To measure by or as if by the fully extended hand. 2. To encircle with the hand or hands in or as if in measuring. 3. To extend across in space or time: a bridge that spans the gorge; a career that spanned 40 years. [Middle English, unit of measurement, from Old English spann. See (s)pen- in Appendix.]

span² (spän) v. tr. spanned, span-ning, spans. To bind or fetter. — n. 1. Nautical. A stretch of rope made fast at either end. 2. A pair of animals, such as oxen, matched in size, strength, or color and driven as a team. [Dutch spannen, to harness, from Middle Dutch. See (s)pen- in Appendix.]

span³ (spän) v. Archaic. A past tense of spin.

Span. abbr. Spanish.

spa-na-ko-pi-ta (spä'nä-kô'pē-tä) n. A Greek spinach pie, typically served as an appetizer and made with layers of buttered filo pastry and a filling of sautéed chopped spinach, onions and scallions, feta cheese, spices, and sometimes eggs.

[Modern Greek spanakopita : spanaki, spinach (from Medieval Greek spanakin, spanakion, ultimately from Persian aspanākh) + pita, pie; see PITA¹.]

Span-dau (spän'dou', shpän'-) A district of Berlin, Germany. Chartered in 1232, it is the site of a fortress used for Nazi war criminals after the Nuremberg trials of 1945 to 1946. Spandau was incorporated into Berlin in 1920.

span-dex (spän'děks) n. A synthetic fiber or fabric made from a polymer containing polyurethane, used in the manufacture of elastic clothing. — adj. Of or relating to spandex or its elastic qualities. [By alteration of expands, third person sing. present tense of EXPAND.]

span-drel also span-dril (spän'drəl) n. Architecture. 1. The triangular space between the left or right exterior curve of an arch and the rectangular framework surrounding it. 2. The space between two arches and a horizontal molding or cornice above them. [Middle English spaundrell, probably from spandre, space between supporting timbers, from Anglo-Norman spaundre, from spandre, to spread out, from Latin expandere. See EXPAND.]

spang (späng) adv. Informal. Precisely; squarely: fell spang into the middle of the puddle. [Probably from dialectal spang, to leap, jerk, bang, probably of imitative origin.]

span-gle (späng'gəl) n. 1. A small, often circular piece of sparkling metal or plastic sewn especially on garments for decoration. 2. A small sparkling object, drop, or spot: spangles of sunlight. — v. span-gled, span-gling, span-gles. — v. tr. To adorn or cause to sparkle by covering with or as if with spangles: Lights spangled the night skyline. — v. intr. To sparkle in the manner of spangles. [Middle English spangel, diminutive of spange, from Middle Dutch, clasp. See (s)pen- in Appendix.] — span'gly adj.

Spang-lish (späng'glīsh) n. Spanish characterized by numerous borrowings from English.

Span-iard (spän'yərd) n. A native or inhabitant of Spain. [Middle English, from Old French Espaniard, from Espaigne, Spain, from Latin Hispania.]

span-iel (spän'yəl) n. 1. Any of several breeds of small-sized to medium-sized dogs, usually having drooping ears, short legs, and a wavy, silky coat. 2. A docile or servile person. [Middle English spainol, from Old French espaignol, Spaniard, Spanish dog, from Vulgar Latin Hispaniōlus*, Spanish, from Hispania, Spain.]

Span-ish (spän'ish) adj. Abbr. Sp., Span. 1. Of or relating to Spain or its people or culture. 2. Of or relating to the Spanish language. — n. Abbr. Sp., Span. 1. The Romance language of the largest part of Spain and most of Central and South America. 2. The people of Spain. [Alteration (influenced by Latin Hispania, Spain), of Middle English Spainish, from Spaine, Spain, from Old French Espaigne. See SPANIARD.]

Spanish A-mer-i-ca (spän'ish ə-mēr'ī-kə) The former Spanish possessions in the New World, including most of South and Central America, Mexico, Cuba, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, and other small islands in the Caribbean Sea.

Spanish American (spän'ish ə-mēr'i-kən) n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Spanish America. 2. A U.S. citizen or resident of Hispanic descent. — adj. also Span-ish-A-mer-i-can (spän'ish-ə-mēr'i-kən) 1. Of or relating to Spanish America or its peoples or cultures. 2. Of or relating to Spain and America, especially the United States. See Usage Note at Hispanic.

Spanish bayonet (spän'ish bā'ə-nīt) n. Any of several New World plants of the genus Yucca, especially Y. aloifolia or Y. baccata, having a tall woody stem, stiff swordlike pointed leaves, and a large cluster of white flowers.

Spanish cedar (spän'ish sē'dər) n. 1. Any of several tropical American trees of the genus Cedrela, especially C. odorata, having reddish aromatic wood used for cabinetwork and cigar boxes. 2. The wood of this tree. Also called cigar-box cedar Spanish chestnut (spän'ish chēs'nüt') n. 1. A deciduous Mediterranean tree (Castanea sativa) bearing edible nuts enclosed in a spiny bur. 2. The nut of this tree. Also called marron Spanish fly (spän'ish flī) n. See cantharis.

Spanish Lake (spän'ish lāk) A community of east-central Missouri, a suburb of St. Louis. Population, 20,322.

Spanish lime (spän'ish līm) n. See genip (n., sense 2).

Spanish mackerel (spän'ish māk'ər-əl) n. Any of various marine food fishes of the genus Scomberomorus, especially a commercially important species, S. maculatus, of American Atlantic coastal waters.

Spanish Main (spän'ish mān) 1. The coastal region of mainland Spanish America in the 16th and 17th centuries, extending from the Isthmus of Panama to the mouth of the Orinoco River. 2. The section of the Caribbean Sea crossed by Spanish ships in colonial times. The treasure-laden ships were often raided by English buccaneers.

Spanish moss (spän'ish môs) n. An epiphytic bromeliad plant (Tillandsia usneoides) of the southeast United States and tropical America, having gray threadlike stems drooping in long, densely matted clusters.

Spanish needles (spän'ish nēd'lz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See beggar ticks (pl.n., sense 1a).

Spanish omelet (spän'ish òm'ə-līt) n. An omelet served with an often spicy sauce of tomatoes, onions, and peppers.

Spanish onion (spän'ish ün'yən) n. A mild-flavored, yellow-skinned onion (Allium fistulosum) having yellowish-white flowers.

Spanish paprika (spän'ish pä-prē'kə) n. A mild seasoning made from pimientos.

Spanish Peaks (spän'ish pēks) Adjacent mountains, 3,868.3 m (12,683 ft) and 4,155 m (13,623 ft) high, in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains of southern Colorado. They were landmarks for early explorers and traders.

Spanish rice (spän'ish rīs) n. A dish consisting of rice cooked with tomatoes, spices, chopped onions, and green peppers.

Spanish River (spän'ish rīv'ər) A river, about 241 km (150 mi) long, of southern Ontario, Canada, flowing generally south to Lake Huron.

Spanish Sa-ha-ra (spän'ish sə-hâr'ə, -hâr'ə, -hâ'rə) See Western Sahara.

spank (spängk) v. spanked, spank-ing, spanks. — v. tr. To slap on the buttocks with a flat object or with the open hand, as for punishment. — v. intr. To move briskly or spiritedly. — n. A slap on the buttocks. [Perhaps of imitative origin.]

spank-er (späng'kər) n. Nautical. A usually gaff-headed sail set from the aftermost lower mast of a sailing ship.

spank-ing (späng'kīng) adj. 1. Informal. Exceptional of its kind; remarkable. 2. Swift and vigorous: a spanking pace. 3. Brisk and fresh: a spanking breeze. — adv. Used as an intensive: a spanking clean shirt. — n. A number of slaps on the buttocks delivered in rapid succession, as for punishment. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] — spank'ing-ly adv.

span-ner (spän'ər) n. 1. A wrench having a hook, hole, or pin at the end for meshing with a related device on another object. 2. Chiefly British. A wrench. [German, winding tool, from spannen, to stretch, from Middle High German, from Old High German spannan. See (s)pen- in Appendix.]

span-new (spän'nōō', -nyōō') adj. Entirely new. [Middle English spannewe, partial translation of Old Norse spānnȳr: spānn, shingle, chip + nȳr, new; see newo- in Appendix.]

span-worm (spän'wûrm') n. See measuring worm. [From SPAN¹.]

spar¹ (spär) n. 1. Nautical. A wooden or metal pole, such as a mast, boom, yard, or bowsprit, used to support sails and rigging. 2. A usually metal pole used as part of a crane or derrick. 3. A principal structural member in an airplane wing or a tail assembly that runs from tip to tip or from root to tip. — v. tr. sparred, spar-ring, spars. 1. To supply with spars. 2. Archaic. To fasten with a bolt. [Middle English sparre, rafter.]

spar² (spär) v. intr. sparred, spar-ring, spars. 1. a. To box, especially to make boxing motions without hitting one's opponent. b. To participate in a practice or exhibition boxing match. 2. To bandy words about in argument; dispute. 3. To fight by striking with the feet and spurs. Used of gamecocks. — n. 1. A motion of attack or defense in boxing. 2. A sparring match. [Middle English sparren, to thrust or strike rapidly, perhaps from Old French esparer, to kick, from Old Italian sparare, to fling : s-, intensive pref. (from Latin ex-, ex-) + parare, to ward off; see PARRY.]

spar³ (spär) n. A nonmetallic, readily cleavable, translucent or transparent light-colored mineral with a shiny luster, such as feldspar. [Low German, from Middle Low German.]

SPAR also Spar (spär) n. A member of the women's reserve of the U.S. Coast Guard, disbanded as a separate unit in 1946. [Contraction of Latin semper parātus, always prepared, the motto of the U.S. Coast Guard : semper, always + parātus, prepared.]

spare (spâr) v. spared, spar-ing, spares. — v. tr. 1. To refrain from treating harshly; treat mercifully or leniently. 2. To refrain from harming or destroying. 3. To save or relieve from experiencing or doing (something): spared herself the trouble of going. 4. To hold back from; withhold or avoid: spared no expense for the celebration. 5. To use with restraint: Don't spare the mustard. 6. To give or grant out of one's resources; afford: Can you spare ten minutes? — v. intr. 1. To be frugal. 2. To refrain from inflicting harm; be merciful or lenient. — adj.

spar-er, spar-est. 1. a. Kept in reserve: a spare part; a spare pair of sneakers.

b. Being in excess of what is needed; extra. See Synonyms at superfluous.

c. Free for other use; unoccupied: spare time. 2. a. Not lavish, abundant, or excessive: a spare diet. See Synonyms at meager. b. Lean and trim. See Synonyms at lean². 3. Not profuse or copious. — n. 1. A replacement, especially a tire, reserved for future need. 2. Sports. a. The act of knocking down all ten pins with two successive rolls of a bowling ball. b. The score so made.

—idiom. to spare. In addition to what is needed: We paid our bills and had money to spare. [Middle English sparen, from Old English sparian.] —spare/ly adv. —spare/ness n. —spar'er n.

spare-ribs (spâr'ribz') pl.n. Pork ribs with most of the meat trimmed off. [Alteration of obsolete ribspare, from Low German ribbesper, pickled pork ribs roasted on a spit, from Middle Low German ribbespēr : ribbe, rib + spēr, spear, spit.]

sparge (spärij) v. tr. sparged, sparg-ing, sparg-es. 1. To spray or sprinkle. 2. To introduce air or gas into (a liquid). — n. A sprinkle. [Obsolete French espargier, from Old French, from Latin spargere.] —sparg'er n.

spar-id (spär'ïd, spâr'-) adj. Of or belonging to the family Sparidae, which includes the porgies and sea breams. — n. A member of the Sparidae. [From New Latin Sparidae, family name, from Sparus, type genus, from Latin, a kind of fish, from Greek sparos.]

spar-ing (spâr'ïng) adj. 1. Given to or marked by prudence and restraint in the use of material resources. 2. Deficient or limited in quantity, fullness, or extent. 3. Forbearing; lenient. —spar'ing-ly adv. —spar'ing-ness n.

SYNONYMS: sparing, frugal, thrifty, economical. These adjectives mean exercising or reflecting care in the use of resources, such as money. Sparing stresses restraint, as in expenditure: sparing in bestowing gifts; neither profligate nor sparing of her time. Frugal implies self-denial and abstention from luxury: a frugal diet; a frugal farmer. Thrifty suggests industry, care, and diligence in conserving means: is excessively thrifty because he remembers the Depression. Economical emphasizes prudence, skillful management, and the avoidance of waste: an economical shopper; the most economical use of energy.

spark¹ (spärk) n. 1. An incandescent particle, especially: a. One thrown off from a burning substance. b. One resulting from friction. c. One remaining in an otherwise extinguished fire; an ember. 2. A glistening particle, as of metal. 3. a. A flash of light, especially a flash produced by electric discharge. b. A short pulse or flow of electric current. 4. A trace or suggestion, as: a. A quality or feeling with latent potential; a seed or germ: the spark of genius. b. A vital, animating, or activating factor: the spark of revolution. 5. sparks. (used with a sing. verb). Informal. A radio operator aboard a ship. 6. Electricity. a. The luminous phenomenon resulting from a disruptive discharge through an insulating material. b. The discharge itself. — v. sparked, spark-ing, sparks. — v. intr. 1. To give off sparks. 2. To give an enthusiastic response. 3. To operate correctly. Used of the ignition system of an internal-combustion engine. — v. tr. 1. To set in motion; activate: The incident sparked a controversy. 2. To rouse to action; spur: A cheering crowd sparked the runner to triumph. [Middle English sparke, from Old English spearca. V., from Middle English sparken from Old English spearcian.] —spark'er n.

spark² (spärk) n. 1. An elegantly dressed, highly self-conscious young man. 2. A male suitor; a beau. — v. sparked, spark-ing, sparks. — v. tr. To court or woo. — v. intr. To play the suitor. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin, or from SPARK¹.] —spark'er n.

Spark (spärk), Muriel Sarah. Born 1918. Scottish writer known for her satirical novels, including Memento Mori (1958) and The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (1961).

spark arrester (spärk ə-rēs'tər) n. 1. A device designed to keep sparks from escaping, as at a chimney opening. 2. A device used to control electric sparking at a point where a circuit is made or broken.

spark chamber (spärk chām'bər) n. A device consisting of electrically charged parallel metal plates in a chamber filled with inert gas, used to detect and measure a charged subatomic particle as it passes through the chamber, leaving a trail of sparks.

spark coil (spärk kōil) n. An induction coil used to produce a spark, as in an internal-combustion engine.

spark gap (spärk gäp) n. A gap in an otherwise complete electric circuit across which a discharge occurs at a prescribed voltage.

spark generator (spärk jën'ə-rä'tər) n. See spark transmitter.

spark-ing plug (spär'kīng plüg) n. Chiefly British. A spark plug.

spar-kle (spär'kəl) v. spar-kled, spar-king, spar-kles. — v. intr. 1. To give off sparks. 2. To give off or reflect flashes of light; glitter. See Synonyms at flash. 3. To be brilliant in performance. 4. a. To shine with animation: He has eyes that sparkle. b. To flash with wit: Her conversation sparkled throughout the evening. 5. To release gas bubbles; effervesce: Champagne sparkles. — v. tr. To cause to flash and glitter: Sunlight was sparkling the waves. — n. 1. A small spark or gleaming particle. 2. A glittering quality. 3. Brilliant animation; vivacity. 4. Emission of gas bubbles; effervescence. [Middle English sparklen, frequentative of sparken, to spark. See SPARK¹.]

spar-kle-ber-ry (spär'kəl-bër'ē) n. See farkleberry.

spar-kler (spär'klər) n. 1. One, such as a highly polished metallic surface or a virtuoso performer, that sparkles. 2. Informal. A diamond. 3. A firework that burns slowly and gives off a shower of sparks.

spar-king water (spär'klīng wō'tər) n. Water charged with carbon dioxide.

sparkling wine (spär'klīng wīn) n. Any of various effervescent wines, such as champagne, produced by a process involving fermentation in the bottle.

spark-ly (spär'klē) adj. spark-li-er, spark-li-est. 1. a. Giving off tiny flashes of light; glittery: a dress with sparkly sequins. b. Lively; vivacious: a sparkly personality. 2. Effervescent.

spark-plug (spärk'plüg') v. tr. spark-plugged, spark-plug-ging, spark-plugs. Informal. To inspire or energize (an endeavor, for example).

spark plug (spärk plüg) n. 1. A device inserted in the head of an internal-combustion engine cylinder that ignites the fuel mixture by means of an electric spark. 2. Informal. One who gives life or energy to an endeavor.

Sparks (spärks) A city of western Nevada east of Reno. It is a tourist center with varied light industries. Population, 53,367.

Sparks (spärks), Jared. 1789-1866. American historian and educator who was editor of the North American Review (1823-1829) and president of Harvard University (1849-1853).

spark transmitter (spärk trāns-mīt'ər) n. A source of alternating current, especially a now obsolete radio transmitter, that derives its output from the oscillating discharge of a capacitor to an inductor and across a spark gap. Also called spark generator spark-y (spär'kē) adj. spark-i-er, spark-i-est. Animated; lively.

spar-ling (spär'līng) n. 1. The common European smelt (Osperus eperlanus). 2. A young or immature herring. [Middle English sperlinge, from Old French esperlinge, of Germanic origin; akin to Middle Dutch spierlinc.]

spar-row (spär'ō) n. 1. Any of various small New World finches of the family Emberizidae, having brownish or grayish plumage and including the song sparrow, white-throated sparrow, chipping sparrow, vesper sparrow, and other closely related species. 2. Any of several similar or related birds, such as the house sparrow or the Java sparrow. [Middle English sparowe, from Old English spearwa.]

spar-row-grass (spär'ə-gräs', spär'ō-) n. Eastern U.S. Asparagus. [By folk etymology from ASPARAGUS.]

sparrow hawk (spär'ō hôk) n. 1. A small hawk (Accipiter nisus) of Europe, Africa, and central Asia that has short, broad wings and preys on sparrows and other small birds. 2. A small North American falcon (Falco sparverius) that hovers over fields and pastures, feeding chiefly on insects and mice. In this sense, also called American kestrel sparse (spärs) adj. spars-er, spars-est. Occurring, growing, or settled at widely spaced intervals; not thick or dense. See Synonyms at meager. [Latin sparsus, past participle of spargere, to scatter.] —sparse/ly adv. —sparse/ness, spar/si-ty (spär'sī-tē) n.

Spar-ta (spär'tə) also Lac-e-dae-mon (läs'ī-dē'mən) A city-state of ancient Greece in the southeast Peloponnesus. Settled by Dorian Greeks, it was noted for its militarism and reached the height of its power in the sixth century B.C. A protracted rivalry with Athens led to the Peloponnesian Wars (460-404) and Sparta's hegemony over all of Greece. Its ascendancy was broken by Thebans in 371.

Spar-ta-cus (spär'tə-kəs), Died 71 B.C. Thracian gladiator who led a slave revolt in Italy (73-71). He defeated Roman armies in southern Italy, but his forces were crushed at Lucania (71), where Spartacus was killed and many of his troops were crucified.

Spar-tan (spär'tn) adj. 1. Of or relating to Sparta or its people. 2. a. Rigorously self-disciplined or self-restrained. b. Simple, frugal, or austere: a Spartan diet; a Spartan lifestyle. c. Marked by brevity of speech; laconic. d. Courageous in the face of pain, danger, or adversity. — n. 1. A citizen of Sparta. 2. One of Spartan character. —Spar'tan-ism n. —Spar'tan-ly adv.

Spar-tan-burg (spär'tn-bûrg') A city of northwest South Carolina northwest of Columbia at the foot of the Blue Ridge. It is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 43,467.

spar-te-ine (spär'tē-ēn', -īn) n. A bitter, poisonous, liquid alkaloid, C₁₅H₂₆N₂, obtained from the broom Cytisus scoparius or the lupin Lupinus luteus, whose sulfate has been used in medicine as a heart stimulant and as a way of inducing contraction of the uterus during labor. [New Latin Spartium, broom genus (from Latin spartum, a kind of broom, from Greek sparton) + -INE².]

spar varnish (spär vār'nīsh) n. A waterproof varnish.

spasm (späz'əm) n. 1. A sudden, involuntary contraction of a muscle or group of muscles. 2. A sudden burst of energy, activity, or emotion. [Middle English spasme, from Old French, from Latin spasmus, from Greek spasmos, from span, to pull.]

spas·mod·ic (späz-möd'ik) adj. 1. Relating to, affected by, or having the character of a spasm; convulsive. 2. Happening intermittently; fitful: spasmodic rifle fire. 3. Given to sudden outbursts of energy or feeling; excitable. [New Latin spasmōdicus, from Greek spasmōdēs, from spasmos, spasm. See SPASM.]

—spas·mod'i·cal·ly adv.

spas·mo·lyt·ic (späz'mə-līt'ik) n. See antispasmodic. —spas'mo·lyt'ic adj.

spas·tic (späs'tik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characterized by spasms: a spastic colon; a spastic form of cerebral palsy. 2. Affected by spastic paralysis. — n. A person affected with spastic paralysis. [Latin spasticus, from Greek spastikos, from span, to pull.] —spas'ti·cal·ly adv. —spas·tic'i·ty (spä-stīs'ī-tē) n.

spastic paralysis (späs'tik pə-räl'ī-sīs) n. A chronic pathological condition in which the muscles are affected by persistent spasms and exaggerated tendon reflexes because of damage to motor nerves of the central nervous system.

spat¹ (spät) v. A past tense and a past participle of spit¹.

spat² (spät) n. pl. spat or spats. 1. An oyster or similar bivalve mollusk in the larval stage, especially when it settles to the bottom and begins to develop a shell. 2. The spawn of an oyster or a similar mollusk. — v. intr. spat·ted, spat·ting, spats. To spawn. Used of oysters and similar mollusks. [Middle English.]

spat³ (spät) n. A cloth or leather gaiter covering the shoe upper and the ankle and fastening under the shoe with a strap. Often used in the plural. [Short for spatterdash : SPATTER + DASH¹.]

spat⁴ (spät) n. 1. A brief quarrel. 2. Informal. A slap or smack. 3. A spattering sound, as of raindrops. — v. spat·ted, spat·ting, spats. — v. intr. 1. To engage in a brief quarrel. 2. To strike with a light spattering sound; slap. — v. tr. Informal. To slap. [Origin unknown.]

spatch·cock (späch'kök) n. A dressed and split chicken for roasting or broiling on a spit. — v. tr. spatch·cocked, spatch·cock·ing, spatch·cocks. 1. To prepare (a dressed chicken) for grilling by splitting open. 2. To introduce or interpose, especially in a labored or unsuitable manner: "Some excerpts from a Renaissance mass are spatchcocked into Gluck's pallid Don Juan music" (Alan Rich). [Perhaps alteration of spitchcock, a way of cooking an eel.]

spate (spät) n. 1. A sudden flood, rush, or outpouring: "It issues a spate of words from the loudspeakers and the politicians" (Virginia Woolf). 2. Chiefly British. a. A flash flood. b. A freshet resulting from a downpour of rain or melting of snow. c. A sudden heavy fall of rain. [Middle English.]

spathe (spāth) n. Botany. A leaflike bract that encloses or subtends a flower cluster or spadix, as in the jack-in-the-pulpit and the calla. [Latin spatha, broadsword, from Greek spathē, broad blade.]

spath·ic (spāth'ik) adj. Having good cleavage. Used of minerals. [German Spath, Spat, spar (from Middle High German spāt) + -IC.]

spa·tial also spa·cial (spā'shəl) adj. Of, relating to, involving, or having the nature of space. [From Latin spatium, space.] —spa'ti-al/i·ty (spā'shē-äl'i-tē) n. —spa'tial·ly adv.

spa·ti·o·tem·po·ral (spā'shē-ō-tēm'pər-əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or existing in both space and time. 2. Of or relating to space-time. [Latin spatium, space + TEMPORAL¹.] —spa'ti·o·tem'po·ral·ly adv.

spat·ter (spät'ər) v. spat·tered, spat·ter·ing, spat·ters. — v. tr. 1. To scatter (a liquid) in drops or small splashes. 2. To spot, splash, or soil. 3. To sully the reputation of; defame. — v. intr. 1. To come forth in drops or small splashes: Hot grease spattered in all directions. 2. To fall in or as if in a shower, as rain or bullets. — n. 1. a. The act of spattering. b. The condition of being spattered. 2. A spattering sound. 3. a. A drop or splash of something spattered. b. A small amount; a smattering: just a spatter of praise. [Perhaps of Low German origin.]

spat·ter·dock (spät'ər-dök') n. An aquatic plant (Nuphar advena) of eastern Mexico and the eastern and central United States, having emergent broad leaves and globe-shaped yellow flowers. [SPATTER + DOCK⁴.] spat·u·la (späch'ə-lə) n. 1. A small implement having a broad, flat, flexible blade that is used especially to mix, spread, or lift material. 2. A device, such as a small wooden paddle, used to press down the tongue during an examination of the mouth or throat. [Latin, flat piece of wood, splint, diminutive of spatha, broadsword. See SPATHE.] —spat'u·lar adj.

spat·u·late (späch'ə-līt) adj. Shaped like a spatula.

spav·in (späv'in) n. 1. Bog spavin. 2. Bone spavin. [Middle English spaven, from Old French espavain, swelling, perhaps of Germanic origin.]

spav·ined (späv'ind) adj. 1. Afflicted with spavin: a spavined horse. 2. Marked by damage, deterioration, or ruin: a junkyard full of spavined vehicles.

spawn (spôn) n. 1. The eggs of aquatic animals such as bivalve mollusks, fishes, and amphibians. 2. Offspring occurring in numbers; brood. 3. A person who is the issue of a parent or family. 4. The source of something; a germ or seed. 5. A product or an outcome. 6. Mycelia of mushrooms or other fungi grown in specially prepared organic matter for planting in beds. — v. spawned, spawn·ing, spawns. — v. intr. 1. To deposit eggs; produce spawn. 2. To produce offspring in large numbers. — v. tr. 1. To produce or deposit (spawn).

2. To produce in large numbers. 3. To give rise to; engender: tyranny that spawned revolt. 4. To cause to spawn; bring forth; produce: a family that had spawned a monster. 5. To plant with mycelia grown in specially prepared organic matter. [Middle English spawne, from spawnen, to spawn, from Anglo-Norman espaundre, from Latin expandere. See EXPAND.] —spawn'er n.

spay (spā) v. tr. spayed, spay·ing, spays. To remove surgically the ovaries of (an animal). [Middle English spaien, from Anglo-Norman espeier, to cut with a sword, from espee, sword, from Latin spatha. See SPATHE.]

SPCA abbr. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

SPCC abbr. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

speak (spēk) v. spoke (spōk), spo·ken (spō'kən), speak·ing, speaks. — v. intr. 1. To utter words or articulate sounds with ordinary speech modulation; talk. 2. a. To convey thoughts, opinions, or emotions orally. b. To express oneself. c. To be on speaking terms: They are no longer speaking. 3. To deliver an address or a lecture: The president of NOW was to speak at the rally. 4. a. To make a statement in writing: The biography speaks of great loneliness. b. To act as spokesperson: spoke for the entire staff. 5. a. To convey a message by nonverbal means: Actions speak louder than words. b. To be expressive: spoke with her eyes. c. To be appealing: His poetry speaks to one's heart. 6. To make a reservation or request. Often used with for: Is this dance spoken for? I spoke for the last slice of pizza. 7. a. To produce a characteristic sound: The drums spoke. b. To give off a sound on firing. Used of guns or cannon. 8. To make communicative sounds. 9. To give an indication or a suggestion: His manners spoke of good upbringing. — v. tr. 1. To articulate in a speaking voice: spoke words of wisdom. 2. To converse in or be able to converse in (a language): speaks German. 3. a. To express aloud; tell: speak the truth. b. To express in writing. 4. Nautical. To hail and communicate with (another vessel) at sea. 5. To convey by nonverbal means: His eyes spoke volumes. —phrasal verbs. speak out. To talk freely and fearlessly, as about a public issue. speak up. 2. To speak loud enough to be audible. 3. To speak without fear or hesitation. —idioms. so to speak. In a manner of speaking: can't see the forest for the trees, so to speak. speak down to. To speak condescendingly to: She never spoke down to her audience. to speak of. Worthy of mention: There's nothing new to speak of. [Middle English speken, from Old English sprecan, specan.] —speak'a·ble adj.

SYNONYMS: speak, talk, converse, discourse. These verbs mean to express one's thoughts by uttering words. Speak and talk, often interchangeable, are the most general: He ate his meal without once speaking to his dinner companion. "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow). "On an occasion of this kind it becomes more than a moral duty to speak one's mind. It becomes a pleasure" (Oscar Wilde). I want to talk with you about vacation plans. "We must know... what we are talking about" (Henry James). "Let's talk sense to the American people" (Adlai E. Stevenson). Converse stresses interchange of thoughts and ideas: "With thee conversing I forget all time" (John Milton). Discourse usually refers to formal, extended speech: "striding through the city, stick in hand, discoursing spontaneously on the writings of Hazlitt" (Manchester Guardian Weekly).

speak·eas·y (spēk'ē'zē) n. pl. speak·eas·ies. A place for the illegal sale and consumption of alcoholic drinks, as during Prohibition in the United States.

speak·er (spē'kər) n. 1. a. One who speaks. b. A spokesperson. 2. One who delivers a public speech. 3. Often Speaker. The presiding officer of a legislative assembly. 4. A loudspeaker. —speak'er·ship n.

speak·er·phone (spē'kər-fōn') n. A telephone or telephone attachment that contains both a loudspeaker and a microphone, allowing several persons to participate in a call at the same time without the telephone receiver being held.

speak·ing (spē'kɪŋ) adj. 1. a. Capable of speech. b. Involving speaking or talking: has a speaking part in the play. 2. Expressive or telling; eloquent. 3. True to life; lifelike: a speaking likeness. —idiom. on speaking terms. 1. Friendly enough to exchange superficial remarks: We're on speaking terms with the new neighbors. 2. Ready and willing to communicate; not alienated or estranged: on speaking terms again after their quarrel.

speaking in tongues (spē'kɪŋ ɪn tʌŋgz) n. See gift of tongues.

speaking tube (spē'kɪŋ tōōb) n. A tube used for speaking from one room of a building or ship to another.

spear¹ (spîr) n. 1. A weapon consisting of a long shaft with a sharply pointed end. 2. A shaft with a sharp point and barbs for spearing fish. 3. A soldier armed with a spear. — v. speared, spear·ing, spears. — v. tr. 1. To pierce with or as if with a spear. 2. To catch with a thrust of the arm: spear a football. — v. intr. To stab at something with or as if with a spear. [Middle English spere, from Old English.] —spear'er n. —spear'like adj.

spear² (spîr) n. A slender stalk, as of asparagus. — v. intr. speared, spear·ing, spears. To sprout like a spear. [Alteration of SPIRE².]

spear·car·ri·er (spîr'kăr'ē-ər) n. 1. A minor member of an operatic or dramatic cast, usually having no speaking part. 2. One whose presence or performance has little effect on an occurrence, a group, or an organization.

spear·fish¹ (spîr'fɪsh') n. pl. spearfish or spear·fish·es. Either of two large marine game fishes (Tetrapturus angustirostris or T. belone) related to the sailfish and marlin, having the upper jaw elongated into a spearlike projection.

spear·fish² (spîr'fɪsh') v. intr. spear·fished, spear·fish·ing, spear·fish·es. To fish with a spear, spearlike implement, or spear gun. —spear'fish'er n. —spear'fish'ing n.

spear grass (spîr gräs) n. See feather grass.

spear gun (spîr gʌn) n. A device for mechanically shooting a spearlike missile under water, as in spearfishing.

spear·head (spîr'hĕd') n. 1. The sharpened head of a spear. 2. a. The leading forces in a military thrust. b. The driving force in a given action, endeavor, or movement. — v. tr. spear·head·ed, spear·head·ing, spear·heads. To be the leader of (a movement, for example): "spearheaded the effort to offer classes in settlement houses [and] provide lecturers to women's clubs" (Catherine Clinton).

spear·man (spîr'mən) n. A man, especially a soldier, armed with a spear.

spear·mint (spîr'mînt') n. An aromatic Eurasian plant (Mentha spicata) having clusters of small purplish flowers and yielding an oil used widely as a flavoring.

spear·wort (spîr'wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of several plants related to the buttercups, especially Ranunculus flammula, native to Eurasia, having lance-shaped leaves and yellow flowers.

spec (spĕk) Informal. n. 1. specs. The specifications, as for a building to be constructed. 2. Speculation. — v. tr. spec'd or spec'ced (spĕkt), spec'ing or spec'cing (spĕk'ing), specs or specs. To write or supply specifications for. — adj. 1. Of or relating to specifications: a manufacturer's spec sheet. 2. Done, constructed, produced, or purchased as a speculation: a spec job; a spec house. — idiom. on spec. On a speculation basis; with no assurance of profit: houses built on spec; writes TV commercials on spec. — spec'er n.

spec. abbr. 1. Special. 2. Specifically. 3. Specification. 4. Speculation.

spe·cial (spĕsh'əl) adj. Abbr. sp., spec. 1. Surpassing what is common or usual; exceptional: a special occasion; a special treat. 2. a. Distinct among others of a kind: a special type of paint; a special medication for arthritis. b. Primary: His special satisfaction comes from volunteer work. 3. Peculiar to a specific person or thing; particular: my own special chair; the special features of a computer.

4. a. Having a limited or specific function, application, or scope: a special role in the mission. b. Arranged for a particular occasion or purpose: a special visit from her daughter. 5. Regarded with particular affection and admiration: a special friend. 6. Additional; extra: a special holiday flight. — n. 1. Something arranged, issued, or appropriated to a particular service or occasion: rode to work on the commuter special. 2. A featured attraction, such as a reduced price: a special on salmon. 3. A single television production that features a specific work, a given topic, or a particular performer. [Middle English, from Old French especial, from Latin speciālis, from speciēs, kind. See SPECIES.] — spe'cial-ly adv. — spe'cial-ness n.

special act (spĕsh'əl äkt) n. A legislative act that applies only to a particular person or area.

special court-martial (spĕsh'əl kôrt'mär'shəl) n. A court-martial consisting of at least three officers for trying intermediate offenses.

special delivery (spĕsh'əl dī-liv'ə-rē) n. Abbr. SD, S.D. The delivery of a piece of mail, for an additional charge, by a special messenger rather than by scheduled delivery.

special education (spĕsh'əl ěj'ə-kā'shən) n. Classroom or private instruction involving techniques, exercises, and subject matter designed for students whose learning needs cannot be met by a standard school curriculum.

special effect (spĕsh'əl ĩ-fĕkt') n. A visual or sound effect added to a movie or a taped television show during processing. Often used in the plural.

Special Forces (spěsh'əl fōr'sīz) pl.n. A division of the U.S. Army composed of soldiers specially trained in guerrilla fighting.

special handling (spěsh'əl hānd'līng) n. The handling of fourth-class or parcel-post mail as first-class mail for an extra charge.

special interest (spěsh'əl ĩn'trĭst) n. A person, a group, or an organization attempting to influence legislators in favor of one particular interest or issue.

—spe'cial-in'ter-est (spěsh'əl-ĭn'trĭst, -tər-ĭst, -trĕst') adj.

spe-cial-ism (spěsh'ə-lĭz'əm) n. 1. Concentration of one's efforts in a given occupation or field of study. 2. A field of specialization.

spe-cial-ist (spěsh'ə-lĭst) n. 1. One who is devoted to a particular occupation or branch of study or research: "Specialists... tend to think in grooves" (Elaine Morgan). 2. A physician whose practice is limited to a particular branch of medicine or surgery, especially one who is certified by a board of physicians: a specialist in oncology. 3. Abbr. SP Any of several noncommissioned ranks in the U.S. Army that correspond to that of corporal through sergeant first class. —spe'cial-ist, spe'cial-is'tic adj.

spe-ci-al-i-ty (spěsh'ē-āl'ĭ-tē) n. pl. spe-ci-al-i-ties. 1. A distinguishing mark or feature. 2. specialities. Special points of consideration; particulars.

3. Chiefly British. A specialty.

spe-cial-i-za-tion (spěsh'ə-lĭ-zā'shən) n. 1. The act of specializing or the process of becoming specialized. 2. Biology. a. Adaptation, as of an organ or organism, to a specific function or environment. b. A character, a feature, or an organism resulting from such adaptation.

spe-cial-ize (spěsh'ə-lĭz') v. spe-cial-ized, spe-cial-iz-ing, spe-cial-iz-es.

— v. intr. 1. To pursue a special activity, occupation, or field of study.

2. Biology. To develop so as to become adapted to a specific function or environment; undergo specialization. 3. To concentrate on a particular activity or product: The shop specializes in mountain-climbing gear.

— v. tr. 1. To make specific mention of; particularize. 2. To give a particular character or function to: specialized her field of research. 3. Biology. To adapt to a particular function or environment; cause to undergo specialization. 4. To specify the payee in endorsing (a check).

special jury (spěsh'əl jōōr'ē) n. Law. See blue-ribbon jury.

Special Olympics (spěsh'əl ō-lĭm'pĭks) pl.n. A program of competitive sports events fashioned after the Olympic games and intended for physically or mentally challenged athletes.

special pleading (spěsh'əl plē'dĭng) n. 1. Law. Assertion of new or special matter to offset the opposing party's allegations, as an alternative to direct denial. 2. A presentation of an argument that emphasizes only a favorable or single aspect of the question at issue.

special relativity (spěsh'əl rě'l'ə-tīv'ī-tē) n. The physical theory of space and time developed by Albert Einstein, based on the postulates that all the laws of physics are equally valid in all frames of reference moving at a uniform velocity and that the speed of light from a uniformly moving source is always the same, regardless of how fast or slow the source or its observer is moving. The theory has as consequences the relativistic mass increase of rapidly moving objects, the Lorentz-Fitzgerald contraction, time dilatation, and the principle of mass-energy equivalence. Also called special theory of relativity special session (spěsh'əl sěsh'ən) n. A session of a court or legislative body held in addition to the regular sessions.

special theory of relativity (spěsh'əl thē'ə-rē ūv rě'l'ə-tīv'ī-tē) n. See special relativity.

spe-cial-ty (spěsh'əl-tē) n. pl. spe-cial-ties. 1. A special pursuit, occupation, aptitude, or skill. See Synonyms at forte¹. 2. A branch of medicine or surgery, such as cardiology or neurosurgery, in which a physician specializes; the field or practice of a specialist. 3. A special feature or characteristic; a peculiarity. 4. The state or quality of being special or distinctive. 5. An item or a product of a distinctive kind or of particular superiority: French pastry is the chef's specialty.

6. Law. A special contract or agreement, especially a deed kept under seal.

spe-ci-a-tion (spē'shē-ā'shən, -sē-) n. The evolutionary formation of new biological species, usually by the division of a single species into two or more genetically distinct ones. [SPECI(ES) + -ATION.] —spe'ci-a'tion-al adj.

spe-cie (spē'shē, -sē) n. Coined money; coin. —idiom. in specie. 1. In coin. 2. In a similar manner; in kind: repaid the offense in specie. 3. Law. In the same kind or shape; as specified. [From (in) specie, (in) the actual form, from Latin (in) speciē, (in) kind, ablative of speciēs. See SPECIES.]

spe-cies (spē'shēz, -sēz) n. pl. species. Abbr. sp. 1. Biology. a. A fundamental category of taxonomic classification, ranking below a genus or subgenus and consisting of related organisms capable of interbreeding. See Table at taxonomy.

b. An organism belonging to such a category, represented in binomial nomenclature by an uncapitalized Latin adjective or noun following a capitalized genus name, as in Ananas comosus, the pineapple, and Equus caballus, the horse.

2. Logic. A class of individuals or objects grouped by virtue of their common attributes and assigned a common name; a division subordinate to a genus.

3. a. A kind, variety, or type: “No species of performing artist is as self-critical as a dancer” (Susan Sontag). b. The human race; humankind. 4. Roman Catholic Church. a. The outward appearance or form of the Eucharistic elements that is retained after their consecration. b. Either of the consecrated elements of the Eucharist. 5. Obsolete. a. An outward form or appearance. b. Specie. [Middle English, logical classification, from Latin speciēs, a seeing, kind, form. See spek- in Appendix.]

spe·cies·ism (spē'shē-zīz'əm, -sē-) n. Human intolerance or discrimination on the basis of species, especially as manifested by cruelty to or exploitation of animals. —spe'cies·ist' adj. & n.

spe·cies·spe·cif·ic (spē'shēz-spī-sīf'īk, -sēz-) adj. Limited to or found only in one species: a species-specific antibody; a species-specific virus. —spe'cies·spec'i·fic'i·ty (-spēs'ə-fīs'ī-tē) n.

specif. abbr. 1. Specific. 2. Specifically.

spec·i·fi·a·ble (spēs'ə-fī'ə-bəl) adj. Possible to specify: specifiable complaints.

